Transfers to become easier

Requirements to be unified

by Jeff Simpson
Assistant Editor

Transferring from one Illinois college to another is going to be easier for students in the coming years, according to the new Illinois Articulation Initiative.

The I.A.I. is designed to set a statewide standard with regard to general education requirements, so students who take any or all of the courses on a newly-adopted list of general education requirements will be able to transfer to and from all other colleges in Illinois.

Also, each class will be accepted for transfer as well as applied toward the major in which the student is enrolled.

"This will allow students a way to work on a general education plan with a bit of insurance and confidence," said Dale Ewen, vice president of Academic Services at Parkland.

Schools such as Parkland, the University of Illinois and Eastern Illinois University will have a general education requirements list available, so students can see exactly what courses they must take at a given institution in order to transfer with credit for those courses to another Illinois college or university.

All accredited public, private and university institutions will be included in the I.A.I.

Each institution will require students to fulfill the following course requirements for successful transfer credit application:

- Communication: 3 courses (9 semester credits), in-

"This will allow students a way to work on a general education plan with a bit of insurance..."

cluding a two-course sequence in writing and a one-course sequence in oral communication;

- Mathematics: 1 to 2 courses (3 to 6 credits);
- Physical and Life Sciences: 2 courses (7 to 8 credits), with one course from the life sciences and one from the physical sciences and including at least one laboratory course;

- Humanities and Fine Arts: 3 courses (9 credits), with at least one course selected from humanities and at least one course from the fine arts, and

- Social and Behavioral Sciences: 3 courses (9 credits), with courses selected from at least two disciplines.

Students fulfilling these requirements will then be able to transfer to and from any accredited Illinois institution and continue pursuing their educations without having to worry about which classes will and will not transfer in terms of general requirements.

The I.A.I. was endorsed by both the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the Illinois Community College Board in September.

Ewen said he would welcome groups of students to discuss the I.A.I. His office is in A117, and he can be reached by calling 351-2440.

Student Government election

A run-off election was conducted last week to break a tie between two candidates running in the fall Student Government election. The special election was ruled invalid and another run-off is scheduled for this week.

New voice response system at Parkland

by Tammy K. Mahaffey
Prospectus Staff Writer

Your Parkland Connection, a new touch-tone, voice response system, will be on-line beginning Oct. 27, according to Sheri C. Kallembach, Assistant to the Director of Admissions, Records, and Recruitment.

By dialing 217-373-3700 between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. seven days a week, the current or prospective student can get: midterm and final grades for the current semester, grades for the previous two semesters, financial aid information including the student's status and disbursement dates, the student's class schedule, and deadlines for registration and payment on account.

Kallembach stated, "During the next course registration period, you can get up-to-the-minute information on the availability of courses to help plan your schedule."

To access this information, the student will need the phone codes printed in the Class Schedule.

Starting in April, a course registration by telephone program should be in place. This system will enable the student to register by telephone for Summer and Fall 1995 without standing in registration lines.

Eastern-Parkland talks begin Oct. 17

by Jeff Simpson
Assistant Editor

Administrators from Eastern Illinois University and Parkland College will meet here Oct. 17 to discuss the possibility of a baccalaureate business degree at Parkland.

A full-time student attending these courses at Parkland would pay $99.65 per credit hour, whereas E.I.U. students currently pay $111.83 per credit hour. The difference is due to additional on-campus student fees.

As reported in the Sept. 7 issue of the Prospectus, hundreds of Parkland students replying to a survey said they would be very interested in having a four-year E.I.U. degree offered here.

Such a program would mean more than an estimated $1.5 million annually to local businesses (based on 200 students).prospect.

Some of the considerations are state funding for the program, financial resources for sending E.I.U. faculty to Parkland, and agreement with Parkland as to which classes would be offered and specifically where they would be located in the College.

Transfer Day

Josh Trout (l), a freshman majoring in Physical Education, talks to an Eastern Illinois University transfer coordinator Parkland's Transfer Day last Wednesday. Students were able to collect information and speak to representatives from various institutions. The Parkland College Transfer Center and Counseling Center sponsor the event each semester to assist students in transferring to other institutions.

Would you like to be selected as a juror in the O.J. Simpson trial, and why?

Jamesenna Anderson

"Yes. I feel I would be a more truthful juror because I'm not a big fan of his so my judgement would be out of honesty."

Troy Phillips

"No, because I wouldn't want to make a decision like that about one of my favorite football players."

Brian Nicodemus

"Yes, I would like to see what the real evidence in the case is instead of watching the falsehoods on Hard Copy or something of the sort."

Tammy Ford

"Of course I would like to be selected as a juror. Who wouldn't want to be part of what has come to be the biggest, most profiled murder trial ever?"

Traci Grieser

"No. The trial is over-publicized causing the facts to be so distorted that it would be difficult to determine the truth from the lies."

Jason DeYoung

"Yes, I would because I would like to know all of the evidence."

Andrew Rennick

"No, they don't pay enough."

Becky O'Brien

"Yes, because I want to know if he really did this or is it just a racial thing."

Parkland Profiles

Bennett teaches math; hosts family

by Shannon Divan
Prospectus Staff Writer

Dick Bennett is both a math and computer science instructor, and he also serves as the Program Director of the Visualization Computer Graphics Specialist Program.

He also has a Russian family staying in his home. He says he and his family enjoy having Olga Pozdnyakova and her daughter, Taya, stay with them.

Pozdnyakova is a visiting instructor teaching Russian Literature at Parkland.

In Russia, however, she teaches English Literature.

"She corrects my grammar," Bennett said.

Bennett travelled to Japan to teach Basic computer language during the summer of 1993.

"The people there were so nice," he said.

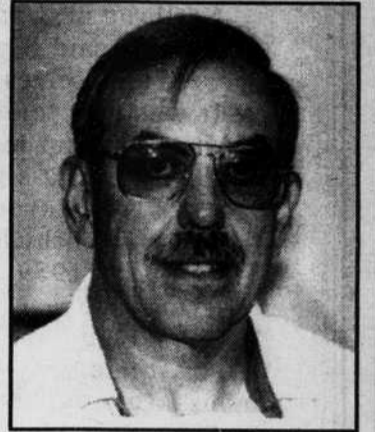

Before returning home he and his wife, Stephanie, found time to visit Hong Kong and China.

Bennett was graduated from high school in Vincennes Indiana in 1958, and from there he went on to Indiana State University.

After receiving his bachelor's in mathematics education, he attended the University of Illinois, where he earned his master's degree.

Before coming to Parkland, he taught high school math for 3 years in Indiana and at Illinois State University for 2 years. He has been a member of the Parkland faculty for 22 years.

"It feels a lot like home," said Bennett. "I enjoy the students the most; they are so honest."

Bennett has 4 children: Marcy, Angie, Kim and Rex. Stephanie, too, is a math instructor. She has taught at Illinois State University for 11 years.

Bennett's campus office is in room M109A, and his office phone number is 351-2549.

Walls encourages student success

by Shannon Divan
Prospectus Staff Writer

Gina Walls teaches Sociology 101 and Sociology of Marriage and Family, and she also teaches the Orientation to College class.

"I feel very strongly about the orientation class," she said. "It helps students to decide why they are in college, what they expect to obtain through a college education, and what they have to do to be successful students."

"It is very important for students to answer these three questions as early as possible."

Walls was brought up in Mahomet and was graduated from Mahomet-Seymour High School in 1975.

She said she had planned to attend the University of Illinois to study engineering, but she

"chickened out." Instead, she began her college education at Parkland, where she studied for 5 years.

She said she spent the majority of that time unsure of a specific study program. After deciding to major in sociology, she transferred to the University of Illinois, and in 1982, received a bachelor's degree in Liberal Arts in Sciences.

In 1986 she was hired as an admissions representative at Parkland, and at the same time she was attending Illinois State University to earn her master's degree.

Walls began teaching part-time at Parkland in 1987 and has been teaching full-time since the fall of 1993.

"I like the idea of a community college," she said. "With the small classes it makes it easier for me to teach and for the students to learn. I love to teach and to learn new things."

Her husband, Len Stelle, teaches sociology and archaeology at Parkland. She also has 2 stepsons in elementary school.

Walls says she loves the outdoors, and in her spare time she enjoys cross-country skiing, canoeing and reading.

Walls's office is in room C244, and that phone number is 373-3793.

Kevin and Jason Northrup share the same passion for racing

by Andrea Franklin
Prospectus Staff Writer

Vice President of Fiscal Services/Government Relations Kevin Northrup and son, Jason, were born to ride recklessly.

Northrup says he was a "speed freak from the time I was able to ride a bike."

Northrup drag raced while in high school and said it was a way they "proved themselves back then."

It was this tendency that almost cost him his life in 1962 when he hit a gravel truck, broke through the glass windshield of his 1959 Oldsmobile—breaking every bone in his face.

Since then, his face has been reconstructed, and he has had neuro-surgery three times.

Northrup says, "I shouldn't be alive today. This is why I got my sons into controlled-speed racing. I didn't want them to be tempted to race recklessly in unsupervised conditions. They've earned their trophies and jackets; they've proven themselves without needing to race on the streets."

Northrup moved into controlled-speed sports at the age of 26 when he started hill climbing. While teaching at DACC, his students dared him to hill climb at Kickapoo State Park on his Triumph motorcycle.

"I loved it and immediately got hooked," says Northrup. A couple of months later, he made a competition bike out of an "old, beat-up motorcycle."

His first competition was in the summer of 1968 at Neoga, south of Mattoon.

He crashed but still managed to take second place.

Originally, in hill climbing, whoever made it over the top of the hill probably received a trophy. Then, Northrup says, almost everyone crashed before reaching the top.

With modern technology and advanced bikes, says Northrup, "Now, almost everyone gets over, so speed is what counts." Two electric eyes are placed one at the bottom of the hill and one at the top to measure the speed, he said.

Northrup won three district championships.

His hill climbing career came to an abrupt halt point district championship in 1983 at age seven. In 1984, he placed sixth at the Nationals.

In 1985-86, he received second and first, respectively, in the Nationals' Jr. Mini-division.

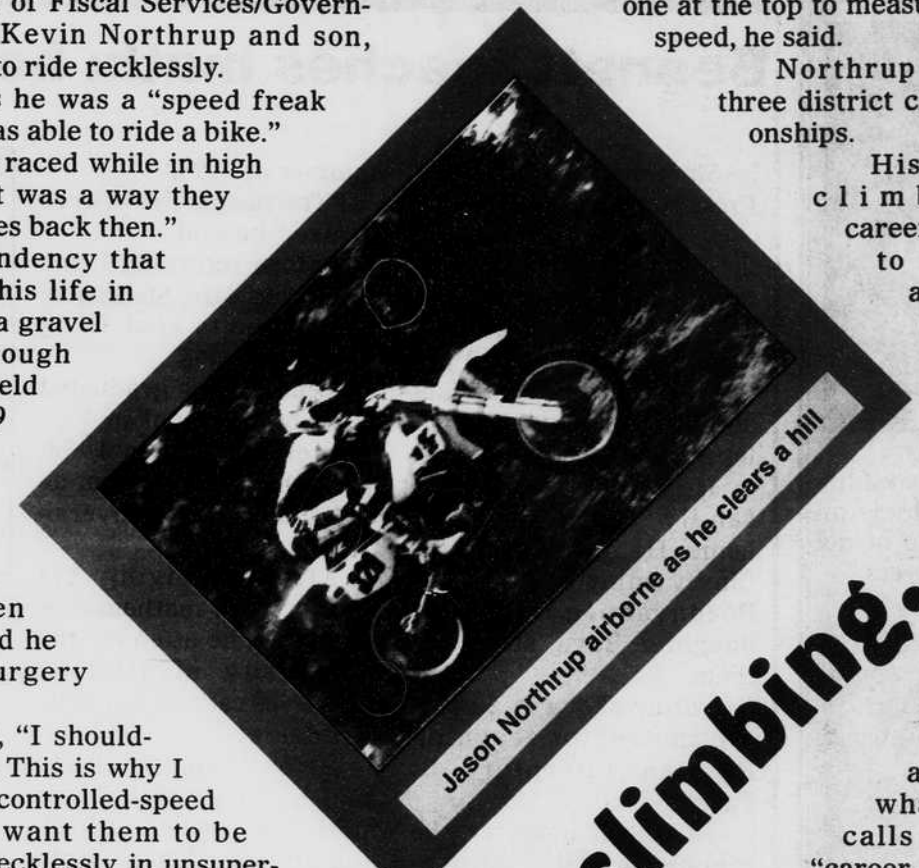

He was in the youth division (ages 12-15) for only one year before jumping to the men's class at the age of 13. That year he also won the Illinois State Championship in the Senior-mini division as well as the men's 200 cc class.

At age 17 (1993), Jason placed second in climbing "retirement" this year to ride the 400 cc hill climber at the 1994 AMA Nationals in Minn. Despite never having ridden this particular machine on a hill, Kaleb finished second at the Nationals only a tenth of a second short of the National championship.

Kaleb will be graduating in December from Illinois State University in Normal and is a 1991 Parkland College graduate.

"Both of my sons are natural hill-climbers," Northrup says, although they both tend to go through a lot of equipment."

Hill climbing...

in 1989 after what he calls his "career ending crash."

At Leisure Time Estates outside of Danville, Northrup had a head-on collision with his 26-year-old nephew around a blind corner.

Both, he says, were riding too fast. Northrup broke his knee, elbow and received a concussion. His nephew came out of the wreck with minor injuries.

Thirteen-year-old son Jason was the one who took control of the life-threatening situation by finding his way through the woods to bring back help.

Northrup said all his injuries resulted from unsupervised accident—not in competition—but people who aren't confident about their climbing can also get hurt.

Northrup retired from racing, but son Jason continues to carry on the family tradition.

Jason began riding a bike when he was four and shortly after began hill-climbing. Northrup says they took him to woods close to Danville where he climbed the old strip mine walls.

"Those woods were like Jason's backyard, all 660 acres," says Northrup. "It was his second home."

Jason entered his first competition and received his first trophy at age six—competing with 11-year-olds in the junior mini-division—and placed eleventh in the nationals against 11-year-olds.

He won his first

A family affair

the nationals in the 200 cc class, won the Indiana State Championship in both the 200 cc and the 400 cc classes, finished first in the 200 cc District Point Championship and second in the 400 cc class point Championship in Illinois, and finished first in the 400 cc and second in the 200 cc class Point Championship in Indiana.

This year Jason has placed third at the Nationals in the 200 cc class and won the Illinois season district point championship in the 200 cc class, finished second in the 400 cc class and third in the 500 cc class as well as placing first in both the 200 cc and 400 cc classes and second in the 500 cc class in the Indiana district. In 1995, Jason plans to add a 750 cc hill climber to his pursuits.

His father's accidents obviously haven't deterred him from racing. "I've never been hurt in hill climbing," Jason says. "I got hurt worse when I broke my arm in baseball."

Jason says he might consider going professional, but currently he is a Parkland student pursuing a career in Journalism.

Northrup's son, Kaleb, has also seriously competed in hill climbing from the age of 8 through 15 accumulating numerous district and state titles of his own. He then turned his focus to motocross. He was called out of hill

"Jason goes through 15 to 20 sets of handlebars a season, but Kaleb holds the family record—going through four sets of handlebars in a single day."

Northrup says that despite the level of competition, hill climbing events are friendlier than other sports.

Jason agrees and adds that all competitors are friends, before, during, and after the climbs.

"If a part to someone's bike goes bad and they need one to climb, we will take the part off of one of our bikes and give it to them, even if it means they beat us," Jason said. "For example, at one event, I demolished my bike, so my friend let me borrow his bike for my next climb. I ended up beating his time and winning the event. Swapping parts and bikes happens all the time."

Jason says he just rides with the determination to win. He doesn't get nervous, and he's not afraid. He says he gives his all when climbing, then sets a time and "dares anyone to beat it."

Both Northrups agree that when they race it's still all in the name of fun.

Northrup says Jason doesn't overreact and that he handles the pressure of competition pretty well. "He takes it all in stride."

Jason and Kaleb also enjoy motocross competition and have done well, but Northrup says he doesn't support that sport—he just tolerates it.

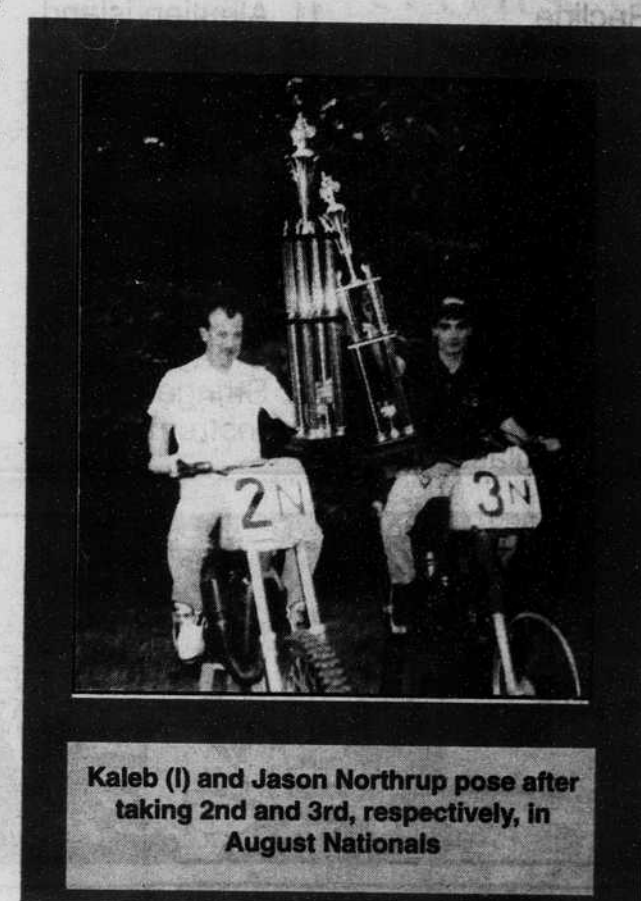

"It's much more dangerous," he says. "People often get hurt, and when they fall, no one stops for them."

Although Northrup is reluctant to endorse his sons' interest in motocross, he stays very active in their hill climbing careers. He is the announcer and the timer for their hill-climbing club in Danville and is also the AMA District hill climber director for Illinois. Northrup also takes photographs and writes articles for Cycle USA magazine.

Says Northrup, "I would love to still be hill-climbing, but I can't. It's time to leave it to the next generation. I'll stay involved at the administrative and support level. I look forward to instructing our grandchildren in competition."

Lady Cobras second in tourney.

by Tiffany Grunert
Prospectus Staff Writer

The women's volleyball team placed second in a tournament hosted by Parkland last weekend. Elgin College defeated Parkland for the second time this season, stealing first place from the Cobras.

The Cobras started the tournament with two wins on Friday defeating Lincolnland College and Kaskaskia College.

In the Lincolnland match, freshman Jamie Newnum replaced Melanie Jordan, right side hitter, who is unable to play consecutive matches because of a possible stress fracture. Newnum rose to the occasion with 6 kills and led in hitting percentage with .625.

Leslie Burnside, freshman hitter, led the Cobras in digs with 9. Parkland handed Lincolnland a loss, defeating them in two games 15-11 and 15-6.

Kaskaskia was no match for the Cobras who won again in two 15-1 and 15-3. Wendy Gibson, sophomore hitter, had 8 kills to lead the Cobras to victory.

The Cobras defeated Vincennes for the second time 15-9 and 15-7. Gibson and Burnside led in hitting with 10 kills each. Mindy Bellshaw, sophomore hitter, and Gibson each had five digs to lead a balanced attack for the Cobras.

Shannon Alspaugh, freshman middle hitter, and Tiffany Grunert, sophomore middle hitter, each had hitting percentages of .500, but it wasn't enough to defeat Lewis And Clark College.

The Cobras split with Lewis and Clark College but were still ranked number one in their pool, enabling them to play Elgin for first place.

The Cobras came out flat against Elgin College. Hitting only .141 as a team, they were defeated 6-15, 12-15.

Parkland's record is now 20-7-2. The Cobras start the action again with Lakeland Oct. 12 at Parkland stating at 7 p.m.

Then another home Invitational tournament begins on Friday when the Cobras take on Lincoln Trail and Moraine Valley. On Saturday, Danville College and Highland College will face the Cobras.
