SIU to do national study

Researchers at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale have won a $577,804 contract from the U.S. Depart-allow them to conduct the nation's largest and most comprehensive study to date on the American college student's relationship to alcohol, drugs and violence.

CARBONDALE III. (CPX)

The university's Core Institute, which has monitored alcohol and drug use on the nation's college campuses since 1989, will conduct the study. Next year, it will ask 200,000 college students on 225 campuses across the nation to answer an anonymous survey. Students and schools will be selected at random.

In addition to demographic ment of Education that will data, students will be asked about their drinking habits, illegal drug use, experience with unwanted sexual contact and crimes. They'll also be asked to answer questions about violent behavior.

The study's results, expected to be published in 2000, will serve as a guide for governmental policy and prevention programming, said Cheryl A. Presley, project director and head of the Core Institute.

New Philosophy club

BY: TOBIAS G. SIMPSON PROSPECTUS STAFF WRITER

Is euthanasia (mercy killing) morally acceptable?

This question will be the topic of the first debate being held by the Philosophy club, Tuesday, September 29 in the Gallery Lounge at noon.

Parkland's newest student organization may or may not exist.

Those interested in discussing and investigating the universal questions which confront all of mankind are welcomed to attend.

Some of those questions

- Who is God?
- How does one pursue happiness?
- Does man choose his own destiny?
- What makes an action morally right or wrong?
- "I think this club fills a void," said Don Nolen, professor of Philosophy and the club's advisor. "I think a lot of people are searching for some of these basic truths."

The club meets on a weekly basis (assuming time is real) and engages in lively and critical discussions on a wide variety of topics.

This club is dedicated to freedom of thought and welcomes all people and all ideas.

The club's professed goal is to sharpen one another both mentally and scholastically.

The club also hopes to stimulate other students' thought and discourse by holding a series of public de-

Some of the ideas being considered for debate topics are: Is euthanasia morally acceptable? and Will machines ever have free will?

The philosophy club meets every Thursday at 1 p.m. in the upstairs C-wing

If you have any questions please contact the club President Kory Langhofer at 367-1427 or the club's Advisor Don Nolen at 351-2526.

Could provide computer network certification

H.S. students offered training at P.C.

BY: TOBIAS G. SIMPSON PROSPECTUS STAFF WRITER

If your a student in one of the ten local high schools and think college may not be the way you want to go after school, Parkland College may have training you would be interested in.

Parkland will soon be offering computer training in a joint venture with Cisco.

Cisco is a large networking company that sponsors courses leading to certification in 39 states and five nations.

Certification includes passing independent tests which would validate the students ability to perform in computer related jobs.

Upon certification, a high school graduate with some experience would make around $23,000 to $28,000 per year in this area.

An adult would make slightly more, as much as

These figures represent very resealable salaries coming right out of high school, salaries that a family could be supported on.

Furthermore, there is a very high demand for workers in the computer field.

The University of Illinois, Parkland and Carle are just three examples of companies in this area that make constant er. use of computer networks.

The contract Cisco signed with Parkland includes around $14,000 in new computer equipment and the certification of several instructors.

The first teacher to be certified will be David Tancig, the Computer Network Administration program director.

Parkland hopes to have the new program up and running by next fall, maybe earli-

The high school version of the program will probably take four semesters and range from the theoretical to actual hands-on networking.

It is hoped that through this program many students that don't want to go to college, but still want a good paying job with prospects for promotion right out of high school will have that opportunity.

Charlie Award Sfor nuis 26 BY: CHARLIE FILLENWARTH PROSPECTUS STAFF WRITER

Parkland Theatre's first production of the season, Ten 10-Minute Plays, kicked off last Wednesday night with a preview at a discounted price. Even at full price, the production is a bargain. The audience is treated to humans dressed as animals, off the wall (or rack) comedy, two men controlled by their sexual drive, a couple experiencing the ups and downs of a "mature" relationship, and a wild ten minutes in the show business industry.

And that's just the first act. The second act features three mothers, a silent roommate, an angry lover, a wild workplace, and a statue. This production was amazing and well directed. Parkland students will be proud of the Theatre department for putting on this high quality performance.

A terrific performance deserves awards. Since this performance was terrific. I am introducing my own version of the Tonys. I call it the Charlies. Here are the presentations:

•BEST STAGE DESIGN--The nominees are: Off The Rack, Finger Food, and A Bowl of Soup. The Charlie goes to: A Bowl of Soup.

The decoration of the studio apartment enhances the atmosphere. The audience is drawn into the setting and it makes it seem more homey.

•BEST COSTUMES -- The nominees are: Duet for Bear and Dog, Andre's Mother, and Catastrophe. The Charlie goes to: Andre's Mother. Jay Kilgore looked the bomb in his three-piece suit. Plus, Zhenesse Heinemann looked stunning in her funeral dress.

MAKEUP--Nominees: Healthy Primates, Duet for Bear and Dog, and Courtin Prometheus. The Charlie goes to: Duet for Bear and Dog, hands down. The makeup made Dori Phelps and Joe Hodge look like a bear and a dog.

*BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS--The nominees: Janice Rothbaum (Andre's Mother in Andre's Mother), Joanne Capes (Creativity in Life Happens), Mindy Reed (Woman in Duet for Bear and Dog). The Charlie goes to: Janice Rothbaum for Andre's Mother. Getting an audience to understand you by speaking is difficult in itself. But to make us feel her pain without saying one word is what helps make this play go as far as it did.

•BEST SUPPORTING ACTOR--Once again, the nominees: Joel Levi Singerman (Rob in A Bowl of Soup), Bryan Mathis, Jr. (Dave in Louis and Dave), and Nicholas Koch (Arthur in Andre's Mother). The Charlie goes to: Joel Levi Singerman for A Bowl of Soup. Once again, not talking wins this award. He doesn't speak until the very end, but by that time, we have seen the pain in his actions.

•BEST ACTRESS--The three nominees are: Ellen Bean Larabee (She in Healthy Primates), Tamera McDaniel (Adrienne in Off the Rack), and Amy Vokac (Mona in Finger Food). The Charlie goes to: Tamera McDaniel for Off The Rack. From the moment she steps on stage, you know what her character is about: confidence. She showed the confidence to play Adrienne, who thought herself superior to Pauline. Only Tamera could have pulled it off on this night.

•BEST ACTOR--The nominees are: Buck Zachary (Denny in Finger Food), Jay Kilgore (Cal in Andre's Mother). Bryan Hayward (Protagonist in Catastrophe). With all due respect to Jay and Bryan's performances, the nod goes to Buck. He goes from an anxious cameraman to a wild lover in ten minutes. He had everyone eating out of the palm of his hand.

•BEST OVERALL--The nominees are (five this time): Off The Rack, Finger Food, Andre's Mother, A Bowl of Soup, and Life Happens. Two comedies, two dramatics vs. an abstract, thinking-man's play. I have to go with Andre's Mother. A well-acted play, very emotional. A fine piece of work.

Because the direction of all the plays was superior, I couldn't pick the best. So I introduce the first ever 10-way tie for an award. Every director wins here. But, as is the case with all awards, someone will eventually get left out and someone's feet are bound to get stepped on. I apologize to all the performers I couldn't include here. But they all did a wonderful job and deserve a standing ovation.

Significantly, more student abstained from drinking in 1997 (19.0), up from 15.6 percent in 1994.

"There has been a very mainly to an increase of students who do not drink at all. However, this has been more than offset by the increased intensity of drinking among those who drink: more drinking to get drunk, more frequent drunkenness and more alcohol-related problems such as drinking and driving," said Dr.

.... "For those looking for a glimmer of hope, the increase in the proportion of abstainers is important," continued Wechsler. "Campuses seem to be polarized by bing drinking with the numbers of abstainers increasing in the face of more drinking disruptive behavior. Abstainers may be responding to alcohol education efforts or they may simply be repulsed by the binge drinking way of life.

The self-administered questionnaire instructed participants to define a "drink" in equivalent amounts of alcohol:

Golf team having successful season

BY: BARBARA TORBECK PROSPECTUS STAFF WRITER

A successful season is within reach for the Parkland College golf team this year.

After four tournaments, the team has proved themselves to be in in the top three.

At the Black Hawk Invitational on Sept. 2, the team placed second in against 11 schools with freshman Mike Greenwood placing first in the individual tournament.

At the Parkland Invitational on Sept. 10, they placed second out of 20 schools. Sophomore Mike Sebastiani also placed second individualIv

On Sept. 12-13, the team placed second again at the John Logan Invitational with 15 schools competing.

Coach Greg Thom says that the season has been running smoothly. "We're extremely positive about our performance so far," he said. "We're very encouraged."

Thom says that the team has a lot of focused players that have kept up with golfing over the summer.

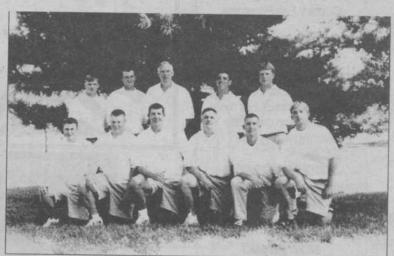

"We've got some real good players," he said." They've played in tournaments this summer and have done real well in competitions." This past week, Thom has had to split his team up because of class schedules.

Half of them competed in the DuPage Invitationa on Mon. Sept. 21, placing sixth. The other half will compete this Fri. Sept. 25 at the Prairie State Invitational.

However, Thom will keep the team together for the ICC Invitational this weekend.

With the successful season, the golf team is looking forward to regionals. Thom says that the team has the ability to win the championship.

"This team has a lot of depth," he said. "On any given day we've got 6 or 7 players that could win a tournament individually.

"Hopefully this team right now should have some confidence because we have done well."

Regionals will take place next month in Springfield.

Cross Country saves season

BY: BARBARA TORBECK PROSPECTUS STAFF WRITER

The Parkland cross country teams are off and running to a slow start this year.

At the Eastern Illinois Invitational on Sat. Sept 19, the men's and women's teams finished seventh place out of eight schools.

While the team has been disapointed with the results, it has not been for lack of effort.

"Lately we've been trying to concentrate on being a team," said team member Chad Streff. "I f we can run as a team, we're going to run good times."

Futhermore, one of the key runners, Sarah Dietrich is out with an injury making the rest of the team cover for her.

Despite the hardships, the team still has perservered and is hoping to place in the top five at Nationals in November.

Right now, the Cobras are looking ahead to the Danville Invitational on Sat. Sept. 26. There they hope to do better. "We're going to go after Danville and try to beat them," said Streff. "When a team does well, everybody feels better about themselves."

To benefit Parkland Golfers raise $1,200 in pledges

Sixteen golfers played 100 holes to raise $1,200 in pledges in the Parkland Golfathon at the Brookhill Golf course in Rantoul last week.

Best scores were carded by Clark Peterson and Mike Tennant,

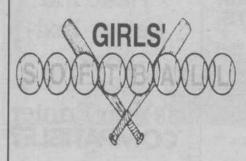

Peterson also had the longest drive. Longest putts were made by Mike Hagen and Zach McNabney.

Becky Beach and Mark Morfey won closest to pin, and Jeff Butts won the closest second shot competition.

Jim Rossow, of the News-Gazette, played as well as Parkland alumni and staff.

Bill Anderson and Ray Smith were hosts at Brookhill.
