This pamphlet contains the full record of the hearings conducted in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Los Angeles, and San Diego.

This is the exact record of each hearing as dictated, transcribed, and sent to me by Tuiteleleapaga which I duplicate, process, and compile for distribution to the members.

I am advancing this copy for your perusal, however, I am still working on a digest report of the Commission's findings with reference to these governments in accordance with the intent of Public Law 11-39. The digest when completed will be forwarded to the Commission Chairman.

REPORT ON PUERTO RICO

The Commission started its study of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico on September 11, 1969.

THE COMMONWEALTH

Under Commonwealth, Puerto Rico maintains common ties of mutual interest with the United States, such as citizenship, free trade and defense. Puerto Rico continues exempt from the payment of federal taxes, but receives funds from the U. S. government for programs in education, health, public works, and others.

Puerto enjoys complete internal autonomy and maintains voluntary association with the United States, as stipulated in Public Law 600 of the federal Congress, approved in the nature of a compact in 1950, and the Federal Relations Act which defines the relations between both countries. Commonwealth guarantees Puerto Rico's continued economic development in harmony with the aspirations of the Puerto Rican people.

Despite the constitutional achievements and the many benefits derived from the present status, some people, who are heads and members of the three existing parties in Puerto; namely, Popular Democratic Party (Commonwealth), Statehood Republican Party (statehood), and Independence Party (independence), fight to attain their own desire - either to be a state, or be independent. It seems that a very strong party is aiming to make Puerto Rico an independent government. They say that even though they are getting a lot benefits under the present form of government, but they are not free from the control of the United States. This because they do not pay federal taxes.

Under the present form of government, there are three distinct and separate departments: Executive, Legislative and Judicial.

LEGISLATURE

The operation and functioning of the legislature is identical to that of American Samoa; the difference only in the election of the members of the Senate. According to the Speaker of the House, each Congressman receives the sum of $9,000 per annum.

ELECT OWN GOVERNOR

People of Puerto Rico elect their own Governor, who has the power to appoint other government officials who used to be appointed by the President

ELECT OWN GOVERNOR

The people of Puerto Rico elect their own governor, who appoints, by power vested upon him by the compact of 1950, other officials of the government who were used to be appointed by the President of the U. S. The governor also appoints the judges of the various courts, according to the Speaker of the House.

RESIDENT COMMISSIONER

Puerto Rico has a Resident Commissioner in Washington. He sits with the Congress of the United States, but has no vote.

ECONOMY

The main objective of the economic program initiated in 1941 was to improve the standard of living of Puerto Rican families in all aspects, solving the economic problems as a means to solve the social evils afflicting the country. At the same time, it was desired to assure an effective participation of the population in the fruits of economic development.

The lack of natural resources, however, made evident the fact that Puerto Rico's manpower was their main source of wealth to pursue the objectives desired. Puerto Rico then faced the task fully utilizing its increasing their quality through educational and social programs directed towards improving health conditions and living standards in general.

One of the first steps in the economic development program was to initiate an agrarian reform whose main purposes were to liquidate big land holdings and sugar monopolies, diversify agriculture and rescue it from its state of general backwardness, reforming it to increase productivity.

In order to increase productivity, and to make the program effective, land laws were modified and applied whereby land holdings of agricultural corporations were limited to a maximum of 500 acres. The government initiated the acquisition of all lands in excess of 500 acres belonging to these corporations through direct purchases or expropriation with due compensation. Two methods were used in redistributing the lands: one, small farms sold to individual farmers, to be paid on long term basis at low interest. The other through the organization of proportioned profit farms where farmers and workers operate in a cooperative manner a sugar cane farm, on land belonging to the Land Authority, an agency established to implement the agrarian reform receiving from it the advantages which a good organization provides in terms of technical advice and credit facilities. At the close of the fiscal year, after paying all expenses incurred, profits are proportionally distributed among farm administrators and workers on the basis of manhours worked. If there are any losses, the Land Authority covers them from its general income. There are at present more than 67 of these farms in operation.

To train the people to work on the various projects, vocational schools were established, prospective students sent to the United States, and others trained in factories. Thus, at present, the total manpower is 800,000 as compared to 114,000 in 1966.

Puerto Rico has other crops, such as tobacco and coffee. New agricultural techniques were applied, thus increasing the yield. Parcels of lands were distributed in usufruct among rural people. As part of the program, cattle was distributed free among rural people. In addition to the Department of Agriculture, the Agricultural Experiment Station and the Agricultural Extension Service, dependencies of the University of Puerto Rico, played an important role in the introduction of new agricultural techniques.

Because the island is less than 9000 sq. kilometers, two-thirds of which mountainous, thus it cannot attain its maximum development, a new experiment was then begun: INDUSTRIALIZATION.

INDUSTRIALIZATION PROGRAM

In 1940, close to one-third of Puerto Rico's net income depended on agriculture, in comparison with twelve (12) percent in manufacturing.

The changes effected in the industrial economic structure have been induced mainly by the Economic Development Administration and its subsidiary, the Industrial Development Company. These agencies are in charge of providing industrial incentives to attract new industries to Puerto Rico, one tanking among which is exemption from the payment of taxes to the Government of Puerto Rico for a period that now varies from fifteen to twenty-five years. In the Industrialization effort, the Government Development Bank has also played an important role.

1966 and nearly 250,000 at present.

In fiscal year 1965-66 the government sector generated close to 13.5 percent of the total income generated by the economy. Public construction has represented during the past years about 11 per cent of the total construction works completed. This high public construction rate has been responsible, to a great extent, because of the financing obtained from the sale of the government of Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and its instrumentalities. The government made loans to private industries as high as 160 million dollars; outstanding bonds in the amount of 56 million dollars. Private housing construction, which represented $9 million in 1940, had reached the sum of $217 million in 1966, and nearly $250 million at present. In recent years there has been an increase in the construction rate due to the fact that families eligible to purchase their own homes have had available to them the necessary financing facilities.

In the 76 municipalities, each of which has a mayor, the government through its agencies mentioned herein, built homes so that each family has a good place to live. Recently, the government made a mistake, which it is now trying to remedy, by moving in 5,000 families to one unit a one time.

TOURISM

The Department of Tourism was created under the Economic Development Administration. During the year (fiscal year) ending June 30, 1966, some 723,500 tourists visited the Island, spending about $140 million. At present, the number of tourists and the amount of money they spent in the Island, have increased immensely.

In 1966, there were 34 tourist hotels with 5,733 rooms available. Today, Puerto Rico has more than fifty hotels, with nearly 10,000 rooms available for tourists. Tourism has turned Puerto Rico into a cosmopolitan meeting place where persons from all over the world gather under the traditional Puerto Rican hospitality.

The growth and changes experienced in Puerto Rico's economy during the past two decades have raised the annual per capital income from $118 in 1940, $977 in 1966, and $1,200 at present. The increase in income between 1940 and today has brought an accelerated growth in the average family income. This amounted to $4,484 in 1966, as compared to $1,131 in 1940. This income level increase has generated a considerable improvement in the standard of living of families. In 1940, the consumption of protein foods such as milk, meat and eggs was insignificant. For the year 1966 the consumption per person of such food items was more than double that of 1940. At present the part representing expenses in foodstuffs as a percentage of the total family budget has decreased. In other words, with the increase in income levels, families have available an additional amount from their budget for the purchase of durable goods such as electrical appliances, automobiles, furniture, and others previously considered luxury articles because not many persons could afford them.

SOCIAL ADVANCEMENT

EDUCATION: The government dedicates close to 35% of its annual budget to public education. In addition to general educational programs, vocational and technical programs have been established. A literacy program is also in operation, specially aimed at the adult population.

Illiteracy, which in 1898 was over 80%, and in 1940 about 50%, is now down to only 13%. The proportion of the population 25 years ago or over who have not attended school has been reduced significantly, while the number of persons attending high school has increased considerably. In the field of higher education, the University of Puerto Rico has increased its enrollment to 28,000 students during the last academic year. There is an ample scholastic program and other educational facilities available to students of limited economic resources, which has positively contributed to increase the educational level.

Total number of boys and girls now attending the public school of Puerto Rico is as follows: University of Puerto Rico, 40,000; 8,000 attending the vocational schools; 80,000 attending private schools, the rest in high and primary schools. The total number at present, is approximately 700,000.

The average number of years a child attends school is seven (7); most finish their schooling at the Sixth Grade. The number of teachers employed is 24,000; classrooms, 17,520. There are three private universities with combined enrolment of 20,000.

TEACHERS' SALARIES: With teachers certificate-Start with $295.00, maximum, $455. With B. A. degrees: start $370.00, maximum $570; M. A. -start $445.00, maximum, $645; maximum, $645; Ph.D - start $570.00, maximum $770.00. It is interesting to note that the present Secretary of Education receives a salary of $9,000 per annum. Some of the professors get more than he does.

T.V. EDUCATION: The Department of Education also has a t. v. program, which it hopes to improve and use to a large extent.

According to the Secretary of Education, the Department operates on a $200 million grant, and $50 million from the government, but it needs $350 millions to operate the school programs effectively. The Secretary was not quite plain in his explanation of the funds to be matched.

JUDICIAL

SUPREME COURT: is the court of last resort in Puerto Rico and is composed of a Chief Justice and eight (8) Associate Judges or justices. It sits as a full court or in divisions, composed of not less than four justices. No law can be held unconstitutional except by a majority of the total number of Justices of which the court is composed.

COURT OF FIRST INSTANCE consist of two divisions, a division known as the Superior Court and a division known as the District Court, Each Division is a court of record.

THE SUPERIOR COURT of the Court of First Instance have pasts and hold sessions in San Juan, Bayamon, Arecibo, Aguadilla, Mayaguez, Ponce, Guama ya, Humacao and Caguas.

There are 55 judges in the Superior Court appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate, which may be assigned as needed to conduct any part or any division. Each judge is appointed and holds office for a term of twelve years.

JUVENILE COURT: Actually there is no Juvenile Court, but a special procedure was established at the level of the Superior Court to deal with Juvenile Court." At present, there eight Superior Court judges exclusively assigned to the "Juvenile Court;"

There are in the District Court 87 judges appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. No person shall be appointed as District Judge unless he is at least 21 years of age and has been admitted to the bar by the Supreme Court! Each judge is appointed and hold office for a term of eight years.

Like American Samoa and other territories of the United States, each of these courts hears cases in civil and criminal matters, as well as other matters usually brought before the courts for trial and justification.

APPEALS: There is a right to appeal from any final judgment of the District to the Superior Court. In every case the Judge provides a record of everything that happens in the case, which record shall be included in the proceedings, unless the party or parties can prepare a transcript of the evidence. A judgment could be appealed to the First Circuit Court in Boston, i. e., when it comes to federal matters.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE: There are 55 justices of the peace appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate for a term of four years. No person is appointed as justice of the peace unless he shall have attained the age of twenty-one years and enjoys good repute.

Justices of the Peace have the function and power to fix and accept bails and to issue warrants for arrest and for search and seizure in appropriate instances as established by law. They may not adjudicate cases cognizable by the District or Superior Courts.

SALARIES OF JUDGES:	Chief Justice	- - - - -	$22,500	per annum
	Associate Justices	- - - - -	22,000	" "
	Sup. Court Judge	- - - - -	18,000	" "
	Dist. Court Judges	- - - - -	13,000	" "
	Just. of the Peace	- - - - -	3,000	" "

There are about 2,200 lawyers in Puerto Rico at present. Ninety-nine percent graduate from the local law school at the University of Puerto Rico. If a local lawyer has passed the Bar in Puerto Rico, he can practice in any court in the United States, by permission of the Chief Justice of the state.

The Judiciary Department operates on a $12.7 million allotted to it by the Congress of Puerto Rico.

AMERICAN SAMOA POLITICAL STATUS COMMISSION'S REPORT ON THE VIRGIN ISLANDS

The Commission's study of the Virgin Islands started at 10:30 A. M., Sept. 15, 1969. The first department of the Government of Virgin Islands visited, was the Department of Community Housing. All members present.

GOVERNMENT

The Virgin Islands have been governed by many nations. The flags of Spain, France, Holland, England, Denmark, and the United States have flown over all three islands: St. Thomas, St. Croix, and St. John, for a brief time.

The United States purchased the Virgin Islands in 1917; the transition was accomplished smoothly by retaining the Danish legal code as the basic law. The U. S. Navy was given responsibility for administering the islands until 1931. Military, civil, and judicial power were vested in the Naval Governor, who was appointed by the President of the United States.

As in American Samoa, all the heads of departments were naval officers: Supt. of Education, Public Health Officer, Chief Customs Officer, etc., etc.

An Executive order from the White House, dated February 27, 1931, transferred jurisdiction from the Navy to the Department of the Interior. The first civilian governor was appointed by the President.

A major change in the method of governing the islands occurred with the passage of the Revised Organic Act of 1954 by which Congress authorized distinct executive, legislative, and judicial branches and provided for a substantial degree of self-government. Recent changes in the act provide for an even greater degree of home rule.

Presently, the Governor is appointed by the President of the United States, subject to Senate confirmation. The Governor exercises the executive power under the supervision of the Secretary of the Interior.

The people of Virgin Islands are anxiously looking forward to the election of their own Governor by their own people, in 1970, by recent Congressional Act.

The Governor is responsible for execution of local laws, administration of all activities of the executive branch, and the appointment of department heads and other employees. He is bound to report annually to the legislature of the territory and recommends new legislation to carry out the various programs of the local government.

The government secretary also is appointed by the President. In the absence of the Governor, the government secretary serves as Acting Governor. He has also administrative responsibility for banking and insurance laws and the licensing and assessment of real property.

THE LEGISLATURE

The legislature is unicameral; members of which are elected for a 2-year term. There are 15 senators, 5 from St. Croix, 5 from St. Thomas, 1 from St. John, and 4 elected at large by Virgin Islands voters of all the islands.

Each bill passed must be signed by the Governor before it becomes law. A two-thirds vote of the legislature is necessary to override the Governor's veto. In this event, the Governor must approve it or submit it to the President for final action.

Two years ago, the senators received only $600.00 a year. Today, each receives $9,000 a years; the President of the Senate receives $12,000 a year.

The Senate work for seventy calender days a year, but the Governor may call a special session at his discretion. Today, the Senate may work the whole year, inasmuch as the committees want to deal with their various legislative business without bothering to go home. This shows a good loyal spirit among the senators.

The legislature controls all local funds; the federal grants go through the Governor's office. Senators and the Governor seem to concur in their desire to match all funds from the federal government. They feel better that way, for they know they have a hand in the pie. They do not like to feel obligated to the United States because of the grants. Also, they don't like to ask all the time for funds.

WHAT ABOUT YOUR STATUS?

When asked how they feel about their present status, the senators say their hands are tied now because they are still an unincorporated territory. However, they are planning to work towards voting for the President and the Vice President of the United States. They added, that they would like to have their Peoples' Representative (Resident Commissioner) in Washington vote. The senators would like to be under any status where they would have an unrestricted voice in their own affairs. On the other hand, however, they would not like to be divorced from United States, because they are getting a lot financial aid from that government.

STILL AN UNINCORPORATED TERRITORY DESPITE ORGANIC ACT

In answer to a question from the commission, the senators say, that despite there being under an Organic Act, they are still an unincorporated territory. Also, even though they are American citizens, they do not vote for the President or for the Vice President. They say that the people of the Virgin Islands automatically became citizens of the United States in 1927. Those who were outside of the Virgin Islands during that period of time had to make declarations of their desire to become citizens of the United States

WANT TO BECOME A COMMONWEALTH

Because of the many limitations and restrictions put over them by Congress in their control of grants and other matters, one Senator expressed a desire to be under Commonwealth like Puerto Rico. However, under the present lack of resources and other avenues for the money to come, the people of the Virgin Islands have little or nothing at all except the natural beauty of the islands. With Commonwealth, they feel they will have freedom.

NO PROVISIONS OF LAW TO PROTECT LAND

The legislature has enacted no laws to protect the alienation of lands. As it is now, any one from any part of the United States may buy land in the Virgin Islands. The United States Government protects its own land in the Virgin Islands.

BILLS SIGNED

Only 200 bills were passed by the legislature from January (1969) to date. Only about 80% of the bills are signed by the Governor.

The senate confirms all appointments made by the Governor. In other words, the Senate must have its consent and approval of all appointments made by the Governor.

VOTING POPULATION

There were 60,000 people in 1968, the voting population is about 15,000.

FINANCES AND TAXES

There are three principal sources of revenue for the government of the Virgin Islands from which funds are derived for capital and operating disbursement.

The largest source and one that is growing every year, is from local income taxes. An act of Congress of the U. S. provides that Federal income tax schedules be applied as a local tax in the Virgin Islands. Another major contributor to the treasury consists of Federal excise taxes collected in the U. S. on imports of Virgin Islands products and returned to the local government as matching funds. In order to receive funds, the islands must raise through local taxes, funds which match in size the excise to be rebated.

In addition, the Federal Government assists the islands by appropriations and grant-in-aid allotments for many activities in employment services, public assistance, health and diseases services, wildlife, and libraries. There are over 60 such aid programs and appropriations.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Tourism continues to be the most important industry in the Virgin Islands. Income from visitors' expenditures during fiscal year 1968 reached a new record high of over $100 million as compared with $75 million in fiscal year 1967.

Efforts continue toward the creation of a broader industrial and agricultural base within the islands' economy. To establish and maintain this economic stability, small manufacturing firms are continually being encouraged to establish operation in the islands. On St. Croix, two large concerns are in production, providing employment opportunities for a large number of citizens.

Such diversification provides yearly employment at good wages for many islanders, and has helped bring about a higher standard of living than ever existed under the one-crop, one industry, sugar economy of old. Virgin Islanders' per capita income is in excess of $2,500 and is by far the highest in the entire Caribbean.

The sale of rum, the distilling of which is a major industry of the islands, is promoted through the Virgin Islands Rum Council, supported jointly by the rum distillers and the local government.

TAX EXEMPTIONS AS INCENTIVES

Tax exemptions and subsidy benefits long have been used by the local government to encourage industrial development. Incentives for private investment in hotels, guesthouses, industrial concerns, and housing projects include tax exemptions of up to 16 years and the return of 75 percent of income taxes in the form of subsidy.

DUTY FREE

Virgin Islands manufacturers of goods that contain not more than $50 of foreign raw materials are allowed duty-free entry into the U. S. of their products under section 301 of the U. S. Tariff Act. To guard against abuses of section 301, the local government sets up production quotas for certain classifications of textiles, and on the manufacture of watches, with higher taxes provided for production in excess of the quotas. The watch production legislation was supplanted in January 1968 by a congressional act designed for the same purpose, but applicable as well to other territorial areas subject to the same section 301 treatment.

AGRICULTURE

Agriculture as an industry is recently on the double. The Department of Agriculture is conducting extensive research work in the sugar cane. New programs have been initiated to give our local fruits and vegetables a good study. All the islands, particularly St. Croix, have good industries in fruits and vegetables. Also going into raising cattles and breeding. Efforts are being made to produce good hogs, hens and even goats, milk and meat. Many fruits and vegetables from the Virgin Islands are sent to the United States as exports. A strong program of doing research work in the search for medicine or chemicals to kill the insects and help in the planting and the growth of fruits. Studies are also made to promote water supply. Reservoirs are built to catch rain water and to store water.

Study is underway to develop a new system of controlling erosion. In this study, avocados and yams are used, both for food and for arresting the soil by the spread of these plants' roots.

Another experiment is under way in the use of many varieties of mangoes with different colors. This would tell what color produces larger and sweeter fruits, how they grow, and how long will it take to wait to eat. The same experiments are being made with avocados.

Studying the sub-surface, the kind of soil, is also under study. In an answer to a question about the success of the yam experiment, Virgin Islands agricultural officials, say they are still studying. Virgin Islands Agriculture Department deals with scientists all over the world in the study of their problems. They say they have 40 to 50 types of soil which need to be studied carefully. They also say that mango production will be seriously affected if the top soil is not correctly analysed. Offers help by volunteering to send programs to American Samoa if they are asked to do so.

Officials say they pick up fruits as an important product because of the good fertile soil they have in St. Thomas. Experts from different parts of the world come to the Virgin Islands to help study water production and soil analysis, as well as prevention of erosion. They do not want to be isolated, and that's why they keep on traveling to the West Indies, Puerto Rico, the Dominican Republic, and even to Hawaii.

Officials speak highly of the watch industry. They have at present 13 watch companies in the islands. Of these 13 firms, only 4 are exempted from paying taxes. However, the government has seen to it that no distinction is made; therefore all these firms now pay tax. Officials say the watch industry beneficial to the people of the islands. Each watch company employs 100 persons, and the rate of pay is very high. Workers are hired and trained in the islands. The minimum wage is $2.60 an hour. Bringing into the Virgin Islands the watch industry was no difficulty at all.

The Virgin Islands receive from the watch industry $3½ million a year, more or less -- $4 million to be exact. Because of this income, local authorities asked the U. S. Government to exempt all watch companies from paying taxes, hence the Act above mentioned: section 301 of the U. S. tariff act.

Authorities urge the commission to bring in watch companies into American Samoa.

WOOL INDUSTRY

Virgin Islands also has the wool industry - spinning and yarning. They import from Italy, Europe, Japan and Eurasia.

Virgin Islands also has a refining oil company - Texaco.

In answering a question by the Commission: "Are not you creating too many jobs for a population of only 63,000 people, one of the officials seemed to dodge the issue. He said, just to be sure there are enough jobs. At present only 13,000 native Virgin Islanders have jobs, the rest are from other countries. Officials say the Virgin Islands have reached the saturation point, and they should sit down and think, but they want their production to go up higher and higher. Lack of communication is another weak faucet in their programs.

HOUSING PROJECT

The housing construction program is still going on and is far from complete.

The Emergency Housing agency uses government funds built houses and rent them to the people who are qualified under the program. The program is called Emergency Housing, whereby houses are built, financed by the local government, and rented out to people with low incomes. In renting out these houses, people who qualify must meet the conditions of the agreement; if not, they do not get the houses. If they qualify, but do not keep up with terms of the agreement, they are asked to vacate. The money derived from these rentals go back to the same funds they originally came from. Many factors, including politics, involved in the program, thus making it hard to carry on. It is required that before a house is rented out, all facilities and necessary factors must be met and complete, such as sewer lines, toilet facilities, etc. But many houses are rented before any of these things are installed.

Under the present program, the Bank must accept a mortgage on a house. There are no income requirements under the laws controlling the housing program. The Bank allows a home owner to pay in 20 years. This gives the home owner an opportunity to pay as low as $20.00 a month.

POPULATION

Currently, the population of the Virgin Islands is estimated at 63,000, including alien workers and part-time residents. The labor force is more than 26,000.

In 1960 the census recorded the resident population at 32,099. A breakdown of the 1960 population figures records 15,930 males and 16,169 females. Residents of urban communities numbered 18,017; 14,892 lived in rural areas, while 8,892 were enrolled in schools. The total labor force was 11,226, of which 7,373 were male and 3,971 female. Unemployment was listed at 3.4%.
