LIBERAL ARTS AND SCIENCES
UNIVERSITY OF MAINE

Dear ----,

Spring is in the air here at the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. As the semester progresses, I'm reminded of the many challenges faced by our campus community over the past few years. Students have repeatedly demonstrated their resilience as they have embraced their time here in Orono. We celebrate all that they have achieved and all that they have overcome.

But the efforts of current students, faculty, and staff are only part of the equation. So much of our success in CLAS, and across the university, depends on the support of our friends.

Friends like you.

To that end, I would like to ask that you consider joining me in making a donation to CLAS. The outstanding education our students receive is not inexpensive, and it wouldn't be possible without the philanthropic support we provide together.

Although UMaine's in-state undergraduate tuition and fees are by far the lowest of the New England land-grant universities, the cost for a year is about 20% of the median household income in Maine. For the vast majority of our students, whether from Maine or from away, the available financial aid falls short of their estimated need for assistance.

Your gift will help. No matter the size of your donation, it can and will make a difference. While large gifts are certainly always welcome, we are grateful for anything you might share. To those who ultimately benefit, there is no notable difference between a single larger donation and many smaller ones – either way, the students win.

As someone who believes that the education we provide is important, you are part of the University of Maine's College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. That means you are part of something truly special. So why not help others be part of it as well? There is no better time to help. Thank you for joining me and supporting this remarkable "College of Our Hearts, Always."

Sincerely,

Emily A. Haddad, Ph.D.
Dean, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences
