Student Government Announcements

Senator Langhofer has announced his intention of running for Parkland's Board of Trustees. Having collected the necessary amount of signatures, he has already filed his petition and gained a spot on the April 13th ballot.

Senator Langhofer is the fourth of five candidates competing for the three open trustee chairs. President Ward commented, "I feel that the reason that Senator Langhofer is running for this seat is because he wishes to successfully express the students' point of view with a full, (not just an advisory), vote."

When queried on his own motivations for running, Senator Langhofer stated, "I disagree with the current Board's continuous and unanimous votes to increase our tuition. The only way for me to directly impact the Board's vote count is to sit on the Board myself, as a full trustee (not just a student trustee). I believe that my serving in such a capacity will best serve the students' interest."

The election will be held on April 13th, and will be open to all registered voters in Parkland College's community college district.

Theatre's Brighton Beach Makes Memories

By: ZACH STANBERRY
PROSPECTUS STAFF WRITER

Crossing a Jewish family's bitter reality with stunning and bright comedy makes "Brighton Beach Memoirs," by playwright Neil Simon, Parkland College's next smash production.

With such greats as "The Odd Couple" and "Lost in Yonkers," Neil Simon has written another winner.

Eugene Jerome, portrayed by Seth Shapiro, is the main character in this two-hour play. Eugene is a fifteen-year-old boy that is obsessed with baseball and girls.

As his family moves through the 1930's and into the beginning of World War II, he discovers that there is more to life than himself.

Struggling to make ends meet, his father Jack, portrayed by Mark Allen Hudson, is forced to work two jobs and barely has time for himself when he gets home at night.

Jack's wife Kate, portrayed by Lauren Gasparo, only wants the best for her family.

This is evident in the fact that her sister Blanche Morton, played by Susan Fortenberry, and Blanche's two teenage daughters Nora and Laurie, played by Angela Coten and Erin Meeker, live with the Jerome family.

All seven cast members exist in the smallest amount of room possible, making confrontation inevitable and escape impossible.

As the first scene ends, Jack has lost one of his jobs and Stanley faces the loss of his job because he stood up for his ethics.

Blanche is struggling with letting her oldest, Nora, try out for a Broadway production and Kate is trying to get Blanche to get out of the house more often to meet good men.

Amidst all these people's problems, all Eugene can think about is girls and sex.

With several plots happening at the same time, the cast's magic onstage helps create a vivid imagery of what this family is going through.

Directed by Jeffery Ullom, this play parallels the author's life as an adolescent.

There will be a special preview performance on February 10 at 8:00 p.m. at the Parkland theatre for $2.99.

Brighton Beach Memoirs will play through February 27. For additional showtimes and ticket prices, call 351-2528.

After seeing only the first act, this play is a definite must see.

Parkland Begins New NAACP Chapter

By: J. DAVID OSINGA
PROSPECTUS STAFF WRITER

On Thursday, February 4, Parkland will commence a new chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). This event will take place from 12:00 to 1:00 in the Gallery Lounge and will feature a speech by the regional president of the NAACP, Cleveland Jefferson.

During this ceremony, Jefferson will induct 25 new chapter members as well as give an overview of the goals of the NAACP while answering questions anyone might have.

The inductees will then be faced with the task of developing a constitution and electing members for Parkland's newly founded organization. Although the chapter will begin with 25 members, they will always accept more, regardless of ethnic background.

The NAACP began in 1911, following a conference in New York City called by sixty prominent black and white citizens in 1909 to renew the struggle for civil and political liberty.

Participants at this conference agreed to work toward the abolition of forced segregation, promotion of equal education and civil rights under the protection of law, and an end to race violence. Two years following that conference, the NAACP was founded.

For the first twenty years, the organization's focus was ending discrimination through legal action. This process was slow and evolutionary, but was imperative in winning full constitution guarantees for the rights of minorities.

In the thirties, the NAACP shifted its focus from racial brutality to grim economic conditions brought about by the Great Depression. The Association fought hard against discrimination in New Deal programs and eventually opened a door as FDR banned racial discrimination in industries which received federal contracts.

When the nation went into World War II, the NAACP launched its own war against racial discrimination in the armed forces, succeeding in 1948 as President Truman issued an Executive Order prohibiting racial discrimination in the federal service.

In the fifties and sixties, as desperate attempts to outlaw the organization failed, the NAACP's power grew stronger. Rallyists would protest through non-violent means such as sit-in demonstrations, marches, and the historic case of Rosa Parks, who refused to give up her seat on a bus to a white man.

The Association won passage of many civil rights legislation in Congress, beginning with the Civil Rights Act in 1957. Subsequently, the NAACP-led coalition produced the Civil Rights act of 1960 and 1964, the Voting Rights Act of 1965, and the 1968 Fair Housing Rights Act. In just a short time, the NAACP had changed the American society through means of a non-violent social revolution.

Parkland's chapter will hope to carry on these ideals and focus on ensuring the political, educational, social, and economic equality of minority group citizens of the United States.

This chapter will be part of a network of more than 2,200 branches covering all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Japan, and Germany.

Parkland will join the NAACP in coordinating many of its programs such as its own health division, educational programs, and legal affairs.

Come listen to Cleveland Jefferson as he explains the future of the NAACP as well as commencing the start of Parkland's very own chapter.

Bowser-Kiener will lead third Parkland trip to Paris

The third annual Parkland tour to Paris, France, will be May 28 — June 6.

Martha Bowser-Kiener, French instructor and director of the Study Abroad program, will serve as leader of the tour.

The trip is open to others with priority given to Parkland students and employees.

The trip price, which is less than $1,500, includes transatlantic airfare from Chicago, hotel accommodations with daily breakfasts, a half-day guided city tour on arrival day, entrances to the Louvre, palace at Versailles, Eiffel Tower, and an evening boat ride on the Seine River. Special welcome and farewell dinners are included.

For further information: 373-3707 or office at C221.

Parkland kicks off Black History Month

By: J. DAVID OSINGA
PROSPECTUS STAFF WRITER

Black History Month is just around the corner and, already, many events are in the making.

The festivities will begin at 7:00 p.m. on Saturday, January 30th at the Parkland theater with Gospel-Fest, a concert featuring the best of Champaign-Urbana's gospel choirs and soloists. This presentation is free to attend and open to all.

On Tuesday, February 2nd, the Black Student Association will be sponsoring a Unity March meeting in front of the library at noon, including a speaker who is to be announced. According to Katherine Candler, Activities Program Manager, "This event is open to any race...it's intent is not to separate, just educate."

Later that week, on Friday, February 5th, there will be a poetry reading presented by award-winning performance poet Mary E. Weems about work based on her experience as an African American woman entitled, "Ain't I a Woman." This reading will be presented at noon in room X107.

On Wednesday, February 10th at noon, the Office of Student Life will put on a Jeopardy-style game show called "Think Fast" in the south lounge.

Following that day, on Thursday, February 11th, there will be a time of poetry and skits taking place from 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. This is an open session for anyone who desires to share, but should relate to the theme, "Celebrating Our Heritage."

On Thursday, February 18th, the Black Student Association will host a Soul Food Dinner in the south lounge from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. for a small price.

Finally, on Thursday, February 25th, in the Flag Lounge from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., there will be a dedication to past Black Musicians and Artists. "It will break down where music originated from and how it has affected the culture as a whole," said Candler.

For more information on any of these activities, call 353-2627.

Come participate in helping Parkland commemorate February as Black History Month.

Did ya know? (Inventions)

By: BRIAN ROBERTS
PROSPECTUS STAFF WRITER

Now, more than ever, is the perfect time to inform people, whether white or black, of factual information, as opposed to misinformation received in school and history books.

My purpose is not to offend or disrespect, but to show the many contributions black people have made to this country and the world.

My hope is that this column will provide knowledge and erase some of the stereotypes that have been placed on black people since their arrival on the slave ships.

- On August 10, 1894 the House of Representatives read the names of black inventors into the Congressional Record?

- A.B. Blackburn invented the railroad signal?
- J.A. Burr invented the lawnmower?
- W.R. Davis Jr. invented the library table?
- W.A. Lavalette invented the printing press?

- West Africans introduced the rice plant and its cultivation to North America? English settlers had no knowledge of rice cultivation until West Africans, who had grown the rice plant since 100 A.D., were transported by English planters on Barbados to South Carolina in the late seventeenth century.

- R.A. Butler invented the train alarm?

- In 1971 inventor and mathematician Benjamin Banneker produced the first scientific book written by an African American? The almanac consisted of weather data, tidal information for Chesapeake Bay, recipes, medical remedies, poems, abolitionist essays, and information about festivals and holidays.

- J.B. Allen invented the clothes line support?
- On March 3, 1821, Thomas Jennings became the first African American to receive a patent? Jennings invented and patented a new process for cleaning clothing.

- Norbert Rillieux, a freeborn African American from New Orleans revolutionized the sugar industry when he invented the multiple-effect evaporator for refining sugar?

- W. Johnson invented the egg beater?
- J.T. White invented the lemon squeezer?
- Lewis Temple invented the toggle whaling harpoon, a harpoon with a movable head that prevented whales from slipping loose from the hook and escaping?

- The term, "The Real McCoy" comes from the automatic engine lubricator that Elijah McCoy invented to continuously oil train and ship engines? McCoy acquired fifty-seven other patents for devices designed to streamline the automatic lubrication process of machinery.

- A. J. Beard invented the rotary engine?
- A. Miles invented the elevator?
- Jan Ernst Matzeliger invented the shoe lasting machine?

- Granville T. Woods, known as "The Black Edison" invented a telegraphic device for transmitting messages between moving trains?

- Archia Ross invented the wrinkle-preventing stretcher? Ross also invented a device for keeping handbags closed and a runner to be used on doorsteps.

- Master cook Joseph Lee invented the bread crumbling machine? Lee used the crumbs to make croquettes, scalloped oysters, cutlets, dressing for poultry, cake batter, and puddings.

- Garret Augustus Morgan invented the gas mask and the stoplight?

- Shelby J. Davidson invented the adding machine?

- James A. Jones of Jackson, Tennessee invented "The Jones" vehicle spring, which is preferably known as the convertible top today?

- Frederick McKinley Jones invented the portable x-ray machine, a refrigerator for military field kitchens, and mechanical refrigeration techniques that were applied to railroad cars and trucks?

- Michael Croslin invented the Medtek 410, a computerized blood pressure measuring device?

"The story of African-Americans is the story of one of the greatest flights of the human spirit in human history and that the history called American history cannot be understood or redeemed without a confrontation with the history called Black history."

Evening Offerings

By: Sharon D. Wenger
Prospectus Staff Writer

Do you attend evening classes at Parkland? Have you considered evening classes? Have you ever wondered what services are available at Parkland in the evenings? You may be surprised!

The most obvious of all of the evening services at Parkland is the availability of evening classes.

Almost all academic departments have some evening course offerings; some even have their programs set up so that students can complete a certificate or degree entirely by attending evening and/or night classes.

Nursing, for example has an evening/weekend option available, and of the 211 Humanities class sections offered this term, 40 are in the evening – nearly 20%. A quick look in your Parkland class schedule shows the extent of course availability. There were only a few departments for which I could find no evening classes offered this semester.

There are also many non-credit and special interest courses available.

The Counseling Center, A251, is open Monday through Thursday evenings until 8:00 p.m. Services offered include academic counseling and advising as well as individual and personal counseling. Walk-ins are accepted during the evening hours or appointments can be scheduled by calling 351-2219.

Marilyn Ryan, the evening counselor on duty, will be more than happy to assist you with course work, graduation or transfer planning, as well as any personal issues you might wish to discuss.

There is also a student receptionist available during the evening hours to schedule appointments or assist you in any way.

The Fine Arts Department has numerous offerings in the evening as well as a large selection of both credit and non-credit classes.

Music ensembles, consisting of both students and community members, practice and perform in the evenings.

There are Mass Communications labs and workshops available, and theatre productions have evening performances.

The Art Gallery is open from 6:00 - 8:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday and the Parkland Radio Station, WPCD, is on the air until 10:00 p.m. with plans in the works to extend airing 24 hours a day.

The Admissions Office is open until 8:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Students can request transcripts, class schedules, grades, and can add or withdraw from classes. In addition, the front desk personnel can assist with information on class locations and cancellations.

The GED and Transition to College department offers tutoring and advising in the evening.

The Humanities department provides a Writing Center, staffed with English instructors, and Learning Lab, both open from 5:30 p.m. until 7:10 p.m. Monday through Thursday for students who need assistance with writing and study skills.

The Business department has a student worker available until 7:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday to take messages and answer questions.

The Library is open Monday through Thursday until 10:00 p.m. and computer labs are available in both M and B wings, staffed by computer-literate monitors – some as late as 10:00 p.m. every week night, including Friday.

The Public Safety department provides many services as well.

In addition to crime response, all officers are certified to respond to medical incidents. They will also assist with jump-starting your car, gaining entry if you lock yourself out, and provide transportation to obtain fuel. If you would like an escort to your vehicle, particularly at night, dial 2369 from an in-house phone or use an emergency phone to request one.

The Career Counseling center is also open in the evenings and periodically offers workshops and seminars on a variety of job and career-related topics. These are usually advertised on posters around the college and on the cover of the Job Line.

The cafeteria is also open to serve evening students. Hours are until 8:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Numerous vending machines are available for snack attacks outside of cafeteria hours.

Many social and sporting events are also provided over the course of each semester. Watch for posters and notices in the Prospectus.

During the first week of classes, the Student Life and Continuing Education departments provided cookies and cocoa for evening students (reliable sources inform me that Dr. Harris also contributed to this venture). There are also plans in the works for mid-term and finals week dinners as well as a "make your own sundae" session for summer school students.

All of these services and facilities are available for students here at Parkland to assist them with obtaining the most from their educational pursuits.

Many of the evening students fall into the category of the "non-traditional" student. By "non-traditional," meaning:

"Any student other than a full-time student attending Parkland within two years of graduating high school and pursuing a degree, certificate, or transfer to a four-year college."

This is of course a rather broad definition and may even place the "non-traditional" student in the majority at Parkland.

There are many different categories of "non-traditional" students here at Parkland ranging from high school students to senior citizens; full-time employees to those struggling to get by; adults returning to school to PhD's in search of skill improvement...and the list goes on.

As a member of the group myself, I felt there was a need for a regular source of information for "non-traditional" students.

Beginning next week, there will be a weekly column in the Prospectus for the "non-traditional" student.

I will try to address a specific group of students or a specific topic each week and would also like to include some individual student profiles. I will be soliciting input and feedback from you, the readers, to incorporate into my column.

Although the first week's column will be mostly introductory, I will provide my e-mail address and encourage you to drop me a line including any suggestions, comments, or constructive criticisms you may have. ensharon@advancenet.net.

Barns to be on tour by Library Smithsonian

When the weather gets better (if it ever does), and you have a little free time (ha!), take a short walk out to the barns. An historical marker is located there.

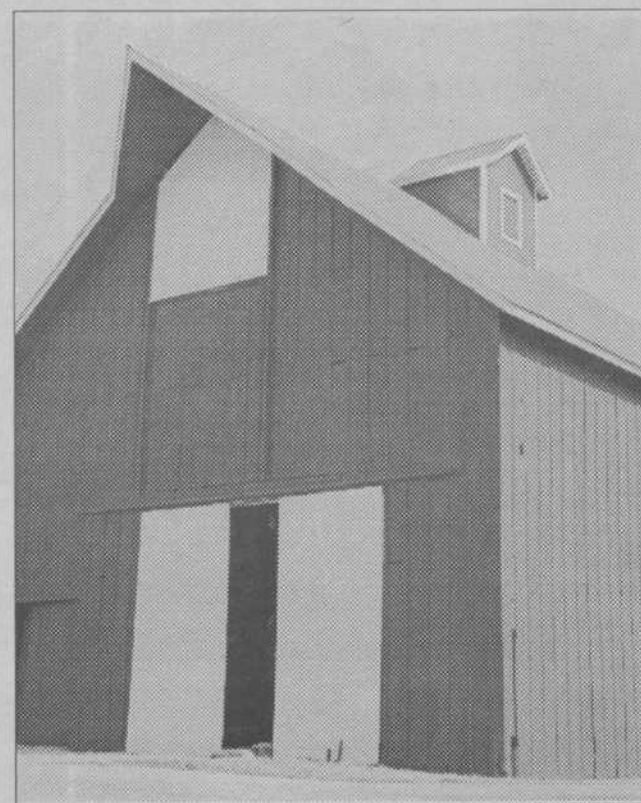

The barns are going to be included in a Barn Tour being sponsored by the Champaign Public Library and the Preservation and Conservation Association.

The tour is in conjunction with a traveling Smithsonian exhibit about America's barns which will be on display in the Champaign Public Library in late February.

Plans call for two buses to be chartered for a tour of historic barns in this area.

Details about the Parkland barns: The family of Fremont and Laura McMillan was traveling through this area by ox-drawn wagon on their way west when the wagon broke down. Winter was approaching, and they needed to stay put for necessary repairs, so they settled on this property. Learning that it was for sale, they decided to make it their home.

1999 marks the 90th birthday of the Parkland barn. It was built by the McMillans in 1909.

Girls Score Big, Highest in Four Years

By: BARBARA TORBECK
PROSPECTUS STAFF WRITER

The word "super" was what head coach Marcus Green used to describe this last weekend's game for the lady cobras. "We played Lincoln Land College and we scored the most points we've ever had in four years," he said. "We scored 94 points and played really well."

In fact the women played so well that they beat Lincoln Land 94 to 63 and it's all thanks to practice last week.

"We worked on a lot of our shooting drills and our defense," Marcus said. "It's because of playing good defense that helped us to score those 94 points."

Now with conference creeping around the corner, the lady cobras are working hard to stay focused on what they've learned this season from past games and practices.

The team's biggest challenge this last month has been the change of coaches. Walking into the second semester, the team had lost their head coach Argie Johnson and had Green, then assistant, fill in the rest of this season.

Green says that although there were some rocky points, the team has pulled together and has built themselves back up.

Furthermore, Green says that the women have improved since the break. When the first semester ended, the girl's record was 1-9. Now in the second semester so far, their record is 5-4.

Green says that this is due to some changes that were made when the switching of coaches took place. "The girls have really responded well. We are more of a running team. Argie tended to focus on more of a half court game."

With this challenge now overcome, the women are looking to they're next game this week on Thursday against Logan, a one-division school. Green says that this team is Parkland's next big challenge. "But if we just focus on the fundamentals, that is pushing the ball, play good defense, we can stay with them."

The game is at Parkland in the gym. It starts at 5:30 p.m.
