New! Support for Faculty & Staff Researchers Guides

Understanding how to navigate through internal protocol can be critical to successful research. ORSP has developed resources for new and experienced faculty and staff researchers to help as you prepare for award submissions, plan to conduct research, manage your award, communicate your invention, and/or closeout an award.

The ORSP Support for Researchers guide will be available in three versions: Full Guide, Quick Start Guide, and an ADA Enhanced Guide.

Ready for publication and sharing is the QUICK START GUIDE! This version of the manual contains links and contact information, with none of the fluffy goodness of the Full Guide. The Full Guide and ADA Enhanced Guide are coming soon. Keep an eye on future editions of ORSP Connect for those links.

Quick Start Guide

Not all information in the guide is applicable to researchers in all Schools/Colleges. Please speak with your Associate Dean of Research (ADR) or assigned RA if you have questions around processes at your School/College.

Meet ORSP

research@olemiss.edu

Much of the ORSP communication distributed across the University directs users to contact the office by emailing research@olemiss.edu. In this edition of ORSP Connect, we'll meet the team that manages that Inbox and learn more about how emailed messages are routed and worked. Do You Know about Pivot-RP?

Searching for an external funding opportunity such as a grant, fellowship, or other award? Have you looking for an opportunity that aligns with your research, teaching, education, or service goals? For Ole Miss employees and students, UM's Pivot-RP subscription can make this process easier and more fruitful. Pivot-RP is a comprehensive, searchable database of funding opportunities and U.S. scholar profiles that covers all academic and discipline areas.

Login to Pivot using your University of Mississippi credentials (WebId and password). If this is your first time to access Pivot-RP, you will first need to create an account, after which you will be prompted to claim (and update) your Scholar Profile. You will note that a draft profile has already created for you based on information found on the Internet. If you are a student or don't yet have a pre-fabricated Scholar Profile, you can create one (or just skip this step to get started searching for opportunities).

Access Pivot-RP

There's a lot that Pivot RP can do for you, but it may require some customization and finesse. To get the most out of Pivot-RP, build custom searches and narrow the search attributes such as funder type, award type, applicant type, etc. Make sure your profile is up to date. The link to the Pivot-RP YouTube channel will provide you with many how-to videos to assist you in customizing and utilizing the tool. If you need help, reach out to orspresdev@olemiss.edu.

Responsible Conduct of Research Training

All members of the University of Mississippi strive to exemplify the highest standards of integrity and ethical conduct. To support that goal, the University Research Board unanimously endorsed mandatory education in the Responsible Conduct of Research for all Principal Investigators and key personnel, including staff, postdoctoral fellows, and graduate and undergraduate students, participating in sponsored projects that involve research.
