

Apr 16th, 10:00 AM - 11:00 AM

Time to Wake Up: Importance of Recognizing and Regulating Private Military Forces

Jia Yang

Illinois Wesleyan University

Michael Weis, Faculty Advisor

Illinois Wesleyan University

Follow this and additional works at: <http://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/jwprc>

 Part of the Education Commons, and the International and Area Studies Commons

Jia Yang and Michael Weis, Faculty Advisor, "Time to Wake Up: Importance of Recognizing and Regulating Private Military Forces" (April 16, 2016). John Wesley Powell Student Research Conference. Paper 1.
<http://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/jwprc/2016/oralpres7/1>

This Event is brought to you for free and open access by The Ames Library, the Andrew W. Mellon Center for Curricular and Faculty Development, the Office of the Provost and the Office of the President. It has been accepted for inclusion in Digital Commons @ IWU by the faculty at Illinois Wesleyan University. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@iwu.edu.

©Copyright is owned by the author of this document.

Oral Presentation O7.1

TIME TO WAKE UP: IMPORTANCE OF RECOGNIZING AND REGULATING PRIVATE MILITARY FORCES

Jia Yang and Michael Weis*

International Studies Program, Illinois Wesleyan University

Contracted soldiers have been fighting for U.S. since American Revolution. However, compared to 10% they accounted for the entire military force during World War II, they occupied nearly 50% of entire American military force in places like Iraq. In 2010, among 38,200 military workforce, 207,000—more than 50%—of them are contracted forces. In dealing with Somalia piracy, the private security companies have proved to be so effective that even the International Maritime Organization has issued guidance about hiring private military companies on board for security. However, private military and privatization of armed forces still trigger great concern, sometimes outright protests, against them. With situations in Syria, Iraq, and other places I illustrate that, against the backdrop of new forms of global security threats, it is more important to recognize and harness the power of private forces rather than simply conclude the necessity of utterly banning them.