French Quarter crime: Colorful new NCIS spinoff hitting all the right notes

By Meagan Sylvester
TV Media

If Paris, as author Ernest Hemingway said, is a moveable city, then New Orleans has always been a floating one. As an urban center founded by the French, ruled by the Spanish and inhabited by the Cajuns, NOLA is unlike any other metropolitan in the United States.

The city's stark cultural contrast — embodied in its colonial architecture, southern drawl and cobblestone streets — shows not just in popular culture, but also in the way in which film and television producers continue to look to The Big Easy as a beacon of storytelling and old world charm.

Enter CBS's newest spinoff of the original "NCIS" drama, set in the nation's epicenter for jazz, smoked bourbon, Mardi Gras and French Quarter crime. Be sure to catch an all-new episode of "NCIS: New Orleans" when it airs Tuesday, Feb. 10, on CBS.

While the freshman drama only came to life in 2014 following the 11-year success of its parent program, the Crescent City spinoff has hit the ground running, with a second season already in the works and the numbers to back up such a quick renewal.

In fact, "NCIS: New Orleans" is the season's most-watched new series and broadcast television's No. 2 drama ("NCIS" is No. 1), averaging 18.1 million viewers. While the program's initial success could be attributed to its colorful location on the Gulf coast, the cast also has a familiar face on set to help boost the program's already stellar ratings.

Mark Harmon ("Chicago Hope," "Freaky Friday," 2003), widely known for his role as special agent Leroy Jethro Gibbs in the original "NCIS," is one of the leading executive producers on the new show, which is a little bit different from his original plan, he said during an interview with the "Sydney Morning Herald" in September of last year.

"It's funny to me because when I first came to 'NCIS,' I came as an actor/director. That was the original plan, but I haven't directed any [episodes]," Harmon said during the "Herald's" lengthy Q&A session. "To me, it's about filling your quiver with more arrows than you had yesterday, and the idea of learning from that. That's why I still enjoy so much what I do."

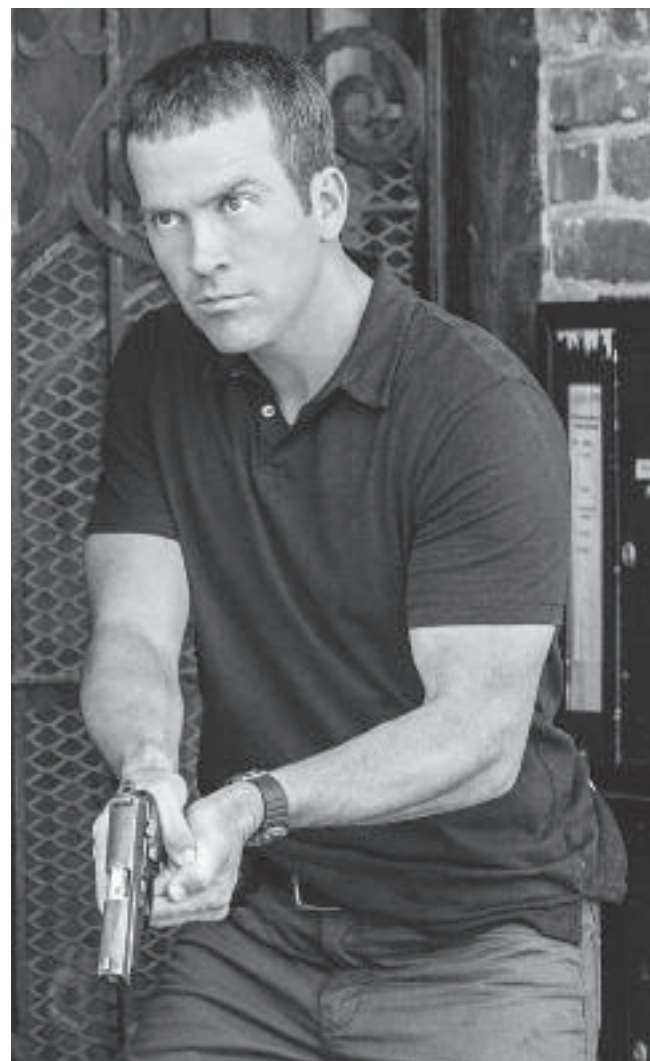

But after following the Naval Criminal Investigative Services in Washington, D.C., and Los Angeles for more than a decade, how are producers shaking it up to keep audiences from reaching for the remote every week?

Harmon says the trick thus far has been the eccentric flavor of the city itself, noting that New Orleans is as much a character as its top agents and the crimes that keep them on their toes.

"I think what makes it unusual is what makes it potentially work. ... You have New Orleans the city, right in the middle, which has its own environment for hundreds of years — its own sound, its own feel, certainly its own smell and taste, all that," Harmon continued during the same interview. "So our job, in talking about all of this, was saying this is potentially a hugely rich opportunity to footprint a show and do something a little bit different."

But different doesn't always prove easy, according to the program's casting director, Meagan Lewis. The people of New Orleans have an accent like no other, often varying between a southern drawl and what's known as a "port city" accent, much like Boston, Massachusetts, or Brooklyn, New York.

"For the most part, we don't sound like Paula Deen. You can have a Yat accent. You can sound more like you're from Brooklyn than you would the South," she said during a behind-the-scenes interview with WNCN 9 News 5 in September. "With it being a port city, that's how most port cities accents have evolved, whether you are in Baltimore, New Orleans, Brooklyn. They all sort of have that ring to it."

And critics agree across the board that the southern flavor of the program, location and cast — starring Missouri-born actor Scott Bakula ("Star Trek: Enterprise," "Quantum Leap") as special agent Dwayne Pride — hits all the right marks, including Brian Lowry of "Variety," who says Bakula "[provides] good company and justice served up faster than street vendor gumbo."

Bakula, who plays a native New Orleanian alongside special agents Christopher LaSalle (Lucas Black, "American Gothic," "The Fast and the Furious: Tokyo Drift," 2006) and Meredith Brody (Zoe McLellan, "JAG," "Dirty Sexy Money"), says starring in a spinoff is a first for him, but he's ultimately up for the challenge.

"You're being given an audience, so that's the good news," Bakula said during the interview with News 5. "The challenge is you have to earn that audience" to essentially keep them coming back, and that has proved successful with what the show has accomplished in its first season.

Whether you're a Mardi Gras newbie or a Bourbon Street regular, "NCIS: New Orleans" has done all the right things so far in its premiere season. From perfectly illustrating the colorful culture of New Orleans to raking in some of the best viewer numbers this season, the show has been a home run for CBS. Be sure to catch an all-new episode of "NCIS: New Orleans" when it airs Tuesday, Feb. 10, on the eye network.

Highlights

this week

Sunday

The Jinx: The Life and Deaths of Robert Durst

HBO 7:00 p.m.

Filmmaker Andrew Jarecki takes a look at the life of Robert Durst, a member of New York's billionaire real estate family. Over the past 30 years, Durst has been accused of three murders, but he's never been convicted.

The Walking Dead

AMC 8:00 p.m.

Rick Grimes (Andrew Lincoln) and the other survivors return in the midseason premiere of this zombie-infested drama. The post-apocalyptic horror show is based on the popular comic book series by Robert Kirkman, Tony Moore, and Charlie Adlard.

Better Call Saul

AMC 9:00 p.m.

Small-time lawyer Jimmy McGill (Bob Odenkirk) searches for his destiny in the premiere of this new series featuring characters from AMC's critically acclaimed "Breaking Bad." Set years before the events of "Bad," the drama also stars Jonathan Banks.

Monday

Gotham

32 7:00 p.m.

When a biology teacher (Julian Sands) harvests the glands of his murder victims, Gordon (Ben McKenzie) and Bullock (Donal Logue) set out to stop him. Elsewhere, Fish Mooney (Jada Pinkett Smith) schemes to gain power.

The Kids Baking Championship

FOOD 7:00 p.m.

The young bakers are given a unique dessert challenge in this new episode. They're asked to create dessert imposters -- sweet treats that look like savoury items. Their sweets will have to resemble tacos and bagels.

Jane the Virgin

9 8:00 p.m.

Jane (Gina Rodriguez), who's excited to find out the sex of the baby, discovers that she may miss her graduation because of a medical issue. Elsewhere, Xo (Andrea Navedo) suspects something is amiss with her mother, Alba (Ivonne Coll).

Tuesday

NCIS: New Orleans

2 3 8:00 p.m.

A team of specialists in New Orleans investigate criminal cases involving military personnel in this drama starring Scott Bakula as Special Agent Dwayne Pride. Together, they uncover the dark side of a city that's a magnet for military personnel on leave.

Amish Mafia

disc 8:00 p.m.

In this season premiere, Levi solidifies his control over the Lancaster County Amish. Meanwhile, Jolin and Alvin do their best to thwart outside threats and Merlin plans to get revenge on Wayne. This series follows an Amish community.

The Mindy Project

32 8:30 p.m.

Just as Mindy (Mindy Kaling) prepares to tell Danny (Chris Messina) some important news, his father (guest star Dan Hedaya) and half-sister (guest star Madison Moellers) unexpectedly show up. Later, everyone is invited to a family dinner.

Cougar Town

TBS 9:30 p.m.

Jules (Courteney Cox) helps Andy (Ian Gomez) prepare for upcoming job interviews while Ellie (Christa Miller) seeks refuge at Bobby's (Brian Van Holt). However, she soon discovers that Grayson (Josh Hopkins) has beaten her to the punch.

Wednesday

My Strange Addiction

TLC 6:00 p.m.

This Top 10 edition takes a look at some of the most shocking addictions ever featured. In this fascinating series, people talk about the unusual things they're obsessed with, from eating bricks to consulting psychics.

The Goldbergs

7 7:30 p.m.

Beverly (Wendi McLendon-Covey) can't seem to accept that her little boy has such deep feelings when Adam (Sean Giambrone) passes on a family ring. Meanwhile, Barry (Troy Gentile) is torn between his love for his girl and his love for his football team.

Empire

32 8:00 p.m.

Raven-Symoné guest stars as a mystery woman from the family's past who shows up with a big surprise. Jamal's (Jussie Smollett) rise to fame appears to be causing problems in his relationships, and Vernon (Malik Yoba) is caught in a sticky situation.

Suits

USA 9:00 p.m.

Harvey (Gabriel Macht) and Louis (Rick Hoffman) have deep ties to their latest client in this new episode. A flashback reveals when Louis and Harvey became so competitive, and Mike (Patrick J. Adams) learns there are limits to his intelligence.

Thursday

The Slap

5 7:00 p.m.

When a man's hotheaded cousin slaps a misbehaving child at a party, the incident sets off a chain of events that will uncover long-buried secrets. Based on the Christos Tsiolkas book, this miniseries stars Peter Sarsgaard and Thandie Newton.

Backstrom

32 8:00 p.m.

When a prominent member of Portland's LGBT's community -- a drag queen known as Jenna Rose -- is murdered, Backstrom (Rainn Wilson) claims the murder was a hate crime. Sarah Chalke guest stars as Amy Gazanian, Backstrom's former fiancé.

How to Get Away With Murder

7 9:00 p.m.

Everything changes for Prof. Annalise (Viola Davis) and her students after a shocking discovery in Sam's case (Tom Verica). Students become involved in a murder plot that rocks their entire university in this acclaimed drama.

Friday

Be My Valentine

HALL 3:00 p.m.

William Baldwin stars as a widower who tries to teach his son (Christian Martyn) about romance in this original film. While showing his teen the ropes on dating, however, he discovers he's got a lot to learn about love himself. Natalie Brown also stars.

King of the Nerds

TBS 8:00 p.m.

The nerds are being picked off one by one and the secret alliance must consider the future. When Moby makes a special appearance as a guest judge, one of the nerds decides to pick a fight with him. Lisa Loeb and Travis Moy also guest star.

Alaskan Bush People

disc 9:00 p.m.

The Brown family tries to beef up their defences after they discover some rogue bears near their home site in this new episode. When Billy becomes seriously ill, he's forced to seek medical attention and the kids are left to fend for themselves.

Saturday

The Pioneer Woman

FOOD 9:00 a.m.

Ree whips up a well-deserved breakfast for her family while they're busy shipping cattle. The former city girl prepares a pancake bar with oven fried bacon, sweet strawberries, vanilla bean caramel sauce and more. She also gets a head start on dinner.

Back to School Mom

LIFE 7:00 p.m.

After spending years traveling the world, the free-spirited Mary returns to college at age 41 to finish her degree in this all-new Lifetime movie. She soon befriends her peer tutor, only to find out he is her son she put up for adoption 20 years earlier.

MythBusters

disc 8:00 p.m.

The MythBusters team become the fast and the curious as they test two tall tales of daredevil driving in this new episode. Special effects experts Jamie Hyneman and Adam Savage use science and technology to test urban legends in this series.

Sunday

The 57th Annual Grammy Awards

2 3 7:00 p.m.

Country rocker Eric Church takes the stage at Staples Center in Los Angeles to perform at The 57th Annual Grammy Awards, airing Sunday, Feb. 8, on CBS. Other performers include current pop darling Ariana Grande, English singer-songwriter Ed Sheeran, rock 'n' roll veterans AC/DC and music industry legend Madonna.

Q: Have the writers on TNT's "Major Crimes" decided to make Rusty's character bisexual? He was dating a female fellow classmate in a few episodes, and later Rusty was talking with his adoptive mom, Capt. Sharon Raydor, about his asking out an older man. Have I missed the memo?

A: The idea all along, according to series creator James Duff, was to give Rusty a very long coming-out process, but as gay, not bisexual.

The girlfriend plot written into season 2 was designed to show Rusty's confusion and discomfort with his sexuality, Duff told entertainment website TheBacklot.com.

In an episode this past summer, Rusty had a fight with his birth mother in which she blamed her many problems on him and his sexuality. Duff said that fight in particular had been planned since the very beginning of the show, which proves how far back the idea of Rusty's homosexuality goes.

It's a storyline that is very personal for Duff, who is also gay. "Because the part is sort of based on me, I was always going to do that," he told TheBacklot.com.

It's also one of the few elements of the show that is "serialized" — that is, that continues from week to week, as compared to the actual cases, which are generally resolved at the end of each episode.

Duff said that helping the teen through his various problems has served to "humanize" the lead character, Capt. Sharon Raydor (played by Mary McDonnell).

Q: Is Bailiff Douglas McIntosh from "The People's Court" actually in law enforcement or anything? On the show he acts more like a director.

A: For obvious reasons, the TV court shows try to avoid owning up to the parts of their productions that are fabricated for television. So while Douglas McIntosh's duties on "The People's Court" are quite different than they would be for a bailiff in a normal, un-filmed court of law, he's still just credited as a "court officer" (which is a real title).

That said, Judge Marilyn Milian admitted in an interview with a fan (posted on YouTube) that McIntosh got his job through an audition, like an actor would, rather than through a job interview, like a normal courtroom staffer.

However, she said that she, too, got the job through an audition, and she's an actual judge. It stands to reason that the producers would want to make sure that their on-screen personalities can perform well on screen.

McIntosh had no screen experience prior to joining "The People's Court," but he's gotten some more since. His official biography on the show's website says that, "McIntosh's popularity with 'The People's Court' audience has led to recurring roles as police officers on the acclaimed daytime dramas 'One Life to Live' and 'All My Children.'"

It's possible, then, that the show chose McIntosh the same way it chose Milian: from a pool of actual court staff, but selecting for people who can be charming and comfortable on camera.

It also helps that, as Milian says in the interview, McIntosh is "mighty fine."

A million dollar review: Britain's famous food critic has crossed the Atlantic

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

He's been called Britain's most powerful food critic. His reviews for the London-based "The Times" can make or break a restaurant's reputation, and a positive word from him is said to be worth a million dollars.

That's one heck of a lot of power for a food critic to have, and now this man with the power to make or break a restaurant has headed across the pond to America.

Giles Coren's "Million Dollar Critic" premiered on BBC

America on Jan. 22 and has been airing on Thursday nights ever since. He's been traveling across North America with researcher and food culture enthusiast Julia Pileggi to check out its restaurant scene, stopping in a different city in each episode to try out meals from five restaurants worthy of his golden palate.

He's always frank with his reviews of what's gone into his mouth, and at each stop he'll name a winning restaurant — giving it one of his famous "million dollar reviews."

For the Feb. 12 episode, Coren and Pileggi swing by St. John's, Newfoundland, in frigid Canada. The city's economy has been booming, leading to an exploding culinary scene, but with Gordon on "The Rock," its judgment day has come.

Newfoundland has its own distinct culinary heritage, and the five restaurants pull out all the stops to please this harsh critic. His stops include Raymond's, a restaurant that has been named one of Canada's best, but Coren tests that distinction with demands for a near-impossible tasting menu from the staff.

Coren's no stranger to the spotlight. Besides being a famous restaurant critic, he's also written a novel ("Winkler"), penned two works of non-fiction and contributed articles to a number of magazines.

"Million Dollar Critic" isn't his first time gracing the TV screen, either. He appeared alongside celebrity chef Gordon Ramsay in "The F Word" and has appeared in a number of TV specials in the U.K.

So despite not being so well known on this side of the pond, Coren's the real deal. The first season of "Million Dollar Critic" airs its next episode Thursday, Feb. 12, on BBC America.

AMC phones up highly anticipated new series 'Better Call Saul!'

By Cassie Dresch
TV Media

"Breaking Bad" is widely considered one of the greatest TV shows of all time. By the end of the five-season series, it had been entered into the 2014 Guinness World Records book as the highest-rated TV series ever and had raked in 16 Emmys, two Golden Globes, two Peabody Awards and a People's Choice Award.

It was a sad day for diehard "Bad" fans who had invested so much into the high school chemistry teacher and his former student from Albuquerque, New Mexico, when the last episode wrapped.

Now, however, there's a new reason for viewers to be excited — and all it takes is one phone call to Saul. From "Breaking Bad" creator Vince Gilligan and writer Peter Gould, the much-anticipated dramedy "Better Call Saul!" premieres with two new episodes on back-to-back nights — Sunday, Feb. 8, and Monday, Feb. 9, on AMC, — before sliding into its regular Monday timeslot the following week.

Bob Odenkirk ("Saturday Night Live," "Mr. Show with Bob and David") stars as the slick, shady criminal lawyer Saul Goodman in this prequel, set six years before "Breaking Bad," when Saul is known by his real name — Jimmy McGill. "Better Call Saul!" focuses on Jimmy's growth and development into the shifty litigator "Bad" fans quickly fell in love with, showcasing the journey of how Saul Goodman came to be.

"It is the story of a character coming to an understanding of himself, who is searching for his place in the world," Odenkirk told "Variety" in January. "He's trying to be an ethical guy and live by traditional standards of behavior. But he finds himself good at breaking that code and crossing that line, and he's not sure how to use it. He doesn't feel much acceptance in the world he's in, which is a traditional legal world of an old firm that he finds himself in the universe of. So he doesn't know his place."

Playing Jimmy was a task and a half for Odenkirk, considering Jimmy's practically a different character in "Better Call Saul!" "I had to rethink him," Odenkirk said at the Television Critics Association winter media tour last month. "He's a different guy, a far more dimensional character than Saul Goodman was on 'Breaking Bad.' He's got slippery ethics."

Part of that dimension comes from Gould (the mastermind behind Saul's character) and Gilligan. Initially written as a one-off character, people soon fell in love with Saul Goodman, and the writer and creator wasted no time in tossing out ideas on how to create a show around him.

"We just loved Bob and we loved Saul, and we loved writing words in Saul's mouth. We loved writing the crazy dialogue that Saul produces," Gilligan told the "Toronto Star" after the TCA panel. "It was really as simple as that. Then we said to ourselves: 'How do we build a show around this character?' And then we realized we had to go back and do a prequel to figure this out."

And so, Jimmy McGill was born (so to speak). The project was a long time coming — tense negotiations between Sony Pictures TV and AMC slowed the process down considerably — and now fans of Saul get to see his backstory unfold to the point when he first met chemistry-teacher-turned-drug-dealer extraordinaire Walter White (Bryan Cranston, "Malcolm in the Middle").

Fans of "Breaking Bad" who were hoping to see Mr. White and his apprentice Jesse Pinkman (Aaron Paul, "BoJack Horseman") in the first installment of "Better Call Saul!" unfortunately won't get their wish — at least not yet. Gilligan and Gould shot down the idea that the meth-making team will make an appearance in the premiere season at the TCA winter media tour, but they left the door open for them — and other original cast members — to crop up in the future.

"We want this to stand on its own. We don't want to mislead people in expecting something that's not going to happen. But having said that, everything else is on the table," Gould said.

"We're not saying it's never going to happen," Gilligan added. "I want to see them all eventually show up. The sky's the limit. But we don't want it to feel like a stunt when they show up. If it feels like that, then we in the writers room have done something horribly wrong."

That's not to say that "Breaking Bad" fans won't recognize at least one other face in the show. Jonathan Banks ("Wiseguy") reprises his role as Mike Ehrmantraut, the cool, calculated former cop who served as Saul's personal private investigator in "Bad." "Better Call Saul!" details the origin of the often combative and testy relationship between the lawyer and his fixer, with an early trailer for the series depicting the humorous initial interaction between the two.

Audiences also get the opportunity to meet plenty of new faces in this prequel, including Kim Wexler (Rhea Seehorn, "Whitney"), the go-to litigator at Hamlin, Hamlin & McGill; Chuck McGill (Michael McKean, "This Is Spinal Tap," 1984), Jimmy's older brother and name partner at Hamlin, Hamlin & McGill; and Howard Hamlin (Patrick Fabian, "General Hospital"), Chuck's ridiculously good-looking, charismatic law partner.

Fans of the critically acclaimed series "Breaking Bad" may be sad the show has seen its end, but now there's something new to be excited about — all it takes is one phone call to Saul. From Vince Gilligan and Peter Gould, the highly anticipated dramedy "Better Call Saul!" premieres with two new episodes on back-to-back nights Sunday, Feb. 8, and Monday, Feb. 9, on AMC, before sliding into its regular Monday timeslot the following week.

Nightcrawler

A small-time thief (Gyllenhaal) uses the proceeds of his crimes to buy a camcorder and radio scanner, which he uses to shoot the aftermath of a grizzly crime scene. When his footage is bought by the news director at a local TV station (Russo), he tumbles deeper into the city's criminal underbelly and draws the attention of police as he begins altering crime scenes to maximize his impact — and his profit. With the police growing increasingly suspicious of his activities at crime scenes and the news director's job dependent on his footage, he's soon walking a delicate tightrope in his unrelenting drive to film the next big crime.

Alexander and the Terrible, Horrible, No Good, Very Bad Day

Alexander Cooper (Oxenbould) is having a terrible day. With everyone in his family seemingly having a great one — and with all of them having no time for Alexander, despite his 12th birthday landing on the following day — he makes an early birthday wish that they experience the same frequent misfortunes that he does. Unfortunately for his family, the wish seems to come true and Alexander's birthday turns into a day of misfortune after misfortune for his unfortunate loved ones.
