Vaccinations given

580 receive swine flu shots

By Jim Murray

More than 580 people received swine flu shots at Parkland Monday as part of this winter's nationwide immunization program.

"We could have handled about four times that many," said Bonita Taylor, head of Parkland's Health Service, "but, all in all, for a slow Monday on campus, the turnout was pretty good."

No serious side effects were reported, either, "just a few sore arms and a little queasiness," Taylor said.

The shots were part of the first shipment of monovalent swine flu vaccine given to the Champaign area, according to Bonita Taylor, head of Parkland's Health Service.

Earlier bivalent (which protect against both swine and A/Victoria flus) shots were given to persons 65 years and older and those persons who are chronically ill.

The shots were made available to Parkland and the University of Illinois first, according to Taylor, because of school schedules and finals. "Of course, they were available to everyone," she said, "but they weren't advertised. We just wanted to give students first chance for the shots so that the already confusing schedules at finals time wouldn't be further upset."

Other locations at which the shots will be available, according to Pam Aaltonen, director of nursing for the Champaign-Urbana Public Health district, include: Dec. 11-14, Market Place Mall; Dec. 14, Homer; Dec. 15, Tolono; Dec. 16, Mahomet; Dec. 17, Rantoul; and Dec. 18-20, Solo Cup Company, Urbana.

Aaltonen also reminded people between the ages of 18 and 24 that they should receive another vaccination sometime in January in order to ensure full protection against swine flue this winter.

The date for the second vaccination at Parkland will be Jan. 20.

PC news in brief

Christian booktable

Every Wednesday, there is a Christian booktable near the library steps. If you have any questions about what Christianity is and what Jesus Christ has to offer, there are people there you can talk to and books that can help to answer your problem. Many cost only 25 cents. Stop by and see what is there. Sponsored by the Parkland Christian Fellowship Organization.

Get away . . .

Student Activities is planning a spring recess trip for students of Parkland College. The trip will leave Parkland on Friday, March 11, at 4 p.m. and will return on Sunday, March 20. The cost of the trip will be approximately $131. This will include a round-trip Greyhound bus trip, 7 nights of lodging in a Holiday Inn on the ocean in Daytona Beach, a one-day trip to Disneyworld.

If you are interested, register immediately in the Activities Office or call 351-2264. Further details and arrangements will be announced at a later date.

Possible Hawks-Flyers tickets

Parkland Student Activities Office wants to sponsor a bus to the Chicago Blackhawks-Philadelphia Flyers hockey game at the Chicago Stadium, Sunday, Jan. 23. Tickets (bus and game included) will be $6.00 per person. Please contact Student Activities immediately if you would like to go, so the tickets can be ordered.

Parkland Sociological Association

The PCSSA will hold their last meeting on Tuesday (today) in C243 at 11:00. It's important that all members be present. To be discussed is the painting of the detention center, the trip to St. Charles on Thursday, our Christmas party, and our discussion Thursday night.

The PCSSA will have open membership next semester for all those interested in soc., psych., or society in general.

We'd like to thank all those who have supported our candy drive and to all at PC we wish you a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year.

Skiing anyone?

Want to go skiing? The Ski Club is planning its annual trip to Jackson Hole, Wyoming starting the 2nd of January to the 11th. Cost will be dependent upon participants and active members of the ski club. If you desire further information about this exciting winter trip, call the Activities Office (351-2264) or visit X153. Members of the Ski Club will have further information. The next meeting of the Ski Club is today at 11 a.m. in X239. Be present!

Reid will leave

Stu-Go busy before break

By Joe Lex

In a flurry of activity before semester break, members presented six motions for approval at the Student Government meeting last Tuesday.

Bobbie Reid also informally announced that he would be concluding his studies at Parkland and would step down as Stu-Go president. Diane Alexander, currently vice-president, will assume his post in January.

Chuck Elder moved that Stu-Go pay the executive board members their fall salaries of $112.50 each. Paid members are President Reid, Vice-President Alexander, Secretary Chicky Heenan, and Treasurer Robert Zettler.

Secretary Heenan moved that the members of Stu-Go "are in agreement of obtaining pinball machines to be placed in the pool room area," evidently in a move to indicate strong Stu-Go support.

Four motions were presented by Treasurer Zettler:

1) That the previously approved salaries of the Publications staff now be paid. Zettler noted that the funds would come from the Stu-Go accounts, because many Prospectus advertisers have not yet paid their bills. The monies will be transferred back at the beginning of the spring semester.

2) That Stu-Go set aside no more than $300 for placards on the newly-acquired Parkland bus. Further determination of fund usage would be made when the bus is returned to the college next spring.

3) That an additional $200 be set aside for possible use in the "Toys for Tots" program. Program Director Sonia Williams will determine if and when the funds are used. As reported Nov. 16, Stu-Go already has allocated $600 to this program.

4) That Stu-Go purchase a piano with "Other" funds for use in the College Center across from the bookstore. The proposed allotment for purchase is "not less than $1,000 and not more than $1,500." This motion was tabled temporarily and is expected to be a future topic of debate.

Tomorrow night is the final meeting of the semester for Stu-Go and probably be the swan-song of President Bobbie Reid. The Prospectus staff wishes him well in future endeavors and looks forward to working with the new president, Diane Alexander, throughout the spring semester.

8 cents asked for

Tax vote go-ahead given

The Parkland Board of Trustees unanimously approved a motion last night to hold a tax referendum sometime in the middle of February to increase the tax levy on the Education Fund for Parkland College.

The increase should be in the area

Current (1977) Parkland College Tax Levies	Parkland Tax Levies After Successful Referendum to Increase Education Fund by 8 cents
Education Fund	.08c
Building & Maintenance Fund	.10c
Bonds and Interest Fund	.042 (est.)
Working Cash Fund	.075 (est.)
Total	.297

of eight cents per $100 assessed valuation. At this time, Parkland's tax rate for the education fund is eight cents per $100 with the projected increase bringing the total to 16 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

During the ten years of operation, the College has maintained a constant rate of eight cents for the Education Fund, 10 cents Building and Maintenance Fund and approximately four cents levy to retire the bond issue for the construction of the school.

Last year, Parkland's eight cent per $100 Education tax rate was the second lowest in the state, to Joliet's 7.5 cent rate.

During the next meeting of the Board of Trustees (Dec. 15) the Board will decide the amount necessary for the tax levy and establish the date for the referendum.

If the tax referendum passes, the College probably will not levy the estimated 7.5 cent working cash fund tax and will reduce the bond issue by approximately one-half of a cent, leaving the actual tax rate constant at about 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Display case almost ready

By John Dittmann

The display case being built across from the information desk is nearing completion.

When finished the case will be used by the students to display art works created in the course of their work at Parkland college.

Students with hobbies may also use the case to display their work, but some discretion will be used when the display is of extreme value such as a coin collection or a stamp collection.

The main purpose of the case is to stimulate intellectual growth of the students by bringing them in touch with items of interest, as well as well as cultural value. Displays may also be brought in from the community.

Any student who has an idea for the use of the display case is urged to contact Richard Karch, dean of student activities in X153. As of now the display schedule is empty, with no items scheduled.

To the Students of Parkland College:

It is a pleasure to take this opportunity to extend holiday greetings. At the same time I would like to express my hope that you are in the process of concluding a successful and rewarding first semester of study.

Best wishes to you and your loved ones for a very merry Christmas and a happy new year!

Sincerely,
William M. Staerke
President, Parkland College

Letters to the editor

'Be true'

Letter to the Editor:

As this semester draws to a close I like to look back at what these past months have left impressed on me as a student of PC. Using a philosophy I previously quoted, "I wondered why somebody didn't do something, then I realized I was somebody." I can look around me and see there are people who care, everyday people like you and me who have made themselves that somebody. There are too many to mention, but a few stick out in my mind — that weekly newspaper that comes out has been the accomplishment of approximately five people, under the direction of Jerry Lower. How many of us have taken the time to tell them about the great job they're doing.

Student Government, with Bobbie Reid in the lead, has done numerous things for everyone that few people realize. Every campus organization is available and has given us experiences, knowledge and amusement to everyone involved. The band, the actors and actresses, our athletes, and the administrators have let us be able to say proudly, "I go to Parkland." Let us not forget the fabulous faculty who with their advice, guidance, intelligence and grades (sometimes DE-grading) have helped us become well rounded intellectuals (??). The janitors, security guards, the lady at the information desk, and the non-academic staff who maintain this institution in an organized way. Yep, we have a whole semester to look forward to. Why don't YOU become that somebody and take the Beach Boys' advice, BE TRUE TO YOUR SCHOOL?

DIANE ALEXANDER
V.P. of Stu-Go

'Toys for Tots' thanks

To the Editor:

We the representatives of the Parkland College "Toys for Tots" program wish to express our sincere gratitude to Goldblatt's Department Store for their generosity in aiding us to buy toys, and to Robeson's Department Store for their contribution of wrapping paper. The assistance of these two fine department stores have helped in making our Parkland College Toys for Tots a Success.

Also Ike Onley and I would like to personally extend a warm thank you to the following County Representatives for their efforts in the "Toys for Tots" Program.

Livingston County, Chicky Heenan; Iroquois County, Mary Kugler and Mrs. Kugler; Ford County, Joyce Markarian and Mike Duffy; McLean County, Phil Ferguson; Dewitt County, Terry Patterson; Vermilion County, Ike Onley; Champaign County, Diane Alexander; Piatt County, Jackie Lilly; Douglas and Moultrie Counties, Cathy Blomeley and Mrs. Blomeley.

Thanks again to everyone who has helped in "Toys for Tots" and in our attempt to help everyone to have a Merry Christmas!!! I feel "Toys for Tots" program is a most important program at Parkland College with the students working together helping the different counties that help support Parkland College and should be one to be continued every year.

SONIA WILLIAMS
Chairperson for "Toys for Tots" Program
IKE ONLEY

Letter of thanks

To: The Editor
The Students
The Student Government Body

I would sincerely like to thank the students and student government for being allowed to work for and with you this semester. It has been a pleasure and an education. I will long remember many things we've done together — our Punkin Judging contest, dinner with the board. As this semester ends, I am already looking forward to seeing all of you next semester.

If there is anything I can do for you, please feel free to ask. I hope that next semester will be as enjoyable and rewarding as the last one.

I would again like to thank each and every one of you for what you have done for me.

Sincerely,

Will piano haul students from annex of learning?

To the Editor and Charles Hall:

It is very interesting to note that the Student Government thinks that a piano will be relevant to student life.

Sure it will, if your major is "How To Rip Off The Taxpayer While Having a Good Time at Parkland." This is a public school, dependent on taxes.

The idea of having a piano in an academic environment is appalling. It also brings to mind a couple of questions.

One, does Stu-Go believe that piano-playing is a practical living experience?

Two, is Bob Zettler related to Lyon-Healy?

In all fairness, I must look at this rationally. Perhaps Parkland could offer P.E. credit for Piano Pounding 101. It is a very active sport, you know, what with the arms flailing, fingers wiggling and feet moving up and down on the pedals.

Piano playing might alleviate some of the congestion around the pinball machines, leaving them for the true devotees who sneer at the idea of gathering around the keyboard with mugs of hot chocolate, harmonizing old favorites by Cream, Judy Collins, Allman Brothers and BB King.

Maybe the piano wouldn't be such a bad idea, after all.

Sincerely,

'No Vacancy' at Bethlehem Ho-Jo

New version of Nativity told

By Kevin Gray

Without a doubt, you're going to see the story of the Nativity told a few thousand times over this Christmas, just like you did last year, and the year before, and the year before that, and . . . But I have written my own version of the birth of Jesus that you're not likely to hear anywhere else.

Mary and Joseph were traveling along Ben-Gurion Avenue in the little town of Bethlehem. It was a cold night, and the place, as usual this time of year, was jam-packed with tourists, all waiting to take their freckled-faced little darlings to see Santa Claus. Because of this, Mary and Joe were having trouble finding a place to stay. They tried the Bethlehem Hilton, the Bethlehem Holiday Inn, the Bethlehem Howard Johnson's, and the Bethlehem Marriott. No luck.

Joe turns to Mary and says, "I know we should have waited till at least July to come out here. Everybody and his dog wants to see Santa Claus."

"I know," replied Mary, "but it was either come here or have the baby in Jerusalem, and everybody knows that the town's full of people celebrating Hanukkah. So maybe we're better off coming here."

"I suppose you're right, dear," says Joe.

After they passed up most of the other hotels, they tried going the rounds of the budget places, Bethlehem 8, Bethlehem Motel 6, Bethlehem Quality Inns — all had "No Vacancy" signs up. Finally, when they were about to give up, they found a Bethlehem Days Inn with not many camels out front. They stopped and went in.

"I'm sorry," said the innkeeper, "but there's hardly any room."

"You don't understand," replied Joe. "My wife is going to have a baby, and there's no place else for us to stay. Couldn't you put us up in your garage?"

"We already have 120 people in the garage. You forget, sir, this is Days Inn. Here, everybody sleeps in the garage."

"Well, can't you make an allowance just this once? My wife here is about to have a baby."

"All right, I think we can put you up. You can sleep behind the Mercedes parked by the east wall."

"Mercedes! Why can't we sleep behind a Rolls-Royce?"

"The Arabs have bought every Rolls in the Middle East, sir, and they don't generally park around here. Besides, it's a fine Mercedes. It used to belong to Golda's nephew."

"Well, all right. I guess it'll do."

Mary and Joe unroll their sleeping bags behind the Mercedes after wading through a group of other guests on the floor. Not long afterward, the baby is born.

Meanwhile, outside, a bright star appears above Days Inn. A group of mechanics, watching their engine blocks by night, see the star, and straightway they leave their tools and run to the motel.

Further away, three wise men (graduates of the University of Tel Aviv) looked up and saw the brightly shining star above Days Inn. Marvelling at the sight, they jump in their Cadillac and high-tail it to Bethlehem, where they enter the garage and see the baby, reposing in a spare hubcap, wrapped in a Parkland College T-shirt (available at the Bookstore), and they bring him gifts of gold, frankincense, and a Six Million Dollar Man Bionic Repair Station.

As they all gathered around the baby, giving thanks to the Lord (and Mattel Toys, Incorporated), the door opens and in comes Santa Claus. He looks at the scene and bursts out crying.

"Does this mean I'm out of a job?" he says.

Washington clamps down

Vets must attend to collect benefits

by Joe Miller

PC's Veteran's Affairs Department, since Nov. 8, has been required by law to keep track of the attendance of vets who receive benefits under the GI bill.

If the benefit-receiving vet fails to attend classes regularly within 30 days without a good reason, his benefits are likely to be cut off.

Across the U.S.A., a small but significant number of vets first signed up for courses, collected benefits and yet didn't attend classes. This questionable practice cost the taxpayers a tidy sum. When the VA in Washington, D.C. finally got wind of it, they decided to clamp down.

PC's instructors are provided with special attendance forms to make sure the benefit-receiving vet is attending regularly (the definition of regularly varies somewhat from instructor to instructor). Every 15 days the instructor is supposed to return the forms to the VA department (X163). This leaves the department 10 days to try and contact the student and examine his reasons for nonattendance.

However, some instructors wait too long to send in their forms, and this leaves the Vet. department in a bit of a bind because they have to cut off a vet's benefits without examining his reasons. Consequently, they're asking and hoping all instructors will help them out by sending in their forms.

According to Joe Daniels, head of PC's Veterans Affairs, the new attendance regulations put added pressure on his department because it takes 30 minutes just to process one attendance form and a day-and-a-half for four people to process all the forms (that's a lot of form-processing).

Even so, the returns reveal that most vets attend fairly regularly. And most of those who are not, the department was already alerted to by reason of their receiving N's on the mid-term grades.

However, Daniels said his office will not be satisfied until all those are removed who receive benefits under false pretenses. And when it is shown that a vet does not attend regularly, he will be required to pay back all the benefits he received after he stopped attending regularly.

Prospectus wins

The Prospectus and three of its staff members were recent award winners in a competition for Illinois community college newspapers sponsored by The Prairie Statement, the student newspaper of Prairie State College, Chicago Heights.

Cheryl Niemiec, sports editor, also received a "Best Entry" award for her sports feature on volleyball player Kathy Kaler, which was also in the Sept. 12 issue.

One of two "Best Original Ad Layout" awards was given to Ward "Front" Page, Prospectus business manager, for his design of the "Wanted, Horace Greeley . . ." advertisement for the Prospectus. The ad appeared throughout the semester.

Prospectus also took honors in the competition as one of two "Most Outstanding" newspapers.

Still time for 'W,' not 'F'

By Joe Miller

Students beware that the big bad bear of final examinations is breathing and bearing down on you.

You better run for the trees or caves and bring your books and bear down 'cause you can fight off that ferocious critter with a big blast of B's and A's. Even so, come rain or shine, the final marks go in on 5 p.m., Dec. 22.

However, if ole Academia has you by the neck, or over a barrel, or if you're in some scholarly swamp (seeing no way out), there's still time to save your hide 'cause the last day for withdrawing from a course is Dec. 15.

Of course, a "W" isn't exactly close to an "A," but it's a lot higher and nicer than the big "F."

A "W" on your record — unless there's too many "W's" — is sorta a nothingburger. It just means that you withdrew from the course and there's multitudes of reasons why students withdraw from courses (lack of interest, funds, aptitude, etc.).

Also, if your Christmas wishes include bidding a fond adieu to Parkland, and you need a transcript for transition — for instance, your future university or employer wants one for the new year — then please pronto put in your transcript request to the Office of Admissions and Records X167.

The transcript office closes between Dec. 24, 1976, and Jan. 20, 1977. If your transcript request comes in during that period, it will just sit and wait to the processed because PC's employees will have their hands full processing students for Spring semester (along with holiday conditions and resolutions). So if a job depends on a transcript, act now and enjoy later.

Further, if you want your grades for Christmas cheer or for something to toast to on New Year's Eve, then make sure the Records Department has your right address. Their computer will send your grades to your last known address, probably the one you registered with for the Fall semester.

The Admissions people have previously stated, "Fall semester grade reports which are not deliverable to the 'Address of Record' on December 23, 1976, are usually returned to the Office of Admissions and Records. It will be impractical to re-mail such reports to another address (as has been done in the past) prior to the close of the 'late registration and add' period on January 21, 1977."

ALS courses available at Lab

By Robert Dyer

The Learning Lab is open to any Parkland student wishing to build or improve skills in study habits, math, reading, writing, communications, accounting, and more. The Lab offerings also include counseling services, both personal and academic.

The Learning Lab materials have been prepared and selected by Parkland instructors specifically for students. Every student has the opportunity to obtain individual help and to take advantage of learning at his/her own pace. Students select their own hours for working in the Lab.

Coordinator Dr. Cathy Livingston and her staff of instructors and assistants provide help over a wide range of skills at various levels: from addition through calculus, from spelling through term papers, from textbook reading through leisure reading, etc. Counseling in the areas of career choices, motivation, personal problems, or school related anxieties is also available.

Another advantage of the Learning Lab appears for students who have to drop out of a course, the student can simultaneously drop a course and add ALS 110 for equal or less credit at no extra cost.

For more information about the Learning Lab and/or the course "Applied Learning Skills 110" come to C153 or call 351-2441 or ask one of your instructors or talk to your counselor.

Crew keeps campus clear

By Dave Hinton

It has just snowed a ton, and you're wondering how you're going to get to class. Cheer up, for Jim Glasa and his groundskeeping crew were on the job last night, and you can get to class today.

You can get to class, provided, all the other roads are cleared off in time. "For many times, Parkland's roads are cleared before Champaign's are," says Jim Glasa, Director of the Physical Plant at Parkland.

Glasa is in charge of maintenance of the grounds at Parkland, which includes the clearing of snow which might keep students from class.

"If it starts snowing during the night," said Glasa, "we usually start clearing around two or three in the morning."

Glasa's men clear the snow which has piled over two inches, and a private contractor comes in and clears the roads for Parkland if the snow is over two inches.

With Glasa in contact with the Weather Bureau, he supervises as the contractor crew comes in with end loaders, bulldozers, and patrols to plow off Parkland's estimated five and one-half miles of roadways and parking lots.

Glasa estimated the average yearly amount of snow removed from Parkland's parking lots and roadways to be around 20 inches, which amounts to an average of 3,453 tons of snow.

Parkland has two big tractors, a snow blade on a jeep, and two small tractors. The small tractors can be used to push the snow off the sidewalks.

The custodians are responsible for sweeping off all the snow around the doors and wherever else the tractors can't reach.

"Sometimes you get a real slushy snow, and it freezes and becomes very slick," said Glasa. "So we have to spread rock salt or sand."

Chan Ngo sweeps the sidewalk outside the Communications Building during last week's "first snow."

"We've been getting better at snow removal," he added. "The worst snow we've had here was in December of '73 when we had snow about as high as the top of the car tires."

Many students would like to use fallen snow as an excuse for not attending class. But Jim Glasa and his men do their best to have Parkland's roads cleared by the time morning classes begin.

Apple Tree auditions through Thursday

Auditions for Parkland College's musical comedy production, The Apple Tree, will be held today through December 9 with call backs on December 10. Auditions are open to all Parkland students, faculty, staff, and residents of Parkland Community College District 505.

Interested persons serious about getting one of the leading roles in the musical are urged to attend as many audition sessions as possible so the director Barbara Schaeffer, musical director, Ernie Hoffman, and the choreographer have adequate opportunity to size up their suitability for any of the parts. Schedule for tryouts: today, December 7, noon-1 and 4-10 p.m., Room C140;

December 8, 4-10 p.m., Room C140; and December 9, 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and 4-10 p.m., Room C140. Call backs are on December 10, 4-10 p.m. in Room C140.

The Apple Tree will be presented at Parkland March 1, 2, 3, 4 and at Paxton on March 6. Rehearsals will start immediately after Christmas break on Monday, January 17. The Apple Tree consists of three short musical comedies, The Apple Tree, The Lady or the Tiger, and Passionella. There are nine leading roles, as well as many smaller parts and a chorus. Since there are so many shows, parts, and songs, anyone serious about auditioning should check out a script, musical score, and tape cassette of the show which are now on reserve in the Parkland library.

Auditioners should come prepared to sing. Anyone who has not had time to learn any of the songs from the show should bring sheet music from at least two songs that show their voice range. One of the songs should be a ballad and the other should be an up-tempo type of song.

Auditioners will be asked to sing songs from The Apple Tree, so it is recommended that they start learning them now. Anyone auditioning for the chorus only, need not learn music from The Apple Tree but should bring their two pieces of sheet music.

All persons trying out for the musical will be given a simple dance movement to do, so auditioners should wear shoes and clothing conducive to easy movement.

All persons trying out for acting parts should have read through the script at least once. They will be asked to write down which roles they want to read for when they fill out an audition form.

A rehearsal pianist, costumer, set designer/technical director, stage manager, and assistant to the director are also needed as well as many of the other staff and crew positions. Persons interested should call Barbara Schaeffer at (217) 351-2326 or the chairman of the Communications Division, Paul Batty, at (217) 351-2313 if they are interested in filling any of the above positions.

Workshop-Tea Wed.

The students and staff of the Parkland College Teacher Aid Program will host their Eighth Annual Workshop-Tea at the campus on December 8, 1976, at 3:30 p.m.

Guests will include teachers and administrators from elementary school in Champaign, Thomasboro and Monticello, as well as the HEED school in Rantoul.

Mark Twain

Cast 'live' their characters

By Peg Vermillion

Parkland College Community Cultural Series saluted Samuel L. Clemens Saturday night in a production of his short stories.

The cast of six versatile members (one male and five female) not only portrayed, but lived the characters of "Mark Twain's American Humor." The actors engaged all their talents ranging from a "country hick" trying to explain the death of his friend to the story of creation. Together, Harl Ray, Jackie and Lisa Farber, Paula Gray, Laura Magnus, and Debbie Bolomos presented an enjoyable evening of exceptional entertainment.

Using an informal stage procedure, the production commenced with a slide and oratory presentation of the life of the author. Bringing the characters to life, the cast enacted "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County." The two persons conversed on the subject of Leonidas W. Smiley and his compulsive betting. As the story progresses, Smiley is tricked into betting on his jumping frog only to lose, due to the fact his opponent "filled him full of quail shot — filled him pretty near up to his chin."

With an interlude into Twain's background, the setting changed to a railroad car in which an ex-congressman began to reiterate his adventure of "Cannibalism in the Cars." Along with the explanation of the election of candidates for death, the author included the details of taste, texture and juiciness of the victims.

"Tom Sawyer" became the center of attention in the famous white-wash episode of the same book. Not only convincing his friends of the personal responsibility of white washing a fence, he conned them into doing the job and paying him for it.

When telling ghost stories around a campfire, "The Golden Arm" was a supreme example. It involved the story of a man who amputated a woman's golden arm when she died. She returned to find the thief. After absorbing the audience in the details of her return, the actors left their viewers speechless.

Lack of communication in "Buck Franshaw's Funeral" produced a humorous dialogue between a "hick" fireman and a learned parson. In trying to convey the message of his friend that "traveled up the flume" or should I say, "kicked the bucket," the fireman used slang (the language of Nevada) and "didn't touch the subject under discussion" in the eyes of the preacher.

Although men are considered the aggressive sex, such was not the case in "The Diaries of Adam and Eve." Adam wasn't overwhelmed with gladness at the thought of having the "new creature with long hair" for company. After a taste of the forbidden fruit, he decided life with her would be tolerable.

For the final two scenes, the cast presented excerpts from the classics, "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer," ending with an epilogue consisting of Twain's philosophies on life.

Between the six of them, the cast manage to portray over 20 characters of Mark Twain's stories. No single member stood out. They worked as a team and presented quite a performance.

Students, teacher find that bird in hand no easy task

By Jerry Lower

A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, but a bird in the classroom is...

A small sparrow found its way into C118 lecture hall last weekend and was first sighted during the Com-111 course, co-taught by Ed Kelley and Dennis Bailen.

The bird reappeared from time to time, spending most of its time nesting in the ceiling fixtures and under the desks. It reappeared just in time to make class again on Wednesday morning.

After the bird had made a few short stops on and about students, and had left a few deposits in various places, instructor Dennis Bailen de-cidied his new-found student should settle down.

Bailen hustled over to the athletic complex, got a badminton net from athletic trainer Blackie Blackwell, hurried back to C118 and chased the bird for the remainder of the class period.

Bailen stopped the chase long enough to run down to the canteen to pick up a donut to use as bait to lure the bird closer to the net. It was to no avail as the bird seemed not to even notice it.

During the class, the sparrow made various appearances, at one time landing on the floor no more than five feet behind instructor Ed Kelley.

Class ended and the bird was still flying free in the classroom, so Bailen and two students stayed behind to try to catch their prey.

Using their coats, Mark Garrett and Greg Sellers chased the bird up and down the aisles as Bailen stalked it with his net. The bird constantly flew up to the light fixtures in the ceiling avoiding the coats and net of its predators.

One of the students suggested opening the back door of the classroom, which leads directly outdoors and turning the lights off, hoping the bird would fly to the light outside.

Opening the door did cool things off a bit but did not lure the bird out the door.

Finally the bird tired and landed beside a seat where Garrett threw his coat over it.

The persistent trio took the bird to the still open door and released him to the wide open spaces. Bailen exclaimed as it flew away, "free at last."

West Springfield Avenue's new businesses attract Parkland students

By Doug Alexander

As I was cruising down West Springfield Avenue one day and noticing a couple of new restaurants located there, I was curious as to why they picked this area.

Noble Romans Pizza and Arthur Treacher's Fish & Chips are the two new restaurants located on West Springfield Avenue that have opened within the last few months.

Also, two other businesses, The Company and Mann Theaters, have recently opened at Country Fair Shopping Center, which is just off of West Springfield.

The consensus of the four business operators concerning the reason for picking this area is that "potential growth" is strong. The four agreed that this area is a growing one and the people are spreading to the open areas of western Champaign.

Noble Romans Pizza

Ron Hein, operations manager, opened the doors to his 2107 West Springfield Avenue store Monday, September 13, 1976.

"Our site team, sent by the national firm, felt this location had good traffic patterns, and a potential to grow," Ron said. "The income levels are also very good in this area," he added. The team had three sites picked out and found this one to be the most desirable.

This is the first Noble Roman's to open in Illinois. The very first Noble Roman's restaurant originated in 1969 on the campus of the University of Indiana at Bloomington, Indiana.

It was a small carry-out store that at first seemed as if it would be just one of many local restaurants. This changed when the immediate public acceptance of hand-tossed pizza brought many requests for a "place to sit down" and enjoy this unusual and tantalizing pizza.

So, in 1970, the 27 year-old owner, Stephen M. Huse, built his first "inside dining" pizza establishment with a seating capacity for 150 patrons. He built this one on the opposite side of the Indiana University Campus than his first store.

Success wasn't limited to Bloomington as Noble Roman's expanded into Indianapolis and other cities.

Noble Roman's is basically a family-oriented type restaurant which has a popular menu mix featuring two types of pizza bread enough to satisfy three main customer groupings: the business persons lunch, the family dinner, and late snacks for young adults. A variety of submarine sandwiches are also served.

Tuesday of each week will be designated as Parkland night at Noble Roman's. Parkland students will receive a 20 percent discount on any pizza or sandwich.

Arthur Treacher's Fish & Chips

Treacher's licensee, Chris Rumas, conducted ribbon cutting ceremonies for the grand opening of his restaurant Monday, November 29. The restaurant has been opened for business since November 3.

Treacher's is located at 2109 West Springfield Avenue, and is a next door neighbor to Noble Romans.

Rumas also believes that this area is a growing one and has the potential to grow a great deal in future years. "It is my understanding that this area is growing and the existence of apartment buildings is also good," he said.

The first Arthur Treacher's unit opened in June of 1969 in Columbus, Ohio. The conception for Treacher's developed when Treacher purchased the oldest original Fish and Chips house in London, England — Mavin's of Bow. There are now approximately 500 units spread throughout the United States.

Treacher's served Crispy Original Fish and Chips fried in a secret recipe. Shrimp, boneless chicken fillets, and seafood chowder are a few other delicacies also offered.

The Company

"This was the best location in Champaign-Urbana that was available at the time," Mike Buechele, manager of The Company said. "Given the choices, the management believed this was the best because of population growth potential."

The Company opened its first store in Decatur, Illinois, and has been in operation there since 1970. The other expansion is a second year store in Bloomington, Illinois.

"We view ourselves as a fashion clothing store that is on top of fashion. Our selection is very large. We receive new merchandise weekly," Mike explained.

The Company deals with items ranging from shoes to blue jeans and from suits to leather jackets. They carry over 40 styles of blue jeans alone. The Company has a jeans wall displaying top styles from which the customer can choose. The sales person will then go to the back room and get the correct size of the specified jeans for the customer.

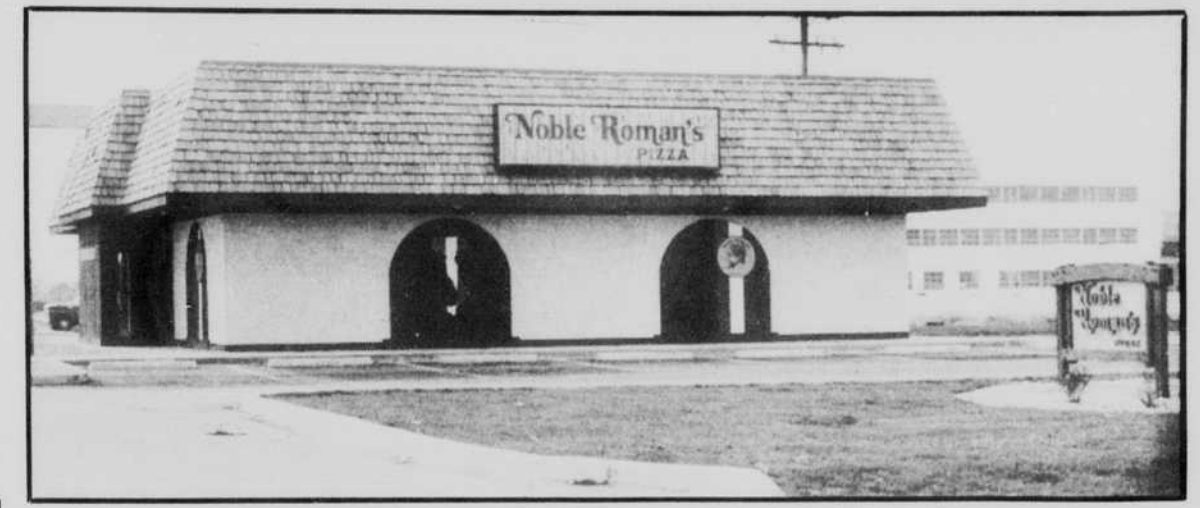

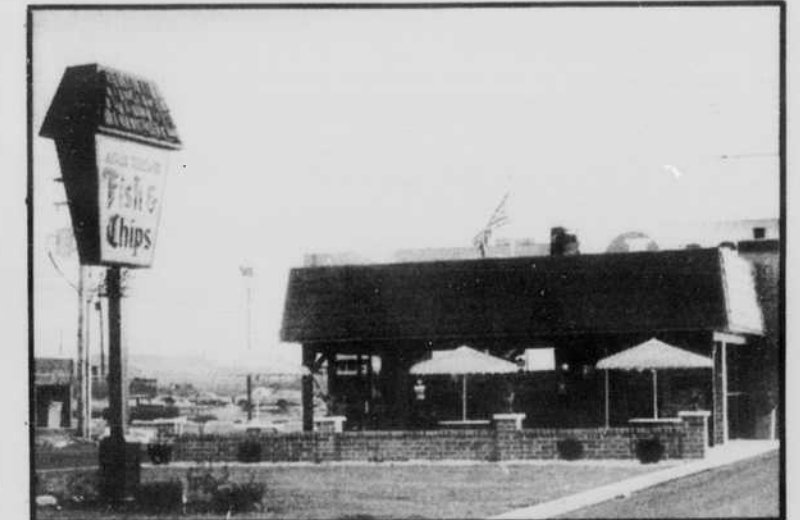

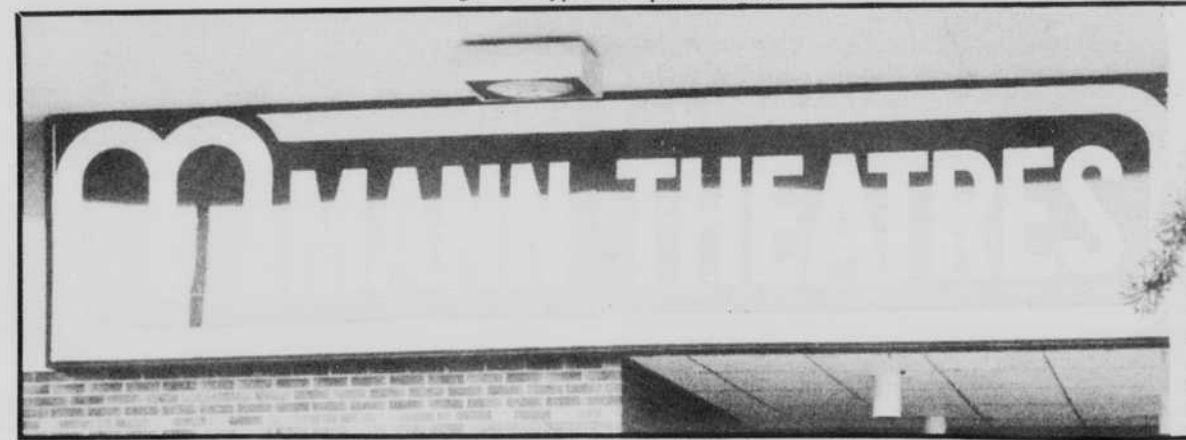

"We are here to help the customer; this is not a self-service store," Buechele stressed. "We are constantly marking items down — it's like a year-round sale."

Mann Theaters

Marty Hellwig, manager of the new Mann's Fourplex Theater, believes "This is where the people are growing to." Actually Mann Theaters has been at Country Fair since February, 1967, and has been known as the Fox Theater.

"We expanded an existing business and created four separate theaters in one. We just simply moved our lease over to this new spot. We wanted to stay in the same area due to its growth potential," Hellwig explained.

Cagers play seven games before Christmas

By Ken Hartman

With tonight's game at Olney, Parkland starts on a part of the schedule that sees them playing seven games in a period of 15 days before Christmas.

After the game with Olney, the Cobras return home for weekend games on the 10th and 11th with Lincoln College and Lake County.

Two days later, they go to Ina, Illinois, to play a very talented Rend Lake team that has seven players over 6-5 and is the probably favorite for the SICC Conference.

On the 18th, they pay a visit to Illinois Central before returning home to two straight games on the 21st and 22nd.

On the 21st, Parkland entertains Kaskaskia, a team with seven lettermen from last season. They are a team that lacks height but is very quick. Kaskaskia is paced by 6-6 sophomore Anthony Atchison from Mulberry Grove. Kaskaskia has six players from the tradition-rich Centralia High School on their squad on 14.

On the next night, the Cobras entertain Inver Hills, a community college from Inver Grove Heights, Minnesota.

This college gained quite a lot of local interest because of six members from the Champaign-Urbana area went to the college.

They were Randy Rogers, who is now the head football coach, Quenton Hillman, Ken Moss, Rich Langlois, Tim Kochemann, and Jeff Morrow. Morrow led Centennial last season in scoring and quarterbacked the football team this season to its best record in history. Morrow figures to be a main cog in the basketball team for Inver Hills.

All six of the above mentioned went to Centennial High School with Rogers coaching at the school.

Chillbains?

Getting here — the hard way

By Dave Hinton

It's so cold outside that your car door freezes shut at night?

It's so cold your steering wheel seems made of ice?

You are pretty certain you have chillbains, whatever that is?

Is that your problem, fair weather person? Well, don't tell John Seymour or John Dittman about it. They have to walk or ride a bike to campus on many of these sub-zero mornings.

John Seymour lives about 2½ miles from Parkland, and because of vision impairment cannot drive.

On Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, John gets a ride to Parkland from a friend. But on Tuesdays and Thursdays, he must walk to campus.

He could take a bus, but in Seymour's own words, "It takes as long to take a bus to school as it does to walk. Besides, it's good exercise," he says. "And I can't see paying to ride and end up heading in the opposite direction."

Some mornings kind-hearted motorists give Seymour a lift. "But it's usually not until I make the turn off Mattis and head toward Parkland," he says. "I'm most of the way there by then."

John's walking clothes include: a heavy winter coat, gloves, stocking cap, and on especially cold days, a ski mask to keep the wind off his face.

"It's good exercise, and I don't mind it, but sometimes it gets colder than hell," Seymour commented.

While Seymour is walking to school, John Dittman may be riding his bicycle on the mile journey from his house to Parkland because he and his sister share a car.

"Riding to school in winter is not very enjoyable," says Dittman. "I don't mind the cold too much, unless it's windy. With no corn standing in the fields, the prevailing Westerlies sweep down and bite me in the face," he said.

It takes Dittman five or six minutes to ride to Parkland.

Another not-so-enjoyable experience for Dittman happened several weeks ago when he was forced off the road by a car and crashed his bike into a parked car.

Dittman had to have seven stitches in his head. The accident coupled the frame of his month-and-a-half-old bike.

From now on, when you start to grumble about how cold it is in the morning as you scrape the frost from your windshield, think of Seymour and Dittman, the brave souls who must face Old Man Winter head on.

Prospectus wishes you and yours a very Merry Christmas, Happy New Year, and speedy finals. See you Jan. 25 when the Prospectus resumes publication!

Dotted landscape

Bugged by red beetles at PC

By Joe Miller

There are too many red bugs around Parkland. I was trying to find one the other day.

A friend was supposed to pick me up in his German Beetle. Looking over the blustery landscape, I spotted a red dot gliding serenely up the hills of PC. I walked to the appointed spot. But the dot turned the other way. I walked back.

Another red bug appeared on the horizon. This must be it. It glided around the snake-like pavement and drifted toward me and put its paws down behind a MT bus.

Confidently I approached and put my paw on the door which refused to budge. Questioning I looked in for my close friend but a strange lady starred out and motioned me away.

The wind blew harder. Another red bug appeared and disappeared. Students now were all gone. My expectancy remained.

Again, another red dot began to climb and undulating landscape. Could this be it? Maybe Mother Nature was fooling again?

Nope. There was a friendly face at the steering-wheel. And he even unlocked the door. He remonstrated, "Sorry, somebody had to give me a push to get started. Let's go get your car started . . . you've got the connections, I've got the juice." I relaxed and blighted the campus. However, he wouldn't agree to help stamp them out.

He did give my Falcon a charge. It managed to wing its way to the battery center. The smiling salesman gave a 54-cent "pro rata" deduction because my guarantee still had a month to run.

Thirty-one dollars shorter the Falcon took wings again to try and scatter some dust on bugs.

PC campus site is named CCDC award winner

By John Dittman

Parkland College and six other sites in Champaign County were presented awards of excellence during the CCDC's seventh awards program held at the Round barn convention center on November 14th.

The awards were presented by the CCDC for excellence in the development of land sites to fit in and beautify the surrounding area.

The seven recipients of the first place awards were Carle Park Playground — the Urbana Park District; Parkland College; the Champaign Park District for Robeson, Dodds, Heritage and Scott Parks; Garcia's

Pizza in a Pan on Green Street; Park Place Condominiums; the Village of Rantoul for its downtown redevelopment; Urbana Office Machine and Supply; and the Urbana Park District again for its sign system.

Cited in the Parkland award were Ernest J. Krump and Associates, architects; Berger-Kelley and Associates, architects; Brown, Davis, Mullins and Associates, engineers; Royston, Manamoto, Beck and Abey, landscape architects; Mergenthaler Landscaping Company; C. A. Petry and Sons, contractor for Phase I and III; and Kuhne-Simmons, contractor for Phase II.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW...

By College Life Insurance Co.

Here's a fantastic football record that may never be broken... When Bob Neyland coached the University of Tennessee for 21 seasons, starting in 1926, his teams held their opponents to an average of less than 6 points a game THROUGHOUT ALL THOSE SEASON — and not only that, but in the 216 games that Neyland coached in his 21 years, his teams held their opponents scoreless in 112 of those games!

***

Has there ever been a season when there was no unbeaten-untied teams in college football? ... It's happened only twice in this century, 1927 and 1936.

***

Did you know that in the 11 major bowl games last season, the UNDERDOG won 7 of them! ... In last season's Rose Bowl, favored Ohio State lost to UCLA ... in the Gator Bowl, Maryland upset Florida ... In the Fiesta Bowl, Arizona State upset Nebraska ... In the Peach Bowl, West Virginia upset North Carolina State ... In the Sun Bowl, favored Kansas lost to Pitt ... In the Tangerine Bowl, Miami (O.) upset South Carolina, and in the Liberty Bowl, favored Texas A&M lost to Southern Cal ... That's quite a record for underdogs.

Having trouble communicating with your car?

Perhaps you can't speak your car's language, but our Diagnostic Computer can!

Here's what our Diagnostic Computer does:

- The 2001 is a complete engine testing system that prints out in words and numbers information that helps mechanics diagnose and service engines.
- Sun's 2001 simplifies testing. It remembers diagnostic procedures and prints them on the screen for the mechanic to review and analyze.
- The 2001 incorporates seven area test modes: cranking, alternator output, idle, low-cruise, automatic power balance, snap acceleration, and high-cruise. Seven pinpoint test modes give the mechanic complete information.

The mechanic has the option of running these tests in an automatic sequence or selecting any test in the program simply by pushing a button.

In just a matter of minutes, the 2001 can generate detailed information to help him diagnose trouble faster than ever before.

Complete Diagnosis - $15.00

Moeller —the program he'll have to change

By Ken Hartman

Sit back and pretend that you are Gary Moeller, the new University of Illinois football coach.

As you sit there thinking about it, what would be going through your mind judging the past record of the University?

You might be thinking how are the fans going to react and how long are they and the University going to wait for a winning team. How many games will you have to win in your first year or two to keep your job? How will the players react to you and your methods of coaching? Do you have to go to the Rose Bowl your first year?

No stalling, now. No excuses. You need the fans — fast because the fans are fed up and the administrators are nervous.

Maybe now you can appreciate Moeller's problem as head coach replacing Bob Blackman. Moeller has the job of turning around a program that hasn't won enough to keep its pride and prestige up to the expectations in the past several years.

First, let's take a look at the man we've been discussing.

Moeller has been Bo Schembechler's assistant since 1967 journeying with Bo from Miami (Ohio) to Michigan with him in 1969.

He was in charge of the Wolverines' spring drills when Schembechler had open heart surgery. He was also in charge of the team when Schembechler was not there. He is a top assistant and a top recruiter.

Prior to becoming assistant to Schembechler, Moeller was an assistant coach at Bellefontaine High School in Ohio in 1964. He became head coach in '65 and led his teams to two consecutive league titles with a record of 13-4-3 over the two seasons.

He is a graduate of Ohio State in 1963 and played against Illinois and won all three years at the Ohio school. He also played semi-professional football for the Grand Rapids Blazers in 1963. He is a native of Lima, Ohio, which has been known as a hotbed of good football.

Moeller was chosen from among several others including Jim Young (Arizona), Don James (Washington), Dick Jamison (Missouri), Chuck Studley (Cincinnati Bengals), Dave McClain (Ball State), and Lynn Stiles (San Jose State). Stiles replaced the current Michigan State head coach Darryl Rogers just this season.

Moeller has supposedly been athletic director Cecil Coleman's first choice for the job, which seems rather odd that Coleman would consider a coach with not much more experience than at a high school level.

Two years ago, Coleman said that he would not hire a high school coach because of not enough major college experience. This was especially true in the hiring of Lou Henson as basketball coach.

There were many good high school coaches interested in the job, especially Sherrill Hanks then of Quincy High School, now at Quincy College as head coach.

Since the University seemingly can't wait for a winner, Moeller had better produce quickly. He must come up with a team that has good players, be respectable against any kind of opposition, fill the stadium (which has been a thorn in the side to the Athletic Association), and above all, be a winner, probably at all costs.

The task before him is a monumental one. With the likes of Missouri, Ohio State and Michigan on the schedule, it's going to be rough sledding for the first couple of years. However, in 1979, if Moeller can weather the stormy seas, the schedule gets easier than it will be the next two seasons. Air Force and Navy will replace Stanford and Syracuse on the non-conference part of the schedule, but they will still have Missouri on the schedule. The Illini will open next season against Moeller's former employers.

I sincerely hope he makes it; it's going to be fun watching Cecil try to resurrect a sinking ship. Then he, not the coach, will be on the spot, going before the Board trying to keep his job.

Good luck, Gary.

1-2 for year

Cobras go against Olney tonight

By Ken Hartman

The Parkland Cobras seek to even their record for the year tonight as they journey south to play at Olney.

Last Saturday, Parkland dropped a close 79-75 verdict to Lincoln Trail who improved their record to 6-0 for the year.

The Cobras erased a three-point halftime deficit to lead by eight in the second half before cold shooting did them in.

6-11 Richard Johnson paced Lincoln Trail with 19 points and guard Michael Gray added 14. Terry Brown of Parkland paced all scorers with 23 points and Jaffee Woolfork added 19.

Coach Ken Pritchett was pleased with his team's play even though they did not shoot well.

Earlier in that week, Parkland got its initial win of the year with a 91-88 decision over the Illinois Wesleyan junior varsity.

The game was nip-and-tuck all the way. With the score tied at 65, the Cobras put on a 15-6 spurt to move into a 80-71 lead with 6:20 left. But Illinois Wesleyan kept coming back behind Bob Sikma, brother of All-American Jack, and Steve Doran from Normal University High.

Brown again led Parkland in scoring with 35, followed by Brady Pritchett, Tim Smith, and Woolfork, all of whom had 14 points each. Sikma paced Wesleyan with 25 and Doran added 24.

Pritchett said that his team's performance wasn't as good as the first game against DuPage but they executed pretty well despite shooting poorly.

The coach was quite pleased with the play of Tim Smith, of Winchester, who connected on 7 of 11 shots from the floor, and played well. Pritchett was also pleased with the play of Mike Maupin and Jaffee Woolfork.

Lake County new team

Women's first opponents 'unknown'

By Brian Shankman

With only eight days of practice behind them, Parkland's Women's Basketball team is preparing for the unknown.

The "unknown" in this case is Lake County's basketball team, who will be battling the women this Saturday, Dec. 11, here at Parkland.

The Chicago area community college begins its first year on the court against the more experienced Parkland team, and when asked about Lake County's strengths Parkland Coach Lynette Trout remarked, "I really don't know anything about them!"

Team depth may be an important factor in Prkland's high hopes for a state tournament award this season. Coach Trout has not cut anyone on the large sixteen member squad, adding that she's "not even sure which five will start." Last year's team (9-5) won the consolation bracket in the tournament with only eleven members, and this year five of the women return: Kathy Kaler, Becky Rayburn, Pat Stahler, Diane Carper, and Karen Jannusch.

Saturday's match against Lake County begins at 5:30 p.m., followed by the Parkland Men's basketball game vs. Lake County. Admission is free to all Parkland students presenting an I.D.
