I am someone you will be extremely proud of... I am happy & taking care of those closest to me. I always put their priorities over my own & work my ass off to ensure they have the means to pursue a life they see as a life worth living.

I have become a successful aerospace engineer. I am in training for the next astronaut class that is being sent to the gateway space station orbiting the moon. I spend the weekends surfing or rock climbing. My wife comes home from work and we sit down to have a nice Italian dinner. We talk about how we want to have our first kid. Ü

10 Years From Now

ANNIKA NORQUIST

This series is a manifestation of life 10 years from today. I photographed my friends in front of the doors of their current homes as a representation of what life is like now. As young 20-something's, we have no idea where we're headed, especially in the next ten years. My goal with this series was to spark curiosity about where people in my life are headed and document where they are now. I was inspired by Jim Goldberg's work, Rich and Poor, to include handwritten text beside the photos.
