INTRODUCTION

Scope and Purpose

This Guide has been developed in order to facilitate the use of the archive collection of the Rogue River National Forest. The collection consists of approximately 10 linear feet of Forest Service and Forest Service-related documents, maps and photographs. There are some 230 individually-catalogued items in addition to approximately 1,400 historic photographs. These records represent a wide variety of the many aspects of past National Forest management. The documents range from early timber resource inventories and homestead examinations to relatively recent land exchange files and recreation reports. The bulk of the items in the collection date from 1907 through 1940. 1/

Many items in the Forest's collection have proven to be valuable primary sources, especially during the research and writing of cultural resource overviews and site-specific inventory/evaluation reports. 2/ The Guide is meant to provide an organized, annotated

1/ I.e., from the establishment of the Crater National Forest under the administration of the U.S. Forest Service (name changed to Rogue River National Forest in 1932), through the years of the Great Depression.

2/ The archives do not include the Cultural Resource Job File (ongoing c.r. site inventories/evaluations and planning unit c.r. overviews), miscellaneous archaeological and historical reports or the currently-active (generally post-1965) Forest Service files held in the various sections of the Supervisor's Office and the four Ranger Districts. The latter will be periodically reviewed prior to being assigned a retention period and sent to the Federal Record Center in Seattle.

listing of each item. The long-range intent is that it will enable Forest Service personnel and others to utilize the historical research potential of the archives and that a better understanding of the Forest's past and present will be gained.

Availability

The archive collection is open for use by Forest Service personnel, persons engaged in scholarly research and members of the general public. Certain items contain site-specific cultural resource information; these (marked by an asterisk) are exempt from the public inspection requirements of the Freedom of Information Act.

The archives are held in the Recreation Section of the Supervisor's Office, Rogue River National Forest. 1/ Persons not directly employed by the Forest Service should make prior arrangements for use of the material with the appropriate Forest personnel so that adequate work space can be provided. Items from the collection do not loan-out and may not be removed from the Recreation Section office.

Filing System

The collection is arranged alphabetically under major subject headings (Examples: B file - Maps; D file - Fire Management; G file - Recreation Management). Within each major subject file, items are arranged chronologically. In the Guide, most items are provided with brief descriptions of their contents.

1/ P.O. Box 520, Medford, Oregon; 779-2351, ext. 384; FTS 8-422-2384

NOTE: there is a certain amount of unavoidable overlap between the subject files. While some cross-referencing has been provided, the researcher should review the entire Guide in order to become familiar with the total collection. For example, someone interested in the history of a certain recreation development would probably find most of the relevant items in the G file; however, the B, J, M and O files might also contain useful material.

A. LEGAL PROCLAMATIONS and FOREST-WIDE OVERVIEWS/RESOURCE INVENTORIES

This file contains copies of legal documents pertaining to the establishment (and modification of boundaries) of the National Forest. It also includes several reports, each of which describes and/or inventories a variety of Forest resources.
