Vice President assumes duties

By LORI RHODE

Prospectus Staff Reporter

During the Parkland College Board of Trustees meeting Oct. 15, board member commended Vice-President Donald Swank for his leadership while assuming the duties of president during the absence of President William Staerkel.

Staerkel has been in the hospital since he suffered a stroke Sept. 5. He is showing improvement after intensive physical therapy.

Swank said that he has been very busy managing both positions but he has shared responsibilities and had the help of many Parkland administrators. Swank said that he is sharing his usual work with other administrators while filling in for Staerkel. Citing as an example Swank said, "Other administrators have undertaken my responsibility to act as evening administrator on the nights when I'm normally here."

Some of the president's duties which Swank has undertaken include working with the Parkland board of trustees and faculty and monitoring construction progress of the cultural center.

... Parkland Vice President

Swank has been at Parkland as an administrator since 1967. When he first came to Parkland he served as dean of students. He later moved into the position of dean of instruction and presently is the vice-president of instruction.

Saturday ceremony in Urbana

Mini-park dedicated to Johnson

Approximately fifty people withstood the rain and drizzle last Saturday morning, Oct. 25, at the dedication ceremony for a new park in Urbana.

The new "mini-park," located just to the west of the corner of Phil Road and Washington in Urbana, was named in honor of a former member of the Urbana City Council, Robert V. "Bob" Johnson.

Johnson was an alderman on the Urbana City Council from 1965 until 1971 and also served from 1977 until his death in 1981. Johnson was head of the Champaign County Republicans at the time of his death. In addition to politics, he was also a realtor.

The "mini-park" contains benches, trees, and a walkway. The park is situated on the former right-of-way of the Sidney-Urbana branch of the Norfolk and Western (formerly Wabash) railroad. The rail and ties were removed a few years ago, and the park was built earlier this year.

Thanksgiving dinner plans told

Most high school students think of Thanksgiving as a day off from school and a trip to grandmother's. Many Urbana High School students regard it as a day to serve their community. The 13th Annual Thanksgiving Dinner, sponsored by the Urbana High School Student Senate, will be held on Thanksgiving Day, Nov.

27, 1986, at 5:00 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church in Urbana.

Work on the Thanksgiving Dinner began early in October and will continue throughout Thanksgiving Day. Nearly 200 students will be involved in the plans for the dinner. The annual feast is served at no charge to senior citizens, international students, and others who would be alone on Thanksgiving Day. The theme for this year's dinner is "Share the joy of Thanksgiving."

All of the preparation for the dinner is done by students under the direction of the Student Senate Community Services committee, chaired by senior Jon Kaufman. The ten person committee has been divided into sub-committees who handle the responsibilities of the program designing, food preparation and facilities, transportation and publicity.

Transportation is provided free to anyone who would otherwise have no way of getting to the dinner. In addition to student and volunteer drivers, transportation has been provided by Telecare Transportation and by the Champaign-Urbana Mass Transit District who donated two buses and two drivers.

In the past, over 100 services, grocers, and florists have provided 25 turkeys, 50 bouquets of flowers used for centerpieces, and other donations which have made the dinner possible. Students and parents have baked over 80 pumpkin pies.

This year's dinner will feature the traditionally popular "Turkey Carols" which have been especially written for the dinner. Here are the lyrics for one of the more liked carols:

Pumpkin Pies
(sung to the tune of Jingle Bells)

Pumpkin Pies, pumpkin pies
Whipped cream on the top
Oh, what fun it is to eat
We don't know when to stop
Pumpkin pies, pumpkin pies
Cranberries on the side
Oh, what fun it is to watch
Us all grow fat and wide!

Many different countries were represented at the 1985 dinner: Japan, Egypt, United Arab Emirates, Iran, Germany, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Korea, England, Iceland, South Korea, India, Turkey, Tunisia, Palestine, Ivory Coast, Africa, Malaysia, Senegal, Thailand, Saudi Arabia, Singapore, Australia, Tanzania, Mexico, Ireland, Italy, Taiwan, Venezuela, Jordan, Switzerland, China, Philippines, Algeria, Vietnam, Nigeria, Lebanon, Spain, Iraq, and Greece.

Anyone wishing to know more about the Thanksgiving Dinner, or to make reservations, please call 384-1100.

Winters dies at age 82

Parkland College has received word of the death of Rev. Carl S. Winters, 82, of Oak Park, Ill.

The Chicago Tribune, in an Oct. 13 obituary, identified Winters as "a silver-tongued clergyman-at-large, author, lecturer, educator and former pastor of First Baptist Church of Oak Park."

Rev. Winters, who was Parkland College Commencement speaker on May 24, 1974, was a world-renowned lecturer and was named man of the year by the Dale Carnegie Foundation in 1970.

Rev. Winters, ordained a minister when he was 25, once said he gave his first bona fide speech at the age of 11. He spent most of the rest of his life talking to audiences as varied as labor unions, chambers of commerce, prison inmates and college graduates.

After completing a 40,000-mile world tour of 34 countries sponsored by the American Baptist convention, Rev. Winters declared in 1956 that America "literally is the last great hope of freedom on earth. No man knows what America is until he has been where America isn't."

From our readers . . . Know the candidates

To the editor:

Parklandites will have another opportunity to speak out on the issues and candidates of interest to voters in the Nov. 4th election at Free Speech Forums on Thursday, Oct. 30, and Monday, Nov. 3, at 12 noon.

We will gather in the posted Free Speech area which is located near the information desk in the College Center. Forum participants are encouraged to speak freely about the issues and choices facing us on election day. We invite speakers to make brief persuasive and informational speeches/raps/orations. The Forum will be organized on an open mike basis with a first-come-first-served sign up system of assigning time and order of speakers.

The first Free Speech Forum in Parkland's twenty-year history was held on Oct. 23. Six speakers, five students and one faculty member addressed a group of 10-15 listeners. Topics covered at the Forum included the problem of political apathy at Parkland and in the U.S. generally; the myth of democratic majority rule in a nation where only half of citizens vote; the pros and con of the proposed amendment to the Illinois Constitution which would allow judges to deny bail to those charged with felonies for which there is a mandatory prison sentence; the need for women voters to support women candidates for office; criticisms of the Republican Party nationally for representing primarily the interests of the wealthy.

Those who support or oppose these views or have other burning issues to discuss will have an opportunity to speak out at the next Free Speech Forums.

English practice needed

To Prospectus readers:

Would you like to be a conversation partner for an international student?

This is an opportunity to share your own culture as you learn about a culture that is different from your own. Parkland currently has two international students—one from Taiwan and one from Korea—who have been here less than one year and would like to talk with an American to learn more about American customs as they practice using the English language in conversation.

If you have one or two hours per week and would like to enrich your experience as a student at Parkland, please contact Linda VanRoosendaal at C-127 or call 351-2217, extension 321 for more information.

Candidates material offered

To the editor:

In view of the upcoming election this Nov. 4, the College Republicans of Parkland are hosting a booth on Wednesday, Oct. 29. This booth will introduce the students to the various state and local candidates.

In addition, many of the candidates will appear in person throughout the day. Please stop by and acquaint yourself with our organization.

NASA astronaut to speak

To the editor:

A Veteran's Day visit to Danville, Ill., is scheduled for NASA astronaut Lieutenant Colonel Charles F. Bolden, Jr. Among the many activities planned will be a banquet a 6 p.m., Nov. 11, at Danville's Ramada Inn honoring the STS-51-L pilot.

Banquet tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for children under 12. Tickets are available at Schlarmann High School, the David S. Palmer Civic Center, the Palmer American National Bank, Danville Area Community College, and through the Community Action Program.

Other activities will include speaking to area students and community leaders. Bolden's visit is being sponsored by the East Central Community Action Program and Danville District 118 Schools, in cooperation with the Danville Area Convention and Visitors Bureau. Night students ignored

For many people who work nine to five jobs, and then take evening classes at Parkland, find that this school is not convenient for them. Many an evening while working on the Prospectus, night students will come into our office and ask if we have a key to the lost and found. We do not have a key, and we must turn them away. Many people who work during the day are unable to make a special trip to Parkland during the hours that the lost and found is open.

Another example of this is the activities office. When they receive tickets to a concert, say Stevie Wonder, they are sold during regular business hours only. It is a great inconvenience for some night students to make it to Parkland on days when they don't have classes just to buy some concert tickets.

On the other hand, the Student Government has taken a step toward the removal of the second class treatment of the night students. They have taken the liberty of setting up a "suggestion table," manned by members of StuGo from 5:30 to 6:30 in the College Center on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays. This is a start. Parkland must stop ignoring the night student and make the college a better place for every student!

Social Security benefits

People should check their Social Security work record every 3 years to make sure it is correct, Richard Bauer, Social Security manager in Champaign, said recently.

This is especially important if the person changes employment often or has more than one job. A free form is available at any Social Security office which can be used to request a statement of earnings.

This earnings record is very important, Richard Bauer said. Eligibility for and the amount of any benefits will be based on the information contained in that record.

Once you receive a statement of earnings, you should check it carefully to make sure the proper amounts have been reported to Social Security. If your own records do not agree with the amounts shown on the statement, contact your Social Security office right away.

This is important because most corrections to an earnings record must be reported within 3 years, 3 months, and 15 days after the end of the year the earnings were paid.

It is important that people who receive Social Security benefits report any changes in their situations that could affect these payments.

People getting benefits should report:

- a. Change in mailing address; it is not enough to notify the post office.
- b. Earnings or expected earnings of more than the annual limit—in 1986, $5,760 for people under 65 and $7,800 for people 65 to 70.
- c. If a person leaves the U.S. or works outside the U.S.
- d. Divorce or annulment of marriage.
- e. Marriage.
- f. Child leaves the care of a parent.
- g. Child nearing 18 is disabled or is a full-time student.
- h. Change in school attendance for a student 18-19.
- i. If a person becomes unable to manage funds.
- j. If a person dies.
- k. Change in name.

Reports can be made by mail, in person or by telephone. The report should include the name of the person about whom the report is being made, what is being reported, signature, and address if reporting by mail, and the correct claim number under which benefits are being paid.

More information about reports can be obtained at the Champaign Social Security office. The telephone number is 398-5377; our office hours are 9:00 to 4:45, Monday through Friday.

Deadline for Who's Who is Friday

By CAROL WHEELOCK for the Prospectus

Everyone likes attention. Face it—we all are basically show-offs and we love to get recognition for work well done.

Well, if you have a grade point average of 2.75 or above, and are active in school and community activities here's your chance. Student government is now accepting applications for Who's Who in Jr. Colleges.

Being in Who's Who means joining an elite group and has some other major benefits. It looks good on a resume and some companies use it to seek out employees and to determine scholarship awards.

Anyone who is interested and who qualifies should come to room X160 (to the right of the library stairs) for more information. Deadline for applications is this Friday, Oct. 31.

'Winter Emergencies' is workshop topic

An Emergency Medical Technician workshop on "Winter Emergencies" will be held Saturday, Nov. 15, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Room L111 at Parkland College.

EMTs will receive eight hours of continuing education credit for attendance. The course fee is $12. Participants may register by mail through Nov. 10.

David Smith, Ph.D., retired Coast Guard Commander, will present the workshop. For more information or for late registration, contact the Parkland Life Science Division, 351-2224.

Vet conference is Nov. 1

Parkland College is sponsoring its fifth annual fall Conference for Veterinary Technicians and Assistants on Saturday, Nov. 1, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., in Room L111.

Participants should register by Oct. 28 for the conference. The $12 registration fee includes coffee, lunch, and materials. Those registering after the deadline must contact the Admissions Office, 351-2208, to check for space availability.

Conference topics and presenters include: "There's More to a Ferret than Its Smell," Dr. Sue Brown, Midwest Bird and Exotic Animal Hospital, West Chester, Ill.; and "This Does Not Compute: Why?" Alan Hunt, Microcomputer Consultant and supervisor of Parkland's Learning Resources Center Microcomputer Lab.

During the afternoon session, three staff members from the College of Veterinary Medicine, University of Illinois, will speak to participants. Dr. Gordon Petersen, assistant professor, will give an update on "Bovine Leukosis"; Dr. Robert Badertscher, assistant professor, will discuss "Ultrasound"; and Jerry Akers, supervisor of clinical pathology laboratory, will present "Differential Smears: Recognizing Abnormal White Blood Cells."

From 4:30-5:30 p.m., conference participants can attend the annual Veterinary Technician Alumni meeting. A dinner will follow the meeting.

Those attending the conference will earn six hours of continuing education credit to fulfill state requirements for certification renewal.

For more information about the conference and the dinner, contact Dr. Paul Cook or Carlene Decker, Life Science Division, 351-2224.

Training Center to offer 7 workshops

Parkland College will offer seven microcomputer workshops during November and December at the College's new Microcomputer Training Center, Room B227. The workshops, meeting dates, and fees are:

"Microcomputers for Beginners"; Monday, Wednesday, Friday, Nov. 3, 5, 7; 9 a.m. to noon; course fee: $90.

"Lotus for Secretaries: Easy as 1-2-3"; Monday, Wednesday, Nov. 17 and 19; 1 to 4 p.m.; course fee: $60.

"PC-DOS"; Monday, Wednesday, Dec. 1 and 3; 6 to 9 p.m.; course fee: $60.

"WordStar"; Tuesday, Dec. 2; 9 a.m. to noon; course fee $30.

"PFS File and Report"; Fridays, Dec. 5 to 19; 1 to 4:30 p.m.; course fee: $115.

"Volkswriter"; Tuesday, Thursday, Dec. 9 and 11; 6 to 9 p.m.; course fee: $60.

Enrollment in the workshops is limited, and early registration is encouraged. For registration information, call the Admissions Office, 351-2208.

The Microcomputer Training Center was established to assist business and industry in training employees in the use and application of microcomputers. Another series of workshops will be offered during the spring semester.

Computer training also can be customized and scheduled to meet individual company needs at a reasonable cost. For more information, contact the Parkland Small Business Development Center, 351-2200, extension 556.

Cobras plagued by injuries

By JOHN PARKS
Prospectus Staff Reporter

Suffering from a long string of road matches, and plagued by costly injuries, the Parkland women's volleyball team lost both matches last Thursday in a contest at Lincoln. Playing with only six team members available, the cobras saw their season mark drop to a disappointing 18-23.

The Cobras played well in the first game of their opening match of the evening against Carl Sandburg. The Cobras came out smoking, winning handily by the score of 15-2. However, the rout seemed to only awaken the Carl Sandburg squad as they then blew past the Cobras in the next two games, 15-7, 15-4. The Cobras lone bright spot was sophomore Kori Carrol, who served for six of the Cobras opening game victory.

Against host Lincoln, the Cobras once again jumped on the opposition, posting a 15-7 opening game win. Once again, though, the cobras proved unable to lock up a win as the Lincoln squad won the next two games by identical 15-11 scores.

Hopefully this week will mark the return of the injured Cobras players who are obviously being missed. Carol Cribbett's back injury sustained in a practice session, will have to heal quickly and completely if the Cobras are to contend seriously in the regional tournament being held next Friday in Kankakee. First, though, the Cobras have to deal with a Kankakee squad ranked in the top 20. That match will get underway Tuesday at 6:00 in Kankakee. With any luck at all, a healthy Cobra team may be able to put something good together this week in Kankakee.

By BELYNDA F. BROWN

Prospectus Staff Reporter

Prairie Gardens in Champaign is ready to kick off the beginning of another holiday season with their "Totally Christmas" Open House starting Nov. 1 and running through Nov. 3.

Prairie Gardens is looking forward to a big turnout again this year, and will be serving apple cider, coffee, and cookies to the shoppers.

Each year Prairie Gardens decorates their entire store in the spirit of the Christmas season, and every year they seem to make it more beautiful. They also set up a huge Christmas tree display, featuring many ideas for decorating one's own special tree. They also have a very large, stuffed "reindeer" that is sure to catch even Scrooge's attention.

Prairie Gardens stocks a huge supply of trees, decorations, lights, Christmas stockings, and gifts for the dream Christmas of your design.

Employees at Prairie Gardens say they are expecting to have a lot of fun this year, and that they are going to be very busy. They predict that a Country Christmas will be a popular choice for home decoration this year.

Townshend's 'Deep End-Live' reviewed

By KENNETH J. DAVIS
Prospectus Staff Reporter
The release of Pete Townshend's new LP, "Deep End-Live," is refreshing news indeed. Especially considering the fact that it wasn't even slated for commercial release at all.

In August, Townshend and the executives at ATCO Records decided to make the only copies of "Deep End" available to radio stations in order to saturate the stores with yet another album to keep restocking due to heavy sales.

After the success of 1985's "White City—A Novel," they probably decided they had enough money to keep them happy for a while. But, nobody really ever has enough cash, right? So, in the interests of a.) furthering Pete's solo career and b.) making a bundle, they revealed the August decision and the tapes were hastily sent to pressing.

The result is a surprisingly realistic album full of old Who tunes and other tunes favored by Townshend. Opening with the now-popular "Barefootin,'" the LP quickly runs into "Ater the Fire," a tune made popular by Roger Daltrey in the summer of 1985 but written by Townshend. Then the Who classic, "Behind Blue Eyes" and "Stop Hurting People," followed by another Townshend composition, "I'm One."

Side two shows first a tribute to Screamin' Jay Hawkins, with his "I Put A Spell On You." Townshend then covers some English Beat material, playing "Save It for Later," a Dave Wakeling tune from the Beat's

"Special Beat Services" album. "Pinball Wizard," the immortal classic from the Who's rock opera "Tommy" follows, breaking into "Little is Enough." The album's final song is a cover of an old Sonny Boy Williamson tune, "Eye-sight to the Blind." True Townshend aficionados will want to pick up this new album. Not only is it a great album, but it has an insert advertising for a full-length video of "Deep End." For those with not enough Pete in their diets, I suppose.

One more note: in the interests of getting a greater variety of music reviewed in this column, and seeing if anyone really reads it anyway, write down an album or group with new music on paper and drop it by the Prospectus office in X155. Look for the entertainment basket near the front of the room and drop it off. This will give me a chance to give you all what you want!

Krannert

English Concert appears at UI Krannert Center

"The English Concert is a world-class orchestra that happens to play on period instruments." This is how one critic described British chamber orchestra, The English Concert, appearing at the Krannert Center for the Performing Arts, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. The performance is scheduled for Monday, Nov. 10, at 8 p.m. in the Foellinger Great Hall.

When Trevor Pinnock, regarded as the leading British harpsichordist of his generation, founded The English Concert in 1973, it came as no surprise to many critics years later that he had established one of Britain's leading period-instrument chamber orchestras. It has an international reputation founded on vital and expressive music-making of the highest quality. Appearing either as an orchestra or small chamber group, the ensemble has toured and broadcast throughout Britain, Australia and Europe, performing at many major festivals including 'Britain Salutes New York,' and the Vivaldi Festival in Venice, Ansbach, Helsinki, and Flanders.

Receiving his early musical training as a chorister at Canterbury Cathedral, Pinnock subsequently studied organ and harpsichord at the Royal College of Music, winning the major performance prizes on both instruments. He now divides his time between solo work and directing orchestras in seventeenth- and eighteenth-century repertoire. Under exclusive contract to Archiv Produktion since 1978, Pinnock and The English Concert has together made over forty recordings.

The ensemble will be performing Incidental Music for The Faerie Queen by Purcell; Harpsichord Concerto in D Minor, BWV 1052 by Bach; Concerto in B-flat for Three Obes and Three Violins by Telemann; Concerto in D Minor for Two Violins and Violoncello, Op. 3, No. 11 by Vivaldi; and Suite No. 4 in D Major, BWV 1069 by Bach.

Standard priced tickets for The English Concert performance are $14; and $13 for students and senior citizens. Tickets are on sale at the Krannert Center Ticket Office, 500 S. Goodwin, Urbana.

Ticket reservations and credit card sales may be made by calling 333-6280.

Krannert prepares for 'dancing elephant'

Krannert Center for the Performing Arts, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign is preparing for the dancing elephant that will be appearing in Toronto Dance Theatre's Babar, The Little Elephant. This evening performance will be Thursday, Nov. 13, in the Festival Theatre at a special early starting time of 7 p.m.

Babar is a young elephant who is born in the forest and flees to a nearby city when bereft of his mother at an early age. In the city, he is provided for by a wealthy Old Lady who introduces him to city life. For all the kindness of this Old Lady, and the wonderful education he received, Babar misses the forest and finally returns there to be married and crowned King of the animals.

Donald Himes, producer for Babar, The Little Elephant, was granted exclusive performing rights for his production in 1972 by the son of Jean de Brunhoff, the author of the Babar stories. It was Brunhoff's wife, Cecile Sabourad, a pianist, who invented the story of a little elephant to entertain the two young de Brunhoff children.

Francis Poulenc created the music for Babar by improvising an accompaniment on the piano. His witty musical illustrations of the little elephant's extraordinary adventures were committed to paper in 1940.

Following closely de Brunhoff's story, and using Poulenc's composition, Himes' production is a charming, theatrical dance adaptation of the first Babar book. While the company performs in realistic, elephant-sized costumes, a narrator and whimsical projections follow Babar's adventures.

Standard priced tickets for Babar, The Little Elephant are $4; and $3 for students and senior citizens. Tickets are on sale at the Krannert Center Ticket Office, 500 S. Goodwin Ave., Urbana.

Paul Taylor Dance Company staging two local shows

Considered to be "one of the few authentic geniuses in the world of dance," Paul Taylor's dance troupe, The Paul Taylor Dance Company, will be appearing at the Krannert Center for the Performing Arts, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Two completely different performances will be featured Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 11 and 12 at 8 p.m. in the Festival Theatre.

The 1986-87 performing season marks the thirty-second anniversary of The Paul Taylor Dance Company. In the Company's history, it has performed in over three hundred cities in the United States, and has made thirty-two overseas tours to fifty-three different nations.

Taylor has been a dominant force in dance for over three decades. Born in Pennsylvania and raised in and around Washington, D.C., he studied painting at Syracuse University before coming to New York City to begin his dance career. From 1955 to 1962, Taylor was a soloist with the Martha Graham Dance Company. In 1959 he danced with the New York City Ballet as guest artist in George Balanchine's Episodes. Throughout the years, he has choreographed over ninety dances for his own Company. Works by Taylor are now also in the repertoires of the Royal Danish Ballet, American Ballet Theatre, the Joffrey Ballet, the San Francisco Ballet, and the Paris Opera Ballet just to name a few.

On Nov. 11, the program will include Images, with music by Debussy; Ab Ovo Usque Ad Mala (from soup to nuts), with music by P.D.Q. Bach; and A Musical Offering with music by J.S. Bach. The performance on Nov. 12 features Roses with music by Richard Wagner and Heinrich Baermann; Last Look with music specially composed by Donald York; and Esplanade with music by J.S. Bach.

Standard priced tickets for The Paul Taylor Dance Company's two different performances are $14, 13; and $13, 12 for students and senior citizens. Alabama concert is huge success

TEDDY GENTRY

By KENNETH J. DAVIS
Prospectus Staff Reporter
Saturday, Oct. 25 brought some of country music's hottest names to Champaign-Urbana's Assembly Hall. Starting promptly at 8 p.m., the Bellamy Brothers opened a 40-minute set with their 1970's hit "Let Your Love Flow" to a capacity crowd. The band then played "Too Much is Not Enough" and then the song that started a national fad with bumper stickers, "If I Said You Had A Beautiful Body Would You Hold It Against Me," closed the set.

After a short intermission to remove equipment, the Charlie Daniel Band took the stage at 9:00. Opening with their classic from the turn of the decade, "The Legend of the Woolly Swamp," the band immediately went into "Jimmy Boone." Their next action was to preview material from an as yet unreleased album (slated for release in probably March of 1987), first a song called "I Just Wanna Be with You," and then the title cut from the upcoming LP, "Saturday Night U.S.A."

The band's next effort was a song sung almost entirely by the band's guitarist, called "Class of '63," followed by a tribute to their touring partners, Alabama, with a smoking rendition of Lynyrd Skynyrd's "Sweet Home Alabama." This was followed by an American anthem from the band: "In America," a song that became part of the congressional record upon its release when a senator read the words aloud at a session of Congress.

A classic renowned to both country and rock fans both came next, "Long Haired Country Boy" followed by "Tell Me What I Say." The band then played songs from their latest album, Me 'n the Boys, including the latest single, "Drinking my Baby Goodbye." Then came the song that rocketed the Charlie Daniels Band to fame, "The Devil Went Down to Georgia," showcasing some talented fiddle work by Charlie Daniels himself.

The band then went on to do, as Charlie Daniels put it, "Some jammin' Southern style" with members of all bands onstage, complete with pedal steel guitar, to do a tune called "Be Proud You're a Rebel, The South's Gonna Do It Again," dedicated to Ronnie Van Zant.

"Amazing Grace" finished the set off in fine style, bringing an energetic and exciting show to a close and setting the stage for the main event, Alabama.

In between sets, I asked Scott Swinford, a University of Illinois student from St. Joseph, what he thought about Alabama's popularity. "It's because they write a lot of songs about the working man, people who work. Look around, you won't see many students, these people are from the fields and the factories."

Alabama opened with their hit "Can't Keep a Good Man Down," after which lead guitarist/keyboardist/fiddler Jeff Cook switched to fiddle for the tune "If You're Gonna Play in Texas (You Gotta Have a Fiddle in the Band)." The band then did a country rendition of the Carpenter's hit, "Touch Me When We're Dancing," following with a medley of their hits, including "Take Me Down," "Love in the First Degree," "The Closer You Get," "When We Make Love" and "There's No Way I Can Make It Without You." The whole medley was accented by a screen of lights behind the stage resembling the scoreboard at the University of Illinois' Zupke Field scoreboard, flitting between the Alabama logo and stars creating a romantic mood. It worked, too. Everywhere I looked, I saw people of all ages, complete families, kids, and older adults holding one another.

Barry Lerch, a Parkland student who works at the Assembly Hall part time, said, "I've never been much of a country fan, but Alabama was definitely an enjoyable show." "Roll On" followed, going into "Feels So Right" and then "Old Flame Burnin' (In Your Eyes)."

After playing for an hour, the band took a short break, then came out for a medley of hits, most notably "Takin' Care of Business," which had a break in the middle. This break included hits in the middle, like background music for the introductions of the band members and the crew. Randy Owen, rhythm guitarist and singer, donned a pair of glasses with penlights for eyes and, as the lights dimmed, looked like a bug. During this part of the show, the band played bits of songs from people like the Doors ("Hello, I Love You), "Pretty Woman," "Smoke on the Water," "Louie, Louie," "Land of 1000 Dances," which included a crowd participation bit where the band attempted to garner applause from different sections of the Assembly Hall. The band then went back into "Takin' Care of Business" to finish the show.

Afterwards, Eric Schaffer and I were fortunate enough to be able to go backstage and meet band members Randy Owen (rhythm guitar and vocals), Jeff Cook (lead guitar, keyboards, and fiddle) and Mark Herndon (drums and percussion). Randy Owens even made a comment about how fast and adept Eric was at taking the pictures he was furiously attempting to take. Teddy Gentry (electric bass) was unable to come backstage.

In late 1969, Randy, Teddy and Jeff, who are cousins, began to play together in Ft. Payne, Ala., playing on weekends while keeping their day jobs. In 1973, the band decided to move to Myrtle Beach, S.C., where they worked six nights a week in clubs. However, it wasn't until 1979 that Alabama picked up drummer Mark Herndon, and in 1980, they signed a contract with RCA Records and never looked back. Every album since has gone platinum, "Feels So Right," "Mountain Music," "My Home's in Alabama" and "Roll On," have all been instrumental in catapulting the band to astronomical success.

Co-op offers workshop

It's "wind-down" time. "Wind-down" time is that period of the year when you "wrap-up" those jobs that must be accomplished before Mother Nature slips winter between our storm windows and our screens. If winter will keep us out of our fields, lawns, and gardens, let's plan to "wind-up" our lives with periods of study and renewal during the winter months.

"Take Control of Your Family Finances" is a three-session workshop offered by your Co-operative Extension Service and scheduled for Nov. 17, 24, and Dec. 1, 1986. It begins at 7 p.m. each night. It has been developed to assist you and your family in taking control of your finances. It will be taught by Mary Ann Fugate, Senior Extension Adviser, Home Economics, and myself.

The workshop will focus on establishing family financial goals acceptable to all family members, evaluating your financial situation, and the development of a useful spending and saving plan. We'll also cover the wise use of credit and how to assess savings and investment alternatives.

Each participant will have the opportunity to develop a personal plan for spending and

Wood fund doing well

Since the Carolyn Wood's Children Fund was opened on October 1 at Market Place National Bank, Champaign, more than 52 contributions have been made. Customer service representative Kenje Kumler said, "The fund is doing quite well."

Carolyn Wood, a Parkland student, died in September.

During the first three days the fund was established about 10 contributions arrived per day. Contributions have come from many areas within the Parkland College district 505 and from areas outside the district. The bank is now receiving an average of two contributions per day and has received some group contributions.

Kumler said the contributions will probably be established as a trust fund for the four children, Alexis Wood, Taifa Whitley, Marisa Whitley, and Michael Whitley, all of Champaign.

Contributions can be sent to: Carolyn Wood's Children Fund, c/o Market Place National Bank, P.O. Box 1409, Champaign, IL 61820.

Registration for this workshop, to be held in the Farm Bureau Auditorium in Champaign, is required by Nov. 10. Cost will be $3 per person or couple. Send your registration to Mary Ann Fugate, Extension Adviser, Home Economics, P.O. Box 3367, Champaign, 61821. Your check should be made payable to: Champaign County Executive Extension Council.

Have you prepared your newly planted trees and shrubs for winter? If not, do it before the alternate heating and cooling of the tender bark results in frost cracks or before the rabbits use the tender wood for food. Wrap the trunks with any of the commercial materials available or use such materials as feed or seed sacks or kraft paper. Protect shrubs with burlap, pine boughs or plastic sheeting—just about anything to break the drying wind and reduce the impact of the bright sun. You can remove the materials in the spring when the temperatures start to moderate and the rabbits have other food to eat.

Paris—the city of lights. That's where we were headed next, but to get there we had to cross the English Channel. So we decided to take a hovercraft from Dover, England, to the coast of France and then from there we would proceed to Paris.

Once we got to Dover, we saw the white Cliffs of Dover, which were one of the things Allied pilots looked for when they flew missions. When we got our tickets for the hovercraft we waited for it to come in. When it finally arrived, I was impressed by the way it hovered over the water and when it stopped it deflated and all the passengers got off.

After boarding for the trip, we walked around, feeling that we were on some spaceship from outerspace. It was a strange feeling getting on something that I had just seen deflate. The stewardess showed us to our seats and went about her task of showing us where our life preservers were and explained how to use them. Then the captain of the craft started to inflate the hovercraft—again a weird feeling when the craft rose off the ground and then started to move.

Once we got on the water, the fan blades started to really pick up speed and we were off to France. One drawback to the hovercraft was the spray coming up from the bottom of the boat. It sprayed the windows so badly that one couldn't see out. Another drawback to the hovercraft was the noise. The noise inside the craft was so loud that the stewardess had to yell just so one could hear.

Once we arrived on the coast of France, we got off the hovercraft and proceeded to get our luggage. We then had to get to the train station because we were still a couple of hours away from Paris. The fastest way to make the trip is the Bullet train. The bullet, as you might know, is one of the fastest trains in the world. An average speed for the Bullet is 150 mph, so as you can see it is very fast. While on the train we had a chance to eat lunch but we declined because the food was so expensive. Even at 150 mph it took us about three hours to get to Paris.

When we got to Paris, the first thing I knew I wanted to see was the Eiffel Tower. The Eiffel Tower sits on the Champ de Mars, which is along the banks of the Seine River. The Tower was built by Alexandre Gustave Eiffel, for the 1889 exposition. It rises 948 feet from its base of 330 feet. Tourists who visit the tower can go to two different heights or levels. One is about a quarter of the way up and the other at the top. One can also go up two different ways; one way is an elevator, which I may add, is always full, or one can walk up the stairs which go only to the first level.

Constructed of iron and steel, the Tower weighs 6,400 metric tons, or about 7,000 short tons and cost over $1 million to build.

During the war, it served as an important military observation point. Since 1953, besides tourism, the Tower has been used to transmit television program to the French people.

A Song at Twilight

Theater production reviewed

By ANDY HEAL
Prospectus Staff Reporter

If you have never attended a play, and have only entered the theatre to take in still another motion picture, then I suggest that you're missing out on one of the most delightful forms of entertainment.

Noel Coward's "A Song at Twilight" is a beautifully written and skillfully produced romantic comedy. Production Manager James Coates should be commended for his hard work in piecing this highly entertaining production together. And, he should be equally reprimanded for failing to market it successfully to entice people into the seats. Otherwise, I have nothing but praise for most of the elements of the play.

Quickly, about the setting and plot, I will only briefly say that the action takes place in a private suite in a luxurious hotel in Switzerland. The story involves a famous European writer, his faithful wife of 20 years, and the writer's ex-lover from before he was married. Those are the three main characters in the plot, but in a very important supporting role, Parkland student Randy Offner does a remarkable job. Offner is cast as the waiter, Felix, and we could hardly get enough of him. At times, I found myself almost begging for his return on stage.

Because the play was set in Switzerland, the actors seemed to think that they should fake a foreign accent. This is a mistake. More than anything else, the fake accents take away from this otherwise delightful play. I think they should have left the accents in the dressing room and presented the audience with more understandable dialogue.

The key to the play is the part of Hilda Latymer. Played superbly by Ruth Weinard, Hilda's accent is the most believable and most likely isn't fake. The part could be played by someone who is a few years older, but Ms. Weinard handles it beautifully. Her part is the glue that holds the script all together.

Her husband, Hugo, is played by Jim Heins. His performance is quite good and his emotions are well laid out. His sudden outbursts of emotion give the audience a defined sense of minor climaxes and provide never a dull moment. Again—and I hate to nag—he more than anyone should abandon the annoying accent.

A perfect example of the expert casting is Ms. Barbara Peacock as Carlotta Gray (the promiscuous ex-lover). She dominates the set front the moment she first appears, midway through the first scene. When she is left alone on stage shortly after her entrance, all eyes are trained on her delicious presence.

Ultimately, these actors, the guest director Clara Behringer, and playwright Noel Coward, achieve some very good quick wit and rapid dialogue.

Ag 101 takes trips to area farms

Do you know the difference between a Duroc and a Poland China? A Jersey and a Guernsey? A Shorthorn and a Hereford? If you don't, then just ask someone who is in Agr 101.

That class has taken two field trips to local livestock farms while studying a section on livestock identification and selection.

Thursday, Oct. 2, the class went to a beef farm near Mahomet. The class learned about the advantages of different breeds of beef cattle. A ring of four Angus Heifers (for those of you who don't know, Angus are black.) They were judged for the following characteristics: length, muscling, firmness, soundness, and trimness.

The second took place on the Stanley Wood farm north of Champaign. The students learned about different breeds of swine and about what to look for when purchasing breeding swine. A ring of swine was also judged by the class.

Earlier in the year, the class had toured the meat locker on the U of I campus.

Student Services plans '86 holiday events

By CAROL WHEELOCK
for the Prospectus

Christmas is like a common cold: the symptoms sneak up on you so quickly that you don't know it's there until it is in full force.

First you hear the jokes, "Oh, no—only 65 shopping days left until Christmas!" Second you see a few Christmas trees in with the pumpkins at the local drug store. Then comes the day that you turn on your T.V. and see the first Ronco commercial! After that it is all down hill.

The next thing you know you find yourself at Kmart the day before Christmas running from aisle to aisle looking for the blue light and wondering if Aunt Molly would like a pair of Garfield underwear.

Well, I'm here to tell you that it doesn't have to be like that. While the rest of us are carving our pumpkins and deciding what costume to wear to the big bash, John Castillo and friends (student services) have been planning on what to do for Christmas (yes Christmas). Some of their plans include a visit from Santa Claus to the college and a shopping trip to Woodfield Mall on Dec. 6. This trip will be an all-day event and they will be taking three buses so there will be plenty of room for everyone.

Also—remember the holiday right before Christmas? Thanksgiving, that's it! Student Services has been busy planning for that, too. The plans include a turkey hunt on Nov. 23, 24, and 25 with prizes to be announced later.

With this in mind, I would like to encourage everyone to get involved either by participating or by becoming a member of student services. For more information contact John Castillo in room X159 or phone 351-2227.

Phi Beta Lambda is 'club of the week'

By TIM MISNER
for the Prospectus

Phi Beta Lambda, a business club at Parkland, is a national organization for students who are preparing for careers in business and industry or for careers in business education.

The purposes of PBL are to 1.) Develop competent aggressive business leadership. 2.) Strengthen the confidence of young men and women in themselves and their work. 3.) Create more interest and understanding in the intelligent choice of business occupations. 4.) Encourage members in the development of individual projects and in establishing themselves in business. 5.) Encourage members in the improvement of home and community. 6.) Participate in worthy undertakings for the improvement of business and community. 7.) Develop character, prepare for useful citizenship, and foster patriotism. 8.) Participate in cooperative efforts. 9.) Provide for and encourage the development of organized recreational activities. 10.) Encourage and practice thrift. 11.) Encourage improvement in scholarship and promote school loyalty.

Pizza sales are the main fund-raising activity for PBL. Later this semester, they will also be selling candy. They are planning to sell balloons on Valentine's Day. PBL did this last year and was quite successful.

PBL will be going to Chicago in November. There they will tour the Chicago Board of Trade and the Merchantile Exchange. They are also arranging to have a guest speaker this semester.

In April, PBL will go to the State Leadership Conference in Springfield. PBL attended this conference last year and had five members place in contests, including one first place in data processing.

For fun PBL members eat pizza and go horseback riding. More social activities are being planned for the rest of the year.

Officers for this semester are: Keith Stark, President; Julie Kelly, Vice-President; Peggy Hoke, Secretary; Daryl Bruner, Treasurer; Juliana Taylor, IOC Representative; Kim Short, Activities Director; Barry Lerch, Publicity; and Donna Giertz, Advisor.

Meetings are held every Tuesday at 11 a.m. in B223. Membership is open to any Parkland student interested in business.

Cobras prepare for season opener

By ANDY HEAL
Prospectus Staff Reporter

Basketball coach Tom Cooper is sorting through his talent, evaluating the player's capabilities, and whipping them into shape for the season open next Friday in Belleville against State Community College.

The thing that boggles me is how in the world does he figure out who is going to start? All the players seem to have abilities about the same. And how is he going to substitute players? It is nice to have fresh players of compatible talent coming in the game. With the full-court running press defense the Cobras will use this season (a la Cleveland State) it will be necessary to substitute frequently.

During these final preseason practices, Cooper has broken the team down into five man squads. Last week he had what looked like a solid starting lineup playing together. That was 6-6 power forward Baron McLaughlin down low, along with 6-3½ "skywalker" Reggie Banks and banger Darryl Anthony at small forwards, Max Christie playing the off-guard and Terrence Gray at the point. They seemed to work well together, but that quintet is not as quick as some that could be put together.

To play that "pressure-cooker" defense, Cooper might be better off by getting either lightning-quick Terry Porter or P. J. Bowman into game. They are both sharpshooters from the outside and Porter says, "I'd like to lead the team in steals." Seeing those two on the floor together would be like walking into a hornet's nest for opposing coaches.

"The players know that who-ever commits the fewest turnovers and handles the ball well will get the most playing time," says Cooper. "Also, I'm a little worried about rebounding, the same goes for rebounding. We are going to work so hard to get the ball that we can't afford to turn the ball over."

"We are going to have to substitute frequently, and at all positions. It is too much to ask the players to play a solid forty minutes with the type of gameplan we are going to use. That's why it is nice to have so much depth."

The player in the low post position will have to be substituted more often than the others. Big guys usually don't run as well as guards. Rade (pronounced rod) Pilja and Jim Williams are a couple of key players. Freshman Barnon McLaughlin simply is not in good enough shape to run for a solid ten minutes. Cooper thinks that the problem is his diet. "When a player leaves home and starts cooking for himself, sometimes he forgets to eat properly. Baron has a carbohydrate deficiency that we are working on correcting," said the concerned Cooper.

The other positions are deep. Reggie Banks is the leading candidate to start at one forward and could certainly play guard if needed. He is in good shape and loves to run. He is always begging for the ball, but sometimes he doesn't take his best shot. Eric David is also a powerful player in that spot. He is more physical than Banks and hits the boards well. He would be a starter on any other team, but unfortunately for him he'll have to wait until next year to log a lot of minutes. Brian O'Connell is another guy who will help out if he could concentrate harder on rebounding. Cooper really wants the forwards to work on their rebounding.

The other forward spot is actually a big guard position as the Cobras will employ a three-guard lineup. There we find the most heated competition for playing time and the most depth. This is kind of a swingman position and no one has yet emerged as a favorite to start. Along with Darryl Anthony who "does everything well except score," are no less than three very talented, well-rounded players. They are Mike Rombout, David Washington, and Milan Baletic. Rombout is coming back nicely from last year's ankle injury and will soon be back at 100 percent. Washington can score with the best of them and will definitely get some minutes. Then there's Baletic who is very intense on defense but lacks physical bulk that is required too of good rebounders. He's quick enough for the "pressure-cooker" and is nice to have coming off the bench. He might be better suited at the off-guard position. Lenny McIntosh decided to redshirt and we're looking forward to seeing him next year.

Possibly, Bryan Green would be better off sitting out this season as well. We will lose the services of Terrence Gray, Max Christie and Terry Porter to graduation, and there will be a better opportunity for him to get in two full years of playing. Don't get me wrong; he is good enough to play this year, there are simply four other guards who can keep the pressure-cooker hot enough to cook opposing teams.

It is going to be an exciting action-packed season for the defending national champs. I urge you to attend some of the games and check out what should be a very high scoring team.
