A NOTE FROM THE EDITOR-IN-CHIEF:

In 2022, the Michigan Technology Law Review Editorial Board made a commitment to advocate for social justice. In our capacity as publishers of legal scholarship, we elected to create a special issue on Race, Technology, and the Law. Enclosed, we have published four pieces that demonstrate the importance of retaining a critical lens in cutting-edge scholarly work. Each article or note demonstrates the importance of nuanced understandings of race and ethnicity. Each author also illustrates the ever-present need to center inequalities as we examine how technology can and does change our world. The Volume 29 Editorial Board hopes to set an example for future cycles of publication, modeling that we all have the ability to elevate the kinds of conversations we think merit space in legal academia.

Sincerely,

Sandra H. Sulzer
