Glossary

2006 Overview

Issuance exceeded our expectations in almost all sectors especially in US RMBS,

2006 Global Unanticipated Growth

Increased issuance of US Cashflow CDOs backed by RMBS and ABS

 Higher than expected RMBS issuance, especially in the Home Equity sector, with a shift towards transactions subject to higher fees

Projected Issuance***

2006 Moody's and Street Projections vs. 2006 Actual Issuance

2007 Moody's and Street Projections

		2007 Pro
_		Moody's Street
	RMBS	-8%	-9%

2007 Assumptions

Modest decline in RMBS issuance

Public Finance, Global Structured Finance and Investor Services

2007 Contribution Drivers

Decline in RMBS issuance

Opportunities for 2007 - Upside

Continued product development in the mortgage market including new loan types, covered bonds by US companies, and synthetic RMBS transactions

Challenges for 2007 - Downside

 Greater than expected decline in RMBS issuance due to expansion of GSE activity, declining home values which may limit refinancing activity, and issuer consolidation

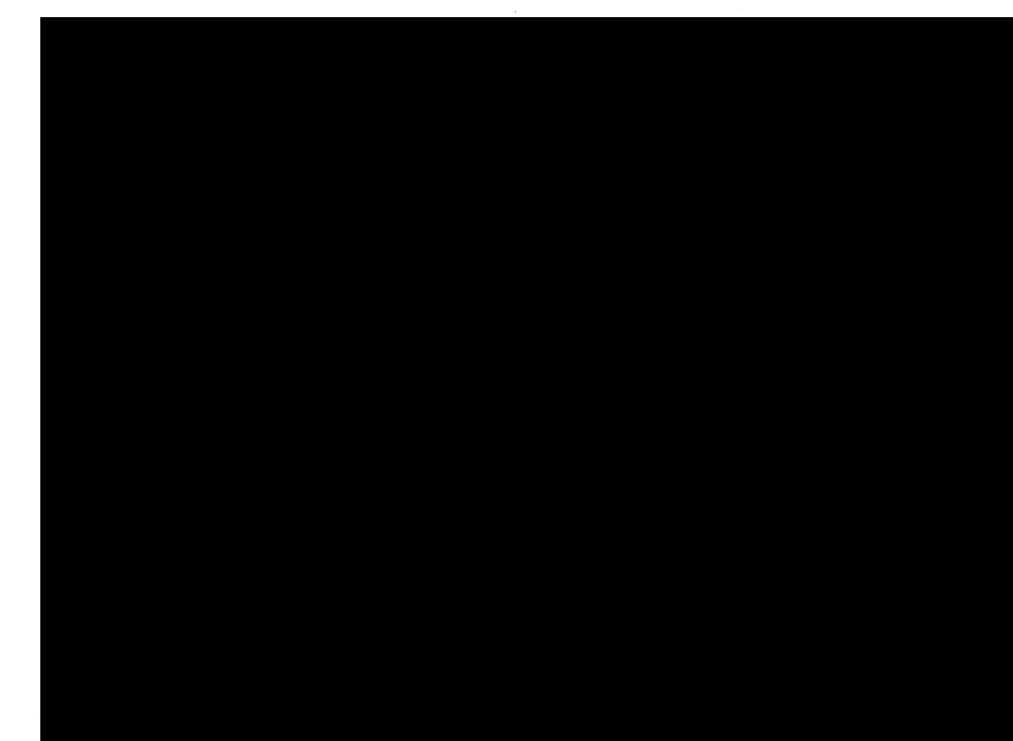

- Credit stress or greater than anticipated issuance decline in US RMBS or US corporate loan sectors leads to decreased US CDO issuance or greater issuance of synthetic transactions
- Higher than expected rating transition in Home Equity and RMBS

CONFIDENTIAL & PROPRIETARY

CDO Issuance Volumes for 2006 Continued to be Strong both in the US and Globally

 Strong historical performance by CLOs and record issuance of RMBS and Home Equity into Resecuritization CDOs were the main drivers of the growth in these two leading CDO sectors
