In service to Kansans, the Docking Institute of Public Affairs conducts the Kansas Speaks survey and offers this report of the survey's findings. The Institute is the primary sponsor of this surveying, funding it with operating reserves made possible by the Institute's applied research and organizational planning consulting work. This year the Wichita Journalism Collaborative joined the Institute by providing co-sponsorship.

Executive Summary

The 2023 Kansas Speaks fall survey was conducted from September 20 to October 10, 2023. A panel of 485 adult residents of Kansas age 18 and older were surveyed online to assess their attitudes and opinions regarding various issues of interest to Kansas citizens. The statewide online panel survey finds:

Section 1: Overall Quality of Life in Kansas

- 42.9% of respondents indicated Kansas is a “very good” or “excellent” place to live, and 10.9% said Kansas is a “poor” or “very poor” place to live. The rating in 2023 was less positive compared with 2021 and 2022.
- Asked where they will be in 5 years, 49.2% of respondents said they would be living in the same community that they live in now, 14.1% said they would be moving to another location in Kansas, and 19.9% said they would relocate to a state other than Kansas. The percentage of respondents who intended to move out of Kansas in 2023 is higher than the previous two years.

Section 2: Economy

- 18.8% of respondents felt the state economy is “very good” or “excellent” this year, slightly higher than in 2022 (16.1%) but still lower than in 2021 (20.8%). 20.5% felt the economy is “poor” or “very poor,” much higher than in 2021 and 2022.
- 18.7% of respondents felt that the Kansas economy was getting better in the last 12 months, which is slightly higher than 2022 (18.4%), but lower than 2021 (24.5%). 33.7% felt that it stayed the same. 40.5% felt it is getting worse, down from 43.7% in 2022, but still higher than that in 2021 (29.8%).
- 18.7% of respondents are “very concerned” about the future economy threatening their own or their family’s welfare, and 26.8% are “moderately concerned,” not very different from 2022.
- 46.3% of respondents felt Kansas is on the “right track,” and 30% felt Kansas is on the “wrong track” this year; the rating was less positive than the previous two years.

Section 3: Government, Politicians & Election

- 38.4% of respondents were satisfied with the performance of Governor Laura Kelly, and 32.9% were dissatisfied.
- 21.9% of respondents were satisfied with President Biden, and 62.8% were dissatisfied.
- 23.3% of respondents were satisfied with the Kansas legislature, and 35.1% were dissatisfied.
- 9.9% of respondents were satisfied with the U.S. Congress, and 64.8% were dissatisfied.
- 34.4% of respondents voted for Laura Kelly for governor in the 2022 election, and 31.7% did not vote for her.
- 72.9% of respondents plan to vote in November and 11.2% do not.

- 54% of respondents were confident that the reported winners of the elections in Kansas are actually the candidates that most Kansans voted for. 11% were not confident, 25.8% were neutral, and 9.2% said “don’t know.”
- 41.1% of respondents felt fraud is generally not a problem in Kansas elections. 22.8% felt fraud is a problem.
- 29.2% of respondents agreed that ballot drop boxes should be banned in Kansas. 41% disagreed.
- 30.1% of respondents agreed that vote by mail should be abolished. 47.1% disagreed.
- 18.1% of respondents agreed that early voting should be abolished in Kansas. 49.6% disagreed.
- 17.5% of respondents agreed that illegal immigrants were voting in Kansas elections in large numbers. 29.3% disagreed, and 53.2% were neutral or said “don’t know.”
- 14.8% of respondents agreed that government has made it too hard to vote in Kansas. 47.3% disagreed.
- 12% of respondents agreed that state and local elections officials in Kansas committed election fraud to alter election outcomes. 41.2% disagreed.
- 13.4% of respondents felt that voter fraud routinely decided the winners of elections in Kansas. 43.3% did not feel so.
- 53.1% of respondents agreed that Kansas government becomes stronger with diverse representation among elected officials. 9% disagreed.
- 43.5% of respondents agreed that Kansas government becomes more representative with diverse representation among elected officials. 9% disagreed.

Section 4: Public Policy Issues

- In terms of amount of thought given to the issue, 29.1% of respondents thought “a great deal” or “a lot” of Medicaid expansion as a current political issue with the Kansas legislature.
- 64.4% of respondents agreed that expanding Medicaid would help rural Kansas hospital remain in business. 9% disagreed.
- 65.6% of respondents agreed that the Kansans who might obtain health insurance from expanding Medicaid deserve this benefit from the state. 9% disagreed.
- 69.6% of respondents supported expanding Medicaid in Kansas. 9% disagreed.
- As they decide who got their vote to represent them in the Kansas Legislature, 49% of respondents felt the issue of Medicaid expansion in Kansas is highly or extremely important, 34.8% slightly important, and 8% not important at all important.
- 57.9% of respondents supported increasing taxes on cigarettes and cigars to allow state taxation (22.6% oppose). 53.3% supported increasing taxes on alcohol (29.2% oppose).
- 67.2% of respondents supported legalizing recreational marijuana for individuals 21 and older to allow state taxation; 16.9% are opposed.

- 63.6% of respondents are “highly” or “somewhat likely” to vote for a candidate who supported medical marijuana legalization as they decided who to vote to represent them in Kansas Legislature; 14.8% are unlikely.
- The top three sources of information respondents trusted to be knowledgeable about political issues were national television network news, local television stations, and local newspapers. National talk radio and local radio stations were least trusted.
- 63.5% of respondents agreed that women are in a better position than politicians to make their own choices about whether to get an abortion; 12.4% disagreed.
- 50.8% of respondents agreed that “the Kansas government should not place any regulations on the circumstances under which women can get abortions,” while 27.1% disagreed.
- 19.7% of respondents agreed that “if the Kansas government were to ban all or most abortions, it should also make it illegal for Kansas women to travel outside of the state to get abortions in other states where abortion is still legal.” 55.4% disagreed.
- 66.4% of respondents were not willing to contact authorities to report a woman who had an illegal abortion or to report her medical providers, if the Kansas government were to ban all or most abortions.
- 44.5% of respondents thought the state government should pay most of the cost of prosecuting women who get illegal abortions or their medical providers, if the Kansas government were to ban all or most abortions; 10.5% thought the local government should pay.
- 18.6% of respondents said they voted YES on August 2, 2022, on the proposed state constitutional amendment that would give Kansas legislature absolute authority to regulate abortion. 37.2% voted NO. 33.4% said they did not vote.
- 68% of respondents agreed that Kansas should develop a state energy plan that would set forward-thinking energy policy for the state; 9.5% disagreed.
- 67.5% of respondents felt developing solar energy is “extremely important” or “important” for Kansas.
- 65.3% of respondents felt developing wind energy is “extremely important” or “important” for Kansas.
- 61.2% of respondents felt developing natural gas is “extremely important” or “important” for Kansas.
- 37.9% of respondents felt developing coal is “extremely important” or “important” for Kansas.
- 66.3% of respondents were very or moderately concerned that Kansas might be running out of water, and another 18.4% were “slightly concerned.” 7.1% were not concerned at all.
- 62.1% of respondents agreed that Kansas farmers would need to make changes to their farming practices due to declining water levels; 4.4% disagreed.

- 56.9% of respondents felt climate change is a crisis or major problem in Kansas, and 32% felt it is a minor problem or not a problem at all.
- 57.3% of respondents felt climate change is a crisis or major problem for farming in Kansas, and 29.9% felt it is a minor problem or not a problem at all.
- When asked how much they thought climate change is threatening the operation of their business/organization where they were employed, 33.8% of respondents said “a great deal” or “somewhat”; 44.4% said “not very much” or “not at all.”
- When asked how much they thought climate change is threatening the health of their family, 45.7% of respondents said “a great deal” or “somewhat”; 43.2% said “not very much” or “not at all.”
- More than 35% of respondents thought that the federal government and business/corporations could have a large effect on limiting climate change. Less than 25% thought individuals and community organizations could have a large effect.
- 57.8% of respondents most agreed that “addressing climate change should be given priority even at the risk of slowing economic growth,” whereas 42.2% most agreed that “economic growth should be given priority, even at the risk of ignoring climate change.”
- 82.5% of respondents agreed that buying locally grown food is more helpful to the area’s economy. 77.3% of respondents felt locally grown food had better quality.
- Around 60% of respondents agreed that buying locally grown food is more environmentally sustainable and more ethical.
- 35.9% of respondents felt locally grown food is less convenient to purchase.
- More than 70% of respondents favored using locally produced foods in senior centers and K-12 school systems. Between 50% to 70% of respondents favored supporting local food systems by offering business supports for farmers, producers and distributors, offering consumer support, and implementing/expanding composting initiatives.
- Protection, hunting, and second Amendment right/Constitutional right were thought to be the three most important reasons for owning a gun or rifle.
- 39.6% of respondents indicated that they or someone in their household has a gun or rifle.

Section 5: Education

- 38.9% of respondents have pursued education in one or more of the colleges/universities in Kansas (including six state universities, Washburn University, nineteen community colleges and six technical colleges). About one-third of respondents indicated that their spouse/significant other, child(ren), parents, or siblings have pursued education at one or more of those universities or colleges.
- About 30% of respondents indicated that sporting events at the Kansas universities and colleges are “important” or “very important” to them and their spouse, to their children, and to their parents/siblings.

- 32.8% of respondents felt cultural/arts events or amenities at the Kansas universities and colleges are “important” or “very important” to them and their spouse, 28.3% to their children, and 26.3% to their parents/siblings.
- 50.4% of respondents felt continuing education opportunities at the Kansas universities and colleges are “important” or “very important” to them and their spouse, 41.7% to their parents/siblings, and 37.5% to their children.
- Around 80% of respondents felt all education levels are “important” or “very important” to the workforce development in Kansas at 83.2% for high schools, 85.1% for technical/vocational schools, 80.8% for community colleges, and 76% for universities.
- About 75% of respondents felt universities, community colleges and technical/vocational schools are important or very important to the research and development that transfers to business and industry in Kansas. 70.4% felt high schools are important or very important.
- About 80% of respondents felt all education levels (high school, technical/vocational, community colleges, and universities) are important or very important to the overall economic development of Kansas.
- 78.8% of respondents felt high schools are important or very important to civic life in Kansas. About 68% felt education levels above high schools are important or very important to the civic life in Kansas.
- When asked what is the minimum level of education that they believe their immediate or close family members needed to complete to ensure financial security, 27.4% of respondents selected “high school diploma/GED,” 28.4% selected “technical certificate” or “associate degree,” and 34.7% selected “bachelor’s degree” or above.
- When asked what is the minimum level of education that they believe adults in Kansas needed to complete to ensure financial security, 33.3% of respondents selected “high school diploma/GED,” 33.1% selected “technical certificate” or “associate degree,” and 25.7% selected “bachelor’s degree” or above.
- When asked what is the minimum level of education that they believe adults in the U.S. needed to complete to ensure financial security, 32.8% of respondents selected “high school diploma/GED,” 32.4% selected “technical certificate” or “associate degree,” and 26.1% selected “bachelor’s degree” or above.
- 74.6% of respondents felt comfortable supporting K-12 public schools with their tax dollars; the support level is lower for the higher education levels: 67.7% for Kansas technical/vocational schools, 62.7% for community colleges, 52.4% for six Kansas state-governed universities, and 37.2% for Washburn University.
- About 60% agreed or strongly agreed that education beyond high school is a good return on investment both for the student and for the general population, while less than 10% disagree on both.

Section 6: Housing

- 55.7% of the respondents lived in a place owned by them or someone in the household; among them 28.4% had a mortgage or loan and 27.3% had no mortgage or loan. 36.8% of respondents were renting, and 7.6% were living with someone without paying rent.
- 71.6% of respondents were concerned about the cost of housing in their communities.
- 34.9% of respondents believed there is sufficient available housing in their communities. 36.5% believed there is not.
- About 60% of respondents felt that lack of affordable houses (both for purchase and also for rent) are having negative impacts on their community.
- 22.7% of respondents agreed that their community is adequately addressing housing issues. 39.2% disagreed.
- 43.7% of respondents felt that local governments should ease up on zoning to allow for more small, multi-family dwellings in neighborhoods. 13.9% did not feel so.
- 48.5% of respondents believed more government spending is needed in their community on services for the homeless. 23.2% did not believe so.
- 43.3% of respondents disagreed that homelessness is handled well in their community. 21% agreed.
- When asked who was best positioned to deal with the challenge of homelessness, 37.8% of respondents answered “government,” 21.9% answered “nonprofit sector,” and 11.2% answered “church.”
- 34% of respondents said “mental health issues” was the most root cause of homelessness, 30.9% said “lack of affordable housing,” and 23.7% said “addictions.”
- 45.2% of respondents felt they spent the right amount of their income on housing costs. 25.4% disagreed.
- 62.9% of respondents felt that they would have difficulty affording to buy a home in their community.
- 67.4% of respondents felt that they would have difficulty finding a home to buy in their price range right now in their community.
- 56.1% of respondents felt comfortable living in a neighborhood having rental properties.
- 55.2% of respondents were satisfied with the quality of their housing. 21% were not satisfied.
- For those who were not satisfied with the quality of their housing, financial factors, housing cost, and housing availability were the most often mentioned reasons preventing them from moving.
- Regarding the rights of property owners and tenants, 15.4% of respondents believed that property owners need more rights, 28.5% believed that tenants need more rights, 28.7% believe that both need more rights, and 9.3% said neither need more rights.

- When asked to rate their understanding of how their property taxes are calculated, 15.9% of respondents who lived in a place owned by them or someone in the household said “high,” 46% said “medium,” 20.6% “low,” and 17.6% had no idea how their property taxes are calculated.
- When asked how much annual property taxes are a threat to them staying in their home, 11.8% said they are a “large threat,” 26.8% said “moderate threat,” 29.9% “small threat,” and 31.5% felt they are “not at all a threat.”
- 49.4% of respondents who were renting or living with someone without paying rent said it is “very important” that they own a home in the future, 35.5% said it is “somewhat important,” and 15.2% said it is “not important at all.”

Introduction and Methods

To assess attitudes and opinions of Kansans about public affairs matters, the Docking Institute of Public Affairs (Institute) has surveyed representative samples of Kansas residents age 18 and older every year since 2009. In 2020, the Institute switched from using random digit dial telephone surveying to an online survey panel. For the 2023 survey, the Docking Institute developed the survey questionnaire (Appendix B) and contracted with QualtricsXM for data collection. QualtricsXM and its panel provider partners build and maintain panels on an ongoing basis that mirror the demographic characteristics of populations. Moreover, when conducting a statewide survey of Kansans, the Institute has QualtricsXM pursue quotas by gender, age, and nonmetro/metro counties in order to further promote a representative set of Kansas adults. QualtricsXM distributed the online questionnaire to the panel from September 20 to October 10, and 485 respondents answered all or most of the survey questions.

Appendix A provides comparison of the Kansas population and the final panel respondents on a list of demographic characteristics, including the three quotas used during data collection (gender, age, and county population). The final set of panel respondents is mostly within 5% of the Kansas population on the distribution of age and county population. Respondents who are female are overrepresented in the final panel. Overrepresentations or underrepresentations are also detected within categories of other demographic variables (see the “Survey Panel Unweighted” column and the “Kansas Population” column in Appendix A). For example, in the survey, 2.8% of respondents reported that their highest education level was “less than high school,” whereas the American Community Survey conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau shows that the highest level of education of 8.4% of Kansas residents is “less than high school.” To increase the statistical presence of those who are underrepresented and decrease the presence of those who are overrepresented, the Institute weighed cases by age, gender, and education. The weighted demographic statistics are presented under the “Survey Panel Weighted” column in Appendix A. The analyses throughout this report use the weighted data. Cases with no answers to those three demographic variables used for weights receive no weight, and therefore are not included in the analyses. A total of 477 weighted cases are included in the analyses.

The following analysis contains five sections:

- 1) Overall Quality of Life in Kansas. This section shows how Kansans generally feel about Kansas as a place to live.
- 2) Economy. This section shows results on questions addressing various economic concerns to citizens.
- 3) Government, Politicians, and Election. This section presents the results of citizens’ ratings of the state government, elected officials, and attitudes about elections.

- 4) Public Policy Issues. This section looks at citizens' opinions on some contemporary state and/or national policies and issues.
- 5) Education. This section presents citizens' behavior and attitudes related to state universities and colleges, technical/vocational schools, and K-12 education.
- 6) Housing. This section examines citizens' personal housing situation and opinion regarding housing in their communities.

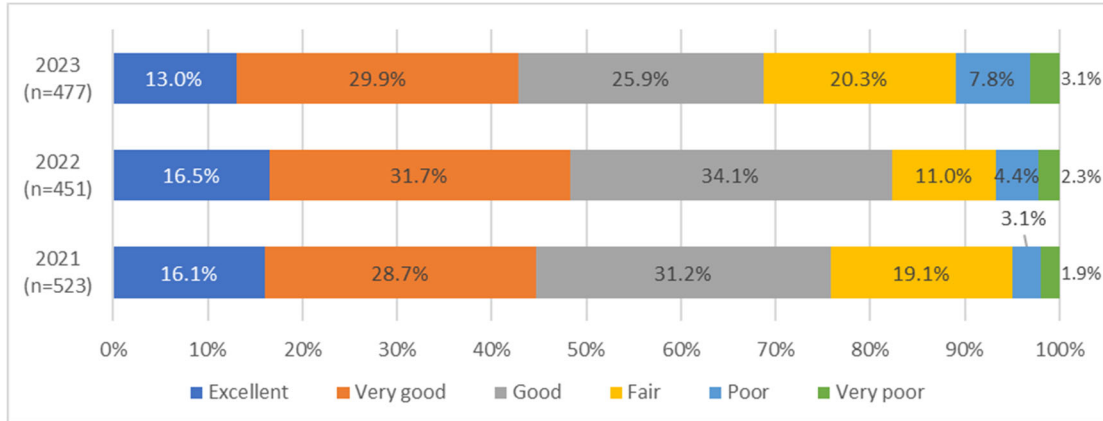

These sections present descriptive analyses of respondents' answers to each question. Except for the questions asking about respondents' demographic information, all of the survey questions are displayed verbatim under those graphs presenting descriptive analyses. See Appendix B for all survey content as presented to respondents in the questionnaire.

Appendix C contains cross-tabulation analyses of survey questions by demographic variables. The tables are in the same order as the questions in the questionnaire. Each table shows how respondents' answers to each question varied by age group, education level, gender, race, political orientation, household income, and religion. Each row contains the percentages of respondents selecting each answer option of the survey question within a demographic category. For example, the first table in Appendix C presents how respondent answered the question "In general, how would you rate Kansas as a place to live?" The first row in that table shows how respondents of 18-34 years old answered the question: 9.8% of respondents of 18-34 years old selected "excellent," 27.3% of respondents of that age group selected "very good," etc.

Section 1: Overall Quality of Life in Kansas

When asked to rate Kansas as a place to live, 42.9% indicated Kansas is a “very good” or “excellent” place to live; while 10.9% said Kansas is a “poor” or “very poor” place to live. The rating in 2023 was less positive as compared with the previous years (Figure 1)¹. In 2022, 48.2% of respondents rated Kansas “very good” or “excellent,” and 6.9% rated Kansas “poor” or “very poor.” In 2021, the percentages were 44.8% and 5% respectively.

Figure 1: Rating of Kansas as a Place to Live

Question: Q7 In general, how would you rate Kansas as a place to live?

When asked where they will be in 5 years, 49.2% of respondents said they would be living in the same community that they live in now, 14.1% said they would be moving to another location in Kansas, 19.9% said they would relocate to a state other than Kansas, and 16.9% answered “Don’t Know” (Figure 2). The percentage of respondents who intended to move out of Kansas in 2023 is higher than the previous two years (13.8% in 2021 and 16.3% in 2022).

Question: Q70 By your best guess, where will you be in 5 years? Are you likely to still be living in the same community you are in now, move to another location in Kansas, or relocate to a state other than Kansas?

Section 2: Economy

Given the continuing high inflation in the year of 2023, ratings of economy in 2023 are compared with the same ratings found in the 2021 and 2022 Kansas Speaks survey. When asked to rate the Kansas economy (Figure 3), 18.8% of respondents said they felt the state’s economy is “very good” or “excellent;” the percentage was slightly higher than that in 2022 (16.1%), but still lower than that in 2021 (20.8%). About twenty percent (20.5%) of respondents indicated they felt the economy is “poor” or “very poor” this year, which was much higher than 2022 (13.9%) and 2021 (10.7%).

Figure 4 shows that in 2023 18.7% of respondents felt that the Kansas economy is getting better over the past year, which is slightly higher than 2022 (17.5%), but lower than 2021 (22.2%). The percentage of respondents feeling the Kansas economy is getting worse decreased from 43.7% in 2022 to 40.5% in 2023, both were higher than that in 2021 (29.8%).

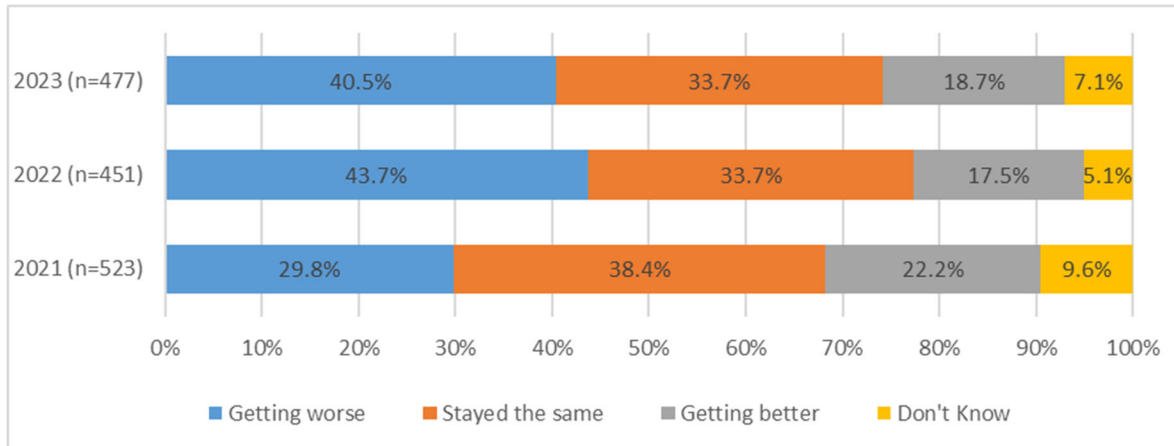

In 2023, 45.5% of respondents were “very concerned” or “moderately concerned” that the Kansas economy would seriously threaten their own or their family’s welfare (Figure 5), slightly higher than 2022 (42.9%), but much higher than 2021 (37.4%). More than twenty percent (21.3%) of respondents said they are “not concerned at all” in 2023, not very different from 2021 and 2022.

Question: Q9 In general, how would you rate the Kansas economy?

Figure 4: Opinion on Change of Kansas Economy

Question: Q10 Over the last 12 months, how would you say the Kansas economy has changed?

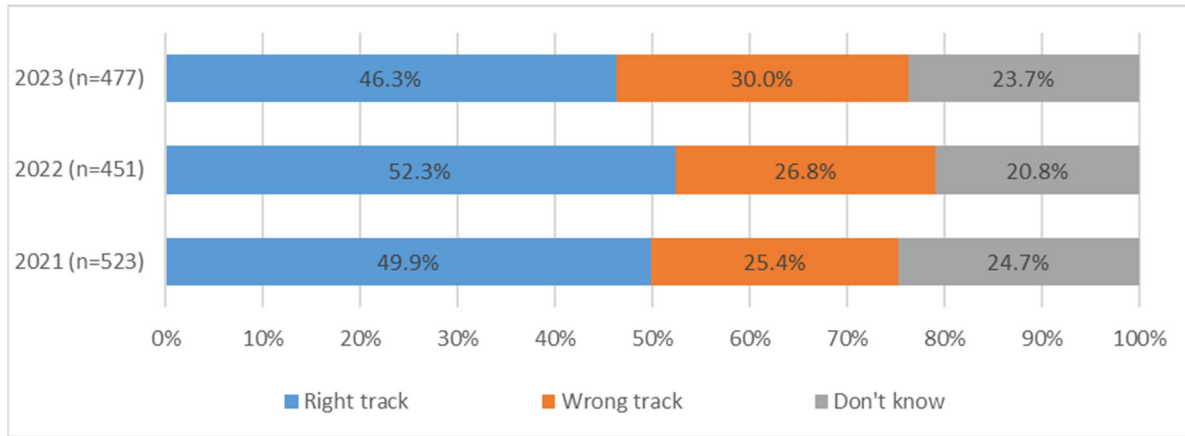

Figure 5: Level of Concern that the Kansas Economy Will Seriously Threaten Individual's or Family's Welfare over the Next Year

Question: Q11 How concerned are you that the Kansas economy will seriously threaten you or your family's welfare in the coming year?

In 2023 less than half (46.3%) of respondents indicated they felt Kansas was on the “right track”, which was lower than 2021 (49.9%) and 2022 (52.3%). Thirty percent (30%) believe Kansas is on the “wrong track” in 2023, highest in three years (Figure 6).

Question: Q8 Generally speaking, do you think Kansas is on the right track or wrong track?

Section 3: Government, Politicians, and Elections

Respondents were asked about their satisfaction with important political figures or institutions. Satisfaction was highest with respect to Governor Laura Kelly, as 38.3% of respondents were satisfied with Governor Kelly; 32.9% were dissatisfied with Governor Kelly. The U.S. Congress received the highest level of dissatisfaction and lowest level of satisfaction from respondents, with 64.8% being dissatisfied and 9.9% being satisfied. President Joe Biden received the second highest dissatisfaction, with 62.8% being dissatisfied (Figure 7).

Question: Q12 How satisfied are you with the overall performance of the United States Congress? President Donald Trump? Kansas Supreme Court? Governor Laura Kelly? Senator Jerry Moran? Senator Roger Marshall? Kansas Legislature?

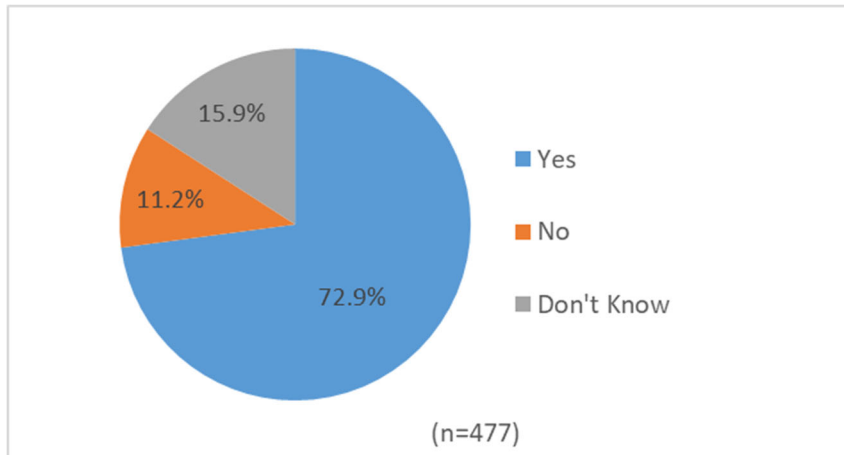

When asked whether they voted for Laura Kelly for governor in the 2022 election, 34.4% of respondents said “Yes,” and 31.7% said “No.” About a third (33.9%) did not vote, or answered “don’t know or prefer to not answer” (Figure 8). Almost three-fourths (72.9%) of respondents indicated that they plan to vote in November, 11.2% said they do not (Figure 9).

Question: Q18 If you voted in the 2022 election for governor, did you vote for Laura Kelly?

Figure 9: Plan to Vote in November

Question: Q19 Do you plan to vote in November?

Respondents were asked about their opinion toward a list of statements related to elections. Respondents had high confidence with the election results in Kansas. More than half (54%) of respondents agreed or strongly agreed that they were confident that the reported winners of the elections in Kansas are actually the candidates that most Kansas voted for, and 41.1% felt fraud is generally not a problem in Kansas elections. Almost half (47%-49%) of respondents disagreed or strongly disagreed with the following statements: Early voting should be abolished (only 18% agreed); Government has made it too hard to vote here in Kansas (only 15% agreed); Vote by mail should be abolished in Kansas (30% agreed). A little more than 40% of respondents disagreed or strongly disagreed with the following three statements: Voter fraud routinely decides the winners of elections here in Kansas (only 13.4% agreed); State and local elections officials in Kansas commit election fraud to alter our election outcomes (only 12% agreed); Ballot drop boxes should be banned in Kansas (29% agreed). Almost thirty percent (29.3%) of respondents disagreed that illegal immigrants are voting in Kansas in large numbers, while 17.5% agreed. (Figure 10)

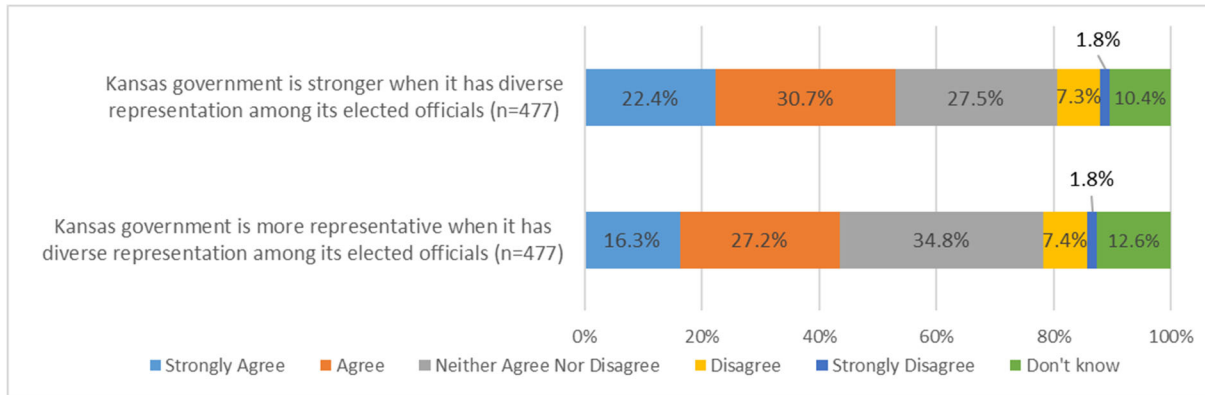

When asked if Kansas government is more representative or stronger when it has diverse representations among its elected officials, 53.1% of respondents agreed or strongly agreed that Kansas government becomes stronger with diverse representations among elected officials, while 9% disagreed. More than forty percent (43.5%) agreed or strongly agreed that Kansas government becomes more representative with diverse representations among elected officials, while 9% disagreed (Figure 11).

Section 4: Public Policy Issues

When asked how much they think about Medicaid expansion, 29.1% of respondents think “a great deal” or “a lot” and another 27.1% think “a moderate amount” about Medicaid expansion as a current political issue with the Kansas legislature. More than forty percent (43.8%) of respondents thought “a little” or “not at all” of this issue (Figure 12).

Question: Q13 Medicaid expansion is a current political issue with the Kansas Legislature. How much do you think about this issue?

Turning to opinions on expansion (Figure 13), 64.4% of respondents strongly or somewhat agreed that expanding Medicaid would help rural Kansas hospital remain in business, while only 7.8% disagree. Almost two-thirds (65.6%) strongly or somewhat agreed that the Kansans who might obtain health insurance from expanding Medicaid deserve this benefit from the state, while only 9.4% disagree. Almost seventy percent (69.6%) of respondents supported expanding Medicaid in Kansas, while only 9.3% do not. Almost half (49%) of respondents felt the issue of Medicaid expansion in Kansas was highly or extremely important as they decide who gets their vote to represent them in the Kansas Legislature, and another 35% consider it slightly important (Figure 14).

Question: Q14 If Kansas expands Medicaid under the Affordable Care Act, about 10% of the expansion would be paid by Kansas, and 90% by the federal government. Studies estimate that expanding Medicaid would provide health coverage to approximately 150,000 Kansans and financially benefit rural hospitals. Please tell me if you strongly agree, somewhat agree, are neutral, somewhat disagree or strongly disagree with the following statements.

Respondents were asked what sources of information they trusted to be knowledgeable about political issues. More than thirty percent of respondents selected national television network news (36.7%) and local television stations (34.3%). National talk radio was least selected (12.3%) (Figure 17).

Question: Q23 What sources of information do you trust to be knowledgeable about political issues?

The survey measured respondents' attitudes on a list of statements related to abortion. More than sixty percent (63.5%) respondents agreed or strongly agreed that women were in a better position than politicians to make their own choices about whether to get an abortion, while 12.4% disagreed or strongly disagreed. About half (50.8%) of respondents agreed or strongly agreed that Kansas government should not place any regulations on the circumstances under which women can get abortions, while 27.1% disagreed or strongly disagreed. More than half (55.4%) of respondents disagreed or strongly disagreed that "if the Kansas government were to ban all or most abortions, it should also make it illegal for Kansas women to travel outside of the state to get abortions in other states where abortion is still legal.” (Figure 18)

Question: Q52 How strongly do you agree or disagree with these statements regarding abortion?

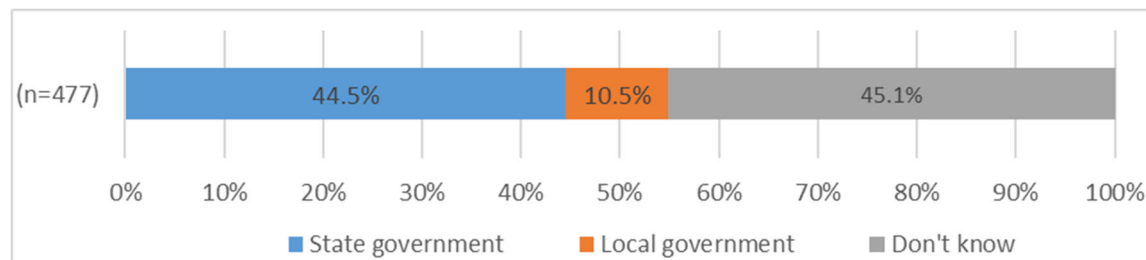

A majority (66.4%) of respondents are not willing to contact authorities to report a woman who had an illegal abortion or to report her medical providers, if the Kansas government were to ban all or most abortions (Figure 19). More than forty percent (44.5%) of respondents thought the state government should pay most of the cost of prosecuting women who get illegal abortions or their medical providers if the Kansas government were to ban all or most abortions; 10.5% thought the local government should pay; 45.1% said “don’t know” (Figure 20).

Question: Q55 On August 2, 2022, Kansas voters voted on a proposed state constitutional amendment that would have given Kansas legislature absolute authority to regulate abortion. Did you vote Yes or No on this amendment?

When asked if Kansas should develop a state energy plan which would set forward-thinking energy policy for the state, 68% of respondents answered “Yes,” 9.5% answered “No,” and 22.5% answered “don’t know” (Figure 22). The survey asked about the importance for Kansas to develop different types of energy sources. Respondent’s support for the development of solar energy was very high; 67.5% said it is “extremely important” or “important.” Support for the development of wind energy was nearly as high, with 65.3% saying it is “extremely important” or “important.” More than sixty percent (61.2%) of respondents felt developing natural gas is “extremely important” or “important.” Coal had the lowest support, with 37.9% of respondents believing it is “extremely important” or “important” (Figure 23).

Question: Q56 Currently Kansas does not have a state energy plan. It is one of fewer than 10 states that do not, and all states bordering Kansas have a state energy plan. According to the National Association of State Energy Officials, state energy plans enable states to capitalize on existing energy resources, infrastructure, and human capital through targeted goals and directions to encourage economic development and natural resource stewardship and set forward-thinking energy policy for a state. In your opinion, should Kansas develop a state energy plan?

Question: Q62 How much, if at all, do you think climate change is threatening the operation of your business/organization where you are employed?

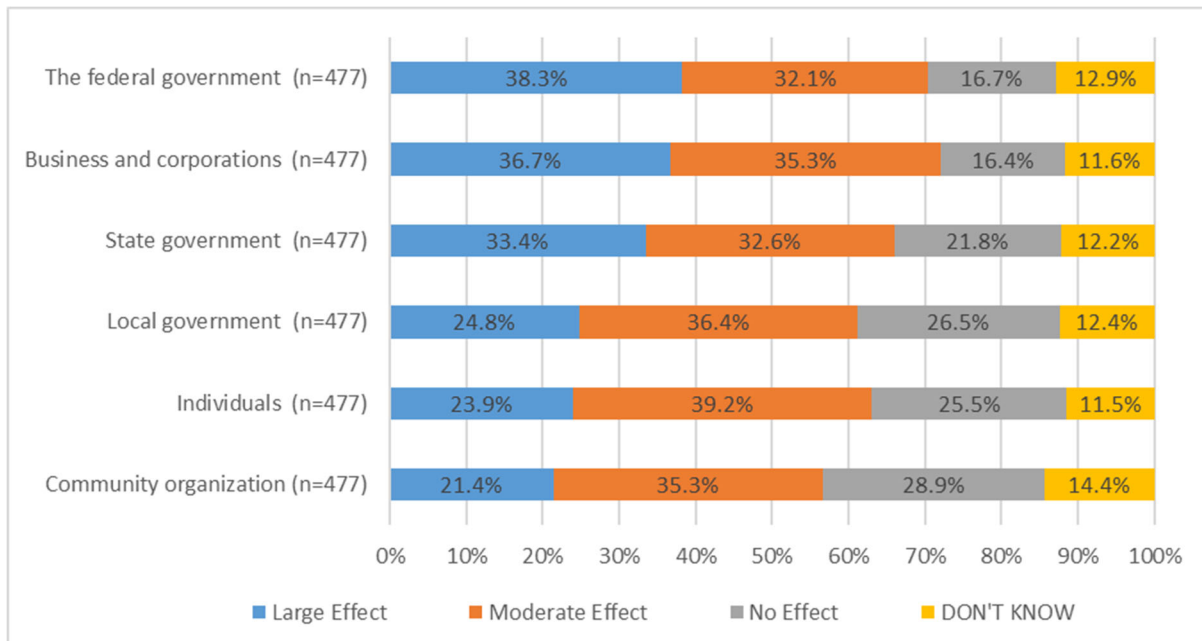

Figure 29: Climate Change Threatening Family Health

Question: Q63 How much, if at all, do you think climate change is threatening the health of your family?

The survey asked respondents to what extent a list of actors could have an effect on limiting climate change. Almost forty (38.3%) of respondents thought that the federal government could have a large effect on limiting climate change. Business and corporations ranked second on the list, with 36.7% of respondents saying they could have a large effect. Less than 25% of respondents felt individuals and community organizations could have a large effect on limiting climate change (Figure 30).

Question: Q64 In your view, to what extent can the following groups have an effect on limiting climate change?

When asked about the priority of addressing climate change vs. economic growth, 57.8% of respondents most agreed that “addressing climate change should be given priority even at the risk of slowing economic growth,” whereas 42.2% most agreed that “economic growth should be given priority, even at the risk of ignoring climate change” (Figure 31).

Question: Q65 With which one of these statements about climate change and the economy do you most agree?

A large majority of respondents agreed that buying locally grown food is more helpful to the area’s economy (82.5% “strongly agree” or “agree”), and that locally grown food has better quality (77.3% “strongly agree” or “agree”). Close to or more than sixty percent of respondents strongly agreed or agreed that buying locally grown food is more environmentally sustainable and more ethical. Less than forty percent (35.9%) felt locally grown food is less convenient to purchase (Figure 32).

Question: Q66 How strongly do you agree or disagree with these statements regarding Local Food Systems (foods grown by local farmers/producers and distributed locally)?

Respondents were generally in favor of policies supporting locally produced food. More than seventy percent of respondents “strongly” or “slightly” favored using locally produced foods in senior centers (73.1%) and K-12 school systems (70.6%). Implementing/expanding composting initiatives had the lowest favorability, but still with a majority (57.8%) of respondents answering “strongly” or “slightly favor” (Figure 33).

Section 5: Education

There are six state universities, Washburn University, nineteen community colleges and six technical colleges in Kansas. The survey asked respondents if they, their spouse or children, and their parent(s) or sibling(s) had pursued education in any of those universities and colleges. Figure 36 shows that 38.9% of respondents had pursued education at one or more of those universities or colleges. About one-third of respondents indicated that their spouse/significant other, child(ren), parents, or siblings had pursued education at one or more of those universities or colleges.

The Kansas Board of Regents governs six state universities which are: University of Kansas, Kansas State University, Emporia State University, Fort Hays State University, Pittsburg State University, and Wichita State University. KBOR also coordinates one municipal university (Washburn), nineteen community colleges and six technical colleges. We are interested in knowing whether you and members of your immediate family (spouse/children; parents/siblings) pursued education at any of these institutions.

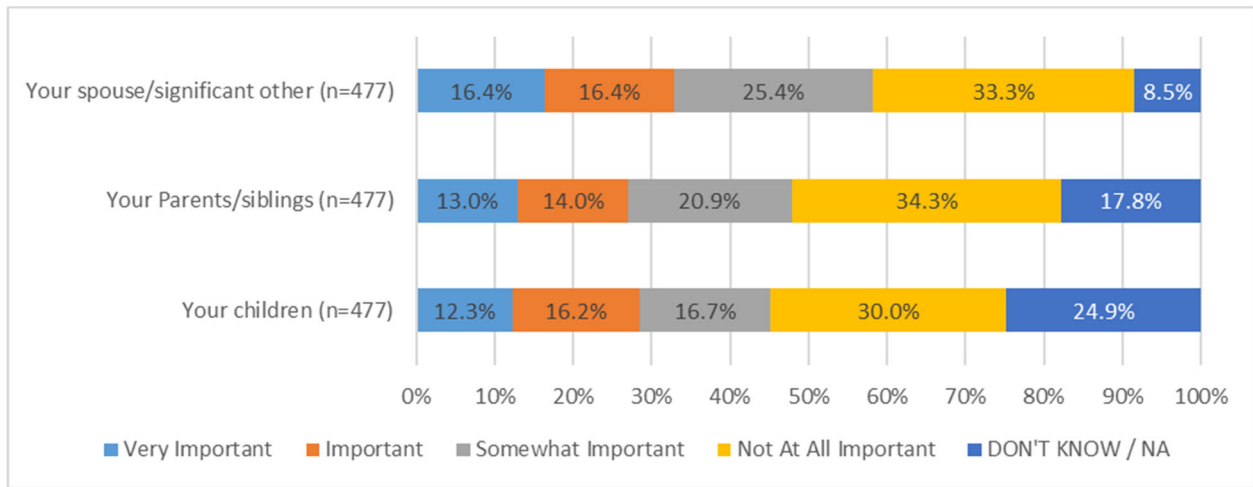

Q25 I have pursued education at one or more of these universities or colleges.

Q26 My spouse/significant other or my child(ren) have pursued education at one or more of these universities or colleges.

Respondents were asked how important certain types of events and opportunities at the Kansas universities and colleges are to quality of life for them and their spouse, their children, and their parents/siblings. About 30% of respondents indicated that sporting events are “important” or “very important” to them and their spouse (32.8%), to their children (28.5%), and to their parents/siblings (26.9%) (Figure 37). Almost forty percent (38.3%) of respondents felt cultural/arts events or amenities are “important” or “very important” to them and their spouse, 28.3% to their children, and 26.3% to their parents/siblings (Figure 38). Half (50.4%) of respondents felt continuing education opportunities are “important” or “very important” to them and their spouse, 41.7% to their children, 37.5% to their parents/siblings (Figure 39).

The survey then asked how important three different education levels (universities, community colleges, technical/vocational schools, and high schools) were to the economic/workforce development, research and development for businesses and industry, and civic life in Kansas. Around 80% of respondents felt all education levels are “important” or “very important” to the workforce development in Kansas at 83.2% for high schools, 85.1% for technical/vocational schools, 80.8% for community colleges, and 76% for universities (Figure 40). Respondents seemed to give almost equal importance to those three education levels above high schools with regard to research and development that transfer to business and industry, as the percentages of respondents who said these education levels were “important” or “very important” varied from 74.2% to 76.7%; the percentage for high schools was a little lower at 70.4% (Figure 41). Regarding overall economic development, the percentages of respondents saying these education levels are at least important were also very similar, varying from 79.3% (universities) to 82.6% (technical/vocational schools) (Figure 42). Regarding civic life, 78.8% of respondents felt high schools are “important” or “very important” to the civic life of Kansas and its communities, and little differences are seen across the education levels above high schools, with about 68% of respondents saying “important” or “very important” (Figure 43).

When asked what is the minimum level of education that they believe their immediate or close family members need to complete in order to ensure financial security, 27.4% of respondents selected “high school diploma/GED,” 28.4% selected “technical certificate” or “associate degree,” and 34.7% selected “bachelor’s degree” or above. The survey continued asking about the minimum level of education adults in Kansas need to complete in order to ensure financial security. One-third (33.3%) of respondents selected “high school diploma/GED,” and 25.7% selected “bachelor’s degree” or above. Lastly the survey asked about the minimum level of education adults in the U.S. needed. The results were very similar to respondents’ answers about adults in Kansas, with 32.8% selecting “high school diploma/GED,” and 26.1% selecting “bachelor’s degree” or above (Figure 44).

Question: Q39 How much do you agree or disagree that education beyond high school offers a good return on investment for the student and for the general population of Kansas?

Regarding the goal of higher education, 21.3% of respondents felt creating an educated citizenry is much or slightly more important, and 15.5% felt developing a workforce is much or slightly more important. More than half (55.9%) said both were equally important (Figure 47).

Question: Q40 Some people say the main goal of higher education is an educated citizenry for democratic functioning and others say it is to develop a workforce. Please select the statement you agree with most.

Section 6: Housing

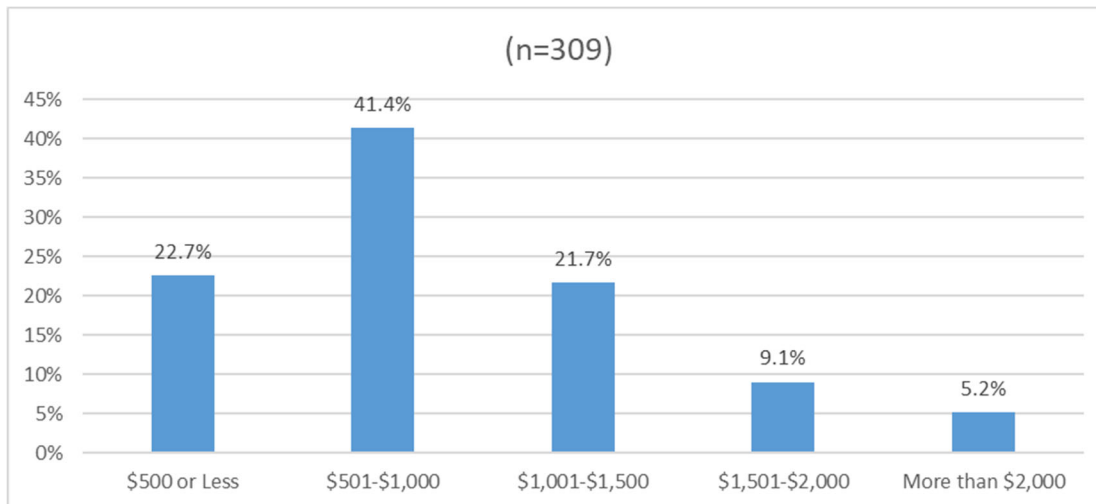

More than half (55.7%) of the respondents lived in a place owned by them or someone in the household; among them 28.4% had a mortgage or loan and 27.3% had no mortgage or loan. More than a third (36.8%) of respondents were renting, and 7.6% were living with someone without paying rent (Figure 48). Those respondents who had a mortgage/loan or were renting were asked approximately how much their monthly rent or mortgage payment was. Among them, 22.7% paid $500 or less per month, 41.4% paid $501-$1,000, and 36% paid more than $1,000 (Figure 49).

Question: Q42 Approximately how much is your monthly rent or mortgage payment?

Respondents were asked about their opinions with regard to housing in their communities. More than seventy percent (71.6%) of respondents agreed or strongly agreed that they were concerned about the cost of housing in their communities. More than one-third (34.9%) agreed or strongly agreed that there is sufficient housing in their community, which is very close to the 36.5% who disagreed or strongly disagreed. About sixty percent felt that their community received a negative impact due to lack of affordable homes for purchase (60.5% agreed or strongly agreed) or lack of affordable home to rent (63.7% agreed or strongly agreed). When asked if they agreed that their community is adequately addressing housing issues, 22.7% of respondents agreed or strongly agreed, whereas 39.2% disagreed or strongly disagreed. More than forty percent (43.7%) of respondents felt that local governments should ease up on zoning to allow for more small, multi-family dwellings in neighborhoods. Almost half (48.5%) believed more government spending is needed in their community on services for the homeless. More than forty percent (43.3%) of respondents disagreed or strongly disagreed that homelessness is handled well in their community, and 21% agreed or strongly agreed. (Figure 50)

Question: Q43 How much do you agree or disagree with the following statements about housing in your community?

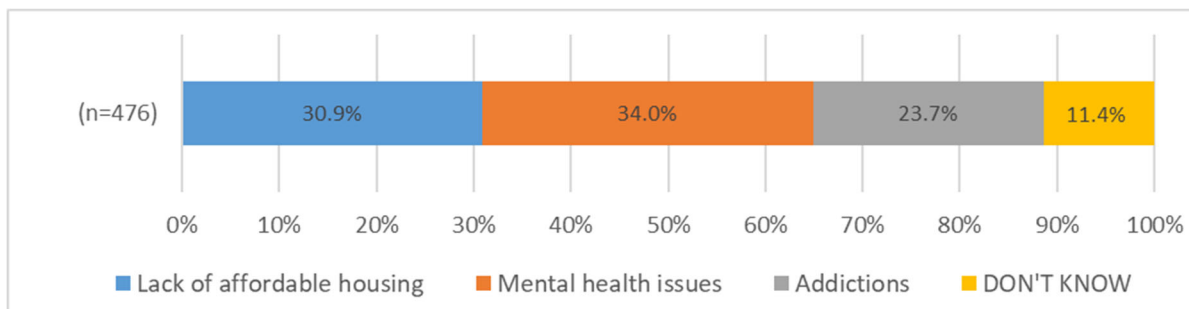

When asked who is best positioned to deal with the challenge of homelessness, 37.8% of respondents answered “government,” 21.9% answered “nonprofit sector,” and 11.2% answered “church” (Figure 51). About a third (34%) of respondents said “mental health issues” is the most root cause of homelessness, 30.9% said “lack of affordable housing,” and 23.7% said “addictions” (Figure 52).

The survey asked a few questions regarding respondents’ personal housing situation. Less than half (45.2%) of respondents agreed or strongly agreed that they spent the right amount of their income on housing costs; 25.4% disagreed or strongly disagreed. More than sixty percent of respondents felt that they would have difficulty affording to buy a home in their community (62.9% agreed or strongly agreed); more respondents felt that they would have difficulty finding a home to buy in their price range right now in their community (67.4% agreed or strongly agreed). More than half of respondents felt comfortable living in a neighborhood having rental properties (56.1% agreed or strongly agreed). More than half (55.2%) were satisfied with the quality of their housing, whereas 21% were not satisfied. (Figure 53)

Question: Q46 Thinking of your own situation, how much do you agree or disagree with the following statements about housing?

The survey asked those who were not satisfied with the quality of their housing to provide up to three reasons that prevented them from moving. A total of 262 reasons were provided, and they were grouped into eight categories. Financial factors were mentioned the most (37.4% of the total mentions), while more than 10% of the reasons were related to housing cost (11.8%) and housing affordability (11.5%). (Figure 54)

Question: Q47 Please tell us up to three things that prevent you from moving?

Regarding the rights of property owners and tenants, 15.4% of respondents believed that property owners need more rights, 28.5% believed that tenants need more rights. Almost thirty percent (28.7%) believe that both need more rights, and 9.3% said neither need more rights. (Figure 55)

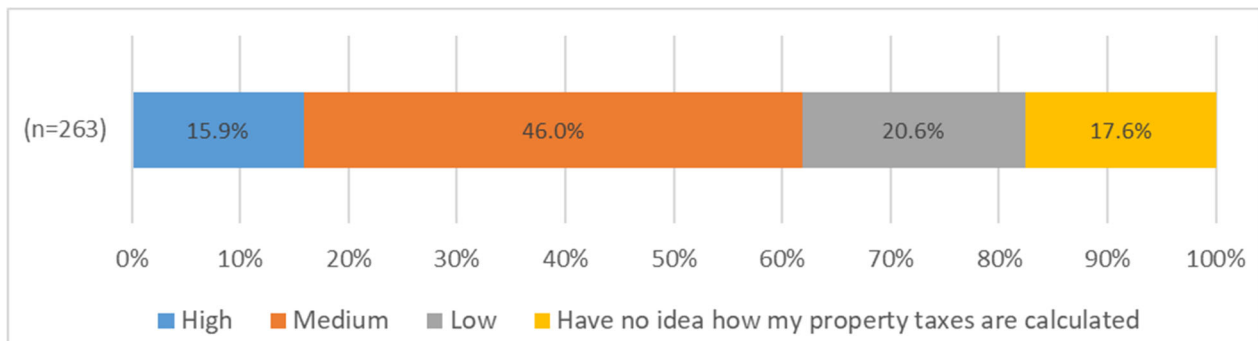

Figure 55: Rights of Property Owners and Tenants

Question: Q48 Do you think property owners, tenants, both, or neither need more rights in Kansas?

The survey asked those respondents who lived in a place owned by them or someone in the household (with or without a mortgage or loan) a couple of questions regarding property taxes. When asked to rate their understanding of how their property taxes are calculated, 15.9% of respondents indicated "high," 46% "medium," 20.6% "low," and 17.6% had no idea how their property taxes are calculated (Figure 56). When asked how much annual property taxes are a threat to them staying in their home, 11.8% said they are a "large threat," 26.8% said "moderate threat," 29.9% "small threat," and 31.5% felt they are "not at all a threat" (Figure 57).

QIntro

Welcome to the 2023 Kansas Speaks survey conducted by the Docking Institute of Public Affairs at Fort Hays State University. Kansas Speaks is a statewide survey measuring Kansans' evaluations of elected officials and their opinions on economy, taxation, election, and some current public affairs issues. It takes about 15 minutes to answer all the questions. The survey has been conducted annually since 2009, and survey results have been reported in local, state, and national news media. Your opinions matter. By participating in this survey you will give voice to thousands of Kansans similar to you. You are assured complete confidentiality. For more information about the Kansas Speaks survey, please visit our website:
