

Enchanting, gala event planned

Hamlich to perform May 3

By Lori Rhode
Prospectus Staff Writer

Organizers are describing the May 3 benefit concert "An Intimate Evening with Marvin Hamlich" as an "enchanting" evening of entertainment, a "gala event," and a "once in a life-time opportunity." The event has been organized to raise funds for the new "Second Mile Fund" financial assistance program.

Sandra Boileau, special programs director and member of the event's organizing committee said, "There are several things which make this a special event." Boileau says the performance will be "unique" and the event will "provide an opportunity for people who haven't visited Parkland before to see the campus."

Randi Hard, Parkland Theater manager said, "I talked with Marvin Hamlich recently and he is very excited about doing this performance." He is planning several things to make the evening special and there will be more interaction with the audience, Hard said.

"People generally know that Marvin Hamlich is a famous composer, but not many people have seen him in performance or know that he gives a great show," Hard says Hamlich adds comedy and a great deal of personality to his shows.

Two separate performances, punctuated by a gourmet buffet, are planned for the evening. The first will begin in the "Main Stage" at 6:30 p.m. The second will begin at 9 p.m. Tickets for the performances are $50 per person. For reservations, call the ticket office, 351-1076.

Between the two performances a "gourmet" buffet will be served in the College Center. As a result of the evening benefit, the College Center will be closed to students attending Tuesday evening classes. Paul Kunkel, director of research and planning, says Tuesday evening faculty have announced to their classes the closing of the College Center on May 3.

"Posters will be put up on that evening to inform students that the College Center is closed and students are asked to use the outside court yards to move between the wings of the College. Students can enter the library from the second level entrance near the counseling center or through the "A" wing second level entrance (this door is normally locked)," Kunkel said.

Three "entertainment stations" will perform in the College Center while the benefit's guests are at the buffet. Pianists will be performing at each of the stations.

At 8 p.m. the Parkland Jazz Combo, under the direction of Dr. Tim Schirmer, will play under the library steps. Members of the ensemble are: Dave Cump, bass; Christopher Logan, percussion; Ralph Beerhorst, keyboard; Brad Fish, guitar; Dan Sjoen, trumpet; Rand McFarland, trombone; Peter Roubal, tenor sax, and Brenda Langsjoen, baritone sax.

At 8:30 p.m. the new Parkland Women's Ensemble will give a brief stage show of Hamlich tunes, under the direction of Sandra Chabot. Members of the ensemble are: Stephanie Cleland, Marla England, Shari England, Deanna Fields, and Mary

JEFFREY STRANGE

ZANITA V. KELLY

4 students seek posts

Trena Magers

My name is Trena Magers, and I am actively seeking to be elected as Vice President of the Parkland Student Government.

During the past semester, Spring '88, I was given the honor of serving you, the students, as a Senator.

I have worked on the Teacher of Merit, Public Relations, and the '88 Spring-Out committee. I am fully aware of many issues that are concerns of the students here at Parkland and will enforce an open-door policy so you can come to me with the ideas and problems that you see needing the attention of the student body, staff, and administration.

If elected, I will continue to serve you in the highest degree that I can in the capacity as your student Senator. I am looking forward to serving you and meeting as many of you as possible again this coming semester. So remember, if it is your wish to have your views and questions brought up to the proper persons and committees, be sure to put an "X" in the box next to TRENA MAGERS.

Richard Wellbank

My name is Richard Wellbank, the student who is always going backwards in his wheelchair. I would like to ask for your vote in the Student Government elections which will take place April 28. I am running for a position as senator.

The most important issue I see is the need for you, the student, to get involved more at Parkland. I would like to prepare a survey questionnaire asking students what activities they want and need to enjoy their stay at Parkland.

A second issue that I am interested in is parking. I often hear complaints from student who have a difficult time finding a place to park. I would like to investigate solutions to the parking problem.

I live in Urbana by myself, with someone that comes to cook for me. My interests are baseball, traveling, helping people out, and enjoying life in general.

Jeffery Strange

Do you dread getting up early on Saturday mornings to go to the library? If so, you might like my idea for new library hours. The library hours would be more convenient for students if they were from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m., or noon - 4:00 p.m.

Hi! My name is Jeffrey Strange, and I am running for the position of Student Government Senator. I am enrolled in the Criminal Justice transfer program, and this is my first semester at Parkland. I am looking forward to serving the students next semester as a Senator. I intend to give 110 percent in making your college experience at Parkland as rewarding as possible. VOTE DIFFERENT, VOTE STRANGE!

Zanita V. Kelly

Students of Parkland, my name is Zanita Kelly; and I wish to continue my terms in the Fall of '88 as senator on the student government.

I presently maintain a 3.0 grade point average, and I am majoring in Liberal Arts. I am a freshman with the drive and enthusiasm to make things happen. (more VOTE on 2).

Student elections set for April 27, 28

By Joe Sieben
Prospectus staff writer

Student Elections will be held on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. At stake in the election are one vice-president seat and five senator seats. The polls will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. each day, and 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. each night. Four students are seeking election to one of the six open positions. Students may vote for write-in candidates by placing their candidate's name on the ballot.

The position of vice-president is open, and one candidate is running unopposed for that seat. Three candidates are running for student senator, and five seats are open. Write-in campaigns have been conducted for these seats in the past, and last semester's election had six successful write-in campaigns.

To vote for a candidate, you must place an "X" in the box next to the candidate's name. For a write-in candidate you must place the "X" and write in the candidate's name as well. The cross mark of the "X" must be inside the voting box on the ballot. If the cross mark is outside of the box that vote will not be counted. Check marks or marks other than an "X" will also not be counted. Federal Law mandates that an "X" be used when voting.

Crisis in education funding is forum topic

Ted Sanders, State Superintendent of Education, will speak on the "Illinois Crisis in Education Funding" at an Open Forum in the Flag Lounge of the Parkland College Center, Thursday, April 28, at 7 p.m.

Following Sanders' presentation, several panelists will discuss how the Education funding crisis is affecting their institutions or organizations.

Panel participants will be:
—Dr. Alice Pfeffer, Acting Vice-President, Parkland College

—Dr. Morton Weir, Chancellor, University of Illinois

—Dr. Timothy Hyland, Superintendent, Champaign District 4 Schools

—Mr. Vernon Barkstall, President, Urban League of Champaign County

—Mr. Greg Foster, President, Board of Directors, Urbana Chamber of Commerce

Justine Schoepfle, Chair of the Urbana C.R.I.S.E.S. Coalition Team, will moderate the program, and an informal reception will follow the event.

The forum is sponsored by the Champaign - Urbana C.R.I.S.E.S. Coalition. The group is part of the recently formed statewide Coalition to Restore Illinois' System of Excellent Schools. The program will highlight the increasing seriousness of funding problems affecting our Public Schools, Colleges, and Universities.

The Coalition favors a modest income tax increase to provide more funding for Public and Higher Education in Illinois. The Illinois Legislature is currently considering measures which would achieve this end.

Editorial 'My children vs. my education?'

"My babysitter was sick today. I brought my three-year-old to school so I wouldn't miss class," a student told Nancy Endress, of the Parkland nursing program, when she brought her child to school with her one day.

Endress told this story at a forum on child care that was held last week. It represents a reality that Parkland will have an increasing responsibility to deal with in coming years. There are more Parkland College students who have preschool-age children. Some of the students are young single mothers. An increasing number of these students are older parents who are coming back to school.

All of them face a conflict between powerful, but somewhat opposing, needs. On the one hand, they want to be responsible parents and want to provide quality care for their children at all times.

On the other hand, they need time free of the responsibilities of raising a child for classes and studying. They take classes to advance economically, and they take classes for personal development.

The solution to this problem includes either getting a babysitter or placing the child in some sort of organized professional day care. A parent who tries to utilize these options faces many problems.

Babysitters may be hard to find, expensive, and may offer little in the way of an organized learning program for children. Quality professional day care is often beyond the economic means of most students (and working parents). In those cases where child care is subsidized, there is not enough space available for all the children and parents who would like to use the service.

Finally, if quality child care is found, it may be out of the way. The trip from home to day care, to school and back again may take up too much of the student's valuable time, especially for students without a car.

One responsible solution to this problem is to bring economical, quality day care to Parkland's campus. This is a project that concerned faculty, staff, and students are currently working on. A faculty senate committee has been formed to investigate bringing a child care facility to Parkland, and it will bring an informal proposal to the Board of Trustees soon, possibly in May.

Child care at Parkland is still sometime away (sometime after fall semester even at the earliest). Many people, including Pres. Paul Magelli, have expressed a firm commitment to develop some sort of program.

PC students can help further the development of child care at Parkland by talking about the issue with their friends, letting school officials know they support the idea, and writing the "Prospectus" in support of developing a day care program.

Child care is not a replacement for good parenting, and is not intended to be. It is a support that helps students and working parents feel secure while they advance their economic and educational needs. By supporting quality child care, we can tell parents and children in the Parkland community that we care about them and appreciate their efforts to be better and more productive members of our community.

Dean Hedeman defends move of game rooms, tv lounge

To the editor:

In recent weeks there has been some discussion in the meetings of the student senate and in the columns of the Prospectus about the impending move of the ping pong and billiard rooms and the placement of the television lounge on campus. We would like to offer a point of view which may not match those expressed previously, but which we hope represents the best interests of Parkland students.

During this school year all aspects of the college have been carefully reviewed, including the game rooms and television lounge. Many changes have been made during this review including the administrative reorganization of the college. Each decision is made with the goal of providing comprehensive service to the greatest number of students in the most economical manner. Parkland College suffers from a critical shortage of classroom space during the prime hours of the day (9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.) and turns away a significant number of students during those times because more classes cannot be added to the schedule. In order to add more classes during those hours, a study of the use of campus space was made. The area presently occupied by the game rooms can be easily and economically converted into four classrooms for approximately $15,000. No where else on campus can such a space be found. That investment of $15,000 could ultimately generate $250,000 or more per year for the college from tuition and fees paid by students who will enroll in the additional classes the college is able to offer during the hours when students are most likely to attend school. The extra income generated by the additional classes may ultimately help to keep tuition and fees down at a time when state and local funding is stagnant. The college must, in order to balance its own budget, look for ways to increase income in order to continue to serve students well.

Before a decision to convert the game rooms into classroom space can be made, a comparison of the benefits to students of the two possible uses of the area must be made. Certainly some students profit from using the game rooms as a place to relax and to socialize on campus. Yet many more students will benefit from the increased offerings at prime time and the attempts by the college to keep tuition in line. The game rooms will not be eliminated, but instead will be moved to the physical education building, a place where many students now take advantage of the weight room and the gymnasium for recreation. A shift of location should not inconvenience those students who wish to use the facilities.

The move of the television lounge from the second floor to the area behind room L-111 was prompted by the serious problem of lack of space for the office of special programs and community services. The functions of this office (including G.E.D., PACT, and Center for Health Information, Adult Learning Opportunities, among many others) serve hundreds of students every semester at Parkland. The necessity to provide office space for these student service programs outweighed the need of a few dozen students who regularly used the television lounge. The current location of the television lounge is only a temporary one. Eventually smaller televisions will be strategically placed on campus for the use of students in a manner which is not inconsistent with the primary function of the campus, teaching and learning.

We are impressed by the sincerity of the students who have commented to us about the proposed changes and have taken their points of view seriously in our discussions. Walt Rudy, president of the student government, has been especially effective at carrying student concerns to us, and we continue to invite your comment. The decisions facing the college are often not easy ones, but they are made in the attempt to best serve our student community.

Sincerely
JOHN HEDEMAN

Club wants College to recognize Veteran's Day

StuGo discusses no smoking policy

By Joe Sieben
Prospectus staff writer

Last week in StuGo...

Last week's Student Government meeting was nearly cancelled due to poor attendance by StuGo members. A quorum was reached when Treasurer Cecil O. Potter arrived, and the meeting was called to order.

Reports

Vice President Patrick Kaler reported that the Veteran's Club had informed him of its disappointment that Parkland does not recognize Veteran's Day. He said that StuGo will work with the Veterans Club to develop some recognition of Veteran's Day here at Parkland.

Senator Beth Fischer reported that StuGo is interested in having a booth at this spring's Spring Out. Any members of StuGo who are interested in volunteering their time or suggestions are encouraged to do so.

Senator Leslie Rainey reported that the ballots for the Teacher of Merit Award have been distributed and will be tabulated today, Tuesday, at noon.

There was a unanimous approval for the funding of the StuGo business cards.

Next year's budget for Student Activities was unanimously approved.

Senator Bill Goldstein was unanimously elected to the position of Election Chairman.

A memo that recommends making Parkland College a "no-smoking" institution was presented to StuGo by the Health and Safety Committee. The memo asked StuGo for approval before it was submitted to the Board of Trustees. Treasurer Potter strongly urged StuGo approval and motioned for such approval. All but one agreed.

Senator Rainey cast the dissenting vote. He urged StuGo to form a task force to evaluate the proposal, rather than vote without consideration of the student body. It was Rainey's feeling that StuGo members, who do not smoke, were voting on personal bias and thus were excluding the voice of the student body, however small and unorganized that voice might be. He felt that further commitment was needed by StuGo in evaluating the proposal before a vote that was representative of the students, and not the StuGo members, could be taken.

Rainey's statement sparked a lengthy and heated debate among senate members, particularly Potter and Rainey. Both members were adamant in support of their positions, and cross-fire comments were exchanged between the two.

Senator Lisa Miltenberger, head of the Health and Safety Committee, was asked for her input regarding the proposal. She informed StuGo that she had missed the last Committee meeting and was not aware of the proposal. She took no side in the matter and did not vote.

Senate members volleyed with their support between Pot- (more STUGO on 7)

Forum panelists discuss day care

By Brian Bridgeford
Prospectus staff writer

Plans are under investigation to create a day care center at Parkland to serve students and their children, according to participants of an open forum held April 20 to discuss child care.

A panel of people working in the Champaign-Urbana community in day care, members of a faculty senate committee on child care, and concerned students discussed the need for a child care facility at the College.

Judy Campbell, of the child development program, said an increasing number of Parkland students have children. These students face considerable difficulty finding affordable quality day care for their children while they are at school, she said.

Without provisions for adequate day care, these students, who are mostly women, have the choice of giving up their schooling or finding poor quality placements for their children, she said. Campbell pointed out that other community colleges have day care, including a college in St. Louis that spent $2 million on a new building to house a day care center.

Nancy Endress, of the nursing program, said many of her students have children, and often, they are single mothers. She said one woman told her, "My baby sitter is sick in the hospital. I brought my 3-year-old to class because I didn't want to miss class." Endress said there is a need for a day care center that is close to school, so students could visit with their children during the school day.

Richland Community College in Decatur has an on-campus day care program that has been very successful, according to Kathy McDonald, of the Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS). Students who have child care available to them can stay at school longer and spend time in the library where they do better quality studying than at home, she said. At Richland, parents are required to take their children to lunch at noon, she said.

The Parkland administration sees child care as an increasingly necessary service that community colleges ought to be able to afford, according to Dale Ewen, assistant vice president. State officials are supportive of the idea, although Parkland's administrators cannot rely on funds from the state, he said. The College will be seeking local grants and other support to help fund a day care center, he said.

According to Ewen and Campbell, a child care proposal is being developed. In May, a presentation will be made to the Board of Trustees about the need for a campus day care center. If the Board gives its approval, a more formal proposal will follow in the fall. Administrators hope actual start-up of a day care center would be in the next academic year.

A child care center would need to be within walking distance of campus, be affordable by students, and meet the quality standards set by the state (something Parkland as a community college would not be required to do).

Pres. Paul Magelli reported that the head of the Illinois Community College Association had described child care services as "absolutely" necessary for the future of community colleges. President Magelli said the quality care of children is an important goal for society. To parents, he said, "We have to share that responsibility with you."

Effective for Fall 1988 term

Board OKs residency change

By Dian Strutz
Prospectus staff writer

At their meeting on April 20, the Parkland College Board of Trustees approved a residency requirement change that will make it easier for students to claim residency in the College's district.

Previously, students were required to live in the Parkland district for four months before they could claim residency. Under the newly approved guidelines, students will only have to be residents for 30 days before claiming residency. The new guidelines will be effective for the fall 1988 term.

Administrators told the Board that the policy change would make Parkland's residency requirements consistent with the policies of other area community colleges.

Under the new residency requirements, more students will be able to attend Parkland at in-district tuition rates. University of Illinois employees and their spouses who live out of district and students who are not able to continue at the UI will pay the same tuition rate as in-district students. Students who attend the College under a cooperative agreement with another college or university will also pay the lower tuition rate.

The Board also heard a report from Jonathan

Block, art instructor, about an application made to the Federal government for Title III funds. Block said the College had applied for funding to begin to facilitate a computer-integrated environment at Parkland.

If the College's request for funding is approved, administrators would use Title III monies to fund a management information system, upgrade the mainframe computer, buy additional software, purchase workstations for administrators, staff, and faculty, and upgrade the College's central phone switch.

The additional workstations would improve access to information by faculty and staff and would link faculty to each other with electronic mail, Block said.

If approved, administrators would also fund faculty professional career development and focus on the use of computers in business and industry, he said. Twenty percent of full-time faculty could benefit from career development, but with in-service training, 90 percent of faculty could be affected, Block said.

The Board also heard a presentation by Greg Maybury on the Management Information (Application Transfer) Study recently conducted by the College and IBM representatives. James Hall, mathematics instructor, presented a report to the Board about work he has done on his sabbatical leave.

Between Illinois State and Parkland

Dental hygiene agreement approved

By Dian Strutz
Prospectus staff writer

Parkland College dental hygiene graduates who wanted to continue their education and receive a bachelor's degree at a four-year college often found themselves in a bind: many colleges did not accept all the credit hours students had earned in Parkland's two-year program.

"For some students, it was almost like starting at a sophomore level instead of as junior transfer students, according to Susan Maurer, division chair of the life sciences division.

A new program, recently approved by Parkland and Illinois State University in Normal, will make it easier for dental hygiene students to earn a bachelor's degree, she said.

Under the recently approved cooperative agreement, students who earn an Associate of Applied Science degree in dental hygiene will be permitted to enroll at ISU and pursue a bachelor's degree in health education. The agreement becomes effective for the fall 1988 semester and is a first for both schools.

Sue Janusz, coordinator of the dental hygiene program at Parkland, initiated the agreement and said the new program may increase enrollment and job prospects for students in dental hygiene.

"Students who go through the program will become more well-rounded practitioners in clinical dental hygiene, and today's dentists are looking for these skills," she said. A bachelor's degree can increase career opportunities in dental office management, dental products marketing, and public health hygiene.

At ISU, Parkland dental hygiene graduates will be required to take 64 hours including general education classes in history, English, and philosophy as well as a series of classes in health education. Students may also participate in internships and enroll in other 300 level classes at the university. The bachelor's degree program has a heavy emphasis on science, Maurer said.

"I think the program is a great idea. It gives students another option," Maurer said. She also said that the recently approved program would be ideal for other health programs.

Students who receive their bachelor's degrees from ISU will be able to work at public health agencies and in other health education programs, Maurer said. Very few higher educational institutions have such programs, she said.

Pres. Paul Magelli said that the success of this agreement would facilitate similar agreements with other universities, some of which are already in the discussion stages.

Art Adams, ISU director of community college affairs, was credited with working out the details of the agreement and emphasized ISU's commitment to community colleges.

Students who are interested in the program should contact Janusz at Parkland, 351-2224, ext. 381.

The newly established emergency fund will provide temporary assistance to those students who have qualified but not yet received federal grants, who have encountered waiting periods for loans, or who otherwise need funds to remain in school.

The judges for the photo contest were Susie McDaniel, graphic artist at WCIA television, and professional photographers Rhonda Thompson and Lou McClellan of Thompson-McClellan Photography.

The judges were impressed with the quality of the 70 entries that were submitted for the contest. They said it was difficult to judge from among the entries, and that many excellent photographs did not win awards because of minor errors in composition or because they could have been more carefully cropped.

The judges agreed that the landscape category was the most difficult to judge. They also encouraged the student photographers to keep up the good work and to continue to practice their photography skills. With just a little more practice you might be a winner in the next photography contest you enter.

Building kites is one form of therapy

Students from the occupational therapy assistant program and Rebecca Bahnke, OTR/L, OTA instructor, celebrated National Occupational Therapy Month by designing and flying kites on April 18.

The kites were a colorful display used to promote occupational therapy and to demonstrate one of the numerous types of therapeutic media and exercises that can be used with patients. These therapeutic exercises help patients of all ages who have health or development problems.

The Parkland College occupational therapy assistant program began in the fall of 1985, based on the curriculum designed by Janet Engbring, M.Ed., OTR/L, and implemented by Carol Ruch, OTR/L, OTA program coordinator.

The two-year associate degree program will graduate its second class this May.

Occupational therapy is reported to be one of the fastest growing health care professions. It is a specialized health care service for people who have physical, emotional, and developmental disabilities.

Occupational therapists and occupational therapy assistants help disabled people of all ages acquire or regain the skills they need to live independent, productive, and satisfying lives. Services include activities of daily living, splinting, sensorimotor activity, adaptive equipment, therapeutic activity including exercise, prevocational evaluation and training, and consultation in regard to environmental adaptation for the handicapped.

Playwright's production now through May 1 'Labor Day' premieres

By Dian Strutz
Prospectus staff writer

It was a fun night at the theatre.

"Cookies" and "Labor Day" were presented at the Parkland College Theatre Annex as part of the 5th Annual Original Playwright's Production.

"Cookies," a one-act curtain raiser, traced a couple's relationship from their first meeting over a box of mint milano cookies to their eventual breakup as they argued over who ate all the cookies in the cupboard. Along the way, there were discussions about girl scout cookies and mystic mint cookies, and cookie crumbs in the bedroom.

Credit playwright David Voda for the clever way he improved on the familiar boy-meets-girl theme. Credit also Alicialynne Addison and Curt Waltermire with appealing and energetic performances as the star-crossed, cookie-loving couple.

The feature play, "Labor Day," used humor to mask the underlying pain and bitterness of the main characters as they re-united in a tense, conflict-filled family reunion. Written by Parkland English instructor James McGowan, "Labor Day" explored the many layers of a strained relationship between a father and his two sons.

The prologue of the play, in an innovative and imaginative scene, introduced four of the main characters in a comic, yet foreshadowing way. Robert Picklesimer, who played M.L. the bitter father, was wonderful as he brooded and stormed, screaming at his wife, Mavis, as the audience laughed at his caustic asides.

Mavis, who remained off-stage throughout the play, was especially irritating as she complained about M.L.'s family, the accommodations, and the state of Illinois. The audience laughed as she told M.L. that she couldn't believe that she had sunk so low that she was actually spending Labor Day in Illinois—Illinois of all places. Rosanne L. Brighton was terrific, using only her voice to play Mavis with a bright, whining intensity.

Curt Waltermire played the oldest son, Eugene, and James E. Coates played Joey K., Eugene's half-brother and ex-convict. Through a series of coincidences, all the characters show up at Eugene's house on Labor Day weekend and simmering resentments boil to the surface. Lisa Galyen, as Eugene's wife Evelyn, was wonderful as the peace-keeper and the witty, gentle soul who tried unsuccessfully to heal old wounds and build new bridges.

Credit James Coates with bringing a special, wry twist to his portrayal of Joey K. and with directing "Labor Day." Waltermire was excellent as the oldest son who just wants a peaceful family reunion.

Mark Friedman, the student technical director, and the stage crew deserve a round of applause for the many set changes that the plays required.

Ben Holt, baritone

Joyous Singing

The 1982 Joy of Singing Competition is just one of the many contests from which baritone Ben Holt has emerged the winner. In 1983 it was the Young Concert Artists International Auditions and in 1984 the Walker Fund Recital Prize of Young Concert Artists. In 1985-86 Holt made his Metropolitan Opera debut as Schuarnard in La Boheme, and last fall he debuted with New York City Opera in the title role of Anthony Davis' Malcolm X, a world premiere.

Recitals at major concert halls and frequent solo appearances with this country's symphony orchestras display Holt's impressive repertoire. His Krannert Center recital includes spirituals and other folk songs; lieder by Schubert and Brahms; Prologue to Poulenc's opera Les Mamelles de Tirésias; American spirituals; and songs from Cinco Canciones Populares Argentinas by Alberto Ginastera. He will be accompanied by pianist John Keene.

This performance is supported in part by the Solo Recitalist Program of the National Endowment for the Arts and by the Illinois Arts Council.

Eating disorders are a growing problem

Congress has declared the week of April 24 through April 30 "National Eating Disorders Awareness Week."

Experts estimate that 1 out of every 100 women between the ages of 12 and 25 suffers from Anorexia Nervosa and that 1 out of every 7 women in that age group develops Bulimia. Nearly 10 percent of all patients who are referred to eating disorder clinics are men.

Eating disorders are a growing problem in this country. Some of the symptoms of Anorexia Nervosa are extreme weight loss, a very high level of physical activity (running and ballet are especially popular) and the development of ritualistic eating and behavior patterns. The rituals center around food preparation, the type and amount. The person who has Anorexia Nervosa believes that she is "fat" even after a 25 percent weight loss. Menstrual irregularities may follow the loss of weight.

Serious complications can occur such as heart problems, electrolyte imbalance and severe tooth erosion. Severe weight loss can be life threatening and may require hospitalization and intravenous feedings.

Bulimia is a disorder which involves eating enormous amounts of food (binge eating) and purging (inducing vomiting) shortly after eating. Binging and purging may occur several times a day or as infrequently as once a month. The person's daily activities may be affected by the compulsion to binge and purge in private. People with Bulimia are usually in the normal weight range but they fear obesity.

Some of the complications of Bulimia include damage to tooth enamel, erosion of the esophagus and swelling of the parotid glands (in front of the ear).

Symptoms of Anorexia and Bulimia may occur in the same individual. The actual number of people with the disease is unknown because people are often ashamed of the behavior.

More information is available at the Eating Disorders Information Table near Hardees, Wednesday, April 27, Health Services X202 or the Counseling Center, X248.

Jazz, percussion, and band concerts

Parkland offers musical series

Parkland College Cultural Center will offer special series tickets for five spring concerts, to be held May 2, 7, 8, 12, and 15. The concerts will feature Parkland musical groups along with well-known guest artists.

Series ticket prices are $10 for standard admission and $5 for students, senior citizens, and Parkland faculty and staff. All concerts will be held in the new Parkland College Theatre. For more information about the series, contact the theatre ticket office, 351-1076.

The first concert, featuring the Parkland Community Orchestra, will be held Sunday, May 1, at 7 p.m. Jeff Dodge will conduct the orchestra, which draws its talented performers from Parkland as well as from the community. The performance includes the works of Copland, Haydn, Hovanes, Prokofiev, and Bach. Guest artists will be Ray Sasaki, trumpet, and Alicia Cordova, English horn.

Parkland's Big Jazz Band will perform on Saturday, May 7, at 8 p.m. Tim Schirmer is conductor for the band, which will recreate exciting sounds from the Glenn Miller and Count Basie era and will highlight today's contemporary sounds of Toshiko Akiyoshi and Champaign's own Morgan Powell. As special guest artist, Lawrence Craig, vocalist, will perform in the tradition of Joe Williams and Frank Sinatra.

Sunday, May 8, at 2 p.m., the Parkland Percussion Ensemble, under the direction of Keith Ayers, will give a dynamic and varied performance. Tunes from the melodic to the mundane and from the hypnotic to the humorous will be featured. Guest artists will be the University of Illinois Steel Drum Band with its unique brand of calypso music as well as special selections for Mother's Day.

The Parkland Community Band, with conductor Erwin J. Hoffman, will give its concert on Thursday, May 12, at 8 p.m. Featured works include those of Gillis, Hamlisch, Brubeck, and Saint-Saens. During this evening of varied entertainment, special guest artist William Warfield will narrate Aaron Copland's "A Lincoln Portrait," a performance for which he won a 1984 Grammy Award with the Eastman Philharmonic Orchestra. Warfield, internationally known for his distinguished career and for his performances in "Showboat" and "Porgy and Bess," has been a professor of music at the University of Illinois since 1975.

Also at the May 12 concert, Mark Hindsley, retired University of Illinois band director, will serve as guest director for several arrangements, including "Finlandia," and Sousa marches "Manhattan Beach" and "El Capitan." Guest artist Mark York will perform a new work, "Concertante for Piano and Band" by Warren Barker. York is director of the Bement High School and Community Bands and serves as associate conductor of the Parkland Community Band.

The final concert of the series will be Sunday, May 15, at 2 p.m. The Parkland Pops, a special chorus under the direction of Sandra Chabot, will sing a variety of inspirational and humorous numbers. Joining the chorus will be the State Street Strutters, with conductor Erwin J. Hoffman, in a performance highlighting the Dixieland sound.

Seating for the concerts is on a nonreserved basis. Theatre doors will open one half-hour prior to each performance. If available, $2 and $1 individual tickets also will be sold at the door two hours prior to each performance.

String Quartet returns to C-U

The Tokyo String Quartet returns to the Krannert Center for the Performing Arts, University of Illinois, at Urbana-Champaign, after a highly successful appearance two years ago. The Quartet will perform on Saturday, May 7, at 8 p.m. in the Foellinger Great Hall.

Formed in 1969 at The Juilliard School of Music, the Tokyo String Quartet now performs in music capitals around the globe. It regularly performs in New York on Lincoln Center's "Great Performers" series and Mostly Mozart Festival, Carnegie Hall's "Great Quartets" series, the 92nd Street Y's "Distinguished Artists" series, and at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The Quartet appears annually at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. and at Yale and American Universities, where the members are artists-in-residence.

Violinists Peter Oundjian and Kikuei Ikeda, violist Kazuhide

Isomura, and cellist Sadao Harada perform on four matched Amati instruments, which are on loan from the Corcoran Gallery of Art. The instruments were created by the Italian luthier, Nicolo Amati, between 1656 and 1677.

The Krannert Center program features three works: Quartet in D Minor, K. 421 by Mozart, one of his well-known "Haydn" quartets; Quartet in E-flat Major, Op. 127 by Beethoven; and Quartet in G Minor, Op. 10 by Debussy, his only work in this form.

The concert will be preceded by an informal discussion with violinist Peter Schaffer, a member of the University of Illinois School of Music faculty, who frequently performs chamber music. The discussion will take place in the Krannert Room at 7 p.m. and is open to the public and free of charge.

Standard priced tickets for the concert by the Tokyo String Quartet are $12, 11, 10; student and senior citizen tickets are $11, 10, 9. Tickets are available at the Krannert Center Ticket Office, 500 S. Goodwin Ave., Urbana. Ticket reservations and credit card sales may be made by calling 333-6280.

'Storyshop': discovering writing is fun

Sixty four children (grades 2-5) representing elementary schools in Parkland's District 505 were honored for writing "stories of merit" last Saturday, April 23, in the Parkland College Theatre.

Guest author, Dr. Jack Stokes, from Belleville Area Community College, and students from Belleville CC directed a performance of his play, "Wiley and the Hairy Man."

The Story Shop, first held in 1976, is the result of efforts to provide creative and challenging opportunities for grade school children.

More than 400 children participated in Parkland's first Story Shop, and since then, the number of participating children has tripled. In order to continue giving each child personal feedback on his or her story, the program now alternates with Champaign County children submitting entries one year and those in the 11 other counties within Parkland's district participating the following year.

The 14th annual Story shop was held April 23 and 24. Writers were selected from over 1,200 entries submitted by children in grades 2-5 from schools in Champaign County. As usual, Parkland English instructors read and evaluated each story and wrote personal notes to each participant.

Designed to encourage and reward children's creative writing, Story Shop has been successful because of the program's personal touch, especially the notes of encouragement. Mary Ann Erwin, who joined Nancy Robb in serving as 1988 Story Shop co-director, describes Story Shop as one of Parkland's best community service projects. "Story Shop creates personal relationships between Parkland and more than 1,000 families each year," says Erwin.

Softball team prepares for tourney

By Lee Messinger
Prospectus Sportswriter

Cobra Coach Dorothy Well's softball team is currently 14-5 and the number two ranked team in hitting in the NCJAA. The women Cobras are heading into the Sectional Tournament which will be held at Parkland's softball diamond, just northeast of the tennis courts, April 29 and 30.

Parkland was seeded number one in the double elimination tournament and received a bye for the first round. The team's first game will April 29 at 3 p.m. against the Lincoln Trail-Olney winner. There were only three teams in the sectional because Lakeland Community College will not compete.

Coach Wells singled out Lincoln Trail as the team to beat but also said anyone the Cobras will play is dangerous at tournament time.

Another strength for the Cobras has been the pitching of Shani Connelly and Kelly Throneburg. Connelly has a 7-3 record with a 3.28 ERA in 64 innings pitched with 37 strikeouts. Throneburg has a 7-2 record with a 3.98 ERA in 58 innings pitched with 21 strikeouts.

Parkland, second in the nation in hitting with a .420 team batting average, has three players hitting over .500. Marcie Meyer leads nation in hitting with a .618 batting average, Beth Henry is hitting .517, and Kelly Throneburg is the 10th leading hitter in the nation with a .510 batting average.

Wells stressed that there are no star egos on this team and that everyone is an important part of the team. "They all work well together," Wells says.

Cobra baseball team improves record

By Lee Messinger
Prospectus Sports Writer

Coach Tom Dedin's Baseball Team, after a great start of 8-2, ran into a buzz saw during their spring break southern trip. They started with 0-8 and came home with an 8-10 record.

The week after returning home, the Cobras were finding victories still hard to come by; going 1-7 and 9-17 overall. A key injury to third baseman Roy Vivian left the Cobras vulnerable at the third base position. Timely errors at crucial moments plagued Dedin's squad.

In the past week, the Cobras' situation began to turn around. They have won 7 of their last 9 games, improving their overall record to 16-20.

Brad Bogetto (.343), Carry Frye (.357), and Andy Cotner (.385) have been hitting the ball extremely well. Homerun hitting has come from Andy Cotner (4), Dave Allen (4), Rick Anderson (4), Kevin Roberson (4), and Jerome Nelson (4).

The Cobras have been getting some good innings from Don Aos (37.3 innings, 4.34 ERA), Brad Begatto (44.3 innings, 6.29 ERA), and Andy Cotner (41.3 innings, 6.31 ERA).

Tennis team has 18-1 record, bright future

By Lee Messinger
Prospectus staff writer

Assistant Tennis Coach Paul Neely smiles a lot these days.

The Cobra tennis team has an 18-1 record and have chalked up 13 victories in a row. Neely says the overall depth of the team is the key to their successful season.

Parkland will soon be entering the regional tournament May 6 and 7 at Lewis and Clark College in Godfrey, Ill. Lewis and Clark is the only team that has defeated Parkland this season. Lakeland and Parkland are considered the favorites to win two national berths at stake in the tournament.

In the tournament the number one singles team and the number one doubles team will advance to the national tournament.
