Orlando di Lasso
(c.1532-1594)

Women's Chorus

"Music, gift of the highest God"

T'anno mia vita

Claudio Monteverdi
(1567-1643)

"Love of my life, my own tender being, whisper words to me sweetly. A loving whisper, tenderly, softly spoken, transforms my heart masters my being. Oh, speak, whispering, delightful voice of sweetness, carry me to your love, ignite your fire within my bosom. Soul of my being, I live but for you."

Ave Maria

Josquin Despres
(c.1450-1521)

Elle a bien ce ris gracieux

Claudin de Sermisy
(c.1490-1542)

She has a smile, sweet and gracious, a body, heavenly in shape, a charm, greater still, and sweet speech, of gently grace. But that which surpasses all, so bright and gay, her eyes do sweetly say to all the world: "One most precious feeling dwells deep within my heart, secret to all but to my love."

Say, Gentle Nymphs

Thomas Morley
(1557-1602)

Wohlauf, Jung und Alt

Ludwig Senfl
(c.1490-c.1543)

Arise, arise indeed, young and old, rash and bold, God, Himself beckons to you! The day is dawning, the bird are singing, in every corner of the forest to their voices resound. You knights and squires, mark you well, how easily I do bring a stag at bay to kill! Arise, arise indeed, young and old, rash and bold, God, Himself beckons to you! Hark!, good companion, what do I hear there? Methinks, there is a stag quite near. Let us follow quickly!
Woof, Woof! Give chase, you fearless dogs be off!

A Little Pretty Bonny Lass
