Parkland offers Kiswahili classes

By Patrick Yeagle, staff writer

Kiswahili, spoken by over 50 million people (some sources say as many as 100 million), is the most widely spoken African language. Beginning January 26, Parkland will have added a few more speakers to that total.

Kiswahili, often referred to as simply "Swahili", is different from most other African languages in that it is non-tribal, and is used for intranational communication, especially in Tanzania, Kenya, Uganda, Rwanda, Burundi,

Eastern Zaire, Northern Zaire, Northern Malawi, Northern Mozambique, northern Zambia to as far as Somalia, as well as by some people in Congo, Southern Sudan, the Comoros Islands, Northern Malagasy Republic, and the Persian Gulf states. The language is a mix of African, Persian, and Arabic languages, and the word "Swahili" means "coast". The exact time of this language's origination is unclear, but it is known that Kiswahili was spread throughout the world originally by traveling merchants and later by Christian missionaries.

Teaching Kiswahili at Parkland will be Leonard Muaka from Parkland's Department of International Education. The class, Beginning Kiswahili 1, will be an afternoon discussion/lecture format class worth four credit hours. It will meet from four to six on Mondays and Wednesdays. Registration for this class is still open.

Out with the old, in with the new

By Sarah Ramey, staff writer

On January 22 and 23, the college center was filled with books and magazines marked "free" by the Parkland College Library. No Parkland student could've missed the display, not only because there were so many books and magazines, but rarely can a college student pass up and offer deemed "free".

Why were these books so generously given away? Were they old? Decrepit? Diseased? Of course not, this was merely the end result of a library process called deselection, or more commonly known as "weeding".

"The Parkland College Library had not been extensively weeded in over 10 years," explained Anna Maria Watkin, Library Director,

The weeding process is a long, extensive process that involves an incredible amount of time and effort by many Parkland Library employees. Parkland's Librarians devote many hours going through books and magazines that are outdated, under circulated, or no longer appropriate for courses offered at Parkland College. Then, Parkland teaching faculty are invited to review the books in their own fields that have been identified for removal from the library. Cliff Bishop, Technical Services/Electronic Resources Librarian, said that not all works that are selected for weeding are removed from the library. If any librarian, or any other faculty member, prefers that we retain a title, the item will not be weeded.

Weeding is not a process in which books are devalued. In many cases, updated versions or other materials with more current, accurate information replace the books sold or given away.

"The only types of books we do not weed are literature and art books," informs Watkin. Most of the books given away last week were related to Economics, Business, and tremely important.

Expanding the library, which may seem like an inevitable step, is not likely in the college's near future. "We are at about the size we need to be, for the number of students enrolled at Parkland College," Expresses Watkin. "We will only need to expand if enroll-

Social Sciences, which have faced vast changes in the past few decades. "We also don't weed books from special collections that are unique to our library. For example, the clock and watch collection, though no longer course related at Parkland College, is circulated from our library to all parts of the nation."

The Parkland College Library contains over 121,000 items and during the past year, January through December, 2003, 4,304 books were weeded. In that period, they added 3,286 books. It is obvious that without weeding, space would be quite limited. However, space is not the only concern. The books offered in the library also contribute to Parkland's accreditation, which is ex-ment increases and in turn, more programs are offered."

On exciting endeavor that the Parkland Library will soon be facing, is the conversion to the Illinois Library Computer Systems Organization (ILSCO). Parkland will not actually undergo changes until August of 2004, but as of February 2, 2004, Parkland student I.D. cards will be accepted at over 60 ILSCO libraries. This will provide an incredible resource for students.

The library staff works hard at meeting the interests and needs of all Parkland students and faculty. They are always open to suggestions and requests which can be filled out at the suggestion box at the library, or online at www.parkland.edu/library.

Love, you got me on the run

Love, you got me on the run
Doing crazy things, things I've never done
Oh Love! Don't even let me be
You've got me in such a spin that I can hardly see
Love, what have you done this for
My heart's in such a whirl, don't think
I can take much more
Oh Love! I feel so strange inside
I feel like I'm on a roller-coaster ride
Love, I hope that you're for real
I don't think I could explain the way I feel Oh Love! You've made me feel brand new
Just when I felt there was nothing left to do
Love, I hope I pass the test
Since you picked me out from all the rest
Oh Love! You've made my day today
Never thought that I could feel this way

Just Ask June

Dear June,

Q: I've made a new year's resolution to lose weight. Which diet is best?

A: I hope that your goal is to be healthier. Fad diet plans don't always provide improved health over the long haul, so stay focused on better health and improved habits. Keep in mind that your goal is to replace habits that may have caused you difficulty in the past with new habits that are in your best interest. Remember that habits, both beneficial and detrimental, are learned and can be changed. Select some of the following "habits," force yourself to do them on a regular basis and soon they will become a natural way of life.

- * Add physical activity into your daily routine.
- * Add weight training to increase muscle mass.
- * Eat three meals and don't skip breakfast.
- * Replace refined flour with whole grains.
- * Choose low fat and low calorie foods.
- * Plan your meals and snacks so you don't get caught off guard.
- * Eat when you are hungry, eat slowly and stop when you are full.
- * Eat smaller portions.
- * Drink 5-8 glasses of water every day and avoid high sugar drinks.
- * Distract yourself from unhealthy cravings by taking some deep breaths or going for a walk.
- * Congratulate yourself for getting healthier and reward yourself with a healthy treat like a movie or a massage.

Biennial Ceramics Invitational 2004 to open at Parkland Art gallery

Press Release

Exhibit: March 1-April 9
Reception: Tuesday, March 16 from 6-8 p.m., Gallery Lounge
Gallery Talk by co-curators Chris Berti and Laura O'Donnell: Tuesday, March 16 at 7 p.m.

The Parkland Art Gallery is pleased to present its 9th Biennial Ceramics Invitational, curated by Chris Berti and Laura O'Donnell and featuring the work of nine contemporary ceramic artists. This year's exhibit focuses on functional ceramics, with a specific look at the rich decorative surface that clay provides. The exhibit will be on display in the gallery from March 1 through April 9.

Participating artists include Sam Chung, Michigan; Julia Galloway, New York; John Glick, Michigan; Michael Hunt, North Carolina; Ron Meyers, Georgia; Lisa Orr, Texas; Liz Quackenbush, Pennsylvania; Michael Simon, Georgia; and Melinda Willis, Illinois. Having a limited number of exhibiting artists provides audiences an opportunity to see a body of work by each artist, allowing a more comprehensive view of the artist's personal style.

Co-curators Berti and O'Donnell will provide a gallery talk at 7 p.m. on March 16, the evening of the reception. An exhibit catalogue will be available from the Parkland Art Gallery after March 1.

Berti and O'Donnell, who teach ceramics at Parkland, kept their students and the role of the Art Gallery as a teaching vehicle in mind as they developed this year's show. They chose to highlight functional ceramic works while demonstrating the variety of personal expressions that can be accomplished through surface design. The artists they invited all create functional pieces yet vary in their approach to, and the aesthetic embellishment of, their work. Each artist has achieved true personal voice in his or her artwork and has been able to create surface decorations and patterns that relate to the ceramic ware's functional use. Their body of work reveals the equal importance they place on function and the aesthetic experience one has with the artwork. The results of their efforts are objects that can be both enjoyed and admired, whether in use or on display.

The handicapped-accessible gallery is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m., Monday through Thursday from 6 - 8 p.m., and Saturday from 12 noon - 2 p.m. Programs at the Parkland Art Gallery are partially supported by a grant from the Illinois Arts Council, a State agency. All events are free and open to the public. For more information call the Art Gallery office at 217/351-2485.

Parkland to celebrate Black History Month

by Jesse Woodru, editor

February is national Black History Month, and Parkland has planned a feast of African-American cultural education.

Black History Month was started in 1926 as Negro History Week by the famous black writer/historian Carter G. Wilson. Wilson is known for his works edifying blacks instrumental in building our country and for his philosophy of history summed up by his famous quotation: "Those who have no record of what their forebears have accomplished lose the inspiration which comes from the teaching of biography and history."

Marva Nelson, from the English and Critical Studies Department, and Donna Tanner-Harold, an advisor, are co-chairs of the committee that plans Parkland's celebration of BHM. (See above for a listing of events.)

Nelson, who mentioned that

Black History Month is the shortest month of the year, said she was especially excited about the Black-American Literature Read-In—held in the Flag Lounge in the College Center on Monday, February 2nd. Cynthia A. Biggers, of the English and Critical Studies department will be coordinating Parkland's participation of the nationwide event. (Don't tell Cynthia but some of her colleagues are planning surprise recognition for her.)

The read-in is not just a celebration of accomplishment but also it is intended to encourage literacy. Held between 11-1 p.m. whole classes are encouraged to attend as well as individuals. Participants can bring something to read or just watch. Biggers will have selections ready for anyone who wants to participate but doesn't have any material.

Black History Month approaches, and Parkland has a celebration menu worthy of the longest BHM since 2000 (the last leap year).

Increased security measures underway at Parkland College

by Sarah Ramey, staff writer

On Monday, January 12, 2004, the first day of spring classes, many of Parkland College's students, faculty and staff were victimized in a burglary scam that spread throughout campus.

Wallets, purses and other personal items were stolen from five different office areas of the building. The suspect was reported to be posing as an outside contractor; either as an electrician or maintenance person and was able to gain access to several offices in six different areas of the college.

Approximately five incidents of theft were reported in this specific incident, with a total loss value of under $100.00

Public Safety, along with the cooperation of the Champaign Police Department, has identified the suspect and is working towards making an arrest.

Due to the seriousness of these events, Public Safety is working towards making Parkland College a safer place. In a campus-wide e-mail, Von Young, Director of Public Safety wrote the following, "For the past two months, I had been working with a department of the college concerning this very issue. We were in the process of implementing an identification program prior to the incident on Monday (January 12).

Public Safety is immediately taking steps to avoid future campus security issues. Firstly, "any outside contractor hired by the college that will have outside personnel in the college for business or service, will be required to register with Public Safety. We (Public Safety) will maintain a log of all such visitors and will issue them a Dept. Of Public Safety 'vendor' badge."

The second step that will be taken is that members of the Physical Plant will be required to wear a college-approved uniform so that they will be easily recognized as Parkland employees.

The last step being implemented at this time is that employees of the Campus Technology Department will be required to wear visible identification so as to provide reassurance that they are Parkland employees.

Hopefully these changes along with employee cooperation will establish a safer environment for all who attend Parkland College. Young wishes to encourage all Parkland students, staff and faculty to call Public Safety (2369) if any occurrence ever seems out of place. It will take a combined effort to truly make Parkland College a safe campus.

Parkland's impressive victory over Lake Land

Press Release

The Parkland College Basketball teams hit the road on Wednesday night and came home with two impressive victories over rival Lake Land.

In the opening game, the contest often resembled a boxing match, with the two teams trading baskets and the Cobras finally coming out on top. Although Parkland led almost the entire contest, the Lady

Lakers stayed within striking distance before the Cobras knocked down some late free throws and had several key defensive stops down the stretch.

The victory improved Parkland to (15-3 3-0) in the CCCI while Lake Land fell to (15-6 3-1). Alicia Ordner led the Cobras with 18 points and Sabrina Brandon added 11.

Student laughs off theft

On December 18, 2003, B-Wing, between 1:45-1:55 p.m. you stole my wallet. It was an old wallet inside a rather unique purse. I had stepped away quickly to take care of some pressing business; I wasn't gone long at all. Just a matter of minutes. I had in fact buried the purse under books, yet you found it, took it outside and threw it down near a garbage can. That's where Public Safety found it. It contained a total of $60. Twenty dollars spending money and $40 to pick up some medication. You see, I am a disabled person. I receive a check, once a month, social security disability. Stealing from me is like stealing from your grandmother but you don't care, do you? God has blessed me with a loving family who made sure that I had my medication. Are you that blessed? Is that why you steal?

The other thing that really got to me was the fact that you left the purse behind. It was small enough to hide under a coat and carry on out the door. It was only six months old. I've carried it a total of maybe 7 times, you can still smell the leather in it. You see, the purse was a Louis Vuitton. The cost was $300. It was a birthday gift from a relative. Let's see, Lois Vuitton, $300, at Christmas Time! GIVE ME A BREAK! It would have made an excellent gift for your mother or female friend of yourself (f you are a female). You will never make a good thief. A good thief looks at the whole picture.

A good thief would have taken the wholer thing. You are petty and narrow-minded and will get caught sooner rather than later. I pray for ou daily because I used to be a thief. But I was a good one. I never got caught and always stole the maximum, leaving no strings dangling. Maybe your stealing from me was some sort of penance for my prior transgressions. Somehow, I doubt it. You were too sloppy.

Sincerely,
You know who I am

Editor's Note:

This letter was sitting in my mailbox when I walked into the office on Tuesday. Strange as it is, I thought it was funny and I thought readers would like to see the impact the recent strain of thef has had on the individual level. I encourage you all to send me your funny stories and anecdotes. Sometimes I get bored.

Parkland women move back to #1, men move back into poll

Press Release

When it comes to D-II Junior College Basketball, there is no better place than Central Illinois. The Parkland College Women's Basketball team (16-3 4-0) moved back to the #1 spot in the latest NJCAA poll released on Tuesday afternoon. Coach Tim Wulf's squad is joined by rivals #2 Illinois Central College and #10 Danville Area in the poll.
