'New Glass' accepts PC teachers artwork

Jonathan Block, an instructor of art at Parkland College, has had four of his recent glass sculptures accepted for the show "New Glass" being organized by the Corning Museum, Corning, New York.
The exhibition will open in April at Corning and will then tour the U.S., Europe, and the Orient with showings scheduled at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City; the Renwick Gallery of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C.; the Toledo Museum, Toledo, Ohio; and the DeYoung Museum, San Francisco, California; and in England, France, and Japan.

Block joined the Parkland faculty this fall. He received a B.S. in Industrial Design from Philadelphia College of Art, an M.A. from Kent State University, and an M.F.A. from Washington State University, Pullman. He came to Parkland from the Western Washington University, Bellingham, where he had taught since 1976.

Women's program to present workshop

"Learning How To Be Assertive" is the topic of a two-hour workshop to be presented by the Parkland College Women's Program today from 7-9 p.m. in L229. The workshop is designed to provide an introduction to the principles and methods associated with teaching assertive behavior.

Through the use of a film, group discussion and exercises, the participant will gain an appreciation of the differences associated with passive, assertive, and aggressive behaviors. Learning how to establish and maintain more fulfilling interpersonal relationships is another objective of the workshop.

Both men and women are encouraged to participate. There is no fee nor any need to pre-register.

The workshop leader is Kathy Frizzel who is an intern with the Women's program this semester. She is currently co-teaching a ten-week workshop entitled Interpersonal Effectiveness Training.

LRC to extend hours Monday

Beginning Monday, Nov. 13, the Parkland Library extended its hours an additional 30 minutes by opening at 7:30. This will allow students and faculty members to use the library before their 8 a.m. classes.

On days when classes are not in session, the library will continue to open at 8.

Abortion to be the topic of discussion

A Parkland College class, Moral Problems in Medicine and Health Care, will hear a panel discussion from persons opposed to abortion on Thursday, Nov. 16 at 10 a.m. in C218. The panel is composed of Ruth Gordon, Right to Life; Eileen Trotter, Birthright; and Fr. William Watson, Newman Foundation.

On Tuesday, Nov. 21, the class will hear Mrs. Mary Lawless, Planned Parenthood, discuss the pros of abortion.

On another subject, Dr. Howard Cohen, Carle Clinic, will speak on problems of spina bifida and other ethical problems of caring for newborn children on Tuesday, Nov. 28.

Dr. John Schmale, Christie clinic, will discuss the moral implications of dealing with cancer patients on Thursday, Nov. 30.

Mountaineering #3.

METHODOLOGY

Mountaineering, as all but the chronically misinformed know, is the skill, the science and the art of drinking Busch Beer. It begins by heading for the mountains (i.e., a quick jaunt to your favorite package emporium or wateringhole) and ends by downing the mountains (i.e., slow slaking swallows of the brew that is Busch).

¶ However, between those two points lies a vast area of personal peccadilloes sometimes called technique and sometimes called methodology (depending on your major). Hence, this ad. ¶ Sipping vs. chugging. Both have their merits, of course. But generally speaking, sipping is the more prudent practice for serious, sustained mountaineering. ¶ Next, the proper position. Some swear by sitting; others by standing. Suffice it to say that the most successful mountaineers are flexible, so you'll find both sitters and standers.

(Except on New Year's Eve, when it's almost impossible to find a sitter.) ¶ Which brings us to additives. Occasionally a neophyte will sprinkle salt in his Busch; others mix in tomato juice; and a few on the radical fringe will even add egg.

While these manipulations can't be prohibited (this is, after all, a free country), they are frowned upon. Please be advised that purity is a virtue, and the natural refreshment of Busch is best uncompromised.

¶ Finally, there's the issue of containers. Good taste dictates a glass be used. But bad planning sometimes prevents that. If you find yourself forced to drink from the can, you should minimize this breach of etiquette. Be formal. Simply let your little finger stick out stiffly (see Fig. 4). Happy Mountaineering!

Don't just reach for a beer. BUSCH Head for the mountains.

Dr. Shaffer to visit PC

Dr. Gary Shaffer, coordinator of the School of Social Work at the U of I, will be visiting Parkland, Nov. 16, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in X117.

Dr. Shaffer will discuss the field of social work, career opportunities in social work, starting salaries and transfer social work programs (in addition to the U of I) Dr. Shaffer will also answer questions.

For more information call Russ Mills at 357-2260.

PC is offering a new course

Parkland College is offering the course, Applied Food Service Sanitation Training (FSS 110), scheduled to meet for ten sessions, starting Tuesday, Nov. 21, from 6-8 p.m. in X323.

The course is approved by the Illinois Dept. of Public Health. Certification will be given upon satisfactory completion of the course.

Areas covered in the class are: the problem of safe food, the micro-world, contamination and foodborne illness, handling food, procurement and storage of food, protecting food during preparation and service, sanitary facilities, cleaning and sanitizing, pest control, employee training, regulations and standards, safe food management, and self-inspection programs.

Registration will be taken at the first class session. There is an enrollment fee of $27 per participant which covers payment of tuition, instructional materials, test, and examination. Payment is to be made at the first class session.

For information or to reserve class space, please call Priscilla Visek at Parkland 351-2425.

Jeff Sennert and Sharon Bragg show the trophies they won at Bradley University. Bragg placed 6th in Dramatic Interpretation. Sennert placed 5th in persuasive speaking. The Parkland Speech Team will travel to IVCC Junior College for the State Tournament this weekend. By Joy Dargan

PC receives grant

Parkland College has received a highway safety grant to fund two Emergency Medical Technician courses during the 1978-79 school year.

The eighty-one hour course is designed to train personnel who will serve as ambulance crews in the Champaign emergency medical services response area. A total of 25 students are presently in training and another 25 students begin training in early March.

The course will consist of 71 hours of practical training, including testing, followed by a minimum of ten hours of in-hospital observation and training. Upon successful completion of the course the students will receive a certificate from the Illinois Department of Public Health and will be qualified to take the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technician's examination.

Total cost of the project will be about $18,000. A portion of this will be reimbursed to the college upon completion of the project. Federal funds for highway safety projects are administered by the Illinois Department of Transportation's Division of Traffic Safety under provisions of the Highway Safety Act of 1966.

Ceramics class sign-ups now

Students interested in organizing a Ceramics II (ART 146) class for the spring semester should sign up at C134 as soon as possible. At least 12 people are needed if the class is to be added this spring.

Focus '79 film contest is worth $32,500 in cash

Over $32,500 worth of cash prizes, professional internships and motor vehicles will be awarded to winners of FOCUS '79, a national competition open to filmmakers and film students attending colleges, universities, art institutes and film schools throughout the United States.

In addition to Nissan Motor Corporation (distributor of Datsun automobiles), three other major corporations are sponsoring this year's FOCUS (Films Of College and University Students) competition-Playboy Magazine, Universal Studios and U.S. Tobacco.

Among the prizes and awards are automobiles and pickup trucks, a total of $10,000 in scholarships, an editorial internship and a $2,500 sports film grant.

Competition in the filmmaking category of FOCUS '79 is open to 16mm films produced by students on a noncommercial basis within the past two years. Such films can be documentary, experimental, animation or narrative, with a maximum length of 30 minutes.

The film study category is open to essay-style reviews of commercially released films, comprehensive critiques on the works of professional filmmakers or screenwriters, or an analysis of basic themes or trends in current world cinema.

Decisions on winning filmmaking entries will be made by a panel that includes some of Hollywood's most dynamic and creative moviemakers, in keeping with tradition that began with the first FOCUS competition in 1976. An equally distinguished panel of film critics and editors will judge film study entries.

Prizes and honors will be awarded to FOCUS '79 winners at a gala Premiere and Award Ceremony to be held in Hollywood next spring. All 10 winning students will be flown there to attend this event.

An addition to the Premiere, this year there will be "Students Choice Awards," providing a forum for students to express their views on such categories of world cinema as Best Picture, Best Actor and Best Director.

For additional information on official rules, students and professors may contact: FOCUS '79 1140 Avenue of the Americas New York, N.Y. 10036.

'The Miracle Worker' to open Thursday

By Cindy Smith

After a one-night performance in Homer's Opera House last Saturday, the Parkland Players fall production, "The Miracle Worker," will have its "official" opening night tomorrow in C-140 at 8 p.m.

Director Jim Coates called the work preceding the production "a learning experience" for the cast and crew, as well as himself. "I expected the members to concentrate and work hard, and most of them did, but there are always people who think that any demand is too much," Coates said.

Coates intentionally designed the production to involve more cast members, technicians and stage crew than last year's play because he was told that many people who desired to be included in some part of last year's play were not, due to the availability of parts.

"I designed the project, thinking that there would be more interest in it, but most of the students here have so many other responsibilities, I can see where they might not have time. But, it was bad to see so many people sign up at the very first, then slowly fade away as we needed them," he said.

Looking toward the more humorous incidents surrounding the production, Coates laughingly said, "Nothing will be looked upon as funny until this is over and then, hopefully, we can sit back and laugh about it." Considering the time and effort put into the special performance in Homer, it is understandable that nothing stands out as being overly funny, however, Coates did relate a rather amusing anecdote. Since all props, costumes, and equipment, plus actors had to be transported to and from Homer for every rehearsal, a bus was needed. The group found themselves lucky enough to get a bus, but had no regular bus driver. The solution? Jim Coates crammed one entire night while directing, to be ready the next day to take a licensing exam to become a bus driver!

According to Coates, "The Miracle Worker" should "really be a good, enjoyable show that will look good and sound good." Everyone is invited to attend.

Tickets for the performances are still available in the student activities office (X-153) and at the door the night of the performance. All proceeds of the production will go to Parkland Association for the Handicapped.

Women's art exhibit on display at Illini Union

"Perspectives of Four Women Artists," an exhibition of paintings and prints, is on display in the Art Gallery of the Illini Union, U of I at Champaign-Urbana, through Nov. 28.

The gallery is open to the public daily from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Two of the artists, Barbara Kaplan and Kathryn Leach, earned fine arts degrees from UIUC. Ms. Kaplan received bachelor's and master's degree and MS. Leach received a bachelor's degree.

Ms. Kaplan's etchings, engravings and lithographs have been chosen for juried exhibitions in the United States and Europe.

Ms. Leach is the daughter of UIUC faculty members O. Hobart Mowrer, research professor emeritus of psychology, and Willie Mae Mowrer, professor emerita of family relationships. Her works have been selected for shows in universities and museums in Kentucky, Tennessee and Indiana.

A third artist, Priscilla Humay, is a native of Chicago. She earned a bachelor's degree from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago and a master's degree from the Institute of Design in the Illinois Institute of Technology, and completed postgraduate work at Charles University in Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Her watercolor and acrylic paintings, prints and animated films have been exhibited widely in the Midwest.

Laura Alpert, a member of the art faculty of Indiana University, is the fourth artist included in the exhibition. She earned a bachelor's degree from Stanford University and a master's degree from the University of Oregon. Her paintings have been selected for shows in Canada and the United States.

Ms. Alpert is the daughter of UIUC faculty members Daniel Alpert, director of the Center for Advanced Study, and Natalie B. Alpert, assistant head of the department of landscape architecture.

Many kinds of loans are available to financial troubled PC students

by Cathy Butler

Coordinator of Financial Aid, Ken Gunji, talks to a student about the pros and cons of applying for one of the several loans available to Parkland students.
By Rich Berbaum

While determining your money situation for school next year, you find there are not sufficient funds, several kinds of loans are available for those who do not meet the requirements for grants or scholarships.

Many more students should be able to meet the financial requirements for the BEOG next school year, said coordinator of financial aids, Ken Gunji. Gunji went on to say a new law has been passed by Congress changing the amount of income to a higher level for those seeking the grant. The law, Middle Income Family-Student Assistance Act, was passed by President Carter Nov. 1, 1978.

The act also includes the Guaranteed Student Loan, which protects the lender of the money from never being paid back, he said. If a student doesn't pay the loan back in the specified length of time, the Government will reimburse the lender (bank, credit union, etc.). The new act also puts no ceiling on the loan. Any student can borrow money no matter what their income is, but they must be a customer of the bank, credit union, or savings and loan they are borrowing from.

Before this loan went into effect, only students with a family income of under $25,000 were able to secure a loan. The family income was determined by taking the income of both the parents and the student, subtracting 10 per cent of the gross income, and subtracting $750 for each dependent. If, after this, the family income was under $25,000, the student was granted a loan.

A loan from the bank is interest free while the student is in school and nine months after his graduation. From that time on, 7 per cent per year interest is charged.

Two types of loans from Parkland are available for students.

One kind of loan is the NDSL (National Direct Student Loan).

The deadline for this loan is June 15 for the school year. The procedure established four years ago has been to give this loan to students taking at least twelve semester hours with a 2.0 grade point average or above. The loan is generally not given to new or transfer students.

Most of the money Parkland has to give loans to students in the form of NDSL for the spring semester has already been committed to students, so there will not be many new loans given out. Parkland has a total of $30,000 of NDSL money to loan each student year.

When comparing the difference of loans from a bank to loans from Parkland, there are many. The interest rate for the NDSL is three per cent nine months after the student graduates compared to the bank's seven per cent. Ten years are allowed for repaying the NDSL, while a bank must be paid back in five years. Also a bank loan is more or less a loan for convenience and demonstrated financial need is the major factor in securing a NDSL.

The other type of loan Parkland has to offer is a Short Term Loan.

A Short Term Loan gives a maximum of $130 to new or returning students and $200 for continuing students. In either case, the student must pay a minimum of $70 toward their own fees.

As an example of how this works, if a new student has a total of $220 to pay to attend Parkland, the short term loan will pay $130 of it, but the student must still come up with $90 on his own. This can work just the opposite, too. If a continuing student has a fee of $250, he must pay $70 leaving only $180 for the Short Term Loan to pay.

The reason the amounts of money given to different students varies, according to Gunji, is that theoretically a new or returning student has had time to work, earning more money towards his education than a continuing student. Parkland gave out $15,000 last fall in Short Term Loans.

Loans are a good form of assistance, but Gunji urges students to apply for grants before trying for a loan.

"Planning ahead is the main thing," he said.

Foreigner—a dynamic wave of sound

by Val Wallace

A dynamic wave of emotion, movement, and—sound—was Foreigner at the Assembly Hall last Friday.

Blasting, jolting, teasing, and tantalizing the audience with its music, the six-member band successfully combined musical talent and skill with a psychological knowledge of people's desires, creating a powerful, emotionally charged atmosphere of music and movement.

Foreigner's sound is not really unique. Like any good rock 'n roll band, the group is loud and overpowering, with the band using such special effects as a fog machine and spectacular, prismatic lighting to help it.

But add to that lead singer, Lou Gramm, with his powerful, sliding vocals and even more powerful, adrenalin-charged body language. Even his cues are dramatic, excited swings through the air.

To complement him, include Mick Jones, the group's incredible lead guitarist who, for the audience's benefit, manages to keep his overwhelming music within the sound barrier.

Then back them with vocals Ed Gagliardi, also on bass, and Ian McDonald, on guitar, horns, and keyboard. Add Al Greenwood, on keyboards and synthesizer, and the drums of Dennis Elliott, and the result is a screaming audience almost gone wild with music and emotion.

Ambrosia was the opening act. The five-member band was good with clear vocals and well-blended music. They were too good—so good that the main attraction just had to be mediocre in comparison.

And at first Foreigner was almost a disappointment. The band's first song, "Long Long Way From Home," although a blast of fury made complete with fog machine and lighting, was far from perfect.

Hitting a few notes clearly off key, Gramm also had to contend with piercing mike squealing and a band that was not quite in step with its lead singer.

But then, striving for perfection, song after song, they got better and better—noticeably.

The faulty vocals and amateur mike squealing gone, replaced by works of art like "I Need You" and, later, "Woman Oh Woman," where the dynamic guitar of Mike Jones was awesome.

From their Double Vision album, the hit by the same name and other songs, "Blue Morning, Blue Day" and "Spellbinder," were made extraordinary by the strong vocals of Gramm, now really warming up.

By "Cold As Ice," which Gramm led into with a tantalizing suspenseful intro, the band and the audience were really moving. The harmony was perfect, and Gramm's dynamic vocals really came through.

This was followed by "The Damage Is Done" and an explosive blast of fury called "At War With the World," a little too loud, but the audience was eating it up anyway.

Then came the "spacey songs," Gramm called them. "Star Rider" was the highlight with various instrument solos included. Al Greenwood's keyboard and synthesizer were loud and spectacular. And an almost tangible object of beauty, the heart-wrenching flute solo by Ian McDonald will not soon be forgotten. And, of course, Mick Jones with his vocal and guitar solo was indescribable.

"Feels Like the First Time" was one of the last songs the band performed before Foreigner's latest hit, "Hot Blooded," preceded by an indeterminate wait, exploded on stage as an encore. The song was packed with emotion, more from the audience than the band.

Other encores, "Headknocker," where Gramm excelled again, the "Rogue Guitar," Mick Jones, of course, were awe-inspiring.

The concert ended with the group bowing arm over arm together and with the promise by Gramm, "Hey, Champaign, we'll see you again next year!"

Foreigner's dynamic music seemed to charge the audience almost into a frenzy at a performance last Friday in the Assembly Hall.

Michigan college wins cross country meet at golf course

Southwestern Michigan college won the National junior college cross country meet at the U of I golf course last Saturday.

The pre-meet favorite, S. W. M. scored 59 points to outdistance its nearest competitor, Hagerstown Jr. College, by 12 points.

Odis Sanders, Hagerstown, was the individual champion winning the five mile race in a time of 24:12. Just behind Sanders in a time of 24:13 was Correa, College of Southern Idaho.

S. W. M. had a total of four All-Americans. All-America honors are given to the top 25 finishers. Hagerstown had three and Bervard, Jackson Community, and Glendale Community each had two. Third place New Mexico Junior College only had one in third place finisher Pedro Flores.

All 25 were timed under 25 minutes, which is better than a five minute per mile pace.

Solomon Chebor, Essex County, had placed sixth in the NCAA (National College Athletic Association) meet last year and had the best time going into this year's meet, but finished 11th in 24:32.

Kevin Higdon, another high rated runner finished lower than expected. Higdon, S. W. M., placed 13th in 24:39, and behind two teammates, Dave Morrill, 8th, 24:27, and Dave Finnestad, 12th, 24:32.

In the women's division, Dodge City Community college took the team title with 48 points. Second was Clackamas Community, just three points behind with a score of 51.

Wren Schafer is special

There must be something special about Wren Schafer.

Schafer, a freshman at Golden Valley Lutheran College in Minneapolis, and originally from Buffalo Lake, Minn., easily won the NJCAA women's cross country championships last Saturday with a 17:00 time.

"I just felt really good," said Schafer. "The whole race felt good."

There are winners every year. Last year, a GVLC runner had won the same event.

So what's so special?

How about that Schafer never was a serious distance runner until she came to Golden Valley this year. "I never even ran five miles before I went to college," she said.

Schafer, a three-year 400-yard state Class A champ in high school, went to GV to run track, but started running cross country practice in August.

It isn't that Schafer had not worked out hard before. In high school she recalls doing a lot of interval work, but she never ran much distance. "Maybe two miles every once in a while," she said.

"I just like to run. I enjoy it," she explained.

In the national meet, Schafer looked strong through the full three miles, but she counts on running the 440 and 880 this spring.

The young farm girl is undecided on her educational future. She thinks perhaps Recreational Leadership, but she is sure that she will be running in college for three more years.

After he showing in the nationals Saturday, Wren Schafer looks like the type who can be the best at anything she enjoys.

Wren Schafer easily took individual honors in the three mile race with a 17:00 clocking.

Following Schafer was Joan Gallo, Suffolk Community College.

The top twelve women received All-America status. Dodge City, Clackamas, Golden Valley, and Phoenix College each went home with two All-Americans.

Juanita Neff, Tammy Tucker, and Debbie Sabotka led Dodge City to the title placing 9th, 10th, and 13th respectively.

Second place Clackamas was led by third place finisher Lisa Nickel and an 11th place finish by Leandra Baringa. Third place Golden Valley had a fourth place finish from Sheila Beecher besides Schafer's victory to put their team in the third place position.

PC places 20th in meet

Led by Al Larson, who finished 84th in a time of 26:07, Parkland finished 20th out of 21 teams in the national meet last Saturday.

Steve Elam placed 146th in 27:32. Elam and Larson were the only true Parkland qualifiers, but the host school is allowed to enter a team.

The other Parkland finishers were Mark Decker, 181st, 28:44; Thom Uhlir, 188th, 29:16; Mike Withrow, 190th, 29:23; Sean Lowry, 191st, 29:25, and Fred Dunaway, 193rd, 30:28.

Sanders gets highest honor in meet

Coming into the meet with the idea he would do his best to help the team, Odis Sanders left the cross country national meet with the highest honor after coasting in the last hundred yards to victory.

Sanders knew the pre-meet favorites were Kevin Higdon of Southwestern Michigan and Solomon Chebor, Essex County. Sanders knew that he could get in the top ten. And Sanders knew the day before the race he wanted to win.

"I said to my coach, 'I'm going to win, I want to beat that African (Chebor) guy,'" Sanders recalled.

Sanders is from Freeport Long Island. In his senior year in high school, he won the State cross country meet, placed second in the state two mile and third in the mile.

A freshman at Hagerstown Jr. College, Maryland, Sanders is still winning. He won almost every meet this year, remembering only two he lost, both times to a teammate.

In the National meet, Sanders described the course as "a lot easier and a lot faster." Sanders is accustomed to hilly courses.

During the race, he went out with the leaders in the first three miles Sanders knew that Chebor liked to pick up the pace after the three-mile mark. When the pace stayed the same, Sanders decided he could finish a lot faster and began to pull away from everyone but Jairo Correa, College of Southern Idaho.

Sanders was still confident with 100 yards to go, but still in pace with Correa.

"I knew he (Correa) couldn't outkick me. I knew he couldn't pass me with 100 yards to go. I just lifted my knees and strided in."

That's just what Sanders did as he finished with a 24:12 time. Correa finished in 24:13 and Chebor placed 11th in 24:32.

Sanders felt he could have gone faster, but he needs "someone to tear me into the ground" before he can push himself. He did say he probably couldn't have gone faster than 23:50, but on this fast course he thought he could have done better than he did.

Sanders is now looking to the indoor track season. He hopes to run a 4:04 or better mile.

He plans on staying at Hagerstown next year, so teamed with "Coach of the Year" Rick Ergmann, the Hagerstown cross country team appears to have a bright future.

Scruton claims All-American titles Saturday

Only one Illinois runner claimed All-America titles at the National cross country meet last Saturday in Savoy.

Jim Scruton, Lincoln Land, the winner of the State meet two weeks ago, placed 22nd in 24:51 to earn the All-America honors given to the top 25 finishers.

Scruton, Tom Spears, and Jim Clifford led Lincoln Land to their ninth place finish in the nation. Spears and Clifford finished 52nd and 53rd, respectively.

Another Illinois team, Wilbur Wright junior college, placed 12th. The state title holders were led by Mike Pellikan's 39th place and Jerome Jordan's 69th finish.

PC Community Band is a family affair

By Cindy Smith

Many members of Parkland College's Community Band have found a note on which to promote togetherness by playing an instrument alongside other members of their immediate families.

The group, formed in the academic year of 1968-69, originally met in the old Jefferson building in downtown Champaign, on the corner opposite W. T. Grant's. Mrs. Carolyn Whitney, a music teacher for Unit 4 schools, was the band's first leader. In fact, it was through Mrs. Whitney that many of the community members got involved with the band to begin with.

Mrs. Alice Haegele explained

Although Mrs. Haegele has seen four of her children go through the band, she and her son, Glen, a student at Central, are still in and enjoying it thoroughly. "The members of the band are a close that she got involved because her daughter was in 6th grade and a pupil of Mrs. Whitney's. The band was actually formed to give elementary school children in Champaign-Urbana a better background in music.

Mrs. Haegele thought the band sounded like such a good idea that she asked if she might join. Similarly, other children's parents asked to be included in the musical activities and soon the band was not just for kids anymore.

group, just like a family," she added.

There is disagreement as to whether a family's involvement in the band contributes to a better family relationship.

Daniel Schult, along with his sister, Julie, and their father, has been in the band about two years, and thinks that the band has not made them any closer, for they have always had a close family relationship.

Mrs. Haegele believes that the

Another family pair, Paul Johnson, 12, a trombonist who perhaps is the youngest member of the group, and his father, who plays a flute, joined the band just this fall and are really enjoying it.

While listening to the Community Band of Parkland College, it is easy to get caught up in the enthusiasm the members have for putting together a very professional performance. Perhaps one member expressed the feeling best when he said, "Playing in a band is as much teamwork as playing football. Everyone has a mutual appreciation of another person's talent."

PC student, a world traveler

By Teri Blackmore

Ricardo D'Alessandro is not the average Parkland College student. He comes originally from Argentina, has traveled around the world for 18 years, is a minister, and has been a paraplegic for six months.

Ricardo lived in Argentina till he was 19 years old, and then spent the next nine years travelling around the world. He supported himself by doing many odd and interesting jobs, like being a sailor on a boat in the Carribean, a carpenter in Germany, and a dish washer in England.

Ricardo was trying to "find himself," through his travels and tried other means as well, such as politics and drugs. He found what he was looking for eight years ago in Houston, Texas, in the International Society of Krishna Consciousness.

Krishna Consciousness, as Ricardo explains it, concentrates on "finding out who you are." He explains that through "knowing yourself you have the key to understanding God."

After trying to become a minister in West Virginia, Ricardo and his wife, Susan, whom he met in Houston, started travelling to set up communities for Krishna Consciousness in Mexico, the U.S., France, Italy, India, and Spain.

Ricardo D'Alessandro, an Argentinian enrolled in Parkland's watch repair program, is perhaps one of the college's most widely travelled students—having lived and worked in such distant places as the Carribean, Germany, and England.

By Joy Dargan

It was while Ricardo was working in Spain that he attended a "Congress meeting" in India and there was involved in the bus accident that caused him to become a paraplegic.

Ricardo spent three months in a hospital in India, and then he sought medical attention in the U.S. It was while he was in a hospital in Indianapolis that he heard of Parkland's Watch Repair Program and registered into it.

The adjustments of settling down in a new community and adapting to his handicap are difficult, but Ricardo and his family seem to be doing well.

Susan and he now have three children, Aravindo, their son whose name means "lotus flower,"

Sati, the oldest girl, whose name means "chaste," and Govinda, whose name means "one that gives pleasure to the senses." The names are in Sanskrit, a dead language, but used in Krishna Consciousness when giving names. Ricardo and Susan also have Sanskrit names—Haihaya and Narmada.

Allen is stu-go secretary

by Terri Anderson

Being the secretary of Parkland's student government is something Virginia Allen, full-time student and mother of two said she just wanted to do.

Virginia became interested in running for secretary last semester after coming to the stu-go office to visit a friend who was then in office. She was elected secretary in the spring elections.

Virginia is presently enrolled in her second semester at Parkland, studying to be a medical secretary.

Her responsibilities as the secretary of stu-go include taking minutes at the stu-go meetings, typing official materials for members of stu-go, and keeping the stu-go office straightened up.

About the latter, Virginia said, "When I first came into the office it looked worse than it does now." She is responsible for seeing that the furniture and floors in the office are not littered on. "Sometimes I have to tell someone to get off the desk or pick up something. Usually, though, they're good about it," she said. "They all think I'm mean when I have to yell at an offender."

Virginia is aided in her task of taking minutes at stu-go meetings by a tape recorder. Later, she types the minutes and presents them at the following stu-go meeting.

As a member of the executive board in stu-go, Virginia along with the president, vice-president, treasurer, and senior day senator has a vote. She, however, cannot vote in the senate session after an amendment to the stu-go constitution was made during the last election outlawing it.

The new amendment does not bother Virginia because as she said, "I say what I have to say anyway."

Virginia votes on any suggestions made by the executive board that go to the senate. She has not voted on any suggestions yet; therefore, she has not exercised that executive power.

One of Virginia's future goals is to work as a secretary in a doctor's office. Presently, working as the stu-go secretary is gaining her valuable training and experience.

Virginia Allen is the secretary of student government this semester.

Keeping warm can be dangerous if precautions are not taken High energy costs and concerns over energy shortages encourage consumers to find new ways to keep warm during the up-coming cold months.

Most frequently coal or wood stoves and fireplaces provide this additional heat. They heat individual rooms or give warmth during power outages. Because few consumers know the dangers associated with these heating units, accidents with them do occur.

Selecting Stoves and Fireplaces

Chimneys in older homes or those that have not been used for a long time, should be cleaned and inspected for thin walls, flue linings and improper clearances from combustible materials in walls and ceilings. Dampers should be in working order. Check both fireplaces and hearths for sound mortar and tight-fitting screens.

Coal and wood stoves are more efficient heating units than fireplaces. In fact, fireplaces often create a draft that drains heat from the house. On a very cold night this loss is greater than the heat gained.

Whether purchasing a new or used wood or coal stove, check it for cracks and other defects such as faulty legs, hinges and draft louvres. Coal stoves must have grates in good repair. Cast iron stoves offer the most protection against accidental home fires.

Installing Stoves and fireplaces

Stoves and fireplaces must have adequate clearances from all combustible materials. Connectors, vents and flues should all meet safety requirements. These recommendations can be found in the manufacturer's directions or by writing to the manufacturer.

Local building codes also contain information for installing fireplaces and stoves. Professional heating contractors can assist consumers not familiar with installing heat ducting and venting.

Using Stoves and Fireplaces

Building fires improperly is one cause of stove and fireplace accidents. To build a fire safely, place a small amount of crumpled paper in the heating unit and cover it with dry kindling or small dry sticks.

Open the damper and ignite the paper. Add larger pieces of wood once draft is created in the chimney. Adding small amounts of fuel regularly will produce an even and hot fire.

Avoid using flammable liquids, such as gasoline and charcoal lighter fluid, to start or rekindle a fire.

Hodgkin to give lecture today in Gregory Hall

Wear the Parkland Colors on GREEN and GOLD Day

MEET THE COBRA ATHLETES, COACHES, AND CHEERLEADERS . . .

PEP RALLY begins at 12 noon in College Center.

Sangamon State University senior, Oscar Lambdin, a former student at Parkland and titled "Mr. Intramural" in 1976 for his participation in intramural football here, was recently named the second leading scorer in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Former Parkland College student Oscar Lambdin makes the NAIA

Sangamon State University senior, Oscar Lambdin, former "Mr. Intramural" at Parkland Community College, Champaign, Ill., was recently named the second leading scorer in National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics District No. 20, having scored 21 goals.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lambdin, 1702 West Michigan St., Urbana, Lambdin is most often described by such titles as "Mr. Hustle" and "Garbage Man" by his coaches and teammates, because of his aggressiveness on the field and his ability to be in the right place at the right time.

"Oscar is a persistent player in that he hounds an opponent until that guy makes a mistake, and then he capitalizes on that mistake. He is a tireless player who applies pressure at midfield and doesn't give a guy a chance to turn around and see where he's going," Assistant Coach Jeff Aldrich, of Sangamon State, said.

In NAIA national rankings, Lambdin holds the fourth position slot in average scoring per game with 2.36. In 12 games, Lambdin has drilled home 21 goals and delivered six assists, for an overall point total of 27.

Coach Aydin Gonulsen calls Lambdin an opportunist, in that, "He's one of the most industrious players I have on the team. In any given game, he will average eight to 12 miles on the field, playing both offense and defense."

While at Parkland, Lambdin played intramural football, and was named "Mr. Intramural" in 1976. Not having a soccer team at Parkland, he also played softball and basketball.

Last week's tough tie game made Fast Freddy difficult

Last week's Fast Freddy contest turned out to be much more difficult than it appeared to be on the surface as no one had a perfect score, thanks mainly to a tie game.

We had four people who missed only that tie game between Purdue and Wisconsin. Of those four, two of them picked Nebraska to upset Oklahoma and they both picked the point spread by seven points. So consequently, we have co-winners.

The winners are Tim Kelley and Frank Trevena. The other two who missed one were Kathy Heiser and Steve Britsky. Fifteen others missed two and there were 62 entries in all.

Other than the tie, the games that the contestants had problems with were Houston's 10-7 win over Texas, Georgia's 24-22 win over Florida in Jacksonville, Colorado State over New Mexico in Lobo Country, and Ball State's win over Western Michigan which virtually assured them of a Mid-American Conference championship.

This week's escapade may or may not be easy. It will depend upon what happens, as it does every week, on Saturday.

Highlighting the action this week is the Pacific 10 showdown in the Los Angeles Coliseum between USC and UCLA with the winner headed for Pasadena on New Year's Day.

USC took last year's champs Washington out of the picture last week with a 28-10 win while Oregon State dealt UCLA a 15-13 defeat in Corvallis. This will be the tie-breaker this week.

The highlight game in the Big Eight this week will be Missouri at Nebraska. The Huskers took Oklahoma out of the nation's top spot last week and looked very impressive in doing so. Now Missouri doesn't have that impressive of a record, but remember that the Tigers play all of their "tough" opposition just that way.

Nebraska had better not be over confident.

In the Ivy League, Yale plays its annual battle at Harvard with a definite barring on the league title.

Georgia goes to Auburn in a Southeastern Conference game. If the Junkyard Dogs can beat Doug Barfield's crew, then they will probably go to the Sugar Bowl instead of Alabama. Georgia will have the same conference record as the Tide but will go because the Tide was there the last time. They do not play each other.

The game in the Big Ten will be Purdue at Michigan. In order for Jim Young's Boilermakers to have any chance of going to the Rose Bowl, they must beat the Wolverines in Ann Arbor. For Michigan to go, they must beat Purdue and then Ohio State.

Another Big Ten game worth mentioning is Illinois at Minnesota. The Gophers will be the favorite in this game and about the only thing good about this game is that it will be the last for Illinois this season.

Texas A&M plays at Arkansas in a big Southwest Conference game on Saturday night. The winner of this game will still be in the running for a bowl bid somewhere other than Dallas for the Cotton Bowl.

Other games will be Iowa State at Colorado, Ohio State at Indiana, Wisconsin at Iowa, Kansas at Kansas State, LSU at Mississippi State, and Oklahoma State at Oklahoma.

Scores from last week were: Ball State 20, Western Michigan 14; Houston 10, Texas 7; Ohio State 45, Illinois 7; Indiana 34, Iowa 14; Michigan 59, Northwestern 14; Michigan State 33, Minnesota 9; Notre Dame 31, Tennessee 14; Purdue 24, Wisconsin 24; USC 28, Washington 10; Georgia 24, Florida 22; Penn State 19, North Carolina State 10; Colorado State 26, New Mexico 15; and Nebraska 17, Oklahoma 14.

Women's volleyball ends with a win

by Pete Rosenbery

Parkland Women's Volleyball squad ended the 1978 season with a win over Wilbur Wright College Saturday, but failed to make the quarterfinals of the NJCAA Region IV State Volleyball tournament in Rockford.

The Cobras played in what was probably the toughest pool of the tournament and finished with a 3-3 record. They were bested by Lincoln Land for the second spot in the pool when the Loggers won the second game against Lincoln Land and were ahead 8-3 in the second. A Joliet victory would have given the Cobras a berth in the final eight, but LL came back to win, thus leaving Parkland thoughts of next year.

Parkland dropped two games to Joliet Friday night, 15-12, 15-4. They then split Saturday morning against LL, 8-15, 15-8.

"Friday, we played real good," said coach Lynette Trout. "We were ahead against Joliet but lost a couple of points and couldn't come back."

Faced with the realization that they would have to win all four games on Saturday, Cobras' hopes suffered a blow when they lost the first game against Lincoln Land.

"On Saturday, we started off bad," continued Trout. "We finally got going in the second game. It was good experience for us to be here. Actually," she continued, "it's an honor because a lot of teams didn't make it here."

Parkland finished the season with a 19-11-2 record. Some of the rewarding moments in the year were the first-ever victory of Lake Land, the sectional victory.

"I just wish we could have played better when we got to the state. It has been a rewarding season at times, but other times it has been disappointing," Trout said.

Three Cobras played their last volleyball match for the Cobras over the weekend. Natalie Franklin, Teri Stoerger and Michele Bealor. Lenora Stewart, another key member on the floor, broke her foot with two weeks left in the year and didn't suit up for the state.

"We just couldn't put it all together during the year," Trout said as she looked back over the year.

Wrestlers ready for opening meet, says coach Williams

by Tom Schmitz

"They are ready," said Coach Marty Williams of his wrestlers.

They want to wrestle in a meet, and that's what they'll get to do this Saturday in the prestigious St. Louis Open.

The meet gathers such teams as Illinois, Missouri, SIU Edwardsville and SIU Carbondale, plus tough junior colleges like Forest Park, Florissant Valley, and Meramec — all of St. Louis.

Parkland can't expect to place, but it does "give us a chance to see what some of our competition looks like," said Coach Williams. PC meets Meramec Dec. 16 and Flo Valley Jan. 19.

Small on numbers, Parkland has eight out of ten weights filled, but John Cortez, Willowbrook is out for an indefinite period due to ligament damage in his knee. PC will go to St. Louis with seven wrestlers.

Starting with the lightest weight division, the seven left are John King, sophomore, Normal Community High, who will wrestle at 126. He graduated in 1975 and will graduate from PC at the end of this semester. He went to Sectionals as a senior and had a 19-4-2 record that year.

John Cortez, freshman, wrestled at 134 in high school where he boasted a 38-5 record his senior year. Cortez will wrestle the same weight when he returns.

Mark Goodwin, freshman, Urbana, won every tournament but the State meeting his senior year at 132 in earning his 27-4 record. He was also a two time Big 12 conference champion. Goodwin will wrestle at 142 pounds this year.

John Simmons, sophomore, Normal Community, was a District champion his junior year, and placed second in the conference as a senior. Simmons is a heavyweight.

All wrestlers are in their first year of eligibility since none had wrestled in college before. This is the first year for wrestling at PC in five years.

Other colleges in the state are definitely more established. The always tough Triton college placed second in the nation last year, but the team that Coach Williams sees as the next National champion is Joliet. Joliet is returning with two members that placed third in the national last year. DuPage is another tough competitor.

Parkland will be in the Triton Inv. Dec. 3, and will meet Joliet Feb. 2, in a duel meet.

Ben Daniels, freshman, Champaign Central, wrestled at 145 two years ago when he was in high school. He will wrestle at 150.

Paul Dubinski, sophomore, Melrose Park, is a 1976 graduate when he wrestled at 155, advancing to state by placing second in both the districts and sectional. He also went to sectional his junior year.

Dubinski will wrestle at 167 pounds.

Lynn Rice, sophomore, Urbana, only wrestled one year in high school, but will wrestle at 176 this year.

Dan Wozniak, freshman, Rantoul, is a 190 pound wrestler, both in high school and now. But his junior year he wrestled as a heavyweight and was just out weighted by his opponents. Last year, Wozniak had a 21-8 record.

Cobras gain new faces

New basketball season hopeful

By Ken Hartman

Six nights from tonight, the new Parkland basketball team takes to the road for its 1978-79 season opener in the state capital of Springfield.

Last season, the Cobras had their best record in the school's history at 24-5, but lost four starters and a head coach in Ken Pritchett, who resigned after the season.

So Parkland hired former Normal Community High School coach Tom Cooper to replace Pritchett. Cooper was 119-88 at Normal in eight seasons including two Capitol Conference championships.

Parkland has only one starter returning, Gary Rucks, along with four others from last year. Fred Jones, Matt Bennett, Rodney Davis, and Robert Sangster. To supplement these, Cooper has added 11 freshmen and two sophomores for his squad.

In essence, the Cobras will have 13 new faces, not counting the coaching staff. Usually, so many new faces means rebuilding, but don't shed tears yet.

"It's going to be an interesting year," Cooper said. "I think we'll be a very interesting, entertaining team with a crowd pleasing style."

These new faces aren't your ordinary run-of-the-mill players. These are very good players with exceptional backgrounds. For instance, the two sophomores are Terry Turner, the former Champaign Central star and brother of Clyde Turner, who starred at Minnesota, and Lou Henson, Jr., son of Illinois basketball coach Lou Henson.

The freshmen Cooper will have are very good. They are Andre Mitchell (Champaign Centennial), Kevin Cross (Central), Andre Kyse (Urbana), Greg Hunt and Bill Foreman (Decatur MacArthur), Deon Mennenga (Rantoul), Dodie Dunson (Bloomington), Anthony King (Madison), Mike Mumm (Unity), Mark Scherer (Roanoke-Benson), and Tom Lutzenberger (St. Louis).

Dunson, King, and Scherer all played in the Illinois High School Association All-Star games in Bloomington while King played on the 1977 Class A state champion Madison and Scherer played for 1977 Class A champion Madison and Scherer played for 1977 Class A quarter-finalist Roanoke-Benson. They were both juniors at that time.

"We have a number of new players trying to fit into a new system," Cooper said. "I have to get used to them and they have to get used to me. However, our players have done a beautiful job of adapting their style to fit into what we need to have done."

What will the Cobras be trying to do this winter?

"We will try to be successful without being big," Cooper said. "It's a tremendous price to pay, but I think we have the guys willing to do it."

"We would like the game to be a game of intensity, skill (meaning the pass), and quickness as opposed to the power game of rebounding and methodical tempo with precise detailed execution," he said. "We want to force people to free lance against us and we are going to try and get the ball before they shoot and eliminate the rebound. We may not have to shoot a good percentage if we get more shots."

Their first opponent will be Springfield, a club that dealt the Cobras one of their five losses a year ago, 102-99 in Springfield.

Coach: Tom Cooper
Assistant: Tom Gerhardt
Student Assistant: Randy Clarke

Coach John Rajaski returns four lettermen from last year's club. They are 6-5 Cliff Johnson of Eisenhower, 6-1 Adolph Montgomery and 6-3 Fred Williams of Springfield, and 6-2 Kevin Timoney of Springfield Griffin.

With those, Rajaski added eight freshmen to go with the returnees. The best ones appear to be Tim Meyer, a 6-0 guard from Quincy and 6-5 Jeff Kasten of Virden.

"We want our quickness to be a factor," Cooper said. "We have good quickness and we will try to make one of the determining factors in the outcome of the game. We will be trying to pressure the opponent constantly."

Cooper has had some exceptional players that he has coached in the past. Those players are Randy Smithson, son of former Illinois State coach and now Wichita State head man Gene Smithson, Lance Jones, who had a good season last year at Eastern Illinois, and John Mann, who played quite a bit at a growing basketball power in the Metro Conference in Georgia Tech.

Cooper will have a very capable assistant coach in former University of Illinois basketball player Tom Gerhardt.

Gerhardt, a graduate of Chicago DeLaSalle High School, played four years at Illinois and was noted for his rebounding and defense while at Illinois even though he came out of high school as primarily a scorer. He will be a tremendous asset to Cooper in his first year.

"The players have responded in a very positive way and have been working real hard and with good intensity," Cooper said. "I've always preferred a pressing, running style of basketball and I have high hopes along those lines for our teams here at Parkland."

"I will be surprised if we jell before Christmas," he added. "I've been very pleased with the workouts and we're making progress every day. It's been a treat for me."

Parkland basketball will definitely be a treat for the fans as well.
