Black history survey Facts not always as they seem

Eighty-eight percent of students who participated in a recent survey believed Mississippi, Arkansas and New York have the highest percentages of African Americans attending segregated schools.

But they are wrong. Illinois has the highest percentage of segregated schools in the U.S.

The 28 history students who conducted the survey researched various questions concerning Black History and selected 21 questions from their findings.

"I think one of the most important ways to recognize Black History Month is to get people talking about it," says Bruce Walker, professor of History/Liberal Arts at Parkland.

Walker believes that students who voted Mississippi as the state with the highest percentage of segregated schools were led to this conclusion by exposure to the media and preconceived ideas of the South.

Walker says survey results show that African Americans are more informed about Black history than others surveyed, although he admits the surveys are difficult to analyze.

"It's hard to know why people perceive things to be one way or another," says Walker.

He felt the best way to involve his history 105 class in Black History Month was to have them talk to other students.

"I thought an interactive survey would be a good vehicle to educate or inform students," says Walker.

He stressed that the survey was not a test, but rather a format for discussion on Black History.

"We weren't testing student's knowledge of History," says Walker. "We wanted to measure their perception of what they thought the answers would be."

Financial Aid director Lyons: 'Dangerous times' for aid

by Melissa Vaughn
Prospectus Staff Writer

"These are very dangerous times for students receiving student aid," Jack Lyons told Student Government members.

Lyons, director of Financial Aid and Veterans Affairs at Parkland, addressed changes made by the Federal Government in December at the Feb. 16 StuGo meeting.

After the Spring 1995 semester, Lyons said, students who have reached the maximum 96 hours of financial aid eligibility will have to find other resources to pay for their classes.

"Ninety-five percent (of the changes) were mandated by the Federal Government, and the Financial Aid office has to comply," Lyons said. Otherwise, Parkland could lose its accreditation.

Proposals currently on the table in Congress will also cut approximately $20 billion in financial aid over the next five years.

The new laws were mandated to eliminate the "perennial student," Lyons said, adding that Parkland has reinstated 98 percent of the students who appealed to the Financial Aid office, but only for the Spring '95 semester.

In other StuGo business, a first-motion vote was passed and a second vote waived to replace the television in the Student Lounge.

The second vote was waived because Best Buy has been holding two televisions for Parkland for approximately two weeks, and StuGo had to decide which one to buy. StuGo voted to purchase the 52-inch RCA rear-projection television with a dust cover. The new television will not need a new stand because part of the old stand will be usable for the new television.

Also, new student senators Savva Korolev, Tiffany Grunert and Scott Savage were officially sworn into office. Their terms will run

Board Trustee position filled

Tom Bennett, of Gibson City, was appointed to the Parkland College Board of Trustees during the board's monthly meeting, on Feb. 15.

Bennett will serve out the term of former board member Jack Brodsky, who resigned due to health reasons Jan. 18. Dr. Brodsky's term was to expire in November.

Bennett took classes at Parkland while fulfilling his undergraduate requirements. He holds a B.S. in applied computer science and a masters of business administration from Illinois State University. A former high school physics, chemistry, and physical science teacher in Melvin, Bennett has worked as a training coordinator for State Farm Insurance Companies in Bloomington since 1985.

Bennett and his wife, Kathy, a teacher in the Gibson City-Melvin Sibley school district, have two children: Megan, 11 and Andrew, 9.

United Way at Work

Literacy project adds tutoring

by Tiffany Grunert
News Editor

The United Way at Work Committee is starting the second phase of a literacy project for the Birch Village Housing Project in Champaign.

According to committee member and Dean of Students Carol Steinman, more than $400 has been raised through the "Bagels for Books" fundraiser.

This money was used to buy books, posters, Hooked on Phonics workbooks and cassettes, and a cassette player.

"Now we're providing tutors for after-school studies in the Birch Village Center," said Steinman.

So far, tutors are comprised of Phi Theta Kappa and Student Government members. Duties of the tutors include helping with homework, reading, Hooked on Phonics, and mass skill development.

Angie Butler, a Phi Theta Kappa member and tutor for the project, said, "Since I am going to be an elementary teacher, I need all the experience I can get. This is a great opportunity for experience in this field."

Butler enjoyed tutoring when she was younger and found that children relate well to younger people when it comes to studying.

The United Way at Work Committee members are: Michael Beck, Anita Bergman, Rich Haney, Roz Minor, Jan Simon, Carol Steinman, Shelley Stoltenberg, Greg Square and Debra Taylor.

Any student interested in tutoring a few afternoons a week from 3:45 to 5 p.m. should contact Carol Steinman in X153 or call 351-2505.

Women's History Month

Parkland College continues a tradition by asking students, faculty, staff and the public to dress up as their favorite woman from history and come in character to a Women's History Month reception Thursday, Mar. 2, from 2-4 p.m. in the X220 Lounge.

Last year, Eleanor Roosevelt, Isadora Duncan, Rosa Bonheur, Dorothy Parker, Rosie the Riveter, Clara Barton, Edmonia Lewis and Cleopatra joined in the celebration and helped educate others about their lives and their work.

Refreshments will be served. For more information, call Parkland's Office of Women's Programs and Services at 217/351-2541.

Potential homeowners seminar

Parkland College, along with eight area banks, will sponsor a two-part informational seminar for potential homeowners on Thursdays, Mar. 2 and 9, from 7-9:30 p.m. in room X222.

"The Home Buyer's Seminar" will offer guidance on budgeting, home inspection, prequalification for loans, closings and other important steps involved in purchasing a home.

There is a fee for the seminar. For more information, call 217/351-2508.

Snakes to visit Planetarium

Snakes will be the topic of the next "World of Science" lecture Friday, Mar. 3, at 7 p.m., in the William M. Staerkel Planetarium.

Scarlet Coy, environmental education coordinator with the Champaign County Forest Preserve District, will give a talk entitled "Life Without Legs." She will have several live snakes with her as she discusses the species of snake common to this part of Illinois.

Coy will also explore the anatomy of snakes and their capabilities in the wild, as well as their eating habits and methods of locomotion.

Tickets will be available in the Planetarium lobby. For more information, call the Planetarium's "Showline" at 217/351-2446.

Scholarship workshop

Parents of college-bound students are invited to a workshop on college scholarship opportunities on Sat., Mar. 4, from 9 a.m. to noon in room L111.

The workshop will be led by Jack Lyons, director of Parkland's Office of Financial Aid and Veterans Affairs.

For more information, call 217/351-2508.

Shelter offers food, encouragement

by Le Shaundra Brownlee
Prospectus Staff Writer

The cold, cutting winds of winter can make living on the streets virtually impossible for the homeless in Champaign-Urbana.

The Salvation Army's Stepping Stone Shelter, located at 119 E. University Ave., Champaign, provides food and temporary housing for up to 44 men, two families, and in emergency cases it may accept women.

The building consists of a dorm for men and two apartments for eligible families.

Boarders are allowed to stay for 30 days and then are reviewed to see if they have made any progress towards obtaining work, saving money for places of their own, or getting off of drugs or alcohol.

If progress is being made, then it is determined whether the person will be allowed to stay longer than 30 days.

Three meals a day are prepared and given out not only to the people who are living at the shelter, but to anyone that comes in. The main meal is served at noon.

"In the morning, we just have cereal," says Salvation Army shift coordinator Earl Kissee. "It would be impossible to prepare three meals a day for that many people.

"What we need are volunteers, people to prepare meals, play cards or just sit and talk."

A recovering alcoholic, Kissee says it was just two years ago that he was living at the shelter.

"When they get tired of living that lifestyle, then they'll change. Some of them just aren't tired yet," he says about people who are return boarders.

People who don't have jobs and want to work have no problem finding jobs, Kissee said.

Manpower Temporary Services places most of the ones who need jobs, Kissee added.

"If they do a good job and work hard, they will get hired permanently," he said.

When the Salvation Army began providing shelter, Kissee says the problem of homelessness was a men-only thing.

"Women always had somewhere to go," he said. Now the rate of homeless women is rising, and "Unfortunately, we can't house them."

Activities for the people who live at the shelter are provided in the day room—card games, television, snacks and, if they want, they can talk, or just sleep, Kissee said.

Parkland Profiles

Voyles prepares students

by Christine Wing
Prospectus Staff Writer

"I love to watch students come alive with ideas and share their insights with each other," says Dorothy Voyles, Program Director for Preparatory English classes.

Voyles says that the preparatory English classes are geared to help students make the transition from their background to the time and skills that college demands.

She works with both students and instructors, supervises the scheduling and staffing of classes, and speaks to high school students about how to prepare for college.

She also works closely with program directors and department offices, including adult learning opportunities, learning disability specialist, and the assessment center.

Students are placed in preparatory classes through the assessment center. Voyles assists in the classification of students, dealing with placement conflicts, and the hearing of appeals.

Nine years ago, Voyles came to Parkland as a part-time instructor. In 1989 she became a full-time instructor and in 1991 she was promoted to a program director.

Before coming to Parkland she taught at Olney Central College where she started a grant-funded program for displaced homemakers and abused women.

Voyles grew up in Buffalo, New York. She was the first of ten children to graduate from college.

She says she worked two jobs to stay in school. She eventually was graduated from Nazareth College in Rochester, New York, with a bachelor's degree in English. She went on to obtain her master's in English from Western Illinois University.

She met her husband in graduate school at Illinois. They currently live in Tuscola with their children Ben, 17, and Darcey, 13. Both are very involved in sports, she says.

She keeps in touch with her nine brother and sisters through a monthly newsletter which she initiated.

Voyles says the one of the most important things to remember at Parkland is that there is always someone here to help you, all you have to do is "ASK!"

If you would like some assistance, you may reach Voyles in C130 or by calling ext. 748.

Snyder likes to horse around

by Le Shaundra Brownlee
Prospectus Staff Writer

The atmosphere and relaxed environment are what graphic designer Janet Snyder likes best about her job, even though she's not surrounded by horses.

Snyder has worked for the past two years in the Publications Department, where she produces publications for College media ads, posters, class schedules, community flyers, brochures, and catalogs are designed.

"On my computer screen, I design the flyers, posters and ads," she said. "I like being able to think of new, different and creative ideas to incorporate into the things I'm doing for the College."

Such work admittedly keeps Snyder busy, but she says she still gets around the College enough to keep a level head.

"I'm usually so busy I don't get a chance to see the students much," she said, "but when I do get the chance, I like to walk around. It's so pretty and quiet."

An Indiana native, Snyder took her B.A. in Fine Art from I.U.P.U.I.'s (Indiana University-Purdue University-Indianapolis), Herron School of Art.

But being a graphic designer isn't the only thing that keeps her busy. Along with her husband of five years, John, her main hobby is showing horses.

The couple own four Appaloosas, and in the summer she rides them in shows "just about every weekend."

Keeping with the tradition of togetherness, the two are also the owners of SPOT GRAPHICS, an area sign, banner and poster business.

"We design them on the computer, then cut them out on vinyl," says Snyder.

Clients for the business, which is run out of their Gifford home, include fellow horse enthusiasts from Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri and who enlist their services in designing logos, vehicle art and such.

"We do business cards, all kinds of things," Snyder said.

Snyder's office is in room X122a, and her office phone number is 351-2452.

through the end of this semester

President Lovanese Malone reminded StuGo members that elections for the Fall '95 semester will be held the first week of April.

Also, Senator Tina Henderson spoke about the policy for making requests for money from StuGo.

Henderson, Activities Program Manager Shelley Stoltenberg, and Parliamentarian Anthony Tangora proposed the following policy:

That StuGo require a written request detailing uses for money requested from StuGo, including what the money would be used for and specifically when the event would take place. Submission of such requests would be available to each member of StuGo at least 48 hours prior to the weekly meeting, according to the proposal.

In addition, the person or group requesting the money should be present at the meetings to answer any questions.

A vote on the proposal will be taken at the Feb. 23 meeting, and, if the proposal is accepted, a second vote will be taken at the following meeting.

All tolled, requesting money from StuGo for functions, etc., would become a three weekly-meeting on top of the 48 hours for the written request consideration.

Internat'l program introduced

A new three-level program of participation is being introduced in the Parkland International Program.

Reo L. Wilhour, International Student advisor, said the first level is for the student to stay with a family, couple, or individuals, for a fee. The period may vary from a month, a semester, or a year.

Another level of participation in the Hospitality Program is for the host to offer a place for the international student to stay for a few days. The host also may give the student some assistance in locating an apartment or aiding a student with such moving-in chores as getting utilities connected.

A third level of participation is by hosts who volunteer for airport pick-ups and or who invite the international student for dinner on a holiday or special occasion.

"The program's flexibility gives the host as well as the student the choice to pick the relationship they think will work best for them. In any case, any level of assistance is appreciated," Wilhour said.

He added that the new Hospitality Program will complement opening of the Intensive English Program that will begin this Fall.

Ten to 12 families are now in the host pool, Wilhour said, and there are about six student-host pairs in action. One student also is living with a family for a semester.

Maricleia Bravim and her husband, Mauricio Salinas have welcomed Lanny Latuconsina, a 19-year-old student from Indonesia.

"Since we like meeting people from all over the world and learning about life in their countries, we really enjoy this experience. When we heard about Lanny from Reo, we decided to have her come and join us for a semester," Bravim said.

For more information on the program: Reo Wilhour, 216/351-2584 or the office at X161.

The Hollywood stereotype of the cowboy is a white male, Walker said, but in fact 20 percent of cowboys were black.

Asked who said, "If I were called upon to predict the future..., the black inhabitants perpetually haunts the imagination of the Americans like a painful dream," most students answered: Malcolm X. Actually, the speaker was Alexis De Tocqueville, a Frenchman who made the statement in 1840.

Although nearly half of those surveyed thought the median African American family income increased accordingly with that of the white family income (a $2,434 increase), it has risen only $271 since 1970.

"Even though the civil rights movement and affirmative action have been in existence, the average African-American income has not increased in 20 years, said Walker.

More than half of those surveyed knew that unemployment rates for African-Americans were higher in the 1980s than in the two previous decades.

Walker says that, while the economy has an effect on those figures, it is always extremely difficult for any impoverished families to increase its net worth.

Eighty percent of the respondents said the survey was educational — and surprising.

Cobras win big, follow with even bigger loss

by Damon Parris and Dion Schaefermeyer
Prospectus Staff Writers

After getting off to a slow start against Kankakee Feb. 14, the Cobra men managed to get their offense back on track in time to pick up their first win in a week, 88-71.

The Cobra's fell behind 11-3 early in the contest before going on an 11-0 run and taking a 37-30 lead at the half, which they would never relinquish.

In the second half the Cobra defense took control of the game, wearing down the Kankakee players and creating key turnovers.

The Cobras jumped out to a 69-51 lead with only eight minutes to go before finally putting a fork in Kankakee for the easy win.

Sophomore Waymon Upshaw, in his first game back after suffering a broken wrist, led the Cobras with 20 points, two blocks and three steals. Freshman David Freeman also had a big game, chipping in 19 points and grabbing 10 rebounds.

On Feb. 20, the Cobras wouldn't have as easy a time at Lake Land, as they were topped by the Lakers 139-119.

Upshaw netted the first bucket of the game, followed by teammate Demetrius Liberty, who scored following a brilliant steal.

Liberty also scored from the corner shortly thereafter, and assisted Upshaw for a hoop after that.

The Cobras were down early, though, trying to get into an 18-10 deficit with 14:51 to go in the first half.

Lake Land's lead nearly diminished several times during the contest, but the closest the Cobras got was within four with just over ten minutes to go in the first.

But the game was not without its usual Cobra highlights.

Freeman nailed two back-to-back three-pointers, and the Cobras went on a 9-0 run late in the half.

Even in such a fast-tempo, high-scoring game, though, there must be only one winner—and this time it would not be the Cobras.

The Lakers capitalized on missed Cobra shots and netted a series of three-pointers to up their lead to ten, 40-30.

Sophomore Karl Schippert banged away at the boards all night, as did all the Cobras—including the bench crew—but the Lakers just hit a little better and a lot more often.

Prior to the March play-offs, the Cobras will host Springfield for their regular-season finale.

Tennis season is approaching

Courts not in best of shape

by Cary Frye
Prospectus Staff Writer

With the 1995 tennis season only a couple of weeks away, players will be looking forward to playing outdoors — if they don't have to play on the College's aged and weathered courts.

Father Time and Mother Nature worked their mysterious magic, and now the courts are beginning to resemble earthquake fault lines rather than tennis courts.

Cracks — some as wide as three inches and an inch deep — run across every court. Fencing along two courts at the bottom has been ripped out or bent in such away that it sticks up nearly a foot from the surface of the court when it should be flush. Some of the wind screens have also been damaged and now just flap freely in the wind.

For this season it's too late to do any kind of repairs to the courts, so some of Parkland's home matches may be played at the Racquet Club in Champlain or at other Park District sites.

The Athletic Department says plans are in the works to repair the damage or build entirely new courts.

It has been estimated that repairing the courts would cost several thousand dollars — and would be only temporary. Constructing new tennis courts could run into the six-figure range.

The courts are on a list of things to be addressed, but according to the Athletic Department, many other items have higher priority.

So, for those planning to play tennis on Parkland courts any time soon, pick your feet up, and bring some Band-aids.

Fault! (so to speak)

(Left) A tennis player stands near one of the cracks in one of the campus tennis courts. Weather and time have taken their toll on the courts, producing fault line-like faults as deep as an inch and as wide as three inches. Below, fencing around the courts shows it, too, has seen better days.
