

This presentation reports the responses of teachers from the North American Division, Australia and the Solomon Islands to questions which explore their understanding of the mission of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Their responses show some interesting variations in emphasis and highlight areas for further education.