By Denise Perri
Prospectus Editor

Kevin L. Northrup, coordinator of accounting, banking, and insurance, has been appointed interim vice president and dean of instruction of Parkland College, Pres. Paul J. Magelli has announced. The president said a permanent dean/vice president probably will be selected by May 1.

Northrup has previously represented the faculty to the Board of Trustees in salary negotiations. Magelli said, "When the faculty names the person to represent them, I think that's a strong indication of their support." He said Northrup's 17-year tenure and his experience as a coordinator have given him a solid understanding of how the College is run. Northrup is also "fully informed about the budget" and about the problems associated with it, Magelli said.

"He certainly understands administration," Magelli added, "and he understands the agenda needed to be addressed."

As vice president, Northrup's primary duty is daily management and maintenance of all academic programs in the College. He will oversee programs, their curriculum, and the budget associated with them, which, according to Magelli, makes up about 75 percent of the College's total budget.

All the division chairs, the director of economic development, and about seven or eight other persons will report directly to Northrup. Some of Northrup's other responsibilities include helping to implement program budgeting and working with Magelli on reorganizational options in the College. Some of this reorganization includes considering how many divisions Parkland should have, effecting financial savings at both division and program levels, and filling vacancies such as the Communications Division chair position left vacant by Paul W. Batty.

Alice Pfeffer, biology coordinator, and Dale Ewen, coordinator of mathematics, will serve as part-time interim faculty assistants to Vice President Northrup while maintaining their present coordinator positions. Magelli said these positions have been created because of the urgency to address an already heavy agenda of existing responsibilities.

Pfeffer is chair of the Commission on Enrollment and Related Issues and will work on enrollment development and performance evaluation. Magelli wants to implement mandatory evaluation of both faculty and programs.

Ewen is chair of the Strategic Planning Commission and will be responsible for "putting the strategic planning process in place," according to Magelli. Part of this planning process, which focuses on Parkland in its third decade, covers issues and changes the College will face, such as the effects that new requirements for high school graduation will have on college curriculum. Magelli also said Ewen is assigned to work on a "college-wide computer enriched curriculum."

As the search for a permanent dean/vice president gets underway, Magelli said the committee's search is "wide open" and that the person to fill this position may be found in-house or out-of-house. Northrup, who is a Certified Public Accountant with a Master of Science from the University of Illinois and a Master of Business Administration from Bradley University, has not indicated that he will seek a permanent appointment to the vice president position.

Showing confidence in his interim appointments of Northrup, Pfeffer, and Ewen, Magelli said, "I think they're three of the most respected members of the faculty."

Alcohol Awareness Week begins Oct. 19

Parkland College students are participating in the prevention of alcohol abuse by promoting "Alcohol Awareness Week" on campus Oct. 19-25.

"An important partnership can be formed between students, faculty, administration and the community to encourage students to make responsible decisions regarding alcohol," said Walt Rudy, Student Government President.

President Paul Magelli's support of Alcohol Awareness Week at Parkland has made development of the week's activities possible. Also cooperating with the project are the Community Health Information Office, and Campus Health Services, the Student Services Committee, and SADHA.

Activities on the Parkland campus will coincide with similar student efforts nationwide during National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week. These student events stress education and the individual's ultimate responsibility in making well-informed, responsible decisions. Now in its fourth year, the national campaign is sponsored by the Inter-Association Task Force on Alcohol and Other Substance Abuse Issues, which represents student affairs professionals across the country.

To be opened in 2061

Club will bury time capsule

By Denise Perri
Prospectus Editor

David Linton, astronomy instructor and education specialist for the planetarium, said the Astronomy Club's Halley's Comet Time Capsule will be buried at noon, Oct. 23, at the William M. Staerkel Planetarium's opening ceremonies. Linton, who is the club's faculty advisor, said, any materials to be included in the time capsule must be submitted to the Astronomy Club immediately.

The capsule, which measures about 3'x 3'x 7', will be buried on the west side of the Cultural Center near the planetarium's entrance. The capsule will be opened in 2061 when Parkland is 95 years old.

In a memo to Parkland's faculty and staff, Linton said, "The choice of year was inspired by the coincidence between the most recent appearance of Halley's Comet and the early phases of Cultural Center construction in 1985-86."

"Halley's Comet will again appear in 2061, and it is to be expected that there will be an extended period of looking back at life during the previous appearance of the comet, not unlike our recent looking back to our ancestors' interaction with Halley's Comet in 1910." The Astronomy Club's time capsule, Linton said, might help to give the people of 2061 a better idea of what life was like in 1987.

Linton began lecturing about Halley's Comet to various groups after attending a planetarium conference in Oct., 1985. On Jan. 13, 1986, Linton gave his last lecture "to an overflow audience" in Room C118 at Parkland. He said, "I was just amazed. We didn't have room for all of them."

Throughout his lecture tour, he distributed "Halley's Comet Cards," primarily to young children. These cards will entitle the bearers to one free admission to the Staerkel Planetarium during the next appearance of Halley's Comet in 2061. Linton likes to think of this card as "an unburied time capsule" for today's children who will live to see the comet return.

On Jan. 21, 1986, Linton wrote in his summary of his Halley's Comet presentations: "As a few of these cards appear at the door of the planetarium in 2061, I can't help but believe that the bearers will be interviewed about their experiences 'way back' in 1986." Presently, two goals of these cards are to promote the planetarium and to visibly associate Parkland College with astronomy education.

In his summary, Linton also wrote: "In fact, it occurs to me...that we might inspire potential contributors by burying a time capsule in the lobby under a picture of Halley's Comet and a Dedication Plaque."

After a March, 1986 trip to Mexico to view Halley's Comet, the Astronomy Club initiated the time capsule idea.

According to Linton, "They came back full of gratitude to the College for the allowance and encouragement of clubs like theirs. Many of them said going to Mexico was the greatest experience of their lives. They wanted to say 'thank you' to Parkland College." According to club member Ken Barham, the time capsule idea was first introduced by another member, Gina Carr, at one of the club's meetings.

The club's memo to Dick Karch, Assistant Dean for Student Services, in May, 1986 stated: "The Astronomy Club wishes to encourage this (time capsule) endeavor, and therefore hereby pledges the sum of $1,000 to the Parkland College Foundation for this purpose. This is in addition to the $2,000 sum which the club wishes to pledge for the Astronomy Club Planetarium and Scholarship Fund."

The Board of Trustees approved the project. Board member Bonnie Kelley, of Kelley Vaults, donated the capsule and will also donate the labor and equipment needed to bury it.

Linton said the club "brainstormed" in June and came up with a basic list of items to include in the capsule. Since then, members have donated their time and have worked hard in the solicitation, collection, selection, storage, and preservation of materials.

Some of the items already included are letters from Dr. William Staerkel and Dr. Paul Magelli to the Parkland College president of 2061; a letter from the Ski Club to the Ski Club of 2061; packets of information about each instructional division; news items; personal letters to descendants; and some objects of everyday use, such as a phone, a hand calculator, and a penny parking meter, that characterize life today.

Linton added that a unique item donated by one of the club members is a wedding dress that has been in her family. It was worn in 1910 and in 1985.

"Maybe it will be worn a third time," Linton said.

Students on DUI

By Missy Durbin and Brian Bridgford

The Illinois State Legislature is cracking down on drunk drivers and repeat offenders by making some new DUI laws. The new laws will become effective on Jan. 1, 1988.

Drivers who continue to drink and drive could lose their driving privileges for up to six years under other legislation. Enforcement of House Bill 2700 will result in revocation of driving privileges for not less than three years for a second violation within a 20 year period. Violations include DUI, reckless homicide or leaving the accident scene involving death or personal injuries. A third conviction will be a Class Four felony punishable by one to three years in jail and/or up to a $10,000 fine.

The Prospectus asked some Parkland students what they thought of the new laws. Students and their responses were: William Kauff

"It's not tough enough. I think there should be jail sentences and heavy fines to teach them not to do it again." Nancy Dellinger

"For a law right now, I think it's fine. It's good. I think it's perfect." Benny Stobel

"It's a good one to me. I respect the governor." Kiel Lambert

"I believe it's a good law." Monti Middleman

"I think that it is a good law. Drunk drivers are dangerous, and they pose a threat to everyone else." Karen Alvrick

"I think that it's fine. I live in a town where five kids were killed by drunk drivers." Tammy Jamison

"There should be more done about it. It's dangerous to drink and drive. Something needs to be done so fewer people get hurt." Betzaida Ecklund

"Community service is a good punishment also, and possibly the individual might learn something. I don't think first-time offenders should be put in jail, but they should be tried." Michael Dayton

"It is good to get them off the streets after all this time. The repeat offenders should be punished more harshly, but the first-time offenders they should treat fairly."

BIO104 covers diverse issues

By Lori Rhode Prospectus Staff Writer

In most biology courses students expect to learn about cells, anatomy, or plant identification, but in environmental biology classes at Parkland (BIO104), issues that are more common to philosophy or political science courses are included.

"Environmental biology is an interdisciplinary course that includes discussions about the politics, ethics, and morals behind our policies towards the environment," said Earl Creutzburg, Parkland biology instructor.

Creutzburg says the goal of the class is to develop an awareness among students of environmental problems and possible solutions to those problems. He says it is hard to measure changes in students' attitudes caused by the class, but it does increase their recognition of environmental issues.

Topics during the semester range from overpopulation, energy consumption, and pesticides, to water, noise and land pollution. Field trip tours of several sites in the community, including the Urbana landfill, the Community Recycling Center, and the Urbana-Champaign sewage treatment plant, help bring the class material to life, says Creutzburg.

The class will be restructured from an eight week, two semester hour course, to a 16 week, three semester hour course next semester. Creutzburg said, "It was becoming too difficult to cover the subject material in eight weeks, and we know that environmental biology courses are designed as 16 week courses at most community colleges and universities in the state."

Creutzburg says enrollment levels are fairly constant in the course now, and he does not expect changes made in the course design to affect the registration level. However, enrollment may drop when the change takes effect because students may choose other electives. Creutzburg says most of the students in the class are in the agriculture or liberal arts transfer programs. Recently the class toured the Community Recycling Center, Champaign. Creutzburg says this field trip introduces students to recycling as an alternative to burying resources in a landfill. During the tour, students saw how the CRC processes cans, paper, and glass for delivery to paper mills, metal foundries, and glass plants for reuse.

Creutzburg estimates 10 percent of the solid waste materials generated in C-U are recycled, but as much as 40 percent of the materials could be recycled. He said, "The amount of trash generated by Americans each day could fill the New Orleans Superdome twice."

Creutzburg says enrollment was a little higher and discussions were more heated in the class in the 1970s when environmental concern was in style, but there are still plenty of issues for class discussion. Creutzburg says there was an environmental students' group at Parkland but the club is now inactive.

Creutzburg has several methods of encouraging students to examine their attitudes about environmental issues. While the class is covering the solid waste topic, he describes his participation in Champaign's "reecycle" curbside program.

"I try to convince the students that it really only takes a few minutes to sort recyclable materials at home, and participation is easy in curbside or drop-off recycling programs," he says.

Creutzburg says he generates less than half of a 30 gallon trash can of garbage per week. By recycling, students may be able to find lower garbage collection rates because of the lowered volume of trash they generate.

During the section of the course covering pesticides, Creutzburg conducts an informal poll of how many students enjoy fishing in Illinois. "Usually several students raise their hands. Then I ask them if they have read the fine print on the Illinois Department of Conservation's fishing brochure which cautions fishermen about pesticide contamination of fish. Not many students raise their hands then," said Creutzburg.

Letter to the Editor

In the Sept. 30 edition of the Prospectus, James B. Zimmerman, a student-at-large, wrote an editorial questioning some of the practices of the elections held Sept. 23-24.

In reply to the point made about the checking of ballots, the poll workers in question misunderstood my briefing. I told the workers that if the ballots were handed in open, glance to ensure that the ballots were filled out correctly. The worker thought I meant all ballots. When this problem was pointed out to me, I rebriefed the worker to correct this error.

Mr. Zimmerman also pointed out that the ballot box was on the floor. I placed the ballot box on the floor to ensure that ballots received the correct validation before being placed in the box. Without this validation, the ballots would not be counted. I am responsible for this oversight.

The problems pointed out in this election have been noted in the records of the Election Board and I can ensure you that they won't happen again.

If you have any further questions that you would like to point out to me or other members of the Senate, please feel free to come to our office (X-160) and we will help you to the best of our abilities.

Beccue interns with USTA

By Kevin A. Erb Prospectus Staff Writer

As long as she can remember, Dawn Beccue has loved horses. This past year, this student's interest in horses gave her the chance of a lifetime.

Beccue, daughter of Sandy and Jim Beccue of rural St. Elmo, Illinois, and a 1986 graduate of Altmont High School, is in her second year of Parkland's Equine Management Program. She was selected as an intern for the United States Trotting Association.

Her duties as intern were mainly doing Public Relations and publicity for the USTA and the local racetracks and county fairs, timing races, assisting the judges and race officials, and working with the fair office in the processing of paperwork. She also rode with the starting gate and handed out many awards to race participants.

During the summer months, Dawn went to more than a dozen county fairs traveling from the southern half of Illinois to northern Wisconsin.

According to Beccue, the highlight of the summer was seeing a world record broken while serving at her hometown fair in Altmont. Locally, she also served at the Champaign County Fair and the Tri-County Fair, as well as at fairs in Decatur and Charleston and Wausau, Wisconsin.

Beccue's involvement in the USTA's intern program came about as a result of a friend who suggested that she write to Dennis Nolan, Director of Activities for the USTA. Five months later, Dawn received a letter informing her that she was chosen to be one of only three interns for the summer, 1987 fair season. She accepted and has not regretted her choice for a minute, although she said that she was glad to get back so she could have a good home-cooked meal.

German Club cooks

By Lori Rhode Prospectus Staff Writer

Spicy smells of grilled bratwurst and the tangy-sour aroma of sauerkraut will waft down the corridors of Parkland from the College Center on Wednesday, Oct. 28, 11 a.m.-1 p.m., during the German Club's ninth annual "Octoberfest" celebration.

Octoberfest originated in 1810 when the Crown Prince Ludwig I of Bavaria celebrated his marriage to Princess Therese outside the gates of the city of Munich. Great crowds of Bavarians toasted the marriage and enjoyed the party so much it became an annual celebration.

Today, Octoberfest has spread throughout the world with German immigrants, but the biggest Octoberfest still occurs annually in Munich.

Millions of visitors flock to the Weis (pronounced vice) Garden in Munich each year for Octoberfest. The event begins the last week of September. During the 14 days of the festival, more than one million gallons of beer is drunk, making the consumption of beer on Little King's night seem like a drop in the bucket by comparison.

Beer drinking isn't the only past-time during Octoberfest. Thousands of pretzels and many types of grilled meats accompany the beer. Oompah bands and carnival rides provide entertainment.

The German Club's Octoberfest menu will follow tradition, including bratwurst, German potato salad, sauerkraut, lentil soup, and authentic German bread. Apple cider will substitute for the beer. The "special," which features everything but the lentil soup and apple cider, will cost under $3.50.

The German Club served more than 200 people during last year's Octoberfest. Club members say the event is an enjoyable way to share a little bit of German culture with other students.

CRIME STOPPERS

Crimestoppers is seeking information about vandalism to the Community Day Care school bus at Community Day Care, #1 East Bradley, Champaign, and the theft of three computers and computer components from the Peabody Street Residence Halls, 202 East Peabody Drive, Champaign.

StuGo, Alumni host 'Meet the Presidents'

Several organizations work to ensure the smooth, efficient, and equitable operation of the College. Each has at its head a person of particular quality and distinction who serves to provide leadership and direction in achieving its goals. At the "Meet the Presidents" social, seven of these noteworthy people gathered to be more well known and accessible to the campus at large. They are:

Dr. Paul J. Magelli is president of Parkland College. He has been "on board" since July 1, 1987. His job as Chief Executive Officer is to steer the College on the path of growth and community leadership. He is also responsible for maintaining the quality of Parkland's programs as the first generation of instructors and administrators retire from active duty.

Walt Rudy, president of the Student Government Senate, is starting his second term in the College's top student job and has a busy year ahead of him. StuGo Senate oversees clubs and activities and acts as a representative body for students at large. They can help students in various ways, especially as a go-between to the administrators of the institution. A current priority of the senate is finding appointees for a number of advisory and regulatory committees and boards. No special training is needed, and students who want to get involved may get information in the Student Activities Office, X153.

Eddie Simpson heads the Alumni Association. This Association helps maintain communication among Parkland graduates so they can know how their classmates have fared since graduation. The AA publishes a newsletter outlining major events such as the opening of the Parkland College Cultural Center and retirements from the staff, as well as spotlighting the achievements of former students. Students are encouraged to join the Alumni Association after graduation from Parkland.

The Parkland Foundation's president is Bill Froom. The Foundation is a private support group for the College, promoting it in the community and enlisting help for special projects. One of the possibilities the Foundation is considering is an institutional food service program. Careful research, planning, and execution by this organization are a must in their endeavors.

President of the Parkland College Association, which is the professional organization including the instructors, librarians, and counselors, is

These Parkland personalities were featured at 'Meet the Presidents' night recently.

Joan Gary. This group serves in a number of ways, and, like the Student Government, much of their work is done by special committees.

The Honors Committee is working on development of an honors program for advanced students and has already begun to set the program in motion. The Child Care Committee is researching provisions for a day care center for Parkland students.

The PCA also gives advisory reports to the Board of Trustees concerning the academic calendar, including class times and holidays. In response to the rising need for four- and five-credit hour courses, they are considering requesting a change in the college hour which is from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Tuesdays and 12-1 p.m. on Thursdays.

Maria Dowd leads the Support Staff Organization which is composed of the many nonacademic employees throughout the school. Included in this group are secretaries, clerical workers, grounds and maintenance crews, bookkeepers, business people, printers, and many others who are responsible for the daily operation of Parkland College.

Dowd explained that the Support Staff is excited that President Magelli is including them in all aspects of the College. She added, "My goal is to show that the Support Staff not only plays a vital role at Parkland, but hopefully in the future has the opportunity to become more involved in all college activities."

They have been organized since 1972, and among their current projects is an article for the time capsule that will be buried Oct. 22.

Greg Thom is president of the Parkland Academic Employees Association, the collective bargaining and organizational unit for the faculty. This group first came into existence with the assistance of a collective bargaining provision made by the State Legislature on behalf of Illinois teachers. This provides greater assurance of high standards, fair employment and personnel practices, and regulations among the state's educational institutions.

Ice Capades brings fun and excitement

Ice Capades is now appearing at the U of I Assembly Hall with its presentation of "Bravo America!," featuring an all-star cast of world-famous performers, exciting production numbers, and fun for the whole family.

Heading the Ice Capades this year are Canadian and World Professional Champion Ron Shaver and three-time Canadian Champion Kay Thomson.

The production also features the cute and cuddly Ewoks in a magical trip to the mystic Moon of Endor. Set in a world of fantasy, the cast of characters, created by filmmaker George Lucas, defend their special "sunberries" from the dim-witted Duloks.

In a rollicking Keystone Cop comedy adventure, a bevy of bathing beauties, a vampish siren, a wily thief, and a gorilla jump into the world of movies via Ice Capades' special "Magic Screen."

Veteran ice comedian Bob Mac creates a humorous spectacle on ice with adagio artists Bob Moskalyk and Julie Patterson in a hilarious tribute to William Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet." Comic relief continues as laughmaster Brad Doud turns elegance into "elegant clutter" when his entourage of lovely ladies fall victim to his calculated clumsiness.

In "Say It With Music," a salute to American composers, the audience is treated to a medley of tunes by George Gershwin, Irving Berlin, Marvin Hamlisch, and Rodgers and Hart.

Ice Capades' stars join talents in "Reach For The Gold," performing a gold medal chorus line routine—a fast-paced display of electrifying jumps and spins, choreographed in split-second precision.

In the rousing finale of "Bravo America!," Ice Capades salutes "Miss Liberty" with a stunning display of fireworks in a tribute to our Red, White and Blue.

Transfer day offers rep conferences

More than 25 colleges and universities from Illinois and surrounding states are sending representatives to Parkland on Friday, Oct. 23, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The annual Transfer Day, sponsored by student services, is an opportunity for students to speak directly with admissions officers of colleges and universities which offer transfer opportunities to Parkland students.

The college representatives will be in the College Center to answer specific questions regarding transfer procedures and possibilities at their schools. Parkland students anticipating transfer to a four-year college or university can take advantage of this opportunity to gather information.

First-year students at Parkland may wish to begin their search at Transfer Day, and students closer to completion at Parkland can compare program options directly and efficiently.

After Transfer Day students should talk to their advisors and counselors about their particular plans for education after Parkland.

Changes in tax laws affect '87 tax returns

With less than three months left in 1987, Illinois taxpayers should be taking into account several changes in federal tax law which will affect their 1987 tax returns. Provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 went into effect this year, and these changes apply to every taxpayer. Taxpayers should be aware of the following provisions which will affect all individual federal returns for 1987.

Individual Retirement Account (IRA) contributions will still be allowed; however, the deduction may be limited based on existing employer retirement plans and the average gross income (AGI) on the taxpayer's return. Limitations will be applied to taxpayers with an AGI of $25,000 for single filers, and $40,000 for married persons filing a joint return. Married persons filing separately will be subject to limitations regardless of their AGI.

The unearned income of children who are still under 14 years of age by Dec. 31, 1987 may be taxed at the parent's rate. This will generally apply to unearned income in excess of $1,000; however, this $1,000 floor may increase based on the child's directly connected itemized deductions.

Another new provision affecting children requires anyone who can be claimed as a dependent to have a Social Security number if he or she will be at least five years old by Dec. 31, 1987. This will help to ensure the proper identification of all dependents claimed on 1987 tax returns. There may be a $5 penalty for each failure to include the identification number. Contact your local Social Security Administration office for new member applications.

Several items were repealed for 1987 by the Tax Reform Act. These include the Dividend Exclusion, Income Averaging, Two-Earner Deduction, Sales Tax Deduction, and the Capital Gain Deduction. These changes should be kept in mind when calculating estimated tax for 1987.

While the amount of income from unemployment insurance was taxed in the past only if the taxpayer earned a certain amount of additional income, the Tax Reform Act of 1986 has also eliminated that provision. Effective for the 1987 tax return, unemployment payments are fully taxable. This change in law will affect the filing of IRS Form W-4 or the calculating of estimated tax payments for 1987.

By now, all taxpayers should have filed a new Withholding Allowance Certificate with their employers for 1987. The deadline for filing the 1987 Form W-4 or W-4A was Oct. 1, 1987. Failure to have filed the form by the October deadline will result in withholding allowances automatically changing to one for a single person and two for married persons.

For additional information on how to properly file a Withholding Allowance Certificate, the IRS is offering Publication 919, "Is My Withholding Correct?"

Another booklet, Publication 920, "Explanation of the Tax Reform Act for Individuals," offers additional information on the new provisions mentioned and other changes in the 1987 tax returns.

The IRS is available to answer any questions regarding the new tax laws. To receive either of the above publications, call toll-free 1-800-424-3676. For answers to other questions or for help with a 1987 tax return, call toll-free 1-800-424-1040 during regular business hours.

Chabot announces Camerata members

By Kevin Erb
Prospectus Staff Writer

Sandy Chabot, music instructor and director of several of Parkland's choral groups, recently announced the Camerata members for 1987-88. This year's members are Kristina Boerger, Linda Buzard, Deborah Croker, Andrea Larson (sopranos); Lisa Ewing, Anita Hankinson, Jane Ellen Nickell (altos); Robert S. Miller, Jay Rogers, Rick Treece (tenors); Steven Schneider, Michael Snider, and Gary Snapper (basses).

The name "Camerata" has its origins in Italy. The word, originally used by the Florentine Camerata in the 14th Century, designates "a small room" in Italian. A group of noble men and women gathered "in a room" to sing madrigals. Thus, the Parkland Camerata has borrowed the word for its chamber choir.

The Parkland Camerata is composed of 13 community members who enjoy pursuing the challenges and intricacies of chamber music from the 16th Century through the 20th Century.

Directors invite Parkland singers to perform

By Kevin Erb
Prospectus Staff Writer

The Parkland Camerata has been selected by the American Choral Directors Association to perform at the American Choral Directors State Convention on Oct. 24. The convention is to be held at the Smith Music Hall on the U of I campus.

The ACDA State Convention features a wide variety of choirs ranging from elementary, high school, college, church and community choral organizations throughout the state. The Parkland Camerata submitted an audition tape to the ACDA in May, and official notification of acceptance was received by director Sandy Chabot in June.

The Camerata will perform a variety of music from an upcoming concert entitled, "Music for Saints and Sinners."

Camerata's second performance will be one of many in the October Dedicatory Concerts honoring the opening of the new Parkland Theater. They will be performing "Music for Saints and Sinners." This concert ties together three seasonal themes: Halloween (Oct. 31), All Saints Day (Nov. 1), and All Souls Day (Nov. 2).

Camerata's concert will include songs about witches and scary creatures in the forest, music about death, and music about overcoming death. The two largest pieces in the concert are HUGO Distler's "Dance of Death" and Norman Dello Joio's "The Mystic Trumpeter." Both employ special accompaniment features and special lighting effects to heighten the "drama" of the music.

Joining Camerata in the concert will be dancers Kate Kuper and Friends. A professional dancer and choreographer from Chicago, Kuper will present two duets in the program. The finale of the concert, a trio of Spirituals, will be choreographed with three female dancers.

Central Philharmonic Orchestra to perform at Krannert

As part of its debut tour of the United States, the Central Philharmonic Orchestra of China will perform at the Krannert Center for the Performing Arts, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, on Wednesday, Oct. 21, 1987, at 8 p.m. in the Foellinger Great Hall. This is the first United States tour by a major Chinese orchestra and will comprise 24 cities nationwide including New York, Washington, Chicago, Los Angeles, and San Francisco. The principal conductor for the tour will be Chen Zuohuang.

The Central Philharmonic Orchestra of China was organized in 1956. In the 1950s and early 1960s, China sent many of its conductors and principal instrumentalists abroad for training. These musicians introduced Chinese audiences to European Classic and Romantic works as well as those of prominent Chinese composers. During the years of the Cultural Revolution in China, virtually no symphonic works were performed for almost 14 years. Finally in 1977, the Central Philharmonic Orchestra offered Beethoven's Fifth Symphony in a concert marking the 150th anniversary of his death. Since that time, the Orchestra has expanded its repertoire to include works of major 20th Century composers.

The program for the performance at the Krannert Center represents the Orchestra's broad repertoire. The concert will begin with the Overture to the opera "La Forza del Destino" by Giuseppe Verdi, a leading Romantic composer. The next piece will be a Piano Concerto written in 1983 by the young Chinese composer Tan Dun, with soloist Li Jian. The concert concludes with Symphony No. 5 by Dmitri Shostakovich, perhaps the most influential symphonic composer of the 20th Century.

Conductor Chen Zuohuang was among the first group of students to be enrolled in the Central Conservatory in Beijing after the Cultural Revolution. In 1980, he was selected by the Ministry of Culture to become the first Chinese conductor to take advanced studies in music in the United States. He studied at Tanglewood in 1981 and 1982 with Maestros Seiji Ozawa, Kurt Masur, Andre Previn, and others. In 1982, he completed a Master of Music degree at the University of Michigan, and three years later he received that university's first Doctor of Musical Arts degree in orchestral conducting. Chen was appointed conductor of the Central Philharmonic Orchestra in 1986.

Li Jian is one of three young artists chosen to represent their country as soloists on this tour. Li was born into a musical family in 1965, and at age seven he began studying violin and piano. He made his formal recital debut as a pianist at the age of 12, and the next year he was admitted to the middle school of the Shandhil Conservatory of Music. In 1981, Li won international acclaim when he was awarded Second Prize in the Marguerite Long-Thibaud Piano Competition in Paris and a scholarship from the French government to study with Pierre Sandon. Li Jian came to the United States in 1985 and is currently a student at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia.

Standard priced tickets for the concert by the Central Philharmonic Orchestra of China are $16, $15, $14; student and senior citizen prices are $15, $14, $13. Tickets are on sale at the Krannert Center Ticket Office, 500 South Goodwin Avenue. Ticket reservations and credit card sales may be made by calling 333-6280.

Eddie Murphy returns to Assembly Hall

Eddie Murphy entertains audiences with his smile and wild sense of humor.

By Jake Prunkard
Prospectus Staff Writer

Eddie Murphy made a successful return to Champaign on Oct. 2, with his concert at the U of I Assembly Hall.

Appearing with Murphy were comedians Paul Mooney, who wrote with Richard Pryor on the movie "Jo Jo Dancer, Your Life is Calling," and Christopher.

Christopher, the opening act, came on stage with two black dummies on each side of him which he controlled with his own movement. Three songs were played from the super group family of brothers, the Jacksons. Christopher and his dummies lip-synced the words and danced their way into a good show. The audience seemed to enjoy Christopher's performance and showed their appreciation with a fine ovation when he finished.

The second act was Paul Mooney, who delighted the audience with his own style of comedy.

Mooney said he wondered what would happen if there were a black vice-president. He said that the president could probably end up doing whatever he wanted.

After a spectacular 45 minute show, his big finish was about the Pope. Mooney noticed that the recent earthquakes that rocked southern California did not happen until the Pope left.

He finally wondered what it would be like to have a black Pope. Mooney said in reference to the black Pope that he would work out just fine. That is—it would work out since the Pope wears extravagant clothing and expensive jewelry and rides around in the "Pope-mobile." The big crowd pleaser in the black Pope segment was, "What would happen if somebody shot at him?" Mooney said the Pope would probably be carrying a .44 Magnum and fire away, and the headline in tomorrow's newspaper might read, "Pope shot at, Pope kills five."

After an intermission of about 15 minutes, the lights went out, and the curtain opened. The stereo system kicked in and flashed clips of Eddie Murphy in some of his movies, and clips from when he was a regular on "Saturday Night Live."

The screen then started rising and there was a deafening roar and standing ovation for the man everybody had been waiting for, Eddie Murphy. After the crowd of nearly 7,000 calmed down, he began his show.

He talked about what happens when he goes to pick up a date of his now that he is a star. Her parents invite him in and say to the daughter, "Look, your date, Eddie Money, I mean Murphy is here to pick you up."

Then he asked the audience if they like Michael Jackson's new album titled "Bad." There were a lot of boo's from the crowd just to entice him into talking about it. After he heard this reaction, he called them a bunch of backstabbers.

Since the last time he was here the crowd erupted with applause when asked if they liked Jackson's "Thriller" album.

Murphy, of course, did parts of his show on sex in the 1980's. The crowd really enjoyed his talking about it.

He talked about Bill Cosby calling and talking with him. It seemed that Cosby wanted Murphy to clean up his language on his albums because one day one of Cosby's kids brought the album home and the family sat down to listen to it. Cosby said the first two lines of the album contained profanity.

So Murphy then called Richard Pryor and discussed this problem with him. Pryor told Murphy to tell Coz to shut up, sit back and have a Coke and a smilie. He said not to change his act one bit since that is what he and Murphy get paid for.

His show got off to a fantastic start when he talked about a critic who gave him a bad review at an earlier Champaign performance. That same critic happened to be in the audience again, and Murphy gave his opinion to the critic, which really got the crowd going.

Noone has to remind the public that this concert tour and all of Eddie Murphy's albums are for mature audiences only. However, he is a one-of-a-kind comic with a flare for always coming out smelling like a rose. The shows by all three comics were fantastic.

Mudhens named for baseball team

By Martha Wilkinson
Prospectus Staff Writer

The Mudhens stand out as one of the best local Rhythm and Blues bands in this area. The group appears at Mabels two or three times a month, the Alley Cat, and various other places in Champaign-Urbana.

They recently released a cassette, "Have Mercy" containing seven original songs and a remake of Aretha Franklin's "Respect." This cassette can be purchased at the Mudhens' concerts or at Record Service on campus.

Members of the band are Kevin DeForrest, vocals; Bruce Rummenie, guitar; Tom Miller, drums; Scott Portzline, bass; Bruce Bethell, saxophone and flute. They met through another band and have been playing together for two years. They said they play together "basically for fun."

According to Miller, the name "Mudhens" is derived from a baseball team in Toledo. Corporal Klinger on "M-A-S-H" was a baseball fan whose favorite team was the Mudhens.

In general, the band thinks the local music scene is very good. DeForrest says there are a lot of fine musicians in town. The Mudhens point out such bands as Otis and the Elevators, Modern Humans, Groove Generals, and Hothouse as some "pretty good bands" in Champaign-Urbana.

Comedians Leno and Martin to host NBC weekend TV

Comedian Jay Leno, a frequent guest host of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," will host NBC's "Friday Night Videos" at 1:30 to 2:30 a.m. following the Oct. 16 edition of "Late Night with David Letterman." Actor Arnold Schwarzenegger and NBC game-show host Pat Sajak will be special guests.

Featured videos will include "Animal" by Def Leppard, "Hell in a Bucket" by The Grateful Dead, "U Got the Look" by Prince and "Who Will You Run To" by Heart.

"Animal" is the second video from Def Leppard's platinum LP, "Hysteria." The album produced the hit single "Women" is currently No. 5 on Billboard's album chart. Def Leppard has just begun an extensive United States tour.

"Hell in a Bucket," from the Top-10 LP "In The Dark," is the Grateful Dead's second video. It is a comic look at founding band member Bob Weir and was directed by Len Dell'Amico, who directed the video portions of the Grateful Dead/Bob Dylan tour. The band's first video was the hit single "Touch of Grey."

Prince's "U Got the Look" is the first single and video from his ninth LP, "Sign 'O' The Times." The song is currently No. 5 on Billboard's Hot 100 chart.

"Who Will You Run To" is the second single and video from Heart's Top 5 LP, "Bad Animals." The album is ranked No. 10 on Billboard's album chart, and the single is No. 7 on the Hot 100.

Comedian Steve Martin will make his 10th appearance as guest host of NBC's "Saturday Night Live" when he hosts the 13th season premiere of the pioneering late-night comedy series Oct. 17, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Sting will be the musical guest.

Martin and Sting will be joined by the returning SNL cast: repertory players Dana Carvey, Nora Dunn, Phil Hartman, Jan Hooks, Victoria Jackson, Jon Lovitz, Dennis Miller, and Kevin Nealon, plus featured performer A. Whitney Brown.

Martin is recognized as one of the most popular comedians of the 1970s and 1980s. He wrote and starred in the recent hit movie "Roxanne," and starred with Lily Tomlin in the 1984 film "All of Me."

Sting, a member of the popular trio The Police, is also a successful solo artist and actor. He performed at "Live Aid" in London in 1985 and was a key participant in the 1986 Amnesty International superstar tour. He has appeared in several films, including "Dune," "The Bride," and "Plenty" with Meryl Streep. Sting's newest solo LP, "... Nothing Like the Sun," will be released Oct. 14 and features on the album "We'll Be Together." Reed player Branford Marsalis, who is featured on the album along with guitarists Mark Knopfler and Eric Clapton, will join Sting on "Saturday Night Live."

Up tempo to blues sound

REM releases new album

By Chris Starkey
Prospectus Staff Reporter

R.E.M.'s latest record release, "Document No. 5," is proving to be one of their best recordings. If you have not heard of R.E.M. or do not know what type of music they play, take a listen to this album. You will hear a folk rock sound that has a very intimate style.

"Document No. 5" is in many ways like previous recordings by R.E.M. The music ranges from quick and up tempo to an almost blues rock sound that challenges the listener to hear what the group is saying. The album has a certain style consisting of more than just electric sounds. The style of the album falls mainly under the vocals which are clear and nonrepetitious. The lyrics seem to tell a story. They relate to the world we live in and problems that society in general suffers from.

R.E.M. is currently on a national tour with one of their stops at the University of Illinois Assembly Hall. The show will be held Nov. 7. The "Document" album is well worth a listen, and many of the songs are gaining popularity across the nation.

Expo '87 showcases campus opportunities

"Fall Expo '87," a day-long event designed to demonstrate all the options and opportunities available at Parkland College, will be held Tuesday, Oct. 27, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., and 5-8 p.m., beginning in the College Center.

Students of all ages and interests are invited to attend the free event. All Parkland divisions and departments are planning exhibits, presentations, and tours. Information will be available about the more than 100 career and transfer programs offered at Parkland, including business and industry-related training opportunities.

Expo participants will visit the new Parkland Theater and the William M. Staerke Planetarium as well as the Fitness Center and other athletic facilities.

Also represented at Expo '87 will be Parkland's community service programs and all support services, including admissions, counseling, financial aid, and placement.

Vicki Hensler, Parkland's coordinator of placement, says that Expo '87 will be of special value to high school students, adults who want to upgrade skills or plan a career change, and business and industry officials who may use Parkland's programs for specific training. In today's changing, technological world, an important issue, adds Hensler, is that "people must maintain their lifelong education to stay competitive."

Expo '87 participants should begin at the College Center where brief orientations will be held every 20 minutes throughout the day. The orientations will provide suggestions on how to gain the most benefit from the event. Printed programs also will be available. Special parking will be provided in Parkland's "A" lots, and guides will direct participants to the College Center.

Messinger: 'Illini will lose'

By Lee Messinger
Prospectus Staff Writer

This is the week the teams that have been winning should — and the losers should lose.

Southern California at Notre Dame

A great Cross Country rivalry. Larry Wilson's Trojans are suffering some growing pains under the new coach. The Irish just lost their starting quarterback, Terry Andryiak, against Pittsburgh for the season. But call it the luck of the Irish!

Mess Sez: Notre Dame 24, Southern California 21

Michigan at Indiana

The Wolverines had an unpleasant visit at East Landing last weekend. Demetrius Brown proved Woody Hayes' theory that three things happen when you throw a pass and two of them are bad. Well, the bad happened seven times against Michigan State. Indiana performed an impressive victory over Ohio State at Columbus. The combination of quarterback David Schnell and tailback Anthony Thompson have proved a tough combination. This may be the Hoosier's year.

Mess Sez: Indiana 21, Michigan 20

Boston College at Pittsburgh

The Golden Eagles have been an up and down team this year. Quarterback Mike Power has experienced some success. The Panthers were impressive in upsetting Notre Dame, especially the defense which KO the Notre Dame starting quarterback for the season. Both these teams are fighting for bowl bids.

Mess Sez: Pittsburgh 24, Boston College 17

Oklahoma State at Missouri

The Cowboys are always at the top of the Big Eight Conference right behind Oklahoma and Nebraska. The Tigers are trying to take a step up to the upper division of the Big Eight, but this time the Mizzou coaching staff is in some disarray.

Mess Sez: Oklahoma State 28, Missouri 21

Oregon at Stanford

The Ducks travel to Stanford, hoping to keep their surprising strong bid for a chance at the Rose Bowl alive. These are not your ordinary quacks of the past. The Cardinals have had some moments, but they have not been as consistent as wished.

Mess Sez: Oregon 34, Stanford 24

Colgate at Syracuse

The Red Raiders are one of the tougher teams in the Colonial Conference. Syracuse is one of the tougher teams in the country.

Mess Sez: Syracuse 38, Colgate 10

Minnesota at Ohio State

The Golden Gophers travel to Columbus trying to keep their dreams of a trip to the Rose Bowl alive. The Buckeyes have looked lackluster against Illinois and Indiana, but sometimes one must iron out cogs in a machine to get it running at full capacity.

Mess Sez: Ohio State 20, Minnesota 14

Northwestern at Wisconsin

The Wildcats seem to be developing an offensive threat with a new freshman tailback. The Cats scored 33 points in the second half against Minnesota. The Badgers have shown some promise with the Veer offense, but neither offense or defense is very good. A tough year for Bucky the Badger.

Mess Sez: Northwestern 21, Wisconsin 14

Illinois at Michigan State

The Illini travel to East Lansing to show their might and are hoping that the Spartans might look past them in preparing for Ohio State. Spartan coach George Perles will not let them forget the Illini. Especially with the contempt he has shown for the Illinois program. It could be a long day for the Illini.

Mess Sez: Michigan State 31, Illinois 14

Purdue at Iowa

The Boilermakers always seem to have success against the Hawks at West Lafayette and little in Iowa City. The Hawks hope to have their quarterback problem solved with junior Chuck Hartlieb. The Boilers may be looking at a very long day.

Mess Sez: Iowa 42, Purdue 10

Akron at Louisville

Jerry Faust's Zips travel to Louisville to play the Cardinals enhancing their plans towards a big time football program at Akron. The Cardinals have been called dogs by Louisville coach Howard Schnellengerger, but as he put it—they're my dogs and they're capable. This Saturday against the Zips they are very capable.

Mess Sez: Louisville 19, Akron 17

Indiana State at Illinois State

ISU versus ISU. The Sycamores have not shown too much, but neither have the Redbirds since the first game against Western Michigan. The Redbirds seem to play good against the Sycamores at home and vice versa, but this game is in Normal.

Mess Sez: Tie Breaker—Illinois State 17, Indiana State 13

Cross Country upset

By Chris Starkey
Prospectus Staff Writer

The Parkland cross country team brought home their first major victory title of this season last Saturday at the Spoon River invitational in Canton, Ill.

The team has been competing strongly over the past two weeks placing second in their own invitational at Parkland and capturing the winning title at the Spoon River invitational. The leaders of the team are now beginning to show their endurance—Dave Carrall, Monty "Flying" Flynn, Chris Latoz, Mark Cordell and Bill Goldstein have all placed high in their last two meets.

Connie Bierman of the women team has three victories in the last three weeks to her name. She has won invitationals at Parkland, Danville and at Spoon River. She has crushed the competition at the Parkland invitational race winning the race by nearly 30 seconds and reset the course record for women to almost a minute faster. Her third victory came Saturday when she became victorious at the Spoon River Invitational.

Janet Buss also had a strong race at Spoon River, capturing the third place title and finishing 47 seconds behind Bierman.

Both the women and men now face competition at S.I.U. Edwardsville on Oct. 24. Oct. 31 will be the regional meet held in Springfield which the team will be gearing up for.

Outlook is positive for basketball

By Brent Pichon
Prospectus Staff Writer

With only four returners from last year's squad, the Parkland men's basketball coach Tom Cooper seems to have a positive outlook for the 1987-88 season.

Parkland's season ended last year with a defeat in the Regional Championship to finish the year with a record of 23-10.

Returns from last year's team are P. J. Bowman, Champaign; Ryan O'Connell, Schaumburg; Milan Baletic, Chicago, and Mike Rombout, Chicago.

The '87 team has several freshman on it: Kenny Collins, Champaign; Phillip Best, Normal; Mike Palmer, Pearl City; Lennox Forester, Evanston; Keith Ambrose and Marvin Reed, Bowling Brook; Tom Mechlenberg, Sycamore, and Rick Stein.

With the mixture of experience and pure talent, Coach Cooper said, "I feel this year's team is shaping up very well. We have good team balance both inside and outside. We also have speed and quickness to go with our size."

Men's basketball begins November 11 against Danville at 7:30 pm in Danville.
