The Senior Class took the lead this year in the social events by having their annual social the first week of the school year. It was a financial success as well as a social one. Thanks is due the band for the aid they gave at that time.

The Class also had Mrs. Ida Jenness Moulton give her talented program, including short selections and the impersonation of "The Lion and The Mouse." It was a very pleasant entertainment, as well as a financial success.

EDITORIALS

We are sorry not to have Mr. Sullivan back with us this year. He was always ready and willing to help the students in any way he could, and because of his pleasant and genial disposition he won the esteem of all the students.

We, the Class of 1909, wish him success in whatever work he undertakes.

Two of our former teachers are with us this year: Miss Spear, and Miss Ward. On account of the increase of students it was thought best to have an addition to the teaching force. The Committee were fortunate enough to secure the services of Miss Jane Jones. She was formerly employed as Principal of East Eddington High School. They also secured the services of Mr. Charles H. Pratt, a graduate of Bates College, as principal. He shows a great deal of interest in our work, and we are pleased to have him with us.

The appearance of the grounds around the High School building has been greatly changed; the large rock which was between the buildings has been removed, and a great deal of grading done. Next spring when the grass comes up, it will look very respectable. The only thing we would suggest is that the concrete sidewalk, which leads up to the Grammar School be extended to our building.

The word "visitors" seems to sound strange in the ears of the students, as the visitors to our school are so few that the strangeness never wears off. COME IN, ONE AND ALL, and see what we are accomplishing. We were favored by one visitor this term, Mr. Hitchins, the State Entomologist, who gave us a very pleasing sketch of his work in trying to exterminate the different pests, which are injuring the beautiful Maine woods.

It has been rumored that Mr. Carnegie has made the town a very liberal offer towards the erection of a Public Library. It seems as though the voters should bear this in mind, as it is certainly something that we need. But before purchasing a lot, if such a thing should have to be done, let the committee who would have that in charge, take a walk up on High Street, and view the spacious grounds on which the High and Grammar School buildings stand; there is plenty of room and if a library should be erected it would add much to the looks of the grounds. The students of Milo High heartily endorse this proposal.

The future of M. H. S. is brighter than ever. The Fall term of the present year opened with the largest attendance ever on record, and though on account of the removal from town a few have dropped out, the average attendance this year has so far exceeded any previous attendance at Milo High. The standard of the school is steadily reaching a higher standing and this school will, without doubt, soon rank with the Prep. schools of the state, and at present, offers three as good courses as any of the neighboring schools.

In this place it is fitting to thank the people of Milo who have aided us in so many ways during our course in M. H. S. and especially, we wish to acknowledge our appreciation to the business merchants for the ads, to which the financial success of this paper is largely due. We gladly recommend each advertiser to the students of Milo High and to the public in general.

LITERARY.

M are the members large and small;
 I is the interest taken by all;
 L is the lesson so hard to learn;
 O are the orders brisk and stern.

H is for hydrogen made in the lab.;
 I are the idle ones who sit and gab;
 G are the girls—a swell looking crowd;
 H are the honors of which we are proud.

S are the Seniors, polished and bright;
 C are the colors of blue and white;
 H are the hours we spend in hard work;
 O are the ones who continue to shirk;
 O are the ordeals our teachers have passed;

L is the love we bear to the class.

 EXCHANGE.

As yet only two exchanges have reached us; The Oracle, published by the Bangor High School, and the Coburn Clarion, published by Coburn Classical Institute. The Oracle is full of sound sense and humor, and shows that a great deal of care was taken by the editors. The editorials are certainly of a high standard and would be good examples for every school to follow. The Clarion also shows careful attention to all the little details which tend to raise the standard of a successful school paper.

THE BREEZE would like to enlarge its exchange list at least up to last year's standard, and it hopes to hear from many of its friends.

TO OUR TEACHERS.

This year we have four teachers
 Respected by our school;
 They all have different features,
 But are common in their rule.

At first, we have our principal,
 A man of high esteem,
 Who teaches mathematics,
 And drills those Freshmen, green.

He also lets the Virgil class
 To him their talents show;
 How they read and write that language
 Of many years ago.

He shows those stupid Juniors
 Some facts in plane Geom.,
 And tells the class up in the lab.
 What tests they can perform.

Our English teacher comes on the scene,
 Who makes you learn and quote
 A verse from Spenser's "Fairy Queen"
 Or something Dryden wrote.

The Juniors also take their turn
 In their "Parlez-vous francais;"
 She also teaches the Freshman Class
 To write the proper way.

Our teacher in Commercial Work
 Who keeps you on the go,
 Will never let you sit and shirk
 And promptly tells you so.

Her Shorthand Class she says is fine;
 Also her spelling squad;
 So if you wish to take this course,
 We refer you to Miss Ward.

And last of all, we have the one
Who has always known us all;
To whom we tell about Bull Run
And the powers of ancient Gaul.

She has the Freshmen Latin Class
To keep her company, too;
And here her troubles come to pass
Because they are so new.

And now is where we say "Good-bye"
To our teachers, good and kind,
And together our best wishes tie
With a cord that won't unbind.

ATHLETICS.

The athletic question at Milo High is rather a delicate topic to write upon. There are excuses to be made and they must be made in such a way that other schools will not think that we are trying to crawl.

Late in the Fall of 1907, Milo High organized a Basketball team, and before the team had been out to practice more than two or three times, played its first game with Dexter High, one of the fastest teams in the State, and lost the game by a large score. Unfortunately, the majority of the games have been arranged with teams that were out of M. H. S's class, being teams from some of the largest schools in the State. As a result poor success was met with from the start. Two or three other games were lost on account of sickness of some of the players.

Just a word should be said here about the game played with the D. & F. team of Dover. Although M. H. S. trimmed D. & F. the year previous, this year she proved too strong, mainly on account of their good coaching and also by their peculiar style of playing; therefore M. H. S. was unable to make much of a showing, except that they played basketball from start to finish. A return game was scheduled to be played at Milo but strange to say, D. & F. disbanded before the much looked for game was pulled off.

Although the team lost the majority of the games, the boys played well through the entire season, and here the team wishes to thank the public who aided so materially in their support, and also to extend sincere thanks to the individuals who through loans and gifts made it possible to buy the necessary outfit for basketball work.

The line-up for the season was as follows:—H. Gould, Center; M. Horne, Left Forward; H. Moore, R. F.; C. Genter and W. Gould, R. G.; G. Stanchfield, L. G.; M. Horne, Captain; W. E. Sullivan, Manager;

After the first team disbanded, a second team was organized and a schedule of seven games was arranged, of which six were won. This team played Henderson High, Millinocket High, D. & F., second, Monson Academy second, and the second team from Higgins Classical Institute.

The line-up was as follows:—A. Gould, C.; G. Blodgett, L. F.; R. Drinkwater, R. F.; G. Stanchfield, L. G.; E. Perham, R. G.; A. Gould, Captain; G. Blodgett, Manager.

BASEBALL.

In the Spring of '08, the baseball team was organized; G. Stanchfield was chosen captain, and M. Horne, manager. A good sized schedule was made out and a trip planned through Aroostook County; here again the team wishes to thank the business men in town for the new baseball uniforms. After the trip in Aroostook which was full of pleasure, the season ended, which cannot be termed a very victorious one for Milo High.

FOOTBALL.

The football season came with no better prospects; only five or six old players coming out for practice. The rest was made up of green men, some of whom had never even dreamed of playing football, and thus the season began.

Only two games were played; then the team disbanded. The two games were played with Foxcroft Academy; the first at Milo Junction and the second at Dover. In the first game M. H. S. showed up very well, holding her opponent down to a small score; the second game proved more victorious for F. A. as they ran up a much larger score than before. The rest of the games were cancelled as the men did not turn out for practice.

The basket ball team for the coming season has been organized and many good games are looked for. "Gov." Gould has been chosen Captain, and Stanchfield, Manager.

How often do we judge one a crank because of whimsical traits and eccentric manners and yet often it is these very whims and oddities which win sympathy and friends and which frequently go together with genius. There are few writers in all literature who are more endeared to us than Johnson and Goldsmith, and yet their lives are full of blunders and drolleries.

Goldsmith, shy and blundering in childhood, the butt for jeers and jokes of his companions, was full of sensibility and by his early rhymes awakened the expectations of his friends. His passion for gay colors was one of his greatest whims. One time he prepared himself for clerical life and on the solemn occasion when he presented himself before the bishop for orders he appeared luminously arrayed in scarlet breeches; he was rejected.

Samuel Johnson, one of the most eminent of English writers, was distinguished by his many peculiarities and eccentricities. His grimaces, gestures and mutterings, sometimes diverted and sometimes terrified people who did not know him. At a dinner table he would, in a fit of absence, stoop down and twitch off a lady's shoe. He would amaze a drawing-room by suddenly ejaculating a clause of the Lord's Prayer. He would set his heart on touching every post in the street through which he walked if by chance he missed a post, he would go back a hundred yards and repair the omission. His manners, never courtly, were sometimes almost savage. Being often very hungry when he sat down to meals he contracted the habit of eating with ravenous greediness. To the end of his life and even at the tables of the great the sight of food affected him as it affects wild beasts and birds of prey. Even the peculiarities which seem to unfit him for civilized society, his gesticulations, his rollings, his puffings, the strange way in which he wore his clothes, his fits of anger, his frequent rudeness, his occasional ferocity, increased the interest of his associates and added to the esteem and admiration. But though the fame of his writings may have diminished the celebrity of the writer is as great as ever. The memory of other authors is kept alive by their works but the memory of Johnson keeps many of his works alive. The old philosopher is still present in his brown coat with metal buttons, blinking, puffing, rolling his head, drumming with his fingers, tearing his meat like a tiger, and swallowing his boiling hot tea in oceans. No human being who has been more than one hundred years in his grave is so well known to us.

GLADYS B. SPEAR.

A TRIP TO CANADA

Many people on this side of the line know very little of what our neighbors on the Canadian side are doing. They hardly realize that there are cities and towns that are so nearly like the American cities and towns that one sees hardly any difference.

Of the many cities in Canada probably the most interesting one at the present time is Winnipeg. This city is located on the Red and Assiniboine rivers; it is the gate-way to the Canadian Northwest, about which so much is being written and said to-day.

To the traveller, the first place of interest is the beautiful C. P. R. Station. Here at all hours of the day, and most of the night, masses of people, of all nationalities, are moving in and out of the huge swing doors that open into the general waiting room, which has seats for about five hundred people, but where more than a thousand move about at a time. At the right, as we enter this immense room, is a large news stand where all the standard magazines and newspapers are sold; at the end of this stand is a corner around which candies, tobacco, cigars, etc., are sold. Next we come to the check room where packages and parcels are checked for safe keeping. Just beyond this are doors opening into the baggage room where baggage is checked to all parts of the world; a custom house officer has his office in this part of the building. Passing by these doors, with only a glance into this department, we come to the ticket office, where there is usually a large crowd eager to get tickets for north, south, east and west; just beyond here and in the corner of the building, is the ladies' waiting room, furnished with easy chairs, couches, etc.; in the opposite corner is the gentlemen's waiting and smoking room. Between these two rooms are the doors that open into the streets of Winnipeg; but we will pass by them now, and after leaving the smoking room, we come to the lunch room, where we can get as little for our money as we will accept. The dining room is next to the lunch room; this is a beautiful room with neat tables and pretty table girls. This completes our survey of the building except to glance at the corridor that leads to the offices on the second floor.

This corridor overlooks the general waiting room and rests on several magnificent stone pillars.

We will now go out onto the street; we only go a short distance when we come to the Alexandria Hotel, a large and beautiful building, built of granite blocks; here, thousands of weary travelers get rest and food every year; but we will move on, and soon we come to Main street. Turning to the right, we go under the tracks of the C. P. R. and follow a long, straight and level street for several miles; but as there is not much of interest on this end of the street, we will only look with admiration at the length, width, and especially, the cleanliness of the street.

We will now make our way to Portage

Avenue, the popular business street of the city; on our way we pass the city hall, which is set well back from the street. A beautiful green lawn, graced by an elegant fountain, set with thousands of electric lights, adds much to the beauty of the hall. A little further on is Dominion Bank; here is a building that soars into the air far above all the other buildings of the city. It may be seen from nearly any point in the surrounding country. Still further south, on the same street, is a large establishment known throughout the entire west; T. Eaton, of Winnipeg, compares well with Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago; the whole side of this building is a solid mass of windows. The building is several stories high and hundreds of boys and girls are employed within its glass walls as clerks.

A little beyond here is the office of the Standard Newspaper of the Northwest, "The Winnipeg Free-press."

Although Main Street extends nearly as far south as one can see, we will now turn onto Portage Avenue; the first building that we notice is the new and expensive post-office, through which millions of letters and papers go daily to the farmers of the north-west. On the opposite side, and a little further west, is Queen's Hotel, one of the best in that section of the west.

There are many other places of interest on this Avenue, but we will now pass on to the resident part of the city. To see the most in the shortest time, we will go from Portage Avenue to Crescent Avenue; this Avenue follows the Assiniboine river for about two miles at a place where the course of the river forms a crescent. This section is owned entirely by the wealthy class of people, and from the appearance of the brick, granite, brown stone and press-stone houses, it would seem that each new builder had tried to surpass his neighbor. Many of the lawns of these magnificent houses contain an acre or more of land, all beautifully laid out with flower beds and broad walks, shaded with graceful trees. Many of the houses are so built that they partly face the river, as well as the street, and have walks to the bank of the river where tennis courts, etc., are laid out.

Throughout the city, there are pleasure parks, with their fountains, flower gardens, broad walks and seats for the weary.

In all of the parks, and most of the lawns, are seen abundant shade trees; on inquiry, it is found that most of these have to be set out and cultivated, as very few trees grow in that section of the country. Most of the native trees are found within a few rods of some stream or river.

One thing that adds greatly to the beauty of the city is that nearly all the buildings are new; in going about the city, very few old buildings are seen, and these are all in one little group, which was undoubtedly, the first settlement. The citizens, too, take pride in the city, and much is done to make the city a model for others. All the streets are paved, and the pavement not only goes as far as the business section, but it reaches for several miles out; in fact, nearly as far as there are any houses. Great care is taken to keep these streets clean; an army of men may be seen from daylight till dark with brooms, shovels, and wheelbarrows carrying away the dirt that collects on the pavements, while others are busy washing the streets with water from nearby hydrants

Another thing that this city boasts of, and of which it has a right to be proud, is that it is the home of "Ralph Conners" the famous author.

Perhaps from this little visit to one of the many Canadian cities some of us "Yankees" may have better idea of what kind of a country Canada really is: that there are noted men there; large business centers; and good homes; as well as forests and river drivers.
