An Arresting Development

Denny Elimon, director of the Parkland Physical Plant and Purchasing, was "arrested" Friday as part of the March of Dimes Jail and Bail fundraiser. Serving the "warrant" are March of Dimes volunteers Don and Elaine Rund, of Remax Realty. The judge "fined" Elimon $10,000 for impersonating a physical plant director. Elimon spent a couple of hours in "jail" until several volunteers donated 10 percent of his "fine" to the March of Dimes.

Counseling Center speaks out

Early-enrollment questions answered

Why wouldn't a Parkland student enroll for Spring semester classes before Spring?

Says counselor Kathy Frizzell, "This question continually mystifies us."

To find out the answer(s), Frizzell and company offered the following top 10 list, the results of an unofficial survey:

Top 10 Excuses Parkland Students Use to Avoid Advance Enrollment (And the Counseling Center's Responses):

"I didn't know we had Advance Enrollment."

YES WE DO — Nov. 14-23, for students enrolled this semester, have and show a valid student I.D., don't owe the College any money and who pick up an appointment card during the week of Nov. 7.

"I went up to Counseling at the time noted on my appointment card, but they said I didn't have an appointment."

The "appointment" is with the registration computer in the College Center. The day and time noted on the card is the EARLIEST time a student may enter the registration line, then any time/day thereafter. Please complete advising and course selection prior to this time.

"When I've tried to do it, they wouldn't let me 'cuz some form hadn't been approved by someone."

Degree-seeking students who have completed fewer than 30 credits at Parkland must have enrollment forms approved by their faculty advisors. CCS 097, 098 or 099 need form approval from a counselor or the Advising Center.

"I don't know who my faculty advisor is."

Two ways degree-seeking students may identify their faculty advisors: It's noted on most students' midterm grade reports, or check the Advisor List in the Advising or Counseling Center.

"I don't know how to find my faculty advisor, and I wouldn't know what to do with him or her if I did."

Faculty advisors are assigned based on programs of study. They have student records, and their office and phone numbers are listed in the Advising Center in A-184 or the Counseling Center in A-251.

"I know who my advisor is, and I know where the office is, but we have never been able to meet."

You've done your part. Now go to the Advising Center or the Counseling Center for walk-in assistance.

"My advisor can't answer all of my questions."

That may be true. If you are planning to transfer to a 4-year school, you should be working with a Parkland counselor or the Advising/Transfer Centers to stay informed of transfer requirements.

"I don't have the money for next semester's tuition now."

No payment is due till January 4, 1995.

"I'm not sure I'll be here next semester."

It doesn't cost anything to reserve your class schedule. If you drop classes prior to the start of next semester you'll incur no charges.

"I can do it later."

YES YOU CAN, but chances are great you won't get what you want when you want it. You'll have to stand in longer lines, and you'll get terribly frustrated when you could have had another day or two on the slopes or on the beach or on break. Why hassle yourself?

Students: Crime will get worse

by David Moutray
COM 105-001

Many Parkland students interviewed recently feel that crime will only get worse, and Gary Spear, crime analyst for the Champaign Police Department, agrees.

Spear reported that in 1993 there were 210 robberies, and as of Oct. 25 of this year, there have already been 226. He added that the peak robbery season — Thanksgiving to Christmas — is yet to come. He predicts a 25-30 percent increase in crime this year for Champaign.

Close to 80 percent of 246 students surveyed by students in two COM105 classes the week of Oct. 10 predicted that crime will increase in the next four years. More than 30 percent think the increase will be significant. As one student said, "Crime is rampant. It will never end unless drastic measures are taken."

Close to 40 percent of 248 respondents felt that economics play a dominant role in the increase, while a little over 20 percent blame drugs for the increase in crime. "As long as there are drugs," one male respondent said, "there will be crime."

Forty-two percent of 225 students said that teens join gangs because of a desire for admiration and protection from gang members. "I wish they could do something about gangs in the high schools. I don't like to go out at night not knowing what is going to happen," a female respondent said.

Have students taken any extra precautions in the last six months to protect themselves from crime? Close to half of those surveyed said they have. Twenty-four percent said that they had been scared of being attacked or physically harmed this year. "I carry mace and am careful where and when I go out. I'm scared when I'm out at night and I'm alone," said one female student.

Twenty-one percent of 232 students said they own guns, and 35 percent said there is a gun in their household.

An overwhelming majority — 89 percent — said the death penalty should be continued. One female respondent said, "I feel the death penalty should continue and be enforced even stronger (including rapists)!"

News Briefs

Environmental magic

Steve "Trash," a former New York street performer, will use magic as a tool to teach environmental responsibility during a show Nov. 17, at noon in the Gallery Lounge.

During the free show, he will perform such feats of magic as changing newspapers into $100 bills, making a tennis ball sing, transforming leaves into compost, magically recycling aluminum cans, and floating water in the air, all the while presenting useful information about the environment and the need to reduce, reuse, and recycle.

For more information: 217/351-9627

Talent show

A variety of musicians and vocalists will perform during the annual Parkland student talent show on Nov. 10, at 7 p.m. in the Parkland College Theater.

For more information: 217/351-9627

Planning seminar

Parkland College's Career Planning and Placement Center will offer an Introductory Career Planning Seminar on Nov. 15 at 6 p.m. Participants are asked to meet at the Welcome Center desk in the College Center.

The seminar is designed to assist prospective and current students and other community residents in developing a career plan. Participants will explore the career development process as well as their interests, abilities, values, and goals. Available career development resources will also be discussed.

There is no fee for the program.

For more information: 217/351-2536

Parkland pops

The Parkland Pops will sing about stars, rainbows, and other celestial phenomena during its fall concert, Stars, on Nov. 13, at 2 p.m. in the Parkland Theater.

The Parkland Pops, under the direction of Sandra Chabot, is a choir comprised of members whose special needs require a different choral approach. Enthusiasm, style, and spirit are the highlights of a Pops performance.

There is a fee for the concert.

For more information: 217/351-2366

Get a handle workshop

Take a look at the many aspects of your life during a Parkland College Lifestyle Series workshop called Balancing Your Life, on Nov. 17, from noon to 2 p.m. in the X200 Lounge.

The workshop will give participants ideas on how to develop their individual capabilities by exploring change, leadership potential, effective living, and stress management skills.

There is a fee for the workshop, and registration by Nov. 14 is recommended.

For more information: 217/351-2508

'America's got it made'

'English' professor visits Parkland

by Andrea Franklin
Prospectus Staff Writer

"America's got it made," said visiting Professor John Hammond.

Hammond, from South Cheshire College, England, has been a chemistry and physics professor at colleges of further education — "a step before universities" — for 23 years.

"I enjoy teaching more than administrating," said. "In England, only schools of higher education have their own administration departments. Professors at schools of further education have to administer as well as teach."

Hammond says he meets with his students three to four times a week and that his meetings alternate lectures, assignments, and labs. Labs where Hammond teaches school differ from those at Parkland in that they are separated from regular class time.

Hammond received his degrees from the University of Keele — ten years during which he worked in a pottery factory with technical chemistry.

"It's very rare in England for someone to do that," he explained.

Here, Hammond has enjoyed seeing the Indianapolis Raceway and the Sears Tower. He says he has also enjoyed everyone being so friendly and helpful. Hammond came to America for two weeks through the Consortium for International Studies in Illinois and Cheshire, which has been arranging teacher exchanges for four to five years, Hammond says.

John Hammond

"I like it very much. It's a lot different than England although we speak a similar language. People in Europe with their different languages are more alike than we are.

"Illinois, for instance, is much more spacious than England, and the towns are laid out differently. We also have 50 million people compared to Illinois's population of 9 million, so we don't have the space to build like Illinois."

Driving, however, has not been a problem: "It's just like Europe," said Hammond.

An only child, he grew up in Staffordshire, England, where he attended grammar school (known as "private schools"). He currently lives in Crewe, Cheshire, about 115 miles north of London.

He says he enjoys traveling, specifically going to Scotland and Wales frequently. He has also been to France, Spain, Switzerland, Germany, Belgium and the Canary Islands.

Although he enjoys travel immensely, Hammond's "main hobbies are cycling and motor sport." He says he used to be a track official at track meets, and he occasionally participated in various events until he started a family 20 years ago with his wife, Karen. She currently works two part-time jobs, one as a practiced manager in orthodontics and the other as a teacher at Cheshire College.

The Hammonds have two children, Tim, 18, who is attending the University of France, and Lucy, 14, who is in high school.

Tim Hammond has visited New York and Washington, D.C., and the senior Hammond says he is looking forward to "discussing" his trip with his son.

"He's been here twice now, and he loves to make a point of it," says Hammond. "Now, when we're watching T.V. or see a picture, I can finally say back to him, 'I've been there. I've seen it!'"

Hammond says he has already sent his son a postcard from Chicago.

"I've been there, too."

Hammond returned to England Oct. 31.

Crime

A little over 30 percent of 233 students felt that peer groups are best at guiding others away from crime. Teachers, educators, and coaches were a close second with 26 percent.

Some student comments on crime:

- "I think prevention not detention is the key."
- "Crime seems to stem from a lack of values, not economics, etc."
- "Crime will continue to be a problem until we get rid of the liberal politician who protect criminals' rights. Criminals should have no rights."

- "I think the judicial system should be harder on the serious offenders, not give them a hotel to stay in."

- "I feel, in the future, there will be no law enforcement. The law will be in the hands of the people."

- "Punishment should equal the crime committed. If you steal something, your hands get cut off. If you kill someone, your life should be sacrificed. No one is learning anything by serving their jail terms and being put back out on the streets."

- "Legalize and regulate all victimless crime and the crime rate will fall so sharply that prisons will have to close for lack of business."

- "I have no thoughts as to how to solve this problem. I just hope that it is what somewhat solved so that my grandchildren and their children can live in a peaceful environment."

Parkland Profiles

Little connects with students

by Matthew A. Richards
Prospectus Staff Writer

Jennifer Little is a part-time instructor of English 099, English 101, and LAS 189 (Introduction to Liberal Arts and Sciences) at Parkland College.

Born and reared in Champaign (her father was a local judge), Little obtained a Bachelor of Arts from Augustana College in Rock Island and a Master of Arts degree in English from the University of Kentucky where she was a teacher's assistant.

She also taught briefly at the University of Iowa before returning to Champaign to teach at Parkland 1991.

Little enjoys teaching. "It gives me the opportunity to meet lots of different kinds of students and to connect with them."

Little does a lot of writing in her spare time and continues research for a series of articles on pedagogy, or the "spirit" of teaching. She wants to explore how she and others as teachers relate to their students.

Next to writing and teaching, Little loves music — everything from soprano opera to Bob Mould and Concrete Blond. She also enjoys reading and cycling in her spare time.

As an instructor, Little likes to surprise students and break down the barrier that can divide the teacher at the front of the room from the students. "I'm real laid-back because I think it facilitates learning. I think I see myself as more of a 'facilitator' (than an instructor)."

Jennifer Little

She does not want to be respected by her students because she is "the instructor," but because she encourages the students to enjoy learning, enjoy her class, and think for themselves.

"There is really no reason for it

(the gap between student and teacher). The respect that I get and like to give students in the classroom are things that should be there. You really have to connect with students."

Little encourages students to take a broad overview of classes in the Humanities and Liberal Arts. "For example if you are in business, take some philosophy or religion. That kind of background gives you an ability to think and be compassionate that some of the other classes might not. It gives you a context for what it is you're doing."

Little's office is in C-227, and she can be reached by phone at 351-2434.

Morgan has diverse roles

by Matthew A. Richards
Prospectus Staff Writer

Bruce Morgan has no official title but prefers to be known as an instructor of English and Humanities. He teaches levels of composition and has taught several different literature courses: American Literature, Introduction to Short Fiction, and Introduction to the Novel). He also teaches a course he helped develop, Humanities 106, a focus on Latin American culture.

Morgan says that teaching this class is an especially big task because Latin American culture is the culture of 36 different countries, their geography, history, social structures, etc.

Morgan began as a part-time instructor at Parkland in 1975 after receiving his Master's degree in English from the University of Illinois. He also taught concurrently at Richland Community College in Decatur for the first three years before accepting a full-time position here in 1978.

Aside from his teaching duties, Morgan serves on the Committee for Access, Equity, and Diversity at Parkland and says, "that is charged with seeking to implement ways that students and faculty can be more familiar with the diversity of students here on campus."

Additionally, Morgan has assumed the role of editor-in-chief of Tamaqua, Parkland's literary arts magazine of short fiction, non-fiction, and poetry. It is edited by Parkland faculty and students who assist in the process of critiquing the entries sent in by writers across the country.

When Morgan "had more spare time," he enjoyed traveling, hiking, canoeing, bicycling and tennis. Now most of his spare time is taken up by his two children, Kate and Noah, and his wife, who teaches biology at Champaign Central High School.

Bruce Morgan

Morgan enjoys travel, and has travelled extensively in Europe and Latin America. He hopes to have the opportunity to visit African and Asian cultures.

Morgan advises college students to "slow down and take college seriously. College is a time when you've got a chance to explore fields, options, and interests that you may find you don't have time for once you start a career or a family or start to specialize." He encourages students to follow their interests and to take classes aside from just the ones required.

Bruce Morgan's office is in C-225, and he can be reached by telephone at 351-2380.

Notice to Students and Faculty Regarding

FINAL EXAMINATIONS

A final examination should be expected in each credit course at Parkland College. Final examinations for all courses with last regularly scheduled class meeting during the week of December 9-15 are to be given during final exam week according to the official published schedule. Such final examinations are not to be given early during regular class periods. In courses where a final examination is not appropriate as determined by the department, an educational alternative scheduled during the week of final examinations is expected. Any requests from faculty to alter scheduled final examination times or dates must be reviewed and approved by the Department Chair and the Associate Vice President for Academic Services.

Students: These official college guidelines were established to more fully ensure that you receive the full set of instructional class periods for which you paid and to which you are entitled and that you have the appropriate amount of time to prepare adequately for your examinations. Questions or concerns about these guidelines should be directed to the Associate Vice President for Academic Services (217) 351-2236.

Halfway through his term, how would you rate Bill Clinton's performance as president?

Aaron Meier

"He seems to have come a long way as far as getting his points of interest across, but it seems he can't get any things done whether it be the Senate or the House of Representatives, but overall his intentions are right on."

Jodie Ellis

"Definitely disappointing. Mr. Clinton has great vision but at heart he is a politician. This makes him extremely unstable."

Matt Foster

"Hillary is doing a great job!"

Melissa Lowery

"I think he has done better than I expected. Haiti was handled smoothly but he meets Congress halfway on his policies."

Ellie Smothers

"I feel he is doing a great job. In my view he has made progress in many areas."

Farhad Kazemi
"Bill who?"

Marsden Bigby

"Uneffective. He hasn't done a lot other than lead this country into unnecessary wars. It would be nice if he would concentrate on the country he is leading for the last half of his term."

Jeremy Pettit

"I'm actually Republican but he isn't doing a bad job—or at least I don't think anyone else could do anything drastically better. He has some decent ideas."

Record now 34 and 11 Lady spikers blast Vincennes U.

by Tiffany Grunert
Prospectus Staff Writer

The Parkland Lady Cobras improved their record to 34-11 this weekend at the Vincennes College Invitational.

The tournament was a round-robin in which the Cobras won three matches and lost one to Lincoln Land College, a team they had beaten twice this season.

Parkland defeated Mineral Area College in the first match of the tournament (15-13, 9-15, 15-4).

Leslie Burnside, outside hitter for Parkland, sparked the team with her 10 kills, having only one hitting error.

Wendy Gibson, outside hitter, led in digs with 15 in the three-game match.

In the first game, Parkland demolished Lincoln Land 15-2. The Loggers came out hot the second game stealing the game from the Cobras 14-16. The Cobras couldn't get the game back in the third either; they were defeated 7-15.

Tiffany Grunert, middle hitter, led Parkland hitting with .500 hitting percentage. The leader in blocks, was Jaime Newnum, outside hitter, who had 5 block assists.

Vincennes University, fell to Parkland in two games (15-11, 15-12).

Burnside again led in kills with 13, and Gibson led in digs with 10.

Parkland won the final game against Meremac in two(15-8, 15-6).

Burnside had another amazing game, having 12 kills, and no errors, out of 17 attempts. She also led in digs with 6.

This Saturday, Parkland travels to Lincoln Land College to compete in the Sectional tournament. The Cobras play Lincoln Land at 2 p.m. The top two teams then come to Parkland College the following weekend for the Regional.
