

1983

Picnic on the Freeway

Paul W. Minx

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/ijls>

 Part of the English Language and Literature Commons

Recommended Citation

Minx, Paul W. "Picnic on the Freeway." Iowa Journal of Literary Studies 4 (1983): 56-56.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0743-2747.1057>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in Iowa Journal of Literary Studies by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

PICNIC ON THE FREEWAY

---

Paul W. Minx

I am forced to think of the elemental, the compulsion for a quick, nourishing

lunch. Did I say death?
Why are they sitting off the freeway's shoulder,

a composite American family—father, mother, son—unpacking cold chicken among the lupine and hubcaps?

Oh, you praisers of concrete!
Oh, you followers of the shortest distance home!

Do you also count among your cult,
Mrs. Inez Gutierrez, who tossed her baby off a Hollywood Freeway overpass into the rush hour traffic?

“Baby bounced three times,” a drunken spectator
said,

“before it was hit.”
The only car I ever owned was a black '63 Rambler named Judy (now in Jack's auto graveyard, where WE MEET BY ACCIDENT).

After that dumbfounding wreck, still animal,
in awe of life, I lay down on the warm, moonlit asphalt.

I curled up in a ball.