Welcome to IIFET 2006 Portsmouth

Rebuilding Fisheries in an Uncertain Environment

IIFET 2006 Portsmouth provides a forum for participants to discuss the current state of the world's fisheries and exchange ideas on the best means to rebuild those that have been damaged by natural disasters or human activities. In addition to providing the fisheries and aquaculture economics community with an opportunity to share its research through the presentation of papers and posters, debate will be further stimulated by panel discussions, special sessions and keynote addresses.

With contributions from a variety of disciplines and delegates from 41 countries, IIFET 2006 Portsmouth offers a programme that will foster lively and well-balanced debate, broaden thinking and provide an opportunity for new questions to be asked and to consider new answers to old questions.

We hope you enjoy a stimulating conference and a pleasant stay in Portsmouth.

Information for Authors

Presentation Submission

Please bring your presentation (on CD-ROM, USB Memory Stick or diskette) to the Information Desk in Richmond Atrium at least ONE DAY BEFORE you are scheduled to present your paper.

This will assist the organising team in ensuring that your presentation is ready and available in good time for the session in which you are presenting.

Paper Formatting

To assist you in formatting your paper(s) to meet IIFET's specifications, a personalised template (along with a copy of the guidelines) is available for you to download from <http://www.x-cd.com/iifet06/>.

If you have a query regarding the formatting of your paper that is not answered by careful reading of the guidelines (also available to download from the website above), please speak to Ann Shriver.

Please note: if your paper does not meet IIFET's formatting specifications, it will be returned to you for reformatting. It is particularly important that you do not exceed the maximum number of pages.

Paper Submission

When your paper is correctly formatted and ready to submit, please create a PDF version and upload it via the Internet at <http://www.x-cd.com/iifet06/>.

IIFET also requires a Microsoft Word version of your paper. This can be submitted during the conference at the IIFET Secretariat desk in Richmond Atrium. This will be used in the unlikely event that any revisions need to be made prior to publication in the proceedings.

Please note: only papers presented at the conference may be included in the proceedings.

Please DO NOT upload papers that have not been presented.

The deadline for the submission of papers is 12:00 on Friday 14 July.

Internet Access

The University's Information Services team has created a temporary account for each delegate to use during the week of the conference (details of which are included in your delegate pack).

PCs in the IT Drop-in Centre on the first floor of Richmond building are available for your use.

Please DO NOT use computers in any other part of the University, including Portland building.

Plenary Sessions

Day 1 – Tuesday 11 July

Prof. William Schrank
Memorial University of Newfoundland
w.schrank@ns.sympatico.ca

“Is there hope for fisheries management?”

In 1992, the FAO in its tour de force, Marine Fisheries and the Law of the Sea: A Decade of Change, described the state of the world’s marine fisheries ten years after the adoption of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea. The picture was not a pretty one: “economic waste has reached major proportions; there has been a general increase in resource depletion...; the marine environment has become increasingly degraded; conflicts have become more widespread; and the plight of the small-scale fishermen has intensified.” Fisheries subsidies were rampant, removing the economic signals that might have protected the resource.

In the dozen years since then, has the situation improved? We are much more cognizant of the effect of environmental factors on fish populations, but how is this information used? Given the uncertainties associated with fisheries science, and the structure of the fishing industry, how much success can we expect from fisheries management? And how can we evaluate “success”? What policy implications follow?

Day 2 - Wednesday 12 July

Dr. Meryl Williams
scylla@myjaring.net

“Fisheries experts unveiled: Different types and when to use them”

The use and management of fish supplies, fish stocks and those who work in fishing and related businesses needs to be governed by good policies and actions, based as far as possible on good research-based advice and other expert information. Fisheries makers and managers work in a milieu that is reasonably endowed with fisheries and related experts. Some researchers and other expert advisors such as lawyers work for and with the managers own agencies, others work in outside agencies, such as universities and independent organizations like conservation groups, and even in different sectors or government portfolios. As a policy decision-maker, in government or industry, what is the choice of experts you can draw upon and how do you best make use of this choice? Based on personal experience, this presentation provides a rough guide to the different types of experts you are likely to come across and the types of settings in which each is best used, or not, using examples from some recent fisheries and aquaculture cases, including some controversial fisheries cases.

Day 3 - Thursday 13 July

Ms. Chris Grieve
Marine Stewardship Council
Chris.Grieve@msc.org

“Trading sustainable seafood: Practical and policy challenges”
