A thug tale: 'The Making of the Mob: Chicago' chronicles Capone's rise

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

Known as The Windy City, Chicago is famous for a lot of things — deep dish pizza, the L train and Oprah Winfrey to name a few. But the city is also infamous for being the setting of the rise of one of North America's most notorious organized crime syndicates: The Chicago Outfit.

A new docuseries offers viewers a dramatization of the events that led to the rise and fall of one of the Mob's founding members. Michael Kotsohilis ("The Dark Side of War," 2009) stars as iconic gangster Al Capone in a new episode of "The Making of the Mob: Chicago," airing Monday, Aug. 15, on AMC. In addition to dramatic reenactments, the program features archival footage and photos, as well as interviews with historians, authors, law enforcement personnel and actors famous for their portrayal of gangsters.

Actor Ray Liotta ("Goodfellas," 1990) narrates the series, which is now in its second season. The first season focused on the rise of the New York Mob, particularly with reference to Lucky Luciano, who was credited with revolutionizing the Big Apple's organized crime hierarchy by forming alliances and creating the Five Families. Attracting around a million viewers per episode, the debut season was a respectable success for AMC, so it came as no surprise when the show was renewed.

"The histories and the spectacular personalities inside the American mafia provides a fascinating real-life look at organized crime, and allows us to expand the storytelling beyond New York City," said AMC executive Joel Stillerman. "Al Capone is one of the most notorious crime figures, and 'The Making of the Mob: Chicago' showcases the canny criminal minds and brutish no-nonsense killers that will stop at nothing for power."

The eight-episode series picked up with Capone's early days in New York, and followed him on to Chicago, where he worked with his childhood mentor in the underworld: Johnny Torrio (Paolo Rotondo, "The Insider's Guide to Happiness"). After Prohibition was established, Capone got into the bootlegging business, garnering a reputation for his ruthless practices and flamboyant lifestyle, which attracted the attention of President Herbert Hoover. For a time, he was seen as a man of the people, even donating some of his ill-gotten gains to charity. However, the 1929 St. Valentine's Day Massacre shattered that rock star gangster image. Capone is believed to have been responsible for the murder of seven members of the rival North Side Irish Gang in a bid for power.

Season 2 of "The Making of the Mob" features appearances by actor Vincent Pastore ("The Sopranos") and Michael Madsen ("Reservoir Dogs," 1992), both famous for their portrayals of Capone-like gangsters. Jonathan Eig, a New York Times best-selling author and a renowned Capone expert, also shares his thoughts, as does former Las Vegas mayor Oscar Goodman.

While the focus of the series rests squarely on Capone's brawny shoulders, he isn't the only gangster featured in this season of the docuseries. Along with the aforementioned Rotondo as famed Italian-American mobster Torrio, "The Making of the Mob: Chicago" stars Jason Fitch ("Shortland Street") as enforcer Tony Accardo, newcomer

George H. Xanthis as seen in "The Making of the Mob: Chicago"

Christopher Valente as "The Brains" Paul Ricca, and Emmett Skilton ("The Almighty Johnsons") as Sam Giancana, known as The Wild Card.

Hollywood has long tapped organized crime for stories, and some of the most memorable films in history have dealt with the workings of the American Mob. From "The Godfather" (1972) to "Scarface" (1983) to even TV's "The Sopranos," North American audiences seem to be fascinated with the Mob, which is good news for AMC. "The Making of the Mob" appears to have a solid following, with about a million live viewers per episode last season, and another 500,000 or so tuning in at their convenience. Things appear to be on track for Capone's turn in the spotlight, as the opener attracted close to 1.2 million viewers.

Cable has recently been pioneering this type of program: a hybrid of drama and real life, mixing history, dramatic reenactments and interviews with experts and other notables. Stephen David Entertainment, which produces "The Making of the Mob," is also known for the highly successful History Channel miniseries "The Men Who Built America." AMC recently wrapped "The American West," a similar series that took a look at the lives of famous native Americans, cowboys and lawmen, as well as notorious outlaws in the Wild West.

While it's next to impossible to know the whole truth in such situations, programs like these consult extensively with historians and experts. The Huffington Post has credited "The Making of the Mob: Chicago" with taking a more human look at Capone's rise. Based on his actions, there's little doubt the man was ruthless, but AMC's series presents a multi-faceted Capone as opposed to the one-dimensional killer he's often depicted as in other TV shows and films.

Learn how the legendary gangster and his cohorts set the stage for decades of organized crime rule in the Windy City and what became of them in a new episode of AMC's "The Making of the Mob: Chicago," airing Monday, Aug. 15.

Highlights

this week

Sunday

Celebrity Family Feud

7:00 p.m.

Celebrity chef and cooking show host Paula Deen takes on Emmy winner and celebrity stylist Carson Kressley in this new episode. Later, Rico Rodriguez and his loved ones compete against Jaleel White and his family. Steve Harvey hosts.

The Night Of

HBO 8:00 p.m.

John Stone (John Turturro) defends Pakistani-American college student Naz Khan (Riz Ahmed) in a murder case in a new episode of this highly acclaimed drama based on the UK series "Criminal Justice." The show follows the investigation and trial.

My Big Fat American Gypsy Wedding

TLC 9:00 p.m.

This new episode introduces viewers to a gypsy named Hunter and her Cherokee boyfriend, who are madly in love. However, her mother refuses to accept him unless he passes a series of grueling trials. Also, Cherub celebrates her 21st birthday.

Monday

Mom

2 7:00 p.m.

Christy (Anna Faris) urges her mom, Bonnie (Allison Janney), to go on a date in this rebroadcast. Though the new guy seems great at first, he turns out to be full of surprises — and not in a good way. William Fichtner guest stars.

Tiny House Hunters

HGTV 8:00 p.m.

Now that she has a clean bill of health, cancer survivor Kristi and her husband Rafael have decided to live life to the fullest in this new episode. They have sold their 2500 square-foot home and are on the hunt for a tiny home.

Secret Eats with Adam Richman

TRAVEL 9:00 p.m.

Adam Richman eats like a local in Bangkok in this new episode. At hidden restaurants, he enjoys spicy curries and traditional boat noodles served in a locals-only floating market. He also samples an off-menu fusion Pad Thai at a noodle shop.

Tuesday

Pretty Little Liars

FREEFORM 7:00 p.m.

When Emily (Shay Mitchell) decides to toss her hat in the ring for a position as the Rosewood High swim coach, she discovers that ex-girlfriend Paige (Lindsey Shaw) is also in contention for the job in this new episode.

Zoo

2 8:00 p.m.

The race to solve an ecological mystery continues as humans try to stop a wave of animal attacks across the globe in this new episode. James Wolk stars as a zoologist who believes the unusual animal behavior may be linked to his father's research.

The Middle

7 9:00 p.m.

Emmy winner Patricia Heaton stars as a wife and mother struggling to balance work and home life in a rebroadcast of this comedy about America's middle class. The show also stars Neil Flynn, Eden Sher, Charlie McDermott and Atticus Shaffer.

Wednesday

MasterChef

32 7:00 p.m.
Celebrity chefs Gordon Ramsay and Christina Tosi guide the viewers through more challenges in two hours of culinary competition. Home cooks strive to impress the judges with their skills in the kitchen in this reality TV series.

Jep and Jessica: Growing the Dynasty

A&E 8:30 p.m.

Jessica and Jep stage a contest to determine which of them is more educational for their children in this new episode. Cameras follow the "Duck Dynasty" couple as their growing family experiences adventures, triumphs and hardships in this reality series.

Mr. Robot

USA 9:00 p.m.

Rami Malek stars as Elliot Alderson, a misfit cybersecurity engineer who works as a hacker by night in a new episode of this drama. He's recruited by a mysterious "hactivist" known as Mr. Robot (Christian Slater).

Thursday

The $100,000 Pyramid

7 8:00 p.m.

Host Michael Strahan guides the action as celebrities team up with contestants who want to win money. In this new version of the classic game show, celebrities give and receive clues as they try to guess mystery words.

Impractical Jokers

TRU 9:00 p.m.

The guys may dress like heroes, but they act like zeroes while trying to garner sympathy in this new episode. The big loser has to face the music with a tone-deaf punishment. Four friends try to embarrass each other in this hidden camera series.

Ice Road Truckers

HIST 9:05 p.m.

Lisa Kelly finds herself stranded hundreds of miles from the nearest town in this new episode. At the same time, Darrell Ward takes a chance when he heads for an off-road shortcut which hasn't been tested by any other truck.

Friday

Alaskan Bush People: The Book of Ami

DISC 7:00 p.m.

Discovery brings viewers three back-to-back special editions profiling some of the show's most beloved personalities. This new episode takes a look at insider info about Ami, the tough, warm-hearted matriarch of the Brown family.

Hawaii Five-0

2 8:00 p.m.

Steve McGarrett (Alex O'Loughlin) and the rest of the Five-0 team look into the disappearance of a high-tech, indestructible suit built for the U.S. military in this rebroadcast. Meanwhile, Jerry (Jorge Garcia) helps his sister save an elephant.

Dark Matter

SYFY 9:00 p.m.

When the Blink Drive goes awry during testing, the Raza is propelled to a parallel reality where the familiar is, oddly enough, unfamiliar in this new episode. Six adventurers with no memories of who they are wake up on a spaceship in this drama.

Saturday

Rush Hour

2 7:00 p.m.

In a new episode of this comedy series, rival Los Angeles gang lords meet at the request of the Quantou gang. Lee (Jon Foo) and Carter (Justin Hires) attempt to infiltrate the event to find Lee's sister and finally bring her home.

The First 48: Overkill

A&E 8:00 p.m.

Det. Warren Cotton investigates a shocking triple murder in this new episode. Three family members, including a 12-year-old girl, were stabbed to death in their home and then burned. This new edition of the series takes an in-depth look at the case.

Boston EMS

7 9:00 p.m.

The dedicated employees of Boston's emergency services allow cameras to follow them as they respond to calls in a new episode of this fascinating series. Find out what really happens when someone in trouble dials 9-1-1.

The Dead Files

TRAVEL 9:00 p.m.

In this new episode, Steve and Amy investigate a report of some disturbing paranormal activity at a family home in Gates, North Carolina. Cameras follow medium Amy and hard-nosed detective Steve as they search for evidence of the paranormal.

Sunday

SHOW 8:00 p.m.

Ray Donovan

Liev Schreiber returns in his Emmy nominated role as L.A.'s most sought-after professional fixer in a new episode of "Ray Donovan," airing Sunday, Aug. 14, on Showtime. He is responsible for protecting the city's celebrities, superstar athletes and business moguls from unsavory situations.

Q&A hollywood

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: I need some information about the show "The Good Wife." In which season and episode do Peter and Kalinda have an affair? This is the event that sends Peter packing.

A: There's a bit of a trick to this one, because the affair never happens on the show. The tryst between Peter (played by former "Sex and the City" heartthrob Chris Noth) and Kalinda (Archie Panjabi, "Grease Monkeys") is indeed the reason that Alicia (the titular good wife, played by Julianna Margulies) kicks him out of the house in the second season, but she only finds out about it well after it happens.

You'd do better to think about it in terms of the season than the episode. The discovery of the affair drives most of the personal drama in the latter half of season 2 ("The Good Wife" is the sort of show where the drama is split between personal and professional, with the personal plot being the thread that ties the episodes together). The actual revelation happens in Episode 17 (titled "Ham Sandwich"), but its reverberations continue for the rest of the season.

The fact that her husband had an affair shouldn't seem so terrible to Alicia, since the whole premise of the show is that she's forced to return to work after her husband is jailed as the result of a sex-and-corruption scandal. The reason this particular affair is so damaging is that Alicia and Kalinda had subsequently become friends.

The emotional turmoil Alicia went through is this show's bread and butter, and it got Margulies some favorable attention. "When this season is over, Julianna Margulies might as well just clear some shelf space for her new Emmy," said Vulture.com reviewer Jada Yuan. "To watch her stumble home in shock after finding out that Peter and Kalinda slept with each other and kept it from her is devastating enough, but then we watch her face as it hardens and hurt turns to anger and action, which is perhaps even more upsetting to see." Sure enough, Margulies did win the Emmy that year.

Q: Years ago, a movie was shown that I have not seen since. It had a scene with a handsome man walking out of the ocean, and I believe the actor was Monte Markham. I think it was called "Death Takes a Holiday." Is it on DVD? Where can I find a copy?

A: I'm glad you included the actor's name in your question, because the film you're looking for is one of two films called "Death Takes a Holiday." They're both based on a play of the same name.

Your "Death Takes a Holiday" was a made-for-TV movie that aired in 1971 on ABC. This is bad news, because ABC churned out a lot of them for its "ABC Movie of the Week" series (roughly one a week, to be exact), most of which never saw video release. That includes "Death Takes a Holiday."

I'm also glad you included the ocean scene in your description, because it is significant to the plot. Markham's character, David Smith, is in the ocean rescuing a drowning woman. We eventually discover that Markham's character is in fact Death in human form. He saw the young woman struggling in the water and decided to come to Earth to learn why humans cling so hard to life — essentially, why they fear him so much.

It's a solid premise that's been revisited a number of times. The play has been staged many times, including twice on Broadway in the '30s, and in recent years it was adapted as a stage musical. It also yielded yet another film adaptation in 1998, when it was remade as a starring vehicle for budding megastar Brad Pitt, under the title "Meet Joe Black."

This is where the good news comes in, because though the version you're asking about was never released on DVD, both the 1934 original and "Meet Joe Black" are available.

Both are worth a watch. The original has been called the best of the three versions, and was a box office hit at the time, while "Meet Joe Black" has a solid supporting turn by Anthony Hopkins ("The Silence of the Lambs," 1991), and was a pretty lavish production.

Q: I'm trying to remember the name of a creepy movie where David Hyde Pierce takes in a stranger in need. Can you help me figure it out?

A: The movie you're looking for is 2010's "The Perfect Host."

The creepiness plays out slowly, so I won't describe it much here, except what's revealed on the box: David Hyde Pierce's ("Frasier") character is preparing to host a dinner party when a criminal on the run approaches him, pretending to be a friend of a friend, in order to be invited in and gain shelter from the police. However, the host may not be what he seems.

The indie film won a number of strong reviews, despite working from an incredibly small budget (the Internet Movie Database puts it at $500,000 — to put that in perspective, it's 1/400th the budget of the year's biggest movie, "Toy Story 3").

Those reviews were mostly thanks to Pierce himself. Wall Street Journal reviewer John Anderson called his performance "a virtuoso turn that requires at least two personalities, maybe more."

Andrew Zimmern puts his fate in the hands of the locals

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

Wbsites, travel books, travel agents: they all have their own opinions on where to eat whenever you're visiting an unfamiliar city. Andrew Zimmern, though, has an even better source that he uses to find the best culinary spots in town: the locals.

The chef who's best known for "Bizarre Foods," in which he's spent years traveling to every corner of the planet to try out some of the weirdest and most out-there foods available, is now turning his attention to checking out some of the hidden hunger-busting gems in cities all around the world.

"Andrew Zimmern's Driven by Food," premiering Tuesday, Aug. 16, on Travel Channel, follows the "Bizarre Foods" host as he travels to cities all around the world. As is often the case for travelers, the first local that he spends any time with is the taxi driver — who better to ask about the city's fare?

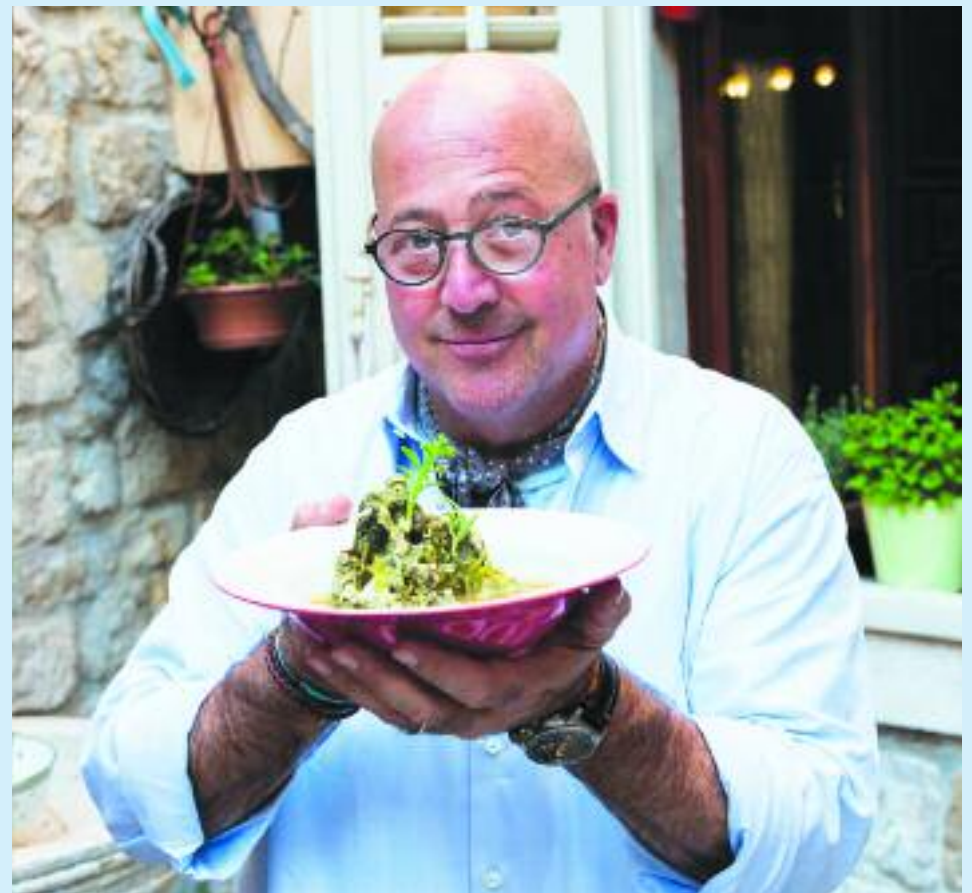

Whether it's a rickshaw driver in Hyderabad, India, or a cabbie in Nashville, Tennessee, Zimmern grills the drivers with one burning question: where are the best places to eat the local specialties that the tourists don't know about?

In the premiere, he lands in beautiful Rio de Janeiro. Of course, our host checks out all of the incredible sights the city has to offer: the famous Christ the Redeemer, the wild nightclub scene and, of course, the world-famous beaches and ocean views.

When it's time to eat, though, Zimmern gets away from "main street" and puts his fate in the hands of the city's cab drivers. He gets to try some of the best Brazilian barbecue, and later sinks his teeth into some of the best seafood he's ever had.

And that's just the premiere. He'll be visiting a different city in every episode, some close to home and others far-flung, including Berlin, Chicago, Bangkok and London. At every stop, he'll be putting his culinary fate in the hands of the cab drivers, always using his characteristically wry humor to make things entertaining for those of us following along at home.

Two thumbs up

'Mr. Robot' continues to draw critical acclaim

By Jacqueline Spendlove
TV Media

Never mind the modest ratings — last summer's new cyber-thriller was a critical hit, and it's powering through its sophomore season with aplomb.

"Mr. Robot" may have seen a dip in numbers from last season's finale, but the reviews are still positive and the material still compelling — perhaps even more so. Among its numerous accolades, the series triumphed over the likes of TV juggernauts "Empire" and "Game of Thrones" when it snagged this year's Golden Globe for Best TV Drama, and it's currently in the running for six Emmys, including Outstanding Drama Series. Clearly, it's doing a lot of things right. Catch a new episode of "Mr. Robot" Wednesday, Aug. 17, on USA Network.

"Mr. Robot" debuted last year to an audience of 1.75 million, wrapping its 10-episode season with 1.21 million viewers tuning in for the finale. Compare that to the first season of "Suits" — USA Network's highest-rated program — for example, which drew an average 4.28 million sets of eyes, and things don't look so hot for "Mr. Robot."

While it may not have a massive following, however, it has a loud one. Season 1 holds a 98 percent score on ratings aggregator site Rotten Tomatoes, and critics can't find enough good things to say about it. The series made it on several lists of 2015's best shows, and was hailed the best show of the year by Entertainment Weekly and Rolling Stone. The current season has received critical acclaim as well, despite it pulling in even lower numbers, so far, than season 1.

The dark and suspenseful series focuses on Elliot Alderson (Rami Malek, "Night at the Museum" 2006), a brilliant young computer programmer who works at a cyber security firm by day and uses his skills as a vigilante hacker by night. Suffering from crippling social anxiety, depression and a morphine addiction, Elliot doesn't have much of a life away from the computer screen, but everything changes when he's recruited by fsoociety, an underground hacker group led by the mysterious insurrectionary anarchist Mr. Robot (Christian Slater, "Archer").

Season 2 sees some new characters joining the cast, which already includes Portia Doubleday ("Youth in Revolt," 2009), Carly Chaikin ("Suburgatory") and Michael Cristofer ("Die Hard with a Vengeance," 1995).

Grace Gummer ("Extant") steps into the recurring role of Dom DiPierro, an FBI agent who, true to "Mr. Robot" form, isn't quite what she seems. Craig Robinson ("The Office") plays Ray, a guy in Elliot's neighborhood who is revealed to have a lot of depth, and more in common with Elliot than one might think. Rapper Joey Bada$$ makes his acting debut as the "Seinfeld"-loving Leon, who forms a close friendship with Elliot — no easy feat, considering the latter's various eccentricities.

Season 1 culminated with fsoociety pulling off what it had been gunning for all season: destroying the data of one of the largest corporations in the world — the villainous E Corp — thereby wiping out all consumer debt and throwing the world into a financial tailspin.

The series delivers its share of Shyamalan-worthy twists and revelations, the biggest being that (spoiler!) Mr. Robot is in fact Elliot's long-dead dad, killed by E Corp's toxic material and forgotten by Elliot in the latter's medicated haze. In a Tyler Durdenesque capacity, Mr. Robot is just in Elliot's mind, and all of his actions, including the creation of fsoociety, have been Elliot's all along.

"Whenever there is something that Elliot is particularly uncomfortable doing, or scared of, or unsure about, those are moments when Mr. Robot will step in," Slater explained in an IndieWire interview. "He's managed to find a way, mentally, through isolation, to create another part of his personality that can pull the trigger."

Season 2 is heavily invested in Elliot's struggle to accept that the man he thinks he's been talking to and getting to know all this time is, in fact, in his head. "The whole show's been about Elliot's emotional journey and I really wanted to focus on that and make it less about the plot," said writer and creator Sam Esmail at the Television Critics Association media tour. "That's the struggle that is going to take over in season 2."

For Esmail, who wrote and directed all 12 episodes this season, the show must be as authentic as possible. Two of this season's storylines are directly inspired by real FBI events, with Esmail working with the FBI's Cyber Division to portray events close to how they would actually play out. That insistence on authenticity is evident throughout the show — all the code you see, for instance, is legitimate and vetted by technical consultants, actually being typed out by the actors in real time.

It's easy to see why the critics are raving about the compelling cyber-thriller — the talent is great on-screen and off, and the story just keeps getting more fascinating. Don't miss a new episode of the highly lauded "Mr. Robot" when it airs Wednesday, Aug. 17, on USA Network.

The Angry Birds Movie

Red (Sudeikis) is a bit of an out-cast. The bushy-eyebrowed bird has a temper problem, and after an outburst causes another bird's egg to hatch prematurely, he's ordered into anger management classes by the other birds that live on their peaceful, remote island. When a boat arrives full of pigs who claim to be peaceful explorers, Red is suspicious of their motives, but is quickly dismissed due to his rage issues. When the pigs, having befriended the birds, betray them and steal all of their eggs, Red must help the other birds channel their anger and rage in order to travel to the pigs' island and take their eggs back.
 Directors: Clay Kaytis, Fergal Reilly.
 Stars: Jason Sudeikis, Josh Gad, Danny McBride, Maya Rudolph, Bill Hader, Peter Dinklage, Sean Penn. 2016. 97 min. Animation.

Sundown

Best friends and high school seniors Logan (Werkheiser) and Blake (Marquette) head to a Mexican resort for spring break, hoping to get in some time with their high school crushes. Instead, Logan ends up spending the night with a local girl that he meets at a club, and when he wakes up the next morning, his Rolex watch is missing.

Director: Fernando Lebrija. Stars: Devon Werkheiser, Sean Marquette, Camilla Belle, Teri Hatcher. 2016. 103 min. Comedy.
