Pittsburg State University

On the Cover

Pittsburg State University, located in Pittsburg, Kansas, is a comprehensive four-year university offering a wide range of bachelors, masters, and specialist degree programs. Pittsburg State enrolls approximately 6,500 students in five areas: the College of Arts and Sciences, the School of Education, the Kelce School of Business, the School of Technology, and Graduate Studies and Research.

The photograph on the cover shows Hughes Hall, the home of the PSU School of Education. The facility houses a new, state-of-the-art interactive distance learning classroom and well equipped computer laboratory facilities.

The training of teachers and administrators has been an important mission for the University since its founding in 1903. PSU was first a normal school and then a teachers' college before becoming a university in 1977. Today, the School of Education annually credentials approximately 200 EC-12 teachers, 25 school administrators, and a number of school counselors, school psychologists, special education directors and other school and agency personnel.

The PSU School of Education is accredited by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.
