

This presentation provides results from a focus group study of pastors in North America. The data come from five focus groups with pastors about their stress reduction strategies and the barriers they encountered as they worked to reduce and cope with stressors. We conclude with intervention suggestions based on these findings.