The University of Iowa 2010-11 General Catalog

The General Catalog provides information about academic programs at The University of Iowa, one of three universities governed by the Board of Regents, State of Iowa. The Catalog also provides links to supporting offices at the University, a list of administrative officers, an A-Z list of University of Iowa faculty members, a University calendar, and information extracted from the Iowa Administrative Code regarding admission requirements and Iowa resident/nonresident standing.

The General Catalog is published for informational purposes and should not be construed as the basis of a contract between a student and The University of Iowa. Every effort is made to provide information that is accurate at the time of publication. However, information on courses, curricula, fees, policies, regulations, and other matters is subject to change any time during the period for which the Catalog is in effect.

This edition of the Catalog was published August 2010. For a PDF version of this Catalog and archived back editions, visit the Office of the Registrar's General Catalog site and use the drop-down menu under "Catalog Snapshots."

The General Catalog is produced by the Office of the Registrar and the Office of University Relations. Your comments and suggestions are welcome. Questions concerning the Catalog may be directed to the Office of the Registrar at registrar-publications@uiowa.edu.

The University of Iowa has been accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools (30 North LaSalle Street, Suite 2400, Chicago, IL 60602; 312-263-0456) since the association's organization in 1913. The University is a member of the Association of American Universities and is associated with Indiana, Michigan State, Northwestern, Ohio State, Pennsylvania State, and Purdue Universities and the Universities of Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin in the Big Ten Conference. Along with the Big Ten universities, it also is associated with The University of Chicago in the Committee for Institutional Cooperation (CIC).

The University of Iowa prohibits discrimination in employment, educational programs, and activities on the basis of race, national origin, color, creed, religion, sex, age, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, or associational preference. The University also affirms its commitment to providing equal opportunities and equal access to University facilities. For additional information, contact the Office of Equal Opportunity and Diversity, 202 Jessup Hall, The University of Iowa, Iowa City, IA 52242-1316; 319-335-0705 (voice) and 319-335-0697 (text).

Academics at Iowa

The University of Iowa offers academic degree and nondegree programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels. It also offers postdoctoral study and other opportunities for nondegree study and research. The General Catalog describes the University's degree and nondegree programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels.

The following pages provide global information about undergraduate, graduate, and professional study across the University. They include lists of all undergraduate majors (including tracks and emphases), certificates, and minors, with links to the relevant Catalog sections; a link to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences' undergraduate General Education Program; information about the undergraduate Four-Year Graduation Plan; information about graduate and professional study; descriptions of the University's course numbering and grading systems; and contact information for supporting offices (admissions, registrar, housing, student financial aid, and equal opportunity).

For information about degree and nondegree programs in specific disciplines and interdisciplinary areas, including graduation requirements and courses offered, see the links under Colleges and Other Academic Units in the Catalog.

To find the Catalog section for a specific academic department or program, use the Catalog's A-Z Directory or the Catalog Contents index.

Undergraduate Study

University of Iowa undergraduate students may earn majors, certificates, and minors in more than 100 subject areas. Many majors have varied tracks or emphases, which students may choose according to their own educational goals and interests. Each program is described in the 2010-11 General Catalog, with information on courses and other graduation or completion requirements. Click on the program links under "Undergraduate Majors and Pre-majors," "Undergraduate Certificates," and "Undergraduate Minors."

Students enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences must complete the college's General Education Program in order to earn an undergraduate degree; other colleges also require General Education course work as part of their undergraduate curricula. For a detailed description of the program and its requirements, use the following link.

- General Education Program

Students who enter the University directly from high school may choose to participate in the Four-Year Graduation Plan, in which students agree to certain conditions that guide their study, and the University ensures availability of courses that students need in order to graduate in four years or provides remedies for delays in graduation due to lack of a course.

Undergraduate Majors and Pre-majors

The University of Iowa offers the following undergraduate majors, pre-majors, and preparatory course work for selected professional degrees. Some majors offer Teacher Education Programs or the opportunity to earn a degree with teacher licensure, as indicated below. Each major links to the appropriate section of the 2010-11 General Catalog. Additional information about all majors is available on the Office of Admissions web site under Undergraduate Admissions: Majors & Programs.

General Education Program

All students entering the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences who wish to earn a Bachelor of Arts (B.A.), Bachelor of Science (B.S.), Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.), Bachelor of Liberal Studies (B.L.S.), or a Bachelor of Music (B.M.) degree must complete the CLAS General Education Program in addition to the requirements of their major and other requirements for graduation.

Undergraduate degree programs in other colleges include General Education requirements, which often may be satisfied with certain courses approved for the CLAS General Education Program.

For detailed information about CLAS General Education requirements and lists of courses approved in the CLAS General Education areas, see General Education Program (College of Liberal Arts and Sciences).

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The Four-Year Graduation Plan is a partnership between students and the University. Students who sign the Four-Year Graduation Plan agree to a number of conditions that guide their studies and their progress toward a degree. The University's colleges and departments also agree to certain conditions. They ensure the availability of courses that students need for graduation; they also guarantee that they will provide certain remedies to a student facing a delay in graduation due to lack of a course, as long as the student has met the conditions of the four-year plan. The Tippie College of Business and the Colleges of Engineering, Liberal Arts and Sciences, and Nursing participate in the four-year plan.

Only students who enter the University directly from high school are eligible to participate in the four-year plan. General information on the Four-Year Graduation Plan is available from the Office of Admissions. Information also is available from the participating colleges and the Academic Advising Center.

Graduate and Professional Study

The University of Iowa offers graduate and professional degrees and graduate certificate programs in a broad array of disciplines and interdisciplinary areas of study. Each of its 11 colleges offers master's degrees, and most offer doctoral degrees. Degree programs are presented by individual colleges, with most graduate degrees being granted by the Graduate College.

The Graduate College section of the Catalog provides a list of most University of Iowa graduate degrees as well as information about interdisciplinary graduate degree programs, joint degree programs, and certificate programs.

For information about degree and nondegree programs in specific disciplines and interdisciplinary areas, including graduation requirements and courses offered, see the appropriate General Catalog sections: Tippie College of Business, College of Dentistry, College of Education, College of Engineering, Graduate College, College of Law, College of Medicine, College of Nursing, College of Pharmacy, and College of Public Health.

Prospective graduate and professional students should apply through the Office of Admissions; see Graduate and Professional Admissions on the office's web site.

Course Numbering

Each course in the regular University curriculum has an identifying number, preceded by the number of the college, department, or program that administers the course. For example, 034:001 is the code for the course numbered 001 in the Department of Sociology (034), titled Introduction to Sociology Principles. Course numbers below 100 designate courses primarily for undergraduates, numbers 100 to 199 designate courses for undergraduate and graduate students, and numbers 200 and above designate courses primarily for graduate students.

Grading

The University uses a letter grading system for individual courses, except for the College of Law, which uses a numeric system for course grading. In order to compute grade-point average, letter grades are converted according to the following numerical scale. Grade-point averages are displayed at the bottom of students' grade reports and are truncated so as not to exceed 4.00. All of the following marks appear on the permanent record.

Grade points for each semester hour

A+	4.33
A	4.00
A-	3.67
B+	3.33
B	3.00
B-	2.67
C+	2.33
C	2.00
C-	1.67
D+	1.33
D	1.00
F	0

Not used in computing grade-point average:

H	Honors (Medicine and Pharmacy)
H-	Near Honors (Medicine)
N	Nonpass
P	Pass
S	Satisfactory
U	Unsatisfactory

Other marks on the permanent record:

I	Incomplete
O	No grade reported
R	Registered, no grade required
W	Withdrawn
=	Changed grade
#	Grade not included in G.P.A.

College of Liberal Arts and Sciences

Dean: Linda Maxson
Executive associate dean: Raúl Curto
Associate dean for undergraduate programs and curriculum: Helena Dettmer
Associate dean for research and development: Joseph K. Kearney
Web site: <http://www.clas.uiowa.edu/>

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (CLAS) is the oldest and largest of the 11 colleges that make up The University of Iowa. Students from all over the United States and more than 50 other nations study together in the college. Every University of Iowa undergraduate takes courses offered by the college, and more than 75 percent of undergraduates earn their degrees from the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

The college provides a comprehensive liberal arts education and advanced education in specialized areas. It offers more than 70 majors and certificates as well as a wide variety of minors and opportunities for interdisciplinary work. Students also may design their own majors through the Bachelor of Arts in interdepartmental studies.

In addition to their academic pursuits, students participate in the college in a variety of ways. They serve on the Dean's Student Advisory Committee and as members of the Educational Policy Committee and the General Education Curriculum Committee--collegiate committees that advise the deans on important educational issues. Students are invited to serve on ad hoc committees within the college as well, and many departments have an undergraduate student group or association. CLAS students also serve in the University of Iowa Student Government. Interested students should contact the appropriate committee or office.

CLAS Web Site

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences web site contains a wealth of information for students and faculty members.

Students find information on academic policies and procedures on the For Students pages, including requirements of the CLAS General Education Program (see CLAS Academic Handbook). Information about scholarships, service opportunities, and upcoming deadlines also is available on the For Students pages.

The CLAS Administrative Units link provides a list of the college's departments, programs, and schools as well as its undergraduate majors, certificates, and minors.

Faculty members turn to the CLAS web site for information on teaching and curriculum, resources to use when advising and instructing students, and updates on important CLAS committees.

The CLAS web site also includes a home page for the Office of the Dean and for CLAS Academic Programs & Services as well as links to other helpful pages.

CLAS Academic Programs & Services

Located in Schaeffer Hall, at the center of campus, CLAS Academic Programs & Services is an integral part of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. The office, which is led by the associate dean for undergraduate programs and curriculum, welcomes students wishing to declare or change majors, file second-grade-only options, request permission to register late, add or drop a course late, or withdraw an entire registration after the established deadlines.

The office's staff members answer students' questions concerning academic requirements or programs, and they frequently meet with students concerning General Education Program requirements, graduation requirements, and collegiate policies that affect students.

Students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences may request exceptions to CLAS rules and requirements by petitioning CLAS Academic Programs & Services. All students should discuss their questions and need for an exception first with a staff member in the office.

The office's associate directors work closely with students on academic probation and counsel them on strategies for success. They also conduct semiannual reviews of students on academic probation and consider requests for reinstatement.

CLAS Academic Programs & Services recommends appropriate disciplinary action for academic fraud, such as acts of plagiarism, cheating, and forgery, and for other academic misconduct. It also handles dismissals from the college.

General Education Program

All students entering the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences who wish to earn a Bachelor of Arts (B.A.), Bachelor of Science (B.S.), Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.), Bachelor of Liberal Studies (B.L.S.), or Bachelor of Music (B.M.) degree must complete the CLAS General Education Program in addition to the requirements of their major and other requirements for graduation.

For General Education requirements, related academic policies, and lists of approved courses, see General Education Program under "Index: CLAS Academic Programs" below.

CLAS Units and Academic Programs

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences includes nearly 40 administrative units ranging across the fine and performing arts, humanities and letters, social sciences, and natural and mathematical sciences. These units offer nearly 70 undergraduate majors and certificates as well as a wide variety of minors. They also offer more than 50 graduate programs (with degrees granted by the Graduate College).

Undergraduate Majors, Certificates, and Minors

The college offers undergraduate majors in a broad range of disciplines. In addition, several majors are offered to CLAS students by other colleges at the University, with the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences granting the degrees. The Tippie College of Business offers a major in economics (B.A. and B.S.); the Carver College of Medicine offers majors in biochemistry (B.A. and B.S.) and in microbiology (B.S.); and the College of Education offers majors in elementary education (B.A. or B.S.) and in science education (B.S.). For descriptions of the majors and their requirements, see the links under "Index: CLAS Academic Programs" below.

The College of Education also offers a Teacher Education Program leading to licensure at the secondary level for students who have completed certain CLAS majors, such as English, mathematics, and art, and who wish to work with students in middle school or high school. Students must apply for admission to the Teacher Education Program; contact the College of Education's Office of Teacher Education and Student Services.

Students who begin their study in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences may earn undergraduate degrees in clinical laboratory sciences, nuclear medicine technology, and radiation sciences; see the Carver College of Medicine section of the Catalog for information about those majors.

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offers a broad array of certificates and minors for undergraduate students. In addition, the college collaborates with the University's International Programs office to offer the Certificate in Global Health Studies and the Certificate in Latin American Studies, and it partners with the Tippie College of Business to offer the Certificate in International Business. Link to information about CLAS certificates and minors under "Index: CLAS Academic Programs" below.

CLAS undergraduates may earn certificates and minors offered by other colleges as well. The Tippie College of Business offers the Certificate in Entrepreneurship, the Certificate in Risk Management and Insurance, and the minor in business administration. The College of Public Health offers the Certificate in Public Health. University College offers the Certificate in Leadership Studies, the Certificate in Nonprofit Management, and the Certificate in Sustainability. The College of Education offers minors in educational psychology and in human relations. For lists of all undergraduate certificates and minors offered by the University, see Certificates and Minors in the Academics at Iowa/Undergraduate Study section of the Catalog.

Undergraduates also may take courses in book arts from the Center for the Book, a Graduate College program that offers a graduate certificate.

Graduate Degrees and Certificates

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offers graduate programs in most of its disciplines, with degrees granted by the Graduate College. Students may earn degrees at the master's and doctoral levels; graduate certificates are available in some areas of study. See Degrees Offered in the Graduate College section of the Catalog for a complete list of graduate degrees offered by the University.

For information about CLAS graduate programs, see the links under "Index: CLAS Academic Programs" below.

Nondepartmental Courses

Most College of Liberal Arts and Sciences courses are offered by the college's departments, programs, and schools. They are listed and described in the corresponding General Catalog sections; see the links under "Index: CLAS Academic Programs" below.

The college also offers the following nondepartmental courses.

610:029 First-Year Seminar

1 s.h.

Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

610:030 Explorations in Computing, Mathematics, and Science

1 s.h.

Presentations by science and math faculty members, discussions with visiting scientists, visits to campus labs, off-campus science field trips; for students in Explorations in Computing, Mathematics, and Science Living-Learning Community. Requirements: first-year standing in CMS Learning Community.

610:040 Citizenship, Leadership, and Service I

1 s.h.

Presentations by faculty members, scholars, activists; guided discussions with visiting scholars and activists, other varied activities; for students in Citizenship, Leadership & Service Living-Learning Community. Requirements: enrollment in CLS Learning Community.

610:050 Citizenship, Leadership, and Service II

1 s.h.

Continuation of 610:040; individual volunteer opportunities, participation in service learning projects; presentations by faculty and community members, visits to University and community resources. Prerequisites: 610:040. Requirements: member of Citizenship, Leadership, and Service Living-Learning Community.

610:060 Life Design: Building Your Future

1 s.h.

How interests and talents can be paired up to achieve a fulfilling life; what students are passionate about; address questions (i.e., How can you identify what you're good at? How can you build a life of purpose and meaning? How can you cultivate mentors? What is the relationship between ambition, drive, and success? What major might be the best fit and how can University resources help your academic and personal success?); portfolio of reflective exercises, activities, journal assignments.

610:099 Peer Mentoring

1-2 s.h.

Opportunities to participate in classroom and course activities as mentors for other students.

Undergraduate nondegree program: Minor in African American Studies

Graduate degree: M.A. in African American World Studies

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~afam/index.html>

African American studies focuses on the study of people of African descent in the United States and the African diaspora. The African American Studies Program originated in 1969 through courses intended to foster awareness of African Americans' role in the development of the United States and the world. Because a thorough understanding of the African American experience cannot be achieved through study restricted to the perspective of a single discipline, all students are required to pursue courses in the humanities, social sciences, and performing arts.

The African American Studies Program draws upon faculty from American studies, communication studies, education, health and sport studies, history, journalism and mass communication, religious studies, rhetoric, sociology, theatre arts, and women's studies. Future course work in political economy, gender and sexism, and the construction of race and identity is planned.

Undergraduate Programs

The program offers a Bachelor of Arts and a minor in African American studies.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in African American studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 30 s.h. of work for the major. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the major. Transfer credit is evaluated case-by-case and is limited to a maximum of 9 s.h. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

INTRODUCTORY COURSES

Students are required to complete 129:062 Foundations in African American Studies, and either 129:060 Introduction to African American Society or 129:061 Introduction to African American Culture.

Foundations in African American Studies (129:062) explores the history and the methodology of African American studies. Starting with readings related to the formation of the discipline, the course shows students what an African American studies approach to interpretation entails and culminates in a research paper.

Introduction to African American Society (129:060) examines the construction of social and historical institutions in the United States and the African diaspora (e.g., Black church, Black family, gender, sexuality). The course may include readings in political science, religion, history, sociology, geography, anthropology, and other disciplines.

Introduction to African American Culture (129:061) presents themes in African American cultural studies. It includes readings in literature, music, film studies, religious studies, and the visual and performing arts.

The following introductory courses are required.

129:062 Foundations in African American Studies	3 s.h.
129:060 Introduction to African American Society or	3 s.h.
129:061 Introduction to African American Culture	3 s.h.

AFRICAN AMERICAN STUDIES CORE

In addition to the two required introductory courses, all students must complete at least two courses from each of the three topical areas below (minimum of 18 s.h.). Additional courses may be approved for the topical areas; consult with an African American studies advisor.

History, Religion, and the Diaspora

Two of these:

07B:126 Twentieth-Century Educational Movements	2-3 s.h.
129:008 Literatures of the African Peoples	3 s.h.
129:050 Introduction to African American Religions	3 s.h.
129:063 African American Islam	3 s.h.
129:065 Introduction to African American History	3 s.h.
129:093 Black Culture and Experience (when topic is history, religion, and the diaspora)	3 s.h.
129:123 Twentieth-Century African American Religion: Civil Rights to Hip-Hop	3 s.h.
129:137 History of Slavery in the U.S.A.	3-4 s.h.
129:140 Topics in African American Studies (when topic is history, religion, or the diaspora)	arr.
129:158 Topics in African Cinema	3 s.h.
129:163 Pre-Colonial African History	3 s.h.
129:164 African History Since 1880	3 s.h.
129:170 African American History 1619-1865	3 s.h.
129:184 Black Global Metropolis: Sexual History	3 s.h.
129:187 African American History 1865-Present	3 s.h.
129:189 Themes in African American History	3 s.h.
129:205 Gender and Race in Nineteenth-Century U.S.	arr.

Literature and Performing Arts

Two of these:

129:069 Selected African American Authors	3 s.h.
129:093 Black Culture and Experience (when topic is literature or performing arts)	3 s.h.
129:098 African American Women Writers	3 s.h.
129:116 African American Literature Before 1900	3 s.h.
129:117 African American Literature Since 1900	3 s.h.
129:128 Racial Narrative and American Performance	3 s.h.
129:140 Topics in African American Studies (when topic is literature or performing arts)	arr.
129:162 Midwest African American Literature and Culture	3 s.h.
129:175 African American Theatre I	3 s.h.
129:181 African American Autobiography	3 s.h.
129:182 Free Style Writing: Poetry, Plays, and Performances	3 s.h.
129:183 Black Feminist Tradition and Culture	3 s.h.
129:186 African American Drama	3 s.h.
129:191 African American Theatre II	3 s.h.

Media, Politics, and Society

Two of these:

129:076 Race, Ethnicity, and Media	3 s.h.
129:079 Race and Ethnicity in Sport	3 s.h.
129:093 Black Culture and Experience (when topic is media, politics, and society)	3 s.h.
129:097 Race, Sport, and Globalization	3 s.h.
129:102 Black Popular Music	3 s.h.
129:122 African Americans and the Media	3 s.h.
129:140 Topics in African American Studies (when topic is media, politics, or society)	arr.
129:153 The Civil Rights Movement	3 s.h.
129:161 Insurgency and Globalization of Discontent	3 s.h.
129:195 Television and African American Culture	3 s.h.

ELECTIVES

Students also must take two elective courses (minimum of 6 s.h.) selected from the three topical areas listed above. With the approval of an African-American studies advisor, students may substitute relevant courses offered by other departments for one or both electives; the substituted courses may not be cross-referenced with African American studies. Students must gain the advisor's approval before enrolling in a substitute course.

Two electives selected from the three topical areas above, or approved substitutes 6 s.h.

LANGUAGE REQUIREMENT

The language requirement for the African American studies major is the same as that of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. Students are encouraged, but not required, to take African language (Swahili is currently offered) or Spanish language courses to fulfill the language requirement.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

During the first year of study, students should focus on completing the General Education Program, perhaps including beginning Swahili to complete the foreign language component, or taking Spanish language course work.

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least three courses in the major, including 129:062 Foundations in African American Studies, and 129:060 Introduction to African American Society or 129:061 Introduction to African American Culture; and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: four more courses in the major (for a total of seven) and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least nine courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

The University of Iowa Honors Program provides a stimulating and integrative educational experience for undergraduate majors who perform at a high level. The honors program in African American studies offers students the opportunity to pursue special interests in individual in-depth research. Honors students in African American studies must be members of the University Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). Honors students complete all of the required course work for the major (30 s.h.).

Students who wish to graduate with honors in African American studies are encouraged to register for up to 6 s.h. in 129:095 Honors Project. Work in this course enhances the student's ability to complete honors projects under the guidance of the supervising faculty member. Students take 129:095 Honors Project with the approval of their African American studies advisor, who typically supervises the course. Students may count up to 6 s.h. earned in 129:095 Honors Project toward the 33 s.h. required for the major.

Under the guidance of the African American studies advisor, the honors student defines a research project (thesis) using primary, secondary, or archival sources. The thesis may build upon the student's final project for the Senior Seminar (129:199), but research for the honors thesis must be distinct from that for the student's senior seminar paper and must be more thorough and sophisticated. Students make project proposals by the end of their junior year. Each student completes a thesis under the guidance of a supervising faculty member and presents the results as a senior essay to a committee of three faculty members, including the supervising African American studies faculty member, and two other African American studies faculty members of the student's choice. The student's committee may choose to hear an oral defense of the honors thesis, usually during the student's last semester.

Students should use one or more of their elective courses to develop the honors thesis.

Minor

The minor in African American studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including 12 s.h. taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Course work done for another major or minor may not be counted toward the minor in African American studies.

Students must take 129:062 Foundations in African American Studies. In consultation with their advisors, they should select either 129:060 Introduction to African American Society or 129:061 Introduction to African American Culture, and one course in each of the three topical areas (total of three topical area courses, 9 s.h.): history, religion, and the diaspora; literature and performing arts; and media, politics, and society. Two of the three topical area courses must be taken at The University of Iowa.

Graduate Program

African American studies is not accepting graduate students in 2010-11.

Cocurricular Activities

Afro-American Cultural Center

African American studies encourages students to use facilities of the Afro-American Cultural Center. The center serves as a museum and library of educational and cultural artifacts and exhibits of Black culture, providing cultural enrichment for Black people of the Iowa City community and a cultural meeting place for Black students. It also attempts to provide a knowledge of Black culture that will promote diversity among all members of the University community.

African American Studies Student Association

The African American Studies Student Association aims to promote knowledge about people of African descent by sponsoring programs on various topics. Any University of Iowa student interested in African American studies is eligible to become a member.

Seminar and Lecture Series

The African American Studies Seminar Series and the Darwin Turner Lecture bring important scholars and creative artists such as Amiri Baraka, Michelle Wallace, and Valerie Smith to the University of Iowa campus.

The New Research in African American Studies lecture series, sponsored by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, focuses on research by faculty in the African American Studies Program.

Aging Studies

Chair: Edward J. Saunders

Coordinator: Mercedes Bern-Klug

Program advisor: Mercedes Bern-Klug

Undergraduate nondegree programs: Certificate, Minor in Aging Studies

Graduate nondegree program: Certificate in Aging Studies

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~socialwk/aging/>

The Aging Studies Program offers the Certificate in Aging Studies for undergraduate and graduate students and a minor in aging studies for undergraduates. The certificate program is designed to provide students with a multidisciplinary approach to gerontology. Its course work has been coordinated and sequenced to provide a broad background in aging for students from varied disciplines. All students plan their courses of study with their academic advisors in close cooperation with the Aging Studies Program advisor.

College of Liberal Arts and Sciences students also may pursue a Bachelor of Arts with an individually designed major in aging studies through the college's Interdepartmental Studies Program. See "B.A. with Aging Studies Focus" below.

Certificate

The Certificate in Aging Studies requires 21 s.h. The program is open to undergraduate, graduate, and nondegree students with aging-related career interests and needs. A student may not be awarded both a minor and a certificate in aging studies.

The certificate's required 21 s.h. must be earned in approved aging-related courses, including at least 18 s.h. in courses numbered 100 and above. Aging-related course work is defined as work that focuses principally on older persons, the aging process, or interventional methods or techniques whose target is the older adult or aging. Certificate students must complete a minimum of 15 s.h. in aging studies at The University of Iowa. A g.p.a. of at least 2.00 is required in all course work applied toward the certificate.

Certificate requirements include a core curriculum of six courses and an additional 2-5 s.h. of elective course work from the list of approved aging-related courses. Students may take core courses before or concurrently with other courses in the program. They should complete the core courses before taking the research project or the practicum course.

With the approval of their major department, students may apply certificate course work to their major or professional program of study.

Transfer credit is determined individually. Students who wish to apply credit earned at other institutions to the aging studies certificate should consult the aging studies coordinator.

Students in good standing should contact the Aging Studies Program advisor to notify the advisor of their intent to pursue the certificate and to develop an appropriate study plan. The aging studies advisor works with students and their major advisors to shape a study plan that complements their academic program and career interests. The aging studies advisor recommends a sequence in which course work should be taken and keeps a record of each student's approved program and progress.

Completion of the Certificate in Aging Studies is noted on the student's transcript.

Individuals who have earned a bachelor's degree at The University of Iowa may return to complete the requirements for the certificate. Graduate students and other students who hold a bachelor's degree are awarded the certificate when they have completed all certificate requirements.

The certificate requires the following course work.

CORE COURSES

All certificate students must complete the following six core courses.

153:108 Basic Aspects of Aging (GE: social sciences)	3 s.h.
153:135/042:135 Global Aging: Cultural Comparisons	3 s.h.

Minor

Undergraduate students in the Colleges of Liberal Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering, Nursing, or the Tippie College of Business may complete the minor in aging studies. The minor must be approved by the student's college or major department. A student may not be awarded both a minor and a certificate in aging studies.

The minor in aging studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in aging-related course work, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. For the minor, courses numbered above 100 are considered advanced. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. The required introductory core course 153:108 Basic Aspects of Aging must be included in the 12 s.h. of advanced course work. Courses must be approved by the Aging Studies Program.

B.A. with Aging Studies Focus

Students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences who would like to design an individualized program in aging studies leading to a Bachelor of Arts must apply and be accepted to the Interdepartmental Studies Program. Entry to the program requires approval of a plan of study that includes 36 s.h. of upper-level course work. For more information, see Interdepartmental Studies in the Catalog.

153:261 Epidemiology of Aging 1-2 s.h.

Epidemiologic methods for studying health and social problems of older persons; applications including research and public health practice and policy. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 173:140. Same as 173:261.

153:410 Nursing Research of Biological Phenomena and Interventions for the Elderly 3 s.h.

Analysis, evaluation of research on health of elderly, aging process; emphasis on methodological issues, instrumentation appropriate for study of biological phenomena. Requirements: (for 153:410) Ph.D. enrollment. Same as 096:410.

153:420 Geriatric Mental Health Research

3 s.h.

Analysis, evaluation; emphasis on program evaluation, geriatric mental health services research, methodological issues. Requirements: (for 153:420) Ph.D. enrollment. Same as 096:420.

153:430 Nursing Research in Sociocultural Phenomena and Interventions for the Elderly

3 s.h.

Sociocultural issues for aging clients, corresponding nursing interventions; theoretical orientations to dynamics of aging, transitions and role changes, social/environmental issues. Requirements: (for 153:430) Ph.D. enrollment. Same as 096:430.

American Indian and Native Studies

Coordinator: Michelene Pesantubbee

Professor: Phillip Round (English/American Indian and Native Studies)

Associate professor: Michelene Pesantubbee (Religious Studies/American Indian and Native Studies)

Assistant professor: Margaret Beck (Anthropology/American Indian and Native Studies)

Undergraduate nondegree programs: Certificate, Minor in American Indian and Native Studies

Graduate nondegree program: Certificate in American Indian and Native Studies

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~ainsp/>

The American Indian and Native Studies Program (AINSP) is an interdisciplinary program that focuses on the histories, cultures, literatures, and contemporary legal and political issues of Native Americans of the United States and other indigenous peoples of the Americas.

By taking AINSF courses, students begin to understand historical and contemporary social issues among indigenous peoples of the Americas. They acquire expertise for jobs involving cross-cultural work through experience with ethnic, social, and political diversity. They also gain a background for more specialized or advanced work in a variety of social science disciplines, including anthropology, economics, education, geography, history, political science, psychology, and religious studies.

A certificate in AINSF complements degrees in professional areas such as health care, business, social work, and law.

Undergraduate Programs

The program offers the Certificate in American Indian and Native Studies and a minor in American Indian and native studies.

Certificate

The undergraduate Certificate in American Indian and Native Studies requires a minimum of 21 s.h. in courses approved for AINSF. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in work for the certificate.

Students plan their programs in close cooperation with AINSF faculty advisors. They may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of course work from their major toward the AINSF undergraduate certificate. Courses applied toward the AINSF certificate also may be used to complete the General Education Program or the requirements for a major or a minor.

The certificate is awarded upon completion of a bachelor's degree. Holders of Iowa baccalaureate degrees may return to complete the requirements for the certificate. Students may not earn both a certificate and a minor in American Indian and native studies.

The AINSF undergraduate certificate requires the following course work.

All of these:

149:049 Introduction to American Indian and Native Studies	3 s.h.
149:102 Introduction to American Indian History and Policy	3 s.h.
149:113 Native American Literature	3 s.h.

At least 3 s.h. from these:

149:076 American Indian Environmentalism	3 s.h.
149:110 Native Peoples of North America	3 s.h.
149:195 Directed Cultural Experience	arr.
149:197 Independent Study	arr.
149:199 Special Topics: American Indian and Native Studies	arr.

And:

Electives chosen from courses listed under "Associated Courses" and "American Indian and Native Studies Courses" below	9 s.h.

Minor

The minor in American Indian and native studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including 12 s.h. in courses numbered 149:075 or above taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of course work from their major toward the AINSF minor.

The minor includes the following course work.

149:049 Introduction to American Indian and Native Studies 3 s.h.

One of these:

149:102 Introduction to American Indian History and Policy 3 s.h.

149:113 Native American Literature 3 s.h.

At least 3 s.h. from these:

149:076 American Indian Environmentalism 3 s.h.

149:110 Native Peoples of North America 3 s.h.

149:195 Directed Cultural Experience arr.

149:197 Independent Study arr.

149:199 Special Topics: American Indian and Native Studies arr.

And:

Electives numbered 075 or above chosen from courses listed under "Associated Courses" and "American Indian and Native Studies Courses" below 6 s.h.

Cultural Experience

The program highly recommends that students have an in-depth American Indian cultural experience, usually through study or volunteer work, before they complete their undergraduate requirements. Consult AINSP faculty advisors about available options.

Graduate Program

The program offers the Certificate in American Indian and Native Studies for graduate students.

Certificate

The graduate Certificate in American Indian and Native Studies requires a minimum of 20 s.h. in courses approved for AINSP and numbered 100 or above (see "Associated Courses" and "American Indian and Native Studies Courses" below). Graduate students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 in work toward the certificate. They may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of course work from their major field of study toward the AINSP graduate certificate.

Graduate students must apply to the academic coordinator to be admitted to the AINSP graduate certificate program. Students who earned an undergraduate certificate in the program may not receive a graduate certificate.

The AINSP graduate certificate requires the following course work.

149:102 Introduction to American Indian History and Policy 3 s.h.

149:299 Independent Study Project 2 s.h.

Electives numbered 100 or above chosen from courses listed under "Associated Courses" and "American Indian and Native Studies Courses" below 15 s.h.

Associated Courses

The following courses are approved for AINSP. Other courses that are concerned in part with American Indians or other indigenous peoples of the Americas, or with issues relevant to them, may be used as electives to satisfy requirements for the undergraduate certificate, the minor, and the graduate certificate, subject to AINSP faculty approval.

For course descriptions, see the appropriate department sections of the Catalog.

ANTHROPOLOGY

113:117 The Maya: Archaeology and Ethnohistory 3 s.h.

113:163 Archaeology of Mesoamerica 3 s.h.

113:166 The Aztecs, Their Predecessors, and Their Contemporaries 3 s.h.

113:167 North American Archaeology 3 s.h.

ART AND ART HISTORY

01H:104 American Indian Art	3 s.h.
01H:105 Art of Pre-Columbian America	3 s.h.
01H:199 Topics in Art History (when content is appropriate)	3 s.h.

EDUCATION

American Sign Language

Chair: Richard Hurtig

Professor: Richard Hurtig

Associate professor: Douglas Baynton

Lecturers: Freeman Harper, Shannon Marsh, AmyRuth McGraw, Kelly Neppl, Timothy Sheets

Undergraduate nondegree programs: Certificate in American Sign Language and Deaf Studies; Minor in American Sign Language

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~asliowa>

The American Sign Language Program offers a four-semester course sequence in American Sign Language (ASL), the undergraduate certificate in American Sign Language and Deaf Studies, and courses for teacher licensure. Classroom instruction is supplemented by video materials and interactive software in the Language Media Center.

Undergraduate students may use the American Sign Language sequence 158:011 American Sign Language I, 158:012 American Sign Language II, 158:013 American Sign Language III, and 158:014 American Sign Language IV to complete the foreign language component of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Certificate

The Certificate in American Sign Language and Deaf Studies requires 34 s.h. The interdisciplinary program teaches students about the history, culture, and language of the American deaf community.

Through the study of American Sign Language, students come into contact with a language that is semantically and grammatically very different from their own and that operates in a different sensory channel as well. Students who undertake the program encounter a rich and complex culture, including a rapidly growing literature recorded on film and videotape since the early 20th century.

The certificate program permits students to link study in two or more disciplines into an organized investigation of a language and culture. The Certificate in American Sign Language and Deaf Studies serves as a valuable confirmation for employers and graduate schools of a student's specialized knowledge in the field.

Any undergraduate student pursuing a degree from The University of Iowa may earn the certificate. Holders of University of Iowa bachelor's degrees who are not enrolled in graduate or professional programs may return to complete the certificate.

Students may earn the Certificate in American Sign Language and Deaf Studies, or a minor in American Sign Language, but not both.

Students may use each course required for the certificate to satisfy only one certificate requirement. But they may use a course to satisfy both a certificate requirement and a requirement for a major or for a minor in another discipline.

Courses used to satisfy certificate requirements may not be taken pass/nonpass.

A maximum of 6 s.h. of transfer work may be accepted toward certificate requirements, with the approval of the American Sign Language and deaf studies advisor.

The Certificate in American Sign Language and Deaf Studies requires completion of the four-course sequence American Sign Language I-IV (16 s.h.), or demonstration of equivalent proficiency; 6 s.h. of core courses; and 12 s.h. of approved courses in two or more disciplines.

LANGUAGE SEQUENCE

Certificate students must complete the following sequence or be able to demonstrate equivalent proficiency.

158:011 American Sign Language I	4 s.h.
158:012 American Sign Language II	4 s.h.
158:013 American Sign Language III	4 s.h.
158:014 American Sign Language IV	4 s.h.

CORE COURSES

Students choose at least 6 s.h. from the following core courses.

158:100/16A:104 History of the American Deaf Community	3-4 s.h.
158:101 Topics in Deaf Studies	3 s.h.
158:102 American Deaf Culture	3 s.h.
158:103 American Sign Language Literature	3 s.h.
158:104 Issues in ASL and Deaf Studies	3 s.h.

158:106 Introduction to ASL Interpreting	3 s.h.
158:110/07U:110 Teaching Deaf and Hard of Hearing Students	3-4 s.h.
158:111 American Sign Language Conversation	3 s.h.

DISCIPLINE COURSES

Students also complete at least four courses (12 s.h.) in two or more of the following disciplines. They may petition to have courses that are not listed below approved for certificate requirements.

Anthropology

113:014 Language, Culture, and Communication	3 s.h.
--	--------

Communication Sciences and Disorders

003:117 Psychology of Language	3 s.h.
003:118 Language Development	1-3 s.h.
003:185 Hearing Loss and Audiometry	3 s.h.
003:244 Rehabilitative Audiology	3 s.h.

Education

07U:100 Foundations of Special Education (requires admission to the Teacher Education Program)	3 s.h.
07U:110/158:110 Teaching Deaf and Hard of Hearing Students	3-4 s.h.
07U:133 The Culturally Different in Diverse Settings	3 s.h.

History

16A:104/158:100 History of the American Deaf Community	3-4 s.h.
16A:106 Disability in American History	3 s.h.

Linguistics

103:011 Language and Society	3 s.h.
103:100 Introduction to Linguistics	3 s.h.
103:150 Language and Gender	3 s.h.

Minor

The minor in American Sign Language requires 15 s.h. of ASL course work, including 12 s.h. in courses numbered 100 or above taken at The University of Iowa, excluding 158:106 Introduction to ASL Interpreting, which does not count toward the minor. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. The minor must include 158:014 or demonstrated equivalent proficiency. Students may count a maximum of one course taught in English toward the minor (158:100 History of the American Deaf Community or 158:110 Teaching Deaf and Hard of Hearing Students) and must enroll in the 4 s.h. option with discussion conducted in ASL.

Hearing Impaired Endorsement for Teachers

The American Sign Language Program offers courses that fulfill requirements for the Hearing Impaired Endorsement offered by the College of Education. The University of Iowa currently is the only institution in Iowa that offers this endorsement program. Holders of the endorsement are authorized to serve deaf and hard-of-hearing students from birth to age 21. Applicants to the program must hold or be in the process of completing requirements for an elementary or secondary teaching license.

American Sign Language Courses

- 158:011 American Sign Language I 4 s.h.
Conversational skills, basic grammar of ASL; introduction to the ASL cultural community through readings, videos. Taught in American Sign Language. First in a four-semester sequence. GE: Foreign Language First Level Proficiency.
- 158:012 American Sign Language II 4 s.h.
Continuation of 158:011; emphasis on ASL grammar and syntax; focus on culture through readings, videos. Taught in American Sign Language. Prerequisites: 158:011. GE: Foreign Language Second Level Proficiency.
- 158:013 American Sign Language III 4 s.h.
Continuation of 158:012; emphasis on ASL grammar and syntax; focus on culture through readings, videos. Taught in American Sign Language. Prerequisites: 158:012. GE: Foreign Language Second Level Proficiency.
- 158:014 American Sign Language IV 4 s.h.
Continuation of 158:013. Taught in American Sign Language. Prerequisites: 158:013. GE: Foreign Language Fourth Level Proficiency.
- 158:015 Fingerspelling and Numbers I 1 s.h.
Development of expressive and receptive American Sign Language fingerspelling, loan sign, and number skills based on word, phrase, and number recognition. Eight weeks. Prerequisites: 158:011.
- 158:016 Fingerspelling and Numbers II 1 s.h.
Development of expressive and receptive American Sign Language fingerspelling, loan sign, and number skills based on word, phrase, and number recognition. Eight weeks. Prerequisites: 158:015.
- 158:100 History of the American Deaf Community 3-4 s.h.
Creation of a distinct language and culture of deaf people in America during the 19th and 20th centuries. Taught in American Sign Language. Prerequisites: 158:014. Same as 16A:104.
- 158:101 Topics in Deaf Studies 3 s.h.
Current topics in deaf studies; skill development in communicative fluency in ASL. Taught in American Sign Language. Corequisites: 158:014, if not taken as a prerequisite.
- 158:102 American Deaf Culture 3 s.h.
Cultural practices, beliefs, values of the American deaf community. Taught in American Sign Language. Corequisites: 158:014, if not taken as a prerequisite.
- 158:103 American Sign Language Literature 3 s.h.
Introduction to the world of ASL literature, as recorded on videotape or film and in live performance; traditional folklore, story telling, poetry, drama, oratory, jokes, and nonfiction narrative; analysis of genres in their social and cultural contexts as expressions of deaf experience; how historical and current issues in deaf culture are represented in literary form. Taught in American Sign Language. Corequisites: 158:014, if not taken as a prerequisite.
- 158:104 Issues in ASL and Deaf Studies 3 s.h.
Current issues in American Sign Language and the American deaf community, such as linguistics, culture, literacy. Corequisites: 158:014, if not taken as a prerequisite.
- 158:105 Deafness in the Media 3 s.h.
Exploration of the construct of deafness through mainstream media (e.g., commercial television, movies, fictional and nonfictional literature in print and on the Internet); various ways deaf people are constructed and presented for hearing audiences from the past 20 years, including deaf as long-suffering victims, deaf as heroes overcoming adversity, deaf as rebels against the mainstream, and deaf as lonely outcasts. Taught in American Sign Language. Corequisites: 158:014, if not taken as a prerequisite.

158:106 Introduction to ASL Interpreting

3 s.h.

Introduction to sign language interpreting; history and current nature of the field, available employment opportunities, certification, training, ethics. Corequisites: 158:013, if not taken as a prerequisite.

158:108 Independent Study

arr.

An American Sign Language/deaf studies topic; individual study.

158:110 Teaching Deaf and Hard of Hearing Students

3-4 s.h.

Issues in deaf education--management techniques, communication strategies, teaching strategies, instructional materials, hands-on activities, assessments, parent involvement; use of technology, ethnic and cultural diversity, classroom management, pre-reading techniques, literacy development, educational program options. Taught in American Sign Language. Corequisites: 158:014, if not taken as a prerequisite. Same as 07U:110.

158:111 American Sign Language Conversation

3 s.h.

Improvement of receptive and expressive conversational ASL skills through small group discussion, class presentations. Taught in American Sign Language. Corequisites: 158:014, if not taken as a prerequisite.

American Studies

Chair: Kim Marra

Professors: Susan Birrell (American Studies/Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies), Kim Marra (American Studies/Theatre Arts), Horace A. Porter (F. Wendell Miller Professor of English and American Studies), Lauren Rabinovitz (American Studies/Cinema and Comparative Literature)

Professors emeriti: Richard P. Horwitz, John Raeburn (American Studies/English), Albert E. Stone (American Studies/English)

Associate professors: Lafayette Adams (English/American Studies), Catriona Parratt, Michelene Pesantubbee (American Studies/Religious Studies), Laura Rigal (English/American Studies), Harilaos Stecopoulos (English/American Studies), Nicholas Yablon

Assistant professor: Deborah Whaley (American Studies/African American Studies)

Lecturer: Jennifer Metz

Undergraduate degrees: B.A. in American Studies, B.A. in Sport Studies

Undergraduate nondegree programs: Minor in American Studies, Sport Studies

Graduate degrees: M.A., Ph.D. in American Studies

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~amstud>

The Department of American Studies provides an interdisciplinary introduction to American culture, past and present. It helps students acquire a broad familiarity with the dynamics of cultural experience and explore aspects of life in the United States, such as sport, popular and fine arts, institutions, values, gender and ethnic relations, artifacts, and the everyday life of a diverse citizenry.

In addition to offering degree programs in American studies and sport studies, the department provides an administrative home for the American Indian and Native Studies Program, which offers a certificate for undergraduates and graduate students; see American Indian and Native Studies in the Catalog.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts in American studies and in sport studies. It also offers minors in American studies and in sport studies.

Bachelor of Arts in American Studies

The Bachelor of Arts in American Studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 36 s.h. of work for the major. At least 24 s.h. for the major must be earned at The University of Iowa. American studies students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. The major in American studies stresses broad training in cultural analysis and communication. Although it offers no explicit vocational training, the program provides preparation for careers in business, education, government, journalism, or social service; for advanced study in the humanities, the social sciences, theology, or business; or for professional study in law or medicine. Internships can be arranged, through the University's Pomerantz Career Center.

A distinctive feature of the American studies major is the opportunity to develop broad training in cultural analysis as well as emphasis of particular interests within the study of American culture. With the help of their American studies advisors, students may elect to pursue one of three focus areas within American studies, or they may create an individual plan of study. Each focus area allows students to group courses in American studies and other departments around a specific interdisciplinary theme, topic, or set of social issues. Focus areas are described below.

Shortly after declaring a major, a student should meet with his or her faculty advisor to explore the range of course work available and to begin shaping an individual plan of study. By the student's second term in the major, the student and advisor should have agreed upon a plan of study and focus area for completing the major requirements.

The major in American Studies usually requires the following 12 courses. American studies courses must include 045:020 Sources for American Studies, 045:025 Diversity and American Identities, and 045:090 Seminar in American Cultural Studies. Requirements are as follows.

American studies requirement: six core courses, including 045:020, 045:025, and 045:090	18 s.h.
American history: two courses	6 s.h.
Special interest focus area: four courses in American studies and/or other departments	12 s.h.

American Studies Focus Areas

Students should consult regularly with the Department of American Studies about courses offered by American studies and other departments that count toward each focus area. A maximum of two courses from a single department outside American studies may be counted toward any one focus area.

ETHNIC STUDIES, DIVERSITY, AND DIFFERENCES

Students choose this focus to develop interdisciplinary understanding of an individual ethnic and/or racial group (e.g., Latino/a studies, Jewish-American studies) or to examine broadly gender, race, sexuality, social class, region, national origins, and age in the United States. Emphasis is on the historic emergence of categories of social difference, especially as revealed in cultural practices and artifacts, geography and cityscapes, leisure, and popular expression.

AMERICAN ARTS, LITERATURE, AND POPULAR CULTURE

Students who choose this focus examine artistic creations to discover how they are shaped by cultural preconceptions, norms, and standards, and how in turn these expressive forms affect ongoing developments in cultural life. Emphasis is on skills in the formal analysis of artistic artifacts, historical inquiry, and cultural contextualization.

AMERICAN SOCIETY, POLITICS, AND EVERYDAY LIFE

Students who choose this focus consider the dynamics of social change, the emergence and fate of political movements, and the forms and practice of everyday life in America. The area encompasses the tradition of revolution in America, the effects of technological and economic change, and the roles of the family, workplace, and community from the colonial era to the digital age.

INDIVIDUALLY DESIGNED FOCUS AREAS

Individually designed focus areas may concentrate on an interdisciplinary topic, theme, group of people, or time period. Students who wish to design their own interdisciplinary focus area should consult with their American studies advisor for appropriate courses.

Bachelor of Arts in Sport Studies

The Bachelor of Arts in sport studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 46 s.h. of work for the major (31 s.h. in sport studies and 15 s.h. in a specialization area). At least 24 s.h. of credit for the major must be earned at The University of Iowa. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Admission to the sport studies major is selective; students must apply and be admitted. See "Admission to the Sport Studies Major" below.

The sports studies major is for students who want to examine sport in its historical and contemporary cultural contexts. Course work provides students with the critical skills necessary to understand the cultural significance of sport as it relates to the media, the economy, the political system, and the educational system. A focus on the race, class, and gender differences in the sport experience is central to the major.

Many students use their experience in the program to prepare for graduate school. For others, the required second concentration area or minor serves as an introduction to careers in a number of fields, such as sport journalism, sport management, or coaching.

Course work for the major in sport studies includes two foundation courses, the sport studies core (one course from each of four content areas), 12-13 s.h. of approved electives, and an outside specialization area or a minor. Requirements are as follows.

SPORT STUDIES FOUNDATION

Students should complete the foundation courses as early as possible.

Both of these:

028:074 Inequality in Sport	3 s.h.
045:001 Understanding American Cultures	4 s.h.

SPORT STUDIES CORE

Students must complete one course from each of the following four content areas (total of 12 s.h.).

Diversity in sport--one of these:

028:078 Women, Sport, and Culture	3 s.h.
028:079 Race and Ethnicity in Sport	3 s.h.

International dimensions--one of these:

028:072 The Olympics - Ancient and Modern	3 s.h.
028:176 Sport and Nationalism	3 s.h.
028:177 Western World Sport: Greeks to Present	3 s.h.

Contemporary sport in America--one of these:

028:175 Sport and the Media	3 s.h.
028:188 Twentieth-Century U.S. Sport	3 s.h.
History of sport and leisure in America--one of these:
028:178 Sport in the U.S. to 1900	3 s.h.
028:179 The American Vacation	3 s.h.

ELECTIVES

Students must complete at least 12 s.h. of approved elective courses; the department suggests courses from the following list. Students also may include courses from the sport studies core (above) that they have not already taken.

06E:165 Sports Economics	3 s.h.
16A:139 The Social History of American Baseball	3 s.h.
019:091 Media History and Culture	3 s.h.
019:095 Media and Consumers	3 s.h.
019:164 Images and Society	3 s.h.
20E:075 Ancient Sports and Leisure	3 s.h.
026:102 Introduction to Ethics	3 s.h.
027:035 Stress Management	3 s.h.
027:190 Preinternship Seminar	1 s.h.
027:191 Internship	3 s.h.
028:171 History of Baseball in America	3 s.h.
028:084/045:084 Sport and Film	3 s.h.
028:180 Theory and Ethics of Coaching	3 s.h.
028:193 Independent Study	arr.
028:194 Honors Readings	1-2 s.h.
034:066 Social Inequality	3 s.h.
045:065 Disney in America	3 s.h.
045:152 Fairs and Amusement Parks	3 s.h.

OUTSIDE SPECIALIZATION AREA

All sport studies students must complete 15 s.h. of course work in a specialization area outside the major (e.g., American studies, business, gender, women's, and sexuality studies; journalism and mass communication). Work for the specialization must include 6 s.h. earned in 100-level courses or in courses that are designated advanced by the department or program that offers them. Specialization area courses may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Students select their specialization area in consultation with their advisor, and they must have their advisor's written approval for specialization.

Students also may satisfy the specialization requirement by earning a minor in another discipline. It is the student's responsibility to ensure that he or she has satisfied the requirements for the minor.

Admission to the Sport Studies Major

Admission to the sport studies major is selective; students must apply, preferably during their sophomore year. When they apply, they must have fulfilled the admission requirements listed below or expect to fulfill them during the semester in which they apply. Admission decisions are made once the admission requirements are fulfilled.

In order to be considered for admission to the sport studies major, students must:

- complete a minimum of 24 s.h. of course work, including at least 12 s.h. at The University of Iowa;
- perform satisfactorily in 028:074 Inequality in Sport;
- have a minimum g.p.a. of at least 2.50 on all college work attempted and on all University of Iowa course work; and
- submit a personal statement (one or two double-spaced pages) detailing the applicant's interest in the sport studies major.

Applications for the sport studies major are available on the Department of American Studies web site. They must be submitted to the director of undergraduate studies by October 1 for admission the following spring semester and by March 1 for admission the following fall semester.

B.A. with Coaching Authorization or Endorsement

Sport studies students may prepare for coaching by completing additional course work that also qualifies them for a coaching authorization from the State of Iowa. This course work is a combination of specific sport studies electives and a secondary area made up of courses required to fulfill the coaching authorization. An internship option is available.

Students may fulfill the requirements for coaching authorization by taking the following courses (total of 15 s.h.) as their secondary area requirement (see "Sport Studies: Secondary Area" above).

027:053 Human Anatomy	3 s.h.
027:057 Basic Athletic Training	3 s.h.
027:117 Human Growth and Motor Development	3 s.h.
028:180 Theory and Ethics of Coaching	3 s.h.
One or more electives, totaling at least 3 s.h.	3 s.h.

The following courses are suggested. Courses chosen to fulfill the sport studies elective requirement may not be double counted.

027:056 First Aid and CPR	2 s.h.
027:140 Exercise Physiology for Practitioners	3 s.h.
028:032 First Aid and CPR	2 s.h.

Students who successfully complete the requirements for the coaching authorization must submit an application to the Iowa Board of Educational Examiners. For more information, visit Coaching Authorization FAQs on the board's web site.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

B.A. in American Studies

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: declaration of the major, discussion of a plan of study with an American Studies advisor, and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least six courses from the plan of study and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least nine courses from the plan of study

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A. in Sport Studies

Before the third semester begins: completion of at least 30 semester hours

Before the fifth semester begins: acceptance into the sport studies major and completion of at least 60 semester hours

Before the sixth semester begins: area of specialization determined

Before the seventh semester begins: completion of at least six sport studies courses and at least 90 semester hours

Before the eighth semester begins: completion of at least eight sport studies courses and at least three courses in the area of specialization

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Honors in American Studies

The American studies honors program offers students the opportunity to pursue special interests in individual, in-depth research. Honors students must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires that students maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information).

Under the guidance of the undergraduate honors advisor, honors students define a research project. Project proposals ideally are made by the end of the junior year. Each student completes the project under the guidance of a supervising faculty member and may register for up to 6 s.h. in 045:095 Honors Project.

Results of the research project are presented in a senior essay to a committee of three faculty members, including the supervising faculty member, the honors advisor, and a third faculty member of the student's choice. (When the honors advisor is the supervising faculty member, the student may select the other two faculty members.) The student's committee may choose to hear an oral defense of the final project, usually in the 12th week of the last semester.

Honors in Sport Studies

The sport studies honors program offers students the opportunity to pursue special interests in individual, in-depth research. Honors students must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires that students maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information).

Under the guidance of an undergraduate advisor, honors students define a research project. Project proposals ideally are made by the end of the junior year. Each student completes the project under the guidance of a supervising faculty member and may register for up to 6 s.h. in 028:194 Honors Readings.

Honors students must make an oral or poster presentation of the honors thesis in an approved venue, such as a department research seminar or a professional conference.

Minor in American Studies

The minor in American studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in American studies courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. For the minor, courses numbered above 045:001 are considered advanced. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students interested in earning the American studies minor should consult with one of the department's faculty members.

Minor in Sport Studies

The minor in sport studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in University of Iowa sport studies courses (prefix 028), including at least 6 s.h. in 100-level courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Transfer credit may not be counted toward the minor. Students select courses for the minor according to their interests and the recommendation of the undergraduate coordinator.

Graduate Programs

The department offers a Master of Arts and a Doctor of Philosophy in American studies.

Master of Arts

The M.A. in American studies requires a minimum of 36 s.h. of graduate credit. It may be a terminal degree or preliminary to a Ph.D. in American studies or another discipline. The following courses are required.

045:200-045:201 Theory and Practice of American Studies I - Theory and Practice in American Studies II	6 s.h.
Two other core courses in American studies	6 s.h.

M.A. students also select from five to eight additional courses relevant to a topic or period of cultural history. These courses may be grouped to address more than one topic and must be chosen from more than one discipline; they usually include at least two courses in American history and courses focusing on American diversity.

Master's degree candidates must perform satisfactorily in 045:400 Masters Preparation (3 s.h.), which includes a comprehensive examination on course work and basic concepts.

The M.A. also may be taken with thesis, for credit up to 6 s.h. Students should consult the program chair for details.

Joint M.A./J.D.

The Department of American Studies and the College of Law offer a joint Master of Arts/Juris Doctor. The M.A./J.D. program provides a broad cultural context for the study and practice of law. Similar joint programs can be arranged in other professional fields, such as journalism and social work.

Separate application to each degree program is required. Applicants must be admitted to both programs before they may be admitted to the joint degree program. For information about the J.D., see the College of Law section of the Catalog.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Ph.D. program in American studies requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. Each student works with his or her faculty advisor to map out a coherent plan of study that reflects the student's particular interests in American cultural studies. The study plan usually has been tentatively formulated by the end of the student's first year in residence in the Ph.D. program.

Students are permitted considerable flexibility in planning their study program, but they must meet certain basic requirements, which include a core of American studies courses in interdisciplinary methods and substantial course work in two major fields. Course requirements are as follows.

045:200-045:201 Theory and Practice of American Studies I - Theory and Practice in American Studies II (introductory seminars)	6 s.h.
Two or more additional core graduate courses in American Studies	6 s.h.
First major field (at least six courses)	18 s.h.
Second major field (at least six courses)	18 s.h.
Electives	6 s.h.
Dissertation (up to 18 s.h.)

The introductory seminars 045:200 Theory and Practice of American Studies I and 045:201 Theory and Practice in American Studies II should be taken as early as possible, one during each of the first two years in residence. The additional American Studies graduate courses provide further models for interdisciplinary inquiry.

The two major fields may be defined to correspond with the student's strongest intellectual interests, but they must be interdisciplinary in concept and multidisciplinary in scope. Each must include course work from more than one of the University's departments and programs. They also should be designed to emphasize a generous but well-defined period of American cultural history; therefore, historical knowledge is essential to all doctoral plans of study. The two major fields may, and usually should, have an intellectual relationship with each other.

The program expects doctoral students to address the cultural diversity of American life in their course work and reading.

ADMISSION TO PH.D. CANDIDACY

Admission to Ph.D. candidacy signifies that the department judges the doctoral student qualified to take the comprehensive examination. Doctoral students advance to Ph.D. candidacy based on a review conducted during their second year in the Ph.D. program (typically during fall semester); the review assesses the student's readiness to complete his or her studies through the comprehensive examination and the dissertation, which is an original work of scholarship. In addition to judging the student's readiness for Ph.D. candidacy, the review provides a progress report on the student's work and a tentative prognosis for future prospects in the field.

COMPREHENSIVE EXAMINATION

The comprehensive examination comprises three written exams and one oral exam. One of the written exams differs for students who were admitted to the Ph.D. program before fall 2007 and those who were admitted fall 2007 and after.

Students admitted before fall 2007 write the position paper in advance of the rest of the comprehensive examination and under the supervision of an American studies faculty member. In the position paper, the candidate lays out his or her general approach to American cultural studies and provides an exemplification of that approach.

Students admitted after fall 2007 complete Field #1: American Studies under the supervision of an American studies faculty member, who also chairs the comprehensive examination. The candidate takes a timed, take-home written exam of no less than four hours and no longer than two days; the exam details the candidate's approach to American studies (methods and models), including his or her position and critical engagement with models of American studies scholarship.

The remaining two written exams explore the candidate's major fields; these are at least four hours long and may be given on a take-home basis at the examiner's discretion.

The oral exam covers material from the written exams and/or position paper.

DISSERTATION

The final requirement for the Ph.D. in American studies is the dissertation, a substantive book-length manuscript that involves interdisciplinary research and analysis and that represents an original contribution to knowledge. All Ph.D. dissertations must be approved by a committee of five faculty members, including at least two from the Department of American Studies.

Internships

Qualified graduate students in American studies can arrange internships with a number of local agencies, including the State Historical Society of Iowa, the Division of Historic Preservation, the University of Iowa Museum of Art, the Iowa Humanities Board, BruceMuseum, the Herbert Hoover Presidential Library and Museum, and the Putnam Museum of History and Natural Science. With special permission, candidates conducting research during such on-the-job training may receive academic credit through 045:320 Independent Study or 045:350 Material Culture Internship. Other internships with social agencies, government, or business also may be arranged.

Resources

The Department of American Studies is home to the Center for Ethnic Studies and the Arts, which is devoted to studying relationships among minority communities and the arts. The center supports individuals who specialize in individual ethnic studies as well as those interested in how cultural diversity defines and enriches the arts. To learn more, visit the Center for Ethnic Studies and the Arts web site.

Sport experiences, barriers to participation based on sexism, racism, classism, ageism, heterosexuality.
028:078 Women, Sport, and Culture	3 s.h.
Feminist analysis of girls' and women's sport experiences; reproduction of gender through sport, recent changes in women's intercollegiate athletics, media representations of women in sport, feminist critiques, alternatives to sport. Same as 131:078.
028:079 Race and Ethnicity in Sport	3 s.h.
Structural and ideological barriers to racial and ethnic equality in sport, with focus on African American sport experiences; historical and contemporary issues, media representations. Same as 129:079.
028:084 Sport and Film	3 s.h.
Exploration of sport films as a distinct genre using narrative and formal analysis; focus on U.S. films. Same as 045:084.
028:133 Nutrition Through the Life Span	3 s.h.
How body processes and nutritional needs change with age and the physiological state; effects of food-drug-medication interactions, anorexia, bulimia, and adolescent pregnancy; emphasis on food and health habits that minimize nutrition-related problems. Requirements: (for 028:133) 027:040 and health and sport studies major; (for 153:133) 027:040. Same as 153:133.

Laboratory experiences in development and implementation of exercise testing and prescription for special populations, including children, elders, and individuals with chronic diseases. Corequisites: 027:138, if not taken as a prerequisite. Same as 153:166.
028:171 History of Baseball in America	3 s.h.
Forces that influenced political, economic, and social development of professional baseball in the United States; rise of major league baseball, its relationship to the minor leagues, and development of organized baseball industry.
028:172 History of Intercollegiate Athletics	3 s.h.
Forces that influenced political, economic, and social development of intercollegiate athletics; development of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and its relationship to the rise of the Division I conference.
028:175 Sport and the Media	3 s.h.
Representations of sport in television, the press, fiction, films, biographies, adolescent fiction.
028:176 Sport and Nationalism	3 s.h.
Role of sport in the phenomenon of nationalism; selected theories; case studies on Ireland, Australia, British West Indies, Cold War U.S., fascist Europe.
028:177 Western World Sport: Greeks to Present	3 s.h.
Development of Western sport; relation to social, political, economic, intellectual factors.
028:178 Sport in the U.S. to 1900	3 s.h.
Growth and institutionalization of sport from colonial times to 1900. Same as 045:178.
028:179 The American Vacation	3 s.h.
Social history of vacations; cultural significance of contemporary patterns; focus on how experiences and meanings are shaped by race, class, gender. Same as 045:174.
028:180 Theory and Ethics of Coaching	3 s.h.
Philosophical bases, ethical issues; theoretical, practical applications.
028:188 Twentieth-Century U.S. Sport	3 s.h.
Historic development of sport in the United States since 1900; economic forces, professional football and baseball. Same as 045:188.
028:193 Independent Study	arr.
Problem in a specific area.
028:194 Honors Readings	1-2 s.h.
028:195 Honors Problems	3-4 s.h.
028:198 Topics	1-3 s.h.
Sport studies or health promotion topics.
028:202 Critical Perspectives	3 s.h.
Application of critical theories to cultural meanings and issues of sport, health, physical activity.
028:204 Research Methodologies	3 s.h.
Design, interpretation of research; emphasis on quantitative approaches.
028:250 Marketing, Finance, and Entrepreneurship	3 s.h.
Economic practices, marketing research, promotional programs, financing strategies, entrepreneurship related to collegiate athletics.
028:256 Governance and Policy Issues in Sport	3 s.h.

Institutional, conference, national, and international issues in sport and sport governance; focus on gender equity, Title IX.

028:257 Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness I 3 s.h.

Operational and financing aspects of nonprofit management; mission and governance of organization; strategic planning for effective management, including finance, budget, income generation, fund-raising. Same as 021:263, 024:247, 032:227, 042:247, 06J:247, 091:320, 102:278, 174:247.

028:258 Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness II 3 s.h.

Qualities for leadership of nonprofit organizations, including relationships with staff and volunteers; relationship of nonprofit and outside world; marketing, public relations, advocacy strategies for nonprofits. Requirements: (for 091:322) 091:320; (for 174:248) 06J:247 or 024:247 or 174:247. Same as 021:265, 024:248, 032:228, 042:248, 06J:248, 091:322, 102:279, 174:248.

028:274 Philosophy of Sport 3 s.h.

The meaning of sport as human experience; ethical, aesthetic dimensions.

028:276 Sport in U.S. Culture 3 s.h.

Sport as a significant cultural form in the United States; focus on institutional relationships between sport and politics, economy, education, and media; role of sport in cultural reproduction. Same as 045:276.

028:278 History of Women in Sports 3 s.h.

Women's sport involvement from ancient times to present; focus on social class, attitudes, religion, race, ethnicity, medical opinion, economic considerations, political events, educational philosophies that have influenced women's sport participation. Same as 131:254.

028:279 Sport and the African American Experience 3 s.h.

Intersection of African American sport experiences and larger sporting culture; political, economic, social forces; effects of urbanization, rise of the modern city.

028:290 Graduate Internship 1-4 s.h.

028:291 Problems arr.

028:292 Practicum in College Teaching arr.

028:295 Graduate Research Workshop 1 s.h.

Development of individual research projects for group discussion.

028:298 Graduate Topics 1-3 s.h.

Sport studies or psychology of sport and physical activity topics.

028:299 Graduate Research Problems arr.

028:300 Research Colloquium 0-1 s.h.

Research issues, current research projects of departmental faculty, graduate students. Repeatable.

028:370 Seminar in Psychology of Sport and Physical Activity 3 s.h.

Theoretical orientations used in the field of psychology of exercise and physical activity participation research. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 027:270.

028:372 Selected Issues in Sport Psychology 3 s.h.

028:374 Seminar in Sport History 3 s.h.

Topics in sport history; theoretical and methodological issues. Repeatable. Requirements: health and sport studies graduate standing.

028:375 Cultural Analyses of Sport 3 s.h.

Analytical strategies for studying sport; quantitative, qualitative techniques; materialist, feminist, cultural studies approaches. Repeatable.

028:378 Seminar in Cultural Studies of Sport

3 s.h.

Current theoretical debates in sociology of sport; applications of cultural studies to critical analysis of sport. Repeatable.

028:386 Intercollegiate Athletics

3 s.h.

Organization and administration of a Division I intercollegiate athletic program; current issues, problems.

028:398 Thesis: M.A.

1-6 s.h.

Repeatable.

028:399 Thesis: Ph.D.

arr.

Repeatable.

Anthropology is the comparative study of peoples and cultures past and present. The discipline's four major subfields--cultural anthropology, biological anthropology, linguistic anthropology, and archaeology--have important connections to other social sciences, physical and biological sciences, and to the arts and humanities.

Anthropology provides a framework for understanding the relation of human beings to their natural environment and to the social and cultural worlds they create and inhabit. The field provides insight into biological and sociocultural evolution and includes a focus on economic, social, and political organizations, symbolic systems, and social systems. Comparative studies of these and other aspects of past and present cultures yield information on regularities and differences.

In addition to offering undergraduate and graduate degree programs, the Department of Anthropology administers the University's Museum Studies Program.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts and a Bachelor of Science in anthropology. Either program is appropriate preparation for advanced training or careers in anthropology, allied fields, and professional programs. Students who complete an anthropology major gain special understanding of human relations and expertise for jobs involving international or cross-cultural work, cultural resource management, and social and ethnic diversity in the United States.

Upon graduation, anthropology majors embark on careers in government work, international affairs, public health, gerontology, urban and regional planning, conservation, social work, marketing, museum work, and education. Others pursue graduate study in law, business, and health care as well as anthropology and related social science disciplines. Some are employed in cultural resource management.

The department also offers a minor in anthropology.

Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Arts in anthropology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 33 s.h. of work for the major. The Bachelor of Science in anthropology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 42 s.h. of work for the major. The B.A. is designed to offer a comprehensive overview of anthropology's four main subfields and the broadest possible cross-cultural background. The B.S. is appropriate for students with interests in any of anthropology's subfields; it offers enhanced opportunities to gain experience and develop skills in research methods and scientific reasoning.

All students working toward a B.A. or B.S. in anthropology may elect to complete one of three optional emphasis areas; see "Undergraduate Emphasis Areas" below.

All undergraduates majoring in anthropology, including transfer students, must earn a minimum of 15 s.h. for the major at The University of Iowa. Students may apply credit earned at approved field schools offered by other institutions toward the major, with Department of Anthropology approval.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Students who declare anthropology as their major when they are admitted to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences are advised at the Academic Advising Center until they have earned 24 s.h. Students who have earned more than 24 s.h. are advised in the department. Students are assigned an advisor based on faculty advisor loads and student interests.

Common Requirements

All anthropology majors (B.A. or a B.S.) must complete the following requirements.

One of these (students may count only one toward the major):

113:003 Introduction to the Study of Culture and Society	3 s.h.
113:010 Anthropology and Contemporary World Problems	3 s.h.

All of these:

113:012 Introduction to Prehistory	3 s.h.
113:013 Human Origins	3 s.h.
113:014 Language, Culture, and Communication	3 s.h.
113:050 Issues in Anthropology	3 s.h.
One 100-level course in archaeology (area or topical) or biological anthropology
One 100-level course in sociocultural or linguistic anthropology
One 100-level course in area studies
Three 100-level electives

Anthropology electives offer many choices, including courses dealing with environment and culture, expressive culture (art, verbal arts, literature, music, and dance), gender, human evolution, human evolutionary anatomy, human osteology, human prehistory, identity, language and culture, medical anthropology, molecular genetics, primatology, psychological anthropology, religion and ritual, and urban anthropology. Department faculty members offer area studies courses on Latin America, Europe, Japan, South Asia, and Native North America.

Additional Bachelor of Arts Requirements

Students pursuing the B.A. are strongly encouraged to participate in archaeological field and laboratory research, biological anthropology laboratory research, independent studies in sociocultural anthropology, or linguistic anthropology research.

Additional Bachelor of Science Requirements

Students pursuing the B.S. must fulfill additional requirements in the following three areas.

Quantitative, mathematical, or formal reasoning tool
Directed laboratory or field research
Allied topical course work

QUANTITATIVE, MATHEMATICAL, OR FORMAL REASONING TOOL

Students must complete a minimum of 6 s.h. beyond the courses used to fulfill the General Education Program quantitative or formal reasoning requirement. Students select specific courses or course sequences in consultation with their advisors.

DIRECTED LABORATORY OR FIELD RESEARCH

Students complete an approved directed research requirement (minimum of 3 s.h.) consisting of one of the following.

Laboratory research: a laboratory practicum in anthropology research labs or independent, faculty-guided, laboratory research, including use of the collections of the Office of the State Archaeologist.

Field research project: faculty-advised projects involving the collection of primary archaeological, biological, ethnographic, and/or linguistic data in a fieldwork setting.

A University of Iowa field archaeological school program or approved equivalent (current field school is Plum Grove Historical Archaeology).

An approved internship: typical approved internships include work in cultural resource management firms, museums, and public health research or education projects. To receive research credit for an internship, students must make a final report to their faculty advisor, summarizing the work accomplished or presenting materials that document the nature of the work.

ALLIED TOPICAL COURSE WORK

Students complete a topical specialization in one of the following allied fields: biology, chemistry, computer science, economics, geography, geoscience, global health studies, health and human physiology, health promotion, linguistics, mathematics, psychology, science education, sport studies, or statistics and actuarial science. Minors (or at least five courses) in other fields, chosen in consultation with the student's advisor, also may be applied toward this requirement.

Undergraduate Emphasis Areas

The department offers three optional undergraduate emphasis areas: gender and culture, cultural resource and heritage management, and environmental anthropology. Students majoring in anthropology may use an emphasis area to provide a particular focus in their study plan. Students in other majors may complete an emphasis area in order to add a focus to the minor in anthropology.

Each emphasis area reflects broad issues bridging subfields in and outside of anthropology. Completion of an emphasis area indicates the achievement of considerable expertise and is noted on the student's transcript.

Each emphasis requires five courses (15 s.h.). With careful course selection, students majoring in anthropology can complete an emphasis area without adding to the semester hours required for graduation.

GENDER AND CULTURE EMPHASIS

Anthropological research regarding gender and sexuality has grown dramatically in recent years, enhancing and drawing from other theoretical and methodological approaches within the discipline. Such studies contribute a cross-cultural perspective to the discussion surrounding these fundamental aspects of human experience, both in academia and in public life.

The gender and culture emphasis requires five courses (15 s.h.) chosen from the following list. Each course provides an integrated overview of essential theoretical and topical issues in the field.

113:101 Disability and the Ethics of Care	3 s.h.
113:102 Ethnography and Auto/Biography	3 s.h.
113:105 Mothers and Motherhood	3 s.h.
113:107 Gendering India	4 s.h.
113:108 Anthropology of Marriage and Family	3 s.h.
113:127 South Asian Sexual Cultures	3 s.h.
113:133 The Anthropology of Women's Health	3 s.h.
113:134 Gender and Indian Diaspora	3 s.h.
113:137 The Anthropology of Love	3 s.h.
113:140 Politics of Reproduction	3 s.h.
113:141 History of Feminist Anthropology	3 s.h.
113:154 Anthropology of Sexual Minorities	3 s.h.
113:180 Women Writing Culture	3 s.h.
113:182 Women, Health, and Healing	3 s.h.

CULTURAL RESOURCE AND HERITAGE MANAGEMENT EMPHASIS

In North America and throughout much of the rest of the world, modern land use continually threatens evidence of past land use. Most archaeological excavations are conducted as cultural resource management (CRM), so it is essential that all researchers who work with archaeological data and individuals committed to site preservation have a basic understanding of CRM. Students who choose this emphasis learn about the field and about how to address related ethical issues as well as technical and theoretical challenges.

The cultural resource and heritage management emphasis requires five courses (15 s.h.): a fundamental overview course, two area electives, a technical/practical elective, and a field school course. Students may use some of these courses to satisfy requirements for the major, such as the 100-level course in archaeology and the 100-level electives.

Fundamental overview course:

113:193 Special Topics in Archaeology	3 s.h.
---------------------------------------	--------

Area elective courses--two of these (or one of these and one other Department of Anthropology area course):

113:110 Native Peoples of North America	3 s.h.
113:159 Southwestern Archaeology	3 s.h.
113:167 North American Archaeology	3 s.h.
113:172 Historical Archaeology: The Archaeology of the U.S.	3 s.h.
113:179 Pleistocene Peopling of the Americas	3 s.h.
113:181 Archaeology of the Great Plains	3 s.h.

Technical/practical elective course--one of these:

113:153 Raw Materials in Archaeology	3 s.h.
113:158 Animal Bones in Archaeology	3 s.h.

113:160 Introduction to Archaeological Ceramics	3 s.h.
113:162 Practicum in Archaeology	arr.
113:168 Archaeological Methods	3 s.h.
113:189 Approaches to Geoarchaeology	3 s.h.
213:190 Human Osteology	3 s.h.

Field school course--one of these:

113:199 Field Research in Archaeology	arr.
An equivalent course from another university

ENVIRONMENTAL ANTHROPOLOGY EMPHASIS

The interaction between humans and the environments they inhabit has long been a central issue in anthropology, and environmental degradation is a worldwide concern today. Pollution, loss of biodiversity, and global warming recognize no political boundaries, but attitudes and behaviors involving the natural environment vary widely from culture to culture. Understanding and incorporation of these varied perspectives will be vital to the development and successful use of workable solutions.

The environmental anthropology emphasis requires five courses (15 s.h.): two theory courses, which deal primarily with human-environmental interactions; and three area or topical electives, which deal in part with environment, ecology, and subsistence technologies. The following are sample courses in each area.

Theory courses:

113:113 Human Impacts on the Environment	3 s.h.
113:114 Environmentalisms	3 s.h.
113:139 Religion and Environmental Ethics	3 s.h.
113:143 Environment and Culture	3 s.h.
213:152 Primate Conservation Biology	3 s.h.
113:215 Seminar: Ecological Anthropology	3 s.h.

Area or topical electives:

113:125 Japanese Society and Culture	3 s.h.
113:126 Animals, Culture, and Food	3 s.h.
113:130 Archaeology of the Iberian Peninsula	3 s.h.
113:131 Latin American Economy and Society	3 s.h.
113:150 Tribes and Chiefdoms of Ancient Europe	3 s.h.
113:157 Foodways and Cuisine in the Past	3 s.h.
113:158 Animal Bones in Archaeology	3 s.h.
113:161 Prehistoric People of the Ice Age	3 s.h.
113:164 Comparative Prehistory	3 s.h.
113:178 Hunter-Gatherer Ethnoarchaeology	3 s.h.
113:181 Archaeology of the Great Plains	3 s.h.
113:187 Cultures in Collision	3 s.h.
113:189 Approaches to Geoarchaeology	3 s.h.
113:196 The Archaeology of Ancient Egypt	3 s.h.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan.

Bachelor of Arts

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least two courses in the major and one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least seven courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least eight courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Bachelor of Science

Before the third semester begins: at least one anthropology course or other course in the major, and one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least four anthropology courses or other courses in the major, one course in the minor area, one course for the quantitative or formal reasoning tool requirement, and one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least seven courses in the major, three courses in the minor area, the second quantitative or formal reasoning tool course, and at least three-quarters of the hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least nine courses in the major, including the directed research requirement and four courses in the minor area

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major and in the minor area, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Students working toward a B.A. or B.S. in anthropology may pursue departmental honors in anthropology. In addition to fulfilling the regular requirements for the anthropology major, departmental honors students conduct an independent research project that culminates in a 30-50 page thesis. The project includes completion of 6 s.h. divided between 113:18 113:186 Honors Research Seminar (offered only in fall semesters) and 113:176 Honors Research, typically taken the next semester. Honors students also must take one of their anthropology courses at the graduate level. In order to graduate with departmental honors, students also must have a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in anthropology and be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information).

Students working toward a B.S. may count their directed research project or laboratory practicum toward the required credit for departmental honors, but fulfilling the research requirement for the B.S. does not by itself fulfill the honors requirement. Students must work with their honors thesis advisor to structure their research so that it meets the added requirements of honors work.

To learn more about earning departmental honors in anthropology, contact the department's director of undergraduate studies.

Minor

The minor in anthropology requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in anthropology courses, including 12 s.h. in University of Iowa Department of Anthropology courses numbered 113:100 and above and 213:100 and above. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Courses for the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Graduate Programs

The department offers a Master of Arts and a Doctor of Philosophy in anthropology. The graduate program emphasizes continuity from the Master of Arts to the Doctor of Philosophy. The department admits students who seek the Ph.D.; students seeking only the M.A. ordinarily are not admitted.

Graduate students must complete all M.A. requirements before advancing to the Ph.D. program. Entering graduate students are not required to have an undergraduate degree in anthropology. Applicants who hold an M.A. in anthropology from another institution may apply directly for admission to the Ph.D. program.

Once a student completes all requirements for the M.A., his or her committee makes a recommendation to the faculty concerning the students' potential for completing the Ph.D. The committee recommends continuation or dismissal from the program.

Master of Arts

The M.A. in anthropology requires 30-36 s.h. of graduate credit, depending on the student's previous anthropological training. Students may count a maximum of no more than 9 s.h. earned in courses outside anthropology toward the M.A. in anthropology. The degree normally is awarded to students after two years in the graduate program.

During the first semester of the M.A. program, students are advised by the director of graduate studies. By the end of the second semester, they must select an advisor and begin forming an M.A. committee. In consultation with the committee, the student develops a research project and writes an M.A. paper. The committee must approve the M.A. paper by the end of the fourth semester of study. The student also publicly presents the paper. As an alternative to the M.A. paper, students may choose to write a formal M.A. thesis, which must follow the Graduate College thesis guidelines. Students must submit a final copy of their M.A. thesis or paper to the department.

GENERAL COURSE WORK

M.A. students must complete core seminars in at least three of four subfields, for a total of 9 s.h. Core seminars are chosen from the following.

113:240 Seminar Sociocultural Anthropology	3 s.h.
113:268 Seminar: Archaeological Theory and Method	3 s.h.
113:271 Seminar: Linguistic Anthropology	3 s.h.
213:285 Seminar: Biological Anthropology	3 s.h.

In addition, all students are required to take 113:210 Anthropological Data Analysis or another course in statistics within the first three years of graduate study, preferably during the M.A. program (first two years of graduate study).

ELECTIVES

In consultation with their advisor and committee members, students select additional course work to complete the remaining semester hours required for the M.A. Elective hours may include courses in other disciplines, directed study, or up to 6 s.h. of M.A. thesis credit for students who choose the thesis option.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in anthropology requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The Ph.D. represents a balance between general anthropological competence obtained at the M.A. level and professional specialization and competence for independent research and teaching in one of four subfields: sociocultural anthropology, linguistic anthropology, archaeology, and biological anthropology.

Ph.D. students also may elect to pursue a concentration in feminist anthropology or paleoanthropology. See "Concentrations" below.

To ensure focus on the student's research interests, the department has an integrated process of simultaneous preparation of reading lists, research proposals for submission to granting agencies, dissertation proposal, and position papers. In order to complete the degree, all doctoral candidates are required to complete appropriate course work and the Ph.D. comprehensive process, carry out original anthropological research, and write and defend a dissertation. Students work closely with their advisor and committee at all stages.

In the first semester after completing the M.A. (or the first semester in the program for students who enter with an M.A. in anthropology from another institution), the student selects an advisor. By the end of the second semester, the student selects a committee to oversee his or her completion of the comprehensive process.

Students immediately begin consulting with their advisor, and eventually their committees, to start compiling an annotated bibliography of works relevant to future research. The annotated bibliography is a working document for the student's use in the Ph.D. program; it is not a formal requirement and does not require formal review.

In the third and fourth semesters of the program, the student completes the comprehensive process. Then he or she may select a dissertation committee.

REQUIRED COURSE WORK

Students should take all lecture courses and seminars that are relevant to the areas they intend to cover in their position papers. A maximum of 18 s.h. earned in non-anthropology courses may be counted toward the 72 s.h. required for the Ph.D., including the maximum of 9 s.h. that can be counted toward the master's degree.

Students must take at least one theory course beyond the course they took to fulfill the master's requirements in their specialization subfield. This course should be chosen from one of the following lists.

Sociocultural Anthropology

113:215 Seminar: Ecological Anthropology	3 s.h.
113:240 Seminar Sociocultural Anthropology	3 s.h.
113:244 Seminar: Semiotics	3 s.h.

113:250 Seminar: Ritual and Performance	3 s.h.
113:251 Seminar: Resistance in Theory and Practice	3 s.h.

Most graduate seminars offered in the feminist anthropology concentration also may be used to fulfill this requirement (see "Feminist Anthropology Concentration" below).

Linguistic Anthropology

113:123 Language and Nationalism	3 s.h.
113:244 Seminar: Semiotics	3 s.h.
113:271 Seminar: Linguistic Anthropology	3 s.h.
113:273 Seminar: Language and Gender	3 s.h.

Archaeology

113:164 Comparative Prehistory	3 s.h.
113:174 Seminar: Taphonomy	3 s.h.
113:178 Hunter-Gatherer Ethnoarchaeology	3 s.h.
113:258 Seminar: Zooarchaeology	3 s.h.
113:268 Seminar: Archaeological Theory and Method	3 s.h.
113:269 Politics of the Archaeological Past	3 s.h.

Biological Anthropology

213:150 Primate Comparative Morphology	3 s.h.
213:151 Anthropological Genetics	3 s.h.
213:152 Primate Conservation Biology	3 s.h.
213:165 Human Variation	3 s.h.
213:169 Human Evolutionary Anatomy	3 s.h.
213:170 Primate Evolutionary Biology	3 s.h.
213:187 Human Evolution	3 s.h.
213:188 Primate Behavior and Ecology	3 s.h.
213:285 Seminar: Biological Anthropology	3 s.h.
213:288 Seminar: Paleoanthropology	3 s.h.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

All doctoral students must demonstrate reading and/or speaking knowledge of one foreign language. They must meet this requirement before beginning dissertation research.

INDEPENDENT STUDY COURSES

Ph.D. students may count a maximum of 9 s.h. of independent study courses, beyond the M.A., toward the Ph.D. Once a student has completed the M.A., he or she might use an independent study course, for example, to prepare an annotated bibliography of works relevant to his or her future research program. The bibliography would not be a formal requirement and would not require committee or faculty review; rather, it would be a working document for the student's use in the succeeding phases of the Ph.D. program.

THE PH.D. COMPREHENSIVE PROCESS

The comprehensive process consists of writing position papers and preparing a research proposal and prospectus defense. According to individual needs and in consultation with the committee, a student selects the order of completing these two tasks.

Successful completion of the comprehensive process advances the student to Ph.D. candidacy.

To remain in good academic standing, students must complete the comprehensive process by the end of the fourth semester in the Ph.D. program. Students who do not adhere to this timeline are placed on departmental probation.

Research Proposal and Prospectus Defense

Working closely with the committee, the student drafts a research proposal for the program of dissertation research and defends a research prospectus before the Ph.D. committee. The defense is open to students and faculty. A copy of the student's dissertation prospectus must be made available in the department office one week before the defense.

Position Papers

Position papers are two essays of publishable quality. One essay concerns the student's geographical area of specialization; the other deals with his or her primary topical area. In some fields (e.g., biological anthropology), a geographical area may not be relevant. The essays are responses to questions the committee prepares in consultation with the student.

Position papers should demonstrate analysis, evaluation, synthesis, and control of a body of information (knowledge and comprehension). They should critique a major problem or debate (application and analysis), and they should develop a position on an issue and provide an explanation or theoretical justification for the position (evaluation and synthesis).

DISSERTATION

All Ph.D. candidates are required to carry out original anthropological research. Students typically conduct dissertation research after defending their research prospectus and writing position papers. Dissertations usually are based on fieldwork. Some are based on data from archival collections, laboratory projects, collections, or other source materials.

Graduate Concentrations

In addition to their required course work in the four Ph.D. subfields, students may complete a concentration in feminist anthropology or paleoanthropology. Each concentration reflects broad issues bridging subfields in and outside of anthropology.

Completion of a concentration indicates substantial expertise. It is recognized as a department credential and may be added to a student's curriculum vitae.

FEMINIST ANTHROPOLOGY CONCENTRATION

The feminist anthropology concentration offers broad training in a growing specialization area that enhances and draws from other theoretical approaches in anthropology. Graduate students in anthropology and other disciplines may explore particular aspects of the field by taking feminist anthropology courses.

Course work in the concentration emphasizes feminist perspectives, theories, methods, and analytic techniques in anthropology. It improves students' academic job prospects in anthropology and other fields, especially women's studies and gender studies. It also helps students prepare for careers in applied or public anthropology.

Feminist anthropology students take 15 s.h. of course work in the concentration in addition to their regular core requirements. The 15 s.h. should be divided between graduate seminars and elective courses as noted below.

Concentration courses may fulfill requirements for graduate electives in anthropology.

Feminist anthropology was offered as a track in the Master of Arts in academic year 2006-07 and earlier. Students who took courses as part of the M.A. track may count them toward the Ph.D. concentration.

The following list of approved courses is subject to change; contact the Department of Anthropology for updates. Students may petition to count other courses in anthropology or other disciplines toward the concentration, if the courses or the students' work in them includes significant relevant content. Petitions are reviewed by the feminist anthropology faculty.

Graduate Seminars

Students complete at least two of these (minimum of 6 s.h.) and may count additional graduate seminar courses as elective credit.

113:220 Seminar: Feminist Anthropology	3 s.h.
113:221 Seminar: Feminist Ethnography	3 s.h.
113:222 Reading Transnational Feminist Theory	3 s.h.
113:223 Feminist Medical Anthropology	3 s.h.
113:273 Seminar: Language and Gender	3 s.h.

113:290 Feminist Perspectives on Biology and Culture

3 s.h.

Electives

Students must earn a minimum of 9 s.h. in electives and may count extra credit earned in graduate seminars toward the elective requirement.

113:101 Disability and the Ethics of Care	3 s.h.
113:102 Ethnography and Auto/Biography	3 s.h.
113:105 Mothers and Motherhood	3 s.h.
113:107 Gendering India	4 s.h.
113:133 The Anthropology of Women's Health	3 s.h.
113:140 Politics of Reproduction	3 s.h.
113:141 History of Feminist Anthropology	3 s.h.
113:154 Anthropology of Sexual Minorities	3 s.h.
113:180 Women Writing Culture	3 s.h.
113:182 Women, Health, and Healing	3 s.h.

PALEOANTHROPOLOGY CONCENTRATION

The paleoanthropology concentration offers broad training that combines archaeology and biological anthropology, two traditional subfields of anthropology important in understanding the biocultural factors that have been critical in human evolution. The concentration combines course work in both biological and archaeological anthropology, complementing the specialized training that students from either subfield receive in their own specialization. Paleoanthropology courses emphasize integration of biological and cultural factors in the evolution of hominid species up to and including modern humans. They encompass primate and human evolutionary anatomy, technology and subsistence in Paleolithic archaeology, and modern human hunter-gatherers.

Paleoanthropology students take 15 s.h. of course work in the concentration in addition to their regular core requirements. The 15 s.h. should be divided between graduate seminars and elective courses as noted below.

Students may choose core seminars to fulfill requirements for both the M.A. general course work and the paleoanthropology concentration.

The following list of approved courses is subject to change; contact the Department of Anthropology for updates. Students may petition to count other courses in anthropology or other disciplines toward the concentration, if the courses or the students' work in them includes significant relevant content. Petitions are reviewed by the paleoanthropology faculty.

Graduate Seminars

All of these (9 s.h.):

113:268 Seminar: Archaeological Theory and Method	3 s.h.
213:285 Seminar: Biological Anthropology	3 s.h.
213:288 Seminar: Paleoanthropology	3 s.h.

Electives

At least two of these (6 s.h. minimum):

113:178 Hunter-Gatherer Ethnoarchaeology	3 s.h.
113:179 Pleistocene Peopling of the Americas	3 s.h.
113:258 Seminar: Zooarchaeology	3 s.h.
213:151 Anthropological Genetics	3 s.h.
213:169 Human Evolutionary Anatomy	3 s.h.
213:170 Primate Evolutionary Biology	3 s.h.
213:187 Human Evolution	3 s.h.
213:190 Human Osteology	3 s.h.

Admission

Applicants for admission to the graduate program in anthropology are considered regardless of their previous field of training. Students without previous training in anthropology may be expected to perform additional work necessary to achieve competence expected for their degree objective.

Students normally are admitted directly to the Ph.D. program. For students without an M.A. in anthropology, the first two years of the Ph.D. program are devoted to fulfilling the requirements of the M.A. After those requirements are completed, the student's committee recommends to the faculty whether the student should continue to work toward the Ph.D.

Students with an M.A. in anthropology from another institution may proceed directly into a Ph.D. program organized around their special research interests.

Applicants for admission to the graduate program must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Applicants are required to submit the following:

- a completed University application form;
- transcripts of all previous undergraduate and graduate work;
- three letters of recommendation from individuals competent to judge the applicant's potential for graduate training;
- Graduate Record Examination (GRE) scores;
- at least one written example of previous work (for example, a term paper).

Applicants whose first or official language is not English and whose previous academic degrees were not earned at an English-language institution must submit scores on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) or the International English Language Testing System (IELTS).

Applicants with an M.A. from another university must submit a copy of their master's thesis; applicants who earned an M.A. without thesis or whose thesis is not yet complete should submit written copies of three papers completed in graduate school.

Financial Support

Financial assistance, usually in the form of teaching and research assistantships, is offered to the majority of graduate students in good standing for up to five years. Students making satisfactory and timely progress through the graduate program are in good standing. Eligibility for financial aid is reduced after two years in the M.A. program, after two years in the Ph.D. program, or after one year of postdoctoral fieldwork or research enrollment. The amount and types of aid depend on departmental needs. The department usually awards financial aid to most entering graduate students every year.

Students are notified in writing of a provisional financial award before the semester or summer session for which the award has been granted. Although awards are made before the end of the previous semester, each award is contingent upon satisfactory completion of that semester's work by the awardee.

Archaeological Field Research

Under the direction of University archaeologists, students acquire skills in data recovery and interpretive techniques. Opportunities are available for students to participate in archaeological field research in central Mexico, France, the Netherlands, Portugal, Sicily, the U.S. Southwest, or at various sites in the U.S. Midwest. Occasional fieldwork in East and Southeast Asia is available to graduate students in the paleoanthropology research program.

Resources, Facilities

The department has access to the Iowa Archaeological Collections through the Office of the State Archaeologist and maintains its own archaeological collections (midwestern prehistoric and historical and comparative faunal material).

The department maintains a documented human osteology teaching collection amassed by the University of Iowa Carver College of Medicine and the Department of Anatomy and Cell Biology, and it holds a substantial documented human osteology research collection originally from Stanford University's medical school that is maintained jointly with the Office of the State Archaeologist.

Individual faculty members maintain field laboratories and conduct research outside the United States, maintaining ties with research institutions in foreign countries, including the Teotihuacán Archaeological Research Facility, in Mexico; the Laboratoire d'Ethnologie Préhistorique at Pincevent; the Centre de Recherches Archéologiques at Verberie, in France; the National Museum of Ethnology in Japan; the Institute of Technology Bandung (ITB), in Indonesia; the Gemeente Nijmegen, Bureau Archeologie, Nijmegen, the Netherlands, and the Deutsches Archäologisches Institut of Madrid in Spain.

The department also has well-equipped laboratories for the study of archaeology, biological anthropology, and a state-of-the-art multimedia linguistic anthropology laboratory.

The University is a charter member of the Human Relations Area Files (HRAF), an extensively annotated set of source materials on the peoples of the world--their environments, behavioral patterns, social lives, and cultures. Through HRAF and other library resources, anthropology students have access to source materials on more than 400 different cultures.

The University's exchange programs for Iowa students provide opportunities and some scholarships for study abroad.

Faculty

Members of the anthropology faculty have studied and lived in Africa, Asia, the Caribbean, Europe, Mexico and Central America, Pacific Islands, South America, and the United States. Recent field research has been conducted in Angola, Belgium, Brazil, Cameroon, China, Czech Republic, Ecuador, Fiji, France, Greece, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Mozambique, Myanmar (formerly Burma), the Netherlands, Peru, Philippines, Portugal, Russia, Tanzania, the Gambia, the United States, and Vietnam.

Current faculty interests include patterns of political and economic development of emerging nations; the trade in Mexican folk art, material culture, human rights; indigenous movements; visual culture and indigenous media; gender and the cultural politics surrounding sobriety in native North America; the cultural production of scientific knowledge about racial/ethnic disparities in infant mortality in U.S. public health; stress, blood pressure, and social support in Mozambique; coping strategies in post-war Angola; power, memory, and social inequality in ancient Iberia; language and gender; expressive culture and performance in the Brazilian Amazon; language and social justice; Sanskrit, colonial linguistics, cultural politics of language, religion, and ethnicity; spiritual tourism in India; community and conflict, ritualization, localized religion, and environmentalism in Japan; ethnic minorities in Japan; diasporas, love, and romantic relations, culture, and totalitarianism in North Korea; paleoanthropological investigations of Pleistocene karst caves in China and northern Vietnam; geological and paleoanthropological field surveys of the Plio-Pleistocene Sangiran Dome, in Java; Neanderthal craniofacial form, function, and evolutionary history; anatomical modernity and the origins of modern humans; historical archaeology of Iowa; molecular anthropology, primate molecular ecology, primate conservation biology, primate evolutionary history; precontact state systems and the historical archaeology of the Basin of Mexico; faunal and spatial analyses from Paleolithic sites in France and the Ukraine; regional interaction and migration in late-prehistoric North America; peopling of the Americas; human impacts on the environment in North America.

Anthropology Courses

For Undergraduates

113:003 Introduction to the Study of Culture and Society 3 s.h.
Comparative study of culture, social organization. GE: Social Sciences.

113:010 Anthropology and Contemporary World Problems 3 s.h.
Selected world problems from an anthropological perspective; current dilemmas and those faced by diverse human groups in recent times and distant past. GE: Social Sciences.

113:012 Introduction to Prehistory 3 s.h.
Data, theories of evolution of human cultures from end of Pleistocene to emergence of complex societies; emphasis on prehistoric cultural information from world areas from which relatively complete sequences are available. GE: Historical Perspectives.

113:013 Human Origins 3 s.h.
Processes, products of human evolution from perspectives of heredity and genetics, evolutionary theory, human biological characteristics, fossil record, artifactual evidence, biocultural behaviors. GE: Natural Sciences.

113:014 Language, Culture, and Communication 3 s.h.

Human language in context of animal communication; development, acquisition of language; biological base; language as a linguistic system in cultural social context. GE: Social Sciences.

113:029 First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.

Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g. films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

113:050 Issues in Anthropology 3 s.h.

In-depth exploration of methodological and theoretical issues in contemporary anthropology; emphasis on critical reading of primary texts.

113:051 Diversity in Action in American Society 1-3 s.h.

Consequences of American racial and cultural diversity as related to contemporary social issues and professional careers; assumptions that define diversity as a problem for educators.

113:060 Forensic Anthropology and CSI 3 s.h.

Role and range of techniques used in forensic anthropology; how analysis of skeletal and nonskeletal remains is used in crime scene investigation; case studies.

113:061 Anthropology of Tattoos and Body Modification 3 s.h.

Cross-cultural perspective on corporal modification; how people communicate and inscribe cultural and personal significance on the body; tools used, from ink to scalpel.

113:062 Anthropology of Violence 3 s.h.

Sources and manifestations of violence; violence in varied contexts--war, genocide, colonialism, state violence, terrorism, domestic violence; anthropological perspective considering structural, economic, and symbolic violence.

113:063 Fifth Great Ape: Our Primate Heritage 3 s.h.

Human behavior and ecology viewed through the gap between nonhuman and human primates; adaptations, interactions of free-ranging species, cognition of higher primates in behavioral study.

113:064 The Evolution of Human Sex 3 s.h.

How evolution has shaped our sexual behavior; patterns of mate choice, parental behavior, social organization, cooperation, and conflict as responses to selection pressure; sexual selection, reproductive strategies, mate choice, sex roles and practices.

113:065 Anthropology, Science Fiction, and Fantasy 3 s.h.

Connections between anthropology and science fiction and fantasy; science fiction and fantasy films and literature surveyed and examined in light of scholarly essays on anthropological concepts such as human evolution, race, gender, the anthropological other.

113:066 The Anthropology of Virtual Worlds 3 s.h.

How virtual reality intertwines with social existence; anthropological exploration of virtual worlds, from checking e-mail to setting up bar crawls on Facebook; forms of virtual identity, how virtual life affects language.

113:075 Individual Study 1-3 s.h.

Readings in area or subdivision of anthropology in which student has had basic course work.

113:081 Human Genetics in the Twenty-First Century 3 s.h.

Heredity in human families, populations; genetic basis of normal, abnormal traits; chromosome behavior; molecular basis of genetics; sex determination. GE: Natural Sciences. Same as 002:081.

Advanced Courses

General Anthropology

113:103 Introduction to Museology 3 s.h.

Overview of museum history, function, philosophy, collection and curatorial practices, governance and funding issues, exhibition evaluation, audience studies; American cultural institutions. GE: Humanities. Same as 024:102, 07S:112, 097:115.

113:147 Special Topics in Anthropology 2-3 s.h.
Problems, concepts involved in comparing and contrasting behavior and ideas of different cultures.

113:148 Special Topics in Anthropology 2-3 s.h.
Problems, concepts involved in comparing and contrasting behavior and ideas of different cultures.

113:149 Special Topics in Anthropology 2-3 s.h.
Problems, concepts involved in comparing and contrasting behavior and ideas of different cultures.

113:209 Research Design and Proposal Writing 3 s.h.
Anthropological research design; preparation of proposals for fieldwork or laboratory analysis.

113:210 Anthropological Data Analysis 3 s.h.
Quantitative procedures for analyzing field data, library materials; elementary statistics, introduction to computers.

113:215 Seminar: Ecological Anthropology 3 s.h.
Individual and group responses to ecological problems; causes and consequences of resource shortages, population growth, environmental destruction; conflicts over access to natural resources.

113:235 Graduate Teaching Pro-Seminar 1 s.h.
Graduate student teaching skills: developing course guidelines, leading discussion, grading, review sessions, dealing with problem students and complaints; development of syllabi and teaching portfolios; mentoring of less-experienced teaching assistants. Repeatable.

Area Studies

The following archaeology courses may be used to fulfill the area studies requirement: 113:117 The Maya: Archaeology and Ethnohistory, 113:130 Archaeology of the Iberian Peninsula, 113:150 Tribes and Chiefdoms of Ancient Europe, 113:159 Southwestern Archaeology, 113:163 Archaeology of Mesoamerica, 113:166 The Aztecs, Their Predecessors, and Their Contemporaries, 113:167 North American Archaeology, 113:177 Celtic Archaeology, 113:181 Archaeology of the Great Plains, 113:192 Greek Archaeology and Ethnohistory, 113:194 Roman Archaeology, and 113:196 The Archaeology of Ancient Egypt. No single course may be used to fulfill both area studies and archaeology requirements.

113:107 Gendering India 4 s.h.
Aspects of Indian culture, including nation, family, sexuality, work, and religion, through the lens of gender; Hindu India, differences in region, caste, and class. Same as 131:107.

113:110 Native Peoples of North America 3 s.h.
History, culture of American Indian peoples; emphasis on North America. GE: Cultural Diversity. Same as 045:105, 149:110.

113:118 North Korea and Totalitarianism 3 s.h.
North Korea viewed as a human society, rather than a global security threat, through examination of the nation's culture and politics.

113:119 Health in Mexico 3 s.h.
Use of anthropological perspectives to examine disease, healing systems, and ideas about health and the body in Mexico and its diaspora; relationships between structural conditions and historical and political transformations; ideas about gender and race; chronic and acute disease in Mexico; conquest and disease; racialized bodies; sexual health; biomedicine; shamanism; immigration and health; pollution and narcoviolence; readings in English.

113:120 Popular Culture in South Asia 3 s.h.
Popular cultural forms (films, calendar art, music, comics, advertising) and their role in formation and expression of collective identities based on gender, ethnicity, caste, religion, and so forth in South Asia. Same as 039:119.

113:125 Japanese Society and Culture

3 s.h.

Cultural anthropology of Japan, including historical tradition, religious ethos, social organization, human ecology, educational and political institutions; emphasis on how these aspects relate to and influence one another. GE: Foreign Civilization & Culture. Same as 39J:125.

113:127 South Asian Sexual Cultures

3 s.h.

How sexuality is embedded in kinship, economics, nation, and religion in South Asia, with focus on India; chastity, celibacy, romance, arranged marriage, nonnormative sexualities associated with courtesans and hijras. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010 or 131:010. Same as 131:127.

113:129 Language/Politics of Culture in South Asia

3 s.h.

Key moments in the sociolinguistic history of premodern, colonial, and postcolonial linguistic communities in South Asia; roles of language in mediation of cultural and political processes. Same as 039:122.

113:131 Latin American Economy and Society

3 s.h.

Development, present structure of Latin American economy and society; emphasis on rural regions in context of national development; focus on area as a whole. GE: Foreign Civilization & Culture.

113:132 Latin American Studies Seminar

3 s.h.

Interdisciplinary approach. Taught in English. Recommendations: Spanish or Portuguese sufficient for background readings. Same as 035:176, 038:176, 048:153, 130:176, 16W:109.

113:134 Gender and Indian Diaspora

3 s.h.

General theories of diaspora, which have expanded from the Jewish experience to explain African and Asian diasporas; theories in context of Indian diaspora populations and their relationship to the homeland. Same as 131:134.

113:152 Japan and Other Cultural Constructs

3 s.h.

Key texts in postwar Anglo-American anthropological studies of Japan; wartime enemy studies, national character studies, culture and personality school as represented by Ruth Benedict, and more. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010.

Sociocultural Anthropology*113:101 Disability and the Ethics of Care

3 s.h.

Recent debate on disability, with emphasis on moral and ethical foundations of our society; care of the disabled as part of the broader social good. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010.

113:102 Ethnography and Auto/Biography

3 s.h.

Ethnographic writing compared with biographical and autobiographical writings. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010.

113:104 Cultural Politics

3 s.h.

Cultural politics involved in cultural representation; varied forms of cultural performance and display; social and power relationships between producers, consumers, represented subjects. Requirements: two courses chosen from 113:003, 113:010, 113:012, 113:013, and 113:014.

113:105 Mothers and Motherhood

3 s.h.

Treatment of motherhood; role of motherhood and devaluation of social status. Same as 131:142.

113:106 The Anthropology of War and Peace

3 s.h.

Fundamentals of human social conflict that lead to national wars, and how peace is made; perspectives from anthropological works. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010.

113:108 Anthropology of Marriage and Family

3 s.h.

Classic anthropological theories of kinship and marriage, including topics such as cousin marriage and incest; recent work on new reproductive technologies and transnational marriage. Same as 131:108.

113:109 Literature and Anthropology

3 s.h.

Topics vary. Same as 008:151, 048:151.

113:112 Anthropology of Sexuality

3 s.h.

Practice, definition, and regulation of sex in different cultures and times; use of anthropological tools, including cross-cultural comparison and social constructionist analysis; how social and historical forces shape sex; how a range of topics relate to sexuality, including science, love, work, globalization, ethnicity, health, aging, pornography, and deviance; focus on ways that dynamics (i.e., class, race, gender norms) shape people's culturally- and historically-specific ways of having and thinking about sex.

113:114 Environmentalisms

3 s.h.

Alternative ways of conceptualizing the environment drawn from the ethnographic record worldwide; culturally constructed images of nature and their expression through daily activity and communicative media; inspiration for environmental activism; why such movements emerge, techniques they employ, factors that contribute to their success or failure. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010.

113:116 Urban Anthropology

3 s.h.

Cross-cultural approach to urban anthropology; urbanizing processes, migration and adaptation, aspects of class and ethnicity in urban settings, urban economic relations. GE: Social Sciences.

113:121 Health of Indigenous Peoples

3 s.h.

Health problems and services for indigenous populations worldwide, from perspective of Fourth World postcolonial politics. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010. Same as 149:121, 152:121.

113:128 Faces of Culture

3 s.h.

Human subsistence and adaptation to environment in cultures from all continents; cross-culture comparisons and general themes.

113:133 The Anthropology of Women's Health

3 s.h.

How female gender intersects with culture, environment, and political economy to shape health and illness; reproductive health, violence, drug use, cancer; readings in anthropology, public health. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010 or 131:010. Same as 131:133, 172:133.

113:135 Psychological Anthropology

3 s.h.

Cultural diversity in constructions of self, mind, and emotion; religious experience, altered states of consciousness, behavioral disorders. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010.

113:136 Applied Anthropology

3 s.h.

Practical health, environmental, and social problems viewed through an anthropological framework; how anthropological approaches are used to recognize and address applied problems.

113:137 The Anthropology of Love

3 s.h.

The culturally diverse concept and practice of love as seen through cross-cultural and interdisciplinary texts on romantic and other forms of love.

113:139 Religion and Environmental Ethics

3 s.h.

How humans conceptualize the biophysical environment through religious beliefs and practices; how images of the environment influence people's activities, how they are used by grassroots environmental movements. Requirements: junior or senior standing. Same as 032:130, 033:139.

113:140 Politics of Reproduction

3 s.h.

Debates over women's reproductive experience, including its medicalization. Same as 131:144.

113:141 History of Feminist Anthropology

3 s.h.

Development and evolution of feminist critiques in cultural anthropology; readings from early studies by women ethnographers, classic writings that sought to give women cross-cultural visibility, recent experimental texts. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 131:010. Same as 131:141.

113:142 Anthropology of Religion

2-3 s.h.

Approaches; religious roles; shamanism, witchcraft, curing; mythology; place of religion in social and cultural change. Same as 032:165.

113:143 Environment and Culture

3 s.h.

Individual and group responses to scarcities of natural resources such as land, water, food. Requirements: 113:003 or 113:010 or graduate standing.

113:144 Culture and Consumption 3 s.h.

How social world is made through goods and commodities; gift giving, prestige economies, commodification, objects and ideology; politics of consumption; role of materialism in culture change; cases from prehistory to post-riot Los Angeles.

113:145 Religion and Healing 3 s.h.

Historical evidence of religious healing in Christian, Hindu, Buddhist, Native American, and Shaman traditions. Same as 032:180.

113:146 Anthropology of Death 3 s.h.

How anthropologists and archaeologists study death, dying, mortuary rituals, and notions of the afterlife in contemporary North America and in different places and times. Requirements: 113:003 or 113:012 or graduate standing.

113:151 Women and World Religions 3 s.h.

Historical and contemporary experiences and role(s) of women in some of the world's religions; how gender is expressed through women's daily spiritual and religious lives and practices.

113:154 Anthropology of Sexual Minorities 3 s.h.

Ethnographic studies of sexual minorities and anthropological approaches to lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgendered persons and communities; behavior, identity, performativity, kinship, globalization, the HIV/AIDS pandemic. Requirements: junior, senior, or graduate standing. Same as 131:154, 154:182.

113:155 Anthropology of the Body 3 s.h.

Theories of the body; roles the body plays in everyday life, how self is embodied, relationship among mind, body, spirit, and community.

113:175 Human and Animal Sacrifice 3 s.h.

Human and animal sacrifice as a religious practice and expression of violence in human societies; patterns and variations illustrated by examples from past and present societies; American capital punishment.

113:180 Women Writing Culture 3 s.h.

Feminist ethnography and other kinds of feminist narratives that "write culture" while pushing the boundaries of how anthropologists define ethnography. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 131:010. Same as 131:165.

113:182 Women, Health, and Healing 3 s.h.

Women's experience as recipients and providers of health care; intersection of race, class, cultural variation, and women's health; reproductive and nonreproductive health concerns. Same as 131:143.

113:184 Anthropology and International Health 3 s.h.

Anthropological contributions to and critiques of the international health enterprise; case studies illustrating anthropology and international health's intersection, and their differences. Offered spring semesters. Same as 152:184, 172:131.

113:185 Medical Anthropology 3 s.h.

Major theoretical, methodological approaches; international health and development; biomedicine as a cultural system; ethnomedicine; anthropology and AIDS, human reproduction, epidemiology, ethnopsychiatry. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010. Same as 152:185, 172:173.

113:191 Anthropology of Play 3 s.h.

Fundamental logic and variation of what is considered human play in diverse cultures. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010.

113:202 Ethnographic Field Methods 3 s.h.

Basic data-gathering techniques for field research in sociocultural anthropology. Requirements: anthropology graduate standing. Same as 172:202.

- 113:208 Foundations of Ethnomusicology 3 s.h.
Ethnomusicology in relation to domains of musical, humanistic, social science scholarship on expressive culture and artistic processes. Requirements: senior standing. Same as 025:319.
- 113:220 Seminar: Feminist Anthropology 3 s.h.
Theory, methods, research, epistemology from a feminist perspective. Same as 131:220.
- 113:221 Seminar: Feminist Ethnography 3 s.h.
Feminist critiques of traditional ethnographies, informed by contemporary feminisms. Prerequisites: 113:220 or 131:220. Same as 131:245.
- 113:222 Reading Transnational Feminist Theory 3 s.h.
Issues in transnational feminist scholarship, including colonialism, globalization, the nation-state, religion, cultural traditions, and human rights, in global and U.S. domestic contexts; interdisciplinary readings with focus on anthropology, other social sciences. Same as 131:222.
- 113:223 Feminist Medical Anthropology 3 s.h.
Directions feminists have taken in medical anthropological scholarship; focus on ethnographies that have become classics of the genre and on influential theoretical and applied work. Same as 131:223.
- 113:240 Seminar Sociocultural Anthropology 3 s.h.
Social institutions in the world's societies; problems in theory, method, interpretation. Requirements: anthropology graduate standing.
- 113:247 Crossing Borders Seminar 2-3 s.h.
Repeatable. Same as 008:231, 013:262, 016:247, 01H:247, 030:242, 035:273, 044:286, 048:247, 129:231, 160:247, 181:247.
- 113:248 Crossing Borders Proseminar 1 s.h.
Same as 013:260, 016:244, 01H:330, 030:243, 035:271, 044:287, 048:244.
- 113:250 Seminar: Ritual and Performance 3 s.h.
Approaches to comparative study of ritual in religious and secular contexts.
- 113:251 Seminar: Resistance in Theory and Practice 3 s.h.
Various forms of political resistance, some bold and dramatic (peasant rebellions), others more subtle and mundane (dissimulation, false compliance, pilfering); some resistance is symbolic (millenarian movements, rituals of conflict, status reversal); learning to recognize and attend to more subtle forms.
- 113:274 Medical Anthropology and Social Theory 3 s.h.
How medical anthropology has responded and contributed to key theoretical developments in recent decades (i.e., discourse/narrative analysis, practice theory, feminist theory, postcolonial theory, science and technology studies).

Archaeology

The following archaeology courses may be used to fulfill the area studies requirement: 113:117 The Maya: Archaeology and Ethnohistory, 113:130 Archaeology of the Iberian Peninsula, 113:150 Tribes and Chiefdoms of Ancient Europe, 113:159 Southwestern Archaeology, 113:163 Archaeology of Mesoamerica, 113:166 The Aztecs, Their Predecessors, and Their Contemporaries, 113:167 North American Archaeology, 113:177 Celtic Archaeology, 113:181 Archaeology of the Great Plains, 113:192 Greek Archaeology and Ethnohistory, 113:194 Roman Archaeology, and 113:196 The Archaeology of Ancient Egypt. No single course may be used to fulfill both area studies and archaeology requirements.

- 113:111 Our Life With Dogs: The Anthropological Study of Animals in Human Societies 2-3 s.h.
Intricate connections between dogs and our social, economic, political, and spiritual lives; human relationships with dogs that extend back at least 16,000 years; process of dog domestication; roles dogs play in human ideology and past economies; modern interactions with dogs.
- 113:113 Human Impacts on the Environment 3 s.h.

Long-term patterns of human-environment interactions surveyed through archaeological case studies; varied scales of human impacts, including animal extinction, habitat destruction, agricultural practices, urban growth, state-level societies. GE: Social Sciences.

113:117 The Maya: Archaeology and Ethnohistory 3 s.h.

The Maya of Guatemala, Honduras, El Salvador, Belize, and Mexico from the end of the Pleistocene to the 19th century C.E.; achievements in art, science, religion, and social and political systems.

113:126 Animals, Culture, and Food 3 s.h.

The varied roles animals have played in human society through time; impact of humans on animal populations, ethical aspects of animals' roles in modern societies.

113:130 Archaeology of the Iberian Peninsula 3 s.h.

Introduction to archaeology of the Iberian Peninsula, from earliest human occupation through period of Romanization.

113:138 Archaeological Approaches to Social Change 3 s.h.

How archaeologists identify, explain, and interpret social change in the material record of the ancient past; archaeological evidence and explanations--drawn from case studies worldwide and theoretical perspectives--for population growth, migration, colonization, centralization, stratification, conflict, regionalism, devolution, specialization, and standardization. Prerequisites: 113:012.

113:150 Tribes and Chiefdoms of Ancient Europe 3 s.h.

Archaeology of European societies between the Mesolithic and Iron Age; how ideas about Europe's prehistoric past have been used for political purposes. Requirements: 113:012 or graduate standing.

113:153 Raw Materials in Archaeology 3 s.h.

Raw materials used in traditional technologies such as ceramics, chipped stone tools, metallurgy; field trips, laboratory analyses, comparisons to prehistoric artifacts. Prerequisites: 113:012.

113:157 Foodways and Cuisine in the Past 3 s.h.

Anthropological and archaeological perspective on cuisine; present-day links between food and culture; past cuisines viewed through written documents and archaeological data; histories of different foods.

113:158 Animal Bones in Archaeology 3 s.h.

Use of faunal material in interpretation of archaeological remains, including skeletal anatomy, identification, taphonomy, determination of age and sex, seasonality, quantification, sampling, breakage and cutmarks, interpretations; laboratory sessions. Prerequisites: 113:012.

113:159 Southwestern Archaeology 3 s.h.

Anthropological overview of prehistoric cultures of the American Southwest; emphasis on understanding archaeological arguments concerning major processes in the past. Same as 149:159.

113:160 Introduction to Archaeological Ceramics 3 s.h.

Basic analytical techniques for archaeological ceramics, applied primarily to ceramics from midwestern and western North America; raw materials, manufacture, decoration and style, craft specialization, use, and discard. Prerequisites: 113:012.

113:161 Prehistoric People of the Ice Age 3 s.h.

Hominid occupation of Old World during Pleistocene; hominid fossils, artifacts, settlement patterns, climatic reconstruction, evolutionary processes; survey and evaluation. Prerequisites: 113:012 and 113:168.

113:162 Practicum in Archaeology arr.

Intensive, hands-on examination of a wide range of materials recently recovered from archaeological sites; pottery, lithics (stone tools and related items), plant remains, animal bones; for students with strong archaeological interests or archaeological field experience.

113:163 Archaeology of Mesoamerica 3 s.h.

Archaeological data related to the evolution of civilization in Mesoamerica; sequence from hunter-gatherers to A.D. 1519; emphasis on Central Mexico, Maya area, Oaxaca. Requirements: 113:012 or anthropology graduate standing.

113:164 Comparative Prehistory

3 s.h.

Cultural evolution in Old World, New World; emphasis on developments from pre-agricultural societies to appearance of urban civilizations; focus on Mesoamerica, Central Andes, Near East, Egypt, Indus Valley, China. Requirements: 113:012 or anthropology graduate standing.

113:165 Mesoamerican Reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic

3 s.h.

Basic presentation of Aztec, Zapotec, and Maya literature and science; notational techniques used in writing and mathematics, taken from archaeology and ethnohistory; world views and cosmology viewed through literature and science.

113:166 The Aztecs, Their Predecessors, and Their Contemporaries

3 s.h.

Background for development of Aztec state, nature of civilization encountered by Spaniards in 1519, contemporary peoples affected by Aztecs. Requirements: 113:012 or anthropology graduate standing.

113:167 North American Archaeology

3 s.h.

Prehistoric cultural development north of Mexico from initial occupation to European contact and conquest; emphasis on dynamics of culture change. Same as 149:167.

113:168 Archaeological Methods

3 s.h.

Current theoretical approaches, methods used to investigate the past; site formation processes, taphonomy, sampling and research design, typology and seriation, subsistence-settlement reconstruction, cultural evolution. Prerequisites: 113:012.

113:169 Lithic Analysis in Archaeology

3 s.h.

Archaeological issues examined and addressed with lithic data; use of lithic data to study the past, specific techniques applied. Requirements: 113:012 or graduate standing.

113:170 Cultural Resources Management Archaeology: Practice and Practicalities

3 s.h.

Cultural Resources Management (CRM) archaeology as the largest sector of archaeological research in the United States in terms of employment, funding, and field- and lab-related activity; investigate the past, navigate the complexities of compliance requirements from federal, state, and local regulations concerning historic preservation; introduction to the legal, procedural, and practical foundations of CRM archaeology; prepare students for employment by acquisition of skills from project planning through dissemination of results. Prerequisites: 113:012.

Recommendations: completion of other anthropology, geography, history, or Native American studies courses.

113:172 Historical Archaeology: The Archaeology of the U.S.

3 s.h.

Cultures examined through archaeological and historical data. Prerequisites: 113:012.

113:174 Seminar: Taphonomy

3 s.h.

Taphonomy (study of fossil record in paleontology and archaeology); processes for accumulation, modification, and deposition of remains in prehistory; instruction by archaeologist and paleontologist. Requirements: graduate standing. Same as 012:174.

113:177 Celtic Archaeology

3 s.h.

Archaeology and ethnohistory of Celtic societies of Iron Age Europe; patterns and variation in economies, sociopolitical organization, religion; relationships between Iron Age Celts and modern descendants.

113:178 Hunter-Gatherer Ethnoarchaeology

3 s.h.

Variability in adaptations of hunter-gatherers on a global scale; emphasis on subsistence, mobility, social organization; archaeological record of prehistoric hunter-gatherers interpreted through study of modern societies. Requirements: graduate standing.

113:179 Pleistocene Peopling of the Americas

3 s.h.

Major themes in earliest human settlement of the Americas, including human mobility, subsistence, technology, human impacts on the environment.

113:181 Archaeology of the Great Plains

3 s.h.

Contrasting lifeways, diets, and technologies that humans used to survive on North America's Great Plains, from Ice Age hunter-gatherers to Euroamerican homesteaders.

113:187 Cultures in Collision

3 s.h.

Survey of archaeological evidence for differences in human interactions between two or more cultural groups; issues such as ethnicity, war, economy, repression, multiethnic communities.

113:189 Approaches to Geoarchaeology

3 s.h.

Geoarchaeology as multidisciplinary contextual framework for human paleoecology; natural processes that create the archaeological record, approaches to reconstructing landscapes of the past as a context for archaeological deposits; weekend field trip. Prerequisites: 012:136 or 012:172 or 113:161 or 113:164. Same as 012:185.

113:192 Greek Archaeology and Ethnohistory

3 s.h.

Archaeology and ethnology of the Greek world, from end of Bronze Age to late Roman Empire; sociocultural processes that influence development and persistence of Greek civilization. Prerequisites: 113:012 or 113:013. Same as 20E:118.

113:193 Special Topics in Archaeology

3 s.h.

113:194 Roman Archaeology

3 s.h.

Archaeology and ethnology of Roman civilization from Iron Age eighth-century occupation of the Palatine Hill to the end of the Roman empire in the West, A.D. 476. Prerequisites: 113:012 or 113:013. Same as 20E:119.

113:196 The Archaeology of Ancient Egypt

3 s.h.

Introduction to the archaeology of ancient Egypt from predynastic times to Roman Egypt, including monumental architecture; patterns of everyday life; social, economic, and demographic considerations; history of archaeology in Egypt. Prerequisites: 113:012. Same as 20E:196.

113:199 Field Research in Archaeology

arr.

Beginning skills in site surveying and excavation, lab work, record keeping at nearby prehistoric sites.

113:258 Seminar: Zooarchaeology

3 s.h.

Interpretation of faunal material in archaeology; intensive survey of classic and recent literature on taphonomy, skeletal anatomy, population parameters, seasonality, quantification and sampling, butchering patterns, ethnoarchaeology, social and economic inferences. Prerequisites: 113:158.

113:268 Seminar: Archaeological Theory and Method

3 s.h.

Development, current status of theory, method in Americanist archaeology. Requirements: anthropology graduate standing.

113:269 Politics of the Archaeological Past

2-3 s.h.

How control over representation and management of the ancient past intersects with the identity of diverse groups, including archaeologists, indigenous peoples, national governments. Prerequisites: 113:268.

Biological Anthropology*213:115 The Neanderthal Enigma

3 s.h.

Survey of Neanderthals as the most widely known, yet enigmatic, fossil human lineage; history of discoveries; current interpretations of Neanderthal's origins, anatomy and behavior, relationship to today's people, extinction. Prerequisites: 113:013.

213:116 Modern Human Origins

3 s.h.

Current data and theories regarding the emergence of Homo sapiens; how human anatomical modernity is defined and recognized in the fossil record; competing models for modern humans' emergence--multiregional evolution, out of Africa, the assimilation model; interpretation of recent developments and discoveries in the human fossil record; contemporary contributions from genetics, developmental biology, evolutionary ecology, paleodemography.

213:150 Primate Comparative Morphology

3 s.h.

Survey of anatomical differences between primate groups; focus on function, adaptation, evolution. Prerequisites: 113:013.

213:151 Anthropological Genetics

3 s.h.

Application of molecular methods and theory to biological anthropology; how recent advances in genetics have provided insight into the evolution of human and nonhuman primates. Prerequisites: 113:013.

213:152 Primate Conservation Biology

3 s.h.

Issues faced by conservation biologists attempting to protect nonhuman primate wildlife and biodiversity; how biogeography, ecology, and behavior relate to conservation; human interaction with the environment. Prerequisites: 113:013.

213:165 Human Variation

3 s.h.

Range and patterning of biological diversity in contemporary human populations; past and present attempts to organize and explain human genetic, morphological variation in light of recent data, theory.

213:169 Human Evolutionary Anatomy

3 s.h.

Interpretation of skeletal remains as the basis for reconstructing forms, adaptations, lifestyles of prehistoric humans; body size, musculature, stance, activity patterns, brain size, and sexual dimorphism. Prerequisites: 213:190.

213:170 Primate Evolutionary Biology

3 s.h.

Origin and diversification of the primate order through fossil evidence, morphology, systematics, and biomolecular studies emphasizing phylogenetic interpretations, paleobiological and paleoecological reconstructions. Prerequisites: 113:013 or 002:131.

213:187 Human Evolution

3 s.h.

From earliest fossil record of apes to origin and diversification of hominid family and appearance of modern Homo sapiens; evidence from paleontology, comparative anatomy, biomolecular studies, archaeology considered from evolutionary perspective. Prerequisites: 002:131 or 012:121 or 113:013.

213:188 Primate Behavior and Ecology

3 s.h.

Systematics, anatomy, behavior, and ecology of the living species of primates; emphasis on adaptations and interactions of free-ranging primates. Prerequisites: 113:013 or 002:134.

213:190 Human Osteology

3 s.h.

The human skeletal system; normal and pathologic variation; skeletal measurement and analysis with application to paleoanthropology, forensic, and archaeological investigations. Prerequisites: 113:013.

213:195 Laboratory Methods in Biological Anthropology

arr.

Specimen preparation, cataloging, moulding and casting, photography, computer analyses, library research.

213:285 Seminar: Biological Anthropology

3 s.h.

Physical anthropology, including heredity and genetics, evolutionary theory, human biological characteristics, primate and human fossil record, primate behavior and ecology, human adaptations. Requirements: graduate standing in anthropology or biology or related department.

213:288 Seminar: Paleoanthropology

3 s.h.

Current understandings of biocultural processes and events underlying Pleistocene human evolution; cross-disciplinary approach combining human paleontology and Paleolithic archaeology. Requirements: graduate standing or undergraduate honors standing or advanced undergraduate standing.

113:290 Feminist Perspectives on Biology and Culture

3 s.h.

Explores feminist analyses of the cultural and historical situatedness of scientific knowledge; topics range from human evolution and primatology to developmental biology and genetics to nuclear physics. Same as 131:290.

Linguistic Anthropology*113:122 Bad Language

3 s.h.

Normative roles of language in society viewed in context of speech forms labeled marginal or deviant; nonstandard speech, joking registers, jargons, and obscene/indecent language from varied speech communities.

113:123 Language and Nationalism

3 s.h.

Varied cases of linguistic nationalism; how language has become a powerful symbol for expression of national identity across many contexts and circumstances.

113:171 Multi-Media Ethnography

3 s.h.

Skills and tools for using multimedia technologies in ethnographic research and presentations; students conduct research projects using audio and video recording equipment and develop media-based presentations; ethnographic emphasis on contextually situated social interaction. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010 or 113:014.

113:244 Seminar: Semiotics

3 s.h.

Piercian semiotic and Saussurean semiological conceptual frameworks; focus on anthropological, linguistic issues.

113:271 Seminar: Linguistic Anthropology

3 s.h.

Fundamental concepts and methods employed in the anthropological study of language; principal areas of current research.

113:273 Seminar: Language and Gender

3 s.h.

Role of language and discourse in cultural constructions of gender identities and relations, including domination and subordination; theoretical perspectives, methodological approaches that have shaped thought on the language/gender nexus. Prerequisites: 113:220 or 131:220.

Individual Reading and Research*113:176 Honors Research

2-4 s.h.

Project chosen in consultation with honors advisor.

113:183 Independent Study

arr.

113:186 Honors Research Seminar

2-4 s.h.

Preparation for writing honors thesis, including project conception and research, proposal writing, oral and written presentations of student research. Corequisites: 113:176, if not taken as a prerequisite. Requirements: honors standing in anthropology.

113:383 Independent Study: Anthropology

arr.

Repeatable.

113:384 Research: Anthropology

arr.

Repeatable.

113:385 Thesis

arr.

Repeatable.

Art and Art History

Director: John Beldon Scott

Professors emeriti: Keith Achepohl, Wayne Begley, Hans Breder, Byron Burford, Richard De Puma, Peter Feldstein, Stephen Foster, Charles Hindes, Hung-shu Hu, Mauricio Lasansky, Eugene Ludins, Bunny McBride, Joseph Patrick, Howard Rogovin, Julius Schmidt, George Walker

Assistant professors: Bradley Dicharry, John Freyer, Sarah Kanouse, Brenda Longfellow, Mathew Rude

Lecturers: Thomas Christison, Julia Leonard, Vinicius Rebello Lima, Heidi Van Wieren, Laura Young

Undergraduate degrees: B.A., B.F.A. in Art, B.A. in Art History

Undergraduate nondegree programs: Minor in Art, Art History

Graduate degrees: M.A., M.F.A. in Art; M.A., Ph.D. in Art History

Web site: <http://www.art.uiowa.edu/>

The School of Art and Art History provides a creative, multidisciplinary environment for students of the studio arts, the history of art, and art education. Established in 1936, the school is firmly grounded in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. It encourages interaction among its diverse faculty as well as collaboration with related disciplines across campus.

Iowa's art and art history graduates enjoy success as practicing professional artists, professors of art history, teachers, museum directors and curators, theater designers, commercial designers, and art administrators.

The University of Iowa is restoring and rebuilding School of Art and Art History facilities that were damaged or destroyed by Iowa River flooding during summer 2008. Courses are being held in other buildings on campus, and the school's main office is temporarily located in Seashore Hall, close to the Pentacrest. Visit the School of Art and Art History web site and ISIS for information about studio, office, and classroom sites.

Studio Art

The studio art program is based on the idea that the philosophical issues of society that are questioned and interpreted by artists are the basis for an artist's work. The diversity of concept and style among School of Art and Art History faculty members encourages students to seek and work toward a keen understanding of themselves as individuals capable of making their own personal statements as part of the philosophical continuum in art's history.

Studying the broad contexts in which art is made, understood, and used by society prepares studio art students to continue work in an academic setting as well as in museums, galleries, and a multiplicity of other venues. Graduate students are especially encouraged to examine the contexts of visual and verbal issues central to their own work and that of their contemporaries.

Undergraduate and graduate students select their major and minor studio art areas from ceramics, graphic design, three-dimensional (3-D) design, drawing, intermedia, jewelry and metal arts, painting, photography, printmaking, and sculpture.

Art History

Art history, a broad intellectual discipline, is central to the humanities. Diverse approaches characterize the school's art history faculty, who have interdisciplinary ties within and beyond the University. Their primary mission is to help students develop skills for exploring issues and problems central to the history of art as a whole as well as to its specialized areas. Because the major in art history stresses the development of critical visual thinking, it prepares students for graduate work in the history of art and for other professional fields as well.

Art Education

The Teacher Education Program in art prepares undergraduate and graduate students for licensure to teach art in grades K-12. Because teaching, like making art, is informed by experience, the art education area has established one of the nation's most extensive preservice teaching programs. Students conduct case studies of individuals making and responding to art, observe art classrooms, teach in a Saturday children's workshop, and participate in artist-in-residence programs in secondary schools. M.A. and Ph.D. students in art education draw on resources in American studies, anthropology, and sociology to prepare for positions as teachers in museums, colleges, or universities, or as art administrators.

Undergraduate Programs

The School of Art and Art History offers a Bachelor of Arts and a Bachelor of Fine Arts in art, and a Bachelor of Arts in art history. All three degrees include an optional Teacher Education Program, in collaboration with the College of Education. The school also offers a minor in art and a minor in art history.

All undergraduate students concentrating in studio art begin their study in the B.A. program. They may request admission to the B.F.A. program in a process called "clearance," usually during the student's third year; see "B.A. in Art" and "B.F.A. in Art" below. Teacher licensure requirements are the same for B.A. and B.F.A. students.

Bachelor of Arts in Art

The Bachelor of Arts in art requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 39 s.h. of work for the major (art and art history courses). The program requires a foundation in art history as well as an understanding of the formal traditions and contemporary practices in studio art.

Undergraduate students in art begin their study in the B.A. program. Those interested in pursuing a specific area of studio art may apply for admission to the B.F.A. program through a process called "clearance," in which the faculty evaluates the student's readiness for B.F.A. study. Clearance usually takes place during the third year, but it may be conducted earlier or later, depending on the student's readiness. B.F.A. students select their major and minor studio art areas from ceramics, graphic design, three-dimensional (3-D) design, drawing, intermedia, jewelry and metal arts, painting, photography, printmaking, and sculpture.

Teacher licensure requirements are the same for B.A. and B.F.A. students; see "B.A. or B.F.A. with Teacher Licensure (Art Education)" below.

REQUIRED COURSE WORK

B.A. students in art must earn at least 70 s.h. of credit in courses outside the School of Art and Art History; they may count up to 50 s.h. earned in courses offered by the school (art history, studio art, and art education combined) toward the minimum 120 s.h. required for graduation.

However, students earning two majors or a major and a minor in more than one subject in the School of Art and Art History (e.g., a major in art and a minor in art history) may count up to 64 s.h. of credit in School of Art and Art History courses toward the minimum 120 s.h. required for graduation, and they must earn at least 56 s.h. in courses outside the school.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The major in art requires the following course work. Not all courses are offered every semester, including required courses. When making a study plan, students should consult with their advisors and ISIS to determine when specific courses will be offered.

Art history—two of these:

01H:002 Arts of Africa	3 s.h.
01H:005 Western Art and Culture Before 1400	3 s.h.
01H:006 Western Art and Culture After 1400	3 s.h.
01H:016 Asian Art and Culture	3 s.h.

Art history:

Two art history courses not in the list above, excluding 01H:007 and 01H:029	6 s.h.
--	--------

Foundational studio art—all of these, taken before the 2-D and 3-D courses listed after these:

01A:002 Woodshop Lab (prerequisite for all studio courses)	1 s.h.
01A:003 Basic Drawing (prerequisite for all studio courses)	3 s.h.
01A:004 Design Fundamentals (prerequisite for all studio courses)	3 s.h.

Studio art 3-D courses—two of these:

01C:060 Exploring Forms in Clay I	3 s.h.
01D:021 Problems in Design I: Form and Structure	3 s.h.
01G:084 Introduction to Jewelry and Metal Arts	3 s.h.
01J:090 Intermedia I	3 s.h.
01N:015 Undergraduate Sculpture I	3 s.h.

Studio art 2-D courses—two of these (may include a maximum of one photography course):

01D:090 Graphic Design I	3 s.h.
01F:007 Life Drawing I	3 s.h.
01K:009 Painting I	3 s.h.
01M:011 Introduction to Printmaking	3 s.h.

01L:034 Beginning Photography	3 s.h.
or

01L:036 Beginning Digital Photography

3 s.h.

Electives:

Electives chosen from School of Art and Art History courses

8 s.h.

Art and art history electives must bring the total credit in art history, studio art, and art education to a minimum of 39 s.h.

Transfer Students

Transfer students majoring in art must complete a minimum of 12 s.h. in studio art at The University of Iowa. The 12 s.h. must include work in at least two different studio areas.

Transfer students majoring in art may attend transfer portfolio review and show a portfolio of their art to faculty members. Faculty in the school's 10 studio art areas review transfer students' work in their respective areas in order to determine whether the student's previous work may be accepted as transfer credit and to determine the student's placement level in the School of Art and Art History. Students should plan to show 15 pieces of their best work in their intended major studio art area; they also may show additional work done outside the classroom.

All students with a major in art must complete 01A:004 Design Fundamentals, which includes safety training; transfer credit may not be substituted for that course.

Study Abroad

Students who wish to study abroad must meet with the undergraduate advisor before they depart in order to confirm approval of the courses they plan to take.

Students who take studio art courses abroad must bring their artwork back to campus and present it in a portfolio review, which determines whether the work is equivalent to a course required for the major; this requirement is waived if the study abroad course was taught by a School of Art and Art History faculty member who gave the student a grade for the course.

Students who take art history courses abroad should present the course syllabus to their advisors well in advance of their departure. The advisor asks the head of the art history program to determine whether the study abroad course is equivalent to a course required for the major; if it is, the student is credited with fulfilling the requirement once he or she completes the course with a passing grade.

Bachelor of Fine Arts in Art

The Bachelor of Fine Arts in art requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 62 s.h. of work for the major (art and art history courses). B.F.A. students must meet all requirements for the B.A. major in art and must complete additional studio art courses. They select their major and minor studio art areas from ceramics, graphic design, three-dimensional (3-D) design, drawing, intermedia, jewelry and metal arts, painting, photography, printmaking, and sculpture.

Prospective B.F.A. students may apply to the program after completing at least two semesters of work in a major studio art area but before completing 50 s.h. in art (normally early in the third year). Students are admitted to the B.F.A. through a process called "clearance," which is conducted once each semester. Students who wish to enter the B.F.A. program should consult the faculty in their major studio art area for information about the required portfolio review.

Teacher licensure requirements are the same for B.A. and B.F.A. students; see "B.A. or B.F.A. with Teacher Licensure (Art Education)" below.

REQUIRED COURSE WORK

B.F.A. students in art must earn at least 58 s.h. of credit in courses outside the School of Art and Art History; they may count up to 62 s.h. earned in courses offered by the school (art history, studio art, and art education combined) toward the minimum 120 s.h. required for graduation.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

B.F.A. students must complete all courses required for B.A. students; see "Bachelor of Arts in Art" above. They also must complete the following additional studio art courses.

Three courses, beyond introductory or beginning courses, in the student's major studio art area

One introductory course and one advanced course in the student's first minor studio art area

One introductory course and one advanced course in the student's second minor studio art area

Papermaking, calligraphy, and bookbinding may not be used as major or minor studio art areas.

B.F.A. students in drawing and painting also must take this seminar (does not count toward minor studio art areas):

01F:106 Undergraduate Seminar in Drawing and Painting 3-4 s.h.

B.F.A. students in painting also must complete this sequence:

01K:009 Painting I 3 s.h.

01K:010 Painting II 3 s.h.

01K:049 Advanced Painting 4 s.h.

Students may enroll in additional painting classes.

B.F.A. students must present an exhibition of their studio work, preferably at the School of Art and Art History.

B.A. and B.F.A. with Teacher Licensure (Art Education)

Students majoring in art who are interested in teaching in elementary or secondary schools may earn a B.A. or B.F.A. in art with K-12 teacher licensure through the Art Education Program. Art education requires a broad foundation in formation traditions of studio art, substantive knowledge in art history, and art teacher certification course work.

Applications for admission to the Art Education Program must be submitted to the Teacher Education Program in the College of Education, in care of the Office of Teacher Education and Student Services. Application deadlines are June 15 for fall admission, October 15 for spring admission, and March 15 for summer admission.

B.A. with Teacher Licensure (Art Education)

The Bachelor of Arts with teacher licensure (art education) requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 42 s.h. of work for the major (art and art history courses). Art education students concentrate in studio art and pursue broad-based knowledge in at least four areas of studio art.

REQUIRED COURSE WORK

B.A. students in art education must earn at least 70 s.h. of credit in courses outside the School of Art and Art History; they may count up to 50 s.h. earned in courses offered by the school (art history, studio art, and art education combined) toward the minimum 120 s.h. required for graduation.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The major in art with teacher licensure (art education) requires the following course work.

Art history—two of these (preferably during the first or second year):

01H:002 Arts of Africa 3 s.h.

01H:005 Western Art and Culture Before 1400 3 s.h.

01H:006 Western Art and Culture After 1400 3 s.h.

01H:016 Asian Art and Culture 3 s.h.

Art history—two of these:

01H:001 Art and Visual Culture 3 s.h.

01H:004 Masterpieces: Art and Cultural Paradigms 3 s.h.

01H:008 Themes in Global Art 3 s.h.

01H:010 Tutorial for Majors: Art History as a Discipline 3 s.h.

Any course from 01H:021 through 01H:199, excluding 01H:029

Foundational studio art—all of these:

01A:002 Woodshop Lab 1 s.h.

01A:003 Basic Drawing 3 s.h.

01A:004 Design Fundamentals 3 s.h.

Studio art 3-D courses—both of these:

01C:060 Exploring Forms in Clay I 3 s.h.

01C:061 Exploring Thrown Forms in Clay II 4 s.h.

Studio art 3-D courses—one of these:

01G:084 Introduction to Jewelry and Metal Arts	3 s.h.
01J:090 Intermedia I	3 s.h.
01N:015 Undergraduate Sculpture I	3 s.h.

Studio art 2-D courses—two of these (may include a maximum of one photography course):

01D:090 Graphic Design I	3 s.h.
01F:007 Life Drawing I	3 s.h.
01K:009 Painting I	3 s.h.
01M:011 Introduction to Printmaking	3 s.h.

01L:034 Beginning Photography	3 s.h.
or
01L:036 Beginning Digital Photography	3 s.h.
Electives:

Electives chosen from School of Art and Art History courses	8 s.h.
---	--------

Art and art history electives must bring the total credit in art history, studio art, and art education to a minimum of 42 s.h. Students often select two additional studio art courses in an emphasis area.

B.F.A. with Teacher Licensure (Art Education)

The Bachelor of Fine Arts with teacher licensure (art education) requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 62 s.h. of work for the major (art and art history courses). Art education students concentrate in studio art and pursue broad-based knowledge in at least four areas of studio art. B.F.A. students select their major and minor studio art areas from ceramics, graphic design, three-dimensional (3-D) design, drawing, intermedia, jewelry and metal arts, painting, photography, printmaking, and sculpture.

B.F.A. students in art education typically complete an additional semester of course work.

Prospective B.F.A. students may apply to the program after completing at least two semesters of work in a major studio art area but before completing 50 s.h. in art (normally early in the third year). Students are admitted to the B.F.A. through a process called "clearance," which is conducted once each semester. Students who wish to enter the B.F.A. program should consult the faculty in their major studio art area for information about the required portfolio review.

REQUIRED COURSE WORK

B.F.A. students in art education must earn at least 58 s.h. of credit in courses outside the School of Art and Art History; they may count a maximum of 62 s.h. earned in courses offered by the school (art history, studio art, and art education combined) toward the minimum 120 s.h. required for graduation.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

B.F.A. students in art education must complete all courses required for B.A. students in art education; see "B.A. with Teacher Licensure (Art Education)" above.

They also must complete the following additional studio art courses.

Three courses, beyond introductory or beginning courses, in the student's major studio art area
 One introductory course and one advanced course in the student's first minor studio art area
 One introductory course and one advanced course in the student's second minor studio art area

Papermaking, calligraphy, and bookbinding may not be used as major or minor studio art areas.

B.F.A. students in drawing and painting also must take this seminar (does not count toward minor studio areas):

01F:106 Undergraduate Seminar in Drawing and Painting	3-4 s.h.
---	----------

Before they student teach, B.F.A. students must present an exhibition of their studio work, preferably at the School of Art and Art History.

Transfer Students

Transfer students majoring in art with art education must complete a minimum of 3 s.h. in art history and 12 s.h. in studio art at The University of Iowa. The studio art credit must include work in at least two different studio areas.

Undergraduate transfer students majoring in art must show a portfolio of their art to faculty members before a fall or spring semester begins. The faculty members determine each student's placement in or exemption from the sequence of basic studio courses.

Bachelor of Arts in Art History

The Bachelor of Arts in art history requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 45 s.h. of work for the major (art and art history courses). The history of art is engaged in problems of historical analysis and the interpretation of culture, so the program provides students with a broad background in the humanities consistent with a liberal arts and sciences education. The undergraduate degree program provides students with a strong liberal arts background and prepares them for competitive placement in graduate schools across the country.

As students progress through the program, they become familiar with historical relationships between art objects and society, learn techniques of formal analysis, study patterns of patronage, and absorb methods for interpreting the meaning of paintings, sculptures, and architecture. In the course of their studies, art history majors develop their research abilities and writing skills.

REQUIRED COURSE WORK

B.A. students in art history must earn at least 70 s.h. of credit in courses outside the School of Art and Art History; they may count up to 50 s.h. earned in courses offered by the school (art history, studio art, and art education combined) toward the minimum 120 s.h. required for graduation.

However, students earning two majors or a major and a minor in more than one subject in the School of Art and Art History (e.g., a major in art history and a minor in art) may count up to 64 s.h. of credit in School of Art and Art History courses toward the minimum 120 s.h. required for graduation, and they must earn at least 56 s.h. in courses outside the school.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The major in art history requires the following course work.

Art history—all of these, taken before enrollment in courses numbered 099 and above:

01H:005 Western Art and Culture Before 1400	3 s.h.
01H:006 Western Art and Culture After 1400	3 s.h.
01H:007 Writing About the Visual Arts	3 s.h.

Art history—one of these:

01H:002 Arts of Africa	3 s.h.
01H:016 Asian Art and Culture	3 s.h.

Art history—all of these:

01H:099 Undergraduate Seminar in the History of Art (taken fall of junior or senior year)	3 s.h.
Three courses chosen from those numbered 01H:020 - 01H:098, excluding 01H:029	9 s.h.
Five upper-level courses chosen from those numbered 01H:100 - 01H:199	15 s.h.

Studio art—all students must take this course:

01A:003 Basic Drawing	3 s.h.
-----------------------	--------

Studio art—one of these:

01C:060 Exploring Forms in Clay I	3 s.h.
01F:007 Life Drawing I	3 s.h.
01G:084 Introduction to Jewelry and Metal Arts	3 s.h.
01K:009 Painting I	3 s.h.
01M:011 Introduction to Printmaking	3 s.h.
01N:015 Undergraduate Sculpture I	3 s.h.

Disciplines outside art history (course selection must be approved by the undergraduate advisor):

Courses in at least three of these disciplines: anthropology classics, history, literature, philosophy, political science, religious studies, sociology, or others	12 s.h.

Transfer Students

Transfer students planning to major in art history should meet with the undergraduate advisor to discuss the requirements they may fulfill with transfer courses. Art history transfer courses must be reviewed by the art history division head to determine the student's placement in or exemption from required art history courses.

Study Abroad

Students who wish to study abroad must meet with the undergraduate advisor before they depart in order to confirm approval of the courses they plan to take.

Students who take art history courses abroad should present the course syllabus to their advisors well in advance of their departure. The advisor asks the head of the art history program to determine whether the study abroad course is equivalent to a course required for the major; if it is, the student is credited with fulfilling the requirement once he or she completes the course with a passing grade.

Students who take studio art courses abroad must bring their artwork back to campus and present it in a portfolio review, which determines whether the work is equivalent to a course required for the major; this requirement is waived if the study abroad course was taught by a School of Art and Art History faculty member who gave the student a grade for the course.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan.

B.A. in Art

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least four courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least eight courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least 11 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.F.A. in Art

Admission to the program leading to the B.F.A. in art is limited and depends on the department's evaluation of the student's work. In order to participate in the Four-Year Graduation Plan, students must be admitted to the degree program on schedule as determined by the art advisor.

Before the third semester begins: at least four courses in the major and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least eight courses in the major, and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least 14 courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least 18 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A. in Art History

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least four courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least eight courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least 11 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

School of Art and Art History students who are members of the University of Iowa Honors Program may apply for honors in the art or art history major during the semester before graduation. In order to graduate with honors in art or art history, students must fulfill specific department requirements as described under "Honors in Art" and "Honors in Art History" below.

University of Iowa honors students must maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information about honors study at Iowa).

Honors in Art

Honors students majoring in art must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in the major. In order to earn a degree in art with honors, a student must complete an honors project supervised by a faculty member, prepare a statement of the sources of the studio work, and hold an exhibition of the honors project. The artist's statement can address the history of art, the history of ideas, or a personal philosophy and should be written under the supervision of faculty in the student's studio concentration area. Students must register for 01P:190 Honors in Studio Art (0-3 s.h.).

Honors in Art History

Honors students majoring in art history must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in the major. Students have two options for earning a degree in art history with honors.

Option 1: Students take two upper-division courses with honors designation and complete an extra project, such as an annotated bibliography, a supplemental paper or presentation, or a comparable project endorsed by the instructor. Then students enroll in a third upper-division course appropriate to their honors thesis topic and write the thesis (5,000 to 7,000 words) as part of the course, for an additional 1 s.h. Students register for 01H:190 Honors Research in Art History(arr.).

Option 2: Students research and write an honors thesis of 10,000 to 15,000 words under the direction of an art history faculty member, earning 3 s.h. They register for 01H:190 Honors Research in Art History (arr.). Students work with an art history faculty member as their honors thesis advisor. They must have the thesis advisor's approval before beginning work on their thesis project. The thesis should conform to the Graduate College format for theses; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College in the Graduate College section of the Catalog. The title page must follow the University of Iowa Honors Program format; consult the Honors Program.

Minor in Art

The minor in art requires a minimum of 16 s.h. in art courses, including at least 12 s.h. in courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. The minor must include 01A:003 Basic Drawing (or an equivalent), and 12 s.h. of studio art (one introductory course and one advanced course in each of two studio areas). Students may substitute one art history course for one of the advanced studio courses. Before registering for a course, students must satisfy all prerequisites for the course.

Courses in art education, bookbinding, calligraphy, graphic design, and papermaking, and courses with prefixes 01B and 01P do not count toward the minor in art.

Course work applied toward the minor in art may not be used to satisfy requirements for a major in art or in art history.

Minor in Art History

The minor in art history requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in art history courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. For the minor, courses numbered 01H:021 Introduction to the Art of West Africa and above are considered advanced. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. The minor must include one survey-level course chosen from 01H:002 Arts of Africa, 01H:005 Western Art and Culture Before 1400, 01H:006 Western Art and Culture After 1400, and 01H:016 Asian Art and Culture. Before registering for a course, students must satisfy all prerequisites for the course.

Course work applied toward the minor in art history may not be used to satisfy requirements for a major in art or art history.

Graduate Programs

The School of Art and Art History offers a Master of Arts and a Master of Fine Arts in art, and a Master of Arts and a Doctor of Philosophy in art history. The Master of Arts in art includes an art education option. The school also collaborates with the College of Education to offer an art education subtrack in the Doctor of Philosophy in education.

Master of Arts in Art

The Master of Arts in art requires a minimum of 38 s.h. of graduate credit. The degree is offered with majors in ceramics, design, drawing, intermedia and video art, metalsmithing and jewelry, painting, photography, printmaking, and sculpture.

The required 38 s.h. includes at least 16 s.h. in a major studio area; 8 s.h. in a minor studio area from one of the M.A. majors that offer at least 24 s.h. in studio courses; 3 s.h. in the history and theory of art, excluding readings and directed studies; and 3 s.h. in theory, history, criticism, or philosophy, earned in courses inside or outside of the school.

M.A. students must hold a B.A. or B.F.A. in art equivalent to that offered by The University of Iowa. Undergraduate deficiencies, if any, may be made up concurrently with graduate study but do not count toward the graduate degree requirements.

M.A. students undergo a division-wide review for M.A. candidacy by the faculty during the third semester in residence. All except painting and drawing students must submit a written artist's statement.

M.A. students choose the thesis or nonthesis option in consultation with their area advisor. They may earn 1 s.h. for writing a technical or substantial thesis by registering for 01A:302 M.A. Written Thesis, with approval of the thesis supervisor. Thesis credit earned in an M.A. program is not applicable toward M.F.A. requirements.

Master of Arts in Art, with Art Education

The Master of Arts in art, with art education, requires 38 s.h. of graduate credit. Students must earn 18 s.h. of studio art and art history in a ratio of two to one (either 12 s.h. of graduate credit in studio art and 6 s.h. in art history, or 6 s.h. in studio art and 12 s.h. in art history); 8 s.h. in graduate seminars in art education; and 12 s.h. to be specified after the student begins the program. The degree also requires a written thesis based on research in art education, creative scholarship, or art history.

M.A. students must hold a B.A. or B.F.A. in art equivalent to that offered by The University of Iowa. They also must hold teaching licensure/certification in art. See "Admission" later in this Catalog section.

Art education majors may elect to take art history courses on a satisfactory-unsatisfactory basis.

Master of Fine Arts in Art

The Master of Fine Arts in art requires a minimum of 60 s.h. of graduate credit. The degree is offered with thesis and with majors in ceramics, design, drawing, intermedia and video art, jewelry and metal arts, painting, photography, printmaking, or sculpture. Following completion of the M.A., students may be invited into the M.F.A. Program.

The required 60 s.h. includes at least 24 s.h. in a major studio subject; at least 12 s.h. in a minor studio field selected from the fields listed above; 3 s.h. in art history and theory of art; and 3 s.h. in theory, history, criticism, or philosophy (if not already taken).

M.F.A. students must hold an M.A. in art equivalent to that offered by The University of Iowa. Transfer credit is decided by faculty review.

All students must undergo an M.F.A. committee review. They also must complete a written theses and possibly a studio thesis.

M.F.A. students may earn 1 s.h. for writing a technical or substantial thesis by registering for 01A:304 M.F.A. Written Thesis, with approval of the thesis supervisor. Thesis credit earned in an M.A. program is not applicable toward M.F.A. requirements.

Master of Arts in Art History

The Master of Arts in art history requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit and is offered with thesis. M.A. students are expected to acquire a broad knowledge of art history and to become familiar with major periods and monuments of world art. They also become proficient scholars, receiving training in research methods and theory necessary for subsequent scholarship at the Ph.D. level.

M.A. students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.50. Only one semester of academic probation is allowed. All M.A. candidates, including transfer students, must take at least 24 s.h. in residence at The University of Iowa.

M.A. students in art history must earn a grade of B or higher in semester-long courses (100-level or above) in five of the following 10 distribution fields: African (including Oceanic), architecture, Asian, ancient (3000 B.C.E.-300 C.E.), medieval, Renaissance, Baroque, 18th- and 19th-century European, American (including pre-Columbian, Native American, and African American), and modern/contemporary. These courses must be taken after the B.A. is granted.

M.A. students must complete a substantial thesis that demonstrates their ability to conduct scholarly research and convey ideas in writing appropriately for the discipline and for the student's specialization field.

REQUIRED COURSES

M.A. students in art history must satisfactorily complete 01H:200 History and Methods (3 s.h.) during their first fall semester of enrollment and must register for an art history seminar in their first, second, and third semesters of enrollment. They also must satisfactorily complete 01H:210 Art History Colloquium (1 s.h.) every semester that they are enrolled for 9 s.h. or more; students who register for less than 9 s.h. are strongly encouraged to attend the colloquium, as well.

Courses outside the curriculum of the School of Art and Art History's art history division do not carry art history credit. Cross-referenced courses not taught by art history faculty members also do not carry art history credit.

DIRECTED STUDIES

Directed Studies (01H:300) is designed for graduate students who already have taken one or more advanced courses in a specific art history field. It provides students with an opportunity to work one-to-one with a professor to continue specific research interests developed in lecture courses or seminars, or on topics that eventually may be the subject of a thesis or dissertation. Directed Studies cannot be substituted for a lecture course already offered in the program. Students must discuss their decision to take Directed Studies with the professor involved and have the professor's approval. The Directed Studies topic must be within the professor's range of expertise.

Students meet with their Directed Studies professor once a week. The hours of work and written assignments required for Directed Studies must be equal to a comparable regularly scheduled course. Directed Studies is not available through Guided Correspondence Study.

LANGUAGE REQUIREMENT

M.A. students must demonstrate proficiency in French or German by the end of their third semester. Proficiency is determined by a translation exam administered under the direction of the art history division. Credit earned in language courses does not count toward the degree.

M.A. COMMITTEE

The M.A. committee consists of the student's M.A. thesis advisor and two additional tenured or tenure-track faculty members in art history.

M.A. THESIS

M.A. students must complete a written thesis on a topic chosen from one of the 10 distribution fields (see "Master of Arts in Art History" above). Students register for 01H:302 M.A. Written Thesis and may count 3 s.h. of thesis credit toward graduation. Students choose an M.A. thesis advisor who specializes in their concentration field. Students who wish to concentrate in more than one field must work closely with faculty members in both fields.

FINAL EXAMINATION

The final examination constitutes an oral defense of the written M.A. thesis. The final examination meeting with the M.A. committee normally takes place toward the end of the student's last semester of course work.

Doctor of Philosophy in Art History

The Doctor of Philosophy in art history requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. Ph.D. students are expected to acquire great breadth and depth of knowledge in the discipline of art history, achieve a high level of expertise in a specialized field, and demonstrate professional speaking and writing skills. The program provides them with scholarly challenges, research skills, and mentoring necessary for professional development and successful careers.

Ph.D. students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.50. They may count a maximum of 38 s.h. of work completed for the M.A. toward the Ph.D. Students are allowed only one semester of academic probation.

To establish academic residency, doctoral students must be enrolled full-time (at least 9 s.h.) at The University of Iowa for two semesters beyond their first 24 s.h. of graduate study; or they must enroll for at least 6 s.h. in each of three semesters during which they hold an assistantship of one-quarter-time or more. Resident tuition is assessed for assistantship semesters and adjacent summer sessions.

Ph.D. students major in one of the following 10 distribution fields: African (including Oceanic), architecture, Asian, ancient (3000 B.C.E.-300 C.E.), medieval, Renaissance, Baroque, 18th- and 19th-century European, American (including pre-Columbian, Native American, and African American), and modern/contemporary. Students also minor in two fields. The first minor must be in an art history distribution field that is not contiguous with the major field; the second may be in any art history distribution field or in a relevant discipline outside of art history, subject to the faculty's approval.

Ph.D. students must complete a publishable dissertation that makes an original contribution to the art history discipline and demonstrates evidence of superior understanding of critical issues in the student's chosen specialization field.

For more detailed information, consult the Art and Art History Graduate Bulletin.

REQUIRED COURSES

Ph.D. students must satisfactorily complete 01H:200 History and Methods (3 s.h.), even if they have completed a similar course at another institution (students who have completed the course for a master's degree or other previous work at Iowa are exempt). They must register for an art history seminar in their first three semesters of Ph.D. course work (or in their fifth, sixth, and seventh semesters of graduate study), before the Ph.D. readings course and comprehensive exam. They also must satisfactorily complete 01H:210 Art History Colloquium (1 s.h.) every semester that they are enrolled for 9 s.h. or more; students who register for less than 9 s.h. are strongly encouraged to attend the colloquium, as well.

Up to 6 s.h. of credit for dissertation research may be applied toward the 72 s.h. required for the degree. Courses outside the curriculum of the School of Art and Art History's art history division do not carry art history credit.

DIRECTED STUDIES

Normally, a maximum of 6 s.h. earned in 01H:300 Directed Studies may be applied toward the semester-hour requirement for the Ph.D., although doctoral students may petition the art history faculty for permission to apply up to 9 s.h.

LANGUAGE REQUIREMENT

Students must demonstrate proficiency in French or German for admission to the Ph.D. program. They also must demonstrate proficiency in a second non-English language relevant to their research area by the end of their third semester of Ph.D. work or before their dissertation topic is approved. Proficiency is determined by a translation exam administered under the direction of the art history division. Credit earned in language courses does not count toward the degree.

PH.D. COMMITTEE

The Ph.D. committee consists of the student's faculty mentor, who is responsible for the major field, two members responsible for the two minor fields, and at least two additional members. Of these five, four must be tenured or tenure-track faculty members from the art history division. One must be from outside the division and must be a member of the Graduate College faculty. When appropriate, committees may include additional members.

COMPREHENSIVE EXAMINATION

Upon completion of course requirements, the Ph.D. candidate takes three written comprehensive examinations. The major exam consists of six questions and lasts six hours; the two minor exams each consist of three questions and last three hours. The exams normally are taken on two consecutive days.

The scope of the comprehensive exams is determined in consultation with the candidate's degree committee supervisor and the committee members responsible for the two minor fields.

ORAL COMPREHENSIVE EXAMINATION

Within approximately one month of completing the three written exams, the candidate meets with his or her degree committee for the oral comprehensive examination, which concentrates on questions that arise from the written comprehensive exams.

DISSERTATION PROPOSAL

As soon as possible after completing the comprehensive examinations, the candidate submits a dissertation proposal to his or her degree committee supervisor and subsequently to the degree committee. The committee meets as a group with the candidate to discuss the dissertation proposal and to offer comments and suggestions. (The proposal must be submitted to the committee at least two weeks before the approval meeting.) The proposal includes a 1-2 page abstract, a 10-15 page précis (including a review of the state of the field), and a bibliography.

After the proposal has been approved by the committee, the candidate circulates an abstract to the entire art history faculty. He or she must give a public presentation on the dissertation topic no later than the end of the semester following the degree committee's approval. The presentation is scheduled with the head of art history.

FINAL EXAMINATION

The completion of a written dissertation, which constitutes an original scholarly contribution to the field, and the successful completion of the final examination (the oral defense) of this dissertation fulfill the Ph.D. requirements.

Ph.D. in Education, with Art Education

The Doctor of Philosophy in education, with art education, requires a minimum of 60 s.h. of graduate credit beyond the master's degree. The program gives college teachers and researchers in art education and art supervisors in state departments of education and school systems an opportunity to continue their inquiry and creative work in art history and in studio art.

The program is administered by the College of Education, in cooperation with the School of Art and Art History. Students must apply for admission to the College of Education. Graduates are granted a Doctor of Philosophy in education, with art education subtrack.

The curriculum must be planned with the advisor and must include at least 15 s.h. in the School of Art and Art History, 15 s.h. in art education graduate seminars, 15 s.h. in a related area (e.g., aesthetics, anthropology, higher education, psychology, sociology), and 15 s.h. in thesis and tool courses.

Students must take both oral and written comprehensive examinations. The written examination consists of an in-depth research problem to be completed within 14 days, after which an oral examination on the project is held. The research problem is assigned by the examining committee, and the written portion of the examination is not intended to relate directly to the student's dissertation proposal.

Students also must complete a written dissertation for at least 12 s.h. of credit and are expected to prepare a dissertation proposal and defend it before the dissertation committee. An oral examination on the dissertation is the Ph.D. final examination.

Admission

Prospective graduate students must meet the School of Art and Art History's admission requirements for the specific degree programs they plan to enter. Prospective students must submit application materials to the University's Office of Graduate Admissions and to the specific program they wish to enter. Program-specific application requirements and deadline dates are listed in the appropriate sections below.

All applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Applicants to all art and art history graduate programs must submit the following to the University's Office of Graduate Admissions: a completed graduate application form (one area of interest must be specified on the form); an official copy of all transcripts of undergraduate and/or graduate work completed by the application date; TOEFL scores (if applicable); and the required application fee. Art history applicants also must submit Graduate Record Examination (GRE) scores.

Applicants whose first or official language is not English and whose previous academic degrees were not earned at an English-language institution must score as follows on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL): for studio art applicants, at least 550 (paper-based), 213 (computer-based), or 81 (Internet-based); for art history applicants, at least 600 (paper-based), 250 (computer-based), or 100 (Internet-based).

Deadline dates for submission of materials to the Office of Graduate Admissions are December 15 for art history programs, and February 1 for studio art programs and art education programs; all are for fall admission.

The Office of Graduate Admissions notifies all applicants by mail of admission decisions. Acceptance notification cannot be given over the phone by either the admissions office or the School of Art and Art History.

M.A. and M.F.A. in Art

Applications to the M.A. and M.F.A. programs in studio art, with all supporting materials and requests for financial aid, must be received at the School of Art and Art History and the Office of Graduate Admissions by February 1 for fall admission.

In addition to materials submitted to the Office of Graduate Admissions (see "Admission" above), applicants must submit the following materials to the graduate secretary at the School of Art and Art History: a one-page statement of purpose, official transcripts for all undergraduate and graduate work completed by the application date, three letters of recommendation assessing potential as a graduate student, application for graduate awards (if desired), and application for graduate scholarships and fellowships (if desired). They also must submit one of the following portfolios (portfolios are returned by mail only to applicants who supply return postage.).

Note: CDs should contain 10-20 images measuring 5x7 inches, maximum of 150 DPI, as PDF or PowerPoint files.

Ceramics, design, intermedia and video art, jewelry and metal arts, or painting: 8 slides, CDs, and/or photos of work in the major area; and 2 slides, CDs, or photos of work in a second studio area; CDs or DVDs may be submitted for intermedia.

Drawing: 8 slides, a CD, or photos of drawings, including figure drawings; and 2 slides, CDs, or photos of work in a second studio area.

Photography: 20 images of major field of work on slides, in prints, or on a CD; and 2-3 images in a second area on slides, in photos, or on a CD.

Printmaking: 10-20 images on a CD, or slides with a selection of 4-6 original printed works, sent in a returnable portfolio.

Sculpture: a selection of 20 slides or a CD with at least 10 sculptures or installations (multiview) and a slide of at least two drawings; for kinetic sculptures, a DVD.

Each slide, CD, or DVD must be labeled with the name, title, portfolio medium, size, and approximate date of work; the top should be indicated. An inventory list with the same information should be included. Extreme care is taken in handling all portfolios, but the school cannot be responsible for reimbursement in the event of loss or damage.

Applications and all supporting materials are reviewed by a committee of art and art history faculty from the appropriate area.

M.A. in Art History

Applications to the M.A. program in art history, with all supporting materials and requests for financial aid, must be received at the School of Art and Art History and the Office of Graduate Admissions by December 15 for fall admission in the following year.

Applicants must hold a bachelor's degree, preferably in art history or a related field.

Although exceptions may be made when other components of the application are strong, applicants should have a combined verbal and quantitative score of at least 1200 and an analytical writing score of at least 5 on the Graduate Record Exam (GRE) General Test; and an undergraduate g.p.a. of at least 3.25 on a 4.00 scale.

In addition to materials submitted to the Office of Graduate Admissions (see "Admission" above), the following materials must be submitted to the graduate secretary at the School of Art and Art History: transcripts from all colleges and universities the applicant has attended; three letters of recommendation assessing the applicant's potential for graduate study in art history (sent by the person making the recommendation); and a research paper (preferably from an art history course) or undergraduate thesis that demonstrates the applicant's potential to undertake research in art history.

Applicants also must submit a 1,000-word personal statement describing their intellectual development, academic interests, and career goals; the statement must name the University of Iowa faculty member under whose guidance the applicant hopes to work and tell how that faculty member's area of expertise, or how the art history program, is especially suited to the applicant's interests and goals.

Applicants to graduate programs in art history should consult the Art and Art History Graduate Bulletin on the School of Art and Art History web site.

Ph.D. in Art History

Applications to the Ph.D. program in art history, with all supporting materials and requests for financial aid, must be received at the School of Art and Art History and the Office of Graduate Admissions by December 15 for fall admission in the following year.

Applicants must hold an M.A. in art history or a related graduate degree and must be able to demonstrate proficiency in French and German. Proficiency in a second non-English language relevant to the student's research area is required by the end of the third semester of Ph.D. work; see "Language Requirement" under "Doctor of Philosophy in Art History" above.

Although exceptions may be made when other components of the application are strong, applicants should have a combined verbal and quantitative score of at least 1200 and an analytic writing score of at least 5 on the Graduate Record Exam (GRE) General Test; and a graduate g.p.a. of at least 3.50 on a 4.00 scale.

Students who completed an M.A. at The University of Iowa and who wish to apply for entrance into the Ph.D. program must make a formal application to the program. Applications are evaluated in the context of the entire applicant pool.

In addition to materials submitted to the Office of Graduate Admissions (see "Admission" above), the following materials must be submitted to the graduate secretary at the School of Art and Art History: transcripts from all colleges and universities the applicant has attended; three letters of recommendation, including one from the applicant's M.A. thesis supervisor, assessing the applicant's potential for doctoral study in art history (sent by the person making the recommendation); and a copy of an M.A. thesis or other substantial M.A. research paper.

Applicants also must submit a 1,000-word personal statement describing their purpose in pursuing graduate studies and their intellectual development, academic interests, and career goals; the statement must name the University of Iowa faculty member under whose guidance the applicant hopes to work and how that faculty member's area of expertise, or the art history program, is especially suited to the applicant's interests and goals.

Applicants to graduate programs in art history should consult the Art and Art History Graduate Bulletin on the School of Art and Art History web site.

M.A. in Art Education

Applications to the M.A. program in art education, with all supporting materials and requests for financial aid, must be received at the School of Art and Art History and the Office of Graduate Admissions by February 1 for fall admission.

Applicants to the M.A. program must hold a B.A. or B.F.A. in art equivalent to that offered by The University of Iowa. They also must hold teaching licensure/certification in art.

Applicants with course work deficiencies are required to remedy the deficiencies by taking appropriate courses.

In addition to materials submitted to the Office of Graduate Admissions (see "Admission" above), M.A. applicants must submit the following materials to the graduate secretary at the School of Art and Art History: a term paper or other example of ability to write in the field; a selection of slides or photographs of their creative work in two studio areas; three letters of recommendation assessing their potential for graduate study; and a one-page personal statement describing their purpose for pursuing graduate study.

Ph.D. in Art Education

Applications to the Ph.D. program in art education, with all supporting materials and requests for financial aid, must be received at the College of Education and the Office of Graduate Admissions by February 1 for fall admission.

Applicants to the Ph.D. program must hold an M.A. or M.F.A. in art education from The University of Iowa or an equivalent degree from an accredited college or university. They also must have completed one year of successful teaching experience in an elementary or secondary school.

Applicants with course work deficiencies are required to remedy the deficiencies by taking appropriate courses.

In addition to materials submitted to the Office of Graduate Admissions (see "Admission" above), Ph.D. applicants must submit the following materials to the Art Education Office: a portfolio consisting of 12 colored slide reproductions of their art work and two examples of their written work, which may be new or previous work.

Financial Support

Fellowships, teaching assistantships, research assistantships, and tuition scholarships are awarded to graduate students on the basis of artistic and/or scholarly record.

In the studio programs, financial aid to new students is possible, but most assistantships and scholarships are awarded to graduate students who have been in residence for at least a year. This gives faculty members an opportunity to observe their performance and potential.

Presidential Graduate Fellowships

The Graduate College awards Presidential Graduate Fellowships on the basis of a University-wide competition among incoming Ph.D. students. For information about the fellowships, including nomination and selection criteria and stipends, see Presidential Graduate Fellowship on the Graduate College web site.

Dean's Graduate Fellowships

The Graduate College awards Dean's Graduate Fellowships on the basis of a University-wide competition among graduate students. Criteria for the fellowships are similar to those for the Presidential Graduate Fellowship but are designed to support incoming students who are underrepresented in graduate education. For more information, see Dean's Graduate Fellowship on the Graduate College web site.

Teaching and Research Assistantships

Assistantships are awarded to graduate students on the basis of academic record, promise as scholars or artists, and demonstrated ability to do the job. Quality of performance in one's graduate program at Iowa is generally the major criterion for awarding teaching assistantships. The number of hours of work required depends on the amount of the award.

Scholarships and Fellowships

The School of Art and Art History offers a variety of scholarships and fellowships made possible by contributions from alumni who wish to support promising artists and scholars. These awards are made on the same basis as teaching and research assistantships.

Information and application materials for graduate scholarships and fellowships are included in the admissions package. They also are available from the School of Art and Art History main office in Seashore Hall.

Renewal or reappointment for fellowships and assistantships depends on adequate progress toward the degree (graduate students must accumulate at least 18 s.h. of graduate credit each calendar year and maintain a grade-point average above the required minimum) and satisfactory performance of assistantship duties.

Decisions on assistantships and financial aid generally are made during the latter part of the spring semester for the following academic year. Applications and all relevant materials should be on file by February 1. Applicants should verify the submission date; consult the school's main office.

Student Organizations

The undergraduate Art History Society and the graduate Art History Society sponsor activities for students. The Faculty/Graduate Student Art History Colloquium meets five times each semester to focus on professional development and issues of broad interest in art.

Resources and Facilities

Reference Collections

The art library contains 100,000 volumes, an outstanding periodical collection, and an extensive microfilm and microfiche archive.

The school's Office of Visual Materials contains a rapidly growing collection of 325,000 slides, 30,000 digital images, 350,000 35mm slides, 30,000 mounted photographs, and a video collection.

Museum of Art

The University of Iowa Museum of Art has a significant permanent collection that includes major holdings of 20th century and contemporary art, African and pre-Columbian art, English and American silver, European and American prints, drawings and photographs, and Etruscan, Iranian, and contemporary American ceramics. As well as serving as a resource for research in a wide variety of art history areas, the museum offers a program of exhibitions, lectures, and recitals.

Due to the Iowa River flooding of summer 2008, the museum's collections are being displayed and its events are being held in a variety of other facilities. Learn about current exhibitions and events, and their locations, by visiting the Museum of Art web site.

Interdisciplinary Resources

Colloquia, visiting artists and lecturer programs, and graduate workshops bring visitors to the school and provide open forums for discussion of issues in art and scholarship.

Among the school's major assets is the Project for the Advanced Study of Art and Life in Africa (PASALA), an interdisciplinary program that brings together faculty with international reputations in art history, anthropology, films, history, and literature to offer courses and independent study of art in West, Central, East, and South Africa. The result is a program of unusual breadth and depth of expertise. PASALA is among the most active of such programs in the country, organizing international symposia that discuss significant topical issues and publishing the proceedings in regular issues of Iowa Studies in African Art. PASALA offers scholarships and support for research in Africa and dissertation preparation to outstanding students. A major resource for PASALA is the Stanley Collection of African Art in The University of Iowa Museum of Art.

Art history participates in a collegewide program called Crossing Borders, which offers major financial support to designated graduate student fellows whose dissertation topics involve multiple foreign language areas. Fellows take team-taught seminars in a range of disciplines, with focus on interactions across cultural, regional, or national divides. They help plan an annual convocation, at which they and invited lecturers present their research.

The school also maintains an affiliation with the University's Department of American Studies, providing students with opportunities to study not only the history of American art but a variety of interdisciplinary programs in American history, literature, and politics.

Art Buildings

The School of Art and Art History's permanent buildings are closed while The University of Iowa renovates and rebuilds arts campus facilities that were damaged or destroyed by Iowa River flooding during summer 2008. The school's main office currently is located in Seashore Hall on the University's central campus. Studio classrooms are housed in the Studio Arts Building, on Iowa City's south side. Visit the School of Art and Art History web site and ISIS for information about studio, office, and classroom sites.

The school's administrative center, Art Building West, is undergoing renovation. The building, which opened in 2006, contains art history classrooms, the visual resources office, a gallery, a café, the Art Library, an auditorium, a media theater, a computer laboratory, and studios for graphic design, painting, and digital photography. Designed by architect Steven Holl, Art Building West has won numerous awards for its innovative design, including the 2007 American Institute of Architects Honor Award for Architecture.

Plans are under way for construction of a new building to replace the original Art Building, which was destroyed by the 2008 flooding.

01H:190 Honors Research in Art History arr.

Research and preparation of thesis. Requirements: honors standing.

01H:194 Independent Study in Art History arr.

Advanced work in art history.

01H:199 Topics in Art History 3 s.h.

Varied topics.

Art History, Primarily for Graduate Students

01H:200 History and Methods 3 s.h.

Critical thinking and research; readings in historical development of the discipline, from Renaissance to present; methodological paradigms and trends.

01H:210 Art History Colloquium 1 s.h.

Current topics and research in art history. Repeatable. Requirements: art history graduate standing.

01H:247 Crossing Borders Seminar 2-3 s.h.

Repeatable. Same as 008:231, 013:262, 016:247, 030:242, 035:273, 044:286, 048:247, 113:247, 129:231, 160:247, 181:247.

01H:300 Directed Studies arr.

01H:302 M.A. Written Thesis arr.

01H:310 Seminar: Problems in African Art 2-3 s.h.

Repeatable.

01H:316 Seminar: Problems in Asian Art 3 s.h.

Dialogue between arts and cultures of Asia and those of other major areas; varied research topics, such as Islamic arts in relation to those of Middle Ages and/or Renaissance in Europe; China and/or Japan in relation to Europe and/or the Americas, influences of Western arts and culture on Japan or China since World War II; students determine topics and research strategies in consultation with instructor; project. Repeatable. Requirements: art history experience.

01H:320 Seminar: Problems in Ancient Art	3 s.h.
Ancient contexts of Roman statues and modern methodological issues surrounding their study; monuments considered in tandem with relevant archaeological evidence and textual sources read in translation; historiography of Roman statues; evidence for ancient art market and collectors; roles of statues in civic, religious, funerary, and domestic spaces; cultural forces driving the widespread emulation of earlier Greek artworks. Same as 20E:326.
01H:330 Crossing Borders Proseminar	1 s.h.
Same as 013:260, 016:244, 030:243, 035:271, 044:287, 048:244, 113:248.
01H:340 Seminar: Problems in Medieval Art	3 s.h.
Major issues, methodologies. Repeatable.
01H:345 Seminar: Problems in Renaissance Art	3 s.h.
Special problems, issues. Repeatable.
01H:353 Seminar: Problems in Baroque Art	3 s.h.
Repeatable.
01H:359 Graduate Seminar: Nineteenth-Century Art	3 s.h.
Repeatable.
01H:362 Seminar: Modern/Contemporary Art	3 s.h.
Major issues, methodologies. Repeatable.
01H:366 Seminar: Problems in American Art	3 s.h.
Repeatable.
01H:385 Seminar: Problems in Architectural History	3 s.h.
Key themes, architects, and literature that informs the history of the built environment in varied cultural contexts.
01H:400 Ph.D. Readings	arr.
Repeatable.
01H:402 Ph.D. Thesis	arr.
Repeatable.

Studio Art for Undergraduate and Graduate Students

Courses numbered through 099 are primarily for undergraduates and are not repeatable for credit except where indicated. Some courses numbered 100-199 are repeatable. Courses 01A:003 Basic Drawing and 01A:004 Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all studio courses for art majors.

Fundamentals

01A:002 Woodshop Lab	1 s.h.
Use of woodshop; broad range of standard woodshop equipment; emphasis on safe practices and procedures; basic understanding and knowledge of woodshop; how and why woodshop facilitates and enhances art making and design; laboratory component. Requirements: art major.
01A:003 Basic Drawing	3 s.h.
Two-dimensional visual language, media; space, form; color. Requirements: art major.
01A:004 Design Fundamentals	3 s.h.
Two- and three-dimensional concepts and their relations; working with basic drawing instruments; problems in visual arts; artists' philosophies and techniques. Corequisites: 01A:002. Requirements: art major.
01A:009 Art Student Ambassador Seminar	1 s.h.

Ambassadors provide information about the School of Art and Art History to incoming and visiting students, the University community, and the broader community; conduct tours; meet with students and parents; review curriculum; provide information on opportunities; coordinate events; and develop materials for incoming students.

01A:302 M.A. Written Thesis 1 s.h.

01A:304 M.F.A. Written Thesis 1 s.h.

Elements

01B:001 Elements of Art 3 s.h.

Drawing, composition; selected reading. Requirements: non-art major. GE: Fine Arts.

01B:035 Elements of 3D Design 3 s.h.

Introduction to 3D design using drafting, modeling, and virtual reality software; basic concepts of drafting, planning, and color theory; basic Auto CAD, 3ds Max Studio, Vizard, InDesign software; students design an object to be printed 2D and 3D and a conceptual space to be printed 2D and experienced virtually; student journal and portfolio. Requirements: nonart major.

01B:040 Elements of Jewelry and Metal Arts 3 s.h.

Fundamental 3-D design principles and appreciation of contemporary jewelry and metal art works; techniques and materials in jewelry and metal arts; experimentation with diverse media. Requirements: non-art major.

01B:050 Elements of Intermedia 3 s.h.

Introduction to intermedia for non-art majors; conceptual, interdisciplinary approach to new and emerging art forms, including time-based media, video, collaborative, and community-based projects; research in online networks, web projects. Requirements: non-art major.

01B:051 Elements of Foil Imaging 3 s.h.

Printmaking experience using the Iowa Foil Printer; aesthetic and technical research, documentation in Foil Imaging ... A New Art Form; hands-on opportunity to explore new dimensions of visual expression. Requirements: non-art major.

01B:075 Elements of Digital Photography 3 s.h.

Introduction for non-art majors to history, aesthetics, and practice of photography as a fine art; includes demonstrations, workshops, critiques, final portfolio; photography time outside of class; digital camera required; $100-$150 for materials. Requirements: non-art major.

01B:080 Elements of Printmaking 3 s.h.

GE: Fine Arts.

01B:090 Elements of Sculpture 3 s.h.

Possibilities and definition of 3-D form, including time-based, performance, structural, installation, and kinetic sculpture. Requirements: non-art major. GE: Fine Arts.

01B:184 Vertical Integration of Business and Studio Art 3 s.h.

Integrated hands-on experience in business and advanced technology/equipment practice for metal arts/mixed media; cutting-edge technology and equipment (e.g., CNC wax carving mill, rapid prototyping machine, laser welder, advanced stone setting); commercial aspects of making and selling art, including budgeting, pricing, marketing, display, and working with clients. Taught in collaboration with M.C. Ginsberg Gallery, downtown Iowa City.

Ceramics

Courses 01A:003 Basic Drawing and 01A:004 Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all ceramics courses for art majors; 01B:001 Elements of Art is prerequisite for nonmajors.

01C:060 Exploring Forms in Clay I 3 s.h.

Basic handbuilding methods of forming, firing, glazing clay. Requirements: 01A:003 and 01A:004 for majors; 01B:001 for nonmajors. GE: Fine Arts.

01C:061 Exploring Thrown Forms in Clay II 4 s.h.

Basic wheel-throwing techniques; clay, glaze formulation and preparation in kiln firing. Prerequisites: 01C:060.

01C:170 Advanced Clay Forming III 4 s.h.

Advanced throwing techniques; larger scale, more professional goals; projects may be more sculptural or one of a kind. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 01C:060 and 01C:061.

01C:171 Advanced Clay Forming IV 4 s.h.

Advanced individual projects. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 01C:170.

01C:172 Ceramic Materials and Effects 3-4 s.h.

Empirical, practical methods of glaze and body formulation; effects of various types of kilns and firing atmospheres on glaze materials, clay bodies; digital imaging used for testing and documenting results. Offered fall semesters of even years. Prerequisites: 01C:170.

01C:173 Undergraduate Ceramics Workshop 3-4 s.h.

Advanced undergraduate studio; critiques of student work and electronic portfolio development, visiting artist participation; may include field trips. Prerequisites: 01C:171.

01C:174 Wood Firing Sustainably 4 s.h.

Kiln theory, design, construction methods; may include participation in kiln construction. Offered fall semesters of odd years. Prerequisites: 01C:170.

01C:190 Undergraduate Individual Instruction 1-3 s.h.

Individual instruction in ceramics for advanced students.

01C:270 Graduate Individual Instruction in Ceramics arr.

Repeatable. Requirements: knowledge of clay and glaze computation, and ability to fire kilns.

01C:275 Ceramics Workshop 3-4 s.h.

Advanced graduate studio; critique of student work; visiting artists, field trips. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 01C:171.

Design

Courses 01A:003 Basic Drawing and 01A:004 Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all design courses for art majors; 01B:001 Elements of Art is the prerequisite for nonmajors.

01D:021 Problems in Design I: Form and Structure 3 s.h.

Materials, their formal and structural possibilities. Offered fall semesters. Requirements: 01A:003 and 01A:004 for majors; 01A:004 for nonmajors.

01D:022 Problems in Design II: Form and Function 4 s.h.

How objects are designed and structured; modeling, graphic skills necessary for basic project development. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 01D:021.

01D:023 Basic Drafting 3 s.h.

How to prepare drawings for interior design projects; skills and techniques for translating 3-D design concepts to paper; drafting tools; conventions of notation and line weights and drafting in different scales; basic lettering; orthographic projections (e.g., floor plans, ceiling plans, elevations). Prerequisites: 01A:003 and 01A:004.

01D:025 Introduction to Portfolio Design 4 s.h.

Preparation of presentation boards and portfolio production for print and job application; for students in 3-D design and related areas. Prerequisites: 01A:003 and 01A:004.

01D:064 Introduction to Computer-Aided Design for 3-D Design 4 s.h.

Basic principles of 2-D and 3-D computer-aided drafting; use of AutoCAD software to draw plans, elevations, and sections for objects and interior spaces. Prerequisites: 01A:003, 01A:004, and 01B:035.

01D:070 Introduction to Computer Modeling for 3-D Design 3 s.h.

Basic knowledge and practical technical skills using 3DS Max Studio software; experience creating and manipulating basic forms and working with texture, background, light, and camera viewpoints; basic animation. Requirements: 01A:003 and 01A:004 for majors; 01B:035 for nonmajors.

01D:075 Introduction to Virtual Reality for 3-D Design 3 s.h.

Introduction to Vizard software; design of virtual 3-D space; translation of environments created in 3DS Max software into Vizard software. Corequisites: 01D:070.

01D:082 Introductory Computer Graphic Design 3 s.h.

Macintosh computer as creative tool for graphic design; composition, manipulation, organization of type and image; projects, demonstrations, discussions. Prerequisites: 01A:004 and 01D:028.

01D:090 Graphic Design I 3 s.h.

Basic principles, techniques, and applications of graphic design, typography, composition, visual perception; creative, problem-solving aspects of graphic design. Prerequisites: 01A:003 and 01A:004. Requirements: two art history courses.

01D:100 Typography 4 s.h.

Introduction to letterform and typographic fundamentals; designing with type--attention to composition, hierarchy, historical practice. Corequisites: 01D:090, if not taken as a prerequisite.

01D:110 Web Site Design I 3 s.h.

Designing for the World Wide Web; composition, manipulation, organization of type and images; projects, demonstrations, discussions. Prerequisites: 01D:090 and 01D:100.

01D:120 Graphic Design II 4 s.h.

In-depth study and exploration of graphic design as creative and problem-solving tool of visual communication; translation of ideas and concepts into comprehensible visual language. Prerequisites: 01D:090 and 01D:100.

01D:128 Computer Graphic Design 3 s.h.

Advanced composition, manipulation of image and type; organization and pre-press file management using Macintosh platform. Prerequisites: 01D:028 and 01D:082.

01D:137 Environmental Design I 4 s.h.

Human interaction with the interior and exterior environment. Offered fall semesters of odd years. Prerequisites: 01D:021. Same as 049:158.

01D:140 Web Site Design II 4 s.h.

Continuation of 01D:110; in-depth exploration and study of graphic design principles and their application in online and interactive media; further development of HTML, CSS, other related technologies. Prerequisites: 01D:110 and 01D:120.

01D:141 Interior Design I 3 s.h.

Relationship of interior space to its architecture, environment, human element; color, materials, furnishings, lighting; projects. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 01B:035 and 01D:021.

01D:142 Color for Interior Design 3 s.h.

Use of color for interior spaces; principles of color theory reviewed and applied to 3-D environments; color as a compositional element and psychological tool. Prerequisites: 01D:021.

01D:144 Interior Design II 3 s.h.

Continuation of 01D:141. Offered fall semesters of even years. Prerequisites: 01D:064 and 01D:141.

01D:150 Graphic Design III 4 s.h.

Continuation of 01D:120; graphic design knowledge and skills applied to complex design problems such as visual identity, packaging, information design. Prerequisites: 01D:110 and 01D:120.

01D:160 Problems in Graphic Design	4 s.h.
Design topics; content varies. Prerequisites: 01D:090, 01D:100, and 01D:120.
01D:175 Advanced Typography	3 s.h.
In-depth exploration of typographic principles and experimentation. Prerequisites: 01D:125.
01D:190 Undergraduate Individual Instruction	1-3 s.h.
Individual instruction in design for advanced students.
01D:200 Graduate Graphic Design Workshop	4 s.h.
Complex problems in graphic design; planning, development, organization of integrated design programs. Repeatable.
01D:238 Environmental Design II	3 s.h.
Continuation of 01D:137; design of virtual environments. Repeatable.
01D:240 Individual Instruction in Design	arr.
Repeatable.
01D:249 Advanced Problems in Design	4 s.h.
Special issues and topics in design. Repeatable.

Drawing

Courses 01A:003 Basic Drawing and 01A:004 Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all drawing courses for art majors; 01B:001 Elements of Art is prerequisite for nonmajors.

All B.F.A. students in drawing and painting must take 01F:106 Undergraduate Seminar in Drawing and Painting. Offered fall semesters.

01F:007 Life Drawing I	3 s.h.
Observational drawing of form in its spatial contexts; drawing in varied media; figural as well as nonfigural content. Requirements: 01A:003 and 01A:004 for majors; 01B:001 for nonmajors.
01F:105 Concepts in Drawing	3-4 s.h.
Drawing from topics at the intermediate level; observation, theory, media, form, content; emphasizes personal direction. Prerequisites: 01F:007. Same as 049:157.
01F:106 Undergraduate Seminar in Drawing and Painting	3-4 s.h.
Contemporary issues, practical and professional skills, interdisciplinary concerns, education and career goals. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 01F:105.
01F:109 Advanced Concepts in Drawing	3-4 s.h.
Drawing from topics at the advanced level. Prerequisites: 01F:105.
01F:190 Undergraduate Individual Instruction	1-3 s.h.
Individual instruction in drawing for advanced students.
01F:199 Special Topics in Drawing and Painting	3-4 s.h.
Advanced issues in drawing and painting. Prerequisites: 01F:105.
01F:201 Graduate Drawing	3-4 s.h.
Compositional and conceptual drawing as related to the student's major interest; varied media. Repeatable. Requirements: 6 s.h. of 01F:105.
01F:205 Individual Instruction in Drawing	arr.
Repeatable.

Jewelry and Metal Arts

Courses 01A:003 Basic Drawing and 01A:004 Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all metalsmithing and jewelry courses for art majors; 01B:001 Elements of Art prerequisite for nonmajors.

01G:084 Introduction to Jewelry and Metal Arts 3 s.h.

Fabrication, hammer forming, hydraulic die forming, soldering, riveting, etching, texturing, anodization of aluminum and titanium, stone setting, and patination techniques; creation of jewelry, flatware, and other functional and nonfunctional sculptural objects using varied metals and other materials; emphasis on creativity, learning, and basic metalworking techniques. Requirements: 01A:003 and 01A:004 for majors; 01A:003 for nonmajors.

01G:185 Intermediate Jewelry and Metal Arts 4 s.h.

Applications with casting (gold, silver, bronze), enameling, and stone setting, processes may be combined; photo etching and 3-D computer modeling; trends in craft; emphasis on development of student's personal aesthetics, learning, and refining technical skills in metalworking and jewelry techniques. Prerequisites: 01G:084.

01G:186 Advanced Jewelry and Metal Arts 4 s.h.

Electroforming; production of hollow copper structures through prolonged electroplating on a nonmetallic form (typically wax) with a conductive coating; metal-forming techniques (e.g., raising and fold forming); emphasis on development of personal aesthetics, learning, and refining technical skills in metalworking and jewelry techniques. Prerequisites: 01G:084.

01G:187 Mixed Media Workshop 3-4 s.h.

Free exploration of all media and materials, including found objects; creation of conceptual and/or functional mixed media objects, jewelry, sculptures, installation pieces; pioneering use of new materials, development of new techniques, creation of diverse innovative art works. Prerequisites: 01G:084. Recommendations: 01G:185 and 01G:186.

01G:188 Graduate Workshop 4 s.h.

Independent studio work; personal aesthetics, conceptual and technical skills developed and refined; creation of work without boundaries of media; portfolios, exhibitions, professional goals. Prerequisites: 01G:185, 01G:186, and 01G:187.

01G:190 Undergraduate Individual Instruction 1-3 s.h.

Individual instruction in metalsmithing and jewelry for advanced students.

01G:240 Individual Instruction in Metalsmithing and Jewelry arr.

Intermedia

Courses 01A:003 Basic Drawing and 01A:004 Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all intermedia courses for art majors; 01B:001 Elements of Art is prerequisite for nonmajors.

01J:090 Intermedia I 3 s.h.

Interdisciplinary focus; emphasis on conceptual, installation, video, time-based media, performance art. Requirements: 01A:003 and 01A:004 for art majors.

01J:091 Intermedia II 4 s.h.

Interdisciplinary investigation of materials and concepts in relation to time-based media, performance, video, installation; individual and collaborative projects. Prerequisites: 01J:090.

01J:100 Intermedia Topics 3-4 s.h.

Areas of intermedia practice, including installation, video, Internet-based production, sound design, image and text, new media. Prerequisites: 01J:090.

3-4 s.h.

Concepts, techniques; Renaissance and contemporary ideas, methods; emphasis on metal plate printing, including etching, drypoint, engraving, softground, aquatint. Requirements: 01A:003 and 01A:004 for majors; 01B:001 for nonmajors.

01M:024 Undergraduate Relief

3-4 s.h.

Relief printmaking techniques. Requirements: 01A:003 and 01A:004 for majors, 01B:001 for nonmajors.

01M:031 Undergraduate Lithography

3-4 s.h.

Fundamental techniques, characteristics of lithography; basic direct drawing, processing, printing of stone and plate images in black and white. Prerequisites: 01F:007.

01M:042 Undergraduate Monoprint

3-4 s.h.

Concepts and techniques in using traditional and alternative printmaking media to produce unique, matrix generated prints. Prerequisites: 01M:021.

01M:121 Intaglio

4 s.h.

Concepts, techniques; traditional through contemporary ideas, methods; emphasis on metal plate printing, including etching, drypoint, engraving, softground, aquatint. Requirements: 01M:011 or BFA candidacy in any area or graduate standing.

01M:122 Advanced Intaglio and Relief

3-4 s.h.

Concepts and techniques of intaglio/relief; etching, engraving, drypoint, softground, aquatint, woodcut, linocut, color printing; emphasis on advanced methods, personal vision. Prerequisites: 01M:021, and 01M:024 or 01M:031.

01M:124 Relief

3-4 s.h.

Concepts and techniques of relief printmaking, including woodcut, linocut, relief etching, black-and-white and color printing methods; traditional and contemporary approaches; for graduate students with no printmaking experience. Requirements: 01A:003, 01A:004, and 01M:011 for majors; 01B:001 and 01B:080 for nonmajors; or BFA candidacy in any area; or graduate standing.

01M:131 Lithography

4 s.h.

Technical, aesthetic characteristics; basic direct drawing, processing, printing of stone and plate images in black and white. Requirements: 01A:003, 01A:004, and 01M:011 for art majors; 01B:001 and 01B:080 for nonmajors; or BFA candidacy in any area; or graduate standing.

01M:132 Advanced Lithography

3-4 s.h.

Technical, aesthetic aspects; emphasis on color printing, indirect image-forming and photo-mechanical processes. Prerequisites: 01M:011 and 01M:131.

01M:134 Silkscreen

4 s.h.

Photographic, nonphotographic stencil techniques for silkscreen printing. Requirements: 01A:003, 01A:004, and 01M:011 for art majors; 01B:001 and 01B:080 for nonmajors; or BFA candidacy in any area; or graduate standing.

01M:142 Monoprint

3-4 s.h.

Concepts, techniques in use of traditional and alternative printmaking media to produce unique, matrix-generated prints. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 01M:021, and 01M:024 or 01M:031.

01M:151 Foil Imaging I

4 s.h.

Participation in development of a new art form involving creation of original prints and other works of art using hot stamped foil and Iowa Foil Printer. Requirements: 01A:003, 01A:004, and 01M:011 for art majors; 01B:001 and 01B:080 for nonmajors; or BFA candidacy in any area; or graduate standing.

01M:152 Foil Imaging II

4 s.h.

Advanced aesthetic and technical research for creation of original prints and other works of fine art using hot stamped foil and other printmaking techniques; individual instruction. Prerequisites: 01M:151.

01M:160 Special Workshop in Printmaking

2-3 s.h.

Issues, themes, or studio practice.

01M:170 Foil Workshop in Printmaking

2 s.h.

Hands-on experience creating foil prints; workshop format. One or two weeks. Offered summer session.

01M:190 Undergraduate Individual Instruction

1-3 s.h.

Individual instruction in printmaking for advanced students.

01M:250 Individual Instruction in Printmaking

arr.

Repeatable.

01M:260 Graduate Print Workshop

3-4 s.h.

Contemporary issues in printmaking; emphasis on development of personal work and independent studio practice through group critiques, special research projects, work in all print media. Repeatable.

Sculpture

Courses 01A:003 Basic Drawing and 01A:004 Design Fundamentals are prerequisites for all sculpture courses for art majors; 01B:001 Elements of Art is prerequisite for nonmajors.

01N:015 Undergraduate Sculpture I

3 s.h.

Basic sculptural concepts, processes, investigation of materials such as plaster, clay, wood; emphasis on developing formal language, acquiring basic skills; spatial, conceptual, technical issues. Requirements: 01A:003 and 01A:004 for majors; 01A:003 for nonmajors. GE: Fine Arts.

01N:016 Undergraduate Sculpture II

3-4 s.h.

Continuation of 01N:015; form, materials, processes, woodcarving, welding, concrete carving and direct application; expanding concept development; contemporary sculptural formats, collaborative process. Prerequisites: 01N:015.

01N:017 Welding and Fabrication

1 s.h.

Metal welding, cutting, forging, and fabrication. Requirements: 01A:003 and 01A:004 for majors; 01B:001 or 01B:090 for nonmajors.

01N:019 Sculpture Workshop

3-4 s.h.

Critiques with focus on concept and form development; new processes. Prerequisites: 01N:015.

01N:140 Topics in Sculpture

4 s.h.

Projects, reading; specialized conceptual forms and issues in contemporary sculpture, such as public art, installation. Prerequisites: 01N:015.

01N:150 Figure Modeling

3-4 s.h.

Exploration of the human form with live model; clay on a wire armature, portrait modeling, relief. Prerequisites: 01N:015.

4 s.h.

Exploration of human form in clay on wire armature, from live model; portrait modeling and relief human anatomy; human form in full scale on welded armature. Prerequisites: 01F:007 and 01N:150.

01N:160 Mold Making

3-4 s.h.

All aspects of mold making--plaster, rubber, silicone; technical preparation for 01N:165. Prerequisites: 01N:015 and 01N:016.

01N:165 Casting in Hot Metal

3-4 s.h.

Foundry work, wax working, mold making, and processes. Prerequisites: 01N:016 and 01N:160.

01N:190 Undergraduate Individual Instruction

1-3 s.h.

Individual instruction in sculpture for advanced students.

01N:260 Individual Instruction in Sculpture

arr.

Repeatable.

01N:264 Graduate Sculpture Workshop

3-4 s.h.

Critique seminar with readings for graduate sculptors and nonsculpture graduate students. Repeatable.

Interdepartmental Courses*01P:029 First-Year Seminar

1 s.h.

Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

01P:030 Art and Design Learning Community

1 s.h.

Varied studio art-related techniques taught in workshop setting. Saturdays and evenings. Requirements: first-year standing in Art and Design Learning Community.

01P:090 Issues in Contemporary Art

3 s.h.

Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures

Chair: Marc P. Armstrong

Professors: W. South Coblin, Chuanren Ke, Philip Lutgendorf, Margaret H. Mills, Frederick Smith (Religious Studies/Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures), Russell Valentino

Professors emeriti: Vadim Kreyd, Norman Luxenburg, Ray J. Parrott Jr., Helene A. Scriabine

Associate professors: Robert W. Leutner, Maureen Robertson (Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Helen Shen

Associate professor emeritus: Christopher A. Wertz

Assistant professors: Jennifer Feeley, Ikuko Yuasa

Assistant professor emerita: Miriam J. Gelfand

Lecturers: Irina Kostina, Kuriko Mizuno, Jitka Sonkova, Xiaoyuan Zhao

Undergraduate degrees: B.A. in Asian Languages and Literature, Russian

Undergraduate nondegree programs: Minor in Asian Languages, Russian

Graduate degrees: M.A. in Asian Civilizations, Russian

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~asll/>

The Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures offers instruction in languages of Asia and eastern Europe as well as in the literatures, civilizations, and cultures of the regions. In addition to offering undergraduate and graduate degrees, the department welcomes students from across the University to enroll in courses that complement their degree programs or that satisfy personal interests.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts in Asian languages and literature and in Russian, a minor in Asian languages, and a minor in Russian. The B.A. in Asian languages and literature is offered with four tracks: Chinese, Hindi, Japanese, and Sanskrit.

The major in Asian languages and literature is intended for students who wish to concentrate on one of the language and literature programs offered by the department. Students interested in Asian studies may add a second major by pursuing a Bachelor of Arts in international studies with an emphasis in Asian studies; see International Studies in the Catalog.

The major in Asian languages and literature offers students the opportunity to develop advanced skills in an Asian language while they study the people, literatures, and cultures of Asia. Many students find that they can combine an Asian languages and literature major conveniently with a major in international studies, history, political science, art history, religion, sociology, journalism, business, anthropology, or other disciplines.

Graduates have found careers in education, government, communications, business, and other fields in the United States and abroad. The program also provides excellent background for advanced study in a variety of fields in the humanities and social sciences and for professional schools, such as law and business.

The Russian major trains students in both written and spoken Russian and in Russian literature, culture, and civilization. The department encourages students to pursue a second major (e.g., global health, history, linguistics, political science) and to develop their interests in related or complementary fields. Students interested in focusing on a broader interdisciplinary understanding of the region may pursue a second major in International Studies.

Training in Russian is often an important asset to careers in the natural and physical sciences, engineering, medicine, business, journalism, library and information science, and the social and military sciences. It also may be appropriate preparation for study of law or international relations as well as Slavic languages and literatures, comparative literature, and other humanistic disciplines.

Some governmental agencies are interested in job candidates who have advanced training in Russian; these agencies give preference to applicants who combine strong language proficiency with a well-rounded background in area studies. Students who develop an exceptional facility with the Russian language may pursue careers in literary and technical translation and interpretation.

Bachelor of Arts in Asian Languages and Literature

The Bachelor of Arts in Asian languages and literature requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 30-34 s.h. of work for the major. Students choose one of four tracks: Chinese, Hindi, Japanese, or Sanskrit. Required credit for the major depends on choice of track; requirements for each track are listed below. Transfer work is accepted to satisfy some requirements of the major, but at least half of the semester hours of advanced work required for the major must be earned at The University of Iowa. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

A list of advanced courses is available from the department.

Sanskrit track students are urged to fulfill the General Education Program historical perspectives requirement (3 s.h.) by completing 016:007 Civilizations of Asia: South Asia.

Bachelor of Arts in Russian

The Bachelor of Arts in Russian requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 31 s.h. of work for the major earned in advanced Russian courses. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The major in Russian requires the following courses.

One of these:

041:109 Beginning Composition and Conversation I	4 s.h.
041:110 Beginning Composition and Conversation II	4 s.h.

Both of these sequences:

041:111-041:112 Third-Year Russian I-II	8 s.h.
041:113-041:114 Fourth-Year Russian I-II	8 s.h.

Four of these (Russian/East European culture):

041:168 Twentieth-Century Czech Authors	3 s.h.

Students may substitute one of the following Slavic language two-course sequences for one of the four required Russian/East European culture courses (see list above). Availability of Croatian and Polish language courses varies.

041:141-041:142 First-Year Czech I-II	8 s.h.
041:143-041:144 Second-Year Czech I-II	8 s.h.
041:181-041:182 First-Year Croatian I-II	8 s.h.
041:183-041:184 Second-Year Croatian I-II	8 s.h.

Students majoring in Russian are urged to choose elective courses in economics, geography, history, political science, global health, and international studies. Nearly every avenue of professional training and employment requires a solid background in Russian area studies. For example, criteria for U.S. government employment include substantive knowledge in history, economics, political science, sociological disciplines, scientific specialties, demography, military-related skills, and in some cases cultural and religious background. In-depth knowledge of literature or linguistics without other substantive background may be of limited practical use in gaining employment.

B.A. with Teacher Licensure

Teacher Licensure in Chinese and Japanese

Chinese and Japanese majors interested in licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must successfully complete the requirements for a major, or the equivalent, plus designated pedagogy and linguistics courses in the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures. In addition, students must be admitted to the College of Education's foreign language Teacher Education Program. Several courses in the College of Education are required, as is one semester of student teaching, taken in the senior year. Contact the College of Education's Department of Teaching and Learning for more information.

Students who plan to use a Chinese or Japanese minor to teach at the elementary and/or secondary level must contact the College of Education for requirements.

Teacher Licensure in Russian

Russian majors interested in licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must successfully complete the requirements for a major in Russian and must be admitted to the College of Education's foreign language Teacher Education Program. Several courses in the College of Education are required, as is one semester of student teaching in the senior year. All students in the program have the option of earning a K-12 endorsement to teach Russian along with the bachelor's degree. For information about the foreign languages Teacher Education Program and graduate programs in foreign language education, contact the Department of Teaching and Learning (College of Education).

Students who plan to use a Russian minor to teach at the elementary and/or secondary level must contact the College of Education for requirements.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

B.A. in Asian Languages and Literature

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Before the third semester begins: for students in Chinese and Japanese tracks, language work begun (students in the Hindi and Sanskrit tracks may begin language work in their sophomore year) and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least first-year language competency and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least second-year language competency and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least third-year, first-semester language competency and one additional course in the major (two additional courses in the Japanese track)

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A. in Russian

Before the third semester begins: competence in first-year Russian and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: competence in second-year Russian and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: competence in third-year Russian, an additional course in the major, and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester: competence in fourth-year Russian and two more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Honors in Asian Languages and Literature

Students who maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 are encouraged to enroll in the University of Iowa Honors Program. With consent of the department chair and a faculty sponsor (an Asian specialist from any department), students register for 039:191 Honors Tutorial and 039:195 Senior Honors Thesis. To receive a B.A. with honors, students must complete an acceptable thesis based on original research.

Honors in Russian

Russian majors with junior or senior standing, a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in Russian, and a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 may enroll in the honors program in Russian. An extensive reading program with discussions, regular reports, and a semester paper constitute each honors work unit of 3 s.h. Students may take up to 9 s.h. of honors in Russian. Contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information about honors study at Iowa.

Minor in Asian Languages

The minor in Asian languages requires a minimum of 15 s.h. (or 14 s.h. for the Hindi emphasis), including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may earn the minor with an emphasis in Chinese, Hindi, Japanese, or Sanskrit. Course work for each emphasis is as follows.

Students with a Chinese emphasis must complete 039:115 Third-Year Chinese: First Semester and 039:116 Third-Year Chinese: Second Semester, 039:128 Fourth-Year Chinese: First Semester and 039:129 Fourth-Year Chinese: Second Semester, and one course chosen from 039:141 Chinese Literature: Poetry, 039:142 Chinese Literature: Prose, 039:173 Transnational Chinese Cinemas, or 039:180 Modern Chinese Writers.

Students with a Hindi emphasis may complete the advanced course requirement with 11 s.h., and the minor with a total of 14 s.h. The courses 039:123 First-Year Hindi: First Semester and 039:124 First-Year Hindi: Second Semester do not count as advanced courses for the minor.

Students with a Japanese emphasis must choose one of the advanced courses from literature, culture, or linguistics courses. A list of courses approved for the minor is available from the department.

Students with a Sanskrit emphasis must complete at least 12 s.h. of advanced courses chosen from 039:111 First-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester, 039:112 Second-Year Sanskrit: First Semester, 039:113 Second-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester, 039:186 Third-Year Sanskrit: First Semester, 039:187 Third-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester, and 039:216 Individual Sanskrit for Advanced Students. They may not count 039:110 First-Year Sanskrit: First Semester as an advanced course for the minor.

Minor in Russian

The minor in Russian requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in Russian, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count a maximum of 3 s.h. taught in English toward the minor. The department recommends that students choose 100-level courses for the minor, such as the sequences 041:109 Beginning Composition and Conversation I and 041:110 Beginning Composition and Conversation II, 041:111 Third-Year Russian I and 041:112 Third-Year Russian II, and 041:113 Fourth-Year Russian I and 041:114 Fourth-Year Russian II.

Courses for Nonmajors

The department offers several opportunities for students who wish to study the languages of Asia, South Asia, and eastern Europe. Language study is available in Chinese, Croatian, Czech, Hindi, Japanese, Korean, Russian, Sanskrit, and Uzbek.

Students who have had experience with Japanese or Russian should take the Japanese or Russian Foreign Language Placement Test, offered during summer orientation programs and at other times during the year by Evaluation and Examination Service. The tests help determine the level at which a student should begin Japanese or Russian language study at The University of Iowa. Students with backgrounds in Chinese, Hindi, Korean, or Sanskrit may receive individual evaluations from the department.

The department also offers survey courses in Russian literature and culture, a monograph course on Tolstoy and Dostoevsky, and courses on women in Russian society, Russia today, and Russian and Slavic civilization and folklore, all taught in English.

Foreign Language and General Education

The department offers course sequences that students may use to fulfill the foreign language requirement of the General Education Program. Sequences are available in Chinese, Hindi, Japanese, Korean, Russian, and Sanskrit.

CHINESE

The following sequence fulfills the General Education foreign language requirement and is most appropriate for students who have no background in Chinese.

039:008 First-Year Chinese: First Semester	5 s.h.
039:009 First-Year Chinese: Second Semester	5 s.h.
039:105 Second-Year Chinese: First Semester	5 s.h.
039:106 Second-Year Chinese: Second Semester	5 s.h.

Students who have participated in 165:814 Iowa in Tianjin after completing 039:008 and 039:009, and students from Chinese-speaking families who perform exceptionally well in 039:008 and 039:009, may substitute 039:107 Accelerated Second-Year Chinese: First Semester and 039:114 Accelerated Second-Year Chinese: Second Semester for 039:105 and 039:106 in the sequence above. Students who have taken 039:107 and/or 039:114 should not enroll in 039:105 and/or 039:106.

High school students, part-time University of Iowa students, and full-time UI students who do not plan to satisfy the General Education foreign language requirement with Chinese may wish to take the following sequence of courses (none of these are approved for General Education in foreign language), followed by 039:105 and 039:106.

039:003 Beginning Chinese I	3 s.h.
039:004 Beginning Chinese II	3 s.h.
039:010 Beginning Chinese III	3 s.h.
039:011 Beginning Chinese IV	3 s.h.

Additional course work is available, including advanced Chinese, classical Chinese, and business Chinese.

HINDI

The following sequence fulfills the General Education foreign language requirement. Additional courses are available.

039:123 First-Year Hindi: First Semester	5 s.h.
039:124 First-Year Hindi: Second Semester	5 s.h.
039:126 Second-Year Hindi: First Semester	4 s.h.
039:127 Second-Year Hindi: Second Semester	4 s.h.

JAPANESE

The following sequence fulfills the General Education foreign language requirement and is appropriate for students who have not studied Japanese.

39J:010 First-Year Japanese: First Semester	5 s.h.
39J:012 First-Year Japanese: Second Semester	5 s.h.
39J:101 Second-Year Japanese: First Semester	4-5 s.h.
39J:102 Second-Year Japanese: Second Semester	4-5 s.h.

Students with some prior study of Japanese should substitute 39J:011 Elementary Japanese: Review for 39J:010 in the sequence above in order to fulfill the General Education foreign language requirement. Additional course work is available, including classical Japanese.

KOREAN

The following sequence leads to elementary/intermediate proficiency in Korean.

039:040 First-Year Korean: First Semester	4 s.h.
039:041 First-Year Korean: Second Semester	4 s.h.
039:042 Second-Year Korean: First Semester	4 s.h.
039:043 Second-Year Korean: Second Semester	4 s.h.

Students who complete 039:043 may request recognition of their proficiency and may fulfill the General Education foreign language requirement; contact the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures.

RUSSIAN

Students with no background in Russian should begin their study with 041:001 First-Year Russian I. The following sequence fulfills the General Education foreign language requirement.

041:001 First-Year Russian I	4 s.h.
041:002 First-Year Russian II	4 s.h.
041:003 Second-Year Russian I	4 s.h.
041:004 Second-Year Russian II	4 s.h.

SANSKRIT

The following sequence fulfills the General Education foreign language requirement. Additional courses are available.

039:110 First-Year Sanskrit: First Semester	4 s.h.
039:111 First-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester	4 s.h.
039:112 Second-Year Sanskrit: First Semester	3 s.h.
039:113 Second-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester	3 s.h.

Certificate in International Business

Students pursuing a B.A. in Asian languages and literature or in Russian may be interested in earning the Certificate in International Business, which is offered jointly by the Henry B. Tippie College of Business and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. The certificate offers a wide range of electives, permitting undergraduate students to tailor the program to their individual interests and to complement their majors. The certificate has a foreign language requirement, which students of Chinese, Japanese, Hindi, or Russian are likely to satisfy while completing the requirements for their major. It also includes courses in international business, relations, and institutions as well as area studies courses. For more information, see International Business in the Catalog.

Graduate Programs

The Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures offers a Master of Arts in Asian civilizations and in Russian. The department is not accepting graduate students in Russian for 2010-11.

The program prepares students for doctoral study in a variety of disciplines. The program is also of interest to students with nonacademic career plans for whom graduate-level work in an Asian language and culture would be useful. Students in professional programs are encouraged to consider working concurrently toward a degree in Asian civilizations. Application materials are available from the department, as is specific information on program tracks (Hindi language and literature; Sanskrit language and literature; South Asian studies; Chinese literature and culture; Chinese linguistics; teaching Chinese as a foreign language; interdisciplinary Chinese studies; teaching Japanese as a foreign language; Japanese studies; and interdisciplinary Japanese studies).

Master of Arts in Asian Civilizations

The Master of Arts in Asian Civilizations requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit, including 24 s.h. earned in residence at The University of Iowa. All students must maintain a g.p.a. of 3.00 or higher. Detailed information on degree requirements is sent to all applicants.

By the end of the first semester in residence, students propose a study plan developed in consultation with their advisor and in accordance with guidelines for specializations within the program.

By the end of the final semester in residence, students are expected to demonstrate, either by departmental examination or the successful completion of courses at the appropriate level, advanced competence in Chinese, Japanese, Hindi, or Sanskrit, defined generally as corresponding to the fourth-year level of language course work in Chinese or Japanese and the third-year level in Hindi and Sanskrit.

Admission

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog. The Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures requires a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 for regular admission and a g.p.a. of at least 2.75 for conditional admission.

Applicants must submit a statement of purpose, a research paper written in English, three letters of recommendation, and GRE General Test scores. Applicants whose first language is not English must score at least 590 (paper-based), 243 (computer-based), or 97 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a foreign language (TOEFL).

Both international and U.S. graduate applications requesting financial support for the following academic year are due February 1. All other applications are accepted until April 15 for fall admission and October 1 for spring admission.

Study Abroad

The department strongly urges its students to seek opportunities for summer language study and study abroad to accelerate the language acquisition process. The University's memberships in the American Institute of Indian Studies and the China Cooperative Language and Study Programs consortium help facilitate students' access to quality international programs in India and China. The government of the People's Republic of China offers scholarships for two students to live and study in Mainland China each year.

The UI-Nanzan Exchange allows Iowa students to pay Iowa tuition, room, and board while attending the Center for Japanese Studies at Nanzan University in Nagoya, Japan. There also is a cooperative agreement with the Landour Language School in the Himalayan foothills of India. The South Asian Studies Program has launched a new study abroad program in Mysore and Bangalore, India, where students have the opportunity to study a variety of aspects of traditional and modern Indian civilization.

Iowa students participate in summer, semester, or academic year programs in Russian under the auspices of the American Council of Teachers of Russian (ACTR), the association that directs academic language training programs in the cities of Moscow, St. Petersburg, and Vladimir.

Many students participate in summer, semester-long, and year-long study abroad programs in India, China, and Japan offered through other U.S. universities. In many cases credit is transferable, and it is possible for a student to study abroad and still complete the Four-Year Graduation Plan. There are many resources available for funding research and study abroad. It also may be possible for students to apply University of Iowa financial aid to their study abroad programs.

Contact the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures or the Office for Study Abroad for more information.

Summer Study, Internships

The department offers an intensive course of language study (second year) each summer in which students complete the equivalent of one academic year of study (equivalent of one course for each of two semesters, totaling 8 s.h.). Scholarships are available for summer intensive Russian.

Students are encouraged to enrich their programs of study through internships designed to combine work experience in Asia or the United States with study or research projects. The University's Pomerantz Career Center keeps a list of internships.

Activities

Student Associations

Students have many opportunities to enrich their studies in Asian languages and literature while living in Iowa City. The University sponsors student associations for students from many Asian countries, including mainland China, Japan, Korea, India, Pakistan, and Taiwan. All University of Iowa students are welcome to join. Various international community groups sponsor cultural events and holiday celebrations throughout the year.

International Crossroads Community

The International Crossroads Community, located in Hillcrest Residence Hall, welcomes both American and international students who wish to broaden their knowledge of international issues and foreign languages and cultures. Its programs include weekly language dinners with students and faculty, public festivals and celebrations of cultural holidays, educational presentations on topics such as study abroad and international careers, and music and theater performances. The community's Japanese House is a focal point for activities among resident and nonresident students and the Japanese Student Association.

Facilities

Language Media Center

The University's Language Media Center provides facilities for language learning, teaching, and research. Equipment in the center includes state-of-the-art computer, audio, and video facilities as well as standard and short-wave radios, tape and cassette recorders, record players, and soundproof recording rooms. An electronic classroom, a soundproof workroom, and a library of tape, disc, and cassette recordings also are available.

University of Iowa Libraries

Since 1960 the University of Iowa Libraries has routinely acquired most American titles in Asian studies and selected overseas scholarly publications in English and other Western languages. The Main Library's Asian collection includes approximately 80,000 volumes in Asian languages and about 140,000 Western-language volumes on Asian subjects. Since 1975, the University has been a member of the Library of Congress Foreign Currency Exchange Program for Indian books and periodicals. The library's nonprint media collection includes a growing number of Asian feature films. A Chinese-Japanese-Korean computer terminal gives students and faculty access to the growing Research Libraries Information Network database in Asian languages.

Financial Support

Undergraduate and graduate students have access to the following financial aid and scholarship resources. Contact the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures for application information.

Cheng/Liu Scholarship: Undergraduate and graduate students currently majoring in Chinese in the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures at The University of Iowa may apply for the Cheng/Liu Scholarship. The award can be used for summer Chinese language study.

Fairall Scholarship: Undergraduate or graduate majors who have attended and/or graduated from Iowa elementary or secondary schools may be nominated by the department to receive a Fairall Scholarship. Preference is given to Japanese studies students. Applications are available late spring, with scholarships to be awarded the following fall semester.

Foreign language and area studies fellowships: Only U.S. citizens are eligible. Graduate students combining work in Asian languages at an advanced level with interdisciplinary or professional programs may apply. The award is offered by International Programs for academic year and summer language study.

Graduate assistantships: The department offers teaching assistantships for graduate students in the program. All applicants to graduate study in the program receive information on applying for an assistantship. Assistantships are awarded each spring for the following academic year.

Graduate international research: Opportunities for funding research abroad include Stanley Fellowships for Graduate Student Research Abroad, CIREH Research Scholarships in International Health, Fulbright Grants, and Foreign Language Area Scholarships.

Summer language scholarships: Currently enrolled undergraduate and graduate students may compete for a Stanley-University of Iowa Foundation Support Organization Summer Language Scholarship, to be used for intensive summer language study in Chinese, Hindi, Japanese, or Sanskrit. Eight to ten awards of $2,000-$2,500 are made each summer. Applications are due March 1.

Support for undergraduate study abroad: Opportunities for undergraduates to study abroad include the Presidential Scholarships for Study Abroad and the Stanley Scholarships for International Research and Study.

Political, social, and cultural developments of Japanese feudalism; feature films, fiction. Same as 16W:173.

39J:175 Japan--U.S. Relations 3 s.h.

Political, social, economic, and cultural developments in Japan mid-19th to late-20th century. Same as 16W:175.

Slavic Culture and Civilization

041:102 Russian Literature in Translation 1860-1917 3 s.h.

Survey of major works, figures, and trends of 19th- and 20th-century Russian literature; age of the Russian novel; development of short fiction, drama, poetry of the Silver Age. Same as 048:107.

041:104 Health Care and Health Reforms in Russia 3 s.h.

Societal changes and their continuing effect on the Russian health care system since 1991; guest lectures from public health, nursing, medicine, cultural anthropology. Same as 152:170.

041:108 Special Readings arr.

Russian-language materials determined by student and instructor. Requirements: 16 s.h. of Russian language instruction.

041:126 Cult Films of the Last Soviet Generation 3 s.h.

Same as 048:126.

041:134 Forbidden Masterpieces: Russian and Czech Authors Who Changed History 3 s.h.

Examination of 20th-century literature written by authors fighting for the freedom of their nations, often suppressed, banned, imprisoned, or even stripped of their citizenship by the totalitarian communist governments; film screenings; works and films that made serious political statements, often at great risk to the artists involved, that influenced political changes. Taught in English.

041:155 Tolstoy and Dostoevsky 3-4 s.h.

Tolstoy's War and Peace, Anna Karenina; Dostoevsky's Crime and Punishment, The Brothers Karamazov, and short stories. Taught in English. Same as 008:155.

041:156 Invitation to Nabokov 3 s.h.

Nabokov's works and his writings on Russian literature. Same as 008:156, 048:156.

041:160 Women in Russian Society 3 s.h.

Historical developments that have shaped women's roles in contemporary Russian society; readings in cultural history, political science, autobiographical and fictional literature, contemporary film. Taught in English.

041:164 Topics in Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies arr.

Same as 048:164.

041:165 West and East: Women in the Slavic World 3 s.h.

Roles of women in two Slavic countries--Islamic Republic of Dagestan in Russia, and the Czech Republic--using approaches from the social sciences and humanities; Christian/Catholic traditions in the western Slavic country (i.e., Czechoslovakia/Czech Republic) and Islamic influences in eastern parts of Russia; analysis of women's egalitarian roles in socialist societies of 1980s, the impact of the major political, economic, and social transitions on women's lives in 1990s.

041:168 Twentieth-Century Czech Authors 3 s.h.

Twentieth-century prose literature of Czechoslovakia; philosophical works of Capek, Hrabal, Kundera, Klima, Havel. Taught in English. Same as 048:154.

041:180 Literature and Translation 3 s.h.

Translation in the broadest sense; originality, authority, authorship, accuracy, ownership, audience; issues problematizing differences between medium and message. Same as 048:180, 160:180.

041:189 Russian Thinkers 3 s.h.

Same as 026:184, 048:189.

041:190 Readings in Russian Literature 3 s.h.

Readings of poetry and prose by Russian authors. Requirements: third-year Russian.

041:195 Russian Translation Workshop 3 s.h.

Current training for professional work in translation and interpretation; concurrent activities, such as localization (adaptation of products or services to cultural, legal, linguistic, and technical requirements of specific locales), proofreading, editing, comparative analysis of English and Russian, rewriting, and so forth; consecutive, sight, simultaneous modes of interpretation; written proficiency in translation; contrastive grammar. Requirements: third-year standing in Russian language.

041:196 Russian Translation Workshop II 3 s.h.

Single presentation of source language material. Prerequisites: 041:195.

Primarily for Graduate Students

Asian Culture, Linguistics, Pedagogy, Individual Study

039:200 Second Language Acquisition Research and Theory I 3 s.h.

Theories regarding success and failure in acquisition of second or subsequent languages; research, issues. Same as 009:237, 035:201, 164:201, 39J:201.

039:201 Second Language Acquisition Research and Theory II 3 s.h.

Continuation of 164:201. Prerequisites: 164:201. Same as 035:202, 164:202.

039:202 Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language I: Theories/Research 3 s.h.

Research, theory on acquisition of Chinese as a non-native language. Same as 164:281.

039:203 Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language II 3 s.h.

Multiple levels of major Chinese textbooks, curricular organizational schemes, language programs, communicative language instruction; development of supplementary materials for a University of Iowa Chinese course. Same as 164:282.

039:204 Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language III 3 s.h.

Development, application of technological teaching/learning materials; emphasis on designing computer-based materials that increase learner interaction in contextualized cultural environments.

039:205 Analysis of L1 and L2 Data 3 s.h.

Issues in qualitative and quantitative analysis of first- and second-language data; data collection, analytical frameworks and approaches. Prerequisites: 164:201. Same as 164:205.

039:207 Sociolinguistics 3 s.h.

Topics such as discourse and conversation analyses, linguistic pragmatics, linguistic variations, issues of language and gender. Prerequisites: 103:100. Same as 164:207.

039:208 Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language IV 3 s.h.

Overview of goals, concepts, principles, research, and issues in assessment and testing of Chinese as a foreign language. Same as 164:274.

039:209 Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language V 3 s.h.

Seminar on research design; for M.A. students planning to write a thesis or project, or graduate students seeking knowledge in designing qualitative or quantitative studies. Prerequisites: 07P:143 and 039:202. Same as 164:275.

039:210 Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language VI: Pedagogical/Research Project 3 s.h.

Participation in Chinese as a Foreign Language material development projects under instructor's guidance.

039:214 Individual Korean for Advanced Students arr.

Korea's modern/traditional culture, history, and current social issues; reading, translating authentic articles. Prerequisites: 039:151.

039:215 Individual Chinese for Advanced Students arr.

Research, translation projects. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 039:129.

039:216 Individual Sanskrit for Advanced Students arr.

Research, translation projects. Repeatable. Requirements: fourth-year proficiency.

039:217 Individual Hindi for Advanced Students arr.

Readings in medieval and modern Hindi. Repeatable.

039:223 Topics in Second Language Acquisition: Listening 3 s.h.

Theory, pedagogy, research, and assessment in second language listening. Same as 164:223.

039:234 Principles of Teaching and Learning Foreign Languages 3 s.h.

Same as 009:234, 013:221, 041:234.

039:235 Seminar: South Asian Religion 3 s.h.

Topics in South Asian religions. Same as 032:235.

039:237 Seminar: East Asian Religion 3 s.h.

Emphasis on China and/or Japan. Same as 032:237.

039:239 Seminar in Chinese Linguistics: Historical Phonology 3 s.h.

Topics in Chinese historical phonology. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 039:139.

039:240 Seminar in Chinese Fiction 3 s.h.

Novels, novelettes; 16th to 18th centuries (Ming and Qing periods). Requirements: ability to read original texts. Same as 048:233.

039:241 Seminar in Chinese Literature arr.

Requirements: two years of modern Chinese and one year of classical Chinese. Same as 048:441.

039:250 South Asian Research Seminar arr.

Faculty and student research. Repeatable.

039:258 Readings in Chinese History arr.

Same as 016:292.

039:291 M.A. Thesis arr.

Offered fall semesters.

039:292 M.A. Thesis arr.

Offered spring semesters.

039:304 Special Topics in Asian Cinema

3 s.h.

Key issues, movements, periods, or figures in East or South Asian cinema. Repeatable. Same as 048:304.

Japanese Culture, Linguistics, Pedagogy, Individual Study*39J:200 Japanese Linguistics

3 s.h.

Japanese language as linguistic system; basic linguistic terminology; sound systems, grammar, meanings, usages.

Prerequisites: 39J:122.

39J:201 Second Language Acquisition Research and Theory I

3 s.h.

Theories regarding success and failure in acquisition of second or subsequent languages; research, issues. Same as 009:237, 035:201, 039:200, 164:201.

39J:202 Japanese as a Foreign Language: Practical Applications

3 s.h.

Instructional methodology, curriculum, and material design; hands-on experience. Prerequisites: 39J:122. Same as 164:276.

39J:203 Advanced Japanese Pedagogy

3 s.h.

Instructional methods and management issues relevant to teaching Japanese language at advanced levels.

Prerequisites: 39J:202. Same as 164:222.

39J:204 Practicum in Teaching Japanese as a Foreign Language

1-3 s.h.

Teaching apprenticeship guided and supervised by a faculty member skilled in University curriculum and instruction.

39J:215 Individual Japanese for Advanced Students

arr.

Repeatable.

39J:239 Special Topics in Japanese Linguistics

3 s.h.

Topics in applied linguistics and language pedagogy related to Japanese language. Same as 164:228.

39J:245 Seminar in Japanese Literature

3 s.h.

Repeatable. Requirements: three years of Japanese.

39J:251 Readings in Modern Japanese

3 s.h.

Readings in modern Japanese. Repeatable.

Bachelor of Liberal Studies

Coordinator: Dian Gottlob

Undergraduate degree: B.L.S.

Web site: http://www.continuetolearn.uiowa.edu/ccp/blsbas/bls\_introduction.htm

The Bachelor of Liberal Studies (B.L.S.) is designed for students who wish to complete a bachelor's degree by distance education. The B.L.S. is a general undergraduate degree without a traditional academic major. Students work with their academic advisors to structure programs that meet their individual objectives.

B.L.S. students may plan programs designed to help them advance in their chosen careers, begin new careers, or prepare for graduate or professional study. Students who have specific career goals or advanced degree programs in mind should learn what educational background they will need in order to achieve their goals, and they should include appropriate course work in their B.L.S. programs.

Students may earn credit toward the degree through several types of courses, including Saturday & Evening Classes, web-based Guided Independent Study courses, semester-based web courses, extension courses at sites throughout Iowa, and regular session courses. Courses from any of the three Board of Regents, State of Iowa, universities may be applied toward the degree, as may appropriate courses from other accredited institutions.

B.L.S. students may not earn minors.

For application information, see "Admission" below.

The B.L.S. is awarded by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and is administered by the Division of Continuing Education.

Bachelor of Liberal Studies

The Bachelor of Liberal Studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., and is intended to be completed entirely by distance education. Students must earn at least 30 s.h. of credit toward the degree in University of Iowa courses after admission to the B.L.S. program. They must earn at least 60 s.h. of the minimum 120 s.h. at four-year colleges, including 45 s.h. in course work defined as upper-level. For the B.L.S., University of Iowa courses are considered upper-level if they are numbered 100 and above. Some courses numbered below 100 may be considered upper-level for the B.L.S.; for a list of these courses, contact Distance Education.

B.L.S. students are required to complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Students complete at least 12 s.h. of credit in three of the following five distribution areas (total of at least 36 s.h.). In each distribution area, 6 of the required 12 s.h. must be earned in upper-level courses.

Humanities (e.g., literature, history, philosophy, religion)

Communication and arts (e.g., journalism, speech, drama, art, music, writing)

Natural sciences and mathematics (e.g., geology, biology, statistics, computer science)

Social sciences (e.g., geography, psychology, economics, political science, anthropology)

Professional fields (e.g., business, education, nursing, social work, library science)

Students must maintain a cumulative g.p.a. of 2.00 or higher in all course work applied toward the degree, all course work completed after admission to the program, and all upper-level course work.

All College of Liberal Arts and Sciences policies regarding pass/nonpass and satisfactory/fail grading, academic standards, and so forth apply to B.L.S. students. See the CLAS Student Academic Handbook.

Admission

Individuals who wish to earn a B.L.S. must apply formally for admission to the program. Prospective students should contact the Distance Education office before applying.

The B.L.S. is designed for students who need to earn a bachelor's degree by distance education. Individuals who have access to the full range of the University's on-campus daytime classes should seek admission to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences in order to earn a degree with a major.

B.L.S. application requirements vary depending on educational background.

New applicants to The University of Iowa must have 60 s.h. of approved transfer credit and a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50. They also must have satisfied the following high school course requirements: four years of English/language arts, two years of a single foreign language, three years of science, three years of social studies, two years of algebra, and one year of geometry.

Former University of Iowa students applying for reentry must have a total of 60 s.h. of University of Iowa and approved transfer credit and a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 on all University of Iowa course work or all college course work completed.

Applicants who hold an Associate of Arts (A.A.) degree from an Iowa community college or from Waldorf College must have a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 and are considered to have satisfied all General Education Program requirements except foreign language.

Applicants who hold an A.A. from Black Hawk College (Illinois) must have a g.p.a. of at least 2.25 and are considered to have satisfied all General Education Program requirements except foreign language.

Applicants who hold an A.A. from another institution must have 60 s.h. of approved transfer credit and a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50. They also must have satisfied the following high school course requirements: four years of English/language arts, two years of a single foreign language, three years of science, three years of social studies, two years of algebra, and one year of geometry. Transfer credit is evaluated course by course.

Applicants who have a total of 24-60 s.h. of University of Iowa and approved transfer credit and a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50 are admitted to the University on liberal-studies-interest status. When they complete 60 s.h. and have a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 on all college course work completed, they become eligible for admission to the B.L.S. program.

Contact Distance Education for more information about the Bachelor of Liberal Studies.

Biochemistry

Head: Charles M. Brenner

Professors: Charles M. Brenner, John E. Donelson, Pamela Geyer, George Giudice, Bryce V. Plapp, David H. Price, Peter Rubenstein, Madeline A. Shea, Lori L. Wallrath, Daniel L. Weeks, Ronald Weigel, Marc S. Wold

Professors emeriti: Arthur Arnone, Thomas W. Conway, Alice B. Fulton, Rex Montgomery, Arthur A. Spector, Earle Stellwagen, Charles A. Swenson

Adjunct professors: Theresa Gioannini, Nancy C. Stellwagen, Ramaswamy Subramanian, Joseph Walder, Liping Yu

Associate professors: John Dagle, Adrian Elcock, M. Todd Washington

Assistant professors: Sheila A. Baker, Heather L. Bartlett, Kris DeMali, Ernesto Fuentes, Shahram Khademi

Lecturer: Elisabeth Swain

Undergraduate degrees: B.A., B.S. in Biochemistry

Graduate degrees: M.S., Ph.D. in Biochemistry

Web site: <http://www.biochem.uiowa.edu/>

Biochemistry is the study of the basic chemical processes that occur in all living systems. It is one of the most active sciences, and it provides a foundation for other biosciences.

Biochemists generally work in laboratories and/or classrooms. Those with a bachelor's degree are often employed as research assistants in industry, government, education, and health service, or in secondary school teaching, for which licensure is required.

Biochemists with advanced degrees—usually a doctorate—pursue teaching, research, and/or administrative careers in universities, medical schools, hospitals, private research agencies, government laboratories, biotechnology companies, and in food, drug, cosmetics, chemical, petroleum, and allied industries.

The Department of Biochemistry offers degree programs for undergraduates and for graduate students and administers the academic curriculum at both levels. The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences grants undergraduate degrees in biochemistry and oversees undergraduate academic policy relating to the student record. The Graduate College grants graduate degrees in biochemistry.

Undergraduate Programs

The Department of Biochemistry offers a Bachelor of Science and a Bachelor of Arts in biochemistry.

Students choose advanced science electives to supplement biochemical studies or to satisfy requirements of a double major or a minor in another discipline. In order to count science electives numbered below 100 toward a degree in biochemistry, students must have their advisor's approval.

Transfer credit for biochemistry courses requires the approval of an undergraduate advisor in biochemistry.

Students, especially those in the B.A. program, may include courses from other disciplines, such as business, pre-law, psychology, or journalism. This prepares them for one of the many vocations on which biochemistry has an impact.

Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Science in biochemistry requires a total of 120 s.h., including 73 s.h. of work for the major. The program prepares students to work in positions that require a mastery of general biochemistry. It is also excellent preparation for graduate study in biochemistry and related sciences or for study toward a professional degree in the health sciences.

The B.S. major in biochemistry requires the following course work. Biochemistry students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

All of these:

002:010-002:011 Principles of Biology I-II	8 s.h.
004:011-004:012 Principles of Chemistry I-II	8 s.h.
22M:025-22M:026 Calculus I-II	8 s.h.
029:081-029:082 Introductory Physics I-II	8 s.h.
099:101 Technical Communication in Biochemistry	1 s.h.
099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I	3 s.h.
099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II	3 s.h.
099:140 Experimental Biochemistry	4 s.h.
099:155 Research, Independent Study (required of all honors students)	6 s.h.
Advanced science electives, chosen in consultation with advisor	9 s.h.

One of these sequences:

004:121-004:122 Organic Chemistry I-II	6 s.h.
--	--------

004:123-004:124 Organic Chemistry I for Majors - Organic Chemistry II for Majors (preferred) 6 s.h.

Two of these:

004:131 Physical Chemistry I	3 s.h.
004:132 Physical Chemistry II	3 s.h.
099:241 Biophysical Chemistry I	3 s.h.
099:242 Biophysical Chemistry II	3 s.h.

One of these:

004:141 Organic Chemistry Laboratory	3 s.h.
004:142 Organic Chemistry Laboratory for Majors (preferred)	3 s.h.

Students may register for 099:155 Research, Independent Study only if they have earned an average grade of B or higher in 099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I, 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II, and 099:140 Experimental Biochemistry and a grade of B-minus or higher in each 099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I, 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II, and 099:140 Experimental Biochemistry; or have consent of advisor and instructor. Students may register for 099:115 Undergraduate Independent Study any time.

Students are encouraged to begin research by taking 099:115 Undergraduate Independent Study (may be taken for a total of 6 s.h.). There are no prerequisites. Students may arrange independently to take this course, or they may request assistance from an undergraduate advisor.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in biochemistry requires a total of 120 s.h., including 57 s.h. of work for the major. The B.A. major requires the following course work. Biochemistry students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

All of these:

002:010-002:011 Principles of Biology I-II	8 s.h.
004:011-004:012 Principles of Chemistry I-II	8 s.h.
22M:025-22M:026 Calculus I-II	8 s.h.
029:011-029:012 College Physics I-II	8 s.h.
099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I	3 s.h.
099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II	3 s.h.
099:140 Experimental Biochemistry	4 s.h.
Advanced science electives, chosen in consultation with advisor	6 s.h.

One of these sequences:

004:121-004:122 Organic Chemistry I-II	6 s.h.
004:123-004:124 Organic Chemistry I for Majors - Organic Chemistry II for Majors (preferred)	6 s.h.

One of these:

004:131 Physical Chemistry I	3 s.h.
004:132 Physical Chemistry II	3 s.h.
099:241 Biophysical Chemistry I	3 s.h.
099:242 Biophysical Chemistry II	3 s.h.

In addition, B.A. students intending to go on to advanced degrees in the biological or health sciences are advised to include 4 s.h. or more of 099:115 Undergraduate Independent Study or 099:155 Research, Independent Study (senior research) in their programs.

B.A. or B.S. with Teacher Licensure

Biochemistry majors, especially those in the B.A. program, may qualify for teacher licensure by taking additional courses in teacher education. Consult the College of Education for details.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Bachelor of Science

Before the third semester begins: 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I and 004:012 Principles of Chemistry II, 22M:025 Calculus I and 22M:026 Calculus II, and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: the courses listed above, plus 002:010 Principles of Biology I and 002:011 Principles of Biology II; 004:121 Organic Chemistry I and 004:122 Organic Chemistry II, and 004:141 Organic Chemistry Laboratory; and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: the courses listed above, plus 029:081 Introductory Physics I and 029:082 Introductory Physics II, 099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I, 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II, 099:101 Technical Communication in Biochemistry, and 099:140 Experimental Biochemistry, two science electives, and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: the courses listed above, plus 004:131 Physical Chemistry I or 004:132 Physical Chemistry II or 099:241 Biophysical Chemistry I or 099:242 Biophysical Chemistry II, a science elective, and at least 3 s.h. of 099:155 Research, Independent Study

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Bachelor of Arts

Before the third semester begins: 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I and 004:012 Principles of Chemistry II; math through 22M:026 Calculus II or above; and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: the courses listed above, plus 002:010 Principles of Biology I and 002:011 Principles of Biology II, 004:121 Organic Chemistry I and 004:122 Organic Chemistry II, and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: the courses listed above, plus 029:011 College Physics I and 029:012 College Physics II, 099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I, 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II, and 099:140 Experimental Biochemistry, two science electives, and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: the courses listed above, plus 004:131 Physical Chemistry I or 004:132 Physical Chemistry II or 099:241 Biophysical Chemistry I or 099:242 Biophysical Chemistry II, and a science elective

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Qualified students may earn an honors degree in biochemistry. They must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). Honors students in biochemistry must complete 099:155 Research, Independent Study. They must present their research results in a report written in the form of a journal article and in an oral report presented at a special open departmental seminar.

Graduate Program

The Department of Biochemistry offers a Master of Science and a Doctor of Philosophy in biochemistry. Students admitted to the graduate program usually pursue the Ph.D. Qualified students may pursue a combined program leading to the M.D./Ph.D. (Medical Scientist Training Program).

Master of Science

The Master of Science in biochemistry requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit, thesis research, and a thesis. See "Doctor of Philosophy" for information about the graduate curriculum.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in biochemistry requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The focus of the graduate program is on the individual student.

The 72 s.h. required for the degree includes 34 s.h. of course work and 38 s.h. of research credit. Students may take courses that enhance their educational goals. All Ph.D. students take the following 19 s.h. of course work; they choose an additional 13 s.h. from courses offered by the Department of Biochemistry and other University of Iowa departments.

099:261 Research Techniques (first-year laboratory rotation)	1-5 s.h.
650:270 Principles of Scholarly Integrity	0-1 s.h.
Biophysical chemistry (students typically earn 6 s.h.)	3 s.h.
Molecular or cellular biology (students typically earn 6-8 s.h.)	4 s.h.
Graduate seminar	3 s.h.

The following is a typical first-year curriculum.

First semester:

099:243 Biophysical Chemistry Module 1	1 s.h.
099:245 Biophysical Chemistry Module 2	1 s.h.
099:247 Biophysical Chemistry Module 3	1 s.h.
099:261 Research Techniques	1-5 s.h.
156:201 Fundamentals of Gene Expression	1 s.h.
156:202 Fundamentals of Protein Regulation	1 s.h.
156:203 Fundamentals of Dynamic Cell Processes	1 s.h.
156:204 Biostatistics for Biomedical Research	1 s.h.
156:265 Biosciences Critical Thinking and Communication	2 s.h.
650:270 Principles of Scholarly Integrity	0-1 s.h.

Second semester:

099:226 Enzyme Kinetics and Bioorganic Mechanisms	1-2 s.h.
099:246 Biophysical Chemistry Module 5	1 s.h.
099:248 Biophysical Chemistry Module 6	1 s.h.
099:261 Research Techniques	1-5 s.h.
142:215 Transcription and Multifunctional Regulation by RNA	1 s.h.
142:216 Chromatin Structure and Disease	1 s.h.
142:217 Cancer, Epigenetics, and Genetic Manipulations in Mice	1 s.h.
156:205 Practical Bioinformatics	1 s.h.
156:265 Biosciences Critical Thinking and Communication	2 s.h.

099:282 Seminar	0-1 s.h.
-----------------	----------

or

156:265 Biosciences Critical Thinking and Communication	2 s.h.
---	--------

Once students are promoted to the second year of study, they choose research laboratories for Ph.D. thesis research and begin their thesis projects. They take courses that supplement their interests and preparation, including the following.

099:282 Seminar	1 s.h.
099:292 Research Biochemistry	arr.
Graduate-level science electives	6 s.h.

Students take the comprehensive examination before the end of June in their second year, after which they are admitted formally to degree candidacy and begin to concentrate on thesis research. The program culminates in successful defense of completed thesis work before an examining committee.

In addition to meeting these requirements and those of the Graduate College, students are expected, as part of their training, to assist in teaching biochemistry for one semester.

Throughout the program, students are associated with faculty-directed research groups. They receive close personal attention from the biochemistry faculty members who serve as research advisors.

Admission

The graduate program in biochemistry is flexible enough to accommodate students with bachelor's degrees in any of the biological, biochemical, or physical sciences. Appropriate preparation includes one-year, college-level courses in organic and physical chemistry, biology, physics, and mathematics through calculus. Students are expected to have had one or more introductory courses in biochemistry.

Applicants must have an undergraduate g.p.a. of at least 3.00 and must submit acceptable verbal, quantitative, and analytical scores on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test. Applicants are encouraged to submit their scores on the GRE Subject Test in Chemistry; Biology; or Biochemistry, Cell, and Molecular Biology.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Financial Support

Students admitted to the Ph.D. program in biochemistry routinely receive a stipend and tuition support.

Research

The department's current research interests include protein structure and function, protein folding, DNA bending, complex carbohydrate structure and function, chromatin, regulation of gene expression, mechanisms of transcription and replication, enzyme reaction mechanisms, intracellular signaling, differentiation, and membrane determinants of cell shape and motility. Visit the Department of Biochemistry web site for details.

Facilities

The Department of Biochemistry is located on the University of Iowa health sciences campus, where it has administrative, research, and teaching facilities in the Bowen Science Building. Departmental research groups also are located in the adjacent Medical Education and Research Facility and in other research facilities.

The University of Iowa maintains a number of central research support facilities and equipment that promote campuswide interactions between research groups. These include the facilities for electron and confocal microscopy, fermentation, image analysis, high field NMR, high resolution mass spectrometry, and academic computing (through Information Technology Services). Carver College of Medicine research facilities are available to biochemistry researchers for nuclear magnetic resonance spectroscopy, flow cytometry, DNA synthesis, tissue culture hybridoma, gene transfer, X-ray crystallography analysis, and transgenic and gene targeting.

Individual faculty research laboratories are well-equipped for modern research, and there are many common-use laboratories, including instrument rooms, a reading room, cold rooms, tissue culture areas, preparation rooms, and a stockroom. Research is supported by office staff, stockroom supervisors, and a purchasing agent.

Together, the department and the central support facilities provide virtually all of the equipment required for modern biochemical research. Examples of such equipment include analytical and preparative ultracentrifuges; fluorescence, optical rotatory dispersion, high-field NMR, and rapid kinetic instruments; tissue culture rooms, gas chromatographs, preparative high performance liquid chromatographs, liquid scintillation counters, electrophoresis equipment, instrumentation for protein X-ray crystallography and microcalorimetry, automated DNA sequencers, and facilities for microarray analysis.

The department maintains a reading room stocked with primary books and journals used by biochemists. The Hardin Library for the Health Sciences is a large, complete library located on the health sciences campus. Excellent resources also are provided by branches of the University of Iowa Libraries and by computer access to bibliographic retrieval services.

Biochemistry Courses

099:001 Orientation and Introduction to the Field of Biochemistry

0 s.h.

Biochemistry and its application to other areas of basic sciences; biochemical studies, research, careers.

099:101 Technical Communication in Biochemistry

1 s.h.

Practical aspects of writing formal scientific papers and giving oral presentations on technical topics. Prerequisites: 099:120 or 099:130 or 099:140.

099:110 Biochemistry

3 s.h.

Basic concepts in modern biochemistry and molecular biology; understanding of life processes in molecular terms. Requirements: one year each of college-level biology and chemistry. Recommendations: one semester of organic chemistry.

099:115 Undergraduate Independent Study

arr.

Experience in an active biochemistry research lab, learning and performing experiments relevant to the current projects in that lab; exploration of scientific literature on topic of interest; arranged in advance by student and faculty member. Requirements: first-year, sophomore, or junior standing.

099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I

3 s.h.

Physical and chemical foundations of biochemistry, structure of biological molecules, catalysis, transport, and oxidative reactions in biology; first course of two-semester sequence that concludes with 099:130. Requirements: two semesters of general chemistry and one of organic chemistry. Recommendations: 002:010, 002:011, and an additional organic chemistry course.

099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II

3 s.h.

Carbohydrate biosynthesis, lipid metabolism, hormone regulation and integration of metabolism, signal transduction, genes and chromosomes, DNA replication and repair, transcription, RNA processing, protein translation and regulation of gene expression. Prerequisites: 099:120.

099:140 Experimental Biochemistry

2 s.h.

Use of modern instruments and techniques to fractionate, identify, and characterize constituents of biochemical systems. Prerequisites: 099:120. Requirements: two semesters of general chemistry and one semester of organic chemistry.

099:155 Research, Independent Study

2-6 s.h.

Independent study and research in areas of interest to the student; arranged in advance by student and biochemistry honors advisor. Requirements: grade of B- or higher in 099:120; and g.p.a. of B or higher in 099:120, 099:130, and 099:140.

099:161 Biochemistry for Dental Students

4 s.h.

Biochemical concepts and application to clinical problems. Prerequisites: 004:121. Requirements: D.D.S. enrollment. Recommendations: 004:122.

099:162 Biochemistry for Pharmacy Students

4 s.h.

Biochemical concepts and application to clinical problems. Prerequisites: 004:121. Requirements: Pharm.D. enrollment. Recommendations: 004:122.

099:163 Medical Biochemistry

4 s.h.

Biochemical concepts and application to clinical problems. Requirements: M.D. enrollment.

099:164 Biochemistry for Physician Assistant Students

3 s.h.

Aspects of general biochemistry necessary for understanding the biochemical basis of human disease; analysis of appropriate clinical cases. Prerequisites: 099:110.

099:226 Enzyme Kinetics and Bioorganic Mechanisms

1-2 s.h.

Principles and applications of steady-state and transient enzyme kinetics; mechanisms of catalysis of biochemical reactions. Prerequisites: 099:120.

099:237 Topics in Biochemistry and Molecular Biology

1-2 s.h.

Current topics in transcriptional regulation, chromatin structure and function, cell signaling pathways, regulation of development, molecular mechanisms of disease. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 156:201.

099:238 Topics in Biophysical Chemistry

1-2 s.h.

Current topics in structure and function of membranes or proteins; DNA-protein interactions; computational biochemistry; applications of NMR, X-ray diffraction, calorimetry, or spectroscopy. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 099:241 or 099:242.

099:241 Biophysical Chemistry I

3 s.h.

Experimental and theoretical techniques used to study structure and function of biological macromolecules; UV/Vis absorbance, circular dichroism, and fluorescence spectroscopies; X-ray crystallography of proteins, ultracentrifugation; application of thermodynamics to understand protein folding and protein-ligand binding. Requirements: one year of biochemistry. Recommendations: physical chemistry course.

- 099:242 Biophysical Chemistry II 3 s.h.
Enzyme kinetics and mechanisms, macromolecular interactions and dynamics, NMR spectroscopy.
- 099:243 Biophysical Chemistry Module 1 1 s.h.
Overview of basic principles and practices of biophysical chemistry; biophysical approaches to studying proteins and nucleic acids; critical evaluation of structural models derived from X-ray crystallography and NMR, quantification of molecular interactions; taken alone or as part of 099:241. Requirements: introductory course in biochemistry.
- 099:244 Biophysical Chemistry Module 4 1 s.h.
Principles and applications of steady-state and transient enzyme kinetics; mechanisms of catalysis of biochemical reactions.
- 099:245 Biophysical Chemistry Module 2 1 s.h.
In-depth examination of protein stability as well as thermodynamics and kinetics of protein folding; statistical thermodynamics, the physical chemistry of biomolecular interactions, experimental approaches to measuring protein stability, protein folding kinetics, molecular dynamics simulations, protein structural predictions; taken alone or as part of 099:241. Requirements: introductory course in biochemistry and one semester of calculus.
- 099:246 Biophysical Chemistry Module 5 1 s.h.
Overview of membrane proteins; basic principles of membrane proteins, including structure and lipid compositions of cell membranes, membrane protein folding and stability, methods of membrane proteins production, general techniques to study structure and function of membrane proteins; structure and function of biologically significant membrane transporters and receptors. Requirements: one year of biochemistry.
- 099:247 Biophysical Chemistry Module 3 1 s.h.
In-depth examination of principles and practices of studying ligand binding and macromolecular interactions; experimental approaches to study interactions with small molecules, proteins, and nucleic acids; approaches to analyze binding data; structural basis of protein/protein and protein/nucleic acid interactions; taken alone or as part of 099:241. Requirements: introductory course in biochemistry and one semester of calculus.
- 099:248 Biophysical Chemistry Module 6 1 s.h.
Basic principles of NMR and applications important for the understanding of structure and function of biological macromolecules; emphasis on methodology and experimental design, interpretation of data, and critical reading of literature; intended for advanced undergraduates and graduate students with an interest in applications of nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) to problems of structural biology. Requirements: one year of biochemistry and one semester of calculus. Recommendations: a basic knowledge of biochemistry, spectroscopy, and some previous exposure to NMR from basic chemistry courses.
- 099:261 Research Techniques 1-5 s.h.
Laboratory rotation for first-year graduate students in biochemistry.
- 099:275 Perspectives in Biocatalysis 1-3 s.h.
Applied enzymology, protein design, structure-activity relationships, biosensor technology, microbial transformations, biodegradation of environmental pollutants. Repeatable. Requirements: graduate standing in a participating department supported by the Predoctoral Training Program in Biotechnology. Same as 004:275, 046:275, 052:275, 053:275, 061:275.
- 099:282 Seminar 0-1 s.h.
How to evaluate reports of scientific investigations critically; techniques for presenting scientific information.
- 099:283 Thesis Seminar 1 s.h.
Preparation and oral presentation of thesis proposal. Requirements: second-year graduate standing in biochemistry.
- 099:292 Research Biochemistry arr.
Thesis research.

Biology

Chair: Bernd Fritzsche (Iowa Entrepreneurial Endowed Professor of Biology)

Professors: Jeffrey L. Denburg, Daniel Eberl (Biology/Otolaryngology--Head and Neck Surgery), Jan Fassler, Joseph Frankel, Bernd Fritzsche (Iowa Entrepreneurial Endowed Professor of Biology), Steven Green (Biology/Otolaryngology--Head and Neck Surgery), Stephen D. Hendrix, Alan Kay, Jim Jung-Ching Lin, Robert E. Malone, Sally Mason, Linda Maxson, John R. Menninger, Jeffrey C. Murray (Pediatrics/Biology), Diane C. Slusarski, David R. Soll (Carver/Emil Witschi Professor of the Biological Sciences), Chun-Fang Wu

Professors emeriti: George Cain, Wayne R. Carlson, Robert W. Cruden, Gary N. Gussin, Joseph P. Hegmann, Richard G. Kessel, Roger D. Milkman, Jonathan E. Poulton, Jeffry T. Schabillon, Richard D. Sjolund, Eugene Spaziani, Barbara A. Stay, Wei-yeh Wang, Norman E. Williams

Associate professors: Chi-Lien Cheng, Josep Comeron, Michael E. Dailey, Douglas Houston, Erin Irish, John Logsdon, Bryant F. McAllister, Christopher Stipp (Biology/Molecular Physiology and Biophysics)

Associate professors emeriti: Robert W. Embree, Diana G. Horton, Thomas E. Melchert

Assistant professors: Ana Llopart, John Manak, Maurine Neiman, Bryan T. Phillips, Sarit Smolikove, Joshua Weiner

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts, a Bachelor of Science, and a minor in biology.

Study in the Department of Biology prepares students for work in a wide variety of fields in educational institutions, government agencies, foundations, health care organizations, and businesses. Undergraduate programs prepare students for entry into research or service careers associated with private industry or government programs, and for primary and secondary teaching. They also prepare students for entry into advanced degree programs leading to careers in higher education and to independent research in a variety of biological fields, or for practice in health professions such as medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, nursing, veterinary medicine, medical technology, and physical therapy.

Bachelor of Science students choose one of six tracks. The Bachelor of Arts program and the comprehensive biology track in the Bachelor of Science provide highly diverse content. The remaining five B.S. tracks emphasize distinct areas: cell and developmental biology, evolutionary biology, genetics and biotechnology, neurobiology, and plant biology.

The B.A. and all six B.S. programs include a core curriculum consisting of the two-semester sequence 002:010 Principles of Biology I and 002:011 Principles of Biology II, 002:128 Fundamental Genetics, and 002:131 Evolution. Each program includes a total of 18-19 courses (63-70 s.h.) in biology, chemistry, physics, and mathematics. All course work prepares students for advanced graduate and professional training in biology and related subjects.

The department offers 002:196 Honors Investigations and 002:199 Introduction to Research to acquaint undergraduate students with the nature of practicing scientists' work. Students associate with one of the department's research groups in experiments, discussion of current research, study of specialized topics, and attendance at research seminars. Admission to the University of Iowa Honors Program is required for 002:196 Honors Investigations. All students who are accepted by a Department of Biology faculty sponsor may take 002:199 Introduction to Research.

Students interested in field biology, zoology, or botany may take varied courses in these subjects offered during the summer at Iowa Lakeside Laboratory, Lake Okoboji, Iowa.

Students who wish to count course work done at another institution toward requirements for a biology degree at Iowa should consult with their biology advisor.

Bachelor of Science in Biology

The Bachelor of Science in biology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 63-70 s.h. (18 courses) of work for the major. It is divided into six tracks that emphasize the most dynamic and active areas in the biological sciences: cell and developmental biology, genetics and biotechnology, evolutionary biology, neurobiology, plant biology, and comprehensive biology. Students who pursue the B.S. must complete requirements in the chemistry/physics/mathematics foundation, the biology core, and one of the six tracks. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

CHEMISTRY/PHYSICS/MATHEMATICS FOUNDATION

All of these:

004:011-004:012 Principles of Chemistry I-II

8 s.h.

004:121 Organic Chemistry I

3 s.h.

One of these sequences:

029:011-029:012 College Physics I-II	8 s.h.
029:081-029:082 Introductory Physics I-II	8 s.h.

One of these:

22M:016 Calculus for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:025 Calculus I	4 s.h.
22M:031 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus	4 s.h.

One of these:

22S:030 Statistical Methods and Computing (preferred for evolution track)	3 s.h.
22S:101 Biostatistics	3 s.h.

BIOLOGY CORE

002:010-002:011 Principles of Biology I-II	8 s.h.
002:128 Fundamental Genetics	4 s.h.
002:131 Evolution	4 s.h.

Tracks for the Bachelor of Science

Students pursuing the B.S. must select a single track. Each track includes seven courses. Students who choose 002:196 Honors Investigations to fulfill a track requirement must complete a minimum of 6 s.h. in that course. Honors Investigations may be used to fulfill a requirement only in a single category in each track. If it is used to fulfill the investigative laboratory requirement, it cannot also be used to fulfill the elective requirement; if it is used to fulfill the elective requirement, it cannot also be used to fulfill the investigative laboratory requirement.

CELL AND DEVELOPMENTAL BIOLOGY TRACK

The cell and developmental biology track provides education in the structure and function of cells and in the principles of development as they apply to animals and plants. This track is appropriate for students who wish to pursue graduate study in cellular and developmental biology, to prepare for professional study in medicine and other health-related fields, or to take positions in laboratories and companies engaged in cancer research and related fields.

Group 1 (Cell/Developmental Biology Core)

All of these:

002:104 Introduction to Developmental Biology	3 s.h.
002:114 Cell Biology	3 s.h.
002:117 Plant Developmental Biology	3 s.h.

Group 2 (Biochemistry)

One of these:

002:123 Plant Biochemistry	3 s.h.
099:110 Biochemistry	3 s.h.
099:120 & 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I-II	6 s.h.

Group 3 (Investigative Laboratory)

One of these:

002:133 Cell Biology Laboratory	3 s.h.
002:135 Developmental Biology Lab	3 s.h.

002:196 Honors Investigations (in cell/developmental biology)

6 s.h.

Group 4 (Electives)

At least two courses, which may include any combination of courses not taken for Group 3 and/or courses from the following list:

002:138 Genetics and Biotechnology Lab	3 s.h.
002:145 Introduction to Neurobiology	3 s.h.
002:150 Endocrinology	3 s.h.
002:168 Genes and Development	3 s.h.
002:171 Molecular Genetics	4 s.h.
002:180 Fundamental Neurobiology	4 s.h.
002:184 Developmental Neurobiology	3 s.h.
061:147 Survey of Immunology	4 s.h.
061:157 General Microbiology	5 s.h.

EVOLUTIONARY BIOLOGY TRACK

The evolutionary biology track provides education in the principles of evolution as they apply to understanding diversity within and among species, from genomic, ecological, and historical perspectives. This track is appropriate for students who wish to pursue graduate study in evolutionary biology and related fields or to take positions in laboratories utilizing population genetics or phylogenetic approaches such as forensics, fisheries, and human disease mapping.

Group 1 (Evolution Core)

002:134 Ecology	4 s.h.
-----------------	--------

One of these:

002:169 Introduction to Bioinformatics	4 s.h.
002:170 Bioinformatics	3 s.h.
002:178 Genomics	3 s.h.

One of these:

002:160 Molecular Phylogenetics	3 s.h.
002:162 Population Genetics and Molecular Evolution	3 s.h.

Group 2 (Biochemistry)

One of these:

002:123 Plant Biochemistry	3 s.h.
099:110 Biochemistry	3 s.h.
099:120 & 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I-II	6 s.h.

Group 3 (Investigative Laboratory)

One of these:

002:132 Evolution Lab	3 s.h.
002:138 Genetics and Biotechnology Lab	3 s.h.
002:196 Honors Investigations (in evolution)	6 s.h.

Group 4 (Electives)

At least two courses, which may include any combination of courses not taken for Groups 1 and/or 3 and/or courses from the following list:

002:103 Biogeography	3 s.h.
002:108 Vertebrate Zoology	4 s.h.
002:143 Animal Behavior	4 s.h.
012:122 Evolution of the Vertebrates	3 s.h.
012:170 Evolution of Ecosystems	3 s.h.
22C:016 Computer Science I: Fundamentals	4 s.h.
22S:120 Probability and Statistics	4 s.h.
213:170 Primate Evolutionary Biology	3 s.h.
213:116 Modern Human Origins	3 s.h.
213:151 Anthropological Genetics	3 s.h.

GENETICS AND BIOTECHNOLOGY TRACK

The genetics and biotechnology track provides education in the key principles of transmission, maintenance, regulation, and manipulation of genes. This track is appropriate for students who wish to pursue graduate study in fields related to genetics or to enter the modern biotechnology industry. It also provides excellent preparation for professional study in medicine and other health-related fields.

Group 1 (Genetics Core)

Both of these:

002:171 Molecular Genetics	4 s.h.
061:170 Microbial Genetics	3 s.h.

One of these:

002:169 Introduction to Bioinformatics	4 s.h.
002:170 Bioinformatics	3 s.h.
002:178 Genomics	3 s.h.

Group 2 (Biochemistry)

One of these:

002:123 Plant Biochemistry	3 s.h.
099:110 Biochemistry	3 s.h.
099:120 & 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I-II	6 s.h.

Group 3 (Investigative Laboratory)

One of these:

002:138 Genetics and Biotechnology Lab	3 s.h.
002:196 Honors Investigations (in genetics/biotechnology)	6 s.h.

Group 4 (Electives)

At least two courses; may include any combination of courses not taken for Group 1; 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II if 099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I and 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II are chosen from Group 2, and/or the course that has not been taken for Group 3, and/or courses from the following list:

002:104 Introduction to Developmental Biology	3 s.h.
002:117 Plant Developmental Biology	3 s.h.
002:114 Cell Biology	3 s.h.
002:132 Evolution Lab	3 s.h.
002:133 Cell Biology Laboratory	3 s.h.
002:162 Population Genetics and Molecular Evolution	3 s.h.
002:168 Genes and Development	3 s.h.
061:147 Survey of Immunology	4 s.h.

NEUROBIOLOGY TRACK

The neurobiology track provides education in nervous system function at all levels, from molecular to systems biology. This track is appropriate for students who wish to pursue graduate study in neurobiology and related areas, including psychology and the social sciences; to enter laboratories than study the therapeutic basis of neurological disorders; or to work in pharmaceutical companies. It also provides good preparation for professional study in medicine and other health-related fields.

Group 1 (Neurobiology Core)

All of these:

002:143 Animal Behavior	4 s.h.
002:145 Introduction to Neurobiology	3 s.h.
002:180 Fundamental Neurobiology	4 s.h.

Group 2 (Biochemistry)

One of these:

099:110 Biochemistry	3 s.h.
099:120 & 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I-II	6 s.h.

Group 3 (Investigative Laboratory)

One of these:

002:133 Cell Biology Laboratory	3 s.h.
002:135 Developmental Biology Lab	3 s.h.
002:186 Neurobiology Laboratory	3 s.h.
002:196 Honors Investigations (in neurobiology)	6 s.h.

Group 4 (Electives)

At least two courses, which may include any combination of a course not taken for Group 3 and/or courses from the following list:

002:104 Introduction to Developmental Biology	3 s.h.
002:114 Cell Biology	3 s.h.
002:124 Animal Physiology	3 s.h.
002:150 Endocrinology	3 s.h.
002:181 Neurophysiology	3-4 s.h.
002:184 Developmental Neurobiology	3 s.h.

PLANT BIOLOGY TRACK

The plant biology track provides education in how plants grow, how they have evolved, and how they interact with other organisms. This track is appropriate for students who wish to pursue graduate study in biology specializing in plants. It also is good preparation for positions in plant biotechnology companies that work in biofuels development, crop improvement, or CO<sub>2</sub> sequestration, or in agencies dedicated to the conservation of natural lands.

Group 1 (Plant Biology Core)

002:117 Plant Developmental Biology	3 s.h.
-------------------------------------	--------

One of these:

002:103 Biogeography	3 s.h.
012:171 Evolution of Plants	3 s.h.

One of these:

002:134 Ecology	4 s.h.
012:170 Evolution of Ecosystems	3 s.h.

Group 2 (Biochemistry)

One of these:

002:123 Plant Biochemistry	3 s.h.
099:110 Biochemistry	3 s.h.
099:120 & 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I-II	6 s.h.

Group 3 (Investigative Laboratory)

One of these:

002:138 Genetics and Biotechnology Lab	3 s.h.
002:196 Honors Investigations (in plant biology)	6 s.h.

Group 4 (Electives)

Students must take at least two courses, which may include 099:130 if 099:120 and 099:130 are chosen from group 2; and/or courses from the following list; and/or approved plant biology courses offered at Iowa Lakeside Laboratory (students should consult their advisors).

002:104 Introduction to Developmental Biology	3 s.h.
002:114 Cell Biology	3 s.h.
002:171 Molecular Genetics	4 s.h.
002:162 Population Genetics and Molecular Evolution	3 s.h.

COMPREHENSIVE BIOLOGY TRACK

The comprehensive biology track is designed for students who wish a diverse, well-balanced introduction to the major fields of biology. This track provides suitable educational background for graduate study in the biological sciences and science education and for work in laboratories that engage in research and applications in many fields of biology. It also provides broadly based preparation for professional study in medicine and other health-related fields.

Group 1 (Biochemistry)

One of these:

002:123 Plant Biochemistry	3 s.h.
099:110 Biochemistry	3 s.h.
099:120 & 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I-II	6 s.h.

Group 2 (Molecular Biology)

Students must take at least one course, either 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II if 099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I and 099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II is chosen in group 1 or a course from the following list.

002:171 Molecular Genetics	4 s.h.
002:178 Genomics	3 s.h.

Group 3 (Cellular Biology)

At least one of these:

002:114 Cell Biology	3 s.h.
002:180 Fundamental Neurobiology	4 s.h.

Group 4 (Developmental Biology)

At least one of these:

002:104 Introduction to Developmental Biology	3 s.h.
002:117 Plant Developmental Biology	3 s.h.

Group 5 (Organismal Physiology)

At least one of these:

002:124 Animal Physiology	3 s.h.
002:145 Introduction to Neurobiology	3 s.h.
002:150 Endocrinology	3 s.h.

Group 6 (Population Biology)

At least one of these:

002:103 Biogeography	3 s.h.
002:134 Ecology	4 s.h.
002:162 Population Genetics and Molecular Evolution	3 s.h.

Group 7 (Investigative Laboratory)

At least one of these:

002:132 Evolution Lab	3 s.h.
002:133 Cell Biology Laboratory	3 s.h.
002:135 Developmental Biology Lab	3 s.h.
002:138 Genetics and Biotechnology Lab	3 s.h.
002:186 Neurobiology Laboratory	3 s.h.
002:196 Honors Investigations	6 s.h.
Iowa Lakeside Laboratory courses (students consult their advisors)	4-5 s.h.

Suggested First-Year Schedule

The following first-year schedule of science courses is recommended for students seeking either the B.S. or B.A. in biology.

First-Semester Science Courses

004:011 Principles of Chemistry I	4 s.h.
Calculus or mathematics leading to calculus	3-4 s.h.

Second-Semester Science Courses

002:010 Principles of Biology I	4 s.h.
004:012 Principles of Chemistry II	4 s.h.
Calculus (if not taken during the first semester)	4 s.h.

Bachelor of Arts in Biology

The Bachelor of Arts in biology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 66-70 s.h. (19 courses) of work for the major. The B.A. is broadly based. It introduces students to key concepts in important areas of biology and, compared to the B.S., gives them more flexibility in choosing elective courses.

B.A. students must complete a chemistry/physics/math foundation; a biology core identical to that required for the B.S.; one course in each of three breadth menus; one course with a laboratory; and three elective courses, which may include one course in the history or philosophy of science. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The B.A. prepares students for graduate study in the biological sciences and is especially appropriate for those interested in careers in biological science education at all levels. It also provides suitable preparation for professional positions in laboratory or field research or for professional study in medicine and other health-related fields.

CHEMISTRY/PHYSICS/MATHEMATICS FOUNDATION

All of these:

004:011-004:012 Principles of Chemistry I-II	8 s.h.
004:121 Organic Chemistry I	3 s.h.

One of these:

002:123 Plant Biochemistry	3 s.h.
004:122 Organic Chemistry II	3 s.h.
099:110 Biochemistry	3 s.h.

One of these sequences:

029:011-029:012 College Physics I-II	8 s.h.
029:081-029:082 Introductory Physics I-II	8 s.h.

One of these:

22M:016 Calculus for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:025 Calculus I	4 s.h.
22M:031 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus	4 s.h.

One of these:

22S:030 Statistical Methods and Computing	3 s.h.
22S:101 Biostatistics	3 s.h.

BIOLOGY CORE

002:010-002:011 Principles of Biology I-II	8 s.h.
002:128 Fundamental Genetics	4 s.h.
002:131 Evolution	4 s.h.

BREADTH MENUS

At least one course from each of the following three breadth menus:

Molecular and Cellular Biology

002:114 Cell Biology	3 s.h.
002:171 Molecular Genetics	4 s.h.

Developmental Biology and Physiology

002:104 Introduction to Developmental Biology	3 s.h.
002:117 Plant Developmental Biology	3 s.h.
002:124 Animal Physiology	3 s.h.
002:145 Introduction to Neurobiology	3 s.h.
002:150 Endocrinology	3 s.h.

Ecology and Evolutionary Biology

002:103 Biogeography	3 s.h.
002:134 Ecology	3 s.h.

COURSE WITH A LABORATORY

One of these (must not have been used as a breadth menu course):

002:108 Vertebrate Zoology	4 s.h.
002:132 Evolution Lab	3 s.h.
002:133 Cell Biology Laboratory	3 s.h.
002:135 Developmental Biology Lab	3 s.h.

002:138 Genetics and Biotechnology Lab	3 s.h.
002:186 Neurobiology Laboratory	3 s.h.
002:196 Honors Investigations	6 s.h.
012:121 Principles of Paleontology	3 s.h.
061:157 General Microbiology	5 s.h.
099:140 Experimental Biochemistry	4 s.h.
Iowa Lakeside Laboratory courses (students consult their advisors)	4-5 s.h.

ELECTIVES

At least three courses, which may include any course chosen from a breadth menu or from the list of courses with a laboratory that has not been used to satisfy those requirements, any other 2-4 s.h. course numbered 100 or above offered by the Department of Biology, any approved advanced biology course taught at the Iowa Lakeside Laboratory (students consult their advisors), and/or any course(s) chosen from the following list:

012:107 Marine Ecosystems and Conservation	3 s.h.
012:122 Evolution of the Vertebrates	3 s.h.
012:170 Evolution of Ecosystems	3 s.h.
027:155 Skeletal Muscle Biology	3 s.h.
061:147 Survey of Immunology	4 s.h.
153:160 Biology of Aging	3 s.h.
213:116 Modern Human Origins	3 s.h.
213:151 Anthropological Genetics	3 s.h.
213:152 Primate Conservation Biology	3 s.h.
213:170 Primate Evolutionary Biology	3 s.h.
213:188 Primate Behavior and Ecology	3 s.h.

One of the electives may be chosen from these:

16E:139 Ancient and Medieval Science	3 s.h.
16W:137/152:137 History of Public Health	3 s.h.
16W:138/152:138 History of Global Health	3 s.h.
026:104 Introduction to Philosophy of Science	3 s.h.
044:131/152:131 Geography of Health	3 s.h.

In addition, students who have passed 004:121 Organic Chemistry I, 004:122 Organic Chemistry II, and 099:110 Biochemistry or 002:123 Plant Biochemistry may use 099:110 Biochemistry or 002:123 Plant Biochemistry as a biology elective.

Introduction to Research (002:199) for 3 s.h. may be counted only once toward the elective requirement for the B.A.

Suggested First-Year Schedule

The following first-year schedule of science courses is recommended for students seeking either the B.S. or B.A. in biology.

First-Semester Science Courses

004:011 Principles of Chemistry I	4 s.h.
Calculus or mathematics leading to calculus	3-4 s.h.

Second-Semester Science Courses

004:012 Principles of Chemistry II	4 s.h.
002:010 Principles of Biology I	4 s.h.
Calculus (if not taken during the first semester)	4 s.h.

B.A. or B.S. with Teacher Licensure

The major in biology (Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science) provides a foundation for students who are interested in teaching secondary school science. The University's Science Education Program offers a Bachelor of Science program that also provides a foundation for teaching, allowing students to choose an emphasis in biology, chemistry, earth science, or physics; see Science Education in the Catalog.

Students who wish to teach must complete a bachelor's degree program and must complete the Teacher Education Program (TEP). See Teaching and Learning (College of Education) in the Catalog for more information about the TEP. Interested students must apply to the College of Education for admission to the TEP.

Students interested in pursuing a graduate degree in teaching may apply to the joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Arts in Teaching program offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education. Designed for undergraduates in biology, chemistry, and physics, the joint program enables students to earn a B.A. and an M.A.T. in five years by beginning to earn graduate credit during their fourth year of undergraduate study and by counting up to 18 s.h. of qualifying credit toward both degrees. For more information, see "B.A. in Science/M.A.T. in Science Education" in the Teaching and Learning (College of Education) section of the Catalog. Interested students should consult an advisor.

B.A. in Biology/M.A.T.

Students interested in pursuing a graduate degree in teaching may apply to the joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Arts in Teaching program offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education. ## Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major, exclusive of courses in the chemistry/physics/mathematics foundation.)

Bachelor of Science

Before the third semester begins: math through calculus I, 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I, 004:012 Principles of Chemistry II, 002:010 Principles of Biology I, and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: the courses listed above, plus 002:011 Principles of Biology II, 004:121 Organic Chemistry I, 22S:030 Statistical Methods and Computing or 22S:101 Biostatistics, two other courses in the major, and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: the courses listed above, 029:011 College Physics I and 029:012 College Physics II or equivalents, plus five or six more courses in the major, and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: the courses listed above, plus two or three more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Bachelor of Arts

Before the third semester begins: math through calculus I, 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I, 004:012 Principles of Chemistry II, 002:010 Principles of Biology I, and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: the courses listed above, 002:011 Principles of Biology II, 004:121 Organic Chemistry I, 22S:030 Statistical Methods and Computing or 22S:101 Biostatistics, three other courses in the major, and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: the courses listed above, 029:011 College Physics I and 029:012 College Physics II or equivalents, plus five or six more courses in the major, and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: the courses listed above, plus two or three more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Biology majors who are members of the University of Iowa Honors Program may enroll in the Honors Program in Biology, which gives talented students membership in a small, active group of undergraduates with common interests. Honors students gain an introduction to the pursuits of practicing scientists by associating with one of the department's research groups and participating in an independent research project guided by a faculty member (the research supervisor). Honors students write a thesis that should be based on an interesting biological problem, which is usually identified by the research supervisor. The thesis should clearly document that the student has acquired the necessary experimental skills to address specific questions and test specific hypotheses related to the research problem. Honors Seminar in Biology (002:198), or equivalent seminar, provides students with an ideal opportunity to improve their skills in seminar presentation and in writing scientific English. Throughout undergraduate residence, biology honors students may also take advantage of enrollment in honors sections of courses within the department and the college.

Membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program requires that students maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33. To graduate with honors in biology, students must complete the requirements for a B.S. or B.A. in biology with a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in all course work in the biology major taken at The University of Iowa (including all biology courses and cognates in chemistry, physics, biochemistry, mathematics, and statistics). In addition, students must fulfill the following requirements: complete 2 s.h. in either 002:198 Honors Seminar in Biology or an advanced-level biology seminar course; complete a minimum of 6 s.h. (taken over two or more semesters) of 002:196 Honors Investigations; write a brief research proposal summarizing the background and goals of their proposed honors research; upon completion of their research, submit an acceptable honors thesis; and give a brief oral presentation of their research findings to other biology honors students.

Students pursuing a B.S. in biology may apply 6 s.h. of 002:196 Honors Investigations toward the investigative laboratory requirement in an appropriate track. Students pursuing a B.A. in biology may apply 6 s.h. of 002:196 Honors Investigations toward the elective laboratory course requirement and count the 2 s.h. earned in 002:198 Honors Seminar in Biology toward the elective requirement.

Biology majors interested in pursuing an honors degree should contact the biology honors advisor as early as possible, preferably in their sophomore or junior year, so that they may be matched with an appropriate lab.

Minor

The minor in biology requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in biology courses, including 12 s.h. in 100-level courses offered by the Department of Biology at The University of Iowa or in approved Iowa Lakeside Laboratory courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor and in the 100-level courses. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may not use transfer courses to satisfy the 100-level course requirement.

Graduate Programs

The Department of Biology offers a Master of Science, with and without thesis, and a Doctor of Philosophy in biology. The department emphasizes the Ph.D.

The department's graduate programs emphasize original research and the skills essential for publishing and communicating research findings to the biology community. They prepare students for careers in the academic research community, education, industry, and government.

Research programs in the department cover most areas of the biological sciences: cell biology, developmental biology, ecology, evolution, genetics, neurobiology, and plant biology. Doctoral students who wish to specialize in one of four subtracks choose from cell and developmental biology, evolution, genetics, or neurobiology. For each track's requirements, see Graduate Programs on the Department of Biology web site.

When a new graduate student is admitted, he or she is assigned a temporary advisor. The student and advisor meet before registration to discuss the student's educational background and to formulate a study plan for the first year. Students may be advised to take specific course work to enhance their background in certain areas.

During the first year, students whose preparation in chemistry, genetics, mathematics, and physics does not meet the department's graduate entry requirements must remedy deficiencies by taking appropriate course work.

Minimum entry requirements are:

two semesters of organic chemistry or one semester of organic chemistry and one semester of biochemistry;
one semester of calculus;

two semesters of college physics; and 20 s.h. of course work in biology.

A student with a bachelor's degree outside the biological sciences may request modification of certain area requirements; the Graduate Affairs Committee decides whether portions of the requirements may be waived. Students also take 002:128 Fundamental Genetics during the first year, unless they are excused from this requirement by the Graduate Affairs Committee. After the first year, students are advised by their research sponsor and dissertation committee.

Master of Science

The Master of Science in biology requires 30 s.h. of graduate credit with thesis, and 34 s.h. of graduate credit without thesis. All M.S. students take a seminar (2 s.h.) with a substantial writing and oral presentation requirement and two advanced lecture-based courses in biology. Students receive academic credit for courses required for an M.S. or Ph.D. but not for courses taken to remedy undergraduate deficiencies.

Thesis students may count a maximum of 9 s.h. of research credit toward the degree. Remaining course work is tailored to the student's background and career goals and is selected in consultation with the student's advisory committee. The thesis is based on original research. After the thesis is accepted by the student's supervisor and advisory committee, the student must pass an oral examination based on the thesis research and on related subjects.

Nonthesis students must write a library research report for a maximum of 4 s.h. of credit. They may apply up to 8 s.h. of research credit toward the degree. The nonthesis program may include credit earned in biology or cognate sciences; course work is tailored to the student's background and career goals and is selected in consultation with the student's advisory committee.

On completion of the 34 s.h. and acceptance of the research report by the faculty sponsor, the student must pass a written examination covering the graduate program in biology, including the area of the research report.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in biology requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit.

The department expects new Ph.D. students to do research in three laboratories on a rotating basis during their first academic year (August-May). Students consult with their temporary advisors and with prospective faculty research sponsors before identifying their preferences for research rotations. They choose a permanent laboratory affiliation based on their rotations.

During the first academic year, students are required to enroll in the department's colloquium, which is based on a weekly Friday seminar series. In the second semester, the colloquium includes a discussion component based on the weekly seminar series. During the first two years, students must enroll in at least two advanced lecture courses, one seminar course (2 s.h.) that has a significant writing component, and a course on scientific writing designed for graduate students.

Additional formal course work and proficiency requirements for each Ph.D. student are determined by the dissertation committee on the basis of the student's background and current and prospective research interests. The dissertation committee also determines what portion of the formal course or proficiency requirements the student must complete before the comprehensive examination. In this examination, students must demonstrate knowledge of biology fundamentals and the analytic and synthetic skills necessary to become creative, independent scientists. Once they complete the course work and proficiency requirements and pass the comprehensive examination, students may be admitted to full candidacy for the Ph.D.

Students also must demonstrate teaching skills by assisting in instruction as teaching assistants for at least two semesters.

The program culminates in students' preparation of a dissertation based on original, independent research. Students must pass a final examination that covers the thesis and its specialized field before the Ph.D. is awarded.

Admission

Application materials for the graduate program must be sent both to the University's Office of Admissions and to the Department of Biology graduate admissions committee. Complete instructions are listed on the application form; contact the Department of Biology or visit its web site. Applicants should have official transcripts from each undergraduate and graduate institution they have attended sent to both the Office of Admissions and the Department of Biology. They also should arrange to have official scores from the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test (verbal, quantitative, and analytical writing) sent to both offices. A valid B.S. or B.A. from an accredited institution is required.

Applicants whose first language is not English must score at least 600 (paper-based), 250 (computer-based), or 100 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL), and have their score sent to the Office of Admissions. International applicants who received their degrees (either bachelor's or master's) from a U.S. institution are exempt from this requirement. All international students whose first language is not English are required to take an English proficiency exam when they first enroll for classes.

Successful applicants for graduate admission usually have a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 and score above 1200 on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test (combined verbal and quantitative). These criteria are general guidelines for the admissions committee, which also considers letters of recommendation, research experience, and other appropriate criteria.

The department recommends that applicants also take the Graduate Record Examination advanced biology test and submit their scores. Although most applicants have completed undergraduate programs in biology, the department also considers applicants with backgrounds in biophysics, botany, biochemistry, molecular biology, microbiology, and other related areas.

Applications should be submitted by January 15 and must include the GRE test scores. In order to meet the deadline, applicants must take the GRE in October or earlier. Late applications are considered as placement and funding permit.

Students applying for admission to the M.S. with thesis program in biology should have a bachelor's degree in one of the biological sciences. Students with bachelor's degrees in other areas may need to register as nondegree students (A9 or G9) and make up the equivalent of the department's bachelor's degree program prior to consideration for admission. Nondegree students must complete chemistry, physics, and calculus requirements in addition to the biology courses listed in the undergraduate program. Nondegree students should consult the department's graduate program administrator before applying for admission.

The M.S. degree without thesis is an exit degree. Students are not permitted to enter as graduate students with this degree objective.

For more information, visit the Department of Biology web site.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Financial Support

All graduate students making satisfactory progress toward the Ph.D. receive stipend and full tuition support from non-University of Iowa fellowships, teaching assistantships, or research assistantships available through individual research grants administered by faculty members or by the University. First-year Ph.D. students are supported by department fellowships during the research rotation period.

Facilities

The department is housed in three contiguous buildings, with modern facilities and equipment for state-of-the-art research.

Facilities include the Keck Dynamic Image Analysis Facility, which couples sophisticated state-of-the-art microscopy and computerized motion analysis to permit three-dimensional real-time analysis of cell movement in vitro and in situ. The Roy J. Carver Center for Genomics houses the department's DNA sequencing, oligo synthesis, quantitative PCR, functional genomics/microarray facilities, and informatics facilities. The Carver Center for Imaging is a well-staffed microscopy and imaging facility; its newly established confocal microscope is available for teaching and research.

Two large greenhouses are used in plant research and education.

The department also houses animal-care facilities suitable for mice, rats, rabbits, Xenopus laevis, and zebra fish. These facilities are managed by the University's animal care unit, which is accredited by the Association for Assessment and Accreditation of Laboratory Animal Care. A central University facility provides assistance in the preparation of transgenic mice.

The department is also the home of the Developmental Studies Hybridoma Bank, which is affiliated with the National Institutes of Health. The hybridoma bank collects and distributes monoclonal antibodies that originate in laboratories all over the world. Its collection now contains more than 700 monoclonal antibodies that are distributed to users internationally for a modest fee.

In addition to department facilities, the University offers a genomic sequencing service, a DNA oligonucleotide synthesis and enzyme lab, oligopeptide synthesis and sequencing equipment, and mass- and NMR spectroscopy facilities. The Center for Biocatalysis and Bioprocessing is available for growing large amounts of microorganisms (e.g., 100 liters) for use in protein isolation.

Iowa Lakeside Laboratory

The Iowa Lakeside Laboratory is a field station run cooperatively by The University of Iowa, Iowa State University, and the University of Northern Iowa. Located on West Lake Okoboji, in northwestern Iowa, the laboratory affords excellent conditions for summer study in field biology, limnology, phycology, aquatic ecology, pollination biology, and plant taxonomy. It offers a wide variety of summer courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Students should check with their advisors to determine whether specific courses may be counted toward requirements for graduation. Also see Iowa Lakeside Laboratory (University College) in the Catalog or visit the Iowa Lakeside Laboratory web site.

Biology Courses

Many courses include field and/or laboratory components.

For Precollege Students

002:004 Secondary Student Training Program

3-4 s.h.

Special projects. Requirements: secondary school enrollment.

Primarily for Undergraduates

002:001 Introduction to Botany

4 s.h.

Biology of plant life; emphasis on structure, function, reproduction, inheritance, diversity, evolution. Requirements: one year of high school chemistry. GE: Natural Sciences.

002:002 Introductory Animal Biology

4 s.h.

Fundamental principles: cells and macromolecules, energy metabolism, organismic physiology, genetics, development, ecology, and evolution. Requirements: one year of high school chemistry. Recommendations: 004:007. GE: Natural Sciences.

002:010 Principles of Biology I

4 s.h.

Structure and function of cells; structure, function, reproduction of higher plants and vertebrate animals; first of two-semester course sequence. Prerequisites: 004:011. GE: Natural Sciences.

002:011 Principles of Biology II

4 s.h.

Continuation of 002:010; genetics, development, immunology, ecology, evolution. Prerequisites: 002:010 and 004:011. GE: Natural Sciences.

Elementary Topics of General Interest

These courses are not open to graduate students and do not provide credit toward a biology major.

002:021 Human Biology

4 s.h.

Molecular and cellular basis of human life; integration of humans and the biosphere through photosynthesis, respiration; structure, function of human tissues, organs, organ systems; reproduction, genetics, impact of molecular biology and genetic engineering; lecture, laboratory. GE: Natural Sciences.

002:022 Ecology and Evolution

3 s.h.

Evolution and diversity of living things, their patterns on Earth, their organization in ecological systems; dynamics of evolutionary processes. GE: Natural Sciences.

002:029 First-Year Seminar

1 s.h.

Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities, field trips). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

002:040 Biology of the Brain

3 s.h.

Experimental studies of brain structure and function; consciousness; self; nature of mental illness; genetic and environmental determinants of behavior. Recommendations: nonscience major. GE: Natural Sciences.

- 002:081 Human Genetics in the Twenty-First Century 3 s.h.
Heredity in human families, populations; genetic basis of normal, abnormal traits; chromosome behavior; molecular basis of genetics; sex determination. GE: Natural Sciences. Same as 113:081.
- 002:087 Spring Flora 3 s.h.
Recognition and identification of spring-flowering herbaceous plants, native woodland trees and shrubs, woody landscape plants; family characteristics, use of taxonomic key.
- 002:095 Plants and Human Affairs 2-3 s.h.
How plants are useful to people: food, clothing, shelter, medicines, psychoactive agents; plants' social, economic, ecological significance. GE: Natural Sciences.

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students

- 002:101 Teaching Internship in Biology 2 s.h.
Training in teaching the laboratory component of a large General Education biology course; weekly session with instructor, shadowing and assisting a graduate teaching assistant in a lab section, leading laboratory exercises. Requirements: grades of B or higher in 002:010 and 002:011, and junior or senior standing.
- 002:103 Biogeography 3 s.h.
Patterns of plant and animal distribution and their interpretation; historical geography, including glaciation, plate tectonics; ecological geography, including physical factors such as climate, geology. Prerequisites: 002:001, or 002:010 and 002:011, or 044:003. Same as 044:103.
- 002:104 Introduction to Developmental Biology 3 s.h.
Fundamental mechanisms in differentiation, organogenesis, morphogenesis; and pattern formation; mechanistic approach at molecular, cellular, tissue levels of organizations. Prerequisites: 004:012. Requirements: grades of C- or higher in 002:011 and 002:128.
- 002:108 Vertebrate Zoology 4 s.h.
Vertebrate diversity, success in relation to evolutionary history, and adaptive radiation of fish, amphibians, reptiles, birds, mammals; physiological, morphological, behavioral, life history adaptations; vertebrate zoogeography, systematics, patterns of reproduction, social systems. Prerequisites: 002:010 and 002:011.
- 002:114 Cell Biology 3 s.h.
Structures of cells and organelles in relation to their functions at molecular, cellular levels; emphasis on higher eukaryotic cells. Prerequisites: 002:010, 002:011, and 004:012.
- 002:117 Plant Developmental Biology 3 s.h.
Developmental processes throughout life cycle of vascular plants; current knowledge of mechanisms, control; emphasis on molecular, genetic approaches to development, including transposon tagging, transformation. Prerequisites: 002:128.
- 002:123 Plant Biochemistry 3 s.h.
Fundamental concepts in biochemistry: compartmentalization, cell reproduction, energy flow, and metabolism; emphasis on plant hormone biosynthesis and signal transduction; unique capabilities of plants including photosynthesis and nitrogen fixation; application of modern biochemical and molecular biological principles and techniques to the solution of contemporary problems. Prerequisites: 002:010, 002:011, and 004:121.
- 002:124 Animal Physiology 3 s.h.
Principles of cellular and systems physiology; emphasis on experimental and quantitative aspects. Prerequisites: 002:010, 002:011, and 029:011 or 029:081. Corequisites: 029:012 or 029:082, if not taken as a prerequisite.
- 002:128 Fundamental Genetics 3-4 s.h.
Nature, function of genetic material: classical, molecular, developmental aspects. Prerequisites: 002:010 and 004:012. Corequisites: 004:121, if not taken as a prerequisite. Requirements: grade of C- or higher in 002:011.

002:131 Evolution

4 s.h.

Nature, evidence, analysis, implications, molecular/genetic basis; historical record, phylogeny, speciation, adaptation, investigative methods. Prerequisites: 002:010, 002:011, 002:128, and 22M:016 or 22M:025 or 22M:031 or 22S:030 or 22S:101. Requirements: grade of C- or higher in 002:128.

002:132 Evolution Lab

3 s.h.

Methods of sampling and describing variation in natural populations; application of molecular genetic, bioinformatic, and computational techniques to describe genetic variation through sequence analysis; use of controlled laboratory experiments and computer simulations to illustrate evolutionary principles. Prerequisites: 002:128. Corequisites: 002:131.

002:133 Cell Biology Laboratory

3 s.h.

Conceptual understanding and technical skills in fluorescence microscopy and digital imaging, mammalian cell culture, tissue fractionation, centrifugation, electrophoresis, and expression of recombinant proteins. Prerequisites: 002:010 and 002:011. Requirements: a 100-level course in biology, biochemistry, or microbiology.

002:134 Ecology

3-4 s.h.

Adaptations of organisms to their physical and biological environments; organism-environment interactions; population biology; interactions between species; ecology of communities, ecosystems; human impact on ecosystems. Prerequisites: 002:010, 002:011, and 22M:016 or 22M:025 or 22M:031. Recommendations: a basic statistics course. Same as 159:134.

002:135 Developmental Biology Lab

3 s.h.

Experimental manipulation of embryos to examine mechanisms of early development, including gametogenesis and fertilization, cleavage, gastrulation, pattern formation and organogenesis; in vivo imaging of development, methods to visualize gene expression and independent research; model organisms including sea urchin, fish, frog, chick, mouse. Prerequisites: 002:104 and 002:128.

002:138 Genetics and Biotechnology Lab

3 s.h.

Expansion of genetic concepts introduced in 002:128; introduction to genetic/molecular techniques currently used in genetic analysis and biotechnology. Prerequisites: 002:128.

002:143 Animal Behavior

4 s.h.

Genetics, sensory physiology, migration, development of behavior, circadian rhythms, foraging strategies, aggression, sexual and parental behavior, group selection, social behavior. Prerequisites: 002:010 and 002:011.

002:145 Introduction to Neurobiology

3 s.h.

Techniques of molecular biology, genomics, neuropharmacology, and functional brain imaging applied to understanding how the brain works. Prerequisites: 002:010 and 002:011.

002:150 Endocrinology

3 s.h.

Glands of internal secretion; emphasis on vertebrate systems; actions of hormones in regulating growth and metabolism, organ to molecular levels. Prerequisites: 002:010 and 002:011. Recommendations: 004:121.

002:160 Molecular Phylogenetics

3 s.h.

Theory underlying phylogenetic analysis with application of these methods to molecular data sets; analysis of multigene data, organellar, and nuclear genome sequences to reconstruct the history of cells. Requirements: grade of C- or higher in 002:131 or graduate standing.

002:162 Population Genetics and Molecular Evolution

3 s.h.

Nucleotide sequences, genes, and mutation; rates and patterns of nucleotide substitution; selection at the molecular level and the neutral theory; population genetics theory; genome evolution. Requirements: grade of C- or higher in 002:131 or graduate standing.

002:168 Genes and Development

3 s.h.

Mechanisms by which genes control development of multicellular animals; methodology of scientific research applied to developmental genetics. Requirements: grade of B or higher in 002:128. Recommendations: 002:104.

002:169 Introduction to Bioinformatics

4 s.h.

Basics of genetics and molecular biology; overview of bioinformatics and genome science, including genome projects, functional genomics, phylogenetics, proteomics, microarrays, DNA polymorphisms, data-mining algorithms; experimental methods, analytical approaches. Requirements: 002:128 or 099:120 or graduate standing. Same as 051:121, 055:121.

002:170 Bioinformatics

3 s.h.

Overview of bioinformatics and genomics; requires working knowledge of basic concepts in genetics and molecular biology. Requirements: (for 002:170) grade of B+ or higher in 002:128; (for 127:170) grade of B+ or higher in 002:128 and working knowledge of basic genetics and molecular biology concepts. Same as 127:170.

002:171 Molecular Genetics

4 s.h.

Mechanism, regulation of RNA, DNA, protein biosynthesis, with emphasis on methods of genetic analysis; application of modern recombinant DNA techniques to basic problems. Requirements: 002:128 or 099:120 or first-year graduate standing.

002:174 Computational Genomics

3 s.h.

Same as 051:122, 055:122, 127:173.

002:176 Microarray Data Analysis

3 s.h.

Basic statistical principles and techniques used in bioinformatics, including analyzing microarray gene expression data. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 22S:030 or 22S:101 or 171:161. Same as 127:176, 171:185.

002:178 Genomics

3 s.h.

Major areas of genomics, including DNA and protein sequence analysis, structural diversity of whole genomes, microarray applications, proteomics; computer workshop experience in applying bioinformatics tools. Prerequisites: 002:128 or 099:120.

002:180 Fundamental Neurobiology

4 s.h.

Neuronal function, plasticity, and development at the molecular and cellular levels. Prerequisites: 002:145. Recommendations: 002:114 and 099:110. Same as 132:180.

002:181 Neurophysiology

3-4 s.h.

Physiological properties of nerve cells, nervous systems; axonal conduction, synaptic transmission, sensory transduction, integrative processes, higher functions. Prerequisites: 002:180, 22M:025, and 029:012 or 029:082. Same as 132:181.

002:184 Developmental Neurobiology

3 s.h.

Neural induction and nervous system patterning; neurogenesis, axon and dendrite outgrowth and targeting; synapse formation, specificity, refinement; mechanisms of neuronal cell death; myelination; neural stem cells; introduction to cellular, molecular, and genetic techniques in studies of neural development. Requirements: grade of B- or higher in 002:180 or graduate standing. Same as 072:184, 132:184.

002:186 Neurobiology Laboratory

3 s.h.

Principles and practice of neurobiology research, including microscopy and imaging, cellular and molecular neurobiology, and electrophysiology. Prerequisites: 002:180.

002:190 Topics in Evolution and Ecology

1-2 s.h.

Requirements: grade of B- or higher in 002:131 or graduate standing.

002:191 Topics in Molecular Genetics

1-2 s.h.

Requirements: grade of C+ or higher in 002:128 or graduate standing.

002:192 Basic Biology of Human Disease

2 s.h.

Basic problems of infectious disease; selected viral, bacterial, and fungal pathogens, with emphasis on fungal pathogenesis; DNA fingerprinting; epidemiological study of disease dynamics. Prerequisites: 002:128.

002:193 Cell Motility and Cytoskeleton

1-3 s.h.

002:194 Topics in Cell and Development

1-2 s.h.

002:195 Topics in Neurobiology Topics vary. Prerequisites: 002:180.	1-2 s.h.
002:196 Honors Investigations Experimental and theoretical research, readings in biological sciences. Requirements: honors standing.	arr.
002:198 Honors Seminar in Biology Requirements: honors standing.	2 s.h.
002:199 Introduction to Research	3 s.h.

Primarily for Graduate Students

002:200 Biology Colloquium Repeatable. Requirements: first-year biology graduate standing.	0-2 s.h.
002:207 Research Method and Theory Materials and methods of scientific investigation; lab techniques; library resources usage, NCBI data base training; lab safety; research ethics; reading, writing, presenting scientific papers. Requirements: new graduate standing in biology.	2 s.h.
002:215 Critical Readings in Biology	arr.
002:220 Advanced Microscopy Biomedical Research Technically advanced microscopy methods for research; individualized laboratory experience with opportunity to explore application of microscopy methods. Requirements: (for 060:220) an introductory microscopy course; (for 002:220) 002:218 or 060:218 or 061:218 or 012:156 or 052:156 or 060:156; (for 061:220) an introductory EM course. Same as 060:220, 061:220.	arr.
002:228 Fundamental Genetics--Graduate Critical evaluation of classic genetics papers. Corequisites: 002:128. Requirements: biology graduate standing.	1 s.h.
002:234 Seminar: Writing in Natural Sciences Writing and critiquing skills in the natural sciences.	2 s.h.
002:265 Neuroscience Seminar Research presentations. Offered fall and spring semesters. Same as 031:265, 060:265, 072:265, 132:265.	0-1 s.h.
002:270 Biosciences Critical Thinking and Communication Selected papers and oral and written presentations tied to students' research rotations; introductory seminar. Repeatable. Same as 072:342, 156:265.	2 s.h.
002:280 Fundamental Neurobiology--Graduate Overview of neuroscience; emphasis on cellular level.	4 s.h.
002:301 Research: Biology Repeatable.	arr.
002:303 Independent Study in Biology Repeatable.	arr.

Undergraduate Programs

The Department of Chemistry offers a Bachelor of Arts, a Bachelor of Science, and a minor in chemistry. An undergraduate degree in chemistry provides a strong foundation for success in graduate and professional study and for positions in academic or industrial chemistry.

Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Science in chemistry requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 68 s.h. of work for the major, with 46 s.h. in chemistry courses. Students earn 17 s.h. in five foundation chemistry courses and 29 s.h. in advanced chemistry courses. They must earn at least 20 s.h. in advanced chemistry courses at The University of Iowa.

The five foundation courses are principles of chemistry I-II, organic chemistry I-II, and organic chemistry lab. All subsequent chemistry courses are built on the foundation courses.

Other requirements include integral calculus, introductory physics, science electives, and research. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The B.S. program is certified by the American Chemical Society. Current and projected demand for Bachelor of Science graduates in chemistry is excellent in research and in control and process-development work. The program also provides all the prerequisites for graduate work in chemistry or biochemistry and in other biomedical areas with a molecular focus.

Courses in the chemistry major have prerequisites, so they must be taken in the correct order. Most advanced courses are taught only once a year. Students should plan carefully, in consultation with their academic advisors. They should take 004:021 Basic Measurement during the first semester of the second year.

The B.S. requires the following course work.

CHEMISTRY: FOUNDATION COURSES

One of these sequences:

004:011-004:012 Principles of Chemistry I-II	8 s.h.
004:018-004:019-004:020 Chemical Science I-II - Chemical Science Laboratory	8 s.h.

One of these sequences:

004:121-004:122 Organic Chemistry I-II	6 s.h.
004:123-004:124 Organic Chemistry I for Majors - Organic Chemistry II for Majors (preferred)	6 s.h.

CHEMISTRY: ADVANCED COURSES

One of these:

004:141 Organic Chemistry Laboratory	3 s.h.
004:142 Organic Chemistry Laboratory for Majors (preferred)	3 s.h.

All of these:

004:021 Basic Measurement (first semester of second year)	3 s.h.
---	--------

004:111-004:112 Analytical Chemistry I-II	6 s.h.
004:125 Inorganic Chemistry	2 s.h.
004:131-004:132 Physical Chemistry I-II	6 s.h.
004:143 Analytical Measurements	3 s.h.
004:144 Physical Measurements	3 s.h.
004:153 Inorganic Chemistry Laboratory	3 s.h.
004:170 Advanced Inorganic Chemistry	3 s.h.

INTEGRAL CALCULUS

One of these sequences:

22M:025-22M:026 Calculus I-II (preferred)	8 s.h.
22M:031-22M:032 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus - Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus	8 s.h.

INTRODUCTORY PHYSICS

One of these sequences:

029:011-029:012 College Physics I-II	8 s.h.
029:081-029:082 Introductory Physics I-II (preferred)	8 s.h.

SCIENCE ELECTIVES AND RESEARCH

Total of 6 s.h. chosen from these:

004:162 Undergraduate Research	1-4 s.h.
Advanced science elective courses

Students must earn a total of at least 6 s.h. chosen from advanced science elective courses and/or 004:162 Undergraduate Research (004:162 may be repeated for additional credit). A partial list of courses that satisfy the chemistry elective requirement is available on the department's web site (see Undergraduate Program/Degrees). Generally, advanced courses in related science disciplines beyond the introductory level and math-related courses with a prerequisite of calculus II or equivalent are accepted. Students should consult their advisors to gain approval for a course that is not on the list.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in chemistry requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 53 s.h. of work for the major, with 37 s.h. in chemistry courses. Students earn 17 s.h. in five foundation chemistry courses and 20 s.h. in advanced chemistry courses. They must earn at least 11 s.h. in advanced chemistry courses at The University of Iowa.

The five foundation courses are principles of chemistry I-II, organic chemistry I-II, and organic chemistry lab. All subsequent chemistry courses are built on the foundation courses.

Other requirements include integral calculus and introductory physics. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The B.A. program in chemistry provides a more general education, with a concentration in fundamental chemistry and a wider choice of electives than the B.S. program includes. Advanced courses in chemistry, biology, mathematics, physics, or other scientific areas are recommended.

Bachelor of Arts graduates in chemistry may qualify to be high school teachers, provided they meet teacher licensure requirements. By choosing appropriate electives, students can meet entrance requirements for chemistry, biochemistry, medicine, dentistry, or other graduate or professional programs while satisfying the B.A. requirements in chemistry. Graduates also may pursue careers and education in business, law, and other areas.

Courses in the chemistry major have prerequisites, so they must be taken in the correct order. Most advanced courses are taught only once a year. Students should plan carefully, in consultation with their academic advisors. Students should take 004:021 Basic Measurement during the first semester of the second year.

The B.A. requires the following course work.

CHEMISTRY: FOUNDATION COURSES

One of these sequences:

004:011-004:012 Principles of Chemistry I-II	8 s.h.
004:018-004:019-004:020 Chemical Science I-II - Chemical Science Laboratory	8 s.h.

One of these sequences:

004:121-004:122 Organic Chemistry I-II	6 s.h.
004:123-004:124 Organic Chemistry I for Majors - Organic Chemistry II for Majors (preferred)	6 s.h.

One of these:

004:141 Organic Chemistry Laboratory	3 s.h.
004:142 Organic Chemistry Laboratory for Majors (preferred)	3 s.h.

CHEMISTRY: ADVANCED COURSES

One of these:

004:143 Analytical Measurements	3 s.h.
004:144 Physical Measurements	3 s.h.
004:153 Inorganic Chemistry Laboratory	3 s.h.

All of these:

004:021 Basic Measurement (first semester of second year)	3 s.h.
004:111-004:112 Analytical Chemistry I-II	6 s.h.
004:125 Inorganic Chemistry	2 s.h.
004:131-004:132 Physical Chemistry I-II	6 s.h.

INTEGRAL CALCULUS

One of these sequences:

22M:025-22M:026 Calculus I-II (preferred)	8 s.h.
22M:031-22M:032 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus - Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus	8 s.h.

INTRODUCTORY PHYSICS

One of these sequences:

029:011-029:012 College Physics I-II	8 s.h.
029:081-029:082 Introductory Physics I-II (preferred)	8 s.h.

B.A. or B.S. with Teacher Licensure

Chemistry courses required for the B.S. or B.A. satisfy the major requirements for teaching in secondary schools. A minor in chemistry satisfies the requirements for a teaching emphasis in chemistry (see Science Education in the Catalog).

Students who wish to teach must complete the Teacher Education Program (TEP). See Teaching and Learning (College of Education) in the Catalog for more information about the TEP. Interested students must apply to the College of Education for admission to the TEP.

Joint B.A. in Chemistry/M.A.T.

B.A. students majoring in chemistry who are interested in pursuing a graduate degree in teaching may apply to the joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Arts in Teaching program offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education. Designed for undergraduates in biology, chemistry, and physics, the joint program enables students to earn a B.A. and an M.A.T. in five years by beginning to earn graduate credit during their fourth year of undergraduate study and by counting up to 18 s.h. of qualifying credit toward both degrees. For more information, see "B.A. in Science/M.A.T. in Science Education" in the Teaching and Learning (College of Education) section of the Catalog. Interested students should consult an advisor.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Note: Courses in the chemistry major have prerequisites. Students must take required courses in the correct sequence in order to satisfy prerequisites and avoid regression; a typical chemistry course schedule and a regression list are available on the department's web site (see Undergraduate Program/Degrees). Most advanced courses are taught only once a year. Students should plan carefully, in consultation with their academic advisors. They should take 004:021 Basic Measurement during the first semester of the second year.

Bachelor of Arts

Before the third semester begins: math through calculus I, 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I and 004:012 Principles of Chemistry II or 004:018 Chemical Science I, 004:019 Chemical Science II, and 004:020 Chemical Science Laboratory or equivalent course work, and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: the courses listed above; calculus II; organic chemistry I, II, and lab; physics I and II; and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: the courses listed above, four more courses in the major, and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: the courses listed above, and one or two more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Bachelor of Science

Before the third semester begins: math through calculus I, 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I and 004:012 Principles of Chemistry II or 004:018 Chemical Science I, 004:019 Chemical Science II, and 004:020 Chemical Science Laboratory or equivalent course work, and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: the courses listed above; calculus II; physics I and II; organic chemistry I, II, and lab; three other courses in the major; and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: the courses listed above, six more courses in the major, and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: the courses listed above, and three more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

To graduate with honors in chemistry, a student must be a member of the University Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). Honors students in chemistry must take 004:162 Undergraduate Research, complete a research project acceptable to their research advisors, and write an honors thesis based on that research. Students are encouraged, but not required, to present their research at local and regional meetings and to publish their results in professional journals. Students who complete 6 s.h. of 004:162 Undergraduate Research may earn additional honors research credit through an honors practicum.

Minor

The minor in chemistry requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in courses offered by the Department of Chemistry at The University of Iowa, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Advanced courses are numbered above 100 and below 280, except 004:162 Undergraduate Research and 004:191

Graduate Chemistry Orientation. Students normally complete the minor by taking the introductory sequence 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I and 004:012 Principles of Chemistry II (or 004:018 Chemical Science I, 004:019 Chemical Science II, and 004:020 Chemical Science Laboratory) followed by the 12 s.h. of advanced course work, which most commonly consists of the organic chemistry sequence 004:121 Organic Chemistry I, 004:122 Organic Chemistry II, and 004:141 Organic Chemistry Laboratory (or 004:123 Organic Chemistry I for Majors, 004:124 Organic Chemistry II for Majors, and 004:142 Organic Chemistry Laboratory for Majors) plus one more 3 s.h. chemistry course, such as 004:111 Analytical Chemistry I, 004:131 Physical Chemistry I, 004:132 Physical Chemistry II, 004:170 Advanced Inorganic Chemistry, or 004:172 Advanced Organic Chemistry.

Resources, Activities

The department offers undergraduate students majoring in chemistry and other students interested in chemistry a number of opportunities to enrich their classroom studies.

Undergraduate Chemistry Center

The Chemistry Center serves all students who take chemistry courses as well as the department's professors and teaching assistants. The center maintains waiting lists and offers other assistance with registration; returns examinations and homework assignments and maintains a file of lecture hand-outs; provides a lending library of chemistry textbooks that can be checked out; and maintains bulletin boards with information on all lower-level chemistry courses. Information about student organizations and departmental scholarships and awards also is available at the Chemistry Center.

Student Organizations

Students may join the Undergraduate Chemical Society, a student affiliate of the American Chemical Society (ACS). Chapter activities include dinner meetings with guest speakers; a chemistry tutoring service for other students; participation in local and national meetings of the ACS; and participation in chemistry outreach programs. Students in UCS develop leadership, organization, and speaking skills valuable throughout their college experience and in their subsequent careers.

The department has a chapter of Alpha Chi Sigma, a co-ed chemistry fraternity. The Alpha Theta Chapter is open to students in chemistry, biochemistry, chemical engineering, and related fields. Alpha Chi Sigma sponsors many social and professional events throughout the year.

The department also supports the activities of Women in Science and Engineering (WISE), whose aim is to increase women's participation and advancement as students, faculty members, and professional staff; promote a supportive study and work environment for women; integrate women's ideas, strengths, and approaches into research, teaching, and service; and inform the public of educational and career opportunities for women in scientific and technical fields. WISE sponsors a living-learning community in Stanley Hall (a University residence hall) for first-year female students majoring in science or engineering, the Student-to-Student Support in Science mentoring program, a service learning program, and the WISE Discourse and Dining series.

Scholarships and Awards

A number of awards and scholarships are available to chemistry majors, including the American Institute of Chemists Award, the Undergraduate Award in Analytical Chemistry, the Chemistry Alumni Awards (one each for a sophomore, a junior, and a senior), the Merck Index Award, and the Viksnins, Harris & Padys PLLP Award.

Chemistry majors also may apply for the Donald J. and Margaret Burton Scholarship, Ken Sando Scholarship, Shoemaker-Strickler Scholarship, and Russell K. Simms Scholarship.

Graduate Programs

The department offers a Master of Science, with and without thesis, and a Doctor of Philosophy in chemistry.

Master of Science

The Master of Science in chemistry requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit. The degree is offered with or without thesis, in analytical, inorganic, organic, and physical chemistry. M.S. students must demonstrate minimal proficiency in analytical, inorganic, organic, and physical chemistry by passing specific examinations or by enrolling in suitable core courses. This requirement must be completed by the end of the second year of enrollment. A g.p.a. of at least 3.00 is required for admission to the master's examination.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in chemistry requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. Ph.D. study in analytical, inorganic, organic, and physical chemistry includes minimal proficiency examinations, core courses as necessary, a minimum of 11 s.h. of advanced course work, and research.

Students who meet the course requirements with a cumulative g.p.a. of 3.00 or higher are admitted to the oral comprehensive examination upon presentation and preliminary approval of their written research proposal and research progress report; they must take the oral comprehensive examination no later than the end of their second year of enrollment.

Upon completing Ph.D. research, candidates prepare the dissertation. The final examination consists of an oral defense of the thesis, at which time the candidate presents at least one manuscript of the publishable portion of his or her thesis.

Admission

Applicants for graduate admission should have a bachelor's degree in chemistry, preferably with a g.p.a. of 3.00 or higher. Most admitted graduate students receive financial support. For application information, contact the Department of Chemistry or visit its web site.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Facilities

The Department of Chemistry office, support facilities, and faculty offices are located in the Chemistry Building, as is laboratory and classroom space dedicated to teaching and research activities. Several faculty members have offices and laboratories in the Iowa Advanced Technology Laboratories, across the street from the Chemistry Building. See the Department of Chemistry web site for information about facilities and advanced instrumentation available for instruction and research.

Chemistry Courses

Primarily for Undergraduates

Students planning to take more than one year of chemistry should take 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I and 004:012 Principles of Chemistry II. Students who require only one year of chemistry with no laboratory component may take 004:007 General Chemistry I and 004:008 General Chemistry II. Students who have not had high school chemistry or do not have strong math and/or chemistry preparation should consider taking 004:007 General Chemistry I before 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I; academic advisors and the Chemistry Diagnostic Test can help students determine whether to take 004:007 General Chemistry I before 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I.

004:005 Technology and Society 3 s.h.

Nonmathematical exploration of selected areas of technology; basic science background, current technological applications, implications for society; for nonscience majors. Requirements: closed to students who have taken college chemistry courses. GE: Natural Sciences.

004:006 Technology and Society Laboratory 1 s.h.

Laboratory for 004:005; demonstrations, student experiments. Corequisites: 004:005, if not taken as a prerequisite. Requirements: closed to students who have earned more than 3 s.h. in chemistry courses. GE: Natural Sciences.

004:007 General Chemistry I 3 s.h.

Atomic structure, chemical bonds, mole relations, stoichiometry, states of matter, acids and bases, reaction rates, electrochemistry, nuclear chemistry. Requirements: elementary algebra. GE: Natural Sciences.

004:008 General Chemistry II 3 s.h.

Organic chemistry and biochemistry. Requirements: 004:007 or high school chemistry. GE: Natural Sciences.

004:009 Supplemental Chemistry Lab 1 s.h.

Lab techniques, elementary synthesis, measurement, analysis, case-study lectures and experiments; safety glasses, appropriate dress, compliance with laboratory safety protocols required. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 004:018 or 004:019.

004:011 Principles of Chemistry I 4 s.h.

Chemical bonding and chemical reactions; atomic and molecular structure, chemical equations, stoichiometry, gases, liquids, thermodynamics of phase changes, solutions, equilibrium, acids, bases, pH, elementary organic chemistry; the solid state, including modern materials; lecture, discussion, laboratory. Requirements: 22M:008, or ACT math subscore of 24 and MPT II score of 20, or ACT math subscore of 24 and MPT III score of 10. Recommendations: Chemistry Diagnostic Test score of 15. GE: Natural Sciences.

004:012 Principles of Chemistry II 4 s.h.

Continuation of 004:011; colligative properties of solutions, chemical thermodynamics, electrochemistry, chemical kinetics, chemical bonding, aspects of industrial chemistry, nuclear chemistry; lecture, discussion, laboratory. Prerequisites: 004:011. GE: Natural Sciences.

004:016 Principles of Chemistry Lab 2 s.h.

Laboratory techniques. Requirements: grades of C or higher in 004:018 and 004:019. GE: Natural Sciences.

004:018 Chemical Science I 3 s.h.

GE: Natural Sciences.

004:019 Chemical Science II 3 s.h.

GE: Natural Sciences.

004:020 Chemical Science Laboratory 2 s.h.

GE: Natural Sciences.

004:021 Basic Measurement 3 s.h.

Continuation of 004:012; techniques of data collection and processing, including titrimetric and instrumental techniques for data collection and computer techniques for data processing. Prerequisites: 004:012 or 004:020. Requirements: chemistry major.

004:029 First-Year Seminar 1-2 s.h.

Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

004:111 Analytical Chemistry I 3 s.h.

Modern theory and practice; emphasis on chemical equilibria (acid-base chemistry, solubility, complexation) and electroanalytical chemistry (potentiometry, voltammetry, coulometry). Corequisites: 004:131 or 004:132, if not taken as a prerequisite.

004:112 Analytical Chemistry II 3 s.h.

Continuation of 004:111; emphasis on instrumental methods, including atomic and molecular spectroscopy, mass spectrometry, chemical separations. Prerequisites: 004:111.

004:121 Organic Chemistry I 3 s.h.

Carbon-containing compounds; structure, stereochemistry, physical properties, reactivity, reaction mechanisms, synthesis; emphasis on alkanes, alkenes, alkynes, alcohols, alkyl halides, aromatics. Prerequisites: 004:012 or 004:019.

004:122 Organic Chemistry II 3 s.h.

Continuation of 004:121; use of spectroscopic techniques to determine chemical structures; chemistry of carbonyl compounds, amines, ethers, amino acids, carbohydrates, nucleosides. Prerequisites: 004:121.

004:123 Organic Chemistry I for Majors 3 s.h.

Carbon-containing compounds; structure, stereochemistry, physical properties, reactivity, reaction mechanisms, synthesis; emphasis on alkanes, alkenes, alkynes, alcohols, alkyl halides, aromatics. Prerequisites: 004:012 or 004:019. Requirements: chemistry, biochemistry, or chemical engineering major.

004:124 Organic Chemistry II for Majors 3 s.h.

Continuation of 004:123; use of spectroscopic techniques to determine chemical structures; chemistry of carbonyl compounds, amines, ethers, amino acids, carbohydrates, and nucleosides. Prerequisites: 004:121 or 004:123. Requirements: chemistry, biochemistry, or chemical engineering major.

004:125 Inorganic Chemistry

2-3 s.h.

Modern principles; emphasis on descriptive chemistry of the main group and transition elements, ionic and covalent chemical bonding theories, symmetry, inorganic stereochemistry. Prerequisites: 004:012 or 004:019. Corequisites: 004:122 or 004:124.

004:131 Physical Chemistry I

3 s.h.

Chemical thermodynamics and its application to chemical equilibrium, phase changes and chemical equilibria; ideal and real gases; kinetic theory; surface absorption and electrochemistry; thermodynamics. Prerequisites: 004:012 or 004:019, 029:012 or 029:082, and 22M:026 or 22M:032.

004:132 Physical Chemistry II

3 s.h.

Quantum mechanics and its application to atomic and molecular structure; determination of structure and bonding by various spectroscopic methods; chemical kinetics. Prerequisites: 004:012 or 004:019, 029:012 or 029:082, and 22M:026 or 22M:032.

004:141 Organic Chemistry Laboratory

3 s.h.

Preparation, purification, identification, analysis of chemical compounds, principally organic compounds. Prerequisites: 004:011 and 004:012, or 004:016 or 004:020; and 004:121 or 004:123. Corequisites: 004:122 or 004:124.

004:142 Organic Chemistry Laboratory for Majors

3 s.h.

Preparation, purification, identification, analysis of chemical compounds, principally organic compounds. Prerequisites: 004:011 and 004:012, or 004:016 or 004:020; and 004:121 or 004:123. Corequisites: 004:124. Requirements: chemistry, biochemistry, or chemical engineering major.

004:143 Analytical Measurements

3 s.h.

Modern theory and practice of laboratory methods; emphasis on experimental techniques and data analysis in spectroscopy, chromatography, electrochemistry. Prerequisites: 004:111. Corequisites: 004:112.

004:144 Physical Measurements

3 s.h.

Laboratory experience using advanced instrumental and computational methods to generate and analyze data relevant to modern physical chemistry. Prerequisites: 004:021. Corequisites: 004:131 or 004:132, if not taken as a prerequisite. Requirements: chemistry major.

004:153 Inorganic Chemistry Laboratory

3 s.h.

Preparation and characterization of a variety of inorganic, organometallic, and coordination compounds of the main group and transition elements; emphasis on synthetic techniques, methods for characterization of inorganic species. Prerequisites: 004:125, and 004:141 or 004:142.

004:162 Undergraduate Research

1-4 s.h.

004:170 Advanced Inorganic Chemistry

3 s.h.

Modern principles, including crystal field/ligand field/molecular orbital theory, inorganic reaction mechanisms, coordination chemistry, bioinorganic chemistry, main group and transition metal organometallic chemistry, solid-state inorganic chemistry. Prerequisites: 004:125 and 004:132. Corequisites: 004:153, if not taken as a prerequisite.

004:171 Advanced Analytical Chemistry

3 s.h.

Emphasis on fundamental aspects of electrochemistry, atomic and molecular spectroscopy, chemical separations. Prerequisites: 004:112, 004:131, and 004:132.

004:172 Advanced Organic Chemistry

3 s.h.

Basic concepts from perspectives of structure, mechanism, synthesis, stereochemistry. Prerequisites: 004:122 or 004:124.

004:173 Atmospheric and Environmental Chemistry

3 s.h.

Fundamental chemical processes of importance in the atmosphere, soil, and water, with emphasis on kinetics and photochemistry of homogeneous and heterogeneous reactions, atmospheric structure and dynamics, global geochemical cycling, chemistry-climate relationships, environmental remediation strategies; experimental methods in field and laboratory studies. Corequisites: 004:131 or 004:132, if not taken as a prerequisite.

004:175 Introduction to Polymer Chemistry

1-3 s.h.

Synthesis, structures, characterization, properties, and applications of polymers. Prerequisites: 004:122 and 004:125.

004:191 Graduate Chemistry Orientation

2 s.h.

Pedagogy, safety and research issues relevant to advanced chemistry careers. Requirements: senior standing.

Primarily for Graduate Students*004:201 Special Topics in Inorganic Chemistry

1-3 s.h.

Repeatable. Prerequisites: 004:170.

004:202 Coordination Chemistry and Spectroscopy

1-3 s.h.

Structure and bonding of d-block metal complexes, theory and application of relevant spectroscopic methods, inorganic reaction mechanisms, transition metals in catalysis. Prerequisites: 004:170.

004:203 Organometallic Chemistry

2-3 s.h.

Emphasis on organometallic compounds of transition metal elements. Prerequisites: 004:170.

004:204 Physical Methods in Inorganic Chemistry

3 s.h.

Application of physical methods to problems; recent developments; emphasis on magnetic resonance spectroscopy. Prerequisites: 004:170.

004:205 Bioinorganic Chemistry

2-3 s.h.

The role of metal ions in biology from an inorganic chemical perspective; emphasis on structure and mechanism for transition metal-containing metallo-enzymes. Prerequisites: 004:170.

004:206 Solid-State and Materials Chemistry

3 s.h.

Introduction to the chemical concepts of solid-state chemistry; focus on synthesis and characterization of various inorganic materials; structure/property relationships, real-world examples. Prerequisites: 004:170.

004:207 Electrochemistry

2-3 s.h.

Fundamental aspects, including mass transport and electron transfer, electrochemical methodology (e.g., voltammetry and potentiometry), determination of homogeneous and heterogeneous reaction mechanisms. Prerequisites: 004:111, 004:112, and 004:171.

004:208 Spectroscopy

3 s.h.

Principles of atomic and molecular absorption and emission spectroscopy in ultraviolet, visible, and infrared regions of the spectrum, including fluorescence, phosphorescence, Raman spectroscopy; applications to analytical problems, with emphasis on modern instrumentation and methodology. Prerequisites: 004:111, 004:112, and 004:171.

004:209 Separations

3 s.h.

Separation science; emphasis on gas and liquid chromatography, including mobile and stationary phases, instrumentation, detection, applications and sheet method, supercritical fluid chromatography, capillary electrophoresis, solid phase extraction techniques. Prerequisites: 004:111, 004:112, and 004:171.

004:210 Chemical Sensors

2 s.h.

Theory, practical limitations, analytical utility based on immobilized reagents with electrochemical, thermal, optical transduction mechanisms. Prerequisites: 004:111 and 004:112, or 004:171.

004:213 Special Topics in Analytical Chemistry

arr.

Content varies. Repeatable.

004:214 Chemical Systems Modeling

2 s.h.

Basic processes and techniques; these methods applied to systems relevant to students' own research. Prerequisites: 004:111 or 004:112 or 004:171.

004:215 Biophotonics

3 s.h.

Structure, dynamics of biomolecules and their optical spectroscopy; ultrasensitive fluorescence spectroscopy, vibrational spectroscopy, optical activity and circular dichroism, time-resolved spectroscopy. Prerequisites: 004:111, 004:112, and 004:171.

004:218 Nanomaterials 3 s.h.

Basic principles associated with nanoscience and nanotechnology; fabrication and synthesis, size dependent properties, characterization, applications of materials at nanometer length scales, recent technological breakthroughs in the field. Requirements: graduate standing or advanced undergraduate standing in engineering and science. Recommendations: knowledge of basic chemistry.

004:220 Electrochemistry of Polymer Films 1 s.h.

Use of electrochemical methods to characterize polymer and thin films; transport through polymer films and composites, electrochemistry of polymer films. Requirements: physical chemistry course.

004:221 Spectroscopic Methods in Organic Chemistry 3-4 s.h.

Methods and techniques of structure determination for organic compounds. Prerequisites: 004:172.

004:225 Organic Chemistry Special Topics 1-3 s.h.

Prerequisites: 004:172.

004:228 Mechanisms of Organic Reactions 3 s.h.

Application of basic mechanistic concepts.

004:229 Advanced Organic Synthesis 3 s.h.

Preparation of complex organic compounds. Prerequisites: 004:172.

004:231 Statistical Thermodynamics I 3 s.h.

Fundamentals of classical thermodynamics and equilibria; ensembles; noninteracting systems; theory of phase transitions; Monte-Carlo methods; classical fluids; nonequilibrium systems. Prerequisites: 004:131.

004:233 Quantum and Computational Chemistry 3 s.h.

Fundamental principles of quantum chemistry; angular momentum; approximation methods; theory of atomic and molecular electronic structure; applications of computational quantum mechanics to chemical systems. Corequisites: 004:132, if not taken as a prerequisite. Recommendations: 004:180.

004:234 Molecular Spectroscopy 3 s.h.

Quantum mechanical theory of molecular spectroscopy; time-dependent perturbation theory, selection rules, lineshapes; selected applications in microwave, vibrational (infrared and Raman), electronic, optical, and magnetic resonance spectroscopy. Prerequisites: 004:233.

004:235 Chemical Kinetics 3 s.h.

Potential energy surfaces, transition state theory, diffusion limited rates, linear free energy relationships, isotope effects, solvent effects, RRKM theory; connection between experiment and various theories in the gas and solution phases; emphasis on assignment of experimental error to derived quantities. Prerequisites: 004:132.

004:238 Surface Chemistry and Heterogeneous Processes 3 s.h.

Fundamental and applied aspects of surface chemical processes; theories of molecular adsorption/desorption and surface complexation; kinetics; surface analysis and instrumentation; applications of surface chemistry in heterogeneous catalysis, heterogeneous environmental/atmospheric processes, and materials chemistry. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 004:131.

004:242 Physical Chemistry Topics 1-3 s.h.

Advanced topics relevant to modern physical chemistry. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 004:132 and 22M:026.

004:250 Chemometrics 3 s.h.

Mathematical, statistical, and signal processing methods for analytical chemistry; hypothesis testing, experimental design, model building, optimization, digital filtering. Prerequisites: 004:171.

004:275 Perspectives in Biocatalysis 1-3 s.h.

Applied enzymology, protein design, structure-activity relationships, biosensor technology, microbial transformations, biodegradation of environmental pollutants. Repeatable. Requirements: graduate standing in a participating department supported by the Predoctoral Training Program in Biotechnology. Same as 046:275, 052:275, 053:275, 061:275, 099:275.

004:281 Seminar: Analytical Chemistry 0-1 s.h.
Repeatable.

004:283 Seminar: Inorganic Chemistry 0-1 s.h.
Repeatable.

004:285 Seminar: Organic Chemistry 0-1 s.h.
Repeatable.

004:286 Seminar: Physical and Environmental Chemistry 0-1 s.h.
Repeatable.

004:287 Research Frontiers in Chemistry 1 s.h.
Repeatable.

004:290 Research in Chemistry arr.
Thesis work for advanced degrees. Repeatable.

004:291 Research Seminar 0-1 s.h.
Presentation and discussion of thesis research for advanced degrees. Repeatable.

Cinema and Comparative Literature

Chair: Russell Valentino

Professors: Rick Altman, Cinzia Blum (French and Italian/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Cheryl Herr (English/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Robert Ketterer (Classics/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Christopher Merrill (English/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Leighton Pierce, Lauren Rabinovitz (American Studies/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Cole Swenson (Creative Writing/English/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Steven Ungar (French and Italian/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Russell Valentino (Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures/Cinema and Comparative Literature)

Professors emeriti: Rudolf Kuenzli (English/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Franklin Miller

Visiting professor: Aron Aji

Associate professors: Paula Amad, Corey Creekmur (English/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Brian Gollnick (Spanish and Portuguese/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Sabine Gölz, Kathleen Newman (Spanish and Portuguese/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Astrid Oesmann (German/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Maureen Robertson (Asian and Slavic Languages and Literatures/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Rosemarie Scullion (French and Italian/Women's Studies/Cinema and Comparative Literature), Sasha Waters Freyer, David Wittenberg (English/Cinema and Comparative Literature)

Assistant professors: Steve Choe, Andrew Hulse

Adjunct assistant professors: Anna Barker, Natasa Durovicova, Kathleen Edwards, John Merchant

Adjunct assistant professor emerita: Sandra Barkan

Undergraduate degrees: B.A. in Cinema, B.A. in Comparative Literature

Undergraduate nondegree programs: Minor in Cinema, Minor in Comparative Literature

Graduate degrees: M.A., Ph.D. in Comparative Literature; M.F.A. in Translation; M.F.A. in Film and Video Production; M.A., Ph.D. in Film Studies

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/ccl>

The Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature presents film, literature, translation, and relations with the other arts as subjects of international and interdisciplinary study. It provides a basis for intensive work in literature, literary theory, critical methods, film studies, and the production of literary translations and film, video, and digital arts.

The department encourages study in comparative arts, with particular emphasis on cinema, where the program's resources are especially strong. Students and faculty members have easy access to the resources of the International Writing Program and the Institute for Cinema and Culture.

The cinema and comparative literature faculty offers expertise in the languages and cultural study of the Americas, China, Croatia, England, France, Germany, India, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Russia, Spain, and Sub-Saharan Africa. Specific expertise and direction are available in translation and in film and audiovisual history, production, and theory.

In addition to its own faculty, the department calls on faculty members in other disciplines, including American studies, Asian and Slavic languages and literatures, classics, communication studies, English, French and Italian, German, history, Spanish and Portuguese, theatre arts, and women's studies.

Undergraduate Programs

The Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature offers a Bachelor of Arts in cinema and a Bachelor of Arts in comparative literature. It also offers a minor in cinema and a minor in comparative literature.

The majors in cinema and in comparative literature provide individualized programs in the interdisciplinary study of literature and the study and production of film and audiovisual arts. The program is designed to promote cultural awareness, to increase speaking and writing skills, and to develop capacities for systematic reasoning.

Bachelor of Arts in Cinema

The Bachelor of Arts in cinema requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 34 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete 21 s.h. in University of Iowa course work and may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of course work from another major, minor, or certificate toward the B.A. in cinema. Students with a double major in cinema and in comparative literature may count a maximum of 12 s.h. toward both majors. All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The major in cinema is an individualized, interdisciplinary study of film and the production of creative work in film, video, and interactive multimedia. It is designed to promote cultural and artistic awareness, to increase speaking and writing skills, and to develop capacities for systematic reasoning and effective production in cinema arts.

All students are expected to gain a perspective on both the study and the production of film, video, or digital media while becoming acquainted with the historical, critical, and theoretical issues of the area. In conjunction with an appropriate overall curriculum, the major in cinema can offer effective preparation for continuing study or creative work in the humanities, arts, and cinema; provide a solid foundation for careers in film, video, television, and digital production; and lead to careers in arts administration, advertising, and business.

The B.A. in cinema requires the following course work.

048:001 Introduction to Film Analysis	4 s.h.
048:025 Introduction to Critical Reading and Viewing	3 s.h.
048:034 Modes of Film and Video Production	4 s.h.
048:095 Undergraduate Seminar	3 s.h.

One of these:

048:030 Introduction to Film Theory	3 s.h.
048:100 Introduction to Criticism and Theory	3 s.h.
048:120 Issues in Film Theory	3 s.h.

At least one film studies or film production course at the 100 level	3 s.h.
Additional cinema and comparative literature course work, including at least 9 s.h. of advanced film studies or film and video production courses numbered 048:051 or above	14 s.h.

Bachelor of Arts in Comparative Literature

The Bachelor of Arts in comparative literature requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 33 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete 21 s.h. in University of Iowa course work and may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of course work from another major, minor, or certificate toward the B.A. in comparative literature. Students with a double major in cinema and in comparative literature may count a maximum of 12 s.h. toward both majors. All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The major offers two tracks: language and literature, and literature and arts. Students work with faculty advisors close to their track to develop coherent, individualized programs of study that reflect their interests and developing skills.

Students share a common set of basic courses in the literatures of widely divergent cultures and historical periods, in translation, and in interaction among the arts. All students are expected to gain an international perspective on literature and the arts, and to become acquainted with interdisciplinary approaches to cultural study.

The successful pursuit of comparative literature requires study of at least one foreign cultural tradition, with appropriate emphasis on language, literature, and the arts in historical context. Familiarity with the literatures and cultures of other nations goes hand-in-hand with theoretical inquiry and reflection on basic issues, such as the nature and value of storytelling in literature and other arts—for instance, film, song, and painting. Translation between languages and among different arts represents another basic center of theory and practice. Individual courses of study may extend into other disciplines, including history, philosophy, linguistics, anthropology, law, and psychology.

In conjunction with an appropriate overall curriculum, the major in comparative literature can offer effective preparation for professional studies in fields such as law and business, or for employment in fields that value critical thinking and international understanding. It also offers excellent preparation for graduate work in the humanities.

The B.A. in comparative literature requires the following course work.

COMMON COURSES

All students take these, for a total of 18 s.h.

048:025 Introduction to Critical Reading and Viewing	3 s.h.
048:040-048:041 Major Texts in World Literature I - Major Texts of World Literature II	6 s.h.
048:095 Undergraduate Seminar	3 s.h.
048:100 Introduction to Criticism and Theory	3 s.h.
Comparative literature elective(s) numbered above 048:050	3 s.h.

Tracks

Students take a total of 15 s.h. of work in one track.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE TRACK

To complete this track, students take 9 s.h. of courses in one foreign literature, read in the original language. One course in composition and conversation may count toward the major. (Language courses taken to complete the General Education Program may not be included.)

Students take an additional 6 s.h. of course work in cinema and comparative literature or a related area (e.g., English and American literature, film, linguistics, anthropology, philosophy, history) or in a second foreign literature.

LITERATURE AND ARTS TRACK

To complete this track, students take 12 s.h. of advanced work (100-level or above) in a single fine arts area. They may count one course in advanced performance, practice, or production toward the major, with consent of the director of undergraduate studies.

One additional 3 s.h. course must focus explicitly on arts and literature in comparative perspective.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

B.A. in Cinema

Note: The major in cinema requires only one course in film, video, and digital production: 048:034 Modes of Film and Video Production. This is the only production course included in the assurances of the Four-Year Graduation Plan. More advanced courses in production may be used to complete the major, but admission to these courses is limited and depends on student achievement in prerequisite production courses.

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least two courses in the major (including 048:001 Introduction to Film Analysis, and 048:025 Introduction to Critical Reading and Viewing or 048:034 Modes of Film and Video Production) and at least half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least six courses in the major (including 048:001 Introduction to Film Analysis, 048:025 Introduction to Critical Reading and Viewing, and 048:034 Modes of Film and Video Production), and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least nine courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A. in Comparative Literature

Note: Because the major in comparative literature may require competency in a language in which the student will take advanced work, the student may need to acquire this language competency through course work early in the plan. Such course work is not reflected in these checkpoints.

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least two courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least six courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least nine courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

To graduate with honors in cinema or comparative literature, students must complete an honors thesis. They also must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires that students maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). Once an honors student has completed 75 s.h., he or she submits a written proposal for the honors thesis. The proposal must be approved by the supervising faculty member who heads the student's honors thesis committee, which must be composed of at least two faculty members from the Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature. The student must complete the honors thesis over the next two consecutive semesters. For specific honors thesis requirements in film and video production, film studies, or comparative literature, contact the Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature.

Minor in Cinema

The minor in cinema requires 15 s.h. of University of Iowa cinema courses, including at least 12 s.h. in courses numbered 048:051 and above. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students must choose courses with a primary emphasis in cinema. Contact the Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature for a list of approved courses.

Minor in Comparative Literature

The minor in comparative literature requires 15 s.h. of University of Iowa comparative literature courses, including at least 12 s.h. in courses numbered 048:040 and above. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students must choose courses with a primary emphasis in comparative literature. Contact the Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature for a list of approved courses.

Graduate Programs

The department offers a Master of Arts and a Doctor of Philosophy in film studies; a Master of Arts and a Doctor of Philosophy in comparative literature; a Master of Fine Arts in film and video production; and a Master of Fine Arts in translation.

Master of Arts in Film Studies

The Master of Arts in film studies requires 36 s.h. of graduate credit. The focus is on film in an international context, with required distributions of course work in U.S. cinema, European cinema, world cinemas, and film production, documentary film, animation, or experimental film.

Students meet formal degree requirements with course work and a written examination on two areas, which the student selects from one list focusing on film theory and another list focusing on film history. Exams are offered annually in January.

Master of Arts in Comparative Literature

The Master of Arts in comparative literature requires 36 s.h. of graduate credit. The focus is on literature in an international context, with concentration on two or more national literatures and on the theory and study of literature in general. In consultation with faculty advisors, students combine courses in comparative literature and allied departments to design a coherent program of study.

Students satisfy formal degree requirements with a written examination on reading lists that they and their advisors agree upon, or with a written thesis and an oral examination on the thesis and its relation to problems and issues in comparative literature. The M.A. also may be awarded upon successful completion of the comprehensive examination for the Ph.D.

Master of Fine Arts in Film and Video Production

The Master of Fine Arts in film and video production requires 54 s.h. of graduate credit earned in creative and scholarly course work aimed at producing a body of artistic work in film and/or video. A comprehensive exam on an aspect of film and/or video theory in January of the second year, an oral portfolio review, a thesis paper, and a creative thesis project complete the formal degree requirements.

Master of Fine Arts in Translation

The Master of Fine Arts in translation requires 48 s.h. of graduate credit, of which 24 s.h. must be earned at The University of Iowa. The program promotes a specialized form of writing, the study of languages and cultures, and the dissemination of international literatures through a curriculum that combines the creative, linguistic, and critical aspects of translation.

Students develop their skills, knowledge, and critical ability with courses in original-language literary texts, critical theory, and creative writing. Required participation in the Iowa Translation Workshop provides hands-on practice in translation every semester. Students also have opportunities to work closely on translation projects with visiting writers in the International Writing Program.

Course work includes study of foreign literature(s), creative writing, translation studies, and criticism. M.F.A. students may expect to take courses offered by foreign language departments and the creative writing programs as well as comparative literature courses.

M.F.A. students must complete a thesis--usually a book-length collection of poems, literary essays, or stories, or a short novel--translated from the original language into English and accompanied by a critical introduction.

Admission to the program is granted on the basis of a submitted portfolio, including translations into English and original writing in English, or a paper on a literary topic, as well as supporting evidence of competence.

Doctor of Philosophy in Film Studies

The Doctor of Philosophy in film studies requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit earned in course work concentrated in film history and film theory. With the consultation and guidance of a faculty committee, students prepare for a qualifying examination in the first or second year, formulate and pursue a plan of study proposing areas to be mastered before the dissertation, present a predissertation exam on these areas, and write a dissertation in the area of advanced research.

Doctor of Philosophy in Comparative Literature

The Doctor of Philosophy in comparative literature requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. Students study at least three literatures, one in historical depth and two others in limited areas of specialization. Students are encouraged to include an interdisciplinary area of concentration. All students devote a portion of their programs to comparative study, bringing the several areas into focus. Specific areas and interrelations of areas are determined by the student in consultation with appropriate faculty members.

The Ph.D. dissertation should demonstrate the candidate's ability to write a substantial piece of scholarship or criticism. Translation of a work of sufficient significance and linguistic complexity, preceded by a critical introduction, may serve as an acceptable dissertation. The final oral exam centers on the dissertation and its background.

Admission

The study of literature across linguistic and geographical borders calls for training in languages. A thorough knowledge of at least one foreign language is required for admission to the M.A. program; knowledge of at least two foreign languages is a prerequisite for Ph.D. study.

For more information, see the procedural guide for graduate students in comparative literature, available from the department.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Resources

Institute for Cinema and Culture

The Institute for Cinema and Culture promotes international film culture on the University of Iowa campus by supplementing the curriculum of the Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature with regular film screenings and public events, often in collaboration with other departments and programs. The institute helps departments, faculty members, and student groups present films and relevant speakers to an interdisciplinary audience. It is especially dedicated to providing Iowa students and faculty members the opportunity to view and study important films from nations and cultures otherwise underrepresented in course offerings and at local theaters.

Each semester the institute offers 048:112 Proseminar in Cinema and Culture, a course with public screenings devoted to a single national cinema or a focused topic in world film. It also regularly sponsors a range of campus film festivals and hosts the Cinematheque series, which showcases rare and unusual films each semester.

Iowa Translation Workshop

The Iowa Translation Workshop (048:260) is offered every semester as a required course for M.F.A. students in translation. The workshop is closely coordinated with the International Writing Program, which brings 30 or more writers from other countries to Iowa City each fall semester for 10 weeks of activities on the University of Iowa campus. Students in the fall Iowa Translation Workshop may work closely with one or more writers in translating their works into English. Translators from outside the M.F.A. in translation program also may join the workshop, with the instructor's consent.

Graduate degrees: M.A. in Classics, Greek, Latin; Ph.D. in Classics

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~classics>

Classics is the study of ancient languages, literatures, and cultures of the Mediterranean basin from approximately 2000 B.C.E. to 600 C.E. It embraces three civilizations--the Minoan-Mycenaean, Greek, and Roman; two languages--Greek and Latin; and a geographical area including Europe, North Africa, Egypt, and the Near East. The Department of Classics provides a basis for understanding and interpreting the contribution of the ancient world to life in the present and the future.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts in ancient civilization and in classical languages (Greek and/or Latin). Both majors provide a solid foundation for graduate study in classics, European literature, law, history, art, philosophy, and religion. Graduates have become secondary school and university teachers, lawyers, doctors, librarians, museum curators, and bankers.

The department also offers minors in ancient civilization, classical languages, Greek, and Latin.

Bachelor of Arts in Classical Languages

The Bachelor of Arts in classical languages requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 36 s.h. of work for the major. The program trains students to read the ancient Greek and/or Latin languages and acquaints them with the major works of Greek and/or Roman literature.

Students learn about the history of ancient Greece of the eighth through the fourth centuries B.C.E., where most of the modern Western notions of political, artistic, and social life are rooted. They also develop an understanding of the Roman Republic and Empire, when Rome established its hegemony over the Mediterranean basin, laid the foundation of law for the Western World, and spread Greece's culture to the West.

The major requires the following course work. Transfer credit is evaluated on an individual basis. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Intermediate or advanced Greek and/or Latin courses (20G:011 through 20G:199, 20L:011 through 20L:199)	18 s.h.
Greek or Latin prose composition (20G:176 or 20L:171)	3 s.h.
Additional Department of Classics courses at any level, with no more than 9 s.h. in 20E courses	15 s.h.

The advanced undergraduate Greek courses 20G:120 Archaic and Classical Periods I and 20G:121 Archaic and Classical Periods II, and 20G:122 Classical and Hellenistic Periods I and 20G:123 Classical and Hellenistic Periods II are offered every other year and may be repeated or taken in any sequence. They cover a broad range of prose and poetry in historical context.

The advanced undergraduate Latin courses 20L:120 Latin Literature of the Republic I and 20L:121 Latin Literature of the Republic II, and 20L:122 Latin Literature of the Empire I and 20L:123 Latin Literature of the Empire II are offered every other year and may be repeated or taken in any sequence. They cover a range of Latin prose and poetry in historical context from the mid-Republic to the third century C.E.

To comply with the Board of Regents, State of Iowa, policy on student outcomes assessment, the Department of Classics has established a method to assess the achievement level of B.A. students completing one of the department's majors. Every student maintains a portfolio that details his or her progress in attaining the objectives of the major. The student submits the portfolio to the undergraduate advisor by midterm of the semester in which the student intends to graduate. Formal approval of the portfolio is required for graduation. Consult the undergraduate advisor for details.

B.A. with Teacher Licensure in Latin

For information about Teacher Education Programs and licensure, contact the Office of Teacher Education and Student Services in the College of Education; see Education in the Catalog.

Bachelor of Arts in Ancient Civilization

The Bachelor of Arts in ancient civilization requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 30 s.h. of work for the major. The program is sponsored by the Departments of Classics, History, and Religious Studies and the School of Art and Art History. It concentrates on the ancient civilization of the Mediterranean world, draws on courses offered by various University departments, and allows students to create individual programs.

Although the major is not preparation for graduate study in classics, it provides a sound basis for preparing teachers at the secondary school and junior college levels. It also provides a sound liberal arts and sciences basis for preprofessional training in law, medicine, and other professions.

The major requires the following course work. At least 15 of the required 30 s.h. must be earned in advanced work (20E courses at the 100 level, and Latin and Greek language courses numbered 20G:011 and 20G:012, or 20L:011 and 20L:012, or above). Transfer credit is evaluated on an individual basis. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Ancient art	6 s.h.
Ancient history	6 s.h.
Ancient philosophy or religion	6 s.h.
Classics, may be 20E courses or Latin or Greek language courses	9 s.h.
Appropriate courses in art, history, philosophy, religion, or linguistics	3 s.h.

To comply with the Board of Regents, State of Iowa, policy on student outcomes assessment, the Department of Classics has established a method to assess the achievement level of B.A. students completing one of the department's majors. Every student maintains a portfolio that details his or her progress in attaining the objectives of the major. The student submits the portfolio to the undergraduate advisor by midterm of the semester in which the student intends to graduate. Formal approval of the portfolio is required for graduation. Consult the undergraduate advisor for details.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

B.A. in Ancient Civilization

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least two courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least six courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least eight courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A. in Classical Languages: Greek and Latin

Before the third semester begins: 20L:001 Elementary Latin I and 20L:002 Elementary Latin II, or 20G:001 Classical and New Testament Greek I and 20G:002 Classical and New Testament Greek II; and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: two or three more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program requires that students maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). Classics seniors who are members of the Honors Program and who have attained a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in their first three years of classics courses may graduate with honors in classical languages or ancient civilization by completing two courses in honors reading, one each semester of the senior year, for 3 s.h. of credit each. The readings and discussions are on an ancient author or a field in ancient history or literature chosen by students and the instructor. At the end of the second semester, students present a long paper, which is read and judged for honors by two members of the department. Students who write an honors thesis in classical languages must be enrolled at the same time in the appropriate advanced language courses.

Minor in Ancient Civilization

The minor in ancient civilization requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including at least 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. A maximum of 6 s.h. of work for another University of Iowa major, minor, or certificate and up to 3 s.h. of lower-level transfer credit may be counted toward the minor.

Department of Classics courses in Greek numbered 20G:011 Second-Year Greek I or above and in Latin numbered 20L:011 World of Cicero or above are considered advanced for the minor in ancient civilization. Appropriate courses in art, religion, history, and philosophy may be counted toward the minor in ancient civilization, if approved by the undergraduate advisor. Students who have taken high school Greek or Latin should consult the advisor.

Minor in Classical Languages

The minor in classical languages requires a minimum of 18 s.h., including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count one relevant classics department course taught in English (prefix 20E) toward the minor. A maximum of 6 s.h. of work for another University of Iowa major, minor, or certificate and up to 3 s.h. of lower-level transfer credit may be counted toward the minor.

The sequences 20G:011 Second-Year Greek I and 20G:012 Second-Year Greek II, 20L:011 World of Cicero and 20L:012 Golden Age of Roman Poetry, and Department of Classics courses numbered 100 and above are considered advanced for the minor in classical languages. Students may satisfy the requirements for the minor by completing 20G:011 Second-Year Greek I and 20G:012 Second-Year Greek II, 20L:011 World of Cicero and 20L:012 Golden Age of Roman Poetry, plus two 100-level courses, one of which may be a relevant 20E course in Greek or Roman history, culture, or literature. For a list of relevant courses, contact the undergraduate advisor. Students who have taken high school Greek or Latin should consult the advisor.

Minor in Greek

The minor in Greek requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including at least 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count one relevant classics department course taught in English (prefix 20E) toward the minor. A maximum of 6 s.h. of work for another University of Iowa major, minor, or certificate and up to 3 s.h. of lower-level transfer credit may be counted toward the minor.

The sequence 20G:011 Second-Year Greek I and 20G:012 Second-Year Greek II, and Department of Classics courses numbered 100 and above are considered advanced for the minor in Greek. Students may satisfy the advanced courses requirement for the minor by completing 20G:011 Second-Year Greek I and 20G:012 Second-Year Greek II plus two 100-level courses, one of which may be a relevant 20E course in Greek history, culture, or literature. For a list of relevant courses, contact the undergraduate advisor. Students who have taken high school Greek should consult the advisor.

Minor in Latin

The minor in Latin requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including at least 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count one relevant classics department course taught in English (prefix 20E) toward the minor. A maximum of 6 s.h. of work for another University of Iowa major, minor, or certificate and up to 3 s.h. of lower-level transfer credit may be counted toward the minor.

The sequence 20L:011 World of Cicero and 20L:012 Golden Age of Roman Poetry, and Department of Classics courses numbered 100 and above are considered advanced for the minor in Latin. Students may satisfy the advanced courses requirement for the minor by completing 20L:011 World of Cicero and 20L:012 Golden Age of Roman Poetry plus two 100-level courses, one of which may be a relevant 20E course in Roman history, culture, or literature. For a list of relevant courses, contact the undergraduate advisor. Students who have taken high school Latin should consult the advisor.

Language for Nonmajors

Nonmajors who wish to study Greek or Latin and who have background in either language should take either the Greek Foreign Language Placement Test or the Latin Foreign Language Placement Test, offered during summer orientation programs and monthly by Evaluation and Examination Service. The tests help determine the level at which a student should begin Greek or Latin language study at The University of Iowa.

Students may fulfill the Foreign Language requirement of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program with either Greek or Latin, as follows.

GREEK

Students with no previous knowledge of Greek may fulfill the Foreign Language requirement of the General Education Program with the following sequence.

20G:001 Classical and New Testament Greek I	3-5 s.h.
20G:002 Classical and New Testament Greek II	3-5 s.h.
20G:011 Second-Year Greek I	3 s.h.
20G:012 Second-Year Greek II	3 s.h.

LATIN

Students with no previous knowledge of Latin may fulfill the Foreign Language requirement of the General Education Program with the following sequence.

20L:001 Elementary Latin I	3-5 s.h.
20L:002 Elementary Latin II	3-5 s.h.
20L:011 World of Cicero	3 s.h.
20L:012 Golden Age of Roman Poetry	3 s.h.

Some students may be able to substitute 20L:005 Accelerated Latin for 20L:001 and 20L:002 in the sequence above. Students who have taken 20L:001 and 20L:002 should not enroll in 20L:005.

Postbaccalaureate Certificate in Classics

The Postbaccalaureate Certificate in Classics requires 18 s.h. in Department of Classics courses numbered 100 and above (upper-level and graduate courses). The program is designed for students who have a baccalaureate and wish further study in Greek and Latin in order to be competitive for admission to a graduate program in classics. Entry to most graduate programs requires study of both Latin and Greek, normally a minimum of three years in one language and two years in the other.

The certificate is designed to be completed in two semesters by students who enter with two years of Latin and one to two years of Greek, or vice versa. It requires 18 s.h. in Department of Classics courses numbered 100 or above (upper-level and graduate courses), including at least 12 of the required 18 s.h. must be earned in Greek and Latin language courses. The remaining 6 s.h. may be earned in approved advanced 20E courses. Transfer credit is not accepted toward the certificate. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 to remain in good standing and complete the program.

A suggested plan of study for a student who enters the program with two years of Latin and one year of Greek is as follows.

Fall semester:

20E:198 Postbaccalaureate Seminar	0 s.h.
20G:011 Second-Year Greek I	3 s.h.
20L:120 Latin Literature of the Republic I	3 s.h.
20L:171 Elementary Latin Composition	3 s.h.

Spring semester:

20G:012 Second-Year Greek II	3 s.h.
20L:121 Latin Literature of the Republic II	3 s.h.
One elective with prefix 20E, 20G, or 20L numbered 100 or above	3 s.h.

A suggested plan of study for a student who enters the program with two years of Latin and two years of Greek is as follows.

Fall semester:

20E:198 Postbaccalaureate Seminar	0 s.h.
20G:120 Archaic and Classical Periods I	3 s.h.
20L:120 Latin Literature of the Republic I	3 s.h.
20L:171 Elementary Latin Composition	3 s.h.

Spring semester:

20G:121 Archaic and Classical Periods II	3 s.h.
20L:121 Latin Literature of the Republic II	3 s.h.
One elective with prefix 20E, 20G, or 20L numbered 100 or above	3 s.h.

Students who complete the program successfully receive a certificate from the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and a letter from the Department of Classics.

Admission

Applicants must have a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university and a minimum of two years of language study (two years of Latin or two years of Greek, or one year of each). In unusual circumstances, students with less language preparation may be admitted.

Applicants who are not enrolled in a graduate or professional program may apply to The University of Iowa as undergraduate transfer students; they must state on their application that they are applying to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences for admission to the classics postbaccalaureate certificate program. They must submit transcripts confirming preparation for certificate language study, a statement of purpose, scores on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test, a writing sample, and three letters of recommendation from faculty members at their baccalaureate institution.

Graduate Programs

The department offers a Master of Arts in classics, Greek, and Latin; and a Doctor of Philosophy in classics.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in classics, Greek, or Latin requires a minimum of 30 s.h. in courses numbered 101 and above. Students may count a maximum of 12 s.h. earned in courses numbered 101-199 toward the degree. Courses taken to compete the Postbaccalaureate Certificate in Classics do not count toward the degree.

Students must pass a sight examination in the language(s) studied and an examination on literature and history.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in classics requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit, including the courses listed below (27 s.h.). Students may count no more than 12 s.h. earned in courses numbered 101-199 toward the degree. Courses taken to complete the Postbaccalaureate Certificate in Classics may not be counted toward the degree.

Students also must take precomprehensive and comprehensive examinations and write a dissertation.

Facilities

The University of Iowa Main Library and the Art Library house extensive collections of classical texts and uninterrupted runs of classical periodicals from 1850 that facilitate research in the major areas of Greek and Roman civilization. The Department of Classics has a varied collection of slides on classical subjects and a small library of reference works, texts, and issues of classical and archaeological journals. The department's classical museum contains a small collection of coins, vases, and facsimiles in bronze from Mycenae, Pompeii, and Herculaneum.

The University is a supporting institution of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens, the American Academy in Rome, and the Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies in Rome. Consult the director of undergraduate studies for more information.

The department offers students the opportunity to participate in an archaeological dig during the summer. Contact the Department of Classics in mid-February for details.

Adjunct instructors in practicum instruction: Barbara Anderson, Emily Andrews, Julie Bridges, Paige Burden, Margaret Christiansen, Debora Downey, Suzanne Dunn, Jessica Egge, Kelly Macauley Frost, Barbara A. Gienapp, Daniel Hansen, Diana Hanson, Emily Hart, Rebecca Hubbard, Maura Kenworthy, Judith Knabe, Marsha Barth Leick, Maggie Lenkowski, Mary Lowder, Mary F. Lukas, Beth MacPherson, Joan D. Marttila, Elizabeth Merrifield, Rebecca R. Miller, Kelly Neppi, Aaron Packer, Ann Perreau, Debra K. Robin, Janette Rogers, Katherine Emerich Seerveld, Sandra D. Show, Christine Troxell, Michael Tyskind, Tanya Van Voorst, Gina Wiley

Undergraduate degree: B.A. in Speech and Hearing Science

Graduate degrees: M.A. in Speech Pathology and Audiology, Ph.D. in Speech and Hearing Science, Au.D.

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~comsci/>

The courses and degree programs of the Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders are planned to meet the needs of students preparing for careers in clinical service, college and university teaching, and research concerned with speech, language, or hearing processes and disorders. The department also offers courses for students with vocational and professional goals in other fields--for example, engineering, psychology, education, speech, theatre arts, dentistry, and medicine--whose preparation may be enriched by the study of speech and hearing processes and their disorders.

Advanced degree holders in communication sciences and disorders provide clinical services for people with speech, hearing, or language problems in hospitals, community clinics, rehabilitation facilities, elementary and secondary schools, and private practice. They teach in colleges and universities and conduct research in laboratories concerned with communication processes and disorders.

The department's professional programs leading to the M.A. or Au.D. are accredited by the Council on Academic Accreditation of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA).

Undergraduate Program

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts in speech and hearing science. The program emphasizes the normal processes of speech, hearing, and language.

The Master of Arts or Doctor of Audiology is the minimum level of preparation for persons seeking professional careers in communication sciences and disorders. The undergraduate curriculum leading to the B.A. in speech and hearing science does not qualify an individual to work professionally in the field. Instead, it is designed primarily to prepare students for graduate work. It also may be pursued by students earning College of Liberal Arts and Sciences degrees who are not seeking careers in speech pathology and audiology.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in speech and hearing science requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 55-56 s.h. of work for the major. Requirements include nine core courses offered by the department and eight cognate courses offered by other departments. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. Transfer students must complete a minimum of 15 s.h. toward the major at The University of Iowa. Requirements for the major are as follows.

CORE COURSES

All of these:

003:015 Introduction to Speech and Hearing Processes and Disorders	3 s.h.
003:110 Phonetics: Theory and Applications	3 s.h.
003:111 Basic Acoustics for Speech and Hearing	3 s.h.
003:112 Anatomy and Physiology of Speech Production	4 s.h.
003:113 Introduction to Hearing Science	4 s.h.
003:116 Basic Neuroscience for Speech and Hearing	3 s.h.

003:117 Psychology of Language	3 s.h.
003:118 Language Development	3 s.h.
003:185 Hearing Loss and Audiometry	3 s.h.

COGNATE COURSES

Students may choose cognate courses that help fulfill the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Both of these:

031:001 Elementary Psychology	3 s.h.
103:100 Introduction to Linguistics	3 s.h.

One of these:

07P:025/22S:025 Elementary Statistics and Inference	3 s.h.
07P:143/22S:102 Introduction to Statistical Methods	3 s.h.
22S:030 Statistical Methods and Computing	3 s.h.
22S:101 Biostatistics	3 s.h.

One of these:

004:007 General Chemistry I	3 s.h.
004:011 Principles of Chemistry I	4 s.h.
029:008 Basic Physics (preferably with lab)	4 s.h.
029:011 College Physics I	4 s.h.

One of these:

031:013 Introduction to Clinical Psychology	3 s.h.
031:050 Psychology of Aging	3 s.h.
031:063 Abnormal Psychology: Health Professions	3 s.h.
042:108 Basic Aspects of Aging	3 s.h.

One of these:

07P:106 Child Development	3 s.h.
031:014 Introduction to Developmental Science	3 s.h.

One of these:

002:002 Introductory Animal Biology (with lab)	4 s.h.
002:010 Principles of Biology I (with lab)	4 s.h.

One of these:

22M:015 Mathematics for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:016 Calculus for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:025 Calculus I	4 s.h.

First-year calculus is encouraged, particularly for those who are interested in pursuing a graduate degree in audiology.

CLINICAL OBSERVATION

Students have the opportunity and are encouraged to obtain 25 hours of supervised clinical observation, a prerequisite for participation in clinical practicums at the graduate level. This requirement is satisfied by completion of independent observations or required observations made for elective departmental courses.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Note: The major requires specific mathematics and science competencies that may be satisfied with courses approved for the General Education Program.

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: three courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: nine courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: 12 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

The junior/senior-year program leading to the B.A. with honors in speech and hearing science is open to students who, at the beginning of their junior year, have completed at least 10 s.h. of course work that can be counted toward a major in the department and have earned a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in all course work at the University.

At any time during their undergraduate study, students who have a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and who did not enter the University as honors students may enroll in the University of Iowa Honors Program (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). Students with a g.p.a. of 3.50 or higher may enter the department's honors program upon recommendation of the departmental honors advisor. To graduate with honors, students must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program and must complete both 003:097 Honors Seminar and 003:098 Honors Thesis. Students register for 003:097 Honors Seminar in the spring of their junior year and for 003:098 Honors Thesis in both fall and spring of their senior year.

Graduate Programs

The department offers a Master of Arts in speech pathology and audiology, with two emphases: research (general), and professional (speech-language pathology). It also offers the Doctor of Audiology (Au.D.), and a Doctor of Philosophy in speech and hearing science.

The M.A. with research emphasis and the Ph.D. are designed to train scholar-researchers; they do not provide preparation for professional work as speech-language pathologists or audiologists.

The M.A. with professional emphasis and the Au.D. provide training for individuals who wish to do clinical work in speech-language pathology or audiology. Graduates of the M.A. professional emphasis program meet all academic and practicum requirements for clinical certification by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA) and for licensure by the State of Iowa. The Au.D. is required for ASHA national certification in audiology. Students preparing for clinical positions in public schools must meet school licensure or certification requirements of the states in which they plan to work. See "M.A. with Professional Licensure" later in this section.

Master of Arts with Research Emphasis

The Master of Arts in speech pathology and audiology with research emphasis (general emphasis) requires a minimum of 38 s.h. of graduate credit. The program is designed for students who intend to pursue a Ph.D. or who seek additional education but do not intend to work professionally in the United States as speech-language pathologists or audiologists. It typically includes a substantial portion of the courses in the M.A. with professional emphasis and Au.D. curricula.

Students in the M.A. research emphasis program are required to complete a thesis and defend their research successfully at a final oral examination.

The program typically requires two years to complete. Specific course work required depends on the student's background and interests.

Master of Arts with Professional Emphasis

The Master of Arts in speech pathology and audiology with professional emphasis in speech-language pathology requires a minimum of 38 s.h. of graduate credit. The program prepares clinicians in speech-language pathology or audiology to be able to function independently in a variety of clinical settings. Graduates of the program meet all academic and practicum requirements for clinical certification by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association and for licensure by the State of Iowa. The program is designed to ensure that upon graduation, the student will meet requirements for immediate professional employment.

M.A. students usually have a background of undergraduate courses in speech and hearing science, psychology of language, and human behavior that is equivalent to an undergraduate major in speech and hearing science at The University of Iowa.

Before registering in the program, entering M.A. students receive descriptive materials about basic science core courses considered to be required preparation for the M.A. program, and required M.A. clinical core courses for which the department may accept comparable courses taken at the undergraduate level. Decisions about incorporating background course work in these areas are made by the faculty advisor in consultation with the student and the instructors of the basic science or clinical core courses. Entering students must have completed the following courses or their equivalents.

003:110 Phonetics: Theory and Applications	3 s.h.
003:111 Basic Acoustics for Speech and Hearing	3 s.h.
003:112 Anatomy and Physiology of Speech Production	4 s.h.
003:113 Introduction to Hearing Science	4 s.h.
003:116 Basic Neuroscience for Speech and Hearing	3 s.h.
003:117 Psychology of Language	3 s.h.
or
003:218 Psycholinguistics	3 s.h.
003:118 Language Development	1-3 s.h.
003:185 Hearing Loss and Audiometry	3 s.h.
07P:025 Elementary Statistics and Inference	3 s.h.
Biology, physics, chemistry, or mathematics courses (must include at least one biology, physics, or chemistry course)	6 s.h.
Behavioral science or social science courses (must include at least one psychology course)	6 s.h.

Students pursuing the M.A. with professional emphasis must complete at least 4 s.h. of work related to research. This may be accomplished by any combination of enrollment in seminars (2 s.h. each) and/or research hours. Completion of the research hours may consist of work toward a thesis or preparation of a paper involving one or a combination of the following: literature review, prospectus development, and presentation of data. A paper is required at the end of each semester's enrollment. An exception to this requirement can be made in the case of research hours leading to a thesis.

Candidates for an M.A. with professional emphasis in speech-language pathology are not required to complete a thesis, although all students demonstrating research aptitude and interest are encouraged to do so. Students who do not elect the thesis option are required to take final written comprehensive examinations.

A typical M.A. professional emphasis program usually takes two calendar years to complete but may take longer, depending on the student's background and personal interests.

CORE REQUIREMENTS

All students seeking an M.A. with professional emphasis in speech-language pathology must take the following.

003:135 Foundations of Clinical Practice I	1-3 s.h.
003:136 Foundations of Clinical Practice II	1 s.h.
003:137 Foundations of Clinical Practice III	1 s.h.

In addition, they must take the following courses unless they completed equivalent courses as undergraduates.

003:114 Introduction to Voice Disorders	2 s.h.
003:115 Structural Disorders	2 s.h.
003:116 Basic Neuroscience for Speech and Hearing	3 s.h.
003:140 Manual Communication	1 s.h.
003:145 Developmental Speech and Language Disorders	3 s.h.
003:146 Neurogenic Disorders of Language	3 s.h.

003:147 Neurogenic Disorders of Speech	2 s.h.
003:183 Introduction to Stuttering	2 s.h.
003:185 Hearing Loss and Audiometry	3 s.h.
003:244 Rehabilitative Audiology	3 s.h.

Students must take 003:510 Seminar: Introduction to Research in Speech and Hearing (1 s.h.) during the fall semester of their first year.

They must take 003:515 Proseminar (0 s.h.) during the fall and spring semesters of their first year.

Also required are additional semester hours of practicum registration sufficient to meet supervised, direct clinical experience requirements for the Certificate of Clinical Competence of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association and the Iowa license, and to provide broad, supervised practicum experience.

In addition to the core requirements listed above, all students preparing to be speech-language pathologists must earn a minimum of 12 s.h. from the following.

003:201 Principles of Voice Production	3 s.h.
003:206 Language Disorders in Children 0-18 Yrs	3 s.h.
003:213 Voice Habilitation	2 s.h.
003:222 Speech and Hearing Anatomy (dissection)	2 s.h.
003:228 Stroboscopy	1 s.h.
003:233 Aphasia	2 s.h.
003:236 Swallowing Disorders	2 s.h.
003:237 Cleft Palate and Related Disorders	2 s.h.
003:260 Designing Assistive Devices	1-3 s.h.
003:282 Phonological Development and Disorders	2 s.h.
003:283 Stuttering	2 s.h.
003:350 Preceptorship in Augmentative Communication	1 s.h.
07E:104 Remedial Methods in Speech and Hearing	2 s.h.

Students also must earn a total of 4 s.h. in 003:590 Research or 4 s.h. in a combination of research and seminar courses.

M.A. with Professional Licensure

M.A. with Licensure to Work Outside Public Schools

A number of states, including Iowa, require a state license in speech-language pathology or audiology for persons who work in settings outside the public schools. Students who meet the requirements listed below for the M.A. in speech pathology and audiology with professional emphasis also meet the academic requirements for the license in Iowa as well as in most other states. In 2007 the requirements to earn American Speech-Language-Hearing Association national certification in audiology changed. Certification now requires a clinical doctoral degree (Doctor of Audiology) or the equivalent. Students preparing for careers in audiology should consult their advisors.

M.A. with Public School Licensure

Students preparing for clinical positions in public schools typically must meet school licensure or certification requirements of the states in which they plan to work. The following criteria meet the requirements for endorsement as speech-language pathologists or audiologists in Iowa and most other states.

- A master's degree with professional emphasis in speech-language pathology or audiology or the equivalent
- Completion of an approved human relations component
- Completion of courses that cover the education of the disabled and the gifted and talented (e.g., exceptional persons, education of the gifted)
- Completion of the requirements in speech-language pathology or audiology and the 20 s.h. professional education sequence, including 07E:104 Remedial Methods in Speech and Hearing and 07E:192 Special Area Student Teaching as a speech-language pathologist or audiologist; course work in the following areas must be completed to meet the professional education sequence:

Curriculum (e.g., reading, methods, curriculum development)

Foundations (e.g., philosophy of education, foundations of education)

Educational measurement (e.g., tests and measurements, measures and evaluations of instruction)

Educational psychology (e.g., educational psychology, counseling theories and techniques)

Special education (e.g., introduction to special education, exceptional persons, learning disabilities)

Child development (e.g., human growth and development, principles and theories of child development, history and theories of early childhood education)

Note: General Education Program courses (e.g., introduction to psychology, sociology, history, literature, and humanities) do not meet the requirements of the professional education sequence.

Doctor of Audiology

The Doctor of Audiology (Au.D.) requires 95 s.h. of graduate credit. Individuals who wish to work as audiologists in the United States must hold a clinical doctoral degree or the equivalent.

The four-year Au.D. program is designed for students with an undergraduate degree in speech and hearing science. Au.D. students must complete the following courses. They may be excused from taking courses whose equivalents they completed successfully during undergraduate study.

22M:016 Calculus for the Biological Sciences (or one semester of calculus)	4 s.h.
003:135 Foundations of Clinical Practice I	1-3 s.h.
003:145 Developmental Speech and Language Disorders	3 s.h.
003:219 Fundamentals of Laboratory Instrumentation	3 s.h.
003:224 System and Signal Theory for Speech and Hearing Science	3 s.h.
003:230 Advanced Hearing Science and Speech Perception	3 s.h.
003:238 Capstone Requirement	1 s.h.
003:240 Hearing Aids I	3 s.h.
003:242 Hearing Aids II	3 s.h.
003:244 Rehabilitative Audiology	3 s.h.
003:245 Pediatric Audiology	3 s.h.
003:246 Advanced Audiology	3 s.h.
003:247 Medical Audiology	2 s.h.
003:249 Cochlear Implants	1-3 s.h.
003:255 Educational Audiology	2 s.h.
003:256 Physiology of Hearing	3-4 s.h.
003:290 Auditory Evoked Potentials	3 s.h.
003:291 Vestibular Assessment and Rehabilitation	3 s.h.
003:292 Advanced Rehabilitative Audiology	3 s.h.
003:311 Clinical Practice in Audiology	2-3 s.h.
07P:243 Intermediate Statistical Methods	4 s.h.
or
171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics	3 s.h.

Students also must select at least one of the following electives. With their advisors' consent, they may substitute other University of Iowa course work to satisfy this requirement.

003:222 Speech and Hearing Anatomy	2 s.h.
003:526 Seminar: Rehabilitative Audiology	2 s.h.
003:538 Seminar: Hearing Science	2 s.h.
07E:104 Remedial Methods in Speech and Hearing	2 s.h.
068:199 Basic Otolaryngologic Science	2 s.h.
132:180 Fundamental Neurobiology	4 s.h.
158:101 Topics in Deaf Studies	3 s.h.
158:110 Teaching Deaf and Hard of Hearing Students	3 s.h.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in speech and hearing science requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The program provides flexible, comprehensive training for scholar-researchers interested in communication processes and their disorders. Students with diverse backgrounds in the natural and behavioral sciences are encouraged to apply and develop their skills in an atmosphere of interdisciplinary research.

The Ph.D. program reflects the broad interests of its multidisciplinary faculty, whose members have diverse backgrounds in speech, language, hearing, engineering, physiology, physics, psychology, linguistics, and bioengineering. Faculty members are committed to an interdisciplinary approach to questions at every level of the speech and language production/perception system.

The purpose of the doctoral program is to provide the integrated knowledge necessary for a productive career in speech-language pathology and audiology, communication science, and related areas.

The department encourages candidates with special interests, goals, or backgrounds to develop individualized programs of study. There is no standard curriculum for the Ph.D.; rather, a program of study is developed by each student in consultation with a faculty committee. The course of study is developed from courses offered by the department, courses in other areas (e.g., physics, engineering, psychology, mathematics, statistics, physiology, neurology, anatomy, and others), and special reading and research experiences.

The following courses are offered by the department of Communication Sciences and Disorders primarily for Ph.D. students. (Students interested in specific areas of research and selected publication citations of the faculty are encouraged to write to the department.)

003:201 Principles of Voice Production	3 s.h.
003:218 Psycholinguistics	3 s.h.
003:219 Fundamentals of Laboratory Instrumentation	3 s.h.
003:224 System and Signal Theory for Speech and Hearing Science	3 s.h.
003:230 Advanced Hearing Science and Speech Perception	3 s.h.
003:251 Biophysics of Speech and Hearing	4 s.h.
003:256 Physiology of Hearing	3-4 s.h.
003:310 Scientific Writing	3 s.h.
003:511 Introduction to Doctoral Research (taken spring of the first year)	1 s.h.

In addition, seminars offered by the department cover a broad range of topics relevant to doctoral study.

Students in the Ph.D. program usually are expected to register for research credit (003:590 Research) during each semester of residence and to register for and participate in 003:515 Proseminar.

Knowledge in each of the areas of hearing, speech, language, mathematics, statistics, computer science, and instrumentation is required of all students. Decisions regarding the extent of this knowledge and how it is obtained (e.g., course work or independent study) are made jointly by the student and the student's faculty committee.

Doctoral students who have not written a master's thesis must complete the equivalent of a master's thesis project as well as the comprehensive examination. They also must successfully complete and submit a dissertation based on original research.

Admission

The Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders has requirements for admission that supplement those specified by the Graduate College. A brief summary of department requirements is presented below. More detailed information is available from the department's director of graduate studies.

All applicants for admission to graduate study in the Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders must complete the Graduate College application form. In addition, they must complete the department's information form, available from the Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

M.A. and Au.D. Admission

The department bases M.A. admission on applicants' credentials relative to those presented by other applicants for the same term. While an undergraduate g.p.a. above 3.20 does not ensure admission, the department admits few applicants with an undergraduate g.p.a. below 3.20.

Completed applications must be received no later than January 1 for entry the next summer session or fall semester. Later applications are considered only in special situations. Applications for spring semester entry are considered only under special circumstances and only if received no later than the preceding November 1.

Ph.D. Admission

Completed applications should be received by January 15 for summer session and fall semester entry. Applicants who want to be considered for graduate appointments must file the admission application by February 1. Applicants usually are notified of action on their admission within six weeks of the application deadline.

Financial Support

The following information applies to all financial appointments administered by the department. For more detailed information, contact the Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders director of graduate studies.

Graduate appointments usually begin only in fall semester. Students beginning study spring semester or summer session are considered for appointments for the following fall semester.

Appointment applications must be received by January 15 to ensure consideration for an appointment beginning the following fall semester. Initial appointment offers generally are made between April 1 and June 1; however, the department continues to make offers after this time.

Scores on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test are required for consideration for financial assistance.

Facilities

Clinical Facilities

The clinical training program benefits greatly from Iowa City's standing as the principal health center of the state, and from the ready availability of health service facilities for clinical training of students in speech-language pathology and audiology.

The University of Iowa Affiliated Speech and Hearing Services include the Wendell Johnson Speech and Hearing Clinic; the division of speech and hearing in the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics (UIHC) Department of Otolaryngology--Head and Neck Surgery; UIHC Consolidated Speech and Swallowing Services, which provides services to the Departments of Neurology, Child Psychiatry, and Otolaryngology--Head and Neck Surgery; speech and hearing services in the Center for Disabilities and Development; Pediatrics Regional Child Health Specialty Clinics; and the audiology and speech pathology service in the Iowa City Veterans Affairs Medical Center. Directors of these programs form the Council on Speech Pathology and Audiology at The University of Iowa.

The Wendell Johnson Speech and Hearing Clinic serves the University and the general public. Included in its services are outpatient evaluation and rehabilitation programs for speech, hearing, and language problems; one-week intensive summer programs in stuttering, language development, reading, and aural rehabilitation; and a six-week summer preschool program for hearing-impaired children. These clinical programs give students supervised clinical experience with a wide variety of speech, hearing, and language disorders.

In addition to the clinical training in the Wendell Johnson Speech and Hearing Clinic, training also may be acquired in supervised clinical practice with elementary school children through various state area education agencies; and in supervised clinical practice in speech, language, and hearing services provided by the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics Consolidated Speech and Swallowing Services, the Regional Child Health Specialty Clinics, Center for Disabilities and Development, and the Veterans Affairs Iowa City Health Care System.

Public and private departments and programs in addition to those mentioned above often contribute to the cooperative professional training, research, and service programs.

Research Facilities

Facilities in the Wendell Johnson Speech and Hearing Center include audiometric testing suites, diagnostic and remediation suites, equipment for diagnosis and therapy, a closed-circuit television system, and laboratories and equipment for acoustic, physiologic, and perceptual studies of speech, and for audiologic, psychoacoustic, and neurophysiologic studies of hearing. Mechanical and electronic shops and trained technical personnel are available for assistance in research instrumentation.

Cooperation with varied departments in the Carver College of Medicine and the College of Dentistry makes additional laboratory facilities available for research on problems in speech and hearing. The participation and cooperation of specialists from various fields, including psychology, child development, education, engineering, statistics, and medicine, further broaden the scope of research activities in speech and hearing.

Communication Sciences and Disorders Courses

For Undergraduates

003:015 Introduction to Speech and Hearing Processes and Disorders

3 s.h.

Speech, language, auditory behavior as fields of scientific study; major types of speech, hearing, language disorders. Offered fall and spring semesters.

003:029 First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.

Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

003:096 Research Practicum arr.

Individual or small group participation in faculty research projects.

003:097 Honors Seminar 2 s.h.

Research topics and procedures in speech and hearing sciences; ongoing faculty research, research opportunities, possible research projects. Requirements: honors standing with intent to complete an honors thesis.

003:098 Honors Thesis 2 s.h.

Close work with a faculty mentor. Prerequisites: 003:097.

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students

003:110 Phonetics: Theory and Applications 3 s.h.

Basic concepts: articulatory and acoustic description of speech sound production, dialect variations, language differences; development of phonetic transcription skills with emphasis on English phonetics, clinical applications to developing and disordered speech. Offered fall semesters.

003:111 Basic Acoustics for Speech and Hearing 3 s.h.

Principles of sound, simple harmonic motion, sound pressure and intensity, decibels, complex waves, Fourier analysis, resonance and filters, distortion, transmission of sound. Offered spring semesters. Requirements: completion of department math requirement.

003:112 Anatomy and Physiology of Speech Production 4 s.h.

Normal anatomy, physiology of structures used to produce speech; principles, methods for instrumental study of speech production. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:110. Corequisites: 003:111, if not taken as a prerequisite.

003:113 Introduction to Hearing Science 4 s.h.

Normal auditory process; anatomy and physiology of auditory system; subjective correlates of auditory stimuli. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:111.

003:114 Introduction to Voice Disorders 2 s.h.

Basic foundations for management of voice disorders. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:112.

003:115 Structural Disorders 2 s.h.

Therapy approaches used to treat speech production and swallowing disorders associated with disorders that affect structure and physiology of the speech and swallowing mechanism; basic knowledge necessary for clinical practice by clinicians who do not specialize in management of patients with head and neck cancer, cleft palate, or neurological disorders. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:110 and 003:112.

003:116 Basic Neuroscience for Speech and Hearing 3 s.h.

Basic anatomy, physiology of central nervous system; emphasis on neural systems involved in normal and disordered communication. Offered fall semesters. Requirements: biology, zoology, or physiology course. Same as 103:177.

003:117 Psychology of Language 3 s.h.

Theoretical, empirical investigations of linguistic behavior; behaviorist, rationalist models in context of formal linguistic structure and context of models of speech perception and production. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 103:100. GE: Social Sciences. Same as 103:172.

003:118 Language Development 1-3 s.h.

Models of children's language acquisition; child language/communication development from infancy through school age, in context of current developmental research. Offered spring semesters. Requirements: (for 003:118) 031:001 and 103:100; (for 103:176) 103:100 or 103:172. GE: Social Sciences. Same as 103:176.

003:119 Clinical Research and Evaluating Treatment Efficacy 2 s.h.

Introduction to design and conduct of research and evidence-based clinical practice, observation and measurement, population sampling, group and single-subject research designs, treatment research, data organization and analysis, and presenting research results in graphic and written form; issues concerning research ethics and the protection of human subjects in research. Recommendations: clinical graduate student in audiology or speech-language pathology.

003:122 Speech Production: Anatomy and Physiology 4 s.h.

Anatomy and physiology of the respiratory, phonatory, and articulatory systems and the systems' roles during speech production; approaches to instrumental assessment of speech physiologic events.

003:140 Manual Communication 1 s.h.

Training in use of sign systems in manual communication.

003:145 Developmental Speech and Language Disorders 3 s.h.

The nature of developmental disorders--basic concepts, including behavioral characteristics, developmental patterns, etiology theories; assessment and intervention principles in phonology, semantics, morphology, syntax. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:015, 003:110 or 103:110, 003:112, and 003:118.

003:146 Neurogenic Disorders of Language 3 s.h.

Language disorders secondary to acquired brain damage in adults; clinical intervention issues. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:015, 003:110 or 103:110, 003:112, and 003:116.

003:147 Neurogenic Disorders of Speech 2 s.h.

Speech disorders secondary to acquired brain damage in adults; clinical intervention issues. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:116.

003:165 Communication Disorders and Aging 2 s.h.

Introduction to speech, language, and hearing processes and disorders among older adults; survey of characteristics of communication and communication breakdown, remediation, and strategies for improving communication with older adults with communication disorders; primarily for nonmajors and service providers other than speech-language pathologists and audiologists. Offered spring semesters of even years. Same as 153:165.

003:183 Introduction to Stuttering 2 s.h.

Theoretical perspectives on the nature of stuttering, including onset and development, basic phenomena, beginning treatment principles. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:112.

003:185 Hearing Loss and Audiometry 3 s.h.

Introduction to profession of audiology; overview of hearing disorders, evaluation, treatment; basic pure-tone and speech audiometry. Offered fall semesters. Corequisites: 003:113, if not taken as a prerequisite.

003:186 Problems: Speech/Hearing Processes and Disorders arr.

For Graduate Students

003:135 Foundations of Clinical Practice I 1-3 s.h.

Basic concepts of clinical practice, including models of diagnosis, fundamentals of clinical data collection and measurement, treatment planning, professional writing. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:015, 003:110 or 103:110, 003:112, 003:118, and 07P:025. Corequisites: 003:145. Requirements: graduate standing.

003:136 Foundations of Clinical Practice II 1 s.h.

Advanced concepts of clinical practice, including principles of human behavior change, clinical decision making, generalization, transfer and maintenance, models of service delivery, ethical practice, advanced professional writing. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:135. Requirements: graduate standing.

003:137 Foundations of Clinical Practice III

1 s.h.

Advanced principles of clinical practice, including risk management, public policy and models of third-party reimbursement, professional issues. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:136. Requirements: graduate standing.

003:201 Principles of Voice Production

3 s.h.

Basic physical, physiological, pedagogical principles in understanding professional, nonprofessional, impaired voice production; vocal anatomy, voice classification; control of loudness, pitch, register, quality; efficient, inefficient use of voice; instrumentation for voice analysis, synthesis. Offered fall semesters of odd years. Same as 025:201.

003:202 Methods of Teaching Voice

3 s.h.

Attitude, musicianship, foreign language aptitude, physical and emotional characteristics; mental images used to modify respiratory, phonatory, articulatory behavior; vocal hygiene; performance anxiety; student-teacher relationships; administration in vocal schools, professional organizations. Offered spring semesters. Same as 025:202.

003:204 Voice for Performers

2 s.h.

Comparison of Kinesthetic techniques for singing and acting voice; relaxation, posture, breathing, tone quality, diction, interpretation. Same as 025:216, 049:201.

003:206 Language Disorders in Children 0-18 Yrs

3 s.h.

Disorders resulting from phonological, semantic, pragmatic, and morphosyntactic deficits; receptive, expressive problems; special assessment and intervention procedures. Offered fall semesters of even years. Prerequisites: 003:145.

003:213 Voice Habilitation

2-3 s.h.

Application of methods of intervention in development, training, rehabilitation of vocal behavior; motor learning, efficacy of treatment strategies, factors affecting compliance with recommended therapy. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:114 or 003:201. Requirements: enrollment in Summer Vocology Institute, Salt Lake City, Utah. Same as 025:356.

003:218 Psycholinguistics

3 s.h.

Theoretical, empirical issues in psycholinguistics; models demonstrating relation of formal language structure to psychological operations used in speech perception and production; laboratory emphasis on paradigmatic research in psycholinguistics. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 103:100. Same as 103:218.

003:219 Fundamentals of Laboratory Instrumentation

3 s.h.

Electrical circuits, emphasis on application to instrumentation used in speech and hearing; laboratory focus on instrumentation. Offered spring semesters.

003:221 Instrumentation for Voice Analysis

2 s.h.

Glottographic, videostroboscopic, electromyographic, and acoustic analysis for assessment of vocal and respiratory function; using these techniques in conjunction with perceptual evaluation of voice; through the Vocology Institute in Utah. Offered summer sessions of even years. Same as 025:357.

003:222 Speech and Hearing Anatomy

2 s.h.

Laboratory course in anatomy of speech and hearing mechanisms; instruction in dissection techniques. Offered summer sessions. Prerequisites: 003:112.

003:224 System and Signal Theory for Speech and Hearing Science

3 s.h.

Principles of linear-systems theory applied to speech and auditory research, including system functions, filter properties, convolution, Fourier Series, Fourier transform. Offered fall semesters. Requirements: introductory calculus.

003:228 Stroboscopy

1 s.h.

How to perform videolaryngoscopy using a rigid scope and applying knowledge of normalcy and pathophysiology; how to interpret findings; describe and report them concisely. Offered summer sessions. Prerequisites: 003:114.

003:230 Advanced Hearing Science and Speech Perception

3 s.h.

Perception of speech and other sounds by human listeners, how these perceptual abilities relate to the physiology of the auditory system; perception of speech by hearing-impaired listeners through hearing aids or cochlear implants. Offered spring semesters. Requirements: (for 003:230) 003:113; (for 103:230) background in phonetics, speech science, and hearing science. Same as 103:230.

- 003:233 Aphasia 2 s.h.
Assessment, diagnosis, and treatment of aphasia and other acquired language and cognition-based communication disorders. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:117 and 003:146. Corequisites: 003:136.
- 003:234 Acquired Cognitive-Communication Disorders arr.
Cognitive, neuropsychological, and social aspects of communication and the management of acquired cognitive-communication disorders associated with traumatic brain injury, right hemisphere damage, and neurodegenerative diseases. Prerequisites: 003:116 and 003:146.
- 003:236 Swallowing Disorders 2 s.h.
Physiology of normal, abnormal swallowing; assessment, treatment of swallowing disorders in adults, children. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:112, 003:115, and 003:116.
- 003:237 Cleft Palate and Related Disorders 2 s.h.
Nature, etiologies, principles of treatment of common disorders associated with cleft lip and palate, associated disorders. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:115.
- 003:238 Capstone Requirement 1 s.h.
Individual work with a faculty member on audiology topics; final Au.D. project. Offered spring semesters.
- 003:240 Hearing Aids I 3 s.h.
Hearing aids, diagnostic procedures; laboratory emphasis on measurement procedures. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:185.
- 003:242 Hearing Aids II 3 s.h.
Evaluation, verification procedures; emphasis on advanced technologies, strategies. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:240.
- 003:244 Rehabilitative Audiology 3 s.h.
Theory, procedures for assessment, rehabilitation of speech, hearing, language deficits of people with hearing impairment. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:145 and 003:185.
- 003:245 Pediatric Audiology 3 s.h.
Theory, procedures for assessment, rehabilitation of pediatric populations; laboratory emphasis on test administration. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:185.
- 003:246 Advanced Audiology 3 s.h.
Theory, procedures for assessment of hearing loss in adult and pediatric populations; experience in test administration through supervised laboratory sessions. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:185.
- 003:247 Medical Audiology 2 s.h.
Genetic, acquired, traumatic pathologies that affect auditory systems; nature, etiology, principles of assessment, treatment. Offered spring semesters of odd years. Prerequisites: 003:185.
- 003:249 Cochlear Implants 1-3 s.h.
Introduction to cochlear implantation; history of cochlear implantation, introduction to cochlear technology, basics of device programming and trouble shooting, candidacy issues, outcomes in children and adults, auditory rehabilitation specific to cochlear recipients, the auditory brainstem implant, future trends in cochlear implantation. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:185 and 003:244.
- 003:251 Biophysics of Speech and Hearing 4 s.h.
Cellular, molecular, and macromechanical description of tissues in the ear and the larynx involved in sound reception and production; basic elements of molecular and cell biology, continuum mechanics, and nonlinear dynamics in the transduction of acoustic waves to tissue vibration to cell response. Offered fall semesters of even years.
- 003:255 Educational Audiology 2 s.h.
Training in skills necessary for working with the school-age population; case management and aural rehabilitation, amplification and classroom hearing technology, identification and assessment practices, federal legislation that affects services. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:185 and 003:244. Requirements: 003:240 for Au.D. students.

- 003:256 Physiology of Hearing 3-4 s.h.
Anatomy of auditory system, cochlear mechanics, electrophysiology of peripheral and central auditory nervous system; laboratory emphasis on physiological techniques for study of ear. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:113 and 003:224.
- 003:260 Designing Assistive Devices 1-3 s.h.
System design (hardware and software) useful in building augmentative and alternative communication devices for the profoundly impaired; opportunity to build systems for theoretical and/or applied purpose; interdisciplinary, clinical perspectives. Offered summer sessions.
- 003:282 Phonological Development and Disorders 2 s.h.
Advanced topics in phonological development and disorders; current theoretical approaches to phonological analysis and typical phonological acquisition applied to assessment and intervention with children who have phonological disorders. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:110 or 103:110, 003:118, 003:135, and 003:145.
- 003:283 Stuttering 2 s.h.
Issues, approaches to treatment of children, adults. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 003:183. Corequisites: 003:135.
- 003:290 Auditory Evoked Potentials 3 s.h.
Introduction to evoked potentials for assessing audiologic function. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 003:219.
- 003:291 Vestibular Assessment and Rehabilitation 1-3 s.h.
Introduction to otoacoustic emissions, vestibular theory, and testing techniques. Offered fall semesters.
- 003:292 Advanced Rehabilitative Audiology 3 s.h.
Current and developing procedures for assessment, habilitation of adults and children with hearing losses. Offered spring semesters.
- 003:301 Practicum: Speech-Language Pathology arr.
Supervised clinical practice. Repeatable. Corequisites: 003:135. Requirements: M.A. professional emphasis.
- 003:302 Practicum: Speech-Language Assessment arr.
Supervised clinical practice involving evaluation of individuals for speech or language impairments. Repeatable. Requirements: M.A. professional emphasis.
- 003:304 Speech Pathology Student Teaching arr.
Supervised teaching and observation in an area of speech pathology in the elementary schools.
- 003:310 Scientific Writing 3 s.h.
Principles of writing for scientific posters, journal articles, grant proposals; effective communication of concepts and data.
- 003:311 Clinical Practice in Audiology arr.
Varied topics relevant to professional issues in audiology clinical practice; presentations by clinical faculty members and guest speakers. Repeatable. Requirements: M.A. professional emphasis or Au.D. enrollment.
- 003:312 Practicum: Hearing Measurement arr.
Evaluation of individuals for hearing impairment and its impact; clinical practice. Repeatable. Requirements: M.A. professional emphasis.
- 003:314 Audiology Student Teaching arr.
Supervised teaching and observation in an area of audiology in the elementary schools.
- 003:315 Clinical Rotations in Audiology arr.
Supervised clinical practice in audiology. Repeatable. Corequisites: 003:311. Requirements: Au.D. second- or third-year enrollment.
- 003:316 Advanced Externship in Audiology arr.

Advanced clinical externship in audiology. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 003:311 and 003:315. Requirements: Au.D. fourth-year enrollment.

003:317 Audiology Business Practice Management 1 s.h.

Introduction to the development and management of an audiology practice; topics include short and long range business planning, general accounting, budgeting, establishing fees for service, coding and third party reimbursement, marketing, professional liability, certification and licensure; business and professional ethics. Requirements: Au.D. second-year or higher enrollment and 3.00 cumulative g.p.a.

003:350 Preceptorship in Augmentative Communication 1 s.h.

Approaches to development of alternate modes of communication for individuals with limited oral communication. Offered fall semesters.

003:510 Seminar: Introduction to Research in Speech and Hearing 1 s.h.

Philosophy of science; basic principles of research; issues in conducting research; review of research opportunities in the department. Offered fall semesters.

003:511 Introduction to Doctoral Research 1 s.h.

Topics related to development and execution of research; doctoral program, use of library, human and animal subject issues, philosophy of science, use of common research tools, reading and writing research papers, research grant preparation. Offered fall and spring semesters.

003:515 Proseminar 0 s.h.

Presentation of research ideas, results by faculty, students. Repeatable.

003:520 Seminar: MA Language 2 s.h.

Research literature related to language. Offered spring semesters of odd years. Repeatable.

003:522 Seminar: Speech 2 s.h.

Topics in speech. Offered fall semesters. Repeatable.

003:526 Seminar: Rehabilitative Audiology 2 s.h.

Theoretical issues, research literature. Offered fall semesters. Repeatable.

003:528 Seminar: Ph.D. Language 2 s.h.

Theoretical issues related to language. Offered spring semesters. Repeatable.

003:538 Seminar: Hearing Science 2 s.h.

Selected topics. Offered fall semesters of even years. Repeatable.

003:590 Research arr.

Repeatable.

Communication Studies

Chair: John Durham Peters

Professors: Leslie Baxter (F. Wendell Miller Professor, Communication Studies/Community and Behavioral Health), Steve Duck (Daniel and Amy Starch Research Chair, Communication Studies/Psychology), Kristine L. Muñoz, John Durham Peters (F. Wendell Miller Professor, Communication Studies/International Programs)

Professors emeriti: Samuel L. Becker, David Depew, Bruce E. Gronbeck (A. Craig Baird Professor of Public Address), Hanno Hardt, Robert Kemp, George Klingler, Donovan J. Ochs

Associate professors: Mark Andrejevic, Shelly Campo (Communication Studies/Community and Behavioral Health), Timothy Havens (Communication Studies/African American Studies), Joy Hayes, David Hingstman, Kembrew McLeod

Assistant professors: Jeff Bennett, Jiyeon Kang, Rachel McLaren, Keli Steuber, Zala Volčič (Communication Studies/Journalism and Mass Communication), Isaac West, Rita Zajacz

Undergraduate degree: B.A. in Communication Studies

Undergraduate nondegree program: Minor in Communication Studies

Graduate degrees: M.A., Ph.D. in Communication Studies

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~commstud>

The Department of Communication Studies focuses on the study of human communication as a social practice. Scholarship and teaching in the department center on the role that human communication processes play in the construction, maintenance, reinforcement, and reformation of various aspects of social, professional, and institutional life.

The department provides a liberal-arts-based undergraduate education that prepares students to meet the complex communication challenges of the 21st century. It provides top-ranked doctoral education and is a national and international leader in research and knowledge dissemination.

The department has three areas of specialization. The rhetoric and discourse specialization focuses on how citizens use public argumentation and other rhetorical processes to bring about cultural, social, and political changes. The media studies specialization focuses on modern media in their cultural, economic, historical, political, and social contexts to understand how society and social relations shape and are shaped by media practices. The interpersonal communication and relationships specialization focuses on how the communicative practices of relating in everyday life construct, shape, sustain, and change who people are as individuals, as well as the quality of their lives.

The Department of Communication Studies encourages exploration of the practical, political, social, and aesthetic dimensions of symbolic exchange and awareness of the relationships among these dimensions. The department has produced many influential scholars and artists and has been a hub for the intersection of programs and projects of the University and other institutions.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts and a minor in communication studies. First-year students interested in pursuing a degree in communication studies are advised at the Academic Advising Center. Students who have earned 24 s.h. or more and have declared the communication studies major are advised in the department by the communication studies academic counselor.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in communication studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 36 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The curriculum is designed to encourage learning that progresses from foundation courses that teach the basics of communication to intermediate and advanced (capstone) courses. Students may choose to build creative combinations of course work that suit their individual learning and career goals.

Students may count up to 50 s.h. of communication studies course work toward credit required for the Bachelor of Arts degree. Guided Independent Study and transfer courses may be accepted as long as the student meets University of Iowa and College of Liberal Arts and Sciences residency requirements and the department approves the courses; a maximum of 15 s.h. of transfer credit may be counted toward the degree.

Students must have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50 in order to enroll in most communication studies courses.

Students work with the department academic counselor to develop study plans that meet the requirements of the communication studies major. They may check their progress toward the degree by logging on to ISIS (Iowa Student Information Services).

Students are encouraged to discuss their career goals and interests with faculty members.

The communications studies major requires 36 s.h., including foundation courses (15 s.h.), intermediate courses (12 s.h.), a capstone course (3 s.h.), and an additional 6 s.h., which may be earned in courses listed under "Intermediate Courses," "Capstone Experience," and/or "Additional Courses" below. Students may not use one course to satisfy more than one requirement for the major.

FOUNDATIONS OF COMMUNICATION

Foundation courses cover introductory concepts in the field of communication. Students must complete five foundation courses (15 s.h.) and should take them early in their studies.

The following foundation courses are appropriate for first-year students. They do not have a minimum grade-point average required for enrollment, and none has prerequisites except 036:017, which requires fulfillment of the General Education rhetoric requirement for enrollment. Students complete three of these, as follows.

One of these:

036:012 Interpersonal Communication	3 s.h.
036:070 Communication Theory in Everyday Life	3 s.h.

One of these:

036:017 Theory and Practice of Argument	4 s.h.
036:030 The Art of Persuading Others	3 s.h.

And this:

036:074 Media and Society	3 s.h.
---------------------------	--------

The fourth and fifth foundation courses are appropriate for second-year students. Enrollment in these courses requires completion of 30 s.h. and a g.p.a. of at least 2.50 for University of Iowa and transfer course work. Students complete both of these.

036:001 Core Concepts in Communication Studies	3 s.h.
036:005 Studying Communication: Methods and Critiques	3 s.h.

INTERMEDIATE COURSES

Intermediate courses cover detailed aspects of the study of communication. Students must complete four intermediate courses (12 s.h.), usually during their third and fourth years of study. They must have completed the five foundation courses listed above and must have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50 in order to enroll in intermediate courses.

At least four of these (12 s.h.):

036:011 Group Communication	3 s.h.
036:016 Business and Professional Communication	3 s.h.
036:022 Introduction to Media Production	4 s.h.
036:040 Communication and Conflict	3 s.h.
036:041 Gender Roles and Communication	3 s.h.
036:042 Intercultural Communication	3 s.h.
036:043 Rhetoric, Science, and Technology	3 s.h.
036:044 Political Communication	3 s.h.
036:048 Transforming Media: From Telegraph to Internet	3 s.h.
036:051 Politics of Popular Culture	3 s.h.
036:053 Secrets, Confidences, and Lies: Privacy Management in Interpersonal Relationships	3 s.h.
036:054 Movements, Protest, Resistance	3 s.h.
036:061 Persuasion in Society	3 s.h.
036:062 Feminist Critical Practice	3 s.h.
036:064 Media, Advertising, and Society	3 s.h.
036:065 Television Criticism	3 s.h.
036:068 Popular Music and Culture	3 s.h.
036:071 Communication and Critical/Cultural Studies	3 s.h.
036:075 Gender, Sexuality, and Media	3 s.h.
036:076 Race, Ethnicity, and Media	3 s.h.
036:080 Radio Production	3 s.h.
036:081 Television Production	3 s.h.
036:083 Networking America: The Cultural History of Broadcasting	3 s.h.
036:085 Media Industries and Organizations	3 s.h.
036:086 Global Media Studies	3 s.h.
036:087 Culture and Intellectual Property Law	3 s.h.
036:088 Media and Democracy	3 s.h.

036:089 Nonverbal Communication	3 s.h.
036:090 Topics in Communication Studies	3 s.h.
036:091 Organizational Communication	3 s.h.
036:094 Topics in Production	3 s.h.
036:095 Queer Rhetorics	3 s.h.

CAPSTONE EXPERIENCE

Students must complete one capstone course (3 s.h.), a faculty-led experience in which they participate directly in producing knowledge, research, or creative work about communication. The capstone experience gives students a chance to synthesize what they have learned about the study of communication.

In order to enroll in a capstone course, students must have completed at least two of the required intermediate courses and must have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50. Most students take the capstone course during their senior year.

One of these (3 s.h.):

036:130 Performing Culture, Language, and Literature	3 s.h.
036:140 Communication and Relationships	3 s.h.
036:142 Advanced Intercultural Communication	3 s.h.
036:143 Classical Rhetoric and Greek Culture	3 s.h.
036:145 Argument and Law	3 s.h.
036:146 Issues in Rhetoric and Culture	3 s.h.
036:147 Family Communication	3 s.h.
036:150 Cultural History of Advertising	3 s.h.
036:151 Cultural History of Television	3 s.h.
036:152 Latin American Media	3 s.h.
036:153 Communication Technologies in History	3 s.h.
036:155 Visual Rhetoric	3 s.h.
036:156 Feminist Visual Rhetoric	3 s.h.
036:157 Advanced Topics in Communication Studies	3 s.h.
036:158 Rhetoric and Past Public Controversy	3 s.h.
036:160 The Talk of Everyday Life	3 s.h.
036:163 The Dark Side of Interpersonal Communication	3 s.h.
036:165 Criticism and Public Culture	3 s.h.
036:166 Life-Span Communication	3 s.h.
036:167 Communication, Cognition, and Emotion	3 s.h.
036:168 Rhetoric of the Body	3 s.h.
036:170 Theories of Persuasion	3 s.h.
036:172 Television and African American Culture	3 s.h.
036:173 Technoculture and the Information Society	3 s.h.
036:174 Communication, Technology, and National Security	3 s.h.
036:176 Advanced Relational Theory	3 s.h.
036:181 Legal Communication and Culture	3 s.h.

ADDITIONAL COURSES

Students earn an additional 6 s.h. to complete the 36 s.h. in communication studies courses required for the major. They may choose from the courses listed below and/or from the lists of intermediate and capstone courses above. However, students may not use one course to fulfill more than one requirement for the major, so in selecting the additional 6 s.h. of course work, they may not choose a course they already used to fulfill the intermediate or capstone course requirement.

The following courses are open to all students; they do not have prerequisites or require a minimum grade-point average requirement for enrollment.

036:013 Practicum in Debate	1 s.h.
036:014 Elements of Debate	3 s.h.
036:018 Leadership and Organizational Procedures	2 s.h.
036:019 Organizational Leadership	2-3 s.h.

The following courses have prerequisites, minimum grade-point average, or other requirements for enrollment.

036:002 Workshop in Debate and Forensics	3 s.h.
--	--------

036:028 Communication Studies Internship	arr.
036:100 Independent Study	arr.
036:101 Honors Workshop	1 s.h.
036:102 Honors Thesis	3 s.h.
036:105 Workshop in Teaching Communication and Forensics	arr.

Internships

Internships enable students to supplement their course work with professional experiences relevant to careers in communication-related fields. The department's internship program is open only to communication studies majors.

To earn academic credit for internships, students must obtain approval for their internship experience and site before they register for 036:028 Communication Studies Internship (arr.). Internship academic credit is awarded for an analytical paper and daily log submitted at the end of the internship and for the number of hours worked. Internships can be completed during fall semester, spring semester, or summer session.

Visit the department's web site for information on communication studies internships.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. Students who have signed the four-year graduation agreement should consult the department for details.

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least two courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least six courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least eight courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

The department encourages outstanding undergraduates to take part in the honors program. To graduate with honors in communication studies, students must maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33, be a member of The University of Iowa Honors Program, and fulfill the following course requirements.

036:101 Honors Workshop (seminar offered fall semesters only)	1 s.h.
036:102 Honors Thesis (usually taken final semester before graduation)	3 s.h.

In special cases, independent study course work may be substituted for the Honors Workshop, with the honors officer's permission. Additional course work may be required by the student's honors advisor.

To begin work toward a degree with honors in communication studies, students choose a faculty member to supervise their honors project and act as their honors advisor.

Students the honors program are eligible to take courses offered through the University of Iowa Honors Program and to add an honors designation to any other departmental course by completing an agreement with the course instructor for special work in that course.

For detailed information, see Honors Program in Communication Studies on the department's web site.

Minor

The minor in communication studies requires a minimum of 18 s.h. in communication studies courses, including 12 s.h. in courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. The minor must include the five courses (15 s.h.) listed under "Foundations of Communication" above and one (3 s.h.) listed under "Intermediate Courses" above. Although students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in courses taken for the minor, they must have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50 in order to enroll in some of the courses required for the minor.

Forensics/Debate

Students in the forensics/debate program have the opportunity to participate in on-campus debates, in developmental programs designed to improve speech activities in the state, and as members of competitive intercollegiate debate teams. Forensics scholarships are available. Students interested in debate should enroll in 036:013 Practicum in Debate or 036:014 Elements of Debate.

Graduate Programs

The department offers a Doctor of Philosophy in communication studies with specializations in interpersonal communication and relationships, media studies, and rhetoric and discourse. Graduate education in communication studies is focused on the Ph.D., but doctoral students may choose to earn a Master of Arts on their way toward the Ph.D. A terminal master's degree may be an option for some students already admitted to the doctoral program.

Master of Arts

The M.A. in communication studies requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit. It may be granted to students working toward the Ph.D.; it also may be granted as a terminal degree for doctoral students who decide not to complete the Ph.D. All master's students take 036:200 Introduction to Research and Teaching (3 s.h.) and at least two courses numbered 200 or above. They also prepare a graduate seminar paper that involves significant original research. For a detailed description of M.A. requirements, see the Communication Studies Graduate Student Handbook.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy requires a minimum of 82 s.h. of graduate credit, including dissertation credit. All students take 036:200 Introduction to Research and Teaching, and earn at least 10 s.h. of dissertation credit in 036:399 Ph.D. Dissertation.

Ph.D. students must successfully complete a qualifying examination during their second or third semester and a comprehensive (predissertation) examination in their major research area during their fifth or sixth semester, and write a substantial scholarly dissertation. They must take a 3 s.h. course in each of the program's three areas of specialization. Students must maintain a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00 throughout the graduate program.

Admission usually is for fall semester entry. Applicants whose materials are received at the department by January 1 receive preference for admission and financial support. Admission decisions are based on undergraduate achievement, letters of reference, Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test scores, the statement of purpose, and samples of scholarly work.

Interpersonal Communication and Relationships

The communication and relationships program is centered on theory complemented by strength in quantitative and qualitative research methods. It focuses on scholarly issues that arise from face-to-face, everyday communication practices. It emphasizes personal relationship and family processes, identity construction, persuasion, and culture.

The goal of the program is to produce scholars who possess sophisticated knowledge of theory and methodology, who are careful consumers of theories and methods, and who can develop their own approaches to communication phenomena. The program emphasizes systematic analysis of the forms, functions, and meanings of messages within various contexts. Its broad social-scientific orientation springs from the belief that many methodological approaches are appropriate to studying and building theoretical explanations of communication.

Graduate students typically enter the program to earn a Ph.D. Advisors and committee members work closely with individual students to select courses from communication studies and other University departments and plan teaching and research experiences that will prepare students well for the employment they seek after graduation.

Media Studies

The graduate program in media studies focuses on the interplay of institutions, texts, and audiences in mediated communication systems. Its central aim is to examine modern media--radio, television, advertising, music, new media, and a wide range of other popular cultural expressions--within their historical, social, political, economic, and cultural contexts. It also uses the mass media as sites for asking basic questions about culture, society, politics, and modernity.

Like the department's other graduate programs, media studies has a strong interdisciplinary flavor. Students draw not only on allied areas in the Department of Communication Studies but on fields across the University.

Rhetoric and Discourse

The program in rhetoric and discourse is built on foundation courses in classical and 20th-century rhetorical theory and in an overview of 20th-century rhetorical criticism. Courses from a rhetorical perspective include rhetorical theory, rhetorical criticism, visual rhetoric and politics, public address and public culture, studies in argumentation and freedom of speech, work in science and technology as well as academic inquiry, and historical methods. Cognate work of interest to rhetoricians also can be found in interpersonal communication and relationship studies as well as media studies.

The Ph.D. in rhetoric and discourse is designed to give students a mature grasp of the specialties and perspectives embraced by the field and to develop research competence essential to a life of productive scholarship.

Work in related disciplines--political science, history, sociology, English, cinema and comparative literature, anthropology, American studies, and journalism--complements rhetorical studies course offerings. Faculty from the Departments of Rhetoric, Political Science, and American Studies cross-reference their courses on rhetorical topics in this program.

The Project on Rhetorics of Inquiry (POROI) offers a certificate program, allowing doctoral students to specialize in the study of how academic fields use argumentative and linguistic strategies to generate and control knowledge. Many doctoral students also do extensive work in media studies or interpersonal communication to improve their range of teaching opportunities and their research skills.

Admission

Applicants to graduate programs in communication studies must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Facilities

The Samuel L. Becker Communication Studies Building is designed to meet the department's research and technological needs.

Communication Studies Courses

Courses numbered below 200 are intended primarily for undergraduates; those numbered 200 and above are for graduate students. Graduate students may take 100-level courses for credit, with their committee's approval.

Not all courses are offered each semester.

For Undergraduates

To register for most undergraduate communication studies courses, students must have earned 30 s.h. and have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.60. However, registration for the following General Education courses is open to all undergraduates, regardless of their grade-point average: 036:017 Theory and Practice of Argument, 036:070 Communication Theory in Everyday Life, and 036:074 Media and Society. Registration in 036:029 First-Year Seminar is open to first- and second-semester students regardless of grade-point average.

036:337 Seminar: Public Address History and criticism of discourse addressed to the public; periods, approaches.	1-4 s.h.

- 036:339 Seminar: Rhetoric and Culture 1-4 s.h.
Cultural theories, their utility in accounting for communication practices.
- 036:340 Media and Modernity 3 s.h.
Survey of classic and contemporary theoretical texts on cultural, social, political, and human consequences of 19th- and 20th-century media.
- 036:341 Topics in Mass Communication Scholarship 1-3 s.h.
Theory and research on problems in mass communication.
- 036:342 Critical Television Studies 3 s.h.
Introduction to canonical and contemporary readings in critical television studies; primary questions and theories associated with textual, industrial, ethnographic, and integrated approaches to studying television; how technological, economic, and cultural changes have altered television and how it is studied.
- 036:346 The Public Sphere 3 s.h.
Theories, intellectual history, critics, contemporary issues of the public sphere.
- 036:347 Nationalism as a Communication Process 3 s.h.
Nation building and construction of national identity as a problem in communication history and theory; the nation as a community constructed through discourse, role of the state and other social forces in creating and deploying nationalist discourse.
- 036:349 Visual Advocacy 3 s.h.
- 036:350 Seminar: Mass Communication 1-4 s.h.
Topics vary.
- 036:351 Global Media Seminar 3 s.h.
Theories and processes of globalization and the cultural implications of media globalization; local responses to globalizing processes with reference to questions of modernity and national/transnational identity.
- 036:352 Seminar: Media Theory 3 s.h.
Topics vary.
- 036:353 Seminar: Intellectual Property 3 s.h.
Areas of cultural production that have been affected by intellectual property law; notions of authorship and ownership that lie at the heart of intellectual property law, how they affect varied areas of cultural production. Same as 160:353.
- 036:370 Quantitative Research Methods 3 s.h.
Primary methods for conducting quantitative research on interpersonal and group communication.
- 036:371 Communication Theory 3 s.h.
Survey of primary theories of interpersonal, cultural, group, and organizational communication.
- 036:372 Ethnographic Methods 3 s.h.
Qualitative methods used by ethnographers and interpretive researchers, including participant observation, field interviewing.
- 036:373 Persuasion Theory and Research 3 s.h.
Traditional social scientific approaches to research and theory; development of a cultural perspective on persuasion.
- 036:374 Relational Communication Theory and Research 3 s.h.
Communication in initiation, development, maintenance, breakdown, and repair of social and personal relationships.
- 036:375 Ethnography of Communication 3 s.h.
Research and theory on face-to-face communication, from ethnography of communication perspective.

036:376 Family Communication

3 s.h.

Theory and research on communication among and between family members (parents, children, marital partners, siblings); quantitative and qualitative research.

036:377 The Dark Side of Interpersonal Communication

3 s.h.

Communication in dysfunctional, dissatisfying, and otherwise unpleasant aspects of familial, personal, and social relationships; jealousy, deception, infidelity, nagging and complaining, verbal and physical abuse; relational communication's dark side, in which behavior viewed as dysfunctional may actually be functional, and behavior viewed as functional may be dysfunctional.

036:378 Critical Ethnography

3 s.h.

How power relations constitute the work of ethnographic research; ethnography as a rhetorical form--how ethnographic inscription renders self, other, culture, and the world intelligible in ways that reinscribe and/or challenge dominant social relations; axes of power such as race, class, gender, sexuality, and nation within postcolonial, feminist, and antiracist approaches to ethnographic/autoethnographic theory and praxis; negotiating researcher privilege and epistemic violence; crisis of representation. Same as 010:332, 160:332.

036:379 Health Communication Campaigns

3 s.h.

Design and analysis of health campaigns; theory, practice, methods; mass media, community, organization, and interpersonal approaches. Offered spring semesters. Same as 172:246.

036:380 Seminar: Dialogic Communication

3 s.h.

Dialogic approaches to communication, including Bakhtin and Buber.

036:381 Seminar: Topics in Communication Research

3 s.h.

036:383 Seminar: Constructs, Communication, and Identity

3 s.h.

Concepts of identity and sociality in George Kelly's Personal Construct Theory; their connection to theories of rhetoric, especially Burke, and social community, especially Mead.

036:387 Communication, Cognition, and Emotion

3 s.h.

Theoretical and empirical work that integrates communication, cognition, emotion; role of social cognition in communication, theories of emotion, types of emotional experiences; approaches to understanding emotion from perspectives in psychology, social cognition, communication; emotion-related issues such as influence of gender, effects of mood.

036:395 Research Practicum

arr.

Individual projects.

036:399 Ph.D. Dissertation

arr.

Computer Science

Chair: James Cremer

Professors: Kurt Anstreicher (Management Sciences/Computer Science), Steven Bruell, James Cremer, Sukumar Ghosh, Ted Herman, Joseph Kearney, Gregg Oden (Psychology/Computer Science), Suely Oliveira, Teodor Rus, Alberto Segre, Padmini Srinivasan (Library and Information Science/Computer Science), Hantao Zhang

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts, a Bachelor of Science, and a minor in computer science and in informatics. Both the B.A. and B.S. provide students with the necessary training for employment in careers such as software development and information management. Students who do not want to pursue a computer science career should consider earning a minor in computer science to acquire fundamental knowledge of the use and applications of computers. The department encourages students in both B.A. and B.S. programs to consider earning a second major, certificate, or minor.

Undergraduates majoring in computer science develop competence in programming principles and methodologies, problem-solving techniques, mathematics, and computer systems. Computer science training is critical for many careers in science, engineering, and business.

Informatics brings the computational sciences together with the arts, the humanities, and the biological, health, information, natural, and social sciences in an interdisciplinary effort to solve problems. It uses algorithmic techniques and the power of computing to acquire and manipulate data, extract new knowledge, and ultimately examine existing and new problems from broad perspectives.

The informatics major combines fundamental and practical computing knowledge with a choice of cognate areas from the liberal arts and sciences, providing students with the necessary background and specialized skills to work at the interface of computing and another discipline. The major also provides good preparation for graduate study in a variety of disciplines.

Students may declare a major in computer science or in informatics and be admitted to the department's B.A. or B.S. programs at any time on or after admission to the University. Students are admitted to the informatics B.A. or B.S. program without a chosen cognate area; they may declare a cognate at any time. After admission to the major, computer science students must maintain a g.p.a. of 2.00 or higher in all course work in order to graduate; informatics students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the informatics core, the statistics course, and the elective(s).

All students are advised at the Academic Advising Center until they have completed 22C:019 Discrete Structures (computer science students) or 22C:080 Programming for Informatics (informatics students). Computer science students being advised at the advising center also may consult with computer science faculty members; informatics students being advised at the center also should consult with the department's informatics program director.

Transfer students who have taken a course approved as equivalent to a required computer science or informatics course are exempt from that course. Transfer course grades are included in the computer science or informatics grade-point average.

Students should consult the Department of Computer Science web site or visit the department's office for information about general policies, elective areas, and internships, scholarships, and student groups, such as the University's chapter of the Association for Computing Machinery (ACM) and Women in Informatics and Computer Science (WICS).

Advanced Placement

The Computer Science Advanced Placement Program test can be used to gain credit for elective semester hours. See Advanced Placement Credit Policy under Prospective Students on the Department of Computer Science web site.

Joint Bachelor's/Master's Degree Programs

Qualified undergraduate students who plan to earn the Master of Computer Science degree may apply for the joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Computer Science program or the joint Bachelor of Science/Master of Computer Science program. The joint programs allow students to earn both degrees in five years. See "Joint B.A./M.C.S. and B.S./M.C.S." later in this section.

Early Admission to the Graduate College

Undergraduate computer science or informatics students who have 6 s.h. or less to earn toward graduation may apply for early admission to the Graduate College. Early admission allows students in their final undergraduate semester to take courses for graduate credit in addition to the courses they need to complete their bachelor's degrees.

Bachelor of Arts in Computer Science

The Bachelor of Arts in computer science requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 41 s.h. of work for the major. The B.A. program is designed for students who wish to gain considerable knowledge in computer science and have flexibility in selecting electives. Students preparing for careers in the computing field are encouraged to supplement the base requirements with additional computer science courses. The program's flexibility makes it suitable for combination with other majors.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. Students who are enrolled in the B.A. program but who might switch to the B.S. program should choose their General Education natural science courses carefully; see "Natural Science Sequences" under "Bachelor of Science," below.

The B.A. major in computer science requires the following core courses. They may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students also must take one advanced computer science elective.

COMPUTER SCIENCE CORE

All of these:

22C:016 Computer Science I: Fundamentals	4 s.h.
22C:019 Discrete Structures	3 s.h.
22C:021 Computer Science II: Data Structures	4 s.h.
22C:022 Object-Oriented Software Development	4 s.h.
22C:031 Algorithms	3 s.h.
22C:111 Programming Language Concepts	3 s.h.

One of these:

22C:060 Computer Organization	3 s.h.
055:035 Computer Architecture and Organization	3 s.h.

One of these:

22C:112 Operating Systems	3 s.h.
22C:113 Introduction to Systems Software	3 s.h.
22C:118 Introduction to Networks and Their Applications	3 s.h.
22C:169 Computer Security	3 s.h.

MATHEMATICS CORE

Calculus I--one of these:

22M:025 Calculus I	4 s.h.
22M:031 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus	4 s.h.

Calculus II--one of these:

22M:026 Calculus II	4 s.h.
22M:032 Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus	4 s.h.

Linear algebra/probability and statistics--one of these:

22M:027 Introduction to Linear Algebra	4 s.h.
22S:039 Probability and Statistics for the Engineering and Physical Sciences	3 s.h.
22S:120 Probability and Statistics	4 s.h.

ADVANCED ELECTIVES

Bachelor of Arts students must earn at least 3 s.h. in advanced electives.

22C:072/22M:072 Elementary Numerical Analysis	3 s.h.
22C:096 Topics in Computer Science (with department approval)	arr.
22C:099 Honors in Computer Science or Informatics (may be counted once as an advanced course)	arr.
Any 22C course numbered above 110	3 s.h.

With department approval, students may count most 22C courses numbered above 200 as advanced courses.

Bachelor of Science in Computer Science

The Bachelor of Science in computer science requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 63 s.h. of work for the major. The B.S. program is more rigorous than the B.A. and is designed to provide in-depth training for students who may wish to acquire strength in math and science in order to enhance their skills and job prospects. It also is appropriate for those who plan to pursue graduate work in computer science; however, the B.S. is not required for graduate study.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. When chosen carefully, courses that fulfill the General Education Program natural sciences requirement also satisfy the Department of Computer Science natural science requirement (see "Natural Science Sequences," below).

B.S. students complete all requirements for the B.A. major in computer science. They also complete an additional mathematics course, a course on computation theory, an additional computer science elective, two technical electives, and the natural science requirement. These courses cannot be taken pass/nonpass.

COMPUTER SCIENCE CORE

All of these:

22C:016 Computer Science I: Fundamentals	4 s.h.
22C:019 Discrete Structures	3 s.h.
22C:021 Computer Science II: Data Structures	4 s.h.
22C:022 Object-Oriented Software Development	4 s.h.
22C:031 Algorithms	3 s.h.
22C:111 Programming Language Concepts	3 s.h.

One of these:

22C:060 Computer Organization	3 s.h.
055:035 Computer Architecture and Organization	3 s.h.

One of these:

22C:112 Operating Systems	3 s.h.
22C:113 Introduction to Systems Software	3 s.h.
22C:118 Introduction to Networks and Their Applications	3 s.h.
22C:169 Computer Security	3 s.h.

MATHEMATICS CORE

Calculus I—one of these:

22M:025 Calculus I	4 s.h.
22M:031 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus	4 s.h.

Calculus II—one of these:

22M:026 Calculus II	4 s.h.
22M:032 Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus	4 s.h.

Linear algebra:

22M:027 Introduction to Linear Algebra 4 s.h.

Probability and statistics--one of these:

22S:039 Probability and Statistics for the Engineering and Physical Sciences 3 s.h.

22S:120 Probability and Statistics 4 s.h.

Another probability and statistics course with a calculus prerequisite, approved by a computer science advisor

ADVANCED ELECTIVES

Bachelor of Science students must earn at least 6 s.h. in advanced electives.

22C:072/22M:072 Elementary Numerical Analysis 3 s.h.

22C:096 Topics in Computer Science (with department approval) arr.

22C:099 Honors in Computer Science or Informatics (may be counted once as an advanced course) arr.

Any 22C course numbered above 110 3 s.h.

With department approval, students may count most 22C courses numbered above 200 as advanced courses.

COMPUTATION THEORY

One of these:

22C:131 Limits of Computation 3 s.h.

22C:135 Theory of Computation 3 s.h.

22C:188 Logic in Computer Science 3 s.h.

TECHNICAL ELECTIVES

Bachelor of Science students must earn 6 s.h. in technical electives. Advanced elective courses in computer science or in any other department, approved by an advisor, can be counted as technical electives. For a list of approved technical electives, see Technical Electives for the B.S. under Courses on the Department of Computer Science web site.

NATURAL SCIENCE SEQUENCES

For the B.S., students take two or more courses in a sequence (totaling at least 7 s.h.) in a cognate area of natural science. The natural science sequence is intended to enhance the student's perspective by providing a deeper understanding of the scientific method. Typically, it consists of a sequence of courses taken in the same science department. Students often choose courses that also fulfill the General Education Program natural sciences requirement. Some possible choices are listed below; the department chair may approve others.

CLEP/APP credit may be used to satisfy part or all of the natural science requirement only if the appropriate science department at The University of Iowa accepts the credit as equivalent to one or more of the specific courses listed below.

Astronomy

029:061 General Astronomy I 4 s.h.

029:062 General Astronomy II 4 s.h.

Biology/Chemistry

002:010 Principles of Biology I 4 s.h.

002:011 Principles of Biology II 4 s.h.

004:011 Principles of Chemistry I 4 s.h.

Chemistry

004:011 Principles of Chemistry I	4 s.h.
004:012 Principles of Chemistry II	4 s.h.

Geography

044:003 Introduction to Earth Systems Science	4 s.h.
044:005 Foundations of GIS	3 s.h.

Geoscience

012:008 Introduction to Environmental Science	3-4 s.h.
One of these:
012:003 Earth History and Resources	4 s.h.
012:005 Introduction to Geology	4 s.h.

Physics

One of these sequences:

029:027-029:028 Physics I-II	8 s.h.
029:081-029:082 Introductory Physics I-II (recommended)	8 s.h.

Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science in Informatics

The Bachelor of Arts in informatics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 43-50 s.h. of work for the major. The Bachelor of Science in informatics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 53-55 s.h. of work for the major. Both majors combine informatics course work that provides a strong foundation in computing with course work in a cognate discipline. Required credit for the major depends on the choice of cognate area.

The Bachelor of Arts major in informatics offers the cognate areas of fine and applied arts (art, music), human-computer interaction, health sciences, linguistics, social sciences (economics, geography, sociology), and individualized cognates.

The Bachelor of Science major in informatics offers the cognate areas of bioinformatics and individualized cognates.

All informatics students complete the informatics core, one (B.A.) or two (B.S.) electives, a statistics course, and a set of courses in their chosen cognate area. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Students are expected to possess an appropriate high school background in mathematics.

INFORMATICS CORE

The informatics core consists of six required computing courses (at least 18 s.h.) that emphasize data manipulation, databases, and networking. It provides more applications-oriented content than the traditional computer science curriculum yet is designed to offer students a sound basis in underlying computer sciences themes and techniques.

One of these:

22C:080 Programming for Informatics	4 s.h.
22C:104 Introduction to Informatics	3 s.h.

All of these:

22C:005 Introduction to Computer Science	3 s.h.
22C:082 Human-Computer Interaction	3 s.h.
22C:084 Databases for Informatics	3 s.h.
22C:086 Networking and Security for Informatics	3 s.h.
22C:094 Informatics Project	3 s.h.

INFORMATICS ELECTIVES

B.A. students must complete at least one course (3 s.h.) and B.S. students must complete at least two (6 s.h.) from a list of approved computing informatics electives. Course selection must be approved by an advisor or by the informatics program director. In addition to the courses listed below, students may have additional choices from the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering, the Department of Management Sciences, and the School of Library and Information Science; consult the informatics program director for additional choices.

22C:096 Topics in Computer Science	3 s.h.
22C:109 Programming Languages and Tools	3 s.h.
Any 22C course numbered above 110	3 s.h.

STATISTICS COURSE

B.A. and B.S. students must complete one introductory statistics course. Some cognates require a specific statistics course or an alternative statistics course not on this list (e.g., 034:010 Quantitative Data Analysis for the sociology area of the human-computer interaction cognate). Students should consult with their advisor to choose a statistics course appropriate for their cognate area.

One of these:

22S:008 Statistics for Business	4 s.h.
22S:025 Elementary Statistics and Inference	3 s.h.
22S:030 Statistical Methods and Computing	3 s.h.
22S:039 Probability and Statistics for the Engineering and Physical Sciences	3 s.h.
22S:101 Biostatistics	3 s.h.
22S:102 Introduction to Statistical Methods	3 s.h.
22S:120 Probability and Statistics	4 s.h.

Bachelor of Arts Cognates

Students must complete all requirements listed under one of the cognate areas below (art, economics, geography, health sciences, human-computer interaction, linguistics, music, sociology, or an individualized cognate).

ART

The informatics major with an art cognate requires a minimum of 45 s.h. of work for the major, including 21 s.h. in cognate courses. Students learn about the design and maintenance of Web services, applications of modern computerized artistic tools, and benefits and limitations of computers as a digital medium. They also gain insight into computerized tool design that is guided by knowledge of an artist's requirements. The art cognate may lead to careers in web development, technology coordination for artistic productions, development of digital artistic tools, and artistic or technical development for entertainment companies. Cognate courses are primarily in art history, design, elements of art, and photography.

All of these:

01A:003 Basic Drawing	3 s.h.
01D:082 Introductory Computer Graphic Design	3 s.h.
01D:090 Graphic Design I	3 s.h.

Two of these:

01H:001 Art and Visual Culture	3 s.h.
01H:002 Arts of Africa	3 s.h.
01H:003 Art of Pre-Columbian America, Native America, and Oceania	3 s.h.
01H:004 Masterpieces: Art and Cultural Paradigms	3 s.h.
01H:005 Western Art and Culture Before 1400	3 s.h.
01H:006 Western Art and Culture After 1400	3 s.h.

01H:007 Writing About the Visual Arts	3 s.h.
01H:008 Themes in Global Art	3 s.h.
01H:010 Tutorial for Majors: Art History as a Discipline	3 s.h.
01H:016 Asian Art and Culture	3 s.h.
01H:021 Introduction to the Art of West Africa	3 s.h.
01H:022 Introduction to the Art of Central Africa	3 s.h.
01H:026 Introduction to Ancient Art	3 s.h.
01H:031 Introduction to the Art of China	3 s.h.
01H:033 Introduction to the Art of Japan	3 s.h.
01H:040 Introduction to Medieval Art	3 s.h.
01H:047 Introduction to Italian Renaissance Art	3 s.h.
01H:053 Introduction to Baroque Visual Culture	3 s.h.
01H:062 Introduction to Nineteenth-Century Art	3 s.h.
01H:066 Introduction to American Art	3 s.h.
01H:073 Introduction to Modern/Contemporary Art	3 s.h.
01H:084 Introduction to Western Architecture	3 s.h.
01H:090 Introduction to Art and Religion	3 s.h.
01H:098 Undergraduate Topics in Art History	3 s.h.
01H:099 Undergraduate Seminar in the History of Art	3 s.h.

At least 6 s.h. from these; 3 s.h. must be 100-level:

01D:064 Introduction to Computer-Aided Design for 3-D Design	4 s.h.
01D:120 Graphic Design II	4 s.h.
01D:128 Computer Graphic Design	3 s.h.
01L:040 Digital Imaging I	3-4 s.h.
01L:140 Advanced Digital Imaging	3-4 s.h.

ECONOMICS

The informatics major with an economics cognate requires a minimum of 48 s.h. of work for the major, including 24 s.h. in cognate courses, which are primarily from economics. The economics cognate is intended for students interested in working with economic, financial, or demographic data. It may lead to careers in administration, business, or government or to graduate study in management or policy areas.

All of these:

22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business	4 s.h.
06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics	4 s.h.
06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics	4 s.h.
06E:104 Microeconomic Theory	3 s.h.
06E:105 Macroeconomics	3 s.h.

Two of these:

06E:111 Personnel Economics	3 s.h.
06E:113 Health Economics	3 s.h.
06E:117 Money, Banking, and Financial Markets	3 s.h.
06E:119 Policy Analysis	3 s.h.
06E:125 Global Economics and Business	3 s.h.
06E:129 Economic Growth and Development	3 s.h.
06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics	3 s.h.
06E:135 Regional and Urban Economics	3 s.h.
06E:141 Industry Analysis	3 s.h.
06E:145 Transportation Economics	3 s.h.
06E:158 American Economic History	3 s.h.
06E:160 Household Finance	3 s.h.
06E:165 Sports Economics	3 s.h.
06E:169 Topics in Policy Economics	arr.
06E:171 Antitrust Economics	3 s.h.

06E:172 Law and Economics	3 s.h.
06E:173 International Economics	3 s.h.
06E:174 Monetary Economics	3 s.h.
06E:175 Labor Economics	3 s.h.
06E:176 Public Sector Economics	3 s.h.
06E:177 Industrial Organization	3 s.h.
06E:179 History of Economic Thought	3 s.h.
06E:183 Natural Resource Economics	3 s.h.
06E:184 Introduction to Econometrics	3 s.h.
06E:187 Mathematical Economics	3 s.h.
06E:189 Topics in Analytical Economics	arr.

GEOGRAPHY

The informatics major with a geography cognate requires a minimum of 46 s.h. of work for the major, including 22 s.h. in cognate courses, which are primarily from geography. The geography cognate is intended for students interested in geographic information systems (GIS) and spatial aspects of data. It may lead to careers in business, government, or public health or to graduate study in geography, public health, or policy areas.

All of these:

044:001 Introduction to Human Geography	4 s.h.
044:003 Introduction to Earth Systems Science	4 s.h.
044:005 Foundations of GIS	3 s.h.

One of these:

044:010 The Contemporary Global System	4 s.h.
044:011 Population Geography	3 s.h.
044:015 Introduction to Political Geography	3 s.h.
044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues	3 s.h.
044:030 The Global Economy	3 s.h.
044:035 World Cities	3 s.h.

One of these:

044:110 GIS for Environmental Studies: Introduction	3 s.h.
044:112 Mapping American Cities and Regions	3 s.h.
044:180 Field Methods in Physical Geography	2-4 s.h.
044:181 Field Methods: Mapping and Mobile Computing	3 s.h.

Two of these:

044:105 Introduction to Environmental Remote Sensing	3 s.h.
044:110 GIS for Environmental Studies: Introduction	3 s.h.
044:112 Mapping American Cities and Regions	3 s.h.
044:113 Principles of Geographical Information Systems	3 s.h.
044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis	4 s.h.
044:128 GIS for Environmental Studies: Applications	3 s.h.
044:136 Planning Livable Cities	3 s.h.
044:137 Health and Environment: GIS Applications	3 s.h.
044:139 Spatial Analysis and Location Models	3 s.h.
044:145 Applications in Environmental Remote Sensing	4 s.h.

HEALTH SCIENCES

The informatics major with a health sciences cognate requires a minimum of 49 s.h. of work for the major, including 25 s.h. in cognate courses. The health sciences cognate is intended for students interested in applications of computing to the health sciences. It may lead to careers in medical research or hospital settings and to graduate-level professional degree programs in public health or to graduate study in health or medical informatics. Cognate courses are from anatomy and cell biology, biology, chemistry, health and sport studies, nursing, and psychology.

One of these:

002:002 Introductory Animal Biology	4 s.h.
002:010 Principles of Biology I	4 s.h.

One of these:

004:007 General Chemistry I	3 s.h.
004:011 Principles of Chemistry I	4 s.h.

One of these:

027:053 Human Anatomy	3 s.h.
060:110 Principles of Human Anatomy	3 s.h.

All of these:

027:075 Health in Everyday Life	3 s.h.
027:136 Health Behavior and Health Promotion	3 s.h.
027:156 Planning and Evaluating Health Interventions	3 s.h.
031:001 Elementary Psychology	3 s.h.

One of these:

031:014 Introduction to Developmental Science	3 s.h.
096:030 Human Development and Behavior	3 s.h.

HUMAN-COMPUTER INTERACTION

The informatics major with a cognate in human-computer interaction requires a minimum of 43 s.h. of work for the major, including at least 19 s.h. in cognate courses. The cognate is intended for students interested in designing useful and usable technologies. It can lead to careers in interaction design, web design, implementation of user interfaces and evaluation of human-computer interactions, as well as provide valuable skills for graduate study in human-computer interaction.

The cognate's courses are drawn largely from psychology, sociology, and industrial engineering. Four required courses include foundational aspects of psychology or sociology, an examination of basic human abilities and performance relevant to information technology use, and an introduction to research topics in human-computer interaction.

Students must complete either the psychology area or the sociology area.

Psychology

Students who choose the psychology area must satisfy the statistics requirement for the informatics core by taking 22S:008 Statistics for Business, 22S:025 Elementary Statistics and Inference, 22S:101 Biostatistics, or 22S:102 Introduction to Statistical Methods. The psychology area requires the following courses.

All of these:

031:001 Elementary Psychology	3 s.h.
031:010 Research Methods in Psychology	4 s.h.
031:016 Introduction to Cognitive Psychology	3 s.h.
22C:196 Topics in Computer Science (topic must be human-computer interaction)	3 s.h.

Two of these:

031:002 Biological Psychology	4 s.h.
031:014 Introduction to Developmental Science	3 s.h.
031:015 Introduction to Social Psychology	3 s.h.
031:123 Psychology of Learning	3 s.h.

031:133 Sensation and Perception

3 s.h.

Students who take 031:123 Psychology of Learning or 031:133 Sensation and Perception must first complete the prerequisite 031:002 Biological Psychology.

Sociology

Students who choose the sociology area must satisfy the statistics requirement for the informatics core by taking 034:010 Quantitative Data Analysis. The sociology area requires the following courses.

All of these:

034:001 Introduction to Sociology Principles	3-4 s.h.
034:009 Sociological Theory	3 s.h.
034:011 Research Methods	3 s.h.
22C:196 Topics in Computer Science (topic must be human-computer interaction)	3 s.h.

Three of these:

034:020 Principles of Social Psychology	3-4 s.h.
034:125 Small Group Analysis	3 s.h.
056:144 Human Factors	3 s.h.
056:147 Ergonomics	3 s.h.

LINGUISTICS

The informatics major with a linguistics cognate requires a minimum of 45 s.h. of work for the major, including at least 21 s.h. in cognate courses. Linguistics, the scientific study of human languages, is directly related to psychology, anthropology, and computer science as well as to more applied fields such as second language acquisition or speech and hearing science. The cognate focuses on computational representations of syntax and semantics for processing natural language. Cognate courses are drawn primarily from linguistics.

All of these:

103:100 Introduction to Linguistics	3 s.h.
103:110 Articulatory and Acoustic Phonetics	3 s.h.
103:111 Syntactic Analysis	3 s.h.
103:112 Phonological Analysis	3 s.h.
103:140 Introduction to Computational Linguistics	3 s.h.

One of these:

103:131/08L:131 History of the English Language	3 s.h.
103:139/039:139 Chinese Historical Phonology	3 s.h.

One of these:

008:141 Old English Beowulf	3 s.h.
103:132/008:140 Elementary Old English	3 s.h.
20E:110/039:110 First-Year Sanskrit: First Semester	4 s.h.
20E:111/039:111 First-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester	4 s.h.
20E:121/039:112 Second-Year Sanskrit: First Semester	3 s.h.
20E:122/039:113 Second-Year Sanskrit: Second Semester	3 s.h.
20G:001 Classical and New Testament Greek I	5 s.h.
20G:002 Classical and New Testament Greek II	5 s.h.
20G:011 Second-Year Greek I	3 s.h.
20G:012 Second-Year Greek II	3 s.h.
20L:001 Elementary Latin I	5 s.h.
20L:005 Accelerated Latin	3-5 s.h.
20L:002 Elementary Latin II	5 s.h.
20L:011 World of Cicero	3 s.h.
20L:012 Golden Age of Roman Poetry	3 s.h.

MUSIC

The informatics major with a music cognate requires a minimum of 47 s.h. of work for the major, including 23 s.h. in cognate courses. The music cognate is intended for students interested in audio recording, manipulation of sound, and digital media. It may help students prepare for careers in the entertainment industry. Cognate courses are primarily from the music, with some from cinema and comparative literature and from theatre arts. Entering students must possess basic musicianship skills; an audition may be required for admission.

All of these:

025:001 Fundamentals of Music for Majors	3 s.h.
025:002 Musicianship and Theory I	4 s.h.
025:003 Musicianship and Theory II	4 s.h.
025:071 Group Instruction in Piano I	1 s.h.
025:072 Group Instruction in Piano II	1 s.h.
025:149 Audio Recording I	3 s.h.
025:152 Audio Recording II	3 s.h.

Students who plan to take 025:002 Musicianship and Theory I or 025:003 Musicianship and Theory II must take the music theory diagnostic examination, which is administered on the Sunday before fall semester classes begin. See Music Theory Diagnostic Exam on the School of Music web site for more information.

One of these:

025:103 World Music	3 s.h.
025:104 Music of Latin America and the Caribbean	3 s.h.
025:141 History of Jazz	3 s.h.
025:144 History of Music I	3 s.h.
025:146 History of Music II	3 s.h.
025:178 Music, Culture, and Identity	3 s.h.

At least one of these to complete 23 s.h. for the cognate:

025:007 Garage Band: The Basics	2 s.h.
025:064 Recital Attendance for Non-Majors	1 s.h.
048:053 Introduction to Film Sound	3 s.h.
048:119 Topics in Film Sound	3 s.h.
048:131 Film/Video/Audio Production: Sound Design	3 s.h.
049:140 Sound Design for the Theatre	3 s.h.

SOCIOLOGY

The informatics major with a sociology cognate requires a minimum of 44 s.h. of work for the major, including 20 s.h. in cognate courses, which are drawn from sociology.

All of these:

034:001 Introduction to Sociology Principles	3-4 s.h.
034:009 Sociological Theory	3 s.h.
034:011 Research Methods	3 s.h.

At least 11 s.h. from these:

034:002 Social Problems	3-4 s.h.
034:010 Quantitative Data Analysis	3 s.h.
034:018 Gender and Society	3-4 s.h.
034:020 Principles of Social Psychology	3-4 s.h.
034:022 Introduction to Social Work	4 s.h.
034:040 Criminology	3 s.h.
034:061 The American Family	3 s.h.
034:066 Social Inequality	3 s.h.

034:100 Honors Proseminar	2 s.h.
034:125 Small Group Analysis	3 s.h.
034:126 Social Movements in the U.S.	3 s.h.
034:128 Sociology of Mental Illness	3 s.h.
034:135 Sociology of Sexuality	3 s.h.
034:141 Juvenile Delinquency	3 s.h.
034:146 Deviance and Control	3 s.h.
034:148 Internship in Criminal Justice and Corrections	1-5 s.h.
034:149 Sociology of Criminal Punishment	3 s.h.
034:150 Political Sociology	3 s.h.
034:153 Public Opinion	3 s.h.
034:155 Comparative Studies in Race and Ethnicity	3 s.h.
034:156 Gender Inequality	3 s.h.
034:158 Economy and Society	3 s.h.
034:159 Families in Comparative Perspective	3 s.h.
034:162 Work and Family Institutions	3 s.h.
034:164 Organizations and Modern Society	3 s.h.
034:165 Sociology of Work and Occupations	3 s.h.
034:175 Community and Urban Sociology	3 s.h.
034:179 Sociology of Education	3 s.h.
034:182 Sociology of Law	3 s.h.
034:186 Criminal Legal System	3 s.h.
034:190 Selected Topics in Sociology	3 s.h.
034:195 Capstone Course in Sociology	3 s.h.
034:196 Field Experience	arr.
034:199 Honors Research	arr.

INDIVIDUALIZED COGNATES

Students interested in developing individualized cognates may work with an informatics faculty advisor. Individualized cognates may be drawn primarily from one department or an appropriate mix of departments. In the Bachelor of Arts, individualized cognates require an approved set of cognate courses totaling 18-25 s.h.

Bachelor of Science Cognates

Students must complete all requirements listed under one of the cognate areas below (bioinformatics or an individualized cognate).

BIOINFORMATICS

The informatics major with a bioinformatics cognate requires a minimum of 54 s.h. of work for the major, including 27 s.h. in cognate courses. The bioinformatics cognate is intended for students interested in applications of computing to the biological sciences. It may lead to careers in laboratory research, data management, and other related areas. It also is preparation for graduate programs in bioinformatics or genetics. The cognate offers a choice of several areas: genome bioinformatics, phylogenetics and evolution, proteomics, and systems biology. Cognate courses are drawn primarily from biology and chemistry.

All students in the bioinformatics cognate must complete the following five courses.

002:010-002:011 Principles of Biology I-II	8 s.h.
004:011-004:012 Principles of Chemistry I-II	8 s.h.
004:121 Organic Chemistry I	3 s.h.

Students also must complete one of the following four areas.

Genome Bioinformatics

Both of these:

002:128 Fundamental Genetics	3-4 s.h.
002:131 Evolution	4 s.h.

One of these:

002:169 Introduction to Bioinformatics	4 s.h.
002:174 Computational Genomics	3 s.h.
002:176 Microarray Data Analysis	3 s.h.
002:178 Genomics	3 s.h.

Phylogenetics and Evolution

Both of these:

002:128 Fundamental Genetics	3-4 s.h.
002:131 Evolution	4 s.h.

One of these:

002:134 Ecology	4 s.h.
002:160 Molecular Phylogenetics	3 s.h.
002:162 Population Genetics and Molecular Evolution	3 s.h.

Proteomics

All of these:

002:133 Cell Biology Laboratory	3 s.h.
099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I	3 s.h.
099:241 Biophysical Chemistry I	3 s.h.

Systems Biology

061:157 General Microbiology	5 s.h.
------------------------------	--------

One of these:

002:124 Animal Physiology	3 s.h.
061:147 Survey of Immunology	4 s.h.
061:160 Microbial Physiology	3 s.h.
061:170 Microbial Genetics	3 s.h.

INDIVIDUALIZED COGNATES

Individualized cognates may be drawn primarily from one department or an appropriate mix of departments. In the Bachelor of Science, individualized cognates require an approved set of cognate courses totaling 27-31 s.h. Students interested in developing individualized cognates should contact the Department of Computer Science for the name of an informatics faculty advisor.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

B.A. in Computer Science

Before the third semester begins: math through calculus I, three courses in the major (e.g., 22C:016 Computer Science I: Fundamentals, 22C:019 Discrete Structures, and 22C:021 Computer Science II: Data Structures), and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: math through calculus II, two more courses in the major (e.g., 22C:022 Object-Oriented Software Development and 22C:060 Computer Organization), and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least two more courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least one more course in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.S. in Computer Science

These checkpoints do not include the required natural science sequence, which students usually complete as part of their General Education Program natural science component.

Before the third semester begins: math through calculus I, three courses in the major (e.g., 22C:016 Computer Science I: Fundamentals, 22C:019 Discrete Structures, and 22C:021 Computer Science II: Data Structures), and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: math through calculus II, at least two more courses in the major (e.g., 22C:022 Object-Oriented Software Development and 22C:060 Computer Organization), and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least three more courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least two more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.A., B.S. in Informatics

Note: Much of the work in informatics and in the cognate area needs to be taken in sequence, so students must begin fulfilling major requirements as early as possible.

Before the third semester begins: 22C:005 Introduction to Computer Science, 22C:080 Programming for Informatics, one or two courses in the cognate area, the statistics course, and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required to graduate

Before the fifth semester begins: the three mid-level informatics courses (22C:082 Human-Computer Interaction, 22C:084 Databases for Informatics, and 22C:086 Networking and Security for Informatics), the statistics course (if not already completed), two or three more courses in the cognate area, and at least one-half of the semester hours required to graduate

Before the seventh semester begins: 22C:094 Informatics Project, an informatics elective course, two or three courses in the cognate area, and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required to graduate

Before the eighth semester begins: a second informatics elective course (for BS students) and courses in the cognate area

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major; all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

In order to pursue honors study in the Department of Computer Science, students must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires them to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information).

To graduate with honors in computer science or informatics, students must complete 4-6 s.h. of 22C:099 Honors in Computer Science or Informatics and submit an acceptable honors thesis. Students are responsible for finding a faculty member willing to supervise their honors project. The faculty member must approve the proposed project and a timetable for the work. Students register for 22C:099 Honors in Computer Science or Informatics under the thesis supervisor's instructor number. See the Computer Science Undergraduate Student Handbook for details. Students may count 3 s.h. of 22C:099 Honors in Computer Science or Informatics toward an advanced or technical elective for the B.S. in computer science. Students in the joint bachelor's/master's degree program may register for 4-6 s.h. of 22C:199 Individualized Research or Programming Project instead of 22C:099. This will allow them to receive graduate credit for the course while satisfying the course requirements to graduate with honors.

Minor in Computer Science

The minor in computer science requires a minimum of 17 s.h. in computer science, including 12 s.h. in courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students excused from courses required for the minor may substitute other computer science electives. The minor requires the following courses.

All of these:

22C:016 Computer Science I: Fundamentals	4 s.h.
22C:019 Discrete Structures	3 s.h.
22C:021 Computer Science II: Data Structures	4 s.h.

At least one of these:

22C:022 Object-Oriented Software Development	4 s.h.
22C:031 Algorithms	3 s.h.
22C:060 Computer Organization	3 s.h.

Students choose one additional Department of Computer Science course to complete the 17 s.h. required for the minor.

The following courses do not count toward the minor.

22C:001 Computer Literacy	3 s.h.
22C:002 First-Year Seminar	1 s.h.
22C:005 Introduction to Computer Science	3 s.h.
22C:080 Programming for Informatics	4 s.h.
22C:084 Databases for Informatics	3 s.h.
22C:094 Informatics Project	3 s.h.
22C:104 Introduction to Informatics	3 s.h.

Students who have completed 055:033 Introduction to Software Design, 057:017 Computers in Engineering, and 059:006 Engineering Problem Solving II are considered to have satisfied the requirements for 22C:016 Computer Science I: Fundamentals and 22C:022 Object-Oriented Software Development.

Students may declare the computer science minor on ISIS; application triggers an audit for the minor that is available on ISIS the next day of the academic session.

Minor in Informatics

The minor in informatics requires a minimum of 16 s.h., including at least 12 s.h. in courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Students earning a major in computer science or in management information systems (Tippie College of Business) may not earn a minor in informatics.

The informatics minor must include the informatics core (13 s.h.) and one statistics course (3-4 s.h.), as follows.

All of these:

22C:005 Introduction to Computer Science	3 s.h.
22C:080 Programming for Informatics	4 s.h.
22C:084 Databases for Informatics	3 s.h.

One of these:

22C:082 Human-Computer Interaction	3 s.h.
22C:086 Networking and Security for Informatics	3 s.h.

One of these:

22S:008 Statistics for Business	4 s.h.
22S:025 Elementary Statistics and Inference	3 s.h.
22S:030 Statistical Methods and Computing	3 s.h.

22S:039 Probability and Statistics for the Engineering and Physical Sciences	3 s.h.
22S:101 Biostatistics	3 s.h.
22S:102 Introduction to Statistical Methods	3 s.h.
22S:120 Probability and Statistics	4 s.h.

Students may declare the informatics minor on ISIS; application triggers an audit for the minor that is available on ISIS the next day of the academic session.

Joint B.A./M.C.S. and B.S./M.C.S.

The joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Computer Science and Bachelor of Science/Master of Computer Science programs allow qualified students to obtain an undergraduate and a graduate degree in computer science in five years. The B.A./M.C.S. and B.S./M.C.S. each require a total of 140 s.h., which is 12 s.h. less than the sum of the requirements for both degrees.

Students in the joint programs must complete all requirements for each degree. They may count a maximum of 12 s.h. (four courses) toward both degrees; the four courses must be taken during the fourth year, after admission to the joint program, and must satisfy degree requirements of both the B.A. or B.S., and the M.C.S.

When a student withdraws from the joint program before completing his or her bachelor's degree, credit earned in the four courses is counted only toward the undergraduate degree.

Students are granted the B.A. or B.S. when they complete all requirements for the undergraduate degree.

Students apply for admission to the joint program during their third year as undergraduates and enter the program at the beginning of their fourth year. They usually complete the joint program comfortably in one year after finishing their B.A. or B.S. requirements.

Applicants to the joint program must be enrolled as B.A. or B.S. students in computer science at The University of Iowa; must have completed a minimum of 80 s.h. at the time of admission to the joint program, with at least 30 s.h. earned at The University of Iowa; and must have a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.25, and a g.p.a. of at least 3.25 in the computer science major (computed on math prerequisites and core computer science course work taken at The University of Iowa).

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Applicants must submit an application for admission to the program, a statement of purpose, three letters of recommendation, and transcripts from all colleges attended; they also must apply to the Graduate College. Graduate Record Examination scores are not required. Applicants whose first language is not English must submit scores on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) or the International English Testing System (IELTS).

For more detailed information, visit the Department of Computer Science web site.

Graduate Programs

The department offers three graduate degree programs: the Master of Computer Science (M.C.S.), and a Master of Science (M.S.) and Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) in computer science.

The M.C.S. is a nonresearch, course-based program for students who wish to enhance their careers with advanced knowledge of computer science. The Ph.D. emphasizes preparation for research, teaching, and scholarly work in academic settings or private, industrial, or government laboratories. The M.S. is granted only to students working toward the Ph.D.

Admission decisions are based on prior academic performance, letters of reference, the applicant's statement about background and purpose, and for Ph.D. applicants, scores on the Graduate Record Examination. Students need not have a master's degree to begin the Ph.D. program or to receive the Ph.D. A student admitted without a master's degree may choose to receive an M.S. or M.C.S. while working toward the doctorate.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Current and prospective graduate students should consult the Computer Science Graduate Student Handbook, available from the department's office or on its web site. The handbook provides detailed information about specific degree requirements, such as required courses, examinations, and dissertation requirements. For general information about the department, faculty, and research activities, contact the Department of Computer Science or visit its web site.

Master of Computer Science

The Master of Computer Science (M.C.S.) requires a minimum of 32 s.h. of graduate credit, including at least 24 s.h. earned at The University of Iowa.

Basic M.C.S. requirements are as follows. Consult the Computer Science Graduate Student Handbook for detailed information about M.C.S. requirements and graduate study policies.

FOUNDATIONS

One of these:

22C:131 Limits of Computation	3 s.h.
22C:135 Theory of Computation	3 s.h.
22C:231 Design and Analysis of Algorithms	3 s.h.

SYSTEMS

One of these:

22C:160 High Performance Computer Architecture	3 s.h.
22C:166 Distributed Systems and Algorithms	3 s.h.
22C:181 Formal Methods in Software Engineering	3 s.h.
22C:185 Programming Language Foundations	3 s.h.

COLLOQUIUM

M.C.S. students must earn at least 2 s.h. in 22C:399 Research Seminar: Colloquium Series.

ELECTIVES

M.C.S. students fill their remaining 24 s.h. with a combination of computer science graduate courses, reading and project courses, and non-computer science graduate courses approved by their advisor.

Students must take at least six computer science graduate courses (18 s.h.), numbered above 22C:120, excluding 22C:191 Research for Thesis, 22C:199 Individualized Research or Programming Project, 22C:290 Readings for Research, 22C:299 Research for Dissertation, and 22C:399 Research Seminar: Colloquium Series. They may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of technical or quantitative graduate courses outside of computer science, approved by their advisor, toward the elective requirement. Up to 3 s.h. of independent study courses (22C:199 Individualized Research or Programming Project or 22C:290 Readings for Research) may be counted toward the requirement.

Master of Science

The Master of Science in computer science is offered only to students working toward a Ph.D. in computer science. Students who are interested primarily in a master's degree and do not intend to pursue a more advanced degree should apply to the M.C.S. program.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in computer science requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit, three examinations (qualifying, comprehensive, and final), and a written dissertation.

Basic Ph.D. requirements are as follows. Consult the Computer Science Graduate Student Handbook for detailed information about Ph.D. requirements and graduate study policies.

CORE REQUIREMENT

Both of these:

22C:135 Theory of Computation	3 s.h.
22C:231 Design and Analysis of Algorithms	3 s.h.

BREADTH

Ph.D. students must complete at least three of the following courses, with at least one course selected from each area (9 s.h.).

Systems and software:

22C:160 High Performance Computer Architecture	3 s.h.
22C:169 Computer Security	3 s.h.
22C:196 Topics in Computer Science (section approved by advisor)	3 s.h.

Networks and distributed systems:

22C:166 Distributed Systems and Algorithms	3 s.h.
22C:196 Topics in Computer Science (section approved by advisor)	3 s.h.

Programming languages and compilers:

22C:181 Formal Methods in Software Engineering	3 s.h.
22C:185 Programming Language Foundations	3 s.h.
22C:196 Topics in Computer Science (section approved by advisor)	3 s.h.

PRACTICE

Ph.D. students must complete at least one course (3 s.h.) with significant practical or implementation-oriented content. Each semester the department designates courses that satisfy this requirement. The following are typical selections.

22C:144 Database Systems	3 s.h.
22C:145 Artificial Intelligence	3 s.h.
22C:151 Computer Graphics	3 s.h.
22C:174 Optimization Techniques	3 s.h.
22C:177 High Performance and Parallel Computing	3 s.h.
22C:180 Fundamentals of Software Engineering	3 s.h.
22C:199 Individualized Research or Programming Project	3 s.h.
22C:251 Advanced Computer Graphics	3 s.h.
06K:278 Web Mining	3 s.h.

COGNATE AREA

Ph.D. students are required to select, in consultation with their advisor, a total of 9 s.h. in courses that constitute coherent coverage of an external cognate area. Choices include, but are not limited to, mathematics, statistics, genetics, biology, and engineering disciplines.

COLLOQUIUM

Ph.D. students must earn at least 4 s.h. in 22C:399 Research Seminar: Colloquium Series.

ELECTIVES

Ph.D. students fill their remaining semester hours with a selection of computer science graduate courses numbered above 22C:120 and graduate courses outside of computer science, approved by their advisor.

QUALIFYING EXAM

Ph.D. students are required to pass a qualifying examination by the end of their second year of graduate study. Once students select a topic in consultation with their advisor, they are assigned a three-member faculty examination panel by the department. Then they prepare a written prospectus for review by the committee, followed by an oral presentation.

COMPREHENSIVE EXAM

The comprehensive examination is an evaluation of the student's mastery of a research area near completion of formal course work, and before preparation of the dissertation. The exam may be written, oral, or both, at the department's discretion, and is administered by a faculty committee. The comprehensive exam typically should be completed by the end of the student's third year and no later than the end of the fourth year in the Ph.D. program.

DISSERTATION

Each Ph.D. student must write a dissertation, a significant, original contribution to the field of computer science. Once students obtain some preliminary results and can identify and describe the boundaries of their dissertation, they prepare a written proposal for their committee's review. The dissertation must be prepared in accordance with the format specified in the Graduate College Thesis Manual.

FINAL ORAL EXAMINATION

Once the dissertation is complete and has been reviewed by the student's committee, a final oral examination is administered on campus. This examination must take place no sooner than the semester following successful completion of the comprehensive examination and no later than five years after completion of the comprehensive exam.

Computer Science Courses

For Undergraduates

22C:001 Computer Literacy 3 s.h.

Computer literacy; nature, uses, limitations of computers and computing; impact of computer technology on society; privacy, ethics, security; overview of computer organization; introduction to applications, including communications, word processing, desktop publishing, spreadsheets, graphics, databases, World Wide Web. Recommendations: no credit for students who have completed a higher-numbered 22C course or 06K:070.

22C:002 First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.

Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

22C:005 Introduction to Computer Science 3 s.h.

Broad overview; representation of information, microprocessor fundamentals, databases, networks, graphics, impact and limitations of technology, multimedia web page development, Flash movie clips. Recommendations: closed to students who have completed a computer science course numbered 22C:021 or above. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22C:016 Computer Science I: Fundamentals 4 s.h.

Introduction to programming using Python; programming constructs, data types, problem-solving strategies, data structures, object-oriented programming. Requirements: 22M:005 or 22M:013 or 22M:015 or equivalent high school or college mathematics background. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22C:019 Discrete Structures 3 s.h.

Mathematical methods used in computer science, including logic, proof techniques (with induction), functions, relations, algorithm analysis, recurrence relations, counting methods, combinatorics, graphs, trees. Prerequisites: 22C:016. Recommendations: calculus I.

22C:021 Computer Science II: Data Structures 4 s.h.

Design, implementation and analysis of data structures and algorithms, including linked lists, stacks, queues, hash tables, trees, graphs; complexity analysis; recursion; dynamic data structures. Corequisites: 22C:019, if not taken as a prerequisite. Requirements: grade of C- or higher in 22C:016.

22C:022 Object-Oriented Software Development 4 s.h.

Object-oriented design and software development methodology; team programming projects; GUIs, event handling, network programming, concurrency, data representation, IO programming. Prerequisites: 22C:016. Corequisites: 22C:019, if not taken as a prerequisite.

22C:031 Algorithms 3 s.h.

Algorithm design techniques (divide and conquer, dynamic programming, greedy) and analysis techniques (big O notation, recurrence); sorting (merge sort, heapsort, and quicksort), searching (B-trees, AVL trees or red black trees, hashing); basic graph algorithms (depth-first and breadth-first search, minimum spanning trees, shortest paths); NP-completeness. Prerequisites: 22C:021, and 22M:025 or 22M:031.

22C:060 Computer Organization

3 s.h.

Computer building blocks: representing data, computer arithmetic, instruction sets, assembly language, digital logic, control units, ALU design, register operations, memory organization, IO. Prerequisites: 22C:021.

22C:072 Elementary Numerical Analysis

3 s.h.

Computer arithmetic, root finding, polynomial approximation, numerical integration, systems of linear equations, ordinary differential equations; use of higher-level computer language such as Matlab, Maple, Mathematica. Requirements: grade of C- or higher in 22M:026 or 22M:032. Same as 22M:072.

22C:080 Programming for Informatics

4 s.h.

Computing fundamentals for informatics students, including practical programming skills (e.g., in Perl, other scripting languages) and introduction to algorithms, data structures, databases. Prerequisites: 22C:005. Corequisites: 22M:003 or 22M:009 or 22M:010 or 22M:013 or 22M:015, if not taken as a prerequisite.

22C:082 Human-Computer Interaction

3 s.h.

Basic theories, principles, and guidelines for design and evaluation of human-computer interactions; design methodologies (e.g., participatory design, low- and high-fidelity prototyping), user interface technologies (e.g., input and output devices, interaction styles), quantitative and qualitative evaluation of user interfaces (e.g., expert reviews, usability testing). Corequisites: 22C:080, if not taken as a prerequisite. Requirements: an approved statistics course.

22C:084 Databases for Informatics

3 s.h.

Design and implementation of relational database systems: introduction to the relational model, database design, database normalization, use of database query and manipulation languages such as SQL. Prerequisites: 22C:080.

22C:086 Networking and Security for Informatics

3 s.h.

Introduction to computer networking, overview of network organization and management; basic understanding of encryption and network security; practical experience in network programming. Prerequisites: 22C:080.

22C:094 Informatics Project

3 s.h.

Experience designing, implementing, documenting, and testing a system using appropriate software tools (e.g., a project working with an information management tool consisting of a database system with a Web-based front end); typically done in small groups; capstone project for informatics majors. Prerequisites: 22C:082, 22C:084, and 22C:086.

22C:096 Topics in Computer Science

arr.

Complement to material in other courses. Prerequisites: 22C:021 or 22C:022 or 22C:080 or 22C:104.

22C:099 Honors in Computer Science or Informatics

arr.

Individual projects. Requirements: computer science or informatics major, and honors standing.

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students*22C:109 Programming Languages and Tools

3 s.h.

Varied programming languages and tools. Prerequisites: 22C:016 or 22C:080 or 22C:104.

22C:111 Programming Language Concepts

3 s.h.

Imperative, functional, and logical programming languages, and differences between them; syntax specification, types, control structures, recursion, data abstraction. Prerequisites: 22C:021 and 22C:022.

22C:112 Operating Systems

3 s.h.

Introduction to modern operating systems, including device control, memory management and addressing, process scheduling, interprocess communication, interrupts, synchronization, security. Prerequisites: 22C:060.

22C:113 Introduction to Systems Software

3 s.h.

Design and implementation of system software, including operating systems and programming support software (assemblers, compilers, linkers, loaders); process, memory, message management. Prerequisites: 22C:060.

22C:118 Introduction to Networks and Their Applications 3 s.h.

Introduction to networks and the development of network applications; basic concepts of network communication common to applications such as simulation and web services. Prerequisites: 22C:060.

22C:131 Limits of Computation 3 s.h.

Turing machines, undecidability and complexity: reductions, Cook's theorem and NP-completeness, approximation algorithms and randomized algorithms. Prerequisites: 22C:031.

22C:135 Theory of Computation 3 s.h.

Finite automata; regular sets and expressions; context-free and context-sensitive grammars, their properties; push-down automata; standard, universal, and linear-bounded Turing machines; relationships between formal languages and automata; undecidability and its consequences. Prerequisites: 22C:031.

22C:137 Theory of Graphs 3 s.h.

Connectivity properties, including Euler, Hamilton cycle problems; graph colorings, matchings; characterization of families of graphs such as trees, planar graphs, networks; graph algorithms, their applications. Prerequisites: 22M:050. Same as 22M:152.

22C:141 Knowledge Discovery 3 s.h.

Knowledge discovery process, including data reduction, cleansing, transformation; advanced modeling techniques from classification, prediction, clustering, association; evaluation and integration. Same as 06K:275.

22C:142 Knowledge Discovery and Data Mining 3 s.h.

Concepts and techniques in knowledge discovery and data mining (KDD); data preprocessing, exploration, association analysis, classification, prediction, clustering. Prerequisites: 22C:031 or 22C:080 or 22C:104. Requirements: some probability/statistics.

22C:144 Database Systems 3 s.h.

Introduction to database systems including querying using SQL, design using ER diagrams, developing relational databases, programming web applications using PHP or JDBC. Prerequisites: 22C:021 and 22C:031.

22C:145 Artificial Intelligence 3 s.h.

Introduction to artificial intelligence covering problem-solving methods, heuristic search, knowledge representation, automated reasoning, planning, game playing, machine learning, and neural networks. Prerequisites: 22C:031.

22C:146 Introduction to Computational Linguistics 3 s.h.

Introduction to computational linguistics; focus on theory and practice of natural language processing and syntactic and semantic analysis. Same as 103:140.

22C:151 Computer Graphics 3 s.h.

Introduction to computer graphics algorithms and techniques, with emphasis on interactive 3-D graphics; coordinate systems and frames, modeling and viewing transformations, rendering, shading, lighting, texture, bump, environment mapping, animation, ray tracing, radiosity. Prerequisites: 22C:031 and 22M:027.

22C:160 High Performance Computer Architecture 3 s.h.

Problems involved in designing and analyzing current machine architectures using hardware description language (HDL) simulation and analysis, hierarchical memory design, pipeline processing, vector machines, numerical applications, multiprocessor architectures and parallel algorithm design techniques; evaluation methods to determine relationship between computer design and design goals. Prerequisites: 22C:112 or 22C:113 or 055:035. Same as 055:132.

22C:166 Distributed Systems and Algorithms 3 s.h.

Models of distributed systems, program correctness--safety and liveness properties, causality, logical and vector clocks, mutual exclusion, distributed snapshot, leader election, distributed algorithms for graph-theoretic problems, fault-tolerance--masking versus nonmasking types, checkpointing, stabilization, consensus--byzantine generals problem, fault-tolerant broadcast and multicast, management of replicated data. Prerequisites: 22C:031, 22C:112 or 22C:113. Requirements: some interest in networking.

22C:169 Computer Security

3 s.h.

Mechanism versus policy; authentication, access control, security domains; perimeter security, defense in depth; cryptographic protocols; key management and distribution; security assessment. Prerequisites: 22C:060.

22C:170 Numerical Analysis: Nonlinear Equations and Approximation Theory

3 s.h.

Root finding for nonlinear equations; polynomial interpolation; polynomial approximation of functions; numerical integration. Prerequisites: 22M:027 and 22M:028, or 22M:037 or 22M:056. Requirements: knowledge of computer programming. Same as 22M:170.

22C:171 Numerical Analysis: Differential Equations and Linear Algebra

3 s.h.

Numerical methods for initial value problems for ordinary differential equations; direct and iterative methods for linear systems of equations; eigenvalue problems for matrices. Prerequisites: 22M:027 and 22M:028, or 22M:037 or 22M:056; and 22M:100. Requirements: knowledge of computer programming. Same as 22M:171.

22C:174 Optimization Techniques

3 s.h.

Basic theory of optimization, use of numerical algorithms in solution of optimization problems; linear and nonlinear programming, sensitivity analysis, convexity, optimal control theory, dynamic programming, calculus of variations. Prerequisites: 22M:027, 22M:028 or 22M:056, and 22M:072. Same as 22M:174.

22C:177 High Performance and Parallel Computing

3 s.h.

Parallel scientific computing methods such as parallel algorithms for dense and sparse matrices; implementation using libraries such as MPI; current topics such as grid computing. Requirements: linear algebra or numerical analysis course, and a programming language. Same as 22M:178.

22C:180 Fundamentals of Software Engineering

3 s.h.

Problem analysis, requirements definition, specification, design, implementation, testing/maintenance, integration, project management; human factors; management, technical communication; design methodologies; software validation, verification; group project experience. Prerequisites: 22C:022 or 055:033. Same as 055:180.

22C:181 Formal Methods in Software Engineering

3 s.h.

Models, methods, and their application in all phases of software engineering process; specification methods; verification of consistency, completeness of specifications; verification using tools. Prerequisites: 22C:180. Same as 055:181.

22C:182 Software Engineering Languages and Tools

3 s.h.

Object-oriented programming concepts (objects, classes, single and multiple inheritance, polymorphism and dynamic binding); object-oriented languages and environments such as JAVA and Eiffel; introduction to design patterns and software architectures such as Model-View-Controller and application frameworks; component-based software development; use of standard component frameworks such as CORBA and COM/DCOM. Prerequisites: 22C:180 or 055:180. Requirements: experience with an object-oriented programming language. Same as 055:182.

22C:183 Software Engineering Project

3 s.h.

Team software development project using concepts and methodologies learned in earlier software engineering classes; practical aspects of large-scale software development. Prerequisites: 22C:180 and 22C:182. Same as 055:183.

22C:185 Programming Language Foundations

3 s.h.

Introduction to formal foundations of programming languages using a variety of models, including attribute grammars, operational, axiomatic, denotational, and algebraic techniques; proofs of program equivalence, correctness, termination. Prerequisites: 22C:031 and 22C:111.

22C:188 Logic in Computer Science

3 s.h.

Applications of symbolic logic in computer science; symbolic logic as a powerful tool for modeling computation and computational devices and reasoning formally about them; introduction to several logics (i.e., propositional, predicate, temporal, modal) differing in their expressive power and focus, their uses in computer science; how to represent knowledge in these logics, what represents a valid argument, and how to prove or disprove, possibly automatically, the validity of a logical statement. Prerequisites: 22C:019. Recommendations: computer science, math, or engineering major.

22C:191 Research for Thesis	arr.
22C:196 Topics in Computer Science Complements material in other courses. Prerequisites: 22C:021 or 22C:022.	arr.
22C:199 Individualized Research or Programming Project Individualized research and/or programming projects in computer science, guided by a faculty member.	arr.

For Graduate Students

Competence and exposure to computer science are not only useful, they often are prerequisite to advanced study and research in many disciplines. For most graduate students from other disciplines, an appropriate first course is 22C:104 Introduction to Informatics.

22C:104 Introduction to Informatics 3 s.h.
Fundamentals of computer science: algorithms, complexity, relational databases, systems concepts, programming in Perl. Requirements: 22C:005 or graduate standing.

22C:231 Design and Analysis of Algorithms 3 s.h.
Review of design and analysis techniques; advanced data structures (binomial and Fibonacci heaps, disjoint sets); graph algorithms (network flows, matching, min-cut); NP-completeness, randomization and approximation algorithms; special topics (string matching, computational geometry, number theoretic algorithms). Prerequisites: 22C:031 or 22C:131.

22C:242 Data Mining and Machine Learning 3 s.h.
Topics in machine learning theory and support vector machines (SVM); state-of-the-art data mining and machine learning explored through student projects and discussion of research papers. Prerequisites: 06K:275 or 22C:141 or 22C:142.

22C:251 Advanced Computer Graphics 3 s.h.
Topics such as global illumination and rendering; volume rendering; animation; curves and surfaces, advanced modeling and mapping techniques; graphics hardware; real-time graphics for virtual environments. Prerequisites: 22C:151.

22C:290 Readings for Research arr.
Requirements: Ph.D. standing in computer science.

22C:296 Seminar on Computer Science arr.

22C:299 Research for Dissertation arr.
Requirements: Ph.D. candidacy (post-comprehensive exam) in computer science.

22C:398 Research Seminar: Programming Languages 0 s.h.
Repeatable.

22C:399 Research Seminar: Colloquium Series 1 s.h.
Graduate colloquium. Repeatable. Requirements: graduate standing in computer science.

Creative Writing (Iowa Writers' Workshop)

Director: Lan Samantha Chang

Professors: Ethan Canin (Creative Writing/English), Lan Samantha Chang (Creative Writing/English), James Galvin (Creative Writing/English), James Alan McPherson (Creative Writing/English), Marilynne Robinson (Creative Writing/English), Cole Swensen (Creative Writing/English/Cinema and Comparative Literature)

Associate professor: Mark Levine (Creative Writing/English)

Graduate degree: M.F.A. in English

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~iww/>

The Creative Writing Program (Iowa Writers' Workshop) is a world-renowned graduate program for fiction writers and poets. It was the first creative writing program in the United States to offer a degree, and it became a model for many contemporary writing programs. In addition to its Master of Fine Arts program, it also offers writing courses for undergraduates.

Creative writing classes at The University of Iowa began in the 1890s, and in 1922 the University became the nation's first institution of higher education to accept creative work as theses for advanced degrees. The Iowa Writers' Workshop began in 1936, drawing distinguished fiction writers and poets who would lecture and stay to discuss students' work; some came for a full year of teaching.

Today the program's faculty and alumni include nationally and internationally prominent poets, novelists, and short story writers; many have won Pulitzer Prizes, National Book Awards, and other major literary honors. In 2003 the Iowa Writers' Workshop received a National Humanities Medal from the National Endowment for the Humanities—the first awarded to a university and only the second given to an institution rather than an individual.

To learn more about the Creative Writing Program's history and faculty, visit the Iowa Writers' Workshop web site.

Graduate Program

The Creative Writing Program offers instruction that leads to a Master of Fine Arts degree in English.

Unusually well-qualified students in the Department of English Ph.D. program may obtain permission to submit a creative dissertation for that degree. In such a case, the Program in Creative Writing assumes responsibility for granting permission for the option of the creative dissertation and for approving the dissertation once it is completed. Contact the director of graduate study in the Department of English for more information.

Master of Fine Arts

The Master of Fine Arts in English (creative writing) requires 48 s.h. of graduate credit taken over four semesters in residence at The University of Iowa. Students specialize in fiction or poetry. Work toward the degree culminates in a creative thesis.

The program is flexible and individualized. Approximately half of the credit required for the degree is earned in writing courses; the rest may be earned in other graduate courses. Up to 18 s.h. of graduate transfer credit may be counted toward the degree, but transfer credit does not change the residency requirement.

Students must enroll in 08C:251 Fiction Workshop or 08C:252 Poetry Workshop during each semester of residence in the program. In each course, groups of 10-15 students read and critique each others' work.

The program's seminars provide students with a thorough knowledge of their chosen literary form and related aspects of craft. Seminars include 08C:270 Form of Fiction, 08C:275 Form of Poetry, 08C:490 Seminar: Problems in Modern Fiction, and 08C:495 Seminar: Problems in Modern Poetry. Each focuses on a single aspect of modern poetry or fiction, such as a single writer's work or a body of work with a common theme or purpose.

In addition to taking Creative Writing Program courses, many M.F.A. students choose courses offered by other University of Iowa departments and programs, such as the interdisciplinary Center for the Book (Graduate College), the Department of Theatre Arts, the Department of Cinema and Comparative Literature, and the Department of English.

During the last semester of the program, each student must take the M.F.A. examination, an essay exam that may be written outside of the classroom. Students also submit their graduate thesis during the last semester (08C:590 M.F.A. Thesis); the thesis is a fiction or poetry manuscript of substantial length.

Admission

Applicants to the Creative Writing Program (Iowa Writers' Workshop) must meet the program's admission requirements as well as those of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

A creative writing manuscript is the most important element of the application for admission to the workshop. Submissions for poetry should include 10-12 poems. Submissions for fiction should include two or three short stories or a section of a novel, or both, usually 30-38 double-spaced pages (may not exceed 100 double-spaced pages).

Other application materials include a personal statement, official transcripts from all universities and colleges attended, the graduate application form, three letters of recommendation, an application for graduate awards, and an application to the Graduate College. Graduate Record Exam (GRE) General Test scores are optional, but they may make applicants more competitive for a wider range of financial assistance.

For detailed information on application materials and procedures, see Graduate Admissions/Admission to the Workshop on the Iowa Writers' Workshop web site.

Financial Support

Financial assistance is available to Creative Writing Program students in the form of teaching assistantships, research assistants, and fellowships. See Applying for Financial Aid on the Iowa Writer's Workshop web site.

Creative Writing Program Courses

The Creative Writing Program offers courses for undergraduates as well as graduate students. Enrollment in some graduate-level courses requires admission to the M.F.A. program.

Critical Cultural Competence

Coordinator: Edward Saunders

Undergraduate nondegree program: Certificate in Critical Cultural Competence

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~socialwk/CCCC>

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offers the Certificate in Critical Cultural Competence. The certificate program helps students develop an appreciation for their own cultural identities. It also helps them become critically self-reflective in their orientation to differences in other people's cultural identities as defined by matters such as race, ethnicity, gender, class, and sexual orientation.

The certificate program is open to undergraduate students across the University. It is administered by the School of Social Work.

Certificate

The Certificate in Critical Cultural Competence requires 18 s.h. of course work. Ideally, students begin the certificate during their second year of undergraduate study.

Certificate students build the knowledge, skills, and attitudes they will need in order to increase their effectiveness in relating to others across cultural differences and in domestic and international environments that are increasingly diverse.

Intended outcomes for students who complete the certificate are:

- greater appreciation of cultural differences;
- increased ability to interact with individuals of diverse backgrounds;
- adoption of a philosophy of treating people fairly, equitably, and thoughtfully;
- critical self-reflection and awareness of one's own culture;
- ability to assess and understand culture-related privilege and disprivilege; and
- concern with issues of power and privilege, and social justice.

The certificate requires the following course work.

208:120 Foundations of Critical Cultural Competence	3 s.h.
Three electives covering at least two diversity categories	9 s.h.
One elective with an immersion-learning or service-learning component	3 s.h.
208:190 Integrative Seminar in Critical Cultural Competence	3 s.h.

Students begin the certificate with 208:120 Foundations of Critical Cultural Competence, which is offered spring semesters and is prerequisite to the course work that follows. They complete a minimum of three elective courses (9 s.h.) that cover at least two diversity categories; a maximum of two electives may be taken from the same department, and two of the three electives must be 100-level or above. An additional experiential elective (3 s.h.) with an immersion-learning or service-learning component is required. Students complete the certificate's requirements with the capstone course, 208:190 Integrative Seminar in Critical Cultural Competence, which is offered spring semesters.

In collaboration with the certificate program's coordinator, students establish study plans while completing the foundation course. The coordinator works with the academic advisor in the student's major to ensure that the study plan complements the student's academic program and career interests. The program coordinator approves the final study plan, recommends the sequence in which course work should be taken, schedules required courses, and keeps a record of each student's approved program and progress.

Once a student fulfills the requirements for the certificate and completes an undergraduate degree, the certificate is noted on his or her transcript.

For more information, contact the School of Social Work.

Critical Cultural Competence Courses

208:120 Foundations of Critical Cultural Competence	3 s.h.
Experiential and theoretical foundation; cultural competence as a concept and practice; conceptual frameworks and models for understanding cultural differences and similarities within, among, and between groups of people with whom others interact in their professional, personal, public, and private lives; appreciating differences while learning to be self-reflective; adjustment of perceptions, behaviors, styles for effective interaction with people from different ethnic, racial, sexual, gender, class groups.
208:190 Integrative Seminar in Critical Cultural Competence	3 s.h.

Capstone course; application of knowledge to one's areas of study; community settings where cultural competence is required; challenges and benefits of behaving in culturally competent ways in varied contexts; review and critique of educational experiences in the certificate program; development of skills in community education related to cultural competence; group project to benefit the University and/or community; development of a plan to integrate critical cultural competence into careers. Requirements: completion of other required certificate courses.

Dance

Director, Division of Performing Arts: Alan MacVey

Chair: George de la Peña

Professors: Armando Duarte, Alan Sener

Professor emerita: Françoise Martinet

Associate professors: Charlotte Adams, George de la Peña, Rebekah Kowal

Associate professors emeritae: Alicia Brown, Helen Chadima

Assistant professors: Eloy Barragán, Deanna Carter, Jennifer Kayle

Adjunct assistant professors: Paul Cunliffe, Lyle Juracek

Lecturer: Jim Albert

Undergraduate degrees: B.A., B.F.A. in Dance

Undergraduate nondegree program: Minor in Dance

Graduate degree: M.F.A. in Dance

Web site: <http://dance.uiowa.edu>

The Department of Dance offers degree programs for undergraduates and graduate students. The undergraduate major in dance provides a liberal arts and sciences education and thorough preparation for careers in professional dance, choreography, and education, as well as preparation for graduate studies.

The department offers as many as 14 concerts every year, providing dance students with numerous opportunities for performance and choreography. Each year the University of Iowa Dance Company performs Dance Gala on campus, and since 1986, the department's touring company, Dancers in Company, has given students an opportunity to perform in Iowa and surrounding states.

Dance faculty members regularly present their choreography in national and international venues, giving University student performers the opportunity to further develop their performance skills. Periodic master classes with noted guest teachers, choreographers, and touring companies add diversity to the dance experience.

The department is one of four academic units that make up the Division of Performing Arts.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts, a Bachelor of Fine Arts, and a minor in dance. It also participates in offering the Certificate in Performing Arts Entrepreneurship, offered through the Division of Performing Arts.

Students must audition on campus in order to be admitted to a degree program or the minor in dance, as well as for placement in advanced dance classes.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in dance requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 53 s.h. of work for the major (50 s.h. in dance and 3 s.h. in a required anatomy course). The program is designed for students who want to acquire a strong liberal arts and sciences background while pursuing a comprehensive undergraduate dance education. The degree stresses performance and choreography as well as dance theory courses, including dance history, dance kinesiology, and dance production.

Students must audition on campus, during the semester before they enter the University, in order to be admitted to a degree program in dance. They must audition for placement in dance classes before they register for classes. Nonmajors and students minoring in dance may register only for beginning and continuing levels of ballet and modern dance, but they may register for all levels of jazz and Afro-Cuban dance. Contact the Department of Dance, the undergraduate program coordinator, or the Office of Admissions for additional information.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

All B.A. students must complete 027:053 Human Anatomy (3 s.h.). The required 50 s.h. in Department of Dance courses must include two semesters of 137:113 Major Ballet II or 137:114 Major Modern Dance II with a grade of B-minus or higher. Two semesters of 137:124 Major Modern Dance III, 137:123 Major Ballet III, or 137:130 Major Modern Dance IV also satisfy this requirement. At least half of all semester hours in the major must be earned at The University of Iowa. No more than 50 s.h. in Department of Dance courses may be counted toward the 120 s.h. required for the B.A.

Students who select cross-referenced, non-dance department courses to satisfy the core course requirements must take additional dance electives to complete the required 50 s.h. in Department of Dance courses.

CORE COURSES

027:053 Human Anatomy	3 s.h.
137:040 Introduction to Dance Studies	1 s.h.
137:050 Dance Production	3 s.h.

137:051 Production Run Crew (2 s.h. required)	1-2 s.h.
137:060 Music Essentials for Dance	2 s.h.
137:080/188:080 Dance and Society: U.S. Forms in Transnational and Critical Contexts	3 s.h.
137:147/049:108 Dance Kinesiology	3 s.h.
137:181 Dance History	3 s.h.

STUDIO COURSES

137:070 Choreography I	2 s.h.
137:071 Choreography II	2 s.h.
137:134 Improvisation I	2 s.h.

DANCE TECHNIQUE

Dance majors must take 6 s.h. each of ballet and of modern dance technique; students choose 20 s.h. from the following. All courses may be repeated.

137:022 Intermediate Jazz	2 s.h.
137:023 Intermediate Ballet	2 s.h.
137:024 Intermediate Modern	2 s.h.
137:103 Major Ballet I	1-3 s.h.
137:104 Major Modern Dance I	1-3 s.h.
137:113 Major Ballet II	1-3 s.h.
137:114 Major Modern Dance II	1-3 s.h.
137:123 Major Ballet III	1-3 s.h.
137:124 Major Modern Dance III	1-3 s.h.
137:130 Major Modern Dance IV	1-2 s.h.
137:133 Ballet Pointe II	1 s.h.

DANCE ELECTIVES

Listed below are some recommended courses to fulfill the dance elective credits.

137:030 Ballet Pointe I	1 s.h.
137:133 Ballet Pointe II	1 s.h.
137:157 Brazilian Carnival	3 s.h.
137:160 Introduction to Laban Movement Studies	2-3 s.h.
137:174 Introduction to Afro-Cuban Dance	1 s.h.

Credit earned in Department of Dance courses (prefix 137) that is not used to satisfy core, studio, or dance technique degree requirements is counted toward the dance elective requirement. Dance electives complete the 50 s.h. of dance courses required for the Bachelor of Arts.

The required number of semester hours in dance electives varies depending on whether the student completes the core with dance courses or with cross-referenced courses from another department, or has a core requirement waived.

Bachelor of Fine Arts

The Bachelor of Fine Arts in dance requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 78 s.h. of work for the major (75 s.h. in dance and 3 s.h. in a required anatomy course). In contrast to the B.A., the B.F.A. emphasizes choreography and performance through an additional 25 s.h. of choreography, performance, and technique. Students may be admitted to the B.F.A. program after they have completed a minimum of 30 s.h. at The University of Iowa. Students who have achieved the equivalent of major II technique and who show academic and professional promise are selected by department faculty for admission to the program.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

All B.F.A. students must complete 027:053 Human Anatomy (3 s.h.). The required 75 s.h. in Department of Dance courses must include three semesters of 137:123 Major Ballet III or 137:130 Major Modern Dance IV with a grade of B-minus or higher. B.F.A. students are required to maintain a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in dance department courses. They also must earn at least half of the semester hours in the major at The University of Iowa. No more than 75 s.h. in Department of Dance courses may be counted toward the 120 s.h. required for the B.F.A.

The department encourages B.F.A. students to register for cross-referenced core courses under the Department of Dance course number (prefix 137). Cross-referenced courses are those with more than one course number (e.g., 137:080/188:080 Dance and Society).

CORE COURSES

B.F.A. students should register for cross-listed courses under the Department of Dance course number (prefix 137).

027:053 Human Anatomy	3 s.h.
137:040 Introduction to Dance Studies	1 s.h.
137:050 Dance Production	3 s.h.
137:051 Production Run Crew (2 s.h. required)	1-2 s.h.
137:060 Music Essentials for Dance	2 s.h.
137:080/188:080 Dance and Society: U.S. Forms in Transnational and Critical Contexts	3 s.h.
137:147/049:108 Dance Kinesiology	3 s.h.
137:181 Dance History	3 s.h.

STUDIO COURSES

137:070 Choreography I	2 s.h.
137:071 Choreography II	2 s.h.
137:106 Dance Performance (6 s.h. required)	1 s.h.
137:134 Improvisation I	2 s.h.
137:170 Choreography III	2 s.h.

DANCE TECHNIQUE

Students are required to complete 14 s.h. each of ballet and modern dance courses and a total of 32 s.h. of technique, chosen from the following (all courses are repeatable).

137:103 Major Ballet I	1-3 s.h.
137:104 Major Modern Dance I	1-3 s.h.
137:113 Major Ballet II	1-3 s.h.
137:114 Major Modern Dance II	1-3 s.h.
137:123 Major Ballet III	1-3 s.h.
137:124 Major Modern Dance III	1-3 s.h.
137:130 Major Modern Dance IV	1-2 s.h.
137:133 Ballet Pointe II	1 s.h.
137:157 Brazilian Carnival	3 s.h.
137:160 Introduction to Laban Movement Studies	2-3 s.h.
137:174 Introduction to Afro-Cuban Dance	1 s.h.

DANCE ELECTIVES

B.F.A. students choose advanced-level elective course work by selecting one of the following three options.

Option 1 (one pedagogy course):

137:143 Elementary Ballet Pedagogy	3 s.h.
or
137:144 Teaching of Modern Dance	3 s.h.

Option 2 (one advanced history or theory course):

137:202 Theories of Dance and the Body	3 s.h.
or
137:182 The Contemporary Dance Scene	3 s.h.

Option 3 (two choreography courses):

137:171 Choreography IV	2 s.h.
-------------------------	--------

137:172 Independent Choreography

1 s.h.

Credit earned in Department of Dance courses (prefix 137) that is not used to satisfy core, studio, or dance technique degree requirements is counted toward the dance elective requirement. Dance electives complete the 75 s.h. of dance courses required for the Bachelor of Fine Arts.

The required number of semester hours in dance electives varies depending on whether the student completes the core with dance courses or with cross-referenced courses from another department, or has a core requirement waived.

SENIOR PROJECT

B.F.A. students culminate their experience with senior projects in choreography or performance. The senior project also may be taken for honors credit.

137:141 B.F.A. Senior Project in Dance

arr.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Department of Dance course work beyond 50 s.h. for a B.A. and 75 s.h. for a B.F.A. does not apply toward semester hours required for graduation.

Bachelor of Arts

Before the third semester begins: 12 s.h. of courses in the major and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: 24-32 s.h. of courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: 36-48 s.h. of courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: 42-50 s.h. of courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Bachelor of Fine Arts

Before the third semester begins: 16 s.h. of courses in the major and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: 25-40 s.h. of courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: 45-60 s.h. of courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: 57-75 s.h. of courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

In order to pursue honors studies in the Department of Dance, a student must be a member of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). Honors students in dance must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in UI dance department courses.

The honors program in dance is designed to serve and recognize outstanding students in the areas of choreography, performance, and special projects. It requires 8-10 s.h. To complete the honors program in dance, students must take two courses for honors credit and complete an honors project. All honors projects must be approved by the dance department faculty.

Minor

The minor in dance requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in University of Iowa Department of Dance courses, including 12 s.h. in 100-level courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

The minor must include the following course work.

137:080 Dance and Society: U.S. Forms in Transnational and Critical Contexts 3 s.h.

One of these:

137:134 Improvisation I 2 s.h.

137:147 Dance Kinesiology 3 s.h.

137:157 Brazilian Carnival 3 s.h.

137:160 Introduction to Laban Movement Studies 2-3 s.h.

137:174 Introduction to Afro-Cuban Dance 1 s.h.

137:181 Dance History 3 s.h.

Students must complete one of these six courses in order to be admitted to any 100-level dance technique class.

Students must audition on campus in order to be admitted to the minor and for placement in dance classes. Auditions are offered four times per year. For audition information, contact the department or visit the Department of Dance web site.

Graduate Program

The department offers a Master of Fine Arts in dance, with a choice of choreography or performance track. Students must audition on campus in order to be admitted to the M.F.A. program.

Master of Fine Arts

The Master of Fine Arts in dance requires a minimum of 60 s.h. of graduate credit. The program is designed to be completed in four to six semesters in residence. Students who demonstrate accomplishment in dance performance and/or choreography may apply for admission to the M.F.A. program. Applicants select the choreography or the performance track before they are admitted.

Admission is based on a review of videotaped choreographic and performance work; letters of recommendation; application materials; and an on-campus audition, in which applicants teach one or more classes and take advanced classes in ballet and modern technique.

Advanced technique (ballet and/or modern) and demonstrated accomplishment in performance or choreography are prerequisites for admission to the M.F.A. program.

The M.F.A. requires the following course work.

DANCE CORE

A total of 19 s.h. of core course work is required for both the performance and the choreography track.

137:143 Elementary Ballet Pedagogy 3 s.h.

or

137:144 Teaching of Modern Dance 3 s.h.

137:200 Graduate Seminar in Dance 2 s.h.

137:201 Graduate Production Practicum 1 s.h.

137:202 Theories of Dance and the Body 3 s.h.

137:234 Graduate Improvisation I 1-2 s.h.

or

137:235 Graduate Improvisation II 2 s.h.

137:277 Thesis (8 s.h. required) arr.

DANCE TECHNIQUE

The performance track requires 18 s.h. from the following, the choreography track requires 12 s.h.; courses may be repeated. Performance track students must take a minimum of 4 s.h. of modern dance and 4 s.h. of ballet.

137:103 Major Ballet I	1-3 s.h.
137:104 Major Modern Dance I	1-3 s.h.
137:213 Graduate Majors Ballet II	1-3 s.h.
137:214 Graduate Majors Modern II	1-3 s.h.
137:223 Graduate Majors Ballet III	1-3 s.h.
137:224 Graduate Majors Modern III	1-3 s.h.
137:230 Graduate Major Modern IV	1-2 s.h.

EMPHASIS COURSES

A total of 14 s.h. is required for both the choreography and the performance track.

Choreography Track

137:206 Graduate Dance Performance (1 s.h. each performance, 2 s.h. total)	1 s.h.
137:274 Graduate Independent Choreography (1 s.h. each project, 4 s.h. total)	1 s.h.

A total of 8 s.h. from these:

137:272 Graduate Choreography III	2 s.h.
137:273 Graduate Choreography IV	2 s.h.
137:275 Collaborative Performance	4 s.h.

Performance Track

M.F.A. performance track candidates must earn 12 s.h. in performance courses and 2 s.h. in choreography courses.

137:107 Repertory Dance Company (4 s.h. per year, 0-8 s.h. total)	0-4 s.h.
137:206 Graduate Dance Performance (1 s.h. each performance, 4-12 s.h. total)	1 s.h.
137:274 Graduate Independent Choreography (1 s.h. each project, 2 s.h. total)	1 s.h.
or
A course from the choreography sequence (137:270-137:273)	2 s.h.

ELECTIVES

M.F.A. candidates in performance must earn a total of 9 s.h. in elective courses numbered 100 or above. A minimum of 6 s.h. must be earned in non-dance department courses. The remaining 3 s.h. must be earned in 137:147 Dance Kinesiology, 137:181 Dance History, or 137:182 The Contemporary Dance Scene.

M.F.A. candidates in choreography must earn a total of 15 s.h. in elective courses numbered 100 or above. A minimum of 6 s.h. must be earned in non-dance department courses; 6 s.h. must be earned in a course or courses that provide research material for the thesis. The remaining 3 s.h. must be earned in 137:147 Dance Kinesiology, 137:181 Dance History, or 137:182 The Contemporary Dance Scene.

Facilities

The Department of Dance houses six technique studios, a movement training lab, a media classroom and library, a media laboratory, an audio recording laboratory, and its own theater for dance concerts.

Dance Courses

Primarily for Undergraduates

137:001 Beginning Tap 1-2 s.h.
Elementary techniques, steps, and performance skills for rhythm and show tap styles; enhancement of rhythmic ability through exercises, improvisation, creative activities; may include history of tap. Tap shoes required. GE: Fine Arts.

137:002 Beginning Jazz 1-2 s.h.
Basic movement fundamentals, terminology, performance skills of jazz dance; enhancement of flexibility, strength, body alignment, coordination, balance, kinesthetic awareness, personal range of motion, and musicality; warm-up, locomotion, center combinations; may include history of jazz dance. GE: Fine Arts.

137:003 Beginning Ballet 1-2 s.h.
Basic movement fundamentals, terminology, performance skills of ballet; enhancement of flexibility, strength, body alignment, coordination, balance, kinesthetic awareness, personal range of motion, and musicality; barre and center combinations; terminology; may include history of ballet. GE: Fine Arts.

137:004 Beginning Modern Dance 1-2 s.h.
Basic movement fundamentals, terminology, performance skills of modern dance; enhancement of flexibility, strength, body alignment, coordination, balance, kinesthetic awareness, personal range of motion, and musicality; warm-up, locomotion, center combinations; may include history of modern dance. GE: Fine Arts.

137:011 Continuing Tap 1-2 s.h.
Continuation of 137:001. GE: Fine Arts.

137:012 Continuing Jazz 1-2 s.h.
Continuation of 137:002; skills for technique and performance of jazz dance; enhancement of flexibility, strength, body alignment, coordination, balance, kinesthetic awareness, personal range of motion, and musicality; warm-up, locomotion, center combinations; may include history of jazz dance. GE: Fine Arts.

137:013 Continuing Ballet 1-2 s.h.
Continuation of 137:003; skills necessary for technique and performance of ballet; enhancement of flexibility, strength, body alignment, coordination, balance, kinesthetic awareness, personal range of motion, and musicality; barre and center combinations; terminology; may include history of ballet. GE: Fine Arts.

137:014 Continuing Modern Dance 1-2 s.h.
Continuation of 137:004; skills necessary for the technique and performance of modern dance; enhancement of flexibility, strength, body alignment, coordination, balance, kinesthetic awareness, personal range of motion, and musicality; warm-up, locomotion, center combinations; may include history of modern dance. GE: Fine Arts.

137:022 Intermediate Jazz 1-2 s.h.
Low intermediate technique and performance training in jazz dance; flexibility, strength, body alignment, and coordination as foundation for more advanced dance artistry, including mobility, musicality, style; warm-up, locomotion, center combinations; may include history of jazz dance. Requirements: audition. GE: Fine Arts.

137:023 Intermediate Ballet 1-2 s.h.
Low intermediate technique and performance training in ballet; flexibility, strength, body alignment, and coordination as foundation for more advanced dance artistry, including more difficult steps, musicality, mobility, balance; basic ballet terminology, including steps, head, body, arm positions; variations in timing, changes of facing. GE: Fine Arts.

137:024 Intermediate Modern 1-2 s.h.
Low intermediate technique and performance training in modern dance; flexibility, strength, body alignment, and breath as foundation for more advanced dance artistry, including musicality, mobility, balance, improvisation; variations in timing, changes of facing. GE: Fine Arts.

137:029 First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

137:030 Ballet Pointe I

1 s.h.

Basic techniques and training for ballet pointe; repetition and analysis of steps and combinations, assimilation of new material; barre and center exercises, pirouettes and turns commonly performed en pointe, learning and performing variations drawn from repertory. Requirements: previous ballet training and experience.

137:034 Beginning/Contact Improvisation

1-2 s.h.

Concepts of dance improvisation and contact improvisation; cultivation of creative freedom through the use and invention of movement; range of expression broadened through personal movement capacity, spontaneity and imagination, ability to make and commit to movement choices; new approaches to moving and movement elements such as time, space, motion, qualities, dynamics; shared weight, support, counter-balancing, elementary partnering; studio course.

137:040 Introduction to Dance Studies

1 s.h.

Introduction to dance studies in the liberal arts; breadth and diversity of contemporary scholarship on dance; dance history, criticism, ethnography, theory, conditioning and injury prevention, improvisation, choreography, technology.

137:047 Topics in Body Conditioning

2 s.h.

Somatic training techniques that address conditioning needs of dancers--yoga for dancers, pilates, release techniques; other somatic studies related to injury prevention, concentration, flexibility, efficient movement, strength training. Requirements: dance major or minor.

137:050 Dance Production

3 s.h.

Scenic design, costuming, lighting, audio/video, publicity; visits by professional guest lecturers, field trips to creative shops; projects.

137:051 Production Run Crew

1-2 s.h.

Hands-on experience in production work for live dance performance. Prerequisites: 137:050.

137:060 Music Essentials for Dance

2 s.h.

Evolution of music and dance from prehistoric times to the present; rhythmic analysis and fundamental music theory for dance students.

137:070 Choreography I

2 s.h.

Introduction to theories and practices of creating choreography; locating varied sources for movement; elementary considerations of choreographic form; development of ideas, impulses, and initial inspirations into short works; fundamentals of giving and receiving critical feedback; articulation of thoughts and experience as composers and watchers of choreography; exposure to choreographic concerns supported by video and reading.

137:071 Choreography II

2 s.h.

Continuation of 137:070; development of intermediate choreographic skills; emphasis on cultivation of individual choreographic voice through expansion of vocabulary, discovery of complex ways to form and arrange, and use of widening range of methods and types of resources.

137:080 Dance and Society: U.S. Forms in Transnational and Critical Contexts

3 s.h.

Dance and other physical endeavors as embodied forms of knowledge and culture; U.S. dance practices; European and African dance cultures; aesthetic and political issues raised by concert dance (i.e., performance, choreography, spectatorship, criticism); ethnographic methods to examine the function of dance in cultural formation (i.e., spiritual, celebratory, social, political contexts); lecture, discussion, viewing, movement workshops, formal and informal writing, field research, and WIKI construction. GE: Fine Arts, Humanities. Same as 188:080.

137:103 Major Ballet I

1-3 s.h.

Builds on 137:023; intermediate technical and performance training in ballet; flexibility, strength, body alignment, and coordination as foundation for introduction of more advanced aspects of dance artistry, including steps, musicality, mobility, balance; terminology related to barre and center vocabulary, including steps, head, body, and arm positions; practice of steps and combinations, variations in timing, changes of facing. GE: Fine Arts.

137:104 Major Modern Dance I

1-3 s.h.

Builds on 137:024; intermediate technical and performance training in modern dance; physical and mental skills for transition to more advanced dance--physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing; basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement; assimilation of new movement material; center of gravity and its role in body mobilization and control; personal movement choices, and expressive range. GE: Fine Arts.

137:106 Dance Performance

0-1 s.h.

Credit for rehearsal hours and performance of dance works in produced dance concerts. Requirements: audition and/or concert adjudication. GE: Fine Arts.

137:107 Repertory Dance Company

0-4 s.h.

Advanced repertory studies; learning and performing multiple works by professional guest artists, faculty, and invited graduate students; collaborative creation and performing in community outreach lecture-demonstration throughout Iowa and the region. Requirements: audition.

137:113 Major Ballet II

1-3 s.h.

High intermediate training in ballet technique and performance; physical and mental skills necessary for more advanced work--physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body. GE: Fine Arts.

137:114 Major Modern Dance II

1-3 s.h.

High intermediate technical and performance training in modern dance; physical and mental skills necessary for more advanced work--physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body, consciousness of personal movement choices and expressive range. GE: Fine Arts.

137:120 Floor Barre

2 s.h.

Introduction to Beamish-based floor barre technique. Prerequisites: 137:023.

137:123 Major Ballet III

1-3 s.h.

Advanced training in ballet technique and performance; physical and mental skills necessary for professional work--physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body. GE: Fine Arts.

137:124 Major Modern Dance III

1-3 s.h.

Advanced technical and performance training in modern dance; physical and mental skills necessary for professional work--physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body, consciousness of personal movement choices and expressive range; may include partnering exercises for investigation of weight exchange, timing, expressivity. GE: Fine Arts.

137:130 Major Modern Dance IV

1-2 s.h.

Professional technique and performance training in modern dance.

137:133 Ballet Pointe II

1-2 s.h.

Intermediate/advanced techniques and training for ballet pointe work; repetition and analysis of steps and combinations, assimilation of new material; barre and center exercises, pirouettes and turns commonly performed en pointe, learning and performing variations drawn from repertory.

137:134 Improvisation I

2 s.h.

Introduction to movement as research; experimental process as vehicle for invention, creative freedom, aesthetic range; development of kinesthetic imagination, awareness, creative problem solving; introduction to issues of artistic originality and authenticity; practical integration of improvisation and composition through spontaneous manipulation of time, space, and energy; knowledge of creative process supported by reading and individual research.

137:135 Improvisation II

2 s.h.

Advanced concepts in compositional improvisation; in-depth individual exploration, spontaneous ensemble composition; increasing authenticity, depth, and range; integrity in relating to the whole ensemble; connecting creative process to other bodies of knowledge; making contact with emerging premise; reading and discussion as integration of conceptual and experiential; speaking and writing as improvisational process. Prerequisites: 137:134.

137:137 Partnering Class 1 s.h.

The art of partnering in dance, from salsa to Swan Lake; power sharing on the dance floor, including supported poses, balance, musical and physical timing, unity of movement, eloquence of gesture; for advanced dancers with strong coordination skills.

137:139 Acting for Dancers 3 s.h.

Beginning acting for dancers; spontaneity and expression, sources of action and reaction through theater games; emotional journey in effective drama and comedy; drama, comic structure, and tension through character and script analysis.

137:140 Honors Project in Dance arr.

Research, choreographic, reconstruction, or performance project under guidance of a faculty advisor. Requirements: senior standing.

137:141 B.F.A. Senior Project in Dance arr.

Senior year choreographic/performance capstone to complete B.F.A. in dance under supervision of faculty adviser; culminates in public showing or produced concert. Requirements: admitted to B.F.A. program in dance and senior standing.

137:143 Elementary Ballet Pedagogy 3 s.h.

Methods, materials, concepts for teaching ballet techniques.

137:144 Teaching of Modern Dance 3 s.h.

Practices of teaching modern dance; information and experience for developing an individualized approach to teaching; educational methodology for defining essential elements of a modern class, approaches for planning and structuring classes.

137:147 Dance Kinesiology 3 s.h.

Body science related to demands of dance; structural and muscular analysis for efficient, effective dance training and prevention of injuries; investigation of skeletal and ligamentous structure for working knowledge of how the body produces movement; joint actions and restrictions, common injuries to those sites; attachments of the voluntary muscles, pathways and potential actions; neuromuscular analysis of an action; functional skeletal alignment; how individual differences may affect movement performance. Prerequisites: 027:053. Same as 049:108.

137:149 Honors Studies in Dance arr.

Choreography, performance, production, Labanotation, dance history, or pedagogy. Requirements: g.p.a. of 3.33 or higher.

137:157 Brazilian Carnival 3 s.h.

Dance, music, historical, and social contents of Brazilian Carnival production, critical theories of performance, religious backgrounds, and theatre making in carnival parades.

137:160 Introduction to Laban Movement Studies 2-3 s.h.

Introduction to Bartenieff Fundamentals (BF) and Laban Movement Analysis (LMA) as methods of organizing and integrating movement to support artistic goals and expanding expressive range; BF teaches body awareness, breath support, developmental patterns, ergonomically-efficient alignment, balancing of muscular strength and stretch, and coordination; LMA teaches vocabulary of expressive movement and nonverbal communication, including effort (use of energy/dynamics for expression, stamina, stress relief) and shape (how posture and gesture communicate); quality of movement that supports individual goals in artistic expression, sound production, and wellness. Same as 025:167, 049:105, 188:167.

137:161 The Arts in Performance 3 s.h.

GE: Fine Arts, Humanities. Same as 033:161, 049:161, 188:161.

137:170 Choreography III 2 s.h.

Continuation of 137:071; increased emphasis on invention, clarity, sophistication, and development of complete works; creation of sharply defined mature movement worlds; increasingly thorough consideration of sources and methods, responsibility for applying course work to self-defined artistic concerns and emerging individual aesthetic; advanced theories and methods through video, reading, choreographic research.

137:171 Choreography IV 2 s.h.

Continuation of 137:170; advanced theories and practices of choreography; complex concepts, methods, applications; analytical and creative connections with bodies of knowledge across the liberal arts and sciences; complete development of multiple works; advanced practice in critical feedback and articulation of ideas about process and product; development through reading, video, extensive creative research.

137:172 Independent Choreography arr.

Credit for creation of independent choreographic project, developed under guidance of faculty advisor, that results in production of a dance work.

137:173 Introduction to the Alexander Technique 3 s.h.

The Alexander Technique and "self-use"--how our movement choices affect the results we achieve; improving physical skills and presence; principles from the Alexander Technique in support of performing arts (e.g., speaking, singing, playing an instrument, dancing, acting) and applied to skills in daily life, addressing the underpinnings of movement; physical participation, including laying, rolling, sitting, standing, and locomotion. Same as 025:176, 049:170, 188:168.

137:174 Introduction to Afro-Cuban Dance 1 s.h.

Introduction to the dance, drumming, and songs of the Afro-Cuban folkloric traditions; emphasis on dance. May participate in UI Afro-Cuban Drum and Dance ensemble. Corequisites: 137:175 or 188:175, if not taken as a prerequisite. Same as 188:174.

137:175 Afro-Cuban Drum and Dance Performance 1 s.h.

Dance repertory for the UI Afro-Cuban Drum and Dance Ensemble. Performance pieces based on dance, drumming, songs of the Afro-Cuban folkloric traditions. May participate in UI Afro-Cuban Drum and Dance Ensemble. Prerequisites: 025:173 or 137:174 or 188:173 or 188:174. Requirements: audition. Same as 188:175.

137:181 Dance History 3 s.h.

Dance history in the 19th and 20th centuries; changes in dance training and technique, theory, composition, performance practices in context of broader social, political, and cultural trends; how dance and choreographic practices have changed over time, relationships between social ideas about embodiment and production of dance forms, precedents for contemporary dance practices in past forms.

137:182 The Contemporary Dance Scene 3 s.h.

Historical, theoretical, and practical elements of contemporary dance; the term "postmodern" and its associations with dance, performing arts, contemporary culture; relationships between process and product, identity and subjectivity, artistic intent and authorship, meaning and intertextuality; possibility of art as a form of dissent; theory and practice placed in a dialectic; analysis and synthesis of previous research. Same as 188:182.

137:190 Independent Study arr.

Credit for an individual student-designed project coordinated with a faculty advisor. Requirements: sophomore or higher standing.

Primarily for Graduate Students

137:200 Graduate Seminar in Dance 2 s.h.

Research, careers, administrative, educational, professional, artistic topics.

137:201 Graduate Production Practicum 1 s.h.

Scenery and costume design, lighting, audio/video, publicity.

137:202 Theories of Dance and the Body 3 s.h.

Theoretical trends in studies of dance and physical bodies; performative and choreographic aspects of being. Same as 188:202.

- 137:206 Graduate Dance Performance 0-1 s.h.
Credit for rehearsal hours and performance of dance works in produced dance concerts. Repeatable. Requirements: audition and/or concert adjudication.
- 137:213 Graduate Majors Ballet II 1-3 s.h.
High intermediate technique and performance training; physical and mental skills necessary for more advanced work--physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body. Repeatable.
- 137:214 Graduate Majors Modern II 1-3 s.h.
High intermediate technical and performance training in modern dance; physical and mental skills necessary for more advanced work--physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body, consciousness of personal movement choices and expressive range. Repeatable.
- 137:223 Graduate Majors Ballet III 1-3 s.h.
Advanced ballet technique and performance training for proficient dancers; physical and mental skills necessary for professional work--physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, understanding of basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body. Repeatable.
- 137:224 Graduate Majors Modern III 1-3 s.h.
Advanced technical and performance training in modern dance; physical and mental skills necessary for professional work--physical stamina, strength, flexibility, articulation, coordination, musicality, phrasing, understanding of basic physical concepts underlying clear and efficient movement, capacity to assimilate new movement material, awareness of the center of gravity and its role in mobilization and control of the body, consciousness of personal movement choices and expressive range. Repeatable.
- 137:230 Graduate Major Modern IV 1-2 s.h.
Professional technique and performance training in modern dance.
- 137:234 Graduate Improvisation I 1-2 s.h.
Dance improvisation.
- 137:235 Graduate Improvisation II 2 s.h.
Advanced improvisation.
- 137:272 Graduate Choreography III 2 s.h.
Continuation of 137:271; advanced choreographic concepts, methods, and applications with focus on the creative mind and choreographic process; concepts and experiences that support development of advanced choreographic skills and innovative dances.
- 137:273 Graduate Choreography IV 2 s.h.
Advanced choreography concepts, methods, applications.
- 137:274 Graduate Independent Choreography arr.
Credit for creation of an independent choreographic project, developed under guidance of faculty advisor, that results in production of a dance work.
- 137:275 Collaborative Performance 1-4 s.h.
Collaborative experience with advanced artists from varied disciplines that culminates in a final performance; emphasis on sharing and investigating ideas, artistic intent, personal vision, and creating collaborative projects. Same as 049:275, 188:275.
- 137:277 Thesis arr.

137:290 Graduate Independent Study

arr.

Credit for individually designed project coordinated with a faculty advisor.

Division of Performing Arts

Director: Alan MacVey

Undergraduate degree: B.A. in Performing Arts Entrepreneurship

Undergraduate nondegree program: Certificate in Performing Arts Entrepreneurship

Web site: <http://performingarts.uiowa.edu>

The Division of Performing Arts includes the Department of Dance, the School of Music, and the Department of Theatre Arts. The division fosters interdisciplinary collaboration among these units, coordinates artistic and academic activities, and sponsors a full array of performances and symposia. Performances are supported by professional staff in the division's Performing Arts Production Unit.

The division's individual academic units offer undergraduate and graduate courses and degree programs in creative, performance, scholarly, and theoretical areas. They present an extensive schedule of dance productions, faculty and student recitals, ensemble concerts, and mainstage and gallery theater productions.

The division also partners with the John Pappajohn Entrepreneurial Center, in the Tippie College of Business, to offer the Certificate in Performing Arts Entrepreneurship. The certificate program combines courses in accounting, marketing, and financial management with those focused on arts management and leadership practices in commercial as well as nonprofit arts organizations.

The division also is home to an arts outreach program, Arts Share.

For information about the division and its programs and events, visit the Division of Performing Arts web site.

Economics

Chair: John L. Solow

Ravikumar (Henry B. Tippie Research Professor of Economics), Raymond G. Riezman (C. Woody Thompson Professor), Charles H. Whiteman (Leonard A. Hadley Chair in Leadership)

Professors emeriti: William P. Albrecht, Carol C. Fethke, John F. Geweke, Hyman Joseph, Gerald L. Nordquist, Thomas F. Pogue, N.E. Savin, Larry G. Sgontz, Calvin D. Siebert, S.Y. Wu

Associate professors: John L. Solow (Michael Sandler Research Fellow), Gustavo J. Ventura (Dore Research Fellow)

Assistant professors: Antonio Galvao Jr., Ayca Kaya, Kyungmin (Teddy) Kim, Elena Pastorino, Guillaume Vandenbroucke, Yuzhe Zhang

Lecturers: Stacey L. Brook, Jennifer L. Fuhrman, Blake Whitten

Undergraduate degrees: B.A., B.S., B.B.A. in Economics

Undergraduate nondegree program: Minor in Economics

Graduate degrees: M.A., Ph.D. in Economics

Web site: <http://www.tippie.uiowa.edu/economics>

Economics is the study of how societies allocate limited resources to achieve competing ends. Using both empirical and deductive methods, economics analyzes incentives, constraints, organizational forms, and market forces to understand patterns of production, exchange, and consumption of goods and services. It treats diverse issues such as wealth and poverty, government expenditures and taxation, prosperity and depression, inflation and unemployment, relations between management and labor, economic growth, environmental protection, health care delivery, the war on drug abuse, free trade versus protectionism, U.S. competitiveness in international markets, and the quality of American education.

The Department of Economics offers degree programs for undergraduates and for graduate students. It also partners with the Departments of Philosophy and Sociology to offer a Bachelor of Arts in ethics and public policy, an interdisciplinary major administered by the Department of Philosophy in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences; see Ethics and Public Policy in the Catalog.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers three undergraduate degrees: a Bachelor of Arts (B.A.) and a Bachelor of Science (B.S.) in economics awarded by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, and a Bachelor of Business Administration (B.B.A.) in economics awarded by the Tippie College of Business.

The department also partners with the Departments of Philosophy and Sociology to offer a Bachelor of Arts in ethics and public policy, an interdisciplinary major administered by the Department of Philosophy in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences; see Ethics and Public Policy in the Catalog.

The B.A. in economics is designed to achieve a balance of economic theory, mathematical tools, and field applications. The B.S. maintains a similar balance but emphasizes development of analytical tools; it prepares students for graduate work in economics or related business and technical fields. The B.B.A. emphasizes economic foundations of business fields: accounting, finance, marketing, business law, and management.

Each program provides an excellent educational background for a variety of positions in business and government. Graduates find employment in banking, financial institutions, industrial firms, and trade organizations and in federal, state, and local government agencies dealing with economic policy, regulation, and analysis. Economics also provides excellent preparation for the study of law and for graduate study in fields such as business management, public administration, hospital and health administration, urban and regional planning, transportation, journalism, political science, and statistics.

All students majoring in economics choose one of three tracks: business economics, policy economics, or analytical economics. The business economics track is designed for students who intend to work in the private sector. The policy economics track is for students interested in earning a degree in law or a graduate degree in a discipline that is not highly quantitative, or in seeking a decision-making position in the public or private sector. The analytical economics track is for students planning to earn a graduate degree in a discipline that is highly quantitative or who plan to pursue technical and/or analytical work in the public or private sector.

Each degree program (B.A., B.S., and B.B.A.) has three sets of requirements: mathematics and statistics courses that provide the skills needed for understanding economic theory and data; economic theory courses that provide the tools needed for analyzing economic issues; and field courses that apply economic tools to business, social, or specialized analytical issues. The applied field course requirement varies, depending on the student's choice of track.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in economics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 32 s.h. of work for the major. The program provides a balance of economic theory, mathematical tools, and field applications. It offers good educational background for a variety of positions in business and government as well as for the study of law and for graduate study.

The major requires a set of courses in mathematics and statistics (11 s.h.), a set in economic theory (6 s.h.), and a set of applied field courses (15 s.h.). Students must choose one of three tracks: business economics, policy economics, or analytical economics. The applied field courses vary depending on the student's choice of track.

The business economics track is designed for students who intend to work in the private sector. The policy economics track is for students interested in earning a degree in law or a graduate degree in a discipline that is not highly quantitative, or in seeking a decision-making position in the public or private sector. The analytical economics track is for students planning to earn a graduate degree in a discipline that is highly quantitative or who plan to pursue technical and/or analytical work in the public or private sector.

All B.A. students in economics must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Students may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of transfer or correspondence credit toward the required 21 s.h. in 100-level economics courses; additional transfer or correspondence credit must be approved by the director of undergraduate studies. Students should take the economic theory courses (06E:104 Microeconomic Theory or 06E:106 Advanced Microeconomics, and 06E:105 Macroeconomics) at The University of Iowa.

Students should pay close attention to the order in which they take courses, since some courses are prerequisites for others; see "Prerequisites" below. For help in developing a study plan, visit the Department of Economics web site.

The economics major (B.A.) requires the following courses.

MATHEMATICS AND STATISTICS COURSES

06E:071 Statistics for Strategy Problems	3 s.h.
22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business	4 s.h.
22S:008 Statistics for Business	4 s.h.

ECONOMIC THEORY COURSES

06E:104 Microeconomic Theory or 06E:106 Advanced Microeconomics	3 s.h.  3 s.h.
06E:105 Macroeconomics	3 s.h.

APPLIED FIELD COURSES

Five courses are required; course selection is determined by the student's choice of track.

Business Economics Track

Five of these:

06A:002 Managerial Accounting	3 s.h.
06E:111 Personnel Economics	3 s.h.
06E:117 Money, Banking, and Financial Markets	3 s.h.
06E:125 Global Economics and Business	3 s.h.
06E:141 Industry Analysis	3 s.h.
06E:160 Household Finance	3 s.h.
06J:048 Introduction to Management	3 s.h.

Policy Economics Track

Four of these:

06E:113 Health Economics	3 s.h.
06E:119 Policy Analysis	3 s.h.
06E:125 Global Economics and Business	3 s.h.
06E:129 Economic Growth and Development	3 s.h.
06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics	3 s.h.
06E:135 Regional and Urban Economics	3 s.h.
06E:145 Transportation Economics	3 s.h.

06E:165 Sports Economics	3 s.h.
06E:169 Topics in Policy Economics	arr.
06E:171 Antitrust Economics	3 s.h.
06E:172 Law and Economics	3 s.h.

One additional economics course numbered 06E:111 - 06E:189

Analytical Economics Track

Four of these:

06E:173 International Economics	3 s.h.
06E:174 Monetary Economics	3 s.h.
06E:175 Labor Economics	3 s.h.
06E:176 Public Sector Economics	3 s.h.
06E:177 Industrial Organization	3 s.h.
06E:183 Natural Resource Economics	3 s.h.
06E:187 Mathematical Economics	3 s.h.
06E:189 Topics in Analytical Economics	arr.

One additional economics course numbered 06E:111 - 06E:189

Prerequisites

Prerequisites for most 100-level courses in economics: 06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics and 06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics

Prerequisites for 06E:104 Microeconomic Theory: 06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics and 22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business

Prerequisites for 06E:105 Macroeconomics: 06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics and 22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business

Prerequisite for 06E:071 Statistics for Strategy Problems: 22S:008 Statistics for Business

Prerequisites for courses numbered 06E:171 and above: 06E:104 Microeconomic Theory or 06E:105 Macroeconomics, or both, depending on the course

Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Science in economics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 33-35 s.h. of work for the major. The program addresses economic theory, mathematical tools, and field applications, with an emphasis on developing skill using analytic tools. It offers good educational background for a variety of positions in business and government as well as for the study of law and for graduate study.

The major requires a set of courses in mathematics and statistics (15-17 s.h.), a set in economic theory (6 s.h.), and a set of applied field courses (12 s.h.). Students must choose one of three tracks: business economics, policy economics, or analytical economics. The applied field courses vary depending on the student's choice of track.

The business economics track is designed for students who intend to work in the private sector. The policy economics track is for students interested in earning a degree in law or a graduate degree in a discipline that is not highly quantitative, or in seeking a decision-making position in the public or private sector. The analytical economics track is for students planning to earn a graduate degree in a discipline that is highly quantitative or who plan to pursue technical and/or analytical work in the public or private sector.

All B.S. students in economics must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Students may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of transfer or correspondence credit toward the required 18 s.h. in 100-level economics courses; additional transfer or correspondence credit must be approved by the director of undergraduate studies. Students should take the economic theory courses (06E:104 Microeconomic Theory or 06E:106 Advanced Microeconomics, and 06E:105 Macroeconomics) at The University of Iowa.

Students should pay close attention to the order in which they take courses, since some courses are prerequisites for others; see "Prerequisites" below. For help in developing a study plan, visit the Department of Economics web site.

The economics major (B.S.) requires the following courses.

MATHEMATICS AND STATISTICS COURSES

06E:184 Introduction to Econometrics	3 s.h.
22M:025 Calculus I	4 s.h.
22M:026 Calculus II	4 s.h.
22S:120 Probability and Statistics	4 s.h.
22S:130-22S:131 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics I-II	6 s.h.

The department recommends that students planning to pursue a graduate degree in economics take 22S:130 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics I and 22S:131 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics II in place of 22S:120 Probability and Statistics, and that they take additional courses in mathematics, including 22M:027 Introduction to Linear Algebra, 22M:028 Calculus III, and 22M:100 Introduction to Ordinary Differential Equations.

ECONOMIC THEORY COURSES

06E:104 Microeconomic Theory	3 s.h.
or
06E:106 Advanced Microeconomics	3 s.h.
06E:105 Macroeconomics	3 s.h.

APPLIED FIELD COURSES

Four courses are required; course selection is determined by the student's choice of track.

Business Economics Track

Four of these:

06A:002 Managerial Accounting	3 s.h.

06E:117 Money, Banking, and Financial Markets	3 s.h.
06E:125 Global Economics and Business	3 s.h.
06E:141 Industry Analysis	3 s.h.
06E:160 Household Finance	3 s.h.
06J:048 Introduction to Management	3 s.h.

Policy Economics Track

Three of these:

06E:113 Health Economics	3 s.h.
06E:119 Policy Analysis	3 s.h.
06E:125 Global Economics and Business	3 s.h.
06E:129 Economic Growth and Development	3 s.h.
06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics	3 s.h.
06E:135 Regional and Urban Economics	3 s.h.
06E:145 Transportation Economics	3 s.h.
06E:165 Sports Economics	3 s.h.
06E:169 Topics in Policy Economics	arr.
06E:171 Antitrust Economics	3 s.h.
06E:172 Law and Economics	3 s.h.

One additional economics course numbered 06E:111 - 06E:189

Analytical Economics Track

Three of these:

06E:173 International Economics	3 s.h.
06E:174 Monetary Economics	3 s.h.
06E:175 Labor Economics	3 s.h.
06E:176 Public Sector Economics	3 s.h.
06E:177 Industrial Organization	3 s.h.
06E:183 Natural Resource Economics	3 s.h.
06E:187 Mathematical Economics	3 s.h.
06E:189 Topics in Analytical Economics	arr.

One additional economics course numbered 06E:111 - 06E:189

Prerequisites

Prerequisite for 22S:120 Probability and Statistics and 22S:130 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics I: 22M:026 Calculus II or 22M:032 Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus

Prerequisites for most 100-level courses in economics: 06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics and 06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics

Prerequisites for 06E:104 Microeconomic Theory: 06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics and 22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business

Prerequisites for 06E:105 Macroeconomics: 06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics and 22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business

Prerequisites for courses numbered 06E:171 and above: 06E:104 Microeconomic Theory or 06E:105 Macroeconomics, or both, depending on the course

Prerequisite for 06E:184 Introduction to Econometrics: 22S:120 Probability and Statistics or 22S:131 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics II

Bachelor of Business Administration

The Bachelor of Business Administration in economics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 18 s.h. of work for the major. The program emphasizes economic foundations of business fields: accounting, finance, marketing, business law, and management. It provides good educational background for a variety of positions in business and government as well as for the study of law and for graduate study.

All students must complete the B.B.A. common requirements: the General Education courses, the prerequisites for admission to the Tippie College of Business, and the business core; see "Common Requirements" under Bachelor of Business Administration in the Tippie College of Business section of the Catalog.

The major requires a set of courses in mathematics and statistics, which students take as part of the B.B.A. common requirements; a set in economic theory (6 s.h.); and a set of applied field courses (12 s.h.). Students majoring in economics choose one of three tracks: business economics, policy economics, or analytical economics. The applied field courses vary depending on the student's choice of track.

The business economics track is designed for students who intend to work in the private sector. The policy economics track is for students interested in earning a degree in law or a graduate degree in a discipline that is not highly quantitative, or in seeking a decision-making position in the public or private sector. The analytical economics track is for students planning to earn a graduate degree in a discipline that is highly quantitative or who plan to pursue technical and/or analytical work in the public or private sector.

Students may request permission to apply a limited amount of transfer or correspondence credit toward requirements for the major, but they should take the economic theory courses (06E:104 Microeconomic Theory or 06E:106 Advanced Microeconomics, and 06E:105 Macroeconomics) at The University of Iowa.

Students should pay close attention to the order in which they take courses, since some courses are prerequisites for others; see "Prerequisites" below. For help in developing a study plan, visit the Department of Economics web site.

The economics major (B.B.A.) requires the following courses.

MATHEMATICS AND STATISTICS COURSES

06E:177 Industrial Organization	3 s.h.
06E:183 Natural Resource Economics	3 s.h.
06E:187 Mathematical Economics	3 s.h.
06E:189 Topics in Analytical Economics	arr.

One additional economics course numbered 06E:111 - 06E:189

Prerequisites

Prerequisites for most 100-level courses in economics: 06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics and 06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics

Prerequisites for 06E:104 Microeconomic Theory: 06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics and 22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business

Prerequisites for 06E:105 Macroeconomics: 06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics and 22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business

Prerequisite for 06E:071 Statistics for Strategy Problems: 22S:008 Statistics for Business

Prerequisites for courses numbered 06E:171 and above: 06E:104 Microeconomic Theory or 06E:105 Macroeconomics, or both, depending on the course

Four-Year Graduation Plan

Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

These checkpoints apply to both the Bachelor of Arts and the Bachelor of Science.

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation, 06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics and 06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics, and the math component of quantitative courses required for major

Before the seventh semester begins: three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation, 06E:104 Microeconomic Theory and 06E:105 Macroeconomics, and one 100-level economics course

Before the eighth semester begins: three 100-level economics courses and the statistics component of the quantitative course requirement

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Bachelor of Business Administration

The following checkpoints are designed for students who enter the University as first-year pre-business students. In order to stay on the plan, students must maintain the grade-point average required for guaranteed admission to the Tippie College of Business and must apply for admission to the college by the established deadline.

Students must take 06B:100 Business Communication and Protocol during their first year after admission to the Tippie College of Business.

Before the third semester begins: 06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics or 06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics, 22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business, and 22S:008 Statistics for Business, or equivalents; and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: 06A:001 Introduction to Financial Accounting, 06A:002 Managerial Accounting, and 06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics or 06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics (whichever has not already been taken), or equivalents; all General Education requirements; and at least half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: business core requirements, approximately half of the course work in the major (varies by major), and three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: approximately three-quarters of course work in the major

During the eighth semester: all remaining course work in the major, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science

Students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences working toward a B.A. or B.S. in economics are encouraged to take part in the honors program in economics, which provides opportunities for high-achieving students to pursue special research interests. Honors students in economics must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information).

To enter the honors program in economics, students must complete 06E:104 Microeconomic Theory and 06E:105 Macroeconomics before the senior year. Honors students typically register for 06E:194 Honors Seminar in the fall of the senior year. Then they define and complete a research project under the guidance of a supervising faculty member, earning up to 6 s.h. in 06E:195 Honors Thesis in Economics. The thesis is presented orally to a committee of three faculty members, typically the undergraduate honors advisor, the student's research supervisor, and a third faculty member agreed upon by the student and the honors advisor.

Interested students should consult the honors advisor by the second semester of their junior year.

Bachelor of Business Administration

The Tippie College of Business offers qualified B.B.A. students the opportunity to pursue honors study. For more information, contact the Undergraduate Program Office or see "B.B.A. with Honors" in the Tippie College of Business section of the Catalog.

Minor

The minor in economics requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in economics courses, including 12 s.h. taken at The University of Iowa in courses numbered above 06E:100. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor.

Course Work for Nonmajors

Students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences may wish to use economics courses as part of other majors or the General Education Program. The introductory courses 06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics and 06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics are approved for General Education in social sciences; they introduce the field of economics and the specialized topics of upper-division courses. The intermediate theory courses 06E:104 Microeconomic Theory and 06E:105 Macroeconomics provide a deeper foundation in the core theories and methods of the discipline. They serve as preparation for upper-division field courses or as terminal courses in an economics study plan.

Course work in economics can be related to majors in many other fields. For example, political science majors could elect 06E:119 Policy Analysis and 06E:125 Global Economics and Business; global studies majors, 06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics; pre-law students, 06E:171 Antitrust Economics and 06E:172 Law and Economics; mathematics and engineering majors, 06E:104 Microeconomic Theory and 06E:187 Mathematical Economics; and statistics majors, 06E:184 Introduction to Econometrics.

Some students combine related interests by pursuing double majors in economics and another field, such as computer science, geography, global studies, history, mathematics, political science, sociology, or statistics.

Undergraduate Economics Forum

Students are invited to join the undergraduate Economics Forum. The group sponsors programs to help students plan for careers or graduate study and holds social events, special lectures, and round-table discussions. It provides opportunities for students to meet other economics majors and department faculty members.

Graduate Programs

The department offers a Master of Arts and a Doctor of Philosophy in economics. It also offers a joint Doctor of Philosophy/Juris Doctor with the College of Law; see "Joint Ph.D./J.D." later in this section.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts is offered only to students working toward a Ph.D. in economics.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in economics requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The program provides rigorous training in economic theory, econometrics, and applied economics. It has six components: a coordinated sequence of core courses, a qualifying examination, a research paper, a set of major field courses, a dissertation proposal and comprehensive examination, and a dissertation. Requirements are as follows.

CORE SEQUENCE

First Semester

06E:200 Economic Analysis I	3 s.h.
06E:203 Microeconomics I	3 s.h.
06E:204 Macroeconomics I	3 s.h.

Second Semester

06E:201 Economic Analysis II	3 s.h.
06E:205 Microeconomics II	3 s.h.
06E:206 Macroeconomics II	3 s.h.

Third Semester

06E:221 Econometrics	3 s.h.
----------------------	--------

Fourth Semester

06E:222 Applied Econometrics	3 s.h.
------------------------------	--------

QUALIFYING EXAMINATION

The qualifying examination is normally taken the summer after the first year.

RESEARCH PAPER

The research paper is normally completed the summer after the second year.

MAJOR FIELD COURSES

Each student chooses a major study area in addition to the core courses. The requirement for the major area is a minimum of 24 s.h. of intensive study in a field and in courses that enable students to understand the relationship between their specialty and related fields.

DISSERTATION PROPOSAL AND COMPREHENSIVE EXAMINATION

Students must defend a dissertation proposal in a comprehensive examination within one year of completing the research paper requirement.

DISSERTATION

Submission of the completed dissertation and an oral defense of the dissertation research completes the Ph.D. program.

Admission

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog. Application deadline for admission and financial support is January 15 for fall semester entry.

Applicants must take the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test and have their scores sent to the University. Those whose first language is not English and who do not hold a baccalaureate or advanced degree from an accredited college or university in the United States must take the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) and have their scores sent to the University.

Applicants must submit a completed Application for Graduate Admission, official transcripts from all institutions they have attended, and all official test scores to the University of Iowa Office of Admissions. They may upload unofficial transcripts, statements of purpose, résumés, and reference information to the Tippie College of Business Ph.D. Applicant Portal.

Joint Ph.D./J.D.

The Department of Economics and the College of Law offer a joint Ph.D./J.D. program; see Juris Doctor in the College of Law section of the Catalog. Separate application to each degree program is required. Applicants must be admitted to both programs before they can be admitted to the joint degree program.

Special Seminar

Each year the department offers a seminar program that brings eminent economists from other universities and from government agencies to The University of Iowa campus. Presentations by Department of Economics faculty members and students also are featured.

Economics Courses

Primarily for Undergraduates

Note: 06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics and 06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics may be taken in either order or simultaneously. They are approved for General Education in social sciences for B.A. and B.S. students.

06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics

4 s.h.

Organization, workings of modern economic systems; role of markets, prices, competition in efficient allocation of resources and promotion of economic welfare; alternative systems; international trade. Requirements: B.B.A. students cannot use this course for General Education social sciences. GE: Social Sciences.

06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics

4 s.h.

National income and output, employment and inflation; money, credit; government finance; monetary, fiscal policy; economic growth, development; international finance. Requirements: B.B.A. students cannot use this course for General Education social sciences. GE: Social Sciences.

06E:029 First-Year Seminar

1 s.h.

Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities).

06E:071 Statistics for Strategy Problems

3 s.h.

Continuation of 22S:008; working knowledge of statistical techniques, scientific data-based approach to problem formulation and solution, statistical techniques in the context of real data analysis, assessment of defects in statistical analyses, using data for making business decisions, choosing appropriate statistical procedures, developing skill in communicating statistical results to audiences without knowledge of statistics. Prerequisites: 22M:017 and 22S:008.

06E:104 Microeconomic Theory

3 s.h.

Economic theory of the behavior of consumers, producers, and other economic agents; role of markets in coordinating economic activity, conditions that markets require for efficient allocation of resources; market imperfections; strategic behavior of economic actors. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 22M:017.

06E:105 Macroeconomics

3 s.h.

Measurement of macroeconomic indicators; economic growth and business cycles; use of macroeconomic models to study the role of government fiscal and monetary policies. Prerequisites: 06E:002 and 22M:017.

06E:106 Advanced Microeconomics

3 s.h.

Mathematical treatment of the economic theory of the behavior of consumers, producers, and other economic agents; the role of markets in coordinating economic activity and the conditions required by those markets for an efficient allocation of resources; market imperfections; and the strategic behavior of economic actors. Prerequisites: 06E:001, and 22M:017 or 22M:025. Recommendations: 22M:025.

06E:111 Personnel Economics

3 s.h.

Microeconomic analysis of labor markets, related institutions; labor supply decisions made by workers, labor demand decisions made by firms, market equilibrium; economic analysis of unions; returns to education; family decisions. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002.

06E:113 Health Economics

3 s.h.

Structure of America's health care industry, economic analysis applied to its problems of production, pricing, distribution; cost-effectiveness, financing of medical costs, role of government. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002.

06E:117 Money, Banking, and Financial Markets

3 s.h.

Role of money, institutions in determination of income, employment, prices in domestic and world economy. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002.

06E:119 Policy Analysis

3 s.h.

Economic functions of government in modern economies; economic decision making; budgetary processes; effects of government expenditures, taxation on allocation of resources, distribution of income, economic growth, stability. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002.

06E:125 Global Economics and Business

3 s.h.

Modern theories of international trade and investment; role of tariffs and other restrictions of international trade; foreign exchange markets, international monetary arrangements, international economic policy. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002.

06E:129 Economic Growth and Development

3 s.h.

Determinants of rising living standards; accumulation of physical and human capital; predictions of economic growth models compared to observed changes in living standards. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002.

06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics

3 s.h.

Environmental and resource use problems; efficient mechanisms and other policies for environmental protection, management of common property resources. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002.

06E:135 Regional and Urban Economics

3 s.h.

Theory of location and regional development; central place theory; why cities exist and trade with one another; models of land use patterns, rents; empirical tests of models; policy applications. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002.

06E:141 Industry Analysis

3 s.h.

Structural evolution; imperfect competition, resource allocation; development of public policy on monopoly; selected industries. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002.

06E:145 Transportation Economics

3 s.h.

Overview of transportation markets--intercity, rural, urban; transportation modes--rail, highway, air, water, pipeline, transit; issues in finance, policy, planning, management, physical distribution, and environmental, economic, and safety regulation. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002. Same as 044:133, 102:133.

06E:158 American Economic History

3 s.h.

Emphasis on role of population and technology. Requirements: 06E:001 and 06E:002 for economics majors; 06E:001 and 16A:061 for non-economics majors. Same as 16A:144.

06E:160 Household Finance

3 s.h.

Micro- and macroeconomic theory applied to economic decisions of families, households; practical and theoretical issues in income generation, spending and saving decisions, risk management and asset allocation, investments, and intergenerational wealth transfers. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002.

06E:165 Sports Economics

3 s.h.

Theory and literature of economic issues in professional sports; issues such as relative advantages of large-and small-market teams, city subsidies for baseball and football stadiums, star players' true value to their teams; ideas from introductory economics (such as demand and cost curves) combined with additional economic theory, statistical evidence, and information about particular sports. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002.

06E:169 Topics in Policy Economics

arr.

Topics vary. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002.

06E:171 Antitrust Economics

3 s.h.

Topics in federal antitrust policy; merger policy, monopolization, predatory pricing, collusion, vertical restrictions, resale price maintenance, enforcement; case law, economics literature. Prerequisites: 06E:104 or 091:208.

06E:172 Law and Economics

3 s.h.

Law examined through analytic tools of microeconomics; impact of legal rules on resource allocation, risk bearing, distribution of economic well-being. Prerequisites: 06E:001.

06E:173 International Economics

3 s.h.

Neoclassical model of international trade, imperfect competition and international trade and investment, role of trade barriers; regional trade agreements and the World Trade Organization. Requirements: 06E:104 and 06E:105, or graduate standing.

06E:174 Monetary Economics

3 s.h.

Demand for and supply of money; money's role in economy; empirical studies of money's impact; problems with monetary control. Prerequisites: 06E:104 and 06E:105.

06E:175 Labor Economics

3 s.h.

Labor supply and demand; investments in human capital, compensating wage differentials, discrimination, long-term contracts, occupational choice, family decisions, unions, immigration. Prerequisites: 06E:104.

06E:176 Public Sector Economics

3 s.h.

Economic functions of government; budgetary processes; effects of government expenditures, taxation on resource allocation, income distribution, economic growth and stability. Prerequisites: 06E:104 and 06E:105.

06E:177 Industrial Organization

3 s.h.

Market structure; effects of business practices, informational problems on market structure; appraisal of antitrust policies, government regulation of business. Prerequisites: 06E:104.

06E:179 History of Economic Thought

3 s.h.

Evolution of economics as a social science; ideas of Smith, Ricardo, Malthus, Marx, Marshall, Keynes, and their major critics. Prerequisites: 06E:104 and 06E:105.

06E:183 Natural Resource Economics

3 s.h.

Economics of natural resources; interaction between economic theory, empirical evidence, and public policy; land, water, fish, trees, minerals; externalities. Prerequisites: 06E:104.

06E:184 Introduction to Econometrics

3 s.h.

Single equation linear statistical models, estimation and hypothesis testing; serial correlation, heteroscedasticity, generalized least squares estimation; specification analysis; errors in variables; emphasis on interpretation, application of econometric models, methods, use of computers. Prerequisites: 22S:120.

06E:187 Mathematical Economics

3 s.h.

Mathematical structure of economic principles, problems, systems; may include constrained optimization, choice under uncertainty, general equilibrium and welfare economics, dynamical systems and control theory, game theory. Prerequisites: 06E:104 and 06E:105.

06E:189 Topics in Analytical Economics

arr.

Topics vary. Prerequisites: 06E:104 and 06E:105.

06E:190 Federal Reserve Challenge

3 s.h.

Experience doing what Federal Reserve economists do every day: study the real U.S. economy, make forecasts and policy recommendations, defend their views to academic and professional economists; development of analytical skills, teamwork, how to build presentations. Prerequisites: 06E:104 and 06E:105.

For Advanced Undergraduates

- 06E:194 Honors Seminar 1-3 s.h.
Research topics and methods in business. Requirements: honors standing. Same as 06B:194.
- 06E:195 Honors Thesis in Economics 3 s.h.
Independent student project directed by faculty or staff advisor; culminates in thesis that conforms to University Honors Program guidelines; may include empirical research, library research, applied projects. Prerequisites: 06B:194 or 06E:194, and admission to the Tippie College of Business honors program.
- 06E:196 Readings and Independent Study in Economics arr.
- 06E:199 Academic Internship arr.
Participation in approved internship program (e.g., Washington Center Internships).

Primarily for Graduate Students

With consent of the department chair, qualified undergraduates may enroll in courses listed for graduate students.

- 06E:200 Economic Analysis I 3 s.h.
Basic metric topology, convex analysis, function spaces, measure theory and integration.
- 06E:201 Economic Analysis II 3 s.h.
Behavior under uncertainty, macroeconomic models; dynamic programming, asset pricing, saving, consumption.
- 06E:203 Microeconomics I 3 s.h.
Consumer choice theory, producer theory, choice under uncertainty, basic game theory. Offered fall semesters.
- 06E:204 Macroeconomics I 3 s.h.
Economic growth, business cycles, money and inflation. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 06E:201.
- 06E:205 Microeconomics II 3 s.h.
General equilibrium and welfare analysis, adverse selection, the principal-agent problem, social choice, mechanism design. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 06E:203.
- 06E:206 Macroeconomics II 3 s.h.
Dynamic macroeconomic models; stochastic macroeconomics; time consistency equilibrium business cycle theory. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 06E:204.
- 06E:211 Mathematical Economics I 3 s.h.
Convex analysis in economic theory; ordinal and cardinal preference relations; quasiconcave, concave numerical representations; separation principle for convex sets--linear programming, concave programming; Brouwer fixed point theorem; existence of competitive equilibrium. Prerequisites: 06E:205.
- 06E:221 Econometrics 3 s.h.
Statistical inference in single and multiple equation stochastic models, models with nonindependent or nonidentically distributed error structure, dynamic models; OLS, GLS, IV, ML estimation; asymptotic distribution theory; exact, asymptotic hypothesis tests. Prerequisites: 22S:154.
- 06E:222 Applied Econometrics 3 s.h.
Empirical problems; multiple linear regression, nonlinear regression, maximum likelihood, hazard functions, univariate and multivariate time series, flexible functional forms. Prerequisites: 06E:221.
- 06E:223 Econometric Theory I 3 s.h.
Inference from data and theory in economic models; emphasis on decision making and simulation methods. Prerequisites: 06E:222.

06E:234 International Business-M.B.A.	3 s.h.
Problems in international business; how to export, how to deal with import competition, international joint ventures; country studies.
06E:235 International Trade Theory	3 s.h.
The theory of international trade, including basic models of international trade; capital and labor mobility and trade; protection of international trade; the political economy of international trade; empirical applications of international trade.
06E:241 Macroeconomics III	3 s.h.
Current research in macroeconomics; development of research topics with emphasis on theoretical and empirical analysis. Prerequisites: 06E:205 and 06E:221.
06E:245 Monetary Theory	3 s.h.
Research at the frontier of monetary theory and policy; overlapping generations models, search models of money, representative agent monetary models, intermediation and banking theory, and financial contracts.
06E:250 Labor Economics	3 s.h.
Problems and models, including intertemporal models of labor markets; uncertainty and labor market activity; retirement decisions, economic theories of fertility; economics of discrimination; job search models; economic models of unions; bargaining and strikes, public sector labor markets; determinants of income distribution; emphasis on empirical verification of theory. Prerequisites: 06E:205, and 06E:184 or 06E:221.
06E:271 Industrial Organization	3 s.h.
The firm, monopolistic competition, oligopoly and workable competition; industrial organization, nature of equilibrium under uncertainty. Prerequisites: 06E:205 and 06E:211.
06E:299 Contemporary Topics in Economics	3 s.h.
Topics not offered in other courses. Repeatable.
06E:300 Readings in Economics	arr.
06E:301 Thesis in Economics	arr.
Advanced Graduate Seminars
06E:310 Seminar in Economic Theory	arr.
06E:311 Seminar in Economic Theory II	arr.
06E:321 Workshop in Microeconomics	1 s.h.
06E:322 Workshop in Macro and Monetary Economics	1 s.h.

Elementary Education

Web site: <http://www.education.uiowa.edu/teach>

Undergraduate Programs

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, in collaboration with the College of Education, offers a Bachelor of Arts and a Bachelor of Science with a major in elementary education. Both degrees are awarded by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. The two colleges also collaborate to offer an endorsement for instruction of middle school students.

The elementary education major prepares students to teach kindergarten through sixth grade. Students complete course work in education foundations and methods and in one of the following areas of specialization: art, English language arts, English as a Second Language (ESL), hearing impaired, mathematics, middle school, music, physical education, reading, science, social sciences (history, social studies), special education (Instructional Strategist I: Mild/Moderate), and speech communication/theater. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program and must satisfy all other requirements for graduation with a bachelor's degree.

Students interested in pursuing a degree in elementary education must first be admitted to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and then must apply to the College of Education. Admission to the College of Education's elementary education program is not guaranteed. In order to be considered for admission to the elementary education program, undergraduates must complete a minimum of 33 s.h. of course work with a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.70. All students must submit Praxis I test scores with their application to the Teacher Education Program (TEP). Students should visit with an advisor or speak with Teacher Education Program staff about complete admission requirements.

For information about the elementary education curriculum, student teaching, and teacher licensure and certification, see "Teacher Education and Licensure/Certification" in the Teaching and Learning (College of Education) section of the Catalog.

Lecturers: David Dowling, Mary Ann Rasmussen, Anne Stapleton

Undergraduate degree: B.A. in English

Undergraduate nondegree program: Minor in English

Graduate degrees: M.A., M.F.A., Ph.D. in English

Web site: <http://english.uiowa.edu/>

The Department of English offers courses in literature, cultural studies, language, and writing. In these courses, students read poetry, fiction, essays, criticism, and theory to acquire methods for understanding literature and culture. In addition to providing these essential elements of a liberal arts and sciences education, the department's courses can augment students' specialized interests in other fields. The department also participates in the interdisciplinary Departments of American Studies, Cinema and Comparative Literature, and Gender, Women's and Sexuality Studies, the African American Studies Program, the American Indian and Native Studies Program, the Center for the Book, and the Project on Rhetorics of Inquiry (POROI).

The department has a historic commitment to teaching creative and nonfiction writing. Its graduate programs in writing have earned long-standing renown, and in fall 2008, it added a new creative writing track to the English undergraduate major. Admission to the track is selective.

Although most students in the Ph.D. program are preparing for careers as teachers and scholars, and many in the M.F.A. nonfiction writing program and the Iowa Writers' Workshop are preparing for lives as storytellers, essayists, and poets, the B.A. and M.A. programs provide valuable training for careers in a variety of fields. Students who have earned English degrees from The University of Iowa write for advertising firms, newspapers, and book publishers; teach in primary and secondary schools; practice law and medicine; work in business and industry; and participate in state or federal government. As far as possible, a student's course of study is arranged to meet his or her individual needs and objectives.

Undergraduate Programs

The Department of English offers a Bachelor of Arts and a minor in English.

The department offers courses in literature, film, critical theory, cultural studies, language, and writing. In these courses, students study poetry, fiction, essays, criticism, film, and theory to acquire methods for understanding the history and significance of texts in the cultures from which they emerge.

The program also challenges students to strive for excellence as writers. It offers several classes in creative writing as well as in nonfiction writing; see "Writing for Undergraduates" later in this Catalog section. It also offers a creative writing track in the undergraduate major (admission to the track is selective); see "Bachelor of Arts" below.

Students who plan to apply to the College of Education for a degree in secondary education (English) should consult with an advisor in that program as early as possible. The education degree demands that students choose particular courses in the English major in order to meet state requirements. See "B.A. with Teacher Licensure" later in this section.

Students interested in an English major should consult advisors in the English undergraduate advising office. Visit the Department of English web site for details about the program, faculty, courses, and upcoming events.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in English requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 33 s.h. (11 courses) of work for the major. Students may apply to enter the creative writing track in the English major; admission is selective (see "Creative Writing Track" below).

Students must earn at least 18 s.h. of credit for the major at The University of Iowa. Transfer students may count a maximum of 15 s.h. of approved transfer credit toward the major. Students also must complete the College of Liberal

Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The following English courses may not be counted toward the 33 s.h. required for the English major: all 08G and 08A courses, 08C:001 Creative Writing Studio Workshop, and 08N:020 Introduction to Creative Nonfiction.

All English majors must complete 008:005 Introduction to the English Major: Theory and Practice; students are encouraged to enroll in the course as soon as they declare the English major.

Other course work for the major is divided into six areas and three historical periods. Students must complete a total of eight area courses (see "Areas" below) and six historical period courses (see "Historical Periods" below). Since most courses (except those in creative writing and nonfiction writing) satisfy both an area and a historical period requirement, many students complete the historical period requirements as they complete the area requirements, which allows them to choose additional elective course work to complete the major.

The following course lists are organized by area and historical period. The course description for each course states that course's area and historical period designation (see "Courses" in this Catalog section or visit the University's ISIS web site). Information and course lists are also available on the Department of English web site and from advisors.

Undergraduate courses listed under the headings "Special Topics," "Linguistics and Language," and "Translation Studies" (see "Courses" in this Catalog section) do not fulfill area or period requirements for the English major, but they may be used to earn credit for the major.

AREAS

Students must complete at least one course (3 s.h.) from each of the following six areas. Each student also must choose one of the six areas as a concentration area and take an additional two courses in that area, for a total of three courses (9 s.h.) in one area, and eight area courses in all.

COURSES APPROVED FOR GENERAL EDUCATION

Courses numbered 08G cannot be counted toward the 33 s.h. required for the English major, so students majoring in English should not use 08G courses to complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. Although 08G:001 The Interpretation of Literature is a part of the General Education Program, English majors should substitute a course approved for General Education in the humanities area for 08G:001 The Interpretation of Literature.

Creative Writing Track

Students majoring in English may be eligible to enter the creative writing track. The track places the same emphasis on training creative and intelligent readers as does the English major.

The creative writing track requires a minimum of 13 s.h. In addition to fulfilling requirements for the track, students must complete the two prerequisite courses required for admission to the track and satisfy all other admission requirements (see "Selective Admission" below). They also must fulfill all requirements for the English major as stated under "Bachelor of Arts" above, including 008:005 Introduction to the English Major: Theory and Practice, and they must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

SELECTIVE ADMISSION

Admission to the creative writing track is selective; students must apply and be admitted to the track. To apply, students must:

- have junior or senior standing;

- have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in English (based on all English courses taken, including creative writing courses); and

- have completed at least 9 s.h. in University of Iowa English courses, excluding those with prefixes 08N and 08C.

Applicants also must have completed two prerequisites for admission to the creative writing track (6 s.h.), chosen from the following list of University of Iowa introductory-level writing courses.

08C:023 Creative Writing	3 s.h.
08C:097 Fiction Writing	3 s.h.
08C:098 Poetry Writing	3 s.h.
08C:108 Creative Writing for New Media	3 s.h.
08C:110 Creative Writing for the Ecologically Aware: Stories in the Land	3 s.h.
08C:167 Undergraduate Writers' Seminar	3 s.h.
08N:080 Nonfiction Writing	3 s.h.
08N:090 Intermediate Nonfiction Writing	3 s.h.
048:078 Undergraduate Translation Seminar (section 1)	3 s.h.
048:079 Undergraduate Translation Workshop	3 s.h.
049:062 Playwriting I	3 s.h.
049:063 Playwriting II	3 s.h.

Students may count either 08C:108 Creative Writing for New Media or 08C:110 Creative Writing for the Ecologically Aware: Stories in the Land, but not both, toward the required prerequisites for admission to the creative writing track.

Exceptions may be made for students who have not taken an introductory course but who have taken 08C:166 Undergraduate Writers' Workshop: Poetry or 08C:163 Undergraduate Writers' Workshop: Fiction.

Students may apply to the creative writing track during preregistration each semester. For information and application forms, visit the Department of English web site.

Registration in creative writing track courses requires admission to the track.

CREATIVE WRITING TRACK REQUIREMENTS

The creative writing track requires 13 s.h. Students must successfully complete 8WS:120 Writer's House Seminar (3 s.h.), earn 4 s.h. in genre-based writing seminars, and earn 6 s.h. in advanced courses, as follows.

Writer's House Seminar

8WS:120 Writer's House Seminar	3 s.h.
--------------------------------	--------

The Writer's House Seminar draws on Iowa's creative writing tradition. It provides a common experience of readings, talks, performances, master classes, and class discussions, preparing students for participation at events led by visiting writers. Its curriculum also includes works by or about the visiting writers, literature that helps contextualize the readings, and exercises designed to heighten students' involvement at events.

Genre-Based Seminars

Two of these (4 s.h.):

8WS:121 Writers' Seminar: Fiction	2 s.h.
8WS:122 Writers' Seminar: Poetry	2 s.h.
8WS:123 Writers' Seminar: Nonfiction	2 s.h.
8WS:124 Writers' Seminar: Literary Translation	2 s.h.
8WS:125 Writers' Seminar: Playwriting	2 s.h.

Advanced Courses

A minimum of 6 s.h. chosen from these:

008:198 Undergraduate Honors Project	1-3 s.h.
08C:163 Undergraduate Writers' Workshop: Fiction	3 s.h.
08C:166 Undergraduate Writers' Workshop: Poetry	3 s.h.
08N:104 Personal Writing	3 s.h.
08N:120 Advanced Nonfiction Writing	3 s.h.
08N:130 Special Readings in Nonfiction	3 s.h.

049:165 Advanced Playwriting	3 s.h.
049:169 Undergraduate Playwriting Workshop	1-3 s.h.

In order to take 008:198 Undergraduate Honors Project (an honors thesis in creative writing), students must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33. They also must have completed all required writers' seminars, must be on course to complete all requirements for the English major, and must have departmental approval.

B.A. with Teacher Licensure

Students planning to teach English in secondary schools must complete the requirements for the major in English and gain admission to the Teacher Education Program. Contact the College of Education Office of Teacher Education and Student Services for application forms and information.

By the end of the program, students must have completed the following courses.

ENGLISH (PART OF THE ENGLISH MAJOR)

A Shakespeare course

Three American literature courses

A British literature course

08N:141/07S:155 Approaches to Teaching Writing (area: nonfiction and creative writing)	3 s.h.
08P:182/07S:182 Language and Learning (area: literary theory and interdisciplinary studies)	2-3 s.h.
08P:198/07S:193 Reading and Teaching Adolescent Literature (area: literary theory and interdisciplinary studies)	3 s.h.
One nonfiction or creative writing course in addition to 08N:141

EDUCATION

07S:192 Observation and Laboratory Practice in the Secondary School	6 s.h.
07S:194 Methods: Secondary Reading	2-3 s.h.
07U:100 Foundations of Special Education	3 s.h.
One college-level mathematics or statistics course

Admission

Applicants to the Teacher Education Program in English must have completed a minimum of 40 s.h., including 008:005 Introduction to the English Major: Theory and Practice and an additional 12 s.h. in English courses, before they may be admitted to the program. The following courses do not count toward the additional 12 s.h.: all 08G courses, 08N:141 Approaches to Teaching Writing, 08P:182 Language and Learning, and 08P:198 Reading and Teaching Adolescent Literature. Applicants also must have a University of Iowa g.p.a. and a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.70 as well as an English major g.p.a. of at least 3.00. Applicants must submit an application to the College of Education, including PRAXIS I scores, an Iowa criminal history check, letters of recommendation, and proof of a 10-hour preadmission volunteer field experience.

Minor Licensure in English

Students who seek licensure for secondary teaching in fields other than English may seek minor licensure in English. First-year courses in rhetoric, speech, or writing do not count toward this requirement.

The English minor licensure program includes the following course work.

An American literature course
A British literature course
A course in creative or nonfiction writing
An additional English course
07S:115 Methods: Secondary English	3 s.h.
07S:194 Methods: Secondary Reading	2-3 s.h.
08N:141/07S:155 Approaches to Teaching Writing	3 s.h.
08P:182/07S:182 Language and Learning	2-3 s.h.
08P:198/07S:193 Reading and Teaching Adolescent Literature	3 s.h.

While this program meets minimum requirements for licensure, the department recommends that students who want to teach English have considerably more training in the field.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan.

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least two courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least six courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least eight courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

The English major with honors gives talented students the opportunity to enhance their course of study through honors proseminars and thesis writing. Each year the department offers four honors proseminars covering a wide range of subject areas and historical periods. Honors proseminars are limited to 18 students, carry 3 s.h. credit, and meet three hours each week. These courses require substantial reading and research and culminate in a 15-20 page essay. Students register for 008:098 Honors Proseminar.

To register for a proseminar, students must have a University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and must have completed three English courses (not including introductory courses in nonfiction or creative writing) with a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in English. The department also recommends that students complete 008:005 Introduction to the English Major: Theory and Practice before taking an honors proseminar. To enroll in a proseminar, students must obtain a special permission code number from the honors director.

All students interested in taking honors course work are encouraged to join the English Honors Program as soon as they qualify. Students may join online; visit English Honors Program.

Students who wish to graduate with honors in English must take two honors proseminars, complete a two-semester thesis project, and maintain a University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in English.

The two-semester thesis project includes 008:120 Honors Thesis Workshop (fall) and 008:198 Undergraduate Honors Project (independent study) for a total of 6 s.h. To enroll in 008:120 Honors Thesis Workshop, students must have completed one honors proseminar with a grade of A- or better and must have a University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in English.

The English Honors Program has established careful guidelines for each of the six types of honors theses accepted by the department: literary and cultural studies; nonfiction writing; electronic writing and multimedia production; English education; creative writing; and the interdisciplinary thesis for double honors, which allows a student to earn honors in two departments with one longer project. Information on thesis guidelines is available on the English Honors Program web site and in the handout A Guide to the English Honors Program, available in the Department of English office.

Students who qualify for honors in English also qualify for membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33. Contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information about honors study at Iowa.

Minor

The minor in English requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in English courses, including 12 s.h. in courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count a maximum of 3 s.h. of approved transfer credit toward the minor. Before taking courses for the minor, students must complete the General Education Program requirement 08G:001 The Interpretation of Literature.

The minor must include at least 6 s.h. in literature (prefix 008); the remaining 9 s.h. may be selected from additional courses in literature, from most courses in writing (prefixes 08C and 08N), or from courses in linguistics (prefix 08L). The following courses do not count toward the minor: all 08A and 08G courses, 08C:001 Creative Writing Studio Workshop, and 08N:020 Introduction to Creative Nonfiction.

Students may declare the English minor on ISIS. In order for the minor to be recorded, students must indicate completion of the minor on their Application for Degree.

Students who would like help declaring the minor or in planning how to meet its requirements may stop by the advising office or schedule an appointment with an advisor by contacting the undergraduate English secretary.

Writing for Undergraduates

Many undergraduate students come to The University of Iowa because of the Iowa Writers' Workshop (see "Writing Programs" later in this section). The workshop is a graduate program, but any student may take the undergraduate courses taught there, including 08C:023 Creative Writing, 08C:097 Fiction Writing, 08C:098 Poetry Writing, and 08C:001 Creative Writing Studio Workshop. However, 08C:001 Creative Writing Studio Workshop does not fulfill requirements for the English major or minor.

Visit Creative Writing Program (Iowa Writers' Workshop) for a list of undergraduate courses offered by the workshop.

Admission to the undergraduate workshops in fiction and poetry (08C:163 Undergraduate Writers' Workshop: Fiction and 08C:166 Undergraduate Writers' Workshop: Poetry) requires the instructor's consent. Students who wish to participate in these workshops must submit samples of their poetry or fiction to the Iowa Writers' Workshop office no earlier than a week before registration and no later than the last day of registration for that semester.

Students majoring in English may apply to the major's Creative Writing Track; see "Bachelor of Arts"/"Creative Writing Track" earlier in this Catalog section.

Nonfiction writing is also a major area of interest for faculty and students in the department of English. Students may enroll for courses that stress practice in forms of nonfiction writing and for courses that focus on nonfiction literature.

Students who wish to participate in 08N:150 Undergraduate Essay Workshop and other courses with special permission requirements should check with the instructor of the course before registering. Introduction to Creative Nonfiction (08N:020) does not fulfill requirements for the English major or minor.

Undergraduate majors may concentrate in nonfiction and creative writing with any combination of 08N or 08C courses (except 08C:001 Creative Writing Studio Workshop and 08N:020 Introduction to Creative Nonfiction).

Graduate Programs

The department offers an M.A., an M.F.A., and a Ph.D. in English. The M.A. introduces students to the professional study of literature, and the Ph.D. prepares them to serve as faculty members at colleges and universities.

The M.F.A. is offered in creative writing and in nonfiction writing. The M.F.A. in creative writing features advanced courses in writing fiction and poetry. Students in creative writing study at the Iowa Writers' Workshop, renowned as a pioneer in teaching writers since its founding in 1936. The M.F.A. in nonfiction writing is one of the few programs in the nation that offers a full range of graduate courses in the area.

Direct application to the Ph.D. program is generally encouraged for prospective M.A. students. But some consider the M.A. an appropriate step in their professional training. These students may have had an undergraduate major in a different field or may want more preparation for other reasons. Some may intend to complete their studies elsewhere. Students interested in careers in any area of book studies (professional writing, editing, web design, or publishing) may wish to pursue the M.A. as a terminal degree, as may teachers seeking to enhance their credentials or students pursuing intellectual growth unrelated to a specific career.

M.A. and Ph.D. students in English mix freely in graduate courses, share the same access to faculty, and meet the same standards of quality in their work.

Exam for the Master of Arts in Teaching

The department administers the English component of the exam for the Master of Arts in Teaching (M.A.T.) in coordination with the College of Education. M.A.T. students should contact the Department of Teaching and Learning or visit the College of Education web site for information.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in English requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit. The program's focus is literary studies. The required 30 s.h. includes 24 s.h. earned in residence at The University of Iowa with a g.p.a. of at least 3.25. Students who wish to transfer to Iowa's Ph.D. program must complete two semesters or 15 s.h. of course work in literature (whichever comes first) before applying for admission to the doctoral program.

COURSE WORK

Each student must take the following courses at the 200 level or above. Applicable transfer courses must be approved by the director of graduate study in English.

One course in criticism and theory

Four courses from the following five areas:

British or American literature and culture before 1500
British or American literature and culture 1500-1660
British or American literature and culture 1660-1800
British or American literature and culture 1800-1900
British or American literature and culture of the 20th Century

Elective courses constitute half of the total credit for the degree and may be chosen from graduate courses both in and outside the English department. Students may wish to explore opportunities for interdisciplinary study, language study, experience in theory and practice of writing, or specialization in a field of literary scholarship.

Department of English graduate courses are repeatable with the written approval of the department's director of graduate studies.

Completion of the M.A. requires either a thesis or a portfolio. Students submit a written description of their choice to the director of the program before the semester in which they plan to graduate.

M.A. THESIS

Students who choose to write an M.A. thesis must submit a brief prospectus approved by a thesis director before they register for thesis credit and at least one semester before they submit the thesis. The thesis committee consists of the thesis director, the director of the M.A. program, and one other faculty member. The thesis is evaluated by the committee as either satisfactory or unsatisfactory.

A copy of the thesis must be presented to the Graduate College for approval. For detailed information about Graduate College deadlines and policies, see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College.

PORTFOLIO

Near the end of their course work, students who do not choose the thesis option must submit a portfolio of work to the M.A. examination committee, which consists of the director of the M.A. program and two other English faculty members. All three read the full portfolio. To pass, the candidate must win a majority vote of the committee members.

Students take the first step toward preparing to submit a portfolio by meeting with the director of the M.A. program to discuss the portfolio, early during the semester in which they plan to graduate. After fulfilling all distribution and eligibility requirements and clearing all incomplete grades, students present the director with a draft of the portfolio's introductory statement. Students planning to graduate at the end of fall semester should present the statement by the first week of October; those who plan to graduate at the end of spring semester should present the statement by the first week of March. Once the director approves the statement, the student must submit three copies of the full portfolio; the submission deadline is November 1 for students planning to graduate at the end of fall semester and April 1 for those who will graduate at the end of spring semester.

The work in the portfolio should demonstrate the student's knowledge of literature as a broad historical and theoretical inquiry. Students submit approximately 50 pages (12,500 words) of their best work, along with a self-reflective introductory statement of five to seven pages. The body of the portfolio should contain papers originally produced for classes, revised for a broader audience unfamiliar with the original classes. The introduction should detail the student's trajectory in the program and the literary-critical or methodological skills he or she has gained. It also should explain the contents of the portfolio; contextualize each paper; and give a brief overview of the writing. Students are expected to describe the research methods used in assembling their portfolios and the critical practices that ground their work.

Master of Fine Arts (Nonfiction Writing)

The Master of Fine Arts in nonfiction writing requires 48 s.h. of graduate credit; a thesis is required. The program is broadly devoted to literary nonfiction. It is designed primarily for persons who wish to become nonfiction writers, but it also may be appropriate for those who wish to teach, edit, or pursue other activities in the field of nonfiction. Normally, the program takes three years to complete.

The required 48 s.h. includes at least 30 s.h. earned in residence at The University of Iowa and 30 s.h. of work in program-designated courses. Electives may be chosen widely, from courses in the English department as well as any other University departments.

Department of English graduate courses are repeatable with the written approval of the department's director of graduate studies.

In addition to the course work, students are required to enroll for at least 2 s.h. and no more than 8 s.h. of thesis credit. The thesis may be a single extended piece of nonfiction, a collection of shorter nonfiction pieces, or a collection of essays. Whatever the project, the thesis is expected to be of publishable quality.

For more information, consult the director of the Nonfiction Writing Program.

Master of Fine Arts (Creative Writing)

The Master of Fine Arts in creative writing requires a minimum of 48 s.h. of graduate credit. The degree is offered through the Creative Writing Program (Iowa Writers' Workshop), a two-year residency program that culminates in a creative thesis, such as a novel, a collection of stories, or a book of poetry.

Throughout the program, workshop students craft their manuscripts and engage in an exchange of ideas about writing and reading with each other and with the renowned teacher-authors who make up the workshop's faculty.

Admission to the program is competitive.

For details about the M.F.A. in creative writing and about the Iowa Writers' Workshop, see Creative Writing (Iowa Writers' Workshop) in the Catalog.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in English requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The program is designed as preparation for the teaching, publishing, and administrative service required of college and university faculty members.

Concentrations are offered in areas such as literary history and critical theory, as well as interdisciplinary areas such as cultural studies and transnational studies.

Of the required 72 s.h., at least 30 s.h. must be earned in residence at The University of Iowa with a g.p.a. of at least 3.50.

Ph.D. requirements include the following.

Formal admission to candidacy by a vote of the Graduate Steering Committee, usually during the third semester of doctoral study

Course work in any four of the following historical periods, as expressed in texts of the English-speaking and -writing world (usually but not always British or American):

Literature and culture before 1500

Literature and culture 1500-1660

Literature and culture 1660-1800

Literature and culture 1800-1900

Literature and culture of the 20th century

Three English department seminars taken at The University of Iowa

Fulfillment of the language requirement, usually by completion of an advanced undergraduate course (100-level or above) in a language other than English

A comprehensive examination that consists of the following: a portfolio of five scholarly questions based on a period of literary history (usually British or American); a review essay and annotated bibliography in a special area of interest; two course syllabi; an article to be submitted for publication; and an introduction to the portfolio that synthesizes its parts in preparation for a two-hour oral exam

A dissertation, beginning with a formal presentation of the prospectus to a faculty committee

A final examination in defense of the dissertation

All doctoral candidates are required to gain some teaching experience, preferably in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Department of Rhetoric and in General Education Program literature courses.

For application forms and a complete description of the Ph.D. program, contact the department's graduate program associate.

Admission

For information about admission requirements, see Admissions Guidelines for Graduate Students in English on the department's web site. Applications for admission must be postmarked by the following deadlines:

M.A. and Ph.D.: postmark deadline is January 7.

M.F.A. (creative writing): postmark deadline is January 3.

M.F.A. (nonfiction writing): postmark deadline is December 15.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Financial Support

Graduate scholarships, fellowships, and teaching and research assistantships are awarded on a competitive basis. The department strives to provide six years of support for all doctoral students who are in good standing, which requires a University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.50 and full-time student standing.

Financial aid applications are considered only from students who have applied or been admitted to a degree program in the Graduate College. Applications and all necessary supporting material must be submitted by the end of January for the following academic year. Forms are available from the Department of English and the University's Office of Admissions.

Writing Programs

For the past 70 years, The University of Iowa has been a national leader in virtually all areas of teaching writing.

Today it offers graduate degrees in both creative and nonfiction writing, gives undergraduate English majors the opportunity to pursue a track in creative writing or a concentration in nonfiction writing, and makes writing courses available to qualified undergraduate non-English majors.

The Creative Writing Program is conducted at the Iowa Writers' Workshop. Founded in 1936, the workshop counts scores of distinguished poets and novelists among its alumni. Writers compete for admission to the program, where they work with the outstanding teacher-authors that make up the workshop's faculty.

The workshop also brings numerous prominent authors to campus each year for lectures and readings.

The University of Iowa M.F.A. program in nonfiction writing is one of the few programs in the nation that offers a full range of graduate course work in the area. It also gives undergraduates the opportunity to pursue a concentration in nonfiction writing.

For information about the graduate degrees and about undergraduate opportunities in creative writing and in nonfiction writing, see "Master of Fine Arts (Nonfiction Writing)," "Master of Fine Arts (Creative Writing)," and "Writing for Undergraduates" earlier in this section of the Catalog. To learn more about the creative and nonfiction writing programs, visit Iowa Writers' Workshop and Nonfiction Writing Program.

Facilities, Resources

The University of Iowa Libraries collection is strong in all areas of English and American literature. Partly because of the influence of the Iowa Writers' Workshop, University Libraries has particular strengths in 20th-century fiction and poetry, including manuscript collections of 20th-century authors.

Several periodicals are published under the department's aegis. The Iowa Review, Walt Whitman Quarterly Review, and Philological Quarterly offer opportunities for especially qualified graduate students to work as research assistants or editorial associates. The Iowa Journal of Cultural Studies, edited by English department graduate students, features creative and scholarly work by students in English and related areas.

The Department of English and the Iowa Writers' Workshop sponsor a rich and extensive series of readings and lectures by poets, fiction writers, and scholars, all open to students in the department.

The Association of Graduate Students in English sponsors social and intellectual events during the year and provides a forum for student opinion. All graduate students in the department are members.

English Courses

Individual descriptions for most English courses are not included because content and emphasis may vary considerably from one semester to the next. For detailed descriptions of each semester's courses, visit the University's ISIS web site.

Translation Studies

The undergraduate courses below do not fulfill area or period requirements for the English major but may be used to earn elective credit for the major.

08W:079 Undergraduate Translation Workshop 3 s.h.

Translation exercises, discussion of translation works in progress; alternative strategies for translation projects. Requirements: working knowledge of a language other than English. Same as 048:079.

08W:260 Translation Workshop 3 s.h.

Requirements: at least one foreign language. Same as 048:260, 181:260.

08W:265 Seminar Issues in the History of Translation 3 s.h.

Selected readings, current debate on translation's history and theory. Same as 048:270.

English as a Second Language

Chair: Linda Maxson

Director: Maureen Burke

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~iiepesl/ESL/eslindex.html>

The University of Iowa offers English as a Second Language (ESL) instruction in three distinct, but related, programs: ESL credit classes, the Iowa Intensive English Program (IIEP), and the Teaching Assistant Preparation in English program (TAPE). These programs meet the needs of students whose first language is not English. ESL credit classes help students raise their English proficiency so they can complete a degree successfully. IIEP provides intensive instruction for students who must raise their English proficiency to gain admission to a university or college. TAPE helps students improve their oral competence in English so they may assume classroom teaching responsibilities.

ESL Credit Classes

English as a Second Language Credit Classes bridge the gap between full-time language instruction and full-time academic work, serving students who score 530-599 (paper-based) or 71-100 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). ESL courses are offered to increase proficiency in four skill areas: reading, writing, speaking, and listening. Courses also are offered in grammar and pronunciation. Each course carries 3 s.h. of credit, which undergraduates may count as elective credit toward graduation. Courses are taught by teaching assistants pursuing advanced degrees in linguistics.

Courses taken to meet the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences English proficiency requirement may not be taken P/N. ESL courses may not be taken S/U. All required ESL courses must be completed before registration in rhetoric courses. Once enrolled, students may not drop ESL courses.

Iowa Intensive English Program (IIEP)

The IIEP primarily serves students on conditional admission and persons who have not yet been admitted to the University and who score below 530 (paper-based) or 71 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). The program offers intensive English instruction and a cultural, social, and academic orientation to the United States. Instruction emphasizes proficiency in spoken and written English, which is crucial to college and university work. Grammar and the basic language skills of writing, reading, listening comprehension, and speaking are taught each day at all levels, beginning through advanced.

Each student receives 20 hours of classroom instruction each week plus individual work in the language laboratory. Field trips and cultural and social experiences are an integral part of the program. Students enrolled in the IIEP have full access to all University facilities. The program welcomes international students preparing to enter universities and colleges as well as other adults who want to improve their English skills. Instruction is by full-time professional ESL instructors.

International students admitted to the IIEP receive a certificate of eligibility (Form I-20), which enables them to apply for a student visa at the nearest U.S. consulate or embassy. Application materials are available from the ESL Programs Office and on the Iowa Intensive English Program web site.

Teaching Assistant Preparation in English (TAPE)

The Teaching Assistant Preparation in English program (TAPE) is designed for graduate students whose first language is not English, who need additional work on English communication, and who will hold teaching assistantships while at The University of Iowa. Only students who need the program and who have sufficient competence in English to profit from it are eligible. TAPE courses are open to graduate students who have been evaluated for TA certification and to others if space is available. Students are taught by full-time professional ESL instructors.

English as a Second Language Courses

ESL Credit Classes

The following courses are for students whose first language is not English. Courses taken to meet the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences English proficiency requirement may not be taken P/N. English as a Second Language (ESL) courses may not be taken S/U. In order to enroll in ESL courses, undergraduates must score 530 (paper-based), 197 (computer-based), or 71 (Internet-based) or higher on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL), or the equivalent; graduate students must score 550 (paper-based), 215 (computer-based), or 81 (Internet-based) or higher on TOEFL, or the equivalent. Consent of ESL coordinator is required for all courses.

212:184 English as a Second Language: Conversation Skills

3 s.h.

Speaking skills for the U.S. academic setting and society; pronunciation, grammar, vocabulary; structured opportunity to develop fluency.

212:185 English as a Second Language: Pronunciation and Oral Skills 3 s.h.

Development of skills appropriate to formal speaking; diagnosis and correction of persistent pronunciation problems; correct stress, intonation.

212:186 English as a Second Language: Grammar 3 s.h.

English structure; troublesome grammar patterns.

212:187 English as a Second Language: Writing 3 s.h.

Complex grammatical constructions, discourse considerations, formal vocabulary use expected of university students; organization styles, types of argumentation, analytic methods used in academic writing. Requirements: undergraduate standing.

212:188 English as a Second Language: Oral Skills for M.B.A. Students 3 s.h.

Improvement of M.B.A. students' oral skills; focus on career-oriented situations (interviews, presentations, discussions, meetings). Requirements: full-time M.B.A. study and enrollment by test.

212:189 English as a Second Language: Reading Skills 3 s.h.

Increasing reading speed and comprehension of university-level writing and vocabulary; exercises, discussion, and note-taking assignments to develop critical analysis skills.

212:190 English as a Second Language: Writing Skills for Graduate Students 3 s.h.

Discourse considerations; styles of organization, types of argumentation, methods of analysis expected of graduate students. Requirements: TOEFL score of at least 550 (paper-based) or 213 (computer-based) or 81 (Internet-based), and graduate standing.

Iowa Intensive English Program (IIEP)

These courses are for students whose first language is not English. The Iowa Intensive English Program primarily serves students on conditional admission, those who have not yet been admitted to the University, and those who score below 530 (paper-based), 197 (computer-based), or 71 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL).

212:002 Iowa Intensive English: Communication Skills for Professionals 0 s.h.

Listening and speaking skills for international professionals; conversational fluency, language for professional interactions (e.g., discussions and presentations).

212:010 TOEFL Prep 0 s.h.

Development of students' test-taking skills for the TOEFL examination; emphasis on listening comprehension, grammar, and reading comprehension; test taking skills developed through exercises and practice TOEFL tests. Requirements: IIEP high-intermediate or advanced-level standing.

212:011 Iowa Intensive English Communication Skills: Beginning 0 s.h.

Focus on aural comprehension, spoken English, and American attitudes, values, and customs; practice giving and receiving information; learn language more quickly in a comfortable, familiar environment; understand and accept cultural differences; gain positive feelings toward American culture; provides link between classroom and community; interview Americans, class discussions.

212:012 Iowa Intensive English Communication Skills: Low Intermediate 0 s.h.

Focus on aural comprehension, spoken English, and American attitudes, values, and customs; practice giving and receiving information; learn language more quickly in a comfortable, familiar environment; understand and accept cultural differences; gain positive feelings toward American culture; provides link between classroom and community; interview Americans, class discussions.

212:013 Iowa Intensive English Communication Skills: Intermediate 0 s.h.

Focus on aural comprehension, spoken English, and American attitudes, values, and customs; practice giving and receiving information; learn language more quickly in a comfortable, familiar environment; understand and accept cultural differences; gain positive feelings toward American culture; provides link between classroom and community; interview Americans, class discussions.

212:014 Iowa Intensive English Communication Skills: High Intermediate 0 s.h.

Focus on aural comprehension, spoken English, and American attitudes, values, and customs; practice giving and receiving information; learn language more quickly in a comfortable, familiar environment; understand and accept cultural differences; gain positive feelings toward American culture; provides link between classroom and community; interview Americans, class discussions.

212:015 Iowa Intensive English Communication Skills: Advanced 0 s.h.

Focus on aural comprehension, spoken English, and American attitudes, values, and customs; practice giving and receiving information; learn language more quickly in a comfortable, familiar environment; understand and accept cultural differences; gain positive feelings toward American culture; provides link between classroom and community; interview Americans, class discussions.

212:031 Iowa Intensive English Reading: Beginning 0 s.h.

Comprehensive reading curriculum designed to help students become effective readers; variety of skills and opportunities to practice many strategies while reading different kinds of written material (i.e., newspapers, magazines, schedules, documents, textbooks, correspondence, literature); emphasis on learning by doing; eclectic teaching approach.

212:032 Iowa Intensive English Reading: Low Intermediate 0 s.h.

Comprehensive reading curriculum designed to help students become effective readers; variety of skills and opportunities to practice many strategies while reading different kinds of written material (i.e., newspapers, magazines, schedules, documents, textbooks, correspondence, literature); emphasis on learning by doing; eclectic teaching approach.

212:033 Iowa Intensive English Reading: Intermediate 0 s.h.

Comprehensive reading curriculum designed to help students become effective readers; variety of skills and opportunities to practice many strategies while reading different kinds of written material (i.e., newspapers, magazines, schedules, documents, textbooks, correspondence, literature); emphasis on learning by doing; eclectic teaching approach.

212:034 Iowa Intensive English Reading: High Intermediate 0 s.h.

Comprehensive reading curriculum designed to help students become effective readers; variety of skills and opportunities to practice many strategies while reading different kinds of written material (i.e., newspapers, magazines, schedules, documents, textbooks, correspondence, literature); emphasis on learning by doing; eclectic teaching approach.

212:035 Iowa Intensive English Reading: Advanced 0 s.h.

Comprehensive reading curriculum designed to help students become effective readers; variety of skills and opportunities to practice many strategies while reading different kinds of written material (i.e., newspapers, magazines, schedules, documents, textbooks, correspondence, literature); emphasis on learning by doing; eclectic teaching approach.

212:041 Iowa Intensive English Grammar: Beginning 0 s.h.

Correct use of the grammatical structures of English; learning grammar in a systematic and logical way; extensive practice to meet the goal of communicative competence in English.

212:042 Iowa Intensive English Grammar: Low Intermediate 0 s.h.

Correct use of the grammatical structures of English; learning grammar in a systematic and logical way; extensive practice to meet the goal of communicative competence in English.

212:043 Iowa Intensive English Grammar: Intermediate 0 s.h.

Correct use of the grammatical structures of English; learning grammar in a systematic and logical way; extensive practice to meet the goal of communicative competence in English.

212:044 Iowa Intensive English Grammar: High Intermediate 0 s.h.

Correct use of the grammatical structures of English; learning grammar in a systematic and logical way; extensive practice to meet the goal of communicative competence in English.

212:045 Iowa Intensive English Grammar: Advanced

0 s.h.

Correct use of the grammatical structures of English; learning grammar in a systematic and logical way; extensive practice to meet the goal of communicative competence in English.

212:051 Iowa Intensive English Writing: Beginning

0 s.h.

Personal and formal writing; experiment with varied forms of writing, from journal entries and letters to critiques, essay examinations, and short papers that involve use of the library; students read and respond to each other's writing, and in the process become more aware of their own strengths and weaknesses as writers.

212:052 Iowa Intensive English Writing: Low Intermediate

0 s.h.

Personal and formal writing; experiment with varied forms of writing, from journal entries and letters to critiques, essay examinations, and short papers that involve use of the library; students read and respond to each other's writing, and in the process become more aware of their own strengths and weaknesses as writers.

212:053 Iowa Intensive English Writing: Intermediate

0 s.h.

Personal and formal writing; experiment with varied forms of writing, from journal entries and letters to critiques, essay examinations, and short papers that involve use of the library; students read and respond to each other's writing, and in the process become more aware of their own strengths and weaknesses as writers.

212:054 Iowa Intensive English Writing: High Intermediate

0 s.h.

Personal and formal writing; varied forms of writing, from journal entries and letters to critiques, essay examinations, and short papers that involve use of the library; students read and respond to each other's writing, and in the process become more aware of their own strengths and weaknesses as writers.

212:055 Iowa Intensive English Writing: Advanced

0 s.h.

Personal and formal writing; experiment with varied forms of writing, from journal entries and letters to critiques, essay examinations, and short papers that involve use of the library; students read and respond to each other's writing, and in the process become more aware of their own strengths and weaknesses as writers.

Teaching Assistant Preparation in English (TAPE)

The TAPE program is designed for prospective teaching assistants whose first language is not English and who need additional work on English communication skills. Entry to the program is determined by a test.

212:006 TA Preparation in English: Fluency Building

0 s.h.

Pronunciation, fluency building, knowledge of the University of Iowa classroom.

212:007 TA Preparation in English: Pronunciation

0 s.h.

Intensive work toward maximum intelligibility; emphasis on stress, timing, intonation.

212:008 TA Preparation in English: Presentation Skills

0 s.h.

Intelligibility of speech and clarity of expression in presenting and responding; practice in videotaped lectures.

212:009 TA Preparation in English: Orientation

0 s.h.

Student expectations, typical teacher/student relationships, basic classroom management at the University.

Environmental Sciences

Coordinator: Stephen D. Hendrix

Executive committee chair: Mark K. Reagan

Advisory committee: E. Arthur Bettis III, Christopher A. Brochu, Jeffrey A. Dorale, Vicki H. Grassian, Stephen D. Hendrix, Diana G. Horton, George P. Malanson, William C. McClelland, Michelle M. Scherer

Undergraduate degrees: B.S., BA in Environmental Sciences

Undergraduate nondegree program: Minor in Environmental Sciences

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~envsci>

The Environmental Sciences Program provides rigorous interdisciplinary training in the scientific study of the environment. It promotes an understanding of the earth as a complex network of interacting organic and inorganic systems. The program's undergraduate curricula reflect the diversity in the broad field of environmental sciences and draw upon the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences' disciplinary strengths, giving students the opportunity to develop particular areas of expertise.

Hands-on field experience is a crucial component of the program. Students are strongly encouraged to engage in research and study abroad.

The Department of Geoscience is the administrative home for the Environmental Sciences Program.

Undergraduate Programs

The program offers a Bachelor of Science, a Bachelor of Arts, and a minor in environmental sciences.

Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Science in environmental sciences requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 80-85 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program; courses required for the major in environmental sciences also may be used to satisfy General Education Program requirements.

Students earning a B.S. in environmental sciences must complete requirements in three areas: the science and mathematics foundation, the environmental sciences foundation, and one of four environmental sciences tracks. Each student is assigned an advisor who specializes in his or her track.

The science and mathematics foundation develops fundamental skills and comprehension in biology, chemistry, geology, mathematics, and statistics. The environmental sciences foundation includes an introductory course in environmental science and additional courses that focus on remote sensing techniques, design and use of geographic information technologies, the geomorphic and environmental processes that shape the earth's surface, and ecological factors that influence the distribution and abundance of organisms.

Each of the program's four tracks focuses on one aspect of environmental sciences:

- biosciences (green) track--biological systems and ecological approaches;
- chemical sciences (yellow) track--environmental systems and chemistry;
- geosciences (brown) track--earth materials and surficial geologic processes; and
- hydrosciences (blue) track--hydrogeology and hydrogeologic systems, and water chemistry.

The tracks aim to prepare scientists who can tackle problems that require particular areas of expertise, and to help students develop the skills needed for future employment or graduate study.

The Bachelor of Science major in environmental sciences requires the following course work.

SCIENCE AND MATHEMATICS FOUNDATION

Students must complete at least 31 s.h. of course work for the science and mathematics foundation, as follows.

All of these:

002:010-002:011 Principles of Biology I-II	8 s.h.
004:011-004:012 Principles of Chemistry I-II	8 s.h.
012:005 Introduction to Geology	4 s.h.

22M:025-22M:026 Calculus I-II 8 s.h.

One of these:

22S:039 Probability and Statistics for the Engineering and Physical Sciences 3 s.h.

22S:101 Biostatistics 3 s.h.

22S:105 Statistical Methods and Computing 3 s.h.

ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCES FOUNDATION

Students must complete at least 19 s.h. of course work for the environmental sciences foundation, as follows.

All of these:

159:008 Introduction to Environmental Science 4 s.h.

159:100 Environmental Sciences Seminar (taken twice; section 1 for 0 s.h. and section 2 for 1 s.h.) 1 s.h.

159:102 Earth Surface Processes 3 s.h.

159:110 Introduction to Applied Remote Sensing 4 s.h.

159:134 Ecology 4 s.h.

044:005 Foundations of GIS 3 s.h.

Tracks

Environmental sciences students must choose one of the following four tracks. Each track includes required general sciences courses, track foundation courses, field study courses, and elective courses.

BIOSCIENCES (GREEN) TRACK

The environmental biosciences track provides the essential skills for entry-level positions that require a good knowledge of biotic systems and the ability to inventory biologic resources. The track's aim is to produce scientists who are capable of tackling environmental problems in which links and interactions with life sciences are crucial and in which a substantial knowledge of biological/ecological sciences is required. The track also provides a strong foundation for graduate or professional training in disciplines such as ecology, wildlife management, and natural resource management.

Students must complete at least 33 s.h. of environmental biosciences track course work, including one 4 s.h. field course at Iowa Lakeside Laboratory.

General Sciences

004:121 Organic Chemistry I 3 s.h.

Students are encouraged to take at least one semester of physics.

Environmental Biosciences Foundation

Both of these:

002:128 Fundamental Genetics 4 s.h.

002:131 Evolution 4 s.h.

At least 7 s.h. from these:

002:108 Vertebrate Zoology 4 s.h.

012:107 Marine Ecosystems and Conservation 3 s.h.

012:122 Evolution of the Vertebrates 3 s.h.

012:170 Evolution of Ecosystems 3 s.h.

012:171 Evolution of Plants 3 s.h.

044:103 Biogeography 3 s.h.

00L:105 Plant Taxonomy 4 s.h.

00L:115 Field Mycology	4 s.h.
00L:117 Ecology and Systematics of Diatoms	4 s.h.
00L:128 Fish Ecology	4 s.h.
00L:129 Vertebrate Ecology and Evolution	4 s.h.

Environmental Biosciences Field Study

At least 4 s.h. from these Iowa Lakeside Laboratory courses:

00L:103 Aquatic Ecology	4 s.h.
00L:105 Plant Taxonomy	4 s.h.
00L:109 Freshwater Algae	4 s.h.
00L:115 Field Mycology	4 s.h.
00L:117 Ecology and Systematics of Diatoms	4 s.h.
00L:121 Plant Ecology	4 s.h.
00L:122 Prairie Ecology	4 s.h.
00L:126 Ornithology	4 s.h.
00L:128 Fish Ecology	4 s.h.
00L:129 Vertebrate Ecology and Evolution	4 s.h.
00L:160 Restoration Ecology	4 s.h.
00L:163 Conservation Biology	4 s.h.

Environmental Biosciences Electives

Students must complete at least 11 s.h. of elective course work, with at least 7 s.h. from the following list. An additional field study course (see "Environmental Biosciences Field Study" above) may be used for 4 s.h. of the 11 s.h. of elective course work. A maximum of one policy course may be included in the 11 s.h. of electives (06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics, 044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues, 044:122 Environmental Conservation in the United States, and 044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis).

002:124 Animal Physiology	3 s.h.
002:143 Animal Behavior	4 s.h.
002:162 Population Genetics and Molecular Evolution	3 s.h.
002:196 Honors Investigations	arr.
002:199 Introduction to Research	3 s.h.
004:111 Analytical Chemistry I	3 s.h.
004:112 Analytical Chemistry II	3 s.h.
06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics	3 s.h.
012:108 Introduction to Oceanography	2 s.h.
012:121 Principles of Paleontology	3 s.h.
22S:148 Intermediate Statistical Methods	4 s.h.
044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues	3 s.h.
044:101 Climatology	3 s.h.
044:122 Environmental Conservation in the United States	3 s.h.
044:123 Landscape Ecology	3 s.h.
044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis	4 s.h.
044:126 Wetlands: Function, Geography, and Management	3 s.h.
213:152 Primate Conservation Biology	3 s.h.

CHEMICAL SCIENCES (YELLOW) TRACK

The environmental chemical sciences track provides the essential skills for entry-level positions that require a basic understanding of chemical principles and a working knowledge of basic chemical concepts as applied in the environment. The track's aim is to produce scientists who are capable of tackling environmental problems in which chemical and molecular processes play an important role. The track also provides a strong foundation for graduate or professional training in environmental chemistry.

Students must complete at least 35 s.h. of environmental chemical sciences track course work.

General Sciences

One of these sequences:

029:011-029:012 College Physics I-II	8 s.h.
029:081-029:082 Introductory Physics I-II	8 s.h.

Environmental Chemical Sciences Foundation

004:111-004:112 Analytical Chemistry I-II	6 s.h.
---	--------

One of these sequences:

004:121-004:122 Organic Chemistry I-II	6 s.h.
004:123-004:124 Organic Chemistry I for Majors - Organic Chemistry II for Majors	6 s.h.

One of these:

004:131 Physical Chemistry I	3 s.h.
004:132 Physical Chemistry II	3 s.h.

StudyChemical Sciences Lab and Field

Both of these:

004:141 Organic Chemistry Laboratory	3 s.h.
004:143 Analytical Measurements	3 s.h.

Environmental Chemical Sciences Electives

Students must complete at least 6 s.h. of elective courses, chosen from the following list. (Students may petition the chemistry department's environmental sciences advisor to use appropriate 100- and 200-level courses taught in the chemistry department as electives.) A maximum of one policy course may be included in the 6 s.h. of electives (06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics, 044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues, 044:122 Environmental Conservation in the United States, and 044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis).

004:125 Inorganic Chemistry	2 s.h.
004:162 Undergraduate Research	1-3 s.h.
004:173 Atmospheric and Environmental Chemistry	3 s.h.
06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics	3 s.h.
012:149 Elements of Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:152 Isotope Geochemistry	3 s.h.
044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues	3 s.h.
044:101 Climatology	3 s.h.
044:122 Environmental Conservation in the United States	3 s.h.
044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis	4 s.h.
053:152 Environmental Chemistry I	3 s.h.
053:153 Environmental Chemistry Laboratory	3 s.h.
099:110 Biochemistry	3 s.h.
004:131 Physical Chemistry I (if not taken as a foundation course)	3 s.h.
or
004:132 Physical Chemistry II (if not taken as a foundation course)	3 s.h.

GEOSCIENCES (BROWN) TRACK

The environmental geosciences track provides the essential skills for entry-level positions that require a basic understanding of geologic principles and a working knowledge of basic geologic concepts applied in the environmental industry. The track's aim is to produce scientists who are capable of tackling environmental problems in which earth materials and surficial geologic processes are of primary importance. The track also lays a strong foundation for graduate study in environmental geology, engineering geology, and natural hazards assessment.

Students must complete at least 30 s.h. of environmental geosciences track course work.

General Sciences

029:008 Basic Physics	4 s.h.
-----------------------	--------

Students are strongly encouraged to take additional course work in physics.

Environmental Geosciences Foundation

All of these:

012:041 Mineralogy	4 s.h.
012:130 Sedimentary Geology	3 s.h.
012:132 Structural Geology	4 s.h.
012:136 Soil Genesis and Geomorphology	3 s.h.
012:179 Engineering Geology	3 s.h.

Environmental Geosciences Field Study

One of these:

00L:142 Watershed Hydrology and Surficial Processes	4 s.h.
012:113 Geologic Field Analysis	3 s.h.
044:180 Field Methods in Physical Geography	3 s.h.

Environmental Geosciences Electives

Students must complete at least 6 s.h. of elective courses, chosen from the following list. A maximum of one policy course may be included in the 6 s.h. of electives (06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics, 044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues, 044:122 Environmental Conservation in the United States, and 044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis).

06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics	3 s.h.
012:108 Introduction to Oceanography	2 s.h.
012:114 Energy and the Environment	3 s.h.
012:119 Directed Study	arr.
012:130 Sedimentary Geology	3 s.h.
012:138 Fluvial Geomorphology	3 s.h.
012:139 Integrated Watershed Analysis	3 s.h.
012:140 Natural Hazards	3 s.h.
012:149 Elements of Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:150 Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology	4 s.h.
012:152 Isotope Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:166 Hydrogeology	3 s.h.
012:172 Glacial and Pleistocene Geology	3 s.h.
012:178 Applied Geostatistics	3 s.h.
012:180 Survey of Geophysical Methods	3 s.h.
012:191 Geotectonics	3 s.h.

044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues	3 s.h.
044:101 Climatology	3 s.h.
044:122 Environmental Conservation in the United States	3 s.h.
044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis	4 s.h.
053:050 Natural Environmental Systems	3 s.h.
053:158 Solid and Hazardous Wastes	3 s.h.

HYDROSCIENCES (BLUE) TRACK

The environmental hydrosciences track provides the essential skills for entry-level positions that require a basic understanding of geologic principles and a working knowledge of hydrogeology and hydrogeochemistry. The track's aim is to produce scientists who are capable of tackling environmental problems that emphasize hydrogeologic systems and for which substantial knowledge of hydrogeology and water chemistry are essential. The track also lays a strong foundation for graduate education in hydrogeology, hydrology, geochemistry, and aqueous chemistry.

Students must complete at least 34 s.h. of environmental hydrosciences track course work.

General Sciences

029:011-029:012 College Physics I-II	8 s.h.
--------------------------------------	--------

Environmental Hydrosciences Foundation

Both of these:

012:166 Hydrogeology	3 s.h.
012:179 Engineering Geology	3 s.h.

One of these:

012:138 Fluvial Geomorphology	3 s.h.
012:139 Integrated Watershed Analysis	3 s.h.

One of these:

012:149 Elements of Geochemistry	3 s.h.
053:152 Environmental Chemistry I	3 s.h.

Environmental Hydrosciences Field Study

One of these:

044:180 Field Methods in Physical Geography	3 s.h.
00L:142 Watershed Hydrology and Surficial Processes	4 s.h.

Environmental Hydrosciences Electives

Students must complete at least 11 s.h. of elective courses, chosen from the following list. A maximum of one policy course may be included in the 11 s.h. of electives (06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics, 044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues, 044:122 Environmental Conservation in the United States and 044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis).

06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics	3 s.h.
012:108 Introduction to Oceanography	2 s.h.
012:119 Directed Study	arr.
012:130 Sedimentary Geology	3 s.h.
012:178 Applied Geostatistics	3 s.h.

012:180 Survey of Geophysical Methods	3 s.h.
012:184 Groundwater Modeling	3 s.h.
044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues	3 s.h.
044:101 Climatology	3 s.h.
044:122 Environmental Conservation in the United States	3 s.h.
044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis	4 s.h.
044:126 Wetlands: Function, Geography, and Management	3 s.h.
053:050 Natural Environmental Systems	3 s.h.
053:071 Principles of Hydraulics and Hydrology	3 s.h.
053:152 Environmental Chemistry I	3 s.h.
053:153 Environmental Chemistry Laboratory	3 s.h.
053:154 Environmental Microbiology	3 s.h.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in environmental sciences requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 61-67 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program; courses required for the major in environmental sciences also may be used to satisfy General Education Program requirements.

Students complete requirements in four areas: the science and mathematics foundation, the environmental sciences foundation, environmental sciences field study, and the environmental sciences tracks.

The science and mathematics foundation develops fundamental skills and comprehension in biology, chemistry, geology, mathematics, and statistics. The environmental sciences foundation includes an introductory course in environmental science and additional courses that focus on the geomorphic and environmental processes that shape the Earth's surface, the ecological factors that influence the distribution and abundance of organisms, and a choice of one course that deals with remote sensing techniques or with the use of geographic information technologies. The environmental sciences field study gives students hands-on experience with methods of analysis and interpretation of natural systems/organisms.

The four environmental sciences tracks represent areas of specialization within environmental sciences:

biosciences (green) track--biological systems and ecological approaches;

chemical sciences (yellow) track--environmental systems and chemistry;

geosciences (brown) track--earth materials and surficial geologic processes; and

hydrosciences (blue) track--hydrogeology and hydrogeologic systems, and water chemistry.

Students select one course from each of three of the four tracks in order to develop breadth of understanding and skill in these areas.

The Bachelor of Arts major in environmental sciences requires the following course work.

SCIENCE AND MATHEMATICS FOUNDATION

Students must complete at least 31 s.h. of course work for the sciences and mathematics foundation, as follows.

All of these:

002:010 Principles of Biology I	4 s.h.
002:011 Principles of Biology II	4 s.h.
004:011 Principles of Chemistry I	4 s.h.
004:012 Principles of Chemistry II	4 s.h.
012:005 Introduction to Geology	4 s.h.

First semester math and calculus—one of these:

22M:015 Mathematics for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:025 Calculus I	4 s.h.

Second semester math and calculus—one of these:

22M:016 Calculus for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:026 Calculus II	4 s.h.

One semester of statistics—one of these:

22S:039 Probability and Statistics for the Engineering and Physical Sciences	3 s.h.
22S:101 Biostatistics	3 s.h.
22S:105 Statistical Methods and Computing	3 s.h.

ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCES FOUNDATION

Students must complete at least 18-20 s.h. of course work for the environmental sciences foundation, as follows.

All of these:

159:008 Introduction to Environmental Science	4 s.h.
159:100 Environmental Sciences Seminar (taken twice; section 1 for 0 s.h. and section 2 for 1 s.h.)	1 s.h.
159:102 Earth Surface Processes	3 s.h.
159:134 Ecology	3-4 s.h.

One of these:

044:005 Foundations of GIS	3 s.h.
044:105 Introduction to Environmental Remote Sensing	3 s.h.
159:110 Introduction to Applied Remote Sensing	4 s.h.

One of these:

06E:133 Environmental and Natural Resource Economics	3 s.h.
044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues	3 s.h.
044:030 The Global Economy	3 s.h.
044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis	4 s.h.
044:127 Environmental Quality: Science, Technology, and Policy	3 s.h.
044:177 Environmental Justice	3 s.h.
044:194 Geographic Perspectives on Development	3 s.h.
113:139 Religion and Environmental Ethics	3 s.h.

ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCES FIELD STUDY

Students must complete at least one field study course (at least 3 s.h.) chosen from the following.

012:112 Geologic Field Methods	3 s.h.
044:180 Field Methods in Physical Geography	2-4 s.h.
053:103 Water Quality	3 s.h.
00L:103 Aquatic Ecology	4 s.h.
00L:105 Plant Taxonomy	4 s.h.
00L:117 Ecology and Systematics of Diatoms	4 s.h.
00L:126 Ornithology	4 s.h.
00L:142 Watershed Hydrology and Surficial Processes	4 s.h.
00L:163 Conservation Biology	4 s.h.

ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCES TRACKS

Students must complete 9-12 s.h. (three courses), choosing one course from each of three of the following four environmental sciences tracks.

Biosciences (Green) Track

002:108 Vertebrate Zoology	4 s.h.
012:107 Marine Ecosystems and Conservation	3 s.h.
012:122 Evolution of the Vertebrates	3 s.h.
012:170 Evolution of Ecosystems	3 s.h.
012:171 Evolution of Plants	3 s.h.
044:103 Biogeography	3 s.h.
00L:105 Plant Taxonomy	4 s.h.
00L:117 Ecology and Systematics of Diatoms	4 s.h.

Chemical Sciences (Yellow) Track

004:111 Analytical Chemistry I	3 s.h.
004:121 Organic Chemistry I	3 s.h.
004:131 Physical Chemistry I	3 s.h.
053:152 Environmental Chemistry I	3 s.h.
099:110 Biochemistry	3 s.h.

Geosciences (Brown) Track

012:041 Mineralogy	4 s.h.
012:114 Energy and the Environment	3 s.h.
012:130 Sedimentary Geology	3 s.h.
012:132 Structural Geology	4 s.h.
012:136 Soil Genesis and Geomorphology	3 s.h.
012:138/053:128 Fluvial Geomorphology	3 s.h.
012:139 Integrated Watershed Analysis	3 s.h.
012:140 Natural Hazards	3 s.h.
012:149 Elements of Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:152 Isotope Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:172 Glacial and Pleistocene Geology	3 s.h.
012:179 Engineering Geology	3 s.h.
012:180 Survey of Geophysical Methods	3 s.h.

Hydrosciences (Blue) Track

012:130 Sedimentary Geology	3 s.h.
012:139 Integrated Watershed Analysis	3 s.h.
012:149 Elements of Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:166 Hydrogeology	3 s.h.
044:126 Wetlands: Function, Geography, and Management	3 s.h.
053:050 Natural Environmental Systems	3-4 s.h.
053:071 Principles of Hydraulics and Hydrology	3 s.h.
053:152 Environmental Chemistry I	3 s.h.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The Four-Year Graduation Plan is not available for the environmental sciences major. Students work with their advisors on individual graduation plans.

Honors

Qualified students are encouraged to pursue an honors degree in environmental sciences. Honors study offers students an opportunity to engage in independent research under the guidance of a faculty sponsor chosen from affiliated faculty of the Environmental Sciences Program; the program draws faculty members from the Departments of Anthropology, Biology, Chemistry, Civil and Environmental Engineering, Geography, and Geoscience. Students also learn how to write the results of their research in the format of a scientific paper, and they have the experience of formally presenting their research as either a short seminar or a poster.

Environmental sciences students who wish to graduate with honors must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information).

To graduate with honors in environmental sciences, students must fulfill the following requirements:

complete a B.S. or B.A. in environmental sciences with a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in all work for the major;

submit a research proposal to the honors director within two months of the beginning of the semester in which the research is initiated;

complete a minimum of 6 s.h. of honors research taken over two semesters (002:196 Honors Investigations, 004:162 Undergraduate Research, 012:119 Directed Study, or 044:195 Undergraduate Research, depending on the departmental affiliation of the faculty sponsor); prepare a thesis presenting the research in the format of a scientific paper with abstract, introduction, methods, results, discussion, and conclusions; the thesis must include a title page and an abstract formatted according to the specifications of the Honors Program and must be submitted to the honors director at least one week before the Honors Program deadline for submission; and present either a short seminar or a poster about the research at a professional meeting and/or at The University of Iowa.

Beginning in their sophomore or junior year, students should identify potential faculty sponsors by conducting a web-based survey of the research interests of the program's affiliated faculty. The student should contact potential sponsors to determine who would be willing to sponsor an honors student and what research projects the student might undertake. Students who choose a sponsor whose faculty appointment is not in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences must choose a cosponsor who does have a faculty appointment in CLAS.

After the student has identified a sponsor and the two have agreed on a project, the sponsor guides the student in the preparation of a research proposal that identifies the background, goals, methods, and significance of the research project. The proposal serves as the foundation of the honors thesis, which the student prepares under the sponsor's supervision upon completion of the research. Once the thesis is nearing completion or is completed, the student presents a short seminar or a poster detailing the purpose of the research.

Minor

The minor in Environmental Sciences requires a minimum of 16 s.h. in University of Iowa environmental sciences courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. The following courses are required.

159:008/012:008 Introduction to Environmental Science (with lab) 4 s.h.

One environmental sciences foundation course, chosen from these:

044:005 Foundations of GIS 3 s.h.

159:102/012:102 Earth Surface Processes 3 s.h.

159:110/012:110 Introduction to Applied Remote Sensing 4 s.h.

159:134/002:134 Ecology 3-4 s.h.

Students also choose 8 s.h. of course work in one of the four environmental sciences tracks (environmental biosciences, environmental chemical sciences, environmental geosciences, and environmental hydrosciences; see "Tracks" earlier in this Catalog section). The courses must include one track foundation course (3-4 s.h.) and one track field study course (2-4 s.h.).

Environmental Sciences Courses

159:008 Introduction to Environmental Science 3-4 s.h.

Biological and physical character of the Earth; interaction of humans with the environment, including impacts on ecosystems, climate, natural processes, resources; alternative options, including sustainability, waste management, energy, land reform. GE: Natural Sciences. Same as 012:008.

159:009 Introduction to Environmental Sciences Laboratory 1 s.h.

Laboratory component of 012:008. Requirements: environmental sciences or geoscience major; and 012:008 or 159:008 for 3 s.h. GE: Natural Sciences. Same as 012:009.

159:100 Environmental Sciences Seminar 0-1 s.h.

Role of sciences in environmental issues and problems; progression from observation to evaluation to design of better questions and experiments. Requirements: environmental sciences major.

159:102 Earth Surface Processes 3 s.h.

Basic geomorphic and environmental processes that shape the earth's surface; emphasis on erosion, transport, deposition by land mass movement (creep, landslides, earth flow), fluid agents (wind, water, ice); methods used to study these processes. Prerequisites: 012:005 or 012:008 or 044:003 or 159:008. Same as 012:102.

159:110 Introduction to Applied Remote Sensing 4 s.h.

Remote sensing of the earth's surface from aircraft, satellites; aerial photograph interpretation; remote sensing systems, methods, data analysis using electromagnetic spectrum and digital processing techniques, including visible, infrared, microwave radiation; remote sensing applied to geologic and environmental problems. Requirements: college physics or physical geology. Same as 012:110.

159:134 Ecology

3-4 s.h.

Adaptations of organisms to their physical and biological environments; organism-environment interactions; population biology; interactions between species; ecology of communities, ecosystems; human impact on ecosystems.

Prerequisites: 002:010, 002:011, and 22M:016 or 22M:025 or 22M:031. Recommendations: a basic statistics course. Same as 002:134.

Ethics and Public Policy

Codirectors: Diane Jeske, Richard Fumerton

Affiliated faculty: Celesta Albonetti (Sociology), Richard Fumerton (Philosophy), Diane Jeske (Philosophy), John Solow (Economics)

Undergraduate degree: B.A. in Ethics and Public Policy

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~ethics/>

Ethics and public policy is an interdisciplinary major that presents perspectives on intersecting issues connecting the study of philosophy, economics, law, and sociology. All of these disciplines involve a focus on practical questions concerning how individuals ought to behave and how they ought to regulate the behavior of others.

For example, law exists in order to regulate human behavior, enforce human ideals, and resolve human conflict; most people agree that what society should do depends in part on the actual or potential consequences of its actions; and some of the most important consequences of actions and policies are economic. So it is folly to try to reason clearly about how to rectify injustice without thinking long and hard about the economic impact of one's plans. But law and social policy affect more than economics; they have a role in constructing the very fabric of society and the nature of the political state in which we want to live.

The major in ethics and public policy provides an ideal background for law school. The study of reasoning, an important component of the major, is useful in preparing for the LSAT, GMAT, and MCAT. The major also prepares students to bring a sophisticated, cross-disciplinary perspective to diverse fields such as government, urban and regional planning, social work, and business.

Students choose two fields of specialization for the major and may find it easy to pursue a second major in one of their specialization fields, thus broadening their prospects for choosing graduate schools or beginning professional careers.

The Departments of Economics, Philosophy, and Sociology collaborate to present the major in ethics and public policy; the major is administered by the Department of Philosophy.

Undergraduate Program

The program offers a Bachelor of Arts in ethics and public policy.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in ethics and public policy requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 37 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Work for the major includes six foundation courses and three courses from each of two fields of specialization.

FOUNDATION COURSES

Foundation courses introduce students to each of the disciplines that participate in the major—philosophy, economics, and sociology; provide them with the basic reasoning skills they will need for advanced study; and help them make an informed selection of two specialization fields.

All students are required to take 026:036 Principles of Reasoning: Argument and Debate or 026:103 Introduction to Symbolic Logic in order to gain facility with abstract, formal reasoning.

Some courses may be listed in more than one foundation area and/or specialization field; students may use a course to fulfill only one requirement for the major.

Philosophy Foundation

Reasoning—one of these:

026:036 Principles of Reasoning: Argument and Debate	3 s.h.
--	--------

026:103 Introduction to Symbolic Logic	3 s.h.
--	--------

Value theory—one of these:

026:034 Philosophy and the Just Society	3 s.h.
---	--------

026:102 Introduction to Ethics	3 s.h.
--------------------------------	--------

026:132 Introduction to Political Philosophy	3 s.h.
--	--------

026:135 Philosophy of Law	3 s.h.
---------------------------	--------

Economics Foundation

Both of these:

06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics	4 s.h.
06E:172 Law and Economics	3 s.h.

Sociology Foundation

Theory—one of these:

034:001 Introduction to Sociology Principles	3-4 s.h.
034:002 Social Problems	3-4 s.h.

Law and sociology—one of these:

034:149 Sociology of Criminal Punishment	3 s.h.
034:182 Sociology of Law	3 s.h.
034:186 Criminal Legal System	3 s.h.

FIELDS OF SPECIALIZATION

Students select two of the following four fields of specialization and must complete three courses in each of their two chosen fields.

Some courses may be listed in more than one foundation area and/or specialization field; students may use a course to fulfill only one requirement for the major.

Philosophy

026:102 Introduction to Ethics	3 s.h.
026:104 Introduction to Philosophy of Science	3 s.h.
026:132 Introduction to Political Philosophy	3 s.h.
026:133 Philosophy of History	3 s.h.
026:135 Philosophy of Law	3 s.h.
026:180 Analytic Ethics	3 s.h.
026:182 History of Ethics	3 s.h.
026:185 Political Philosophy	3 s.h.
026:196 Philosophy of the Human Sciences	3 s.h.

Economics

06E:104 Microeconomic Theory	3 s.h.
06E:113 Health Economics	3 s.h.
06E:119 Policy Analysis	3 s.h.
06E:125 Global Economics and Business	3 s.h.
06E:135 Regional and Urban Economics	3 s.h.
06E:171 Antitrust Economics	3 s.h.
06E:176 Public Sector Economics	3 s.h.
06E:179 History of Economic Thought	3 s.h.

Sociology

034:040 Criminology	3 s.h.
034:126 Social Movements in the U.S.	3 s.h.
034:141 Juvenile Delinquency	3 s.h.
034:146 Deviance and Control	3 s.h.
034:149 Sociology of Criminal Punishment	3 s.h.

034:150 Political Sociology	3 s.h.
034:156 Gender Inequality	3 s.h.
034:158 Economy and Society	3 s.h.
034:175 Community and Urban Sociology	3 s.h.
034:182 Sociology of Law	3 s.h.
034:186 Criminal Legal System	3 s.h.

Student-Designed Field

Students may design their own custom specialization field, in consultation with their advisors and with the approval of the ethics and public policy steering committee. The custom field must consist of three courses that are selected from across the curriculum and that bear on issues relevant to the major in an interconnected, coherent way. A custom specialization field may not include a course that the student has used to fulfill another requirement for the major.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major.)

Before the third semester begins: at least one course in the major and one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least three courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least seven courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least nine courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Qualified students may earn a bachelor's degree with honors in ethics and public policy. In order to be admitted to honors in the major, students must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires that they maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). They also must have completed at least three courses in the major. In order to graduate with honors in ethics and public policy, students must complete all requirements for the major, must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.40 in work for the major, and must write an acceptable honors thesis on a significant topic related to the major. Contact the Ethics and Public Policy Program coordinator for more information.

French and Italian

Chair: Roland Racevskis

General education language coordinators: Deborah Contrada (Italian), Geoffrey R. Hope (French)

Professors: Cinzia Blum, Wendelin Guentner, Geoffrey R. Hope, Michel Laronde, Roland Racevskis, Steven Ungar (French and Italian/Cinema and Comparative Literature)

Professors emeriti: Jacques A. Bourgeacq, Florindo Cerreta, Simone Delaty, John T. Nothnagle

Associate professors: Deborah L. Contrada, Anny Dominique Curtius, Rosemarie Scullion (French and Italian/Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies)

Visiting assistant professor: Peter Eubanks

Lecturers: Denes Gazsi, Blandina Giblin, Jack Johnson, Katja Liimatta, John Njue

Undergraduate degrees: B.A. in French, Italian

Undergraduate nondegree programs: Minor in Arabic, French, Italian

Graduate degrees: M.A., Ph.D. in French

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~frenchit>

The department introduces students to the cultures of France, the Francophone world, Italy, and parts of the Middle East, providing an understanding of those countries' historical and contemporary importance. It also facilitates development of proficiency in the French, Italian, Arabic, and Swahili languages and fosters critical appreciation of French, Francophone, Italian, and Arabic literature and culture.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts in French and in Italian, and minors in Arabic, French, and Italian. It also offers a variety of electives for nonmajors and provides flexible means to complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program foreign language requirement and to satisfy individual needs and interests.

Students majoring in French or Italian may combine their studies with courses in education to prepare for jobs in high school teaching. They may go on to graduate study in areas such as French, Italian, comparative literature, and other interdisciplinary areas as preparation for college-level teaching. Or they may combine other skills and studies with their major in French or Italian to prepare for challenging career opportunities in international government, business, finance, travel, communications, and other fields where the knowledge of a foreign language is essential.

Bachelor of Arts in French

The Bachelor of Arts in French requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 31-35 s.h. of work for the major. Students complete a set of four foundation courses (10 s.h.) plus the requirements for one of four tracks (21-25 s.h.): the French and Arabic track; the language track; the literature and culture track; or the teaching track. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

FOUNDATION COURSES

009:111 Introduction to Reading and Writing in Literature	3 s.h.
009:112 French Grammar	3 s.h.
009:106 Oral Expression in French II	2 s.h.
009:136 Oral Expression in French III	2 s.h.

Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in all major course work, including all University of Iowa course work in the major. Majors must maintain portfolios documenting their progress toward attaining the objectives of the French major.

Transfer course work is acceptable, and students are encouraged to participate in study abroad, but the last two courses in the major ordinarily must be completed at The University of Iowa. Transfer work for application to the major is evaluated on an individual basis by the faculty in charge of study abroad.

Upon declaring the major (or later, but before the senior year), students choose an emphasis in one of the following four tracks.

French and Arabic Track

The French and Arabic track is designed for students interested in combining study of the French and Arabic languages with history, politics, and religions of Middle Eastern cultures and with a major in another area, such as comparative studies, political science, geography, or history.

Requirements for the French and Arabic track include the following seven or eight courses (25 s.h.) in addition to the 10 s.h. of foundation course work in French.

Three courses in French language, or literature and culture, taught in French, with at least one numbered above 009:150

9 s.h.

Two or three courses in Arabic language beyond first year	10 s.h.
Two courses on Middle East cultures (prefix 009), taught in French or English, or approved courses from other departments	6 s.h.

Language Track

The language track is designed for students with an interest in language and translation, as well as literature and culture. Students work in specific areas such as international business, comparative stylistics, and translation.

Requirements for the language track include the following seven courses (21 s.h.) in addition to the 10 s.h. of foundation course work in French.

009:115 Business French	3 s.h.
009:197 Techniques of Translation	3 s.h.
Five courses in French language, or literature and culture

All language track students take 009:115 Business French and 009:197 Techniques of Translation. Of the remaining five courses, only one may be taught in English under the French department prefix (009). This restriction does not apply to courses taught in English with an additional semester hour in French. Students must complete at least two courses numbered above 009:150, including the required course 009:197 Techniques of Translation.

Courses in French stylistics and textual analysis, another language, economics, political science, and/or business administration are recommended as adjunct electives.

Literature and Culture Track

The literature and culture track is designed for students who are interested in combining study of French and Francophone literatures and cultures with a major in another area, such as cinema, communication studies, comparative literature, history, international studies, political science, or journalism.

Requirements for the literature and culture track include the following seven courses (21 s.h.) in addition to the 10 s.h. of foundation course work in French.

Five courses in literature and culture
Two courses in language, or literature and culture

Only one of these courses may be taught in English under the French department prefix (009). This restriction does not apply to courses taught in English with an additional semester hour in French. At least two courses must be numbered above 009:150.

Teaching Track

French majors interested in obtaining licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must successfully complete the requirements for a major in French in the teaching track and must be admitted to the College of Education's foreign language Teacher Education Program (TEP). Several courses in the College of Education are required, as is one semester of student teaching. Contact the Department of Teaching and Learning for details.

Requirements for the teaching track include the following seven courses (21 s.h.) in addition to the 10 s.h. of foundation course work in French.

Four courses in literature and culture
Three courses from these areas: language, literature and culture, or pedagogy

Only one of these courses may be taught in English under the French department prefix (009). This restriction does not apply to courses taught in English with an additional semester hour in French. At least two courses must be numbered above 009:150.

Students who plan to use a French minor to teach at the elementary and/or secondary level must contact the College of Education concerning requirements. See College of Education in the Catalog.

Bachelor of Arts in Italian

The B.A. in Italian requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 31 s.h. of work for the major. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. Requirements for the major are as follows.

018:011 Intermediate Italian	4 s.h.
018:012 Intermediate Italian II	4 s.h.

018:105 Modern Italian Fiction	3 s.h.
018:106 Modern Italian Poetry and Drama	3 s.h.
018:111 Advanced Italian	4 s.h.
018:112 Advanced Italian II	4 s.h.

B.A. with Teacher Licensure

French majors seeking licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools should choose the French teaching track. See "Teaching Track" under "Bachelor of Arts in French" above.

Italian majors interested in licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must successfully complete the requirements for a major in Italian, including an additional 2 s.h. in either 018:013 Everyday Italian I or 018:014 Everyday Italian II, and must be admitted to the College of Education's foreign language Teacher Education Program. Several courses in the College of Education are required, as is one semester of student teaching. Contact the Department of Teaching and Learning for details.

Students who plan to use an Italian minor to teach at the elementary and/or secondary level must contact the College of Education concerning requirements. See College of Education in the Catalog.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan.

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

The department participates in the University of Iowa Honors Program. To gain admission to honors in French or Italian, a student must have a University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and a department g.p.a. of at least 3.50, and must be a member of the University of Iowa Honors Program. Students register for 009:198 Honors Research and Thesis (in French)/018:198 Honors Research and Thesis (in Italian), and one honors-designated course numbered above 009:160 (in French) or 018:103 (in Italian). Students must complete an honors thesis or equivalent (for example, translation, comparative stylistics, cultural studies, or research paper) in French or Italian and must present their work to a faculty committee.

Minor in Arabic

The minor in Arabic requires a minimum of 15 s.h. of intermediate or advanced Arabic language courses, including 12 s.h. taken at The University of Iowa. For the minor, intermediate and advanced courses are numbered 195:111 and above, excluding 195:115 Study Abroad: Language (Elementary), 195:125 Topics in Middle East/Muslim World Studies II, and 195:126 Study Abroad: Culture and Society. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Credit from the Iowa Regents Summer in Fez, Morocco, counts as University of Iowa credit. All courses for the minor must be taught in Arabic.

Minor in French

The minor in French requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including 12 s.h. in advanced courses; 9 s.h. of the 12 s.h. in advanced courses must be taken at The University of Iowa. For the minor, courses numbered 009:105 and above are considered advanced. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Credit from the University Studies Abroad Consortium (USAC) program in Pau and the Study in Montpellier program counts as University of Iowa credit; 6 s.h. earned in other programs abroad may be counted toward the minor. All courses for the minor must be taught in French.

Minor in Italian

The minor in Italian requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including 12 s.h. in courses numbered 018:105 and above taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students who wish to count 018:132 Images of Modern Italy toward the minor must enroll in the 4 s.h. section, which includes discussion in Italian. All courses for the minor must be taught in Italian.

Language for Nonmajors

The department provides course sequences in four languages—Arabic, French, Italian, and Swahili—that students may use to fulfill the foreign language requirement of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. It also offers a variety of language courses that nonmajors may take to satisfy their own educational goals and interests.

ARABIC

The Department of French and Italian is the administrative home for Arabic language and literature courses. It offers elementary and intermediate Arabic as well as conversational Arabic, for which intermediate Arabic is prerequisite. See "Courses" at the end of this Catalog section.

Students without a background in Arabic should begin with 195:101 Elementary Modern Standard Arabic I.

Students who wish to fulfill the General Education Program foreign language requirement with Arabic should complete the following course sequence.

195:101 Elementary Modern Standard Arabic I	5 s.h.
195:102 Elementary Modern Standard Arabic II	5 s.h.
195:111 Intermediate Modern Standard Arabic I	5 s.h.
195:112 Intermediate Modern Standard Arabic II	5 s.h.

FRENCH

Nonmajors who wish to study French and who have a background in the language should take the French Foreign Language Placement Test, offered online through Evaluation and Examination Service. The test helps determine the level at which a student should begin French language study at The University of Iowa.

Students without a background in French should begin with 009:001 Elementary French I.

Students who wish to fulfill the General Education Program foreign language requirement with French should complete the following sequence.

009:001 Elementary French I	5 s.h.
009:002 Elementary French II	5 s.h.
009:011 Intermediate French I	4 s.h.
009:012 Intermediate French II	4 s.h.

Those with strong language-learning abilities or background in another romance language may fulfill the foreign language requirement with the following sequence.

009:010 First-Year French Review	5 s.h.
009:011 Intermediate French I	4 s.h.
009:012 Intermediate French II	4 s.h.

ITALIAN

Nonmajors who wish to study Italian and who have a background in the language should consult with the department before the beginning of classes to determine the level at which they should begin Italian language study at The University of Iowa.

Students without a background in Italian should begin with 018:001 Elementary Italian.

Students who wish to fulfill the General Education Program foreign language requirement with Italian should complete the following course sequence.

018:001 Elementary Italian	5 s.h.
018:002 Elementary Italian II	5 s.h.
018:011 Intermediate Italian	4 s.h.
018:012 Intermediate Italian II	4 s.h.

Those with strong language-learning abilities or background in another romance language may fulfill the foreign language requirement with the following sequence.

018:103 Intensive Elementary Italian	4, 6 s.h.
018:011 Intermediate Italian	4 s.h.
018:012 Intermediate Italian II	4 s.h.

SWAHILI

The department also is the administrative home for Swahili courses. Students may fulfill the foreign language requirement of the General Education Program by taking the following four-semester sequence.

211:125 Elementary Swahili I	3-4 s.h.
211:126 Elementary Swahili II	3-4 s.h.
211:127 Intermediate Swahili I	3-4 s.h.
211:128 Intermediate Swahili II	3-4 s.h.

Study Abroad

The department participates in the Committee on Institutional Cooperation (CIC) Summer French Program in Quebec at the Université de Laval. The CIC is a nonprofit organization whose purpose is to foster cooperative educational opportunities among the Big Ten universities and the University of Chicago. Affiliated with the Cours d'été pour non-francophones of the Université de Laval, the program is designed to offer qualified students the opportunity to increase their command of French in a French-speaking environment and to introduce them to the heritage and cultural traditions of a unique and vital segment of North American culture. To participate in the program, students must have taken at least two semesters of French.

For information about other programs abroad, contact the Office for Study Abroad.

Graduate Programs

The department offers the Master of Arts and the Doctor of Philosophy in French. The M.A. is offered with and without thesis; it also is offered with a French education emphasis.

The faculty's expertise allows for courses in the traditionally recognized historical periods of French literature, various literary genres, and critical theories as well as the francophone literatures of Canada, North and Sub-Saharan Africa, and the Caribbean. The department has particular strengths in interdisciplinary studies, notably in the areas of comparative arts, film studies, history, and second language acquisition.

For more detailed information on graduate degrees in French, contact the Department of French and Italian or visit its web site. The department also publishes the Guide for Graduate Students and Assistants.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in French requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit and is offered with or without thesis.

Thesis students may earn up to 6 s.h. of the required 30 s.h. for thesis work. They must take a written and oral examination on their areas of study and must defend their thesis at the time of the comprehensive examination. A thesis prospectus must be accepted one year before the student defends the thesis.

Nonthesis students must pass a written and oral examination. With permission of the director of graduate studies and the department chair, nonthesis students may take up to 6 s.h. of the required 30 s.h. outside the department or transfer up to 6 s.h. of course work taken at another institution.

All M.A. students must complete the following course work.

009:208 Introduction to Graduate Study in French	1 s.h.
009:210 Comparative Stylistics	3 s.h.
009:234 Principles of Teaching and Learning Foreign Languages	3 s.h.
At least four graduate-level literature or culture courses numbered 200 and above

M.A. with French Education Emphasis

The Master of Arts with French education emphasis requires a minimum of 38 s.h. of graduate credit in French. The program is intended primarily for prospective secondary school and junior college teachers. Candidates must pass a final written and oral examination.

All M.A. in French education students must complete the following course work.

009:208 Introduction to Graduate Study in French	1 s.h.
009:210 Comparative Stylistics	3 s.h.
009:234 Principles of Teaching and Learning Foreign Languages	3 s.h.
Courses in French literature numbered 200 and above (minimum requirement)	9 s.h.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in French requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit, including credit earned for the M.A. The program is designed to prepare students for research, teaching, and professional service normally required of college and university faculty members.

The Ph.D. takes at least three years of graduate study, including at least one year spent in residence at The University of Iowa. Students must pass a comprehensive examination and make a successful oral defense of their dissertation.

Requirements include the following.

009:208 Introduction to Graduate Study in French	1 s.h.
009:260 Critical Theory and Practice	3 s.h.
009:277 Thesis (6 s.h. minimum)	6 s.h.
Three graduate courses in a related field, such as another literature, history, or philosophy (8 s.h. minimum)	8 s.h.

Ph.D. students must possess fifth-semester or equivalent proficiency in a foreign language other than French.

Students working toward the Ph.D. are required to spend at least one year teaching as graduate assistants in the department.

Admission

Applicants to the M.A. program in French must have completed the equivalent of The University of Iowa undergraduate major in French. The M.A. in French is prerequisite to admission to the Ph.D. program in French. Successful completion of the M.A. program, however, does not necessarily qualify a student for doctoral study.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Applicants for fall semester whose application materials are received in the department by January 15 have the best chance to be admitted and receive financial aid. They must submit academic transcripts, letters of recommendation from three persons familiar with their past academic work, Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test results, a statement of purpose in taking graduate work, and one or more samples of original writing, one of which should be in French, that show their ability to pursue graduate work in French (an honors thesis, term paper, seminar paper, or other course papers).

Financial Support

Teaching assistantships are offered through the department, and University fellowships and scholarships are available through the Graduate College. Contact the Department of French and Italian for details.

Teaching assistants in the department must take 009:234 Principles of Teaching and Learning Foreign Languages.

Exchange assistantship agreements with the University of Pau and the University of Poitiers provide one year of residence at these Universities in France for graduate students.

French and Italian Courses

The department offers courses in French, Italian, Arabic, and Swahili. For a detailed description of courses offered each semester, contact the Department of French and Italian. French courses are conducted in French and Italian courses are conducted in Italian, unless otherwise indicated. Students may not receive credit for a course that is prerequisite to, or whose equivalent is prerequisite to, a higher-level course they have already completed.

French courses numbered 150-199 are intended primarily for advanced undergraduates; graduate students should consult with their advisor before registering for these courses.

Only one course in English may be used to fulfill requirements for the undergraduate major in French. This restriction does not apply to courses taught in English with an additional semester hour in French. Students should consult with their advisor before registering.

Students who have had significant experience with French through study or foreign residence should consult with the department before enrolling in any French course.

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~women>

The Department of Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies (GWSS) is multidisciplinary. It focuses on the ways in which women and men construct themselves as gendered and sexual beings, analyzes how gender and sexuality shape virtually every aspect of our daily lives, and probes the relationship between biological sex differences and the social and cultural roles of women and men.

The department's major goal is to bring to the University community new research on gender and sexuality--research frequently overlooked by traditional disciplines. By offering core courses as well as those cross-referenced with other departments, GWSS acquaints its students with gender and sexuality scholarship and methodologies in the humanities and the social sciences.

Faculty from across the University participate in the Department of Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies as affiliated faculty members; for a complete list, see the department's web site. Other University of Iowa faculty members occasionally offer courses and participate in the department's research, study, and interdisciplinary activities.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts and a minor in gender, women's, and sexuality studies.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in gender, women's, and sexuality studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 35 s.h. of work for the major. It emphasizes breadth, depth, and interdisciplinary study. Through the GWSS major, students acquire knowledge of the field's history, facility with major theoretical debates, knowledge of gender and sexuality issues outside the United States and Western Europe, knowledge of one major related area of scholarly concern, and familiarity with debates in other areas. Students apply this knowledge to an individual research project during their senior year.

Students may declare the major in gender, women's, and sexuality studies at any time. They are advised by the Academic Advising Center until they have completed 131:010 Introduction to Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies or 131:055 Gender, Race, and Class in the U.S. Transfer credit is evaluated case-by-case; a maximum of 12 s.h. may be counted toward the degree.

Work for the major consists of the undergraduate core (17 s.h.), which includes a practicum and culminates in a research seminar, and 18 s.h. of electives, which include a focus area. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The major in gender, women's, and sexuality studies requires the following course work.

UNDERGRADUATE CORE

The undergraduate core consists of six courses (17 s.h.). Two introductory courses (131:010 Introduction to Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies and 131:055 Gender, Race, and Class in the U.S.) are prerequisites for all other courses in the major; they orient students to the major conceptual areas that constitute GWSS as an interdisciplinary field. Gender, Race, and Class in the U.S. (131:055) introduces basic issues of race, class, and gender systems in the United States and provides a foundation for the major. The practicum (131:105 Women's Studies Practicum) reflects the importance of community needs and current social issues in framing questions of gender and sexuality studies scholarship and in assessing the usefulness of relevant research. Students take 131:199 Senior Research Seminar during their last semester.

The undergraduate core includes the following course work.

All of these:

131:010 Introduction to Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies

3 s.h.

131:055 Gender, Race, and Class in the U.S.

3 s.h.

131:105 Women's Studies Practicum (students who took 131:010 before fall 2004 for 4 s.h. need only 1 s.h.)	2-3 s.h.
One GWSS theory course	3 s.h.
One GWSS course with a transnational focus on gender, women, and sexuality	3 s.h.
One of these:
131:198 Honors Senior Thesis (only for honors students)	arr.
131:199 Senior Research Seminar	2-3 s.h.

ELECTIVES

Students choose elective courses from the lists below, in consultation with their advisors. They must complete at least six electives (total of 18 s.h.), earning at least 12 s.h. in upper-level courses. At least one elective course must focus on the experience of minority or ethnic populations in the United States.

In choosing electives, students are encouraged to pursue a course of study that emphasizes both breadth and depth. Students should choose at least three or four courses in a focus area in which they would like to gain deeper knowledge. The area may be within a specific discipline, such as literature, anthropology, or history; this is especially useful for students pursuing double majors. Students may count up to three courses they have taken to complete a second major toward the GWSS major.

The focus area need not be limited to a traditional discipline. Students may seek more specialized education in fields such as sexuality studies or international issues. Breadth also is important; advisors direct students who have taken several courses in one focus area to take additional electives in another focus area.

Students may request permission to use upper-level courses not listed below. At least half of the courses's content and requirements must focus on gender and/or sexuality. For information on requesting permission to use a course not listed here, contact the GWSS undergraduate advisor.

Minority or ethnic population electives--at least one of these:

131:159/032:158/149:158 Native American Women and Religious Change	3 s.h.
131:163 U.S. Minority Women Writers	3 s.h.

154:071/032:071 Sexual Ethics	3 s.h.
154:145/034:135 Sociology of Sexuality	3 s.h.
154:184/129:184/16A:184 Black Global Metropolis: Sexual History	3 s.h.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The Four-Year Graduation Plan is not available for the major in gender, women's, and sexuality studies. Students work with their advisors to develop individual graduation plans.

Honors

Qualified students may earn a bachelor's degree with honors in gender, women's, and sexuality studies. Honors students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in GWSS course work and a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33. An honors thesis is required.

Soon after beginning work toward the major, a departmental honors student must select an upper-level course in which he or she will do preliminary research for the honors thesis; the course must count toward requirements for the GWSS major and may be a classroom experience or the practicum. The student must inform the course's instructor of his or her intent to develop an honors project in the course so that the instructor may provide guidance to the student and, at the instructor's discretion, may adjust the student's course assignments in order to help the student prepare for the honors thesis.

After completing the preliminary research, students enroll in 131:198 Honors Senior Thesis. The course guides them through the process of formulating a topic and a research plan, conducting research for the thesis, writing up the results, and responding to peer and instructor critique.

For information about honors study at Iowa, contact the University of Iowa Honors Program.

Minor

The minor in gender, women's, and sexuality studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in course work associated with the department, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. For the minor, 100-level courses are considered advanced. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count a maximum of 3 s.h. of work for their major toward the GWSS minor.

The minor must include 131:010 Introduction to Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies. The 12 s.h. of advanced work may include all 100-level courses, or it may include 131:055 Gender, Race, and Class in the U.S. plus 9 s.h. of 100-level courses. The department strongly advises students to include an approved theory course in the minor.

Graduate Program

The department offers the graduate Certificate in Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies. The certificate program is open to University of Iowa graduate students working toward a degree.

Certificate

The graduate Certificate in Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies requires 16 s.h., including a two-course core, several elective courses, and a capstone course (1 s.h.), in which students attend and present their own research at a GWSS conference. Students receive certificate advising from the GWSS director of graduate studies.

The certificate requires the following course work. Students may not use one course to satisfy more than one certificate requirement.

GRADUATE CORE

131:200 Foundations for Feminist Inquiry I	3 s.h.
One approved course on theory of gender, women, or sexuality	3 s.h.

ELECTIVES

Cross-referenced GWSS elective courses 9 s.h.

One of the electives must have a transnational or international focus and one must focus on diversity in the United States. At least one of the electives must be at the 200 level or above. Students may count up to 6 s.h. of elective credit earned in GWSS courses that are cross-referenced with their major department. They may count up to 6 s.h. of elective credit earned in course work taken by distance learning or in the Traveling Scholars Program.

CAPSTONE

One capstone course in which the student attends and presents his or her own research at a GWSS conference 1 s.h.

Admission

University of Iowa graduate students working toward a degree are eligible to earn the graduate Certificate in Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies. Interested students should contact the GWSS director of graduate studies.

General Education Program

Web site: /registrar/catalog/liberalartsandsciences/generaleducationprogram/

All students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences who wish to earn a Bachelor of Arts (B.A.), Bachelor of Science (B.S.), Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.), Bachelor of Liberal Studies (B.L.S.), or Bachelor of Music (B.M.) degree must complete the requirements of the CLAS General Education Program.

Some General Education Program requirements will change for students who enter the University in summer 2011 or later. For more information, visit CLAS Academic Handbook: General Education on the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences web site. Requirements for the fall 2010 and spring 2011 semesters are listed below.

General Education Requirements

There are nine required areas within the General Education Program and 12 different categories of courses. To fulfill the area requirements, students may select from numerous subjects and departments, with all General Education courses providing a foundation in critical thinking, reading, and writing. More advanced General Education courses allow students to pursue a wide range of interests relating to or in addition to their major well into their senior year.

Rhetoric: a minimum of 4 s.h.

Foreign Language: fourth-semester proficiency or the departmental equivalent.

Interpretation of Literature: a minimum of 3 s.h. English majors should select an alternate course from the Humanities area to fulfill this requirement.

Historical Perspectives: a minimum of 3 s.h.

Humanities: a minimum of 3 s.h.

Natural Sciences: a minimum of 7 s.h.; must include one lab.

Quantitative or Formal Reasoning: a minimum of 3 s.h.

Social Sciences: a minimum of 3 s.h.

Distributed General Education: at least 6 s.h., with a minimum of 3 s.h. taken from two different categories listed below:

- Cultural Diversity
- Fine Arts
- Foreign Civilization and Culture
- Health and Physical Activity
- Historical Perspectives
- Humanities
- Social Sciences

ACADEMIC POLICIES PERTAINING TO GENERAL EDUCATION

Students should be aware of all additional academic policies that pertain to the General Education Program. See "General Education Policies and Other Information" later in this Catalog section.

Note: The University accepts credit by examination for some areas of the General Education Program, including AP, CLEP, and IB credit. Visit the Office of Admissions web site for specific information. Transfer credit also may be used to fulfill some areas. Please consult with the Office of Admissions.

Areas and Course Lists

Rhetoric

Rhetoric courses help students to develop skills in speaking, writing, listening, and critical reading, and to build competence in research, analysis, and argumentation. Because these skills are basic to the rest of a student's study in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, students must register for their assigned rhetoric course at their first or second registration, as required, and must continue to enroll in rhetoric until the required courses are completed.

All transfer students, regardless of the number of semester hours they transfer, must fulfill the rhetoric requirement of the General Education Program. The admission degree audit shows The University of Iowa rhetoric requirement that must be completed.

Students required to enroll in English as a Second Language (ESL) classes as a result of their English proficiency evaluation must complete all ESL classes before registration in any rhetoric class. Required ESL courses are prerequisites to rhetoric courses.

RHETORIC COURSE LIST

010:003 Rhetoric	4 s.h.
010:004 Writing and Reading	3 s.h.
010:006 Speaking and Reading	3 s.h.

Foreign Language

Foreign Language courses provide students with speaking, listening, reading, and writing skills in a second language. These courses also provide some knowledge of the culture(s) in which the language is spoken. To fulfill the Foreign Language requirement of the General Education Program, students must:

complete the fourth-year level of a foreign language in high school; or complete the last course in the designated course sequence of an approved foreign language at The University of Iowa, or the equivalent course at another college or university, or during study abroad; or pass an achievement test measuring proficiency in a foreign language equivalent to that usually attained after four semesters of college study.

Proficiency Examinations

Students proficient in a language for which they have received no formal instruction (or formal instruction below the fourth-semester level) may validate their proficiency with an examination.

Students with knowledge of Chinese, French, German, ancient Greek, Japanese, Latin, Russian, or Spanish should take one of the University of Iowa placement examinations. These placement tests help students choose appropriate foreign language courses. Students may use the results of the proficiency examination to fulfill the Foreign Language requirement of the General Education Program if their score on the examination is at the level accepted by the department offering the exam.

Students do not earn semester hours by taking these examinations.

WebCape placement tests in French, German, and Spanish require an additional oral evaluation by the department offering the language.

Placement and proficiency examinations in American Sign Language, Arabic, Croatian, Czech, Hindi, Italian, Korean, Polish, Portuguese, Sanskrit, Swahili, and Uzbek are arranged by contacting the appropriate department.

Students proficient in a language not regularly offered at The University of Iowa visit with CLAS Academic Programs & Services to ask about assessment. In some cases, arrangements can be made for a proficiency evaluation, but evaluations are available only for a limited number of languages. Students may fulfill the Foreign Language requirement of the General Education Program through such an evaluation, but such evaluations do not result in earned semester hours counted toward graduation.

Students proficient in a language for which testing is not available must fulfill the Foreign Language requirement of the General Education Program by another method.

GUIDELINES FOR TAKING PROFICIENCY/PLACEMENT EXAMS

Students proficient in more than one language may take the placement exam in each language.

Students who have been enrolled in a University of Iowa course in a particular language past the deadline for adding courses may not take the placement exam in that language.

Ordinarily, students may take a placement exam in a particular language only once. Students may repeat an exam only if they have had a significant language learning experience outside the classroom since they first took the exam.

Students seeking exceptions to these guidelines should consult with the appropriate department for permission to take the proficiency/placement test.

WHEN A STUDENT'S FIRST LANGUAGE IS NOT ENGLISH

Students who completed secondary school in a language other than English, hold non-immigrant visas, and meet the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences English proficiency requirement may use English to fulfill the Foreign Language requirement of the General Education Program. The English proficiency requirement may be satisfied by:

a score of 600 or above (paper-based) or 280 or above (computer-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL); or successful completion of required English as a Second Language (ESL) courses as determined by an English proficiency evaluation conducted by the Department of Linguistics; or validation of English proficiency by the coordinator of English as a Second Language.

Note: Currently, The University of Iowa also accepts the International English Testing System (IELTS) as certification of English language proficiency for admission of students whose first language is not English; IELTS is accepted as an alternative to TOEFL. IELTS cut-off scores are 6.5 for undergraduate admission and 7.0 for graduate admission, with no subscore lower than 6.0. All students who submit IELTS scores must take the on-campus English Proficiency Evaluation (EPE) prior to their first University of Iowa registration.

Students who completed secondary school (grades 9-12 or 10-12) in English may not use English to fulfill the Foreign Language requirement of the General Education Program. These students must fulfill the Foreign Language requirement of the General Education Program in another way.

Approved General Education Course Sequences

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offers a number of course sequences that can be used to fulfill the Foreign Language requirement of the General Education Program. To avoid duplication or regression, students are advised to consult the appropriate foreign language department before registering.

Courses in Swahili are offered by the Department of French and Italian. The following sequence fulfills the General Education Foreign Language requirement. Each of these courses is open to first-year entering students.

211:125 Elementary Swahili I	3-4 s.h.
211:126 Elementary Swahili II	3-4 s.h.
211:127 Intermediate Swahili I	3-4 s.h.
211:128 Intermediate Swahili II	3-4 s.h.

Students with previous knowledge of Swahili should consult the Department of French and Italian for placement.

OTHER COURSE SEQUENCES

A student who successfully completes a four-semester foreign language sequence that has not been approved for General Education may have the sequence substitute for a proficiency test and thus fulfill the General Education requirement.

The department offering the sequence should contact Graduation Analysis directly on behalf of the student to have the degree evaluation updated to show completion of the General Education Foreign Language requirement. Departments do not need to notify the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences of the update.

Departments that offer foreign language sequences through the fourth semester of proficiency on a regular basis may want to instruct students on this possible General Education credit by noting it on the appropriate ISIS course description. These departments also should pursue the possibility of General Education status for the foreign language sequence as soon as feasible.

Interpretation of Literature

The skills students develop in Rhetoric classes are expanded in Interpretation of Literature courses. Working in small classes, students focus on the major genres of literature (short and long fiction, poetry, drama) and increase their abilities to read and analyze a variety of texts.

All students must complete an Interpretation of Literature course (3 s.h.) or have equivalent transfer credit or credit by examination. Exception: students who major in English may take a course approved in the Humanities area as a substitute for an Interpretation of Literature course.

INTERPRETATION OF LITERATURE COURSE LIST

08G:001 The Interpretation of Literature	3 s.h.
009:005 Texts and Contexts: French-Speaking World	3 s.h.
009:007 Nature/Ecology French Philosophy and Fiction	3 s.h.

Historical Perspectives

Courses in Historical Perspectives help students understand a period(s) of the past in its(their) own terms; comprehend the historical processes of change and continuity; sharpen their analytical skills in the evaluation of evidence; and develop their ability to generalize, explain, and interpret historical change.

All students must complete at least 3 s.h. of course work approved in this area. Students may use a second 3 s.h. of course work approved in this area to partially fulfill the Distributed General Education requirement of the General Education Program.

HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVES COURSE LIST

01H:005 Western Art and Culture Before 1400	3 s.h.

113:012 Introduction to Prehistory	3 s.h.

Humanities

The Humanities category focuses on the ways in which individuals and cultures have interpreted and understood themselves, others, and the world. Humanities courses may explore the nature and meaning of artistic forms (across the spectrum of the fine arts and literature of the past and present), human values and value systems (including current and historical ideas in philosophy and religion), and other expressions of human aspiration, belief, and creation. The courses teach verbal, analytic, perceptual, and imaginative skills needed to interpret and examine culture, community, identity formation, and the human experience.

All students must complete at least 3 s.h. of course work approved in this area. Students may use a second 3 s.h. of course work approved in this area to partially fulfill the Distributed General Education requirement of the General Education Program.

Natural Sciences

Courses in the Natural Sciences area explore the scope and major concepts of a scientific discipline. Students learn the attitudes and practices of scientific investigators: logic, precision, experimentation, tentativeness, and objectivity. In courses with a laboratory component, students gain experience in the methods of scientific inquiry.

All students must complete at least 7 s.h. of course work approved in this area, including at least one course with a lab component.

NATURAL SCIENCES COURSE LIST

Effective fall 2007, the Department of Biological Sciences reintroduced 002:040 Biology of the Brain as a 3 s.h. nonlaboratory course without prerequisites and approved for the Natural Sciences area. It is not accepted for the major in biology.

Effective fall 2007, 002:145 Introduction to Neurobiology is no longer approved for the Natural Sciences area, but it continues as a 3 s.h. course for upper-level undergraduates with 002:010 and 002:011 as prerequisites. It is accepted for the major in biology. Students who are taking and who will take 002:145 Introduction to Neurobiology before Fall 2007 and wish to repeat it for a second-grade-only option should enroll in 002:40 Biology of the Brain. Students who take 002:040 Biology of the Brain in fall 2007 or later are charged with duplication if they took 002:145 Introduction to Neurobiology before fall 2007.

Courses with a lab component are noted (lab).

002:001 Introduction to Botany (lab)	4 s.h.
002:002 Introductory Animal Biology (lab)	4 s.h.
002:010 Principles of Biology I (lab)	4 s.h.
002:011 Principles of Biology II (lab)	4 s.h.
002:021 Human Biology (lab)	4 s.h.
002:022 Ecology and Evolution	3 s.h.
002:040 Biology of the Brain	3 s.h.
002:081 Human Genetics in the Twenty-First Century	3 s.h.

002:095 Plants and Human Affairs	2-3 s.h.
004:005 Technology and Society	3 s.h.
004:006 Technology and Society Laboratory (lab)	1 s.h.
004:007 General Chemistry I	3 s.h.
004:008 General Chemistry II	3 s.h.
004:011 Principles of Chemistry I (lab)	4 s.h.
004:012 Principles of Chemistry II (lab)	4 s.h.
004:016 Principles of Chemistry Lab (lab)	2 s.h.
004:018 Chemical Science I	3 s.h.
004:019 Chemical Science II	3 s.h.
004:020 Chemical Science Laboratory (lab)	2 s.h.
012:003 Earth History and Resources (with lab 4 s.h.; without lab 3 s.h.)	3-4 s.h.
012:004 Evolution and the History of Life (with a lab 4 s.h.; without lab 3 s.h.)	3-4 s.h.
012:005 Introduction to Geology (lab)	4 s.h.
012:007 Age of Dinosaurs (lab)	4 s.h.
012:008/159:008 Introduction to Environmental Science (with lab 4 s.h.; without lab 3 s.h.)	3-4 s.h.
012:009/159:009 Introduction to Environmental Sciences Laboratory	1 s.h.
012:114 Energy and the Environment	3 s.h.
012:140 Natural Hazards	3 s.h.
027:053 Human Anatomy	3 s.h.
027:130 Human Physiology	3 s.h.
029:002 Nanoscience	3 s.h.
029:003 From Quarks to Quasars (with lab 4 s.h.; without lab 3 s.h.)	3-4 s.h.
029:006 Physics of Everyday Experience	3 s.h.
029:008 Basic Physics (with lab 4 s.h.; without lab 3 s.h.)	3-4 s.h.
029:011 College Physics I (lab)	4 s.h.
029:012 College Physics II (lab)	4 s.h.
029:027 Physics I (lab)	4 s.h.
029:028 Physics II (lab)	4 s.h.
029:044 Physics of Sound (with lab 4 s.h.; without lab 3 s.h.)	3-4 s.h.
029:050 Stars, Galaxies, and the Universe (with lab 4 s.h.; without lab 3 s.h.)	3-4 s.h.
029:051 Introductory Astronomy Laboratory (lab)	1 s.h.
029:052 Exploration of the Solar System	3 s.h.
029:053 Life in the Universe	3 s.h.
029:061 General Astronomy I (lab)	4 s.h.
029:062 General Astronomy II (lab)	4 s.h.
029:081 Introductory Physics I (lab)	4 s.h.
029:082 Introductory Physics II (with lab 4 s.h.; without lab 3 s.h.)	3-4 s.h.
029:084 Introductory Physics II Lab (lab)	1 s.h.
044:003 Introduction to Earth Systems Science (lab)	4 s.h.
113:013 Human Origins	3 s.h.
143:070 Honors Seminar in Natural Sciences	3 s.h.

Quantitative or Formal Reasoning

Courses in the Quantitative or Formal Reasoning area help develop analytical skills through the practice of quantitative or formal symbolic reasoning. Courses focus on presentation and evaluation of evidence and argument; understanding the use and misuse of data; and organization of information in quantitative or other formal symbolic systems, including those used in computer science, linguistics, mathematics, philosophy, and statistics.

All students must complete at least 3 s.h. of course work approved in this area. Students may fulfill this requirement of the General Education Program by completing a course that lists an approved course as a prerequisite.

QUANTITATIVE OR FORMAL REASONING COURSE LIST

Effective fall 2006, the Department of Mathematics removed 22M:011 from the list of courses approved in the Quantitative or Formal Reasoning area.

22C:005 Introduction to Computer Science	3 s.h.
22C:016 Computer Science I: Fundamentals	4 s.h.
22M:006 Logic of Arithmetic	3 s.h.

22M:009 Elementary Functions	4 s.h.
22M:010 Finite Mathematics	4 s.h.
22M:012 Theory of Arithmetic	3 s.h.
22M:013 Mathematics for Business	4 s.h.
22M:015 Mathematics for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:016 Calculus for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business	4 s.h.
22M:025 Calculus I	4 s.h.
22M:031 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus	4 s.h.
22S:002 Statistics and Society	3 s.h.
22S:008 Statistics for Business	4 s.h.
22S:025/07P:025 Elementary Statistics and Inference	3 s.h.
22S:030 Statistical Methods and Computing	3 s.h.
026:036 Principles of Reasoning: Argument and Debate	3 s.h.
033:060 Scientific Reasoning	3 s.h.
036:017 Theory and Practice of Argument	4 s.h.
103:013 Language and Formal Reasoning	3 s.h.
143:080 Honors Seminar in Quantitative and Formal Reasoning	3 s.h.

Social Sciences

Courses in the Social Sciences area focus on human behavior and the institutions and social systems that shape and are shaped by that behavior. Courses provide an overview of one or more social science disciplines, their theories, and methods.

All students must complete at least 3 s.h. of course work approved in this area. Students may use a second 3 s.h. of course work approved in this area to partially fulfill the Distributed General Education requirement of the General Education Program.

SOCIAL SCIENCES COURSE LIST

003:117/103:172 Psychology of Language	3 s.h.
003:118/103:176 Language Development	3 s.h.
06E:001 Principles of Microeconomics	4 s.h.
06E:002 Principles of Macroeconomics	4 s.h.
019:090 Media Uses and Effects	3 s.h.
019:095 Media and Consumers	3 s.h.
030:001 Introduction to American Politics	3 s.h.
030:030 Introduction to Political Thought and Political Action	3 s.h.
030:041 Introduction to the Politics of Russia and Eurasia	3 s.h.
030:043 Introduction to Politics in the Muslim World	3 s.h.
030:045 Introduction to Comparative Politics	3 s.h.
030:050 Introduction to Political Behavior	3 s.h.
030:060 Introduction to International Relations	3 s.h.
030:061 Introduction to American Foreign Policy	3 s.h.
030:070 Introduction to Political Communication	3 s.h.
030:140 Government and Politics of Europe	3 s.h.
031:001 Elementary Psychology	3 s.h.
031:013 Introduction to Clinical Psychology	3 s.h.
031:014 Introduction to Developmental Science	3 s.h.
031:016 Introduction to Cognitive Psychology	3 s.h.
034:001 Introduction to Sociology Principles	3-4 s.h.
034:002 Social Problems	3-4 s.h.
034:020 Principles of Social Psychology	3-4 s.h.
036:070 Communication Theory in Everyday Life	3 s.h.
036:074 Media and Society	3 s.h.
044:001 Introduction to Human Geography	4 s.h.
044:010 The Contemporary Global System	4 s.h.
044:011 Population Geography	3 s.h.
044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues	3 s.h.

044:030 The Global Economy	3 s.h.
044:161 African Development	3 s.h.

113:113 Human Impacts on the Environment	3 s.h.
113:116 Urban Anthropology	3 s.h.
129:060 Introduction to African American Society	3 s.h.
143:060 Honors Seminar in Social Sciences	3 s.h.
153:108/042:108/096:108/169:108 Basic Aspects of Aging	3 s.h.
169:070 Perspectives on Leisure and Play	3 s.h.

Cultural Diversity

Cultural Diversity courses foster greater understanding of the diversity of cultures in the United States and provide knowledge and critical understanding of these cultures. Most courses focus on one or more nondominant cultures or peoples of the United States. Some courses include comparative study with cultures outside the United States, but the primary focus is on the U.S. experience.

Students may use 3 s.h. of course work approved in this area to partially fulfill the Distributed General Education requirement of the General Education Program.

CULTURAL DIVERSITY COURSE LIST

01H:003 Art of Pre-Columbian America, Native America, and Oceania	3 s.h.
01H:104 American Indian Art	3 s.h.
07B:154 Education, Race, and Ethnicity	2-3 s.h.
07B:180 Human Relations for the Classroom Teacher	3 s.h.
08G:005/149:005 Literatures of Native American Peoples	3 s.h.
08G:011 Literature and Sexualities	3 s.h.
016:040 Perspectives: Diversity in American History	3 s.h.
16A:065/129:065 Introduction to African American History	3 s.h.
16A:112 Mexican American History	3 s.h.

Foreign Civilization and Culture

Foreign Civilization and Culture courses provide students with knowledge about one or more foreign civilizations, cultures, or societies outside of the United States. Courses are designed to stimulate students' interest in further study of foreign civilizations, cultures, and societies and to foster international and intercultural understanding.

Students may use 3 s.h. of course work approved in this area to partially fulfill the Distributed General Education requirement of the General Education Program.

FOREIGN CIVILIZATION AND CULTURE COURSE LIST

01H:005 Western Art and Culture Before 1400	3 s.h.
01H:006 Western Art and Culture After 1400	3 s.h.
01H:008 Themes in Global Art	3 s.h.
01H:016/039:016 Asian Art and Culture	3 s.h.
08G:014/129:008 Literatures of the African Peoples	3 s.h.
009:113 French Civilization	3 s.h.
009:114 French Civilization	3 s.h.
009:147/048:105 French Cinema	3-4 s.h.

Health and Physical Activity

Health and Physical Activity courses help students acquire knowledge and skills that are conducive to good health and well-being.

Students may use 3 s.h. of course work approved in this area to partially fulfill the Distributed General Education requirement of the General Education Program.

HEALTH AND PHYSICAL ACTIVITY COURSE LIST

Courses with prefix 28S meet for eight weeks and are graded satisfactory/fail only. In order to remove incompletes or use the second-grade-only option, students must complete or retake the same activity or sport at the same level, regardless of when the course was originally taken.

027:020 Alcohol and Your College Experience	1 s.h.
027:021 Tobacco and Your College Experience	1 s.h.
027:022 Resiliency and Your College Experience	1 s.h.
027:035 Stress Management	3 s.h.
027:039 Physical Activity and Health	3 s.h.
28S:006 Core Strengthening	1 s.h.
28S:007 Aerobics: Low Impact	1 s.h.
28S:009 Aquatic Exercise	1 s.h.
28S:011 Badminton I	1 s.h.
28S:020 Fitness Walking	1 s.h.
28S:021 Flexibility	1 s.h.
28S:023 Golf	1 s.h.
28S:025 Hatha Yoga	1 s.h.
28S:029 Jogging I: Beginners	1 s.h.
28S:030 Jogging II	1 s.h.
28S:031 Karate I	1 s.h.
28S:033 Kick Boxing I	1 s.h.
28S:037 Lap Swimming I	1 s.h.
28S:038 Lap Swimming II	1 s.h.

28S:064 Swimming II	1 s.h.
28S:066 Table Tennis	1 s.h.

28S:071 Tennis I	1 s.h.
28S:075 Ultimate Frisbee	1 s.h.
28S:077 Volleyball I	1 s.h.
28S:078 Volleyball II	1 s.h.
28S:081 Weight Training I	1 s.h.
28S:082 Weight Training II	1 s.h.
169:045 Health for Living	3 s.h.

General Education Policies and Other Information

P/N, S/F, S/U Graded Course Work

Students may not choose the pass/nonpass (P/N) grading option for courses they wish to use to complete the General Education Program. Courses approved for General Education may be taken P/N only when they are to be used as elective semester hours.

Only under special circumstances will courses approved for S/F or S/U grading be approved for General Education. The Educational Policy Committee and the General Education Curriculum Committee must approve S/F or S/U grading for a course approved for General Education.

(See more information on P/N and S/F or S/U in the Grading section of the Student Academic Handbook.)

MAJORS, MINORS, CERTIFICATES, AND THE GENERAL EDUCATION PROGRAM

Students may use courses approved for General Education that are offered by their major departments to complete the General Education Program, and they may use the same course to satisfy a requirement of the major and to complete the General Education Program. Students may use course work they will apply toward earning a minor to complete the General Education Program. Course work used to complete a certificate program also may be used to complete the General Education Program. However, see "No More Than Three Courses from One Department" below.

NO MORE THAN THREE COURSES FROM ONE DEPARTMENT

Students may use no more than three courses from any one department in completing the General Education Program. Courses taken to fulfill the foreign language requirement of the General Education Program are excluded from this rule.

REPEATABLE COURSES

Courses that may be repeated for credit may be approved in any General Education area. Students may use more than one repeatable course in completing the General Education Program; however, students may use only 3 s. h. of credit from any one repeatable course in completing the General Education Program.

COURSES APPROVED IN MORE THAN ONE AREA

A course may be approved in more than one General Education area. Students may use a course to fulfill any requirement of the General Education Program for which it is approved, but may not use a single course in more than one area in completing the General Education Program.

COURSES APPROVED FOR HONORS CREDIT

Students who are admitted as honors students or who join the Honors Program may enroll in special honors sections of courses approved for General Education. The Honors Program also offers some honors seminars that are approved for General Education, which students may use to complete the General Education Program.

COURSES IN COMMON

Entering first-year students may enroll in Courses in Common, a program that offers the opportunity to take three courses approved for General Education with the same group of students.

STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES

Students with documented learning disabilities or physical disabilities may need accommodation in order to complete the General Education Program. Accommodations are arranged by Student Disability Services in consultation with instructors, departments, and CLAS Academic Programs & Services. Please visit with Student Disability Services as soon as acceptance of admission to Iowa has been made.

TRANSFER COURSES, CREDIT BY EXAMINATION, AND THE GENERAL EDUCATION PROGRAM

Students may use transfer course work and credit earned through examinations to complete the General Education Program. Transfer credit is evaluated by the Office of Admissions, and courses accepted for completion of the General Education Program are shown on the degree evaluation.

Students may use credit earned by examination, including Advanced Placement Program (AP), College Level Examination Program (CLEP), and International Baccalaureate (IB) tests to complete the General Education Program. For AP, CLEP, and IB exam equivalencies, see Credit by Exam on the Office of Admissions web site.

The University's Foreign Language Placement Test may be used to fulfill the foreign language requirement of the General Education Program.

STUDENTS WITH DEGREES FROM TWO-YEAR INSTITUTIONS

Transfer students with an A.A. degree and a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 from a two-year institution that has an articulation agreement with the University will enter the University having fulfilled all of the General Education Program requirements (except foreign language) for the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and Education.

If a student completes an associate degree other than an A.A. or if the A.A. is from a college that does not have an articulation agreement with the University, credits will be evaluated course-by-course to determine how they will transfer.

Students with specific questions about their courses and how they transfer to The University of Iowa should contact the Office of Admissions.

Geography is concerned with place and environment and the ongoing processes of change within and between social and physical systems. Geography's importance to scholarly inquiry is rooted in the complexity of the social and environmental problems with which the science deals. Three concepts at the core of the discipline--space, place, and scale--provide theoretical constructs and methodological tools for a science that investigates the complex character of social and environmental phenomena.

Geographers examine issues such as distribution and consumption of natural resources, air and water quality, climate changes and ecosystem dynamics, growth and development of urban areas, population dynamics, politics and practice of international development, and social justice. They view society and the environment as a physical/social/cultural system. They apply uniquely geographical perspectives and tools, as well as knowledge from other social and scientific disciplines, to analyze the emergent properties of these systems.

Department of Geography graduates find employment opportunities in government, nongovernmental organizations, and business. For example, many geographers are employed in resource management, urban and regional development, site selection, and market area analysis. They analyze problems in the distribution and interactions among physical, ecological, social, and political systems.

Geography students acquire skills in computer-based cartography and geographic information systems (GIS) software used to investigate and solve many environmental and social problems. Opportunities for graduates with GIS training are growing rapidly in both private and governmental organizations.

The geography faculty has developed an undergraduate instructional program that serves students majoring or minoring in geography as well as students in other disciplines who are interested in taking geography courses as part of a liberal education. Courses in geography are commonly required of students preparing to teach at the elementary and secondary school levels and those who want to pursue careers in urban and regional planning. They also provide a background for many related professions, including law, health care, environmental or transportation engineering, and international business.

The University's Geographic Information System Instructional Lab (GISIL) is located in the Department of Geography; see "Facilities, Resources" later in this Catalog section.

The department also participates in the University's internship program for students; see "Internships" later in this Catalog section.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Science, a Bachelor of Arts, and a minor in geography.

The department participates in a number of University interdisciplinary programs that have international, area studies, urban, or environmental components. Undergraduate students have access to the Geographic Information System Instructional Lab for GIS instruction and research.

Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Science in geography requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 45-49 s.h. of work for the major, depending on choice of track. The Bachelor of Arts in geography requires a total of 120 s.h., including at least 37-41 s.h. of work for the major, depending on choice of track. Either program is appropriate preparation for advanced training or careers in geography. Students with strong interest in quantitative analysis and model building should pursue the B.S. and are encouraged to master an appropriate computer programming language.

All students take a common set of foundation courses and complete the requirements for one of four tracks: geography and social change, environmental studies, geographic information science, or sustainability. B.S. students take additional mathematics course work.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Transfer students majoring in geography must earn a minimum of 15 s.h. for the major in residence at The University of Iowa. Consistent with the CLAS maximum hours rule, students may count no more than 50 s.h. earned in their major department toward graduation.

Common Requirements

All geography majors must complete the following courses.

All of these:

044:001 Introduction to Human Geography	4 s.h.
044:003 Introduction to Earth Systems Science	4 s.h.
044:005 Foundations of GIS	3 s.h.

One of these, in addition to any course required to fulfill a track requirement:

044:010 The Contemporary Global System	4 s.h.
044:011 Population Geography	3 s.h.
044:015 Introduction to Political Geography	3 s.h.
044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues	3 s.h.
044:030 The Global Economy	3 s.h.
044:035 World Cities	3 s.h.

One of these:

044:109 Introduction to Geographic Visualization	3 s.h.
044:110 GIS for Environmental Studies: Introduction	3 s.h.
044:112 Mapping American Cities and Regions	3 s.h.
044:180 Field Methods in Physical Geography	3 s.h.
044:181 Field Methods: Mapping and Mobile Computing	3 s.h.

One of these:

044:150 Senior Project Seminar	3 s.h.
044:151 Senior Thesis	3 s.h.

STATISTICS FOR THE BACHELOR OF ARTS

Bachelor of Arts students must complete a minimum of 3 s.h. in statistics by taking one of the following courses or a statistics course equivalent to or numbered above one of these.

07P:143/22S:102 Introduction to Statistical Methods	3 s.h.
22S:008 Statistics for Business	4 s.h.
22S:025/07P:025 Elementary Statistics and Inference	3 s.h.
22S:039 Probability and Statistics for the Engineering and Physical Sciences	3 s.h.
22S:101 Biostatistics	3 s.h.
22S:130 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics I	3 s.h.
22S:131 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics II	3 s.h.

STATISTICS FOR THE BACHELOR OF SCIENCE

Bachelor of Science students must complete a minimum of 3 s.h. in statistics by taking one of the following courses or a statistics course equivalent to or numbered above one of these.

07P:143/22S:102 Introduction to Statistical Methods	3 s.h.
22S:130 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics I	3 s.h.
22S:131 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics II	3 s.h.

ADDITIONAL BACHELOR OF SCIENCE REQUIREMENT

Bachelor of Science students must satisfy a mathematics requirement consisting of one of the following sequences.

22M:015-22M:016 Mathematics for the Biological Sciences - Calculus for the Biological Sciences	8 s.h.
--	--------

22M:025-22M:026 Calculus I-II	8 s.h.
22M:031-22M:032 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus - Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus	8 s.h.

Tracks

All geography majors must complete one of the four tracks described below: geography and social change, environmental studies, geographic information science, or sustainability. Students should pay close attention to prerequisites for the upper-level courses in each track so that they can develop a study plan that allows them to complete their major in a timely way. Students in the environmental studies or geography and social change tracks who wish to gain additional experience in theory and application of geographic information systems (GIS) should take 044:113 Principles of Geographical Information Systems and at least an additional 6 s.h. in GIS-based courses offered by the Department of Geography.

GEOGRAPHY AND SOCIAL CHANGE TRACK

The geography and social change track requires a minimum of 15 s.h. It is designed for students preparing for positions in government, nongovernment organizations, international development agencies, and business. It also provides preparation for graduate study in geography or planning, or for professional programs such as law, business, or policy analysis. The track provides an understanding of increasing globalization, including processes of urban and regional development or underdevelopment; the roles of elites, classes, institutions, and social movements; the role of the natural environment in effecting social change in different parts of the world; and the processes through which policy decisions are reached. Course work in the track covers social and economic theories of location and regional formation, methods of spatial analysis and geographic modeling, global and regional political economy, and theories of community conflict and social change.

Students develop requisite skills in quantitative analysis and the development, management, and application of geographic information systems and computer methods. They have opportunities to work on applied problems, such as assessing sites for their growth potential, identifying the best locations for service facilities, evaluating the impact of major projects, and forecasting the populations of small areas. The geography and social change track also provides opportunities for students interested in international development to examine competing theories intended to explain international and regional inequalities, and to investigate and evaluate the patterns and practice of development worldwide.

In addition to satisfying the common requirements for all geography majors, students in the geography and social change track must complete the following.

044:010 The Contemporary Global System	4 s.h.
Upper-level geography courses	11 s.h.

Students choose the upper-level courses (11 s.h.) in consultation with their advisors. They may not count 044:150 Senior Project Seminar or the independent study courses 044:151 Senior Thesis, 044:195 Undergraduate Research, and 044:199 Honors Thesis toward this requirement. Students in the geography and social change track who wish to gain additional experience in theory and application of geographic information systems (GIS) should take 044:113 Principles of Geographical Information Systems and at least an additional 6 s.h. in GIS-based geography courses.

The following upper-level courses are recommended.

044:104 Environment and Development	3 s.h.
044:131 Geography of Health	2-3 s.h.
044:133 Transportation Economics	3 s.h.
044:135 Urban Geography	3 s.h.
044:137 Health and Environment: GIS Applications	3 s.h.
044:139 Spatial Analysis and Location Models	3 s.h.
044:164 The Middle East	3 s.h.
044:170 Geography of Justice	3 s.h.
044:177 Environmental Justice	3 s.h.
044:178 Consequences of Global Environmental Change	3 s.h.
044:181 Field Methods: Mapping and Mobile Computing (a course chosen to fulfill one requirement cannot be used to fulfill a second)	3 s.h.
044:194 Geographic Perspectives on Development	3 s.h.

ENVIRONMENTAL STUDIES TRACK

The environmental studies track requires a minimum of 15 s.h. It is designed for students interested in the interrelationships among social and natural processes that affect the environment. The track prepares students for careers or pursuit of personal interests in resource management, physical geography, climatology, environmental policy or law, global environmental change, sustainable development, or other complex environmental issues. Graduates may find employment in an environmental profession such as landscape ecology or climatology; environmental planning and regulation; or environmental law, policy, and politics.

The environmental studies track offers training in field observation, remote sensing, geographical information systems, quantitative analysis/computing, and cartographic representation. It also provides a sound foundation for graduate or professional-level studies in the natural or social aspects of the environment.

In addition to satisfying the common requirements for all geography majors, students in environmental studies track must complete the following.

044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues	3 s.h.
Upper-level geography courses	12 s.h.

Students choose the upper-level courses (12 s.h.) in consultation with their advisors. They may not count 044:150 Senior Project Seminar or the independent study courses 044:151 Senior Thesis, 044:195 Undergraduate Research, and 044:199 Honors Thesis toward this requirement. Students in the environmental studies track who wish to gain additional experience in theory and application of geographic information systems (GIS) should take 044:110 GIS for Environmental Studies: Introduction or 044:128 GIS for Environmental Studies: Applications, and at least an additional 6 s.h. in GIS-based geography courses.

The following upper-level courses are recommended.

044:101 Climatology	3 s.h.
044:103 Biogeography	3 s.h.
044:104 Environment and Development	3 s.h.
044:105 Introduction to Environmental Remote Sensing	3 s.h.
044:123 Landscape Ecology	3 s.h.
044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis	4 s.h.
044:126 Wetlands: Function, Geography, and Management	3 s.h.
044:127 Environmental Quality: Science, Technology, and Policy	3 s.h.
044:128 GIS for Environmental Studies: Applications	3 s.h.
044:131 Geography of Health	2-3 s.h.
044:137 Health and Environment: GIS Applications	3 s.h.
044:141 Introduction to Geographic Databases	3 s.h.
044:145 Applications in Environmental Remote Sensing	4 s.h.
044:170 Geography of Justice	3 s.h.
044:178 Consequences of Global Environmental Change	3 s.h.
044:180 Field Methods in Physical Geography (a course chosen to fulfill one requirement cannot be used to fulfill a second)	2-4 s.h.

GEOGRAPHIC INFORMATION SCIENCE TRACK

The geographic information science track requires a minimum of 14 s.h. It is designed for students preparing for positions in government agencies, nongovernment organizations, international development agencies, and business. It also provides preparation for graduate study in geography, planning, and other disciplines. The track focuses on the design, implementation, and use of geographic information systems. Courses address how geographic data are acquired, stored, accessed, displayed, managed, and analyzed.

Students in the geographic information science track learn to address problems involved in modeling environmental systems, identifying the best locations for service facilities, assessing environmental impacts, and forecasting the populations of small areas. They use the department's Geographic Information Systems Instructional Lab (GISIL) extensively to develop expertise in using GIS software.

Course work in the track covers methods of spatial analysis and geographical modeling and involves database management and computer programming.

In addition to the common requirements for all geography majors, students in the geographic information science track must complete the following.

22C:005 Introduction to Computer Science	3 s.h.
or
22C:016 Computer Science I: Fundamentals	4 s.h.
Upper-level geography courses	11 s.h.

Students choose the upper-level courses (11 s.h.) in consultation with their advisors. They may not count 044:150 Senior Project Seminar or the independent study courses 044:151 Senior Thesis, 044:195 Undergraduate Research, and 044:199 Honors Thesis toward this requirement. Students in the GIScience track are encouraged to add breadth to their degree by taking additional upper-level courses in the department. Students interested in the application of GIS to environmental issues should select courses from the department's environmental studies area; those interested in socioeconomic issues should select courses from the department's geography and social change area.

The following upper-level courses are recommended.

044:105 Introduction to Environmental Remote Sensing	3 s.h.
044:109 Introduction to Geographic Visualization	3 s.h.
044:110 GIS for Environmental Studies: Introduction	3 s.h.
044:112 Mapping American Cities and Regions	3 s.h.
044:113 Principles of Geographical Information Systems	3 s.h.
044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis	4 s.h.
044:127 Environmental Quality: Science, Technology, and Policy	3 s.h.
044:128 GIS for Environmental Studies: Applications	3 s.h.
044:131 Geography of Health	1-3 s.h.
044:137 Health and Environment: GIS Applications	3 s.h.
044:139 Spatial Analysis and Location Models	3 s.h.
044:141 Introduction to Geographic Databases	3 s.h.

SUSTAINABILITY TRACK

The sustainability track requires a minimum of 18 s.h. It is designed for students interested in finding ways for people to live that do not threaten the survival of future generations. It includes training in scientific and social scientific methods and requires students to look at the world on scales ranging from local to global. The sustainability track prepares students to be effective leaders and agents of change for sustainability in varied professions, such as academic researcher and teacher, technology specialist, grassroots advocate, government official, or corporate officer.

In addition to satisfying the common requirements for all geography majors, students in the sustainability track must complete the following courses. They must enroll in 057:013 Introduction to Sustainability for a minimum of 3 s.h.

044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues	3 s.h.
057:013 Introduction to Sustainability (minimum of 3 s.h.)	arr.
Upper-level geography courses (one from each of the groups listed below)	12 s.h.

Students choose the upper-level courses (12 s.h.) in consultation with their advisors. They may not count 044:150 Senior Project Seminar or the independent study courses 044:151 Senior Thesis, 044:195 Undergraduate Research, and 044:199 Honors Thesis toward this requirement.

Environment and Human Health

044:103 Biogeography	3 s.h.
044:123 Landscape Ecology	3 s.h.
044:126 Wetlands: Function, Geography, and Management	3 s.h.
044:131 Geography of Health	1-3 s.h.
044:137 Health and Environment: GIS Applications	3 s.h.

Energy, Climate, and the Built Environment

044:101 Climatology	3 s.h.
---------------------	--------

044:135 Urban Geography	3 s.h.
044:145 Applications in Environmental Remote Sensing	4 s.h.
044:178 Consequences of Global Environmental Change	3 s.h.

Society and Culture

044:104 Environment and Development	3 s.h.
044:170 Geography of Justice	3 s.h.
044:177 Environmental Justice	3 s.h.
044:194 Geographic Perspectives on Development	3 s.h.

Environment and Public Policy

044:110 GIS for Environmental Studies: Introduction	3 s.h.
044:112 Mapping American Cities and Regions	3 s.h.
044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis	4 s.h.
044:127 Environmental Quality: Science, Technology, and Policy	3 s.h.
044:128 GIS for Environmental Studies: Applications	3 s.h.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Bachelor of Arts

The B.A. degree requires 38 s.h. in the major.

Before the third semester begins: one of the introductory courses in the major and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: five courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: 11 courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: 14 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Bachelor of Science

The B.S. degree requires 46 s.h. in the major.

Before the third semester begins: two of the introductory courses in the major and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: six courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: 12 courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: 15 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Honors in geography is for students of superior ability who want to pursue studies beyond the typical undergraduate level. To graduate with honors, students must become a member of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires that students maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). They must be admitted to the honors program in geography by the first semester of the senior year and must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in geography. They also must prepare and present an honors thesis, which consists of original research under the direction of a faculty member. The thesis is reviewed by a three-member faculty committee.

Students complete their thesis by taking 044:199 Honors Thesis. The senior course 044:150 Senior Project Seminar may be substituted for 044:199 Honors Thesis, as long as the student continues work on the thesis under the direction of a faculty member.

Minor

The minor in geography requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in geography courses, including 12 s.h. in 100-level courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students are encouraged to concentrate their course work in tracks--geography and social change, environmental studies, geographic information science, or sustainability (see "Tracks" above). Those who wish assistance in selecting courses may contact the department secretary to request assignment of a minor advisor.

Courses for Nonmajors

Students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences as well as other academic units at the University may find geography courses useful to their own study programs. The beginning-level courses 044:001 Introduction to Human Geography, 044:011 Population Geography, 044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues, and 044:030 The Global Economy are approved for the social sciences component of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program; 044:010 The Contemporary Global System and 044:161 African Development are approved for the social sciences and foreign civilization and culture components of the General Education Program; and 044:003 Introduction to Earth Systems Science is approved for the natural sciences component of the General Education Program. These courses serve as part of a liberal education.

Other courses may be taken as electives, including 044:015 Introduction to Political Geography and 044:035 World Cities.

Graduate Programs

The department offers a Master of Arts and a Doctor of Philosophy in geography. It also administers the geoinformatics subtrack of the graduate Certificate in Informatics; see Informatics in the Catalog (Graduate College).

The department's graduate programs focus on investigating the environmental consequences of human decisions on local, regional, and global scales. Central to the department's studies are geographical information science and the theories and models of environmental and social sciences. Within this broad domain, the department is developing strengths in environmental justice, environmental modeling, land use and its environmental consequences, health geography, and information technology and development.

The M.A. and Ph.D. prepare students to carry on creative and productive research in selected areas of geography. University of Iowa graduates hold positions on college and university faculties, in private research organizations, and in business and government.

The department provides opportunities for graduate students to gain practical teaching experience through service as departmental teaching assistants or graduate instructors.

Graduate students present research papers at conferences and have regularly won awards. Students are involved in faculty research that leads to coauthored publications; they also publish their own. Graduate students compete successfully for intramural and extramural funding for graduate education and research.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in geography requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit and is designed to be completed in four semesters. However, students earn more than the required credit in completing the degree, using the additional work to increase their breadth of knowledge in geography and to tailor their study programs to their individual interests. A maximum of 6 s.h. of thesis credit may be applied toward the degree. Students may complete an M.A. specialization in geographic information science by taking specific course work.

Graduate students demonstrate competence by completing appropriate course work; and completing an M.A. exam, or completing and defending an M.A. thesis, or completing the Ph.D. comprehensive exams.

For detailed information about M.A. requirements, see the Manual for Graduate Degree Requirements, Department of Geography; contact the Department of Geography.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in geography requires 72 s.h. of graduate credit and is designed to be completed in four or five years. The degree prepares students for college and university teaching and for advanced research. It provides study programs that lead to broad knowledge of a field of geography and its literature and to special expertise in a subfield.

Students can enter the Ph.D. program upon completing an undergraduate degree or with advanced standing corresponding to previous graduate education.

All Ph.D. students take the following courses. They take 044:350 Geography Colloquium (1 s.h.) each semester in residence.

044:210 Fundamentals of Geography	3 s.h.
044:211 Research and Writing in Geography	3 s.h.
044:350 Geography Colloquium (taken each semester)	1 s.h.
Two courses in geography numbered above 044:200	6 s.h.
Two research seminars chosen from 044:315 through 044:319 (3 s.h. each)	6 s.h.

Before students can be admitted to candidacy for the Ph.D., they must submit an original research paper to a faculty committee for approval. Students who complete an M.A. or M.S. thesis can submit it to fulfill this requirement. Before taking the comprehensive examination, which consists of both written and oral components, each student must submit an area review paper to his or her Ph.D. committee. This paper, which must be approved by the student's Ph.D. advisor, consists of a critical review of research in the student's concentration area.

The comprehensive examination covers the student's concentration area and his or her general field in the discipline. After obtaining the dissertation supervisor's approval, the student submits a dissertation proposal to the dissertation committee for critical comments and approval. The student then must complete and defend the dissertation.

For detailed information about Ph.D. requirements, see the Manual for Graduate Degree Requirements, Department of Geography; contact the Department of Geography.

Admission

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

A bachelor's degree in geography is not required for admission to graduate study in geography, but applicants must have an undergraduate background relevant to the field. Strength in social or environmental science and interest in exploring the regional and spatial perspectives that characterize modern geography are important in admission decisions. Depending on their prior training, graduate students may be required to take courses that are prerequisites for course work in their chosen area of graduate study; credit earned in prerequisites does not count toward the graduate degree.

Application materials include an undergraduate transcript with grade-point average, scores on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test, three letters of recommendation, and an essay in which the applicant states his or her reasons for wanting to study geography at The University of Iowa.

Applicants whose first language is not English must take the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). Their scores must be sent to the University's Office of Admissions.

New graduate students whose first language is not English are required to take the Speaking Proficiency English Assessment Kit (SPEAK) test when they arrive at the University; eventually they take the English Language Performance Test (ELPT). Students must be fully certified by the ELPT before they begin their fourth semester in order to be considered for funding in succeeding semesters. Students who do not pass the SPEAK test and ELPT are required to take Teaching Assistant Preparation in English (TAPE) courses until they have achieved proficiency in spoken English.

Financial Support

A number of graduate teaching and research assistantships are available. In addition, outstanding applicants and underrepresented minorities are eligible for several fellowships. Awards are based on merit. In making awards, the department pays particular attention to grade-point average, especially for the junior and senior years; score on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test; letters of recommendation; and fit of the student's objectives with department specializations. Applications for graduate appointments must be received by February 1. Applications for fellowships are due by January 15.

Internships

The Department of Geography is a participant in the University's internship program, which provides opportunities for both undergraduate and graduate students to participate in paid and unpaid activities related to their academic programs. The Pomerantz Career Center works with students to develop appropriate internships.

Facilities, Resources

The department houses three geographic information computational laboratories, which support a variety of GIS software packages, including the latest software from ESRI (ArcGIS) and Erdas (Imagine).

The University's Geographic Information Systems Instructional Lab (GISIL) is located in the Department of Geography. The lab is a center for teaching GIS as well as a place where students conduct geographic and GIS-related research. It is equipped with 20 networked student workstations, instructional support technology (e.g., CRT projection), and a suite of peripherals.

Environmental modeling and GIS research laboratories contain state-of-the-art machines. The department provides Windows and Linux platforms, digitizers, scanners, plotters, and printers. Projects requiring massive storage have access to the advanced GIS and modeling facility in the Center for Global and Regional Environmental Research. The University of Iowa is a charter member of Internet2, with a high-performance network link to the Department of Geography. The University also is a member of the University Consortium on Geographic Information Science.

To aid studies of water resources and physical geography, the department has a laboratory for analysis of vegetation, sediment, soil, water quality, and tree rings, and a variety of field equipment, including portable meteorological stations and data loggers.

Faculty and graduate students participate in multidisciplinary working groups through the University's Program in Applied Mathematical and Computational Sciences, Center for Global and Regional Environmental Research, Center for Health Effects of Environmental Contamination, International Programs, Institute for Rural and Environmental Health, Iowa Quaternary Studies Group, and Public Policy Center.

The University's Main Library has a collection of more than 115,500 maps, 3,600 atlases and reference works, and around 100,000 aerial photographs, primarily of Iowa.

Geography Courses

Primarily for Undergraduates

044:001 Introduction to Human Geography 4 s.h.

Application of geographic principles to contemporary social, economic, and political problems; urban growth; problems of the ghetto; diffusion of innovations; territoriality and perception. GE: Social Sciences.

044:002 World Regional Geography 3 s.h.

Cultural, economic, political, and environmental context of major world regions within the structure of globalization--East Asia, Southeast Asia, South Asia, the Middle East and North Africa, Sub-Saharan Africa, Eastern Europe and North Asia, Western Europe, Latin America, Anglo America, and Oceania; major trends within and between these culture realms; social, economic, and political processes within the regions; operating globally.

044:003 Introduction to Earth Systems Science 4 s.h.

Elementary principles of physical geography: physics of weather and climate, hydrological systems, geomorphological and geological forces, pedological processes, and ecological processes and patterns; geographic explanation of physical environment, with principles applied to the human use system; environmental pollution and natural hazards. GE: Natural Sciences.

044:005 Foundations of GIS 3 s.h.

Cartography, map analysis, and geographic information systems; map projections and scale; data collection, remote sensing, and GPS; data structures and organization; cartometry; symbolization and visualization.

044:010 The Contemporary Global System 4 s.h.

Problems of the global system and ways to address them; global economy and environment, state and security, social justice and human rights. GE: Foreign Civilization & Culture, Social Sciences.

044:011 Population Geography 3 s.h.

Spatial considerations of population growth and distribution; minorities within a population; poverty; housing; social organization and disorganization; social systems, including education, religion, recreation, medical and social services; diffusion of ideas and traits over space. GE: Social Sciences.

044:015 Introduction to Political Geography 3 s.h.

Emphasis on application of geographical and economic theory in understanding historical development and restructuring of political economies at global, national, and local levels; development of nation states, nationalism, imperialism, geopolitics, economic restructuring, electoral geography.

044:019 Contemporary Environmental Issues 3 s.h.

Political, economic, cultural, technologic, ecological, and ethical issues associated with natural resource and environmental problems, including population, global climate change, food production, tropical deforestation, soil erosion, waste management. GE: Social Sciences.

044:020 Discovery in Geography 3 s.h.

044:029 First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.

Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

044:030 The Global Economy 3 s.h.

Location and spatial organization of the world's major types of economies; agriculture, energy and minerals, manufacturing, transportation; trade and service centers. GE: Social Sciences.

044:035 World Cities 3 s.h.

Urbanization as a process; specific concepts and theories of urbanization through global patterns, regional urban systems, individual metropolitan areas.

044:100 Readings for Undergraduates arr.

Supervised readings in geography.

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students

044:101 Climatology 3 s.h.

Boundary layer processes that drive atmospheric dynamics; exchanges of energy and water at simple and complex surfaces; global climate change records, theories, models; impacts of climate on society. Prerequisites: 044:003. Same as 012:104.

044:103 Biogeography 3 s.h.

Patterns of plant and animal distribution and their interpretation; historical geography, including glaciation, plate tectonics; ecological geography, including physical factors such as climate, geology. Prerequisites: 002:001, or 002:010 and 002:011, or 044:003. Same as 002:103.

044:104 Environment and Development 3 s.h.

Environmental impacts of industrial and rural development explored through Third World case studies (Latin America, Africa, South and East Asia); environmental degradation from perspectives of political economy and ecology; class, gender, and indigenous peoples' issues; industry-agriculture linkages.

044:105 Introduction to Environmental Remote Sensing 3 s.h.

Basic concepts and principles of remote sensing; sources of data; georegistration; digital processing and classification of remotely sensed images for extraction of environmental information; linkage of remote sensing techniques with GIS analysis.

044:106 Foundations of GIS 3 s.h.

Cartography, map analysis, and geographic information systems; map projections and scale; data collection, remote sensing, GPS; data structures and organization; cartometry; symbolization and visualization.

044:109 Introduction to Geographic Visualization

3 s.h.

Basic concepts and techniques that underlie cartographic representation and the broader field of geographic visualization; digital cartographic practices; how scientific visualization, information visualization, and user interface design contribute to geographic visualization; map symbolization, scale and generalization, animation and dynamic map design, multimedia, virtual and mixed environments, interfaces for GIS; experience applying cartographic and visualization techniques. Prerequisites: 044:005.

044:110 GIS for Environmental Studies: Introduction

3 s.h.

Methods of managing and processing geographic information for environmental analysis; basic concepts, structures, theories of geographic information system (GIS), basic analytical techniques, and hands-on experience in GIS operations. Prerequisites: 044:005.

044:112 Mapping American Cities and Regions

3 s.h.

Foundation concepts for GIS-based analysis of urban, social, and economic data for the United States; geo-referenced sources of U.S. national and state data; application to contemporary social issues. Prerequisites: 044:005.

044:113 Principles of Geographical Information Systems

3 s.h.

Issues in establishment of geographic information systems: spatial data encoding, raster-vector options, spatial and attribute resolution, cartographic data models, linkages to spatial analysis procedures, display techniques for decision support, institutional setting. Prerequisites: 044:005.

044:122 Environmental Conservation in the United States

3 s.h.

Varied natural environments of the United States; problems arising from conflicting land uses; consideration of public land use policy, environmental impacts of different land uses, problems of habitat preservation and endangered species. Prerequisites: 044:003 or 044:019.

044:123 Landscape Ecology

3 s.h.

Effects of spatial pattern on spatial processes in ecology; characteristics of matrix, patch, corridor; fragmentation, deforestation, habitat loss; spatial flows of energy, matter, genetic information; relationship to human impact, global climate change. Requirements: 044:103 or a 100-level course in ecology.

044:125 Environmental Impact Analysis

4 s.h.

Environmental impact assessment methodologies; emphasis on cost-benefit-risk, cost-effectiveness and incremental analysis, and overlay and graphic techniques; optimal resource use, system simulation; field trips to local environmental control facilities. Prerequisites: 044:019. Same as 102:125.

044:126 Wetlands: Function, Geography, and Management

3 s.h.

Biotic aspects of water resources production; geographical basis of biophysical processes in drainage basins; spatial aspects of stream ecology; regional characterization of wetland structure and process. Prerequisites: 044:101 or 044:103. Same as 012:126.

044:127 Environmental Quality: Science, Technology, and Policy

3 s.h.

Geographical perspectives in the study and interpretation of chemicals in the environment; environmental standards under existing laws; local, regional, national, international case studies in environment and health; socioeconomic and institutional considerations in designing environmental protection strategies. Prerequisites: 22S:025.

044:128 GIS for Environmental Studies: Applications

3 s.h.

Applications of geographic information system (GIS) techniques in environmental change analysis (especially land use/cover change), environmental assessment, hazard/risk analysis, environmental decision making. Prerequisites: 044:110.

044:131 Geography of Health

1-3 s.h.

Provision of health care in selected countries, with particular reference to the Third World; focus on problems of geographical, economic, cultural accessibility to health services; disease ecology, prospective payment systems, privatization, medical pluralism. Same as 152:131.

044:133 Transportation Economics

3 s.h.

Overview of transportation markets--intercity, rural, urban; transportation modes--rail, highway, air, water, pipeline, transit; issues in finance, policy, planning, management, physical distribution, and environmental, economic, and safety regulation. Prerequisites: 06E:001 and 06E:002. Same as 06E:145, 102:133.

044:134 Health and Environment: GIS and Spatial 3 s.h.

Use of GIS and spatial analysis methods to focus on three areas: handling spatial data, exploratory spatial data analysis, and causality analysis of geographic phenomena.

044:135 Urban Geography 3 s.h.

Central ideas of modern urban geography, their links to social theory; focus on interrelation between social change, urban environment; evolution of urban systems, emergence of the capitalist city, urban social and residential differentiation, local politics of uneven development.

044:136 Planning Livable Cities 3 s.h.

Development of livable cities in the United States; economic, physical, environmental, and political forces that shape their growth; impact of planning, how it shapes the future of cities. Same as 102:101.

044:137 Health and Environment: GIS Applications 3 s.h.

Applications of GIS and spatial analysis for studying health outcomes and exposure to environmental contaminants at different geographical scales. Prerequisites: 044:131 or 044:134.

044:139 Spatial Analysis and Location Models 3 s.h.

Application of location models within GIS environments to support decision making; small area demographic forecasting, location-allocation models, regionalization problems, shortest path models, other spatial analysis methods used to support spatial decisions. Prerequisites: 044:005.

044:141 Introduction to Geographic Databases 3 s.h.

Fundamentals of database design and use for geographic or environmental domains; major database models and how they support geographic data; introduction to SQL for formulating database queries; experience using software for applying key database concepts. Prerequisites: 044:005.

044:142 Simulation in Environmental Geography 3 s.h.

How computer simulations are used in environmental studies, with focus on landscape ecology (spatial patterns of organisms and ecosystems); basics of performing simulations; principles and applications of simulation through readings and performing simulations; frontiers of simulation use in the field; hands-on experience writing computer simulations that capture environmental processes (e.g., changing climate, predator-prey relations, nutrient flux), and analyzing the outcomes. Requirements: advanced courses in environmental geography or environmental science and senior standing.

044:145 Applications in Environmental Remote Sensing 4 s.h.

Theory and practice of remote sensing and digital image processing; practical applications to human-environment interactions. Prerequisites: 044:105.

044:150 Senior Project Seminar 3 s.h.

Development of a research project and preparation of a research report. Offered spring semesters.

044:151 Senior Thesis 3 s.h.

Original research. Requirements: senior standing.

044:161 African Development 3 s.h.

Problems of economic, political, spatial integration in Africa; patterns and processes of economic development and nation building. GE: Foreign Civilization & Culture, Social Sciences.

044:164 The Middle East 3 s.h.

Middle East cultures, political economy, conflict; significance of the Middle East in world affairs, vice versa.

044:170 Geography of Justice 3 s.h.

Geographical analysis of social and environmental justice; justice from various cultural perspectives; cultural struggles over human rights.

044:174 Health, Work, and the Environment

3 s.h.

Current topics in occupational and environmental health; how the United States protects workers, protects people from environmental agents, and reduces environmental harm. Same as 175:101.

044:177 Environmental Justice

3 s.h.

Review of theoretical positions for examining environmental justice, application of those theories to environmental controversies around the globe.

044:178 Consequences of Global Environmental Change

3 s.h.

Physical components of global change, their relationship to environmental policy concerns; consequences manifested on local, regional, international scales. Prerequisites: 044:003 or 159:008, and 044:019.

044:180 Field Methods in Physical Geography

2-4 s.h.

Methods of measuring climate, vegetation, soil, landforms, water; projects in areas including field meteorology, tree-ring sampling, topographic surveying, vegetation sampling, water quality sampling, use of global positioning systems; introduction to research design.

044:181 Field Methods: Mapping and Mobile Computing

3 s.h.

Development and application of mobile geographic information technologies; key issues associated with global positioning systems (GPS), wireless technologies, field-based data collection and analysis, ubiquitous computing, and location-based services; experience using GPS, advanced mobile computing technologies, mobile GIS software to construct geographic datasets, and data sampling techniques.

044:186 Soil Genesis and Geomorphology

3 s.h.

Introduction to soil genesis, soil geomorphology, and classification including the basics of soil profile description and soil-landscape, soil-vegetation, and soil-climate relationships; emphasis on study of soils as the interface between living and non-living Earth systems and the role of soils in sustaining ecosystems and human societies; short field excursions and a weekend field trip. Requirements: college earth science and chemistry. Same as 012:136.

044:188 Applied Geostatistics

3 s.h.

Applications of geostatistical methods to geology, geography, hydrology, environmental sciences, and engineering; variogram, Kriging, analysis of spatial-varied data with varied computer software in participants' specialties. Same as 012:178.

044:194 Geographic Perspectives on Development

3 s.h.

Theoretical and empirical studies of the regional development process, with emphasis on developing countries; alternative regional development theories and changes in development theories in the literature of geography, related disciplines. Requirements: satisfaction of introductory geography and social change requirements.

044:195 Undergraduate Research

arr.

Supervised research in geography.

044:197 Special Topics

arr.

Contemporary fields of inquiry, such as political economy, regional/African development, biophysical systems, GIS, locational analysis, water resources, economic geography, demographic analysis, environment, urbanization, transportation.

044:199 Honors Thesis

arr.

Original research. Requirements: honors standing.

For Graduate Students*044:200 Readings

arr.

Supervised readings by graduate students in topics of their choice.

044:210 Fundamentals of Geography

3 s.h.

Geography as an academic discipline; history, advances, epistemology, common themes.

044:211 Research and Writing in Geography

3 s.h.

Identification of research areas; research questions and hypotheses; methodological decisions; research proposal and paper writing.

044:225 Environmental/Social Systems Analysis

3 s.h.

Linear optimization and related models; recent applications in water resources management, pollution control, economics, public policy; potential future applications in designing water quality monitoring networks.

044:241 Integrating Time into GIS

3 s.h.

Fundamental concepts for integrating temporal elements into geographic information systems (GIS); conceptual and formal models of time, models of change, event-based modeling, modeling of moving entities; topics related to fundamentals of spatiotemporal databases and query languages. Requirements: advanced courses in GIS and graduate standing.

044:242 Simulations in Landscape Ecology

3 s.h.

Dynamics of land use and land cover change explored through advanced use of computer simulations in landscape ecology; how simulation is used in the field; simulations based on landscape ecology questions, with analysis of results using typical landscape ecology metrics. Prerequisites: 044:142.

044:243 Modeling Space and Time

3 s.h.

How to generate time-space-resolved estimates of sociophysical environmental contexts with the aid of modern geo-spatial technologies; how to model social, behavioral, and health outcomes with reference to multilevel time-space-resolved sociophysical environmental contexts; environmental contexts from air pollution and pesticide concentration to neighborhood diversity; statistical modeling of varied social, behavioral, and health outcomes such as dropping out of college, smoking, excessive weight, asthma, mental and physical disability. Requirements: a course in statistics and good understanding of correlation and regression.

044:265 Planning Sustainable Transportation

1-3 s.h.

Theories and methods of exerting public control over passenger and freight transportation; social and environmental regulation; effects of changing finance, regulation, and pricing policies, including privatization, tolls, impact fees. Same as 102:265.

044:286 Crossing Borders Seminar

2-3 s.h.

Repeatable. Same as 008:231, 013:262, 016:247, 01H:247, 030:242, 035:273, 048:247, 113:247, 129:231, 160:247, 181:247.

044:287 Crossing Borders Proseminar

1 s.h.

Same as 013:260, 016:244, 01H:330, 030:243, 035:271, 048:244, 113:248.

044:296 Topics in Geographic Information Science

3 s.h.

Current theoretical research issues in geographic information science; intensive readings. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 044:113.

044:297 Special Topics

arr.

Contemporary fields of inquiry, such as political economy, regional/African development, biophysical systems, GIS, locational analysis, water resources, economic geography, demographic analysis, environment, urbanization, transportation.

044:315 Seminar in Spatial Analysis and Modeling

Undergraduate nondegree program: Minor in Geoscience

Graduate degrees: M.S., Ph.D. in Geoscience

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~geology>

Geoscience faculty and students study the many physical, chemical, and biological systems that compose the earth. Using modern observational, analytical, and computational methods, they examine how the planet's interior, surface, hydrosphere, and atmosphere have evolved since the earth was born in the solar system 4.6 billion years ago. Topics commonly studied in the department include how plate movements cause earthquakes, volcanoes, and mountain building; global climate change and how climate change and catastrophic events cause changes in biodiversity; how and where economic resources are generated in the earth; and how these resources are located and used in modern society.

The geoscience curriculum provides students with hands-on experience analyzing rocks, minerals, fossils, soils, and waters, generally in a small classroom setting. Much of this experience is obtained in laboratory and field courses. Field courses include travel to other states or countries to view earth materials and fossils in the context of their natural surroundings.

The master's degree is regarded by most hiring agencies as the working degree. The doctoral degree is required for college and university teaching positions. However, an undergraduate degree is fully satisfactory in certain teaching, government, and industrial situations.

Many of The University of Iowa's geoscience graduates find employment with resource companies, environmental corporations, and educational institutions. Others continue in graduate school or take jobs with government or conservation agencies. Some intend to enter law, business, or fields such as urban planning, environmental studies, engineering, archaeology, science education, or oceanography as advanced areas. Geoscience provides skills useful for all of these.

The department offers a variety of courses appropriate for nonmajors, including several approved for the Natural Sciences requirement of the General Education Program. See "Courses for Nonmajors" below.

Many of the department's faculty members are involved in the interdisciplinary Environmental Sciences Program (see Environmental Sciences in the Catalog).

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Science, a Bachelor of Arts, and a minor in geoscience. Students majoring in geoscience take at least an academic year's work in three allied scientific areas--physics, chemistry, and mathematics--and a semester of biology in addition to a course in each major area of geology.

B.S. or B.A. with Double Major or Minor

Geoscience students may elect to pursue an additional major or a minor in a related discipline, usually chemistry, physics, biology, engineering, environmental sciences, or anthropology. See Earning a Degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Student Academic Handbook.

Independent Research for Geoscience Majors

A junior or senior who is ready to pursue independent research for credit in geoscience may assist a faculty member or graduate student with a current research project (012:019 Directed Study) or may initiate a small-scale project involving a combination of field, laboratory, and library investigation (012:119 Directed Study). Independent study is encouraged and may result in an honors thesis (012:010 Honors Thesis in Geoscience) or a senior thesis (012:011 Senior Thesis in Geoscience) that may be published subsequently.

Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Science in geoscience requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 69 s.h. (19 courses) of work for the major (38 s.h. in geoscience courses and at least 31 s.h. in supporting disciplines). The program is designed to prepare students for immediate employment after graduation or to enter a graduate program in geology.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. The department recommends that they fulfill the foreign language requirement with French, German, Russian, or Spanish and the social sciences requirement with an approved course in economics, geography, or anthropology.

Transfer students must complete a minimum of 15 s.h. of course work in the Department of Geoscience.

The geoscience major for a B.S. requires the following course work.

One of these:

012:003 Earth History and Resources	4 s.h.
012:005 Introduction to Geology (preferred)	4 s.h.

All of these:

012:004 Evolution and the History of Life	4 s.h.
012:041 Mineralogy	4 s.h.
012:112 Geologic Field Methods (previously 012:093)	3 s.h.
012:113 Geologic Field Analysis	3 s.h.
012:130 Sedimentary Geology	3 s.h.
012:132 Structural Geology (previously 012:092)	4 s.h.
012:150 Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology (previously 012:052)	4 s.h.
At least two geoscience electives	6-7 s.h.

One of these:

012:121 Principles of Paleontology	3 s.h.
012:149 Elements of Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:166 Hydrogeology	3 s.h.
012:179 Engineering Geology	3 s.h.
012:180 Survey of Geophysical Methods	3 s.h.

At least 8 s.h. of calculus, including one of these:

22M:026 Calculus II	4 s.h.
22M:032 Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus	4 s.h.

B.S. students complete an additional course in mathematics (numbered 22M:027 Introduction to Linear Algebra and above), or computer science (numbered 22C:005 Introduction to Computer Science and above), or statistics (numbered 22S:030 Statistical Methods and Computing and above).

They also complete the following course work in chemistry, physics, and biology (these are minimum requirements).

At least 8 s.h. of college-level chemistry is required, including the following, equivalent courses, or more advanced courses; chemistry courses numbered below 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I cannot be used to satisfy the chemistry requirement for the B.S. in geoscience.

004:011-004:012 Principles of Chemistry I-II	8 s.h.
--	--------

At least 8 s.h. of college-level physics is required, as follows; physics courses numbered below 029:011 cannot be used to satisfy the physics requirement for the B.S. in geoscience.

One of these sequences:

029:011-029:012 College Physics I-II	8 s.h.
029:081-029:082 Introductory Physics I-II	8 s.h.

At least one biological science course that includes a laboratory (4 s.h.) is required. Students with an interest in paleontology are encouraged to take 002:010 Principles of Biology I and 002:011 Principles of Biology II.

RECOMMENDED OPTIONS

All B.S. students should take elective courses from the following groups in order to broaden their undergraduate experience and prepare themselves for graduate study or professional employment. Students who have clear career goals are advised to take three or more elective courses from the group that fits their needs most closely. Students also may seek a broad education in geoscience by choosing elective courses from a number of groups.

Quaternary Geology

012:102 Earth Surface Processes	3 s.h.
012:110 Introduction to Applied Remote Sensing	4 s.h.
012:136 Soil Genesis and Geomorphology	3 s.h.
012:138 Fluvial Geomorphology	3 s.h.
012:149 Elements of Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:152 Isotope Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:166 Hydrogeology	3 s.h.
012:172 Glacial and Pleistocene Geology	3 s.h.
012:178 Applied Geostatistics	3 s.h.
012:179 Engineering Geology	3 s.h.
012:185 Approaches to Geoarchaeology	3 s.h.

Environmental Geology

012:107 Marine Ecosystems and Conservation	3 s.h.
012:108 Introduction to Oceanography	2 s.h.
012:110 Introduction to Applied Remote Sensing	4 s.h.
012:114 Energy and the Environment	3 s.h.
012:138 Fluvial Geomorphology	3 s.h.
012:139 Integrated Watershed Analysis	3 s.h.
012:140 Natural Hazards	3 s.h.
012:149 Elements of Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:152 Isotope Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:166 Hydrogeology	3 s.h.
012:178 Applied Geostatistics	3 s.h.
012:179 Engineering Geology	3 s.h.
012:180 Survey of Geophysical Methods	3 s.h.

Geochemistry

012:141 Analytical Methods	2 s.h.
012:149 Elements of Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:152 Isotope Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:166 Hydrogeology	3 s.h.
012:178 Applied Geostatistics	3 s.h.
012:191 Geotectonics	3 s.h.

Tectonics/Petrology

012:140 Natural Hazards	3 s.h.
012:141 Analytical Methods	2 s.h.
012:149 Elements of Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:152 Isotope Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:175 Mineral and Petroleum Exploration Geology	3 s.h.
012:180 Survey of Geophysical Methods	3 s.h.
012:191 Geotectonics	3 s.h.

Sedimentary Geology

012:108 Introduction to Oceanography	2 s.h.
012:130 Sedimentary Geology	3 s.h.
012:138 Fluvial Geomorphology	3 s.h.
012:149 Elements of Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:152 Isotope Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:161 Stratigraphy	3 s.h.
012:175 Mineral and Petroleum Exploration Geology	3 s.h.
012:191 Geotectonics	3 s.h.

Paleobiology

012:107 Marine Ecosystems and Conservation	3 s.h.
012:108 Introduction to Oceanography	2 s.h.
012:121 Principles of Paleontology	3 s.h.
012:122 Evolution of the Vertebrates	3 s.h.
012:130 Sedimentary Geology	3 s.h.
012:142 Vertebrate Osteology and Phylogeny	3 s.h.
012:144 Phylogenetics and Biodiversity	3 s.h.
012:145 Morphometrics	3 s.h.
012:149 Elements of Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:152 Isotope Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:161 Stratigraphy	3 s.h.
012:170 Evolution of Ecosystems	3 s.h.
012:171 Evolution of Plants	3 s.h.
012:191 Geotectonics	3 s.h.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in geoscience requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 51 s.h. of work for the major (at least 35 s.h. in geoscience courses and at least 16 s.h. in supporting disciplines). The program is designed to provide students with a varied background in geology and a broader choice of electives than is practical in the B.S. program. The B.A. is intended for students who are interested in the fundamentals of geology or earth science teaching (see Teaching and Learning, College of Education, in the Catalog). Completing the minimum requirements for this degree may not adequately prepare a student for an entry-level professional job in geology.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. The department recommends that they fulfill the foreign language requirement with French, German, Russian, or Spanish and the social sciences requirement with an approved course in economics, geography, or anthropology.

Transfer students must complete a minimum of 15 s.h. of course work in the Department of Geoscience.

The geoscience major for a B.A. requires the following course work.

012:041 Mineralogy	4 s.h.
--------------------	--------

One of these:

012:003 Earth History and Resources	4 s.h.
012:005 Introduction to Geology	4 s.h.

One or both of these:

012:004 Evolution and the History of Life	4 s.h.
012:121 Principles of Paleontology	3 s.h.

At least three of these:

012:130 Sedimentary Geology	3 s.h.
012:132 Structural Geology (previously 012:092)	4 s.h.
012:136 Soil Genesis and Geomorphology	3 s.h.
012:138 Fluvial Geomorphology	3 s.h.
012:150 Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology	4 s.h.
012:166 Hydrogeology	3 s.h.

Geoscience electives 12 s.h.

B.A. students must complete the following course work in mathematics and chemistry (these are minimum requirements).

College-level mathematics (may include computer science and statistics) 10 s.h.

At least two college-level chemistry courses (either Option 1 or Option 2) are required; chemistry courses numbered below 004:007 General Chemistry I cannot be used to satisfy the chemistry requirement for the B.A. in geoscience.

Option 1:

004:007-004:008 General Chemistry I-II 6 s.h.

Option 2:

004:011-004:012 Principles of Chemistry I-II 8 s.h.

FIELD REQUIREMENT

To complete the major, students must have field experience. They may take two semesters of 012:018 Geology Field Trip: Selected National Parks or 012:116 Field Trip, or one semester of each of these courses (total of 4 s.h.). Or they may take one semester of 012:112 Geologic Field Methods or the Iowa Lakeside Laboratory session.

012:018 Geology Field Trip: Selected National Parks	2, 4 s.h.
012:116 Field Trip	2, 4 s.h.
012:112 Geologic Field Methods (previously 012:093)	3 s.h.
One natural science session at Iowa Lakeside Laboratory for a minimum of 3 s.h.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Note: These checkpoints show the range of required course work; the B.A. program requires a minimum of 17 courses, and the B.S. requires 19.

The geoscience major requires field trip experiences, many of which take place during vacation periods during or between semesters, or during the summer session. These checkpoints do not include the field trip requirements.

Before the third semester begins: competence in math through trigonometry, first required chemistry course, and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: three to five courses in the major (including the remainder of the chemistry requirement and continuation of the mathematics requirement) and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: 7-11 courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: 10-14 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Qualified students may earn a degree with honors in geoscience. Honors program students must complete a senior thesis (012:010 Honors Thesis in Geoscience) and maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in order to graduate with honors (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). They also must obtain approval of their honors thesis contract from their advisor and the department's undergraduate committee; have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in geoscience courses; and earn a grade of B or higher in 012:010 Honors Thesis in Geoscience.

Minor

The minor in geoscience requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in geoscience courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced-level courses offered by the Department of Geoscience at The University of Iowa; 012:041 Mineralogy and all geoscience courses numbered 100 and above are considered advanced for the minor. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

College-level courses in mathematics, physics, chemistry, and biology usually are required as collateral work for geology students. Those seeking a minor in geoscience should be sufficiently prepared in the areas of supporting sciences before they take advanced courses in geoscience.

Recommended advanced courses in geoscience that deal with important areas of earth materials and earth processes are as follows.

012:041 Mineralogy	4 s.h.
012:102 Earth Surface Processes	3 s.h.
012:107 Marine Ecosystems and Conservation	3 s.h.
012:108 Introduction to Oceanography	2 s.h.
012:112 Geologic Field Methods (previously 012:093)	3 s.h.
012:114 Energy and the Environment	3 s.h.
012:121 Principles of Paleontology	3 s.h.
012:130 Sedimentary Geology	3 s.h.
012:132 Structural Geology (previously 012:092)	4 s.h.
012:136 Soil Genesis and Geomorphology	3 s.h.
012:138 Fluvial Geomorphology	3 s.h.
012:139 Integrated Watershed Analysis	3 s.h.
012:149 Elements of Geochemistry	3 s.h.
012:150 Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology (previously 012:052)	4 s.h.
012:161 Stratigraphy	3 s.h.
012:179 Engineering Geology	3 s.h.
012:180 Survey of Geophysical Methods	3 s.h.
012:191 Geotectonics	3 s.h.

Courses for Nonmajors

Each year more than 1,800 students enroll in 012:003 Earth History and Resources, 012:004 Evolution and the History of Life, 012:005 Introduction to Geology, 012:007 Age of Dinosaurs, 012:008 Introduction to Environmental Science, 012:114 Energy and the Environment, and 012:140 Natural Hazards. All of these courses are approved by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences for the Natural Sciences requirement of the General Education Program.

The department also offers several intermediate courses with few prerequisites: 012:102 Earth Surface Processes, 012:107 Marine Ecosystems and Conservation, 012:108 Introduction to Oceanography, 012:110 Introduction to Applied Remote Sensing, 012:114 Energy and the Environment, and 012:121 Principles of Paleontology.

National Honor Society

The department sponsors a chapter of Sigma Gamma Epsilon National Honor Society for the Earth Sciences. Students with an overall g.p.a. of at least 2.80 and at least 3.20 in geoscience courses are considered for membership after they have completed a minimum of 16 s.h. of course work in geoscience. Consult the departmental honors advisor for more information.

Graduate Programs

The Department of Geoscience offers a Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy in geoscience. The M.S. program prepares students for employment in industry or for Ph.D. study; the Ph.D. program is designed to prepare students for future employment in higher education or research and to bring them to the forefront of a specialized area of geoscience.

All geoscience graduate students must meet the admission and degree requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College (particularly sections IX, X, and XII) or the Graduate College section of the Catalog. They also should acquaint themselves with the University calendar (for deadline dates and so forth).

All entering graduate students are required to enroll in 012:207 Geologic Orientation during the fall semester of their first year in the graduate program.

The department provides detailed information about current graduate degree requirements and timelines for making satisfactory progress toward a degree in the document "The University of Iowa Guidelines for Graduate Study in Geoscience"; see Graduate Student Guidelines under Academics/Geoscience Graduate Program/Information on the Department of Geoscience web site.

Throughout their graduate study, all M.S. and Ph.D. students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 on all course work required for their degree and on all graduate-level geoscience course work. Students whose grade-point average drops below 3.00 are placed on academic probation.

Geoscience graduate students are encouraged to present their research at local, regional, national, or international meetings. The department provides partial funding for travel to such meetings.

Master of Science

The Master of Science in geoscience requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit. The program is designed primarily to prepare students for employment in industry or for Ph.D. study. M.S. students may count up to 8 s.h. of research credit toward the 30 s.h. required for the degree. They must earn at least 24 s.h. toward the degree in University of Iowa courses taken after they enroll in the program. M.S. students also must complete 012:201 Geoscience Seminar Series each semester until they defend their thesis.

M.S. thesis students are responsible for obtaining their advisory committee's approval of a suitable program of course work and for satisfactory development of research plans as outlined in a thesis proposal, which should be completed and approved by the department chair before the end of the second semester of full-time study. The thesis typically has depth and breadth similar to those of one published research paper. Thesis students must deliver a half-hour public presentation of their thesis, followed by an oral defense. They also are required to present their research at a local, regional, national, or international meeting approved by the department chair before they may graduate.

Individuals interested in pursuing the M.S. without thesis must obtain the department chair's permission. The program is designed for students with extensive geological background and experience. Requirements for the nonthesis option are similar to those for the M.S. with thesis, except that in place of the thesis, nonthesis students submit a manuscript that their thesis committee deems acceptable for submission for publication. The student may choose to submit a previously published manuscript. Nonthesis students also must take a final examination that covers course work and the work done in place of the thesis.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in geoscience requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The program is designed to prepare students for future employment in higher education or research and to bring them to the forefront of a specialized area of geoscience.

The Ph.D. requires a dissertation, which has the approximate research content of three published papers.

Ph.D. students usually enter the program with established fields of interest and a research advisor already selected. Under exceptional circumstances, a student may be admitted to the Ph.D. program without an established field of interest.

Entering Ph.D. students must consult with a research advisor or the department's director of graduate study before they enroll in courses. By the first month of their second semester of doctoral study, all Ph.D. students must select an adviser. Each student also must select a thesis topic and forward it to the department chair for approval by the end of the first month of the second semester of doctoral study.

Within broad limits, Ph.D. students should select courses that reflect their individual needs, interests, and talents; their advisor and advisory committee must approve their course selections.

During the second semester of doctoral study, each Ph.D. student should propose an advisory committee of at least five faculty members. Before the end of the second semester of doctoral study, each student must obtain his or her committee's approval of a suitable plan of study, which is then submitted to the department chair for approval. In consultation with the advisor and other faculty members, each doctoral candidate prepares a formal dissertation proposal, which must be submitted to the department chair by the end of the candidate's third semester of doctoral study.

Students are required to include in their plan of study at least 18 s.h. of regular course work taught by tenured or tenure-track faculty members of the Department of Geoscience. Students must earn the 18 s.h. after being admitted to and enrolling in the Ph.D. program. Directed study and research credit do not count toward the required 18 s.h.

Ph.D. students must enroll in 012:201 Geoscience Seminar Series each semester they are registered until they successfully defend their dissertations, or for two consecutive semesters after the semester in which they pass their comprehensive examination, whichever comes first.

After earning their first 24 s.h. of graduate credit, Ph.D. students must either be enrolled at least two consecutive semesters in full-time study (at least 9 s.h. per semester) at The University of Iowa, or be enrolled three consecutive semesters for at least 6 s.h. per semester at the University, during which time they hold at least a one-quarter-time assistantship that is certified by the department as contributing to their doctoral program.

Students should complete most of their course work before taking the comprehensive examination, which consists of both written and oral portions and which must be passed before the end of the fourth semester of doctoral study.

Once Ph.D. candidates have passed the comprehensive examination, they are required to register each semester until they receive the degree. Candidates who have completed their plan of study may register for 000:002 Doctoral Continuous Registration or 000:003 Doctoral Final Registration.

Students must submit their written dissertation to the committee at least two weeks before the final examination. All Ph.D. candidates must deliver a one-hour public presentation associated with the dissertation defense. They also are required to submit a manuscript presenting the results of their graduate research to a refereed journal or other publication approved by the department chair before they may defend their dissertation.

Facilities

Resources and equipment available for research in the Department of Geoscience include the following.

Computer facilities: five teaching classrooms with 10-12 networked PC workstations; a computing classroom with 20 PCs and 10 Macs with GIS, GMS, remote sensing, image analysis, and specialized computational software packages; a student computer room with 6 PCs and 2 Macs; and a number of multiprocessor workstations in research laboratories.

Environmental and Hydrogeology Laboratory: permeameters and tensionometers; pumping and slug/bail test units with transducers and data-loggers; water-quality analysis facility; advanced groundwater modeling and geostatistics software; advanced data logging systems for field research; 3-D sensor arrays (wind and water systems); and facilities for field instrumentation design and construction.

Environmental Instrumentation Laboratories: storage, testing, and teaching facility focusing on field instrumentation; assembly, housing, and testing of climatic, meteorological, fluvial, water quality and associated environmental instrumentation data recording systems and sampling systems.

Geomorphic Computing Laboratory: high-end visualization, digitizing, remote sensing and GIS systems; and high-end multiprocessor workstations.

Geoscience Library: a branch of University of Iowa Libraries that serves the University community, the Iowa Geological Survey Bureau, and the public; more than 55,000 volumes to support research, study, and teaching, including publications of state, federal, and international geological surveys and field trip guidebooks; more than 73,000 geological maps, including the newest versions of U.S. topographic quadrangle maps.

Morphometric laboratories: reflex microscope and microscribe for capturing 3-D data; high-resolution digital cameras and microscopes for 2-D image analysis; and laboratories for micro- and macro-fossil preparation.

Paleontological Repository: more than a million specimens, including some 25,000 type and referred specimens, with 6,000-7,000 primary types; invertebrate, vertebrate, and plant fossils of all geologic ages, and more than 90 percent Paleozoic invertebrates; the fifth-largest university collection in North America (CONARIP 1977).

Petrology and geochemistry laboratories: laser-ablation inductively coupled plasma mass spectrometer (LA-ICPMS); clean laboratory for preparation of samples for elemental and isotopic analysis; alpha- and gamma-spectrometry laboratories; image analysis; heating freezing stage; petrographic microscopes; photo microscopy; wet-chemistry facilities; rock preparation and mineral separation; UNIX, Windows, and Mac workstations for data analysis and modeling; and one atm gas-mixing furnace for melt inclusion homogenization.

Quaternary Materials Laboratory: pipette grain-size analysis apparatus; chittick apparatus; Sedigraph 5100 X-ray particle-size analyzer; Horiba Camsizer L digital image particle analyzer; wet-chemistry facilities; C-H-N element analyzer; a Flotech flotation system; and a Giddings drill rig.

Scanning Electron Microscope: Hitachi S-3400N, a variable-pressure scanning electron microscope (SEM) equipped with a motorized stage, large chamber, and digital image capture; capable of imaging specimens with no metal coating, or specimens that are slightly hydrated or porous, as well as conventionally processed specimens; equipped with a Bruker AXS Quantax 400 X-ray microanalysis system; XFlash silicon drift detector with excellent energy resolution and light element detection, providing ultra-fast acquisition of line scans and elemental maps.

Sedimentary geology laboratories: water ion chromatograph; image analysis; Sedigraph X-ray particle-size analyzer; Horiba Camsizer L digital image particle analyzer; and a soil/sediment characterization laboratory.

Thin-section and rock preparation laboratory: diamond saws and specialized grinding equipment used to prepare ultrathin slices (30 microns thick) of rocks and fossils for microscopic and electron microprobe analysis.

Cooperative Activities

The department does collaborative work with the Iowa Geological Survey Bureau and the Office of the State Archaeologist of Iowa. Geoscience students sometimes work on projects for the survey.

The Departments of Anthropology, Biology, Chemistry, Civil and Environmental Engineering, Geography, and Geoscience share services, expertise, joint instruction, and equipment. The geoscience department is an important participant in the Iowa Quaternary Studies group, an interdisciplinary program that promotes projects combining work in anthropology, biology, geography, geology, and statistics. Course work, degree programs, and facilities are shared among departments. The geoscience department and its faculty also support and actively participate in the interdisciplinary Environmental Sciences Program, which offers a Bachelor of Science degree.

Field Trips

Field trips are integral parts of several courses in geoscience, with frequent weekend general-interest events. The geology of the Iowa City region is characterized by Quaternary glacial sediments on a largely Paleozoic sedimentary section a few hundred meters thick, overlying a Precambrian crystalline basement. Marine and terrestrial fossil assemblages, extensive reefs, and unique geode sites are located within a few hours' drive. Numerous Pleistocene glaciations are represented in Iowa, and field studies of landforms, exposures, and cores continue to yield information on sedimentology, stratigraphy, soil formation, paleopedology, and fossil biotas from both glacial and interglacial deposits.

Spring break provides time for longer trips, which are open to all geoscience students. In recent years, students have traveled to the southern Appalachians, Arizona, Death Valley, the Florida Keys, Hawaii, New Mexico, the Ozarks, Puerto Rico, and Texas. Advanced classes have visited California, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Wisconsin, and Ontario, Canada.

Geoscience Courses

Not all courses are offered every year.

Primarily for Undergraduates

012:003 Earth History and Resources

3-4 s.h.

Relationships between plate tectonics, geologic time, and the rock cycle with volcanoes and igneous, sedimentary, metamorphic rocks; fossils; radioactive isotopes; landscape evolution; mountain building; natural resources; their impacts on civilization. GE: Natural Sciences.

012:004 Evolution and the History of Life

3-4 s.h.

Fossils over the past 3.5 billion years, origin and evolution of life, evolutionary radiations and mass extinctions, the invasion of land, dinosaurs, the age of mammals, relationship between biological systems and environmental change in earth history. Offered spring semesters. GE: Natural Sciences.

012:005 Introduction to Geology

4 s.h.

Minerals, rocks, and rock-forming processes (including volcanoes and sedimentary environments); surface processes (rivers, groundwater, glaciers, deserts, ocean shorelines), major earth processes (continental drift, plate tectonics, earthquakes, mountain building); impact on civilization. Offered fall semesters. GE: Natural Sciences.

012:007 Age of Dinosaurs

4 s.h.

Origin and evolutionary history of dinosaurs; diversity of dinosaurian groups, their geographic distributions and paleoecology; origins of flight among dinosaurs; environmental context, including other animals and plants that lived alongside dinosaurs; the so-called extinction of dinosaurs and radiation of modern forms; the role dinosaurs play in the interaction between science and the popular media. Offered fall semesters. GE: Natural Sciences.

012:008 Introduction to Environmental Science

3-4 s.h.

Biological and physical character of the Earth; interaction of humans with the environment, including impacts on ecosystems, climate, natural processes, resources; alternative options, including sustainability, waste management, energy, land reform. GE: Natural Sciences. Same as 159:008.

012:009 Introduction to Environmental Sciences Laboratory

1 s.h.

Laboratory component of 012:008. Requirements: environmental sciences or geoscience major; and 012:008 or 159:008 for 3 s.h. GE: Natural Sciences. Same as 159:009.

012:010 Honors Thesis in Geoscience

arr.

Independent research resulting in an honors thesis. Requirements: honors standing.

012:011 Senior Thesis in Geoscience

arr.

Independent research resulting in a senior thesis. Requirements: senior standing.

012:017 Geology of the U.S. National Parks

2 s.h.

Geologic features, geologic history, important biological and archaeological characteristics, with emphasis on features that caused certain areas to be included in national park system. Offered spring semesters. Requirements: introductory geology course.

012:018 Geology Field Trip: Selected National Parks

2 s.h.

Observation, interpretation of prominent geologic, geomorphic, biological features; semester-break or semester-end visits to different parks or groups of parks each year. Offered spring semesters.

012:019 Directed Study

arr.

Special topics, independent research.

012:029 First-Year Seminar

1-2 s.h.

Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

012:041 Mineralogy

4 s.h.

Physical, chemical, and optical properties of minerals; phase relations; structures; associations; diagnostic features for identification. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 012:003 or 012:005. Requirements: a math course through 22M:005 and introductory chemistry.

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students*012:100 Geologic Training Assignment

1-3 s.h.

Practical experience. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 012:052 and geology g.p.a. of at least 3.00.

012:102 Earth Surface Processes

3 s.h.

Basic geomorphic and environmental processes that shape the earth's surface; emphasis on erosion, transport, deposition by land mass movement (creep, landslides, earth flow), fluid agents (wind, water, ice); methods used to study these processes. Prerequisites: 012:005 or 012:008 or 044:003 or 159:008. Same as 159:102.

012:104 Climatology

3 s.h.

Boundary layer processes that drive atmospheric dynamics; exchanges of energy and water at simple and complex surfaces; global climate change records, theories, models; impacts of climate on society. Prerequisites: 044:003. Same as 044:101.

012:107 Marine Ecosystems and Conservation 3 s.h.

Introduction to ocean ecosystems, including coral reefs, mangroves, estuaries and salt marshes, sandy and rocky shores, seagrass and kelp beds, the deep sea, plankton; biodiversity of each ecosystem; interrelationship of biota and physical/chemical environment; interactions among organisms, including food webs and symbiosis; local and global threats such as overfishing, pollution, ocean acidification, global warming, sea level change; ongoing biodiversity crisis, solutions for conservation problems.

012:108 Introduction to Oceanography 2 s.h.

Descriptive, chemical, physical, biological, geological aspects of oceans; impact on weather, climate, shorelines, food supply, other aspects of civilization. Offered spring semesters. Recommendations: knowledge of basic chemistry, biology, physics, earth science.

012:110 Introduction to Applied Remote Sensing 4 s.h.

Remote sensing of the earth's surface from aircraft, satellites; aerial photograph interpretation; remote sensing systems, methods, data analysis using electromagnetic spectrum and digital processing techniques, including visible, infrared, microwave radiation; remote sensing applied to geologic and environmental problems. Requirements: college physics or physical geology. Same as 159:110.

012:112 Geologic Field Methods 3 s.h.

Introduction to basic methods of geologic field work in southwest Montana using topographic maps and GPS to locate oneself, identifying geologic map units (including superficial deposits), recognizing geologic contacts, constructing stratigraphic sections, measuring planar structures, and making geological maps complete with a legend and cross-section. Offered during three-week summer session. Prerequisites: 012:003 or 012:005.

012:113 Geologic Field Analysis 3 s.h.

Structural, stratigraphic, and regional analysis of geology in the Rocky Mountains of Montana; emphasis on making reasonable geologic interpretations from field relationships; first two weeks involve mapping projects in the vicinity of Dillon, Montana that build on experience gained in 012:112; third week involves a capstone experience dedicated to synthesizing the geology of a fold-and-thrust belt near Glacier National Park. Offered three-week summer session. Prerequisites: 012:092 and 012:112.

012:114 Energy and the Environment 3 s.h.

Scientific concepts related to potentially significant energy sources of the 21st century; environmental impacts, positive and negative, of each energy source as well as geologic and geographical distributions and applications. Requirements: college earth science course or graduate standing. GE: Natural Sciences.

012:116 Field Trip 2 s.h.

Field trip to an area of geologic interest, such as carbonate area of Florida, Grand Canyon (Arizona), Rio Grande Rift (New Mexico), Death Valley (California, Nevada), Appalachian Mountains (Virginia); preceded by weekly discussions of destination's geology. Offered spring semester.

012:119 Directed Study arr.

Special topics, independent research.

012:120 Collection Care and Management 3 s.h.

How a museum's management policy relates to its administrative, legal, and ethical obligations to its collections; acquisitions, deaccessions, collection use, data standards, storage environment, health, safety, documentation. Same as 024:120.

012:121 Principles of Paleontology 3 s.h.

Patterns of evolution in fossil record; species and analysis of their evolutionary relationships; paleoecology, paleocommunity evolution; evolutionary radiation and mass extinctions; large-scale relationships between biodiversity and climatic change. Offered fall semesters.

012:122 Evolution of the Vertebrates 3 s.h.

Evolutionary history of vertebrates revealed by fossils and information from living animals; biogeographic, stratigraphic, paleoecological aspects of selected groups, especially mammals and dinosaurs; transitions from aquatic to terrestrial life, origins of flight, major events in vertebrate history (including mass extinctions and explosive radiations). Requirements: introductory course in geoscience or bioscience.

012:126 Wetlands: Function, Geography, and Management 3 s.h.

Biotic aspects of water resources production; geographical basis of biophysical processes in drainage basins; spatial aspects of stream ecology; regional characterization of wetland structure and process. Prerequisites: 044:101 or 044:103. Same as 044:126.

012:130 Sedimentary Geology 3 s.h.

Basic concepts of sedimentology, stratigraphy, depositional environments, sedimentary petrology; hands-on analyses of sediments and sedimentary rocks, including thin-section petrography; lecture/laboratory. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 012:003 or 012:005.

012:132 Structural Geology 4 s.h.

Introduction to concepts of rock deformation (stress, strain, rheology); description and classification of geologic structures (folds, faults); and processes that generate these structures; laboratory focus on problem solving and 2-D representations of 3-D structures; weekend field trip to Baraboo, Wisconsin. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 012:003 or 012:005.

012:136 Soil Genesis and Geomorphology 3 s.h.

Introduction to soil genesis, soil geomorphology, and classification including the basics of soil profile description and soil-landscape, soil-vegetation, and soil-climate relationships; emphasis on study of soils as the interface between living and non-living Earth systems and the role of soils in sustaining ecosystems and human societies; short field excursions and a weekend field trip. Requirements: college earth science and chemistry. Same as 044:186.

012:138 Fluvial Geomorphology 3 s.h.

Hydrologic principles, stream channel processes, and fluvial geomorphology within drainage basin systems; spatial and temporal variations in water distribution, analysis of hydrological data, flow mechanisms, sediment transport, forecasting procedures, hydrograph construction, modeling. Requirements: 012:102 or another 100-level geology or hydraulics course. Same as 053:128.

012:139 Integrated Watershed Analysis 3 s.h.

Integration of existing knowledge of physical, hydrological, and environmental processes with management issues and challenges in water resources and environmental management; aspects of water quantity and quality, water use and treatment; basin management issues related to forestry, agriculture, urbanization, floods, droughts.

012:140 Natural Hazards 3 s.h.

How earth-atmosphere-hydrosphere-space systems produce events catastrophic to humans on the scale of individual lives to civilizations; root causes of earthquakes, landslides, volcanic eruptions, floods, hurricanes, tsunamis, tornadoes, and asteroid impact, and their local, national, and global impact; spatial and temporal occurrences of these hazards; methods and processes for hazard preparedness, response, and recovery; social, economic, and policy aspects that affect and compound the magnitude of disasters associated with natural phenomena; case studies drawn from contemporary and ancient societies. Prerequisites: 012:003 or 012:005 or 012:008 or 044:003 or 159:008. GE: Natural Sciences.

012:141 Analytical Methods 2 s.h.

Theory and practice of analyzing the chemical, isotopic, and mineralogical compositions of rocks, organic materials, and waters; use of modern analytical instruments. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 004:007, 012:052, and 029:012 or 029:082.

012:142 Vertebrate Osteology and Phylogeny 3 s.h.

Anatomy of the vertebrate skeleton from developmental, functional, and phylogenetic perspectives; relationship between skeletal, muscular, and nervous systems; history of the skeleton through modern forms; lecture and laboratory. Prerequisite: 012:122 or 213:190.

012:144 Phylogenetics and Biodiversity 3 s.h.

Methods available for reconstructing evolutionary history and measuring biodiversity, including distance, parsimony, likelihood, and taxic approaches; applications to molecular and morphological systematics, historical biogeography, study of diversity through time. Prerequisites: 012:004 or 012:121, or 002:010 and 002:011.

012:145 Morphometrics 1-3 s.h.

Quantitative methods for collection and analysis of morphologic data, including 2-D and 3-D geometric morphometrics and use of multivariate statistical methods to study size and shape; applications of morphometric techniques to study development and its evolution, variation within and among species, morphologic disparity, related topics in paleontology and evolutionary biology. Prerequisites: 012:004 or 012:121.

012:146 Techniques in Paleontology 3 s.h.

Paleontological data acquisition and analysis, including Fossil collection, preparation, imaging, description; computerized data compilation, manipulation, analysis. Prerequisites: 002:010, and 002:011 or 012:004 or 012:121.

012:149 Elements of Geochemistry 3 s.h.

Introduction to application of chemical principles to solution of geologic problems concerning earth and environmental processes; origin of elements, chemical differentiation of Earth and the solar system, geochronology, application of radiogenic and stable isotopes, chemical equilibrium, elementary thermodynamics and kinetics, carbonate and silicate stability relationships, chemical weathering, adsorption, trace element behavior, oxidation-reduction reactions, characterization of surface and ground waters, and ocean chemistry. Prerequisites: 004:008 and 012:005.

012:150 Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology 4 s.h.

Nature, origin, and petrography of igneous, sedimentary, and metamorphic rocks in hand specimen and thin-section. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 012:041 and 012:130.

012:152 Isotope Geochemistry 3 s.h.

Radiogenic and stable isotope systematics, applications to geological, cosmological, and environmental problems.

012:156 Scanning Electron Microscopy and X-Ray Microanalysis arr.

Microscopy methods for research; all aspects of research, from sample preparation to imaging to data analysis; when to use a particular microscopy procedure; theory, operation, and application of scanning electron microscopy, scanning probe microscopy, laser scanning microscopy, X-ray microanalysis. Requirements: a physical science course. Same as 052:156, 060:156.

012:160 Advanced Collection Care and Management 3 s.h.

Builds on 024:120; types of museum objects and materials, their care and management; care, storage, and use of paper, books, photographs, works of art, electronic information media, textiles, furniture, archaeological artifacts, natural history specimens, archives; digitization projects, integrated pest management, risk assessment, museum security, museum construction and renovation, grant writing; for students planning museum careers or for professions that require care of collections. Prerequisites: 012:120 or 024:120. Same as 024:140.

012:161 Stratigraphy 3 s.h.

Genesis of sedimentary rocks, geologic time, stratigraphic nomenclature, biostratigraphic and physical correlation methods, mass extinctions, seismic and sequence stratigraphy, basin analysis and modeling, stratigraphic field methods. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 012:052.

012:166 Hydrogeology 3 s.h.

Water flow and contaminant transport in subsurface environment; basic principles and laws of physical, chemical, and biological processes in geological formations for sustainable development of groundwater resources; groundwater hydrology, regional aquifer systems, well hydraulics, aquifer tests, groundwater contamination and remediation, management and sustainability of groundwater resources. Requirements: senior or graduate standing.

012:170 Evolution of Ecosystems 3 s.h.

Evolutionary history of terrestrial and marine ecosystems; ecological processes from population to ecosystem levels; community assembly, trophic levels, networks, biodiversity dynamics; practical aspects of paleoecological data collection, statistical analysis, modeling. Requirements: two courses in geoscience, biology, environmental sciences, anthropology, or geography.

012:171 Evolution of Plants 3 s.h.

Evolutionary history of plants over geologic time: relationships, morphology, and fossil record of major plant lineages; patterns and processes in evolution of plant morphology and diversity; ecological innovations and evolution of terrestrial ecosystems; relationships between biotic and environmental change; paleobotanical tools in stratigraphy, paleoclimatology, sedimentology; practical aspects of paleobotanical data collection, statistical analysis, modeling; field trip. Requirements: two courses in geoscience, anthropology, biology, environmental science, or geography.

012:172 Glacial and Pleistocene Geology

3 s.h.

Introduction to glaciers and glacial and interglacial Earth systems; linkages among glacial, oceanic, and atmospheric systems and their effects on landscapes and biota over the past two million years; how oceans, atmosphere, and glaciers interact and landscape effects of past glacial and interglacial cycles. Requirements: physical geology or physical geography or anthropology.

012:174 Seminar: Taphonomy

3 s.h.

Taphonomy (study of fossil record in paleontology and archaeology); processes for accumulation, modification, and deposition of remains in prehistory; instruction by archaeologist and paleontologist. Requirements: graduate standing. Same as 113:174.

012:175 Mineral and Petroleum Exploration Geology

3 s.h.

Fundamentals of resource exploration philosophy and methods, with project-based presentation of techniques and strategies for mineral exploration and petroleum exploration; integration and evaluation of geological, geochemical, and geophysical techniques for mineral exploration; hydrocarbon systems and seismic interpretation for petroleum exploration. Corequisites: 012:052 and 012:092.

012:178 Applied Geostatistics

3 s.h.

Applications of geostatistical methods to geology, geography, hydrology, environmental sciences, and engineering; variogram, Kriging, analysis of spatial-varied data with varied computer software in participants' specialties. Same as 044:188.

012:179 Engineering Geology

3 s.h.

Application of geology, water, and earth processes to civil and environmental engineering practice; physical properties of rock and soil, geologic mapping and surveying, groundwater supplies and wells, stream engineering, watershed management, site investigations for environmental assessment, and geologic hazards. Prerequisites: 012:003 or 012:005 or 012:008.

012:180 Survey of Geophysical Methods

3 s.h.

Geophysical methods used to address geological and engineering problems (e.g., finding petroleum and mineral deposits, studying groundwater resources, tracing contaminant plumes, evaluating archaeological sites); methods including gravity, magnetics, radiometrics, refraction and reflection seismography, geophysical well logging, and geoelectrical methods (direct current, frequency- and time-domain electromagnetics, induced polarization, magnetic resonance surveying, ground-penetrating radar); capabilities, drawbacks, costs; planning and budgeting surveys, processing the resulting digital data. Requirements: introductory geology or physics.

012:184 Groundwater Modeling

3 s.h.

Groundwater flow and contaminant transport modeling; numerical methods, applications of groundwater modeling to water supply, groundwater resources evaluation, remediation design using software; GMS (MODFLOW, MODPATH, and MT3D). Prerequisites: 012:166 or 053:103, and 22M:026. Same as 053:104.

012:185 Approaches to Geoarchaeology

3 s.h.

Geoarchaeology as multidisciplinary contextual framework for human paleoecology; natural processes that create the archaeological record, approaches to reconstructing landscapes of the past as a context for archaeological deposits; weekend field trip. Prerequisites: 012:136 or 012:172 or 113:161 or 113:164. Same as 113:189.

012:188 Environmental Seminar

1 s.h.

Lectures on the environment by faculty members from the University, other colleges and universities, researchers and professionals from state and federal agencies.

012:189 Global Change Seminar

1-2 s.h.

Current global change issues, including climate change, ecosystem changes and conservation, energy; seminar format with student presentations.

012:190 Undergraduate Geoscience Colloquium

1-2 s.h.

Presentation and discussion of current research by undergraduates.

012:191 Geotectonics

3 s.h.

Dynamic processes responsible for crustal genesis, plate movements, mountain building; plate boundary zones; sedimentologic, structural, petrologic, geophysical characteristics of major tectonic settings; multidisciplinary approach; week-long field trip. Prerequisites: 012:092.

012:193 Sustainability Project

arr.

Individual or group sustainability project supervised by a faculty member; regular meetings, data collection and interpretation, final project report.

Primarily for Graduate Students*012:201 Geoscience Seminar Series

1 s.h.

Scholarly work and research in geoscience. Repeatable.

012:207 Geologic Orientation

1 s.h.

Department degree requirements, programs; field survey of local geology; tips for TAs; introduction to specialized facilities; for new graduate students.

012:210 Hydrogeology Seminar

3 s.h.

Innovative experimental and modeling studies in hydrogeology; experimental need, design, mathematical formulation, assumptions, data collection techniques; data analysis and its importance to groundwater modeling. Prerequisites: 012:166. Same as 053:215.

012:225 Paleontology Seminar

1-3 s.h.

Current controversial issues in paleontology. Repeatable. Recommendations: 012:121.

012:233 Carbonate Petrology

2 s.h.

Identification of constituents and interpretation of genesis, structures, environments of formation, and patterns and processes of diagenesis in limestones; laboratory-based. Requirements: familiarity with optical microscope and sedimentation principles.

012:235 Depositional Environments

3-4 s.h.

Modern patterns of sedimentation; emphasis on interpreting depositional environments of ancient sedimentary rocks and deciphering resulting stratigraphic patterns. Requirements: knowledge of basic sedimentary geology and paleontology.

012:238 Process Geomorphology

1-3 s.h.

Topics in process geomorphology ranging from fluvial dynamics to mass movement to sediment transport and related environmental processes. Repeatable.

012:239 Advanced Watershed Analysis Seminar

1-3 s.h.

Integration of existing knowledge of physical, hydrological, and environmental processes with management issues and challenges in water resources and environmental management; aspects of water quantity and quality, water use and treatment, and basin management issues related to forestry, agriculture, urbanization, floods, droughts. Repeatable.

012:251 Igneous Petrology

3 s.h.

Phase equilibria, isotope and trace element geochemistry, geochemical modeling; generation, differentiation of magmas in context of plate tectonic theory. Prerequisites: 012:052.

012:253 Geochronology

3 s.h.

How to evaluate published ages, and assumptions/errors involved; how to select and sample suitable materials for dating, and choose a suitable dating method and analytical technique; opportunity to develop skills for research and professional careers. Prerequisites: 012:149 or 012:152.

012:257 Tectonics and Petrology Seminar

1-2 s.h.

Topics in tectonics, structural geology, petrology. Repeatable.

012:293 Advanced Structural Geology

3 s.h.

Kinematic and dynamic analysis of deformed rocks; microstructural analysis; strain analysis, field investigations of highly deformed rocks. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 012:092.

012:310 Research: Geoscience

arr.

Independent research related to theses or dissertations in geoscience. Repeatable.

Graduate degrees: M.A., Ph.D. in German
Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~german>

The Department of German provides education in the language, literature, and culture traditionally designated as German, as expressed in the language and cultural heritage of Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. Its faculty members engage in research and teaching activities focused on German language, literature, and culture from both disciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives.

Graduate programs in German build on the department's strengths and those of other departments to provide strong, individualized graduate training. The department is committed to helping students identify and pursue their own historical and theoretical interests in the study of German language and literature. The Master of Arts provides for comprehensive study with a concentration in German literature or Germanic linguistics. The Doctor of Philosophy is highly flexible, allowing students to create their own program of literary, cultural, and linguistic studies.

The department also offers courses approved for General Education in foreign languages, humanities, and foreign civilization and culture; language training for students in other graduate programs; and courses that meet the interdisciplinary needs of undergraduate and graduate students throughout the University.

University graduates with degrees in German frequently enter the teaching profession. They also find positions in government, foreign service, and commercial enterprise.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts and a minor in German.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in German requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 30 s.h. of work for the major. Students who plan to complete the undergraduate teaching major in German in conjunction with the College of Education should see "B.A. with Teacher Licensure" below.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Students who begin a German major with no previous German language experience must complete the following course sequences or their equivalents.

013:011 Elementary German I	4 s.h.
013:012 Elementary German II	4 s.h.
013:021 Intermediate German I	4 s.h.
013:022 Intermediate German II	4 s.h.

This requirement also may be satisfied by various combinations of 013:013 Intensive Elementary German, 013:014 First-Year German Review, and 013:025 Intensive Intermediate German.

The required 30 s.h. for the major must include at least five upper-level German courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students may count a maximum of two Department of German courses taught in English (prefix 13E) toward requirements for the major if they enroll in a section that includes a German language component. Note: 013:101 Introduction to German Literature is prerequisite to all other German literature courses.

013:101 Introduction to German Literature	3 s.h.
013:103 Composition and Conversation I	3 s.h.
013:104 Composition and Conversation II	3 s.h.
013:116 Advanced Composition and Conversation	3 s.h.

Linguistics--one of these:

013:107 Introduction to German Linguistics	3 s.h.
013:165 History of the German Language	3 s.h.

Culture--one of these:

013:105 German Cultural History	3 s.h.
013:115 Contemporary German Civilization	3 s.h.

Four 100-level electives offered by the Department of German.

German majors, both graduate and undergraduate, are urged to supplement their degree programs with relevant courses in areas such as German history, philosophy, and business.

B.A. with Teacher Licensure

German majors interested in licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools must successfully complete the requirements for a major in German and must be admitted to the College of Education's foreign language teacher education program. Several courses in the College of Education also are required, as is one semester of student teaching in the senior year. Contact the Department of Teaching and Learning for more details.

Students who plan to use a German minor to teach at the elementary and/or secondary level must contact the College of Education concerning requirements.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan.

Before the third semester begins: language competency equal to first-year German and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: language competency equal to second-year German and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: four courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester: two to three additional courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Honors in German is open to exceptional students who are members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). To participate in honors in German, students must have completed three years of college-level German, or the equivalent, with a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in upper-division German courses.

Participating students register for the following courses.

013:190 Honors Program in German	3 s.h.
013:191 Honors Research and Thesis	3 s.h.

Honors students are expected to engage in readings and discussions in German literature and culture and to write essays in German and English. Students meet with their faculty director of studies on a regular basis.

The program concludes with presentation of an honors thesis to a faculty committee of at least three members.

Minor

The minor in German requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in college-level German courses, including 12 s.h. in 100-level courses taken at The University of Iowa; however, students may count up to 6 s.h. earned in study abroad at a university in a German-speaking country toward the minor. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

All Department of German courses taught in German and numbered 013:100 and above count toward the minor. Students may count one German course taught in English (prefix 13E) toward the minor if they enroll in a section that includes a German language component.

Language for Nonmajors

The department offers a number of opportunities for students who wish to study German. Students who have had experience with the language should take the Foreign Language Placement Test in German online, offered by Evaluation and Examination Service. The test helps determine the level at which a student should begin German language study at The University of Iowa.

Students with no background in German should begin their study with 013:011 Elementary German I.

Students who wish to use German to complete the foreign language component of the General Education Program can choose from a number of course sequences. Each of the following sequences satisfies the requirement. Students are encouraged to talk with departmental advisors about the varied sequences.

013:013 Intensive Elementary German	4-6 s.h.
013:021 Intermediate German I	4 s.h.
013:022 Intermediate German II	4 s.h.

013:011 Elementary German I	4 s.h.
013:012 Elementary German II	4 s.h.
013:021 Intermediate German I	4 s.h.
013:022 Intermediate German II	4 s.h.

013:014 First-Year German Review	5 s.h.
013:021 Intermediate German I	4 s.h.
013:022 Intermediate German II	4 s.h.

013:011 Elementary German I	4 s.h.
013:012 Elementary German II	4 s.h.
013:025 Intensive Intermediate German	4-5, 6 s.h.

013:013 Intensive Elementary German	4-6 s.h.
013:025 Intensive Intermediate German	4-5, 6 s.h.

013:014 First-Year German Review	5 s.h.
013:025 Intensive Intermediate German	4-5, 6 s.h.

Joint B.A./M.A.

The department offers a joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Arts for undergraduate majors who plan to earn an M.A. in German. The program permits students to count 12 s.h. of appropriate course work toward both degrees and to enter advanced German courses while they are still undergraduates. It is designed to be completed in five years. Students in the program receive the B.A. when they have satisfied all requirements for the bachelor's degree, and they receive the M.A. when they have completed all master's degree requirements.

The joint B.A./M.A. is appropriate for students who enter the University from high school with advanced German language preparation. It is attractive to highly motivated students who plan to study abroad and who plan to pursue a Ph.D. in German or second language acquisition. It may serve as preparation for other programs, such as those related to international studies, library science, business with an international focus, or international relations. Students seeking careers in teaching or other fields may pursue the joint degree as a credential.

Joint program students must fulfill all requirements for the B.A. They ordinarily spend two semesters in their junior year enrolled in the study abroad program at the University of Freiburg, in Germany (see "Study Abroad" below), unless they have satisfied this requirement another way (e.g., a year abroad during high school or a study abroad program with similar content).

During the last two semesters of their senior year, they may take up to 12 s.h. of graduate-level courses, which may be counted toward both degrees, as follows: 6 s.h. may be counted toward the course requirements for the undergraduate German major, and 6 s.h. may be counted as undergraduate electives. Once they complete all B.A. requirements, they complete the remaining M.A. requirements.

Students must maintain an undergraduate German g.p.a. of at least 3.50; if they fail to meet this standard for more than one semester, they may be required to leave the program. They must have an overall undergraduate g.p.a. of at least 3.00 when they achieve graduate standing.

Applicants must be admitted to the joint program before the beginning of their seventh semester (senior year). They must be University of Iowa undergraduate students; must have completed 80 s.h. or be in the process of completing 90 s.h. of undergraduate work; and must have completed or be in the process of completing at least 21 s.h. of 100-level course work in the German major. They must have completed or be in the process of completing a study abroad program in a German-speaking country, or have satisfied this requirement another way. They also must have a g.p.a. of 3.50 when they apply to the program, or a letter from a Department of German faculty member recommending an exception.

Students pay undergraduate tuition and fees during their first semester in the joint program (normally their seventh semester); beginning with their second semester in the program (normally their eighth semester), they begin paying graduate tuition and fees. Students may hold a graduate appointment beginning with their second semester in the joint program.

Study Abroad

The Department of German participates in an academic year abroad program for undergraduates at the Albert-Ludwigs Universität in Freiburg, Germany. The Freiburg program is offered by a consortium made up of Michigan State University, The University of Iowa, The University of Michigan, and The University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Students arrive during the first week of September and participate in a four-week intensive language program. Then they take a blend of special program classes and regular German university courses. Organized field trips are designed to give students a broader perspective of German culture. Vacation periods permit extensive travel throughout Europe, and students are encouraged to use weekends for shorter trips in the region.

To apply, students must have reached at least junior standing by the beginning of the program, must have completed at least the first four semesters of college German or the equivalent, and must be in good academic standing at a U.S. college or university.

Students earn resident credit in all courses successfully completed in the program. They may count up to 21 s.h. earned at Freiburg toward the major in German. Credit also counts toward the minor in German. Students in other majors should consult with their advisor or their department's undergraduate director.

Contact the Department of German or the Office for Study Abroad for more information.

Graduate Programs

The Board of Regents, State of Iowa, approved a two-year suspension of admission to graduate programs in German beginning September 2009; no new graduate students will be admitted for 2010-11.

The department offers a Master of Arts in German, with and without thesis and with a literature or linguistics concentration; and a Doctor of Philosophy in German, with a literature, linguistics, or combined literature and linguistics concentration. It also offers a joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Arts for advanced undergraduates; see "Joint B.A./M.A." earlier in this Catalog section.

Courses in the department are offered in two broad categories: German literature and Germanic linguistics.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in German requires a minimum of 33 s.h. of graduate credit. It is offered with and without thesis.

M.A. students choose one of two concentrations: German literature and Germanic linguistics. The German literature concentration requires seven literature courses (21 s.h.) and four linguistics courses (12 s.h.). The Germanic linguistics concentration requires seven linguistics courses (21 s.h.) and four literature courses (12 s.h.).

M.A. students are expected to complete at least 24 s.h. in the Department of German. All M.A. course work taken outside the department requires the graduate advisor's approval.

GRADUATE LANGUAGE TOOLS: M.A.

Before taking the M.A. exam, students must demonstrate reading knowledge of a foreign language other than German, at a level equivalent to two years of college study or four years of high school study.

Students may demonstrate competence by submitting proof that they have taken the required course work with a g.p.a. of at least 3.00, or by passing an exam at the fourth-semester college level as determined by the appropriate language department.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in German requires a minimum of 75 s.h. of graduate credit, including at least 27 s.h. in post-M.A. courses and a dissertation. No more than 12 s.h. of post-course-work dissertation credit may be counted toward the degree.

Ph.D. students choose one of three concentrations: German literature, Germanic linguistics, or combined literature and linguistics. In addition to satisfying the course requirements of their concentration, students must develop an independent research program that combines core and specialty areas within their concentration. These areas form the basis for the student's qualifying exam, comprehensive exam, and dissertation.

German literature students must complete five literature courses (15 s.h.) and must earn 12 s.h. of the required 27 s.h. in post-M.A. courses in the Department of German.

Germanic linguistics students must complete at least five linguistics courses (15 s.h.) and must earn 12 s.h. of the required 27 s.h. in post-M.A. courses in the Department of German.

Combined literature and linguistics students must complete at least five concentration area courses (15 s.h.) and must earn 21 s.h. of the required 27 s.h. in post-M.A. courses in the Department of German. They plan the balance of their courses with their advisory committee, generally taking four courses in their dissertation area.

All Ph.D. course work taken outside the department requires the graduate advisor's consent.

CORE AND SPECIALTY READING LISTS

By the end of their second semester in the Ph.D. program, students must have compiled a core area reading list and a specialty area reading list. The expectations for each list vary by concentration.

German Literature Concentration

The core area reading list for the literature concentration comprises 70-100 works that cover at least three genres from a distinct historical period of German literature. For sample reading lists, contact the Department of German.

The specialty area reading list for the literature concentration comprises approximately 40 works from a specific field of literary research: a genre, body of theory, major author(s), or second historical period.

Germanic Linguistics Concentration

The core area reading list for the linguistics concentration comprises lists one and two in all six areas of the Department of German linguistics reading list. Students also select one of the six areas as a specialty concentration for the qualifying exam and assemble a reading list of 10-20 titles from the relevant list three of the linguistics reading list. The linguistics reading list is available from the department's linguistics faculty members.

The specialty area reading list for the linguistics concentration comprises 10-20 titles from list three in one of the six areas of the Department of German linguistics reading list. The specialty list for the comprehensive exam must be in an area different from that for the core area of the qualifying exam.

Literature and Linguistics Concentration

The core area reading list for the combined literature and linguistics concentration comprises 35-50 works of literature in at least two genres from a specific literary period, and all titles from lists one and two in these areas of the Department of German linguistics reading list.

The specialty area reading list for the combined literature and linguistics concentration follows the guidelines for the linguistics or literature specialty area list, depending on the student's preference. The specialty area concentration must be distinct from that of the research paper: students who choose literature as the specialty area write a research paper that concerns linguistics, and those who choose linguistics as the specialty area write a research paper that concerns literature.

GRADUATE LANGUAGE TOOLS: PH.D.

Students must demonstrate a reading knowledge of two languages determined by the advisor to be pertinent to the student's research interests.

Students may demonstrate competence by submitting proof that they have taken the required course work with a g.p.a. of at least 3.00, or by passing an exam at the fourth-semester college level as determined by the appropriate language department.

QUALIFYING AND COMPREHENSIVE EXAMS

Students prepare five essay questions on the basis of their core area reading list, in consultation with their qualifying exam committee, which approves the final list. The committee selects three of the questions for the student to answer in writing on the exam. Approximately one week after the written exam, the committee and student convene for a one-hour oral exam based on the core area reading list and the student's written exam responses.

No later than two weeks before the oral exam, the student must submit two essays to the comprehensive exam committee. One is a review essay (10-15 pages) that analyzes key issues in a selection of works from the student's specialty area reading list, together with an annotated bibliography that covers titles from the reading list not addressed in the essay. The other is a research essay (25-35 pages) of publishable quality written in consultation with the comprehensive exam committee chair; the essay may be based on a seminar paper of exceptional quality or a potential chapter of the student's dissertation. The student takes a final two-hour oral examination focusing on the review essay and research paper, ordinarily during finals week. After the oral exam, the student produces a written dissertation prospectus for approval by the dissertation committee.

Admission

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Financial Support

Teaching assistantships, research assistantships, and partial tuition scholarships are available for qualified graduate students. The department awards the Wilson and the Funke prizes to students of distinction.

Facilities

Students have the opportunity to improve their comprehension and command of German by working with recorded materials in the Language Media Center. They also may benefit from the multimedia courseware and digital video recordings from German television.

An extensive collection of works and periodicals in the University of Iowa Libraries facilitates research in all major areas of German literature and Germanic linguistics and at all levels of study.

The International Crossroads Community is an on-campus housing option for undergraduate and graduate students.

The Global Health Studies Program examines how dynamic processes of change affect health worldwide. It views health issues and health care in developing and developed countries, including the United States, in light of themes, processes, and institutions that influence health and disease. Among these are technology, culture, politics, religion, legal structure, history, and economy.

The Global Health Studies Program emphasizes career and vocational aspects of global health work and prepares students for occupations that increasingly demand critical interdisciplinary and international thinking skills and perspectives. It provides an understanding of phenomena, such as infectious and chronic diseases, fitness and longevity, climate change and natural disasters, environmental hazards, use of legal and illegal drugs, interventions against violence, war and injuries, new biomedical technologies, reproductive health and family planning, human rights, access to health care, and non-Western health cultures and alternative therapies.

It also promotes an institutional focus that enables students and faculty members from different departments, colleges, and disciplines University-wide to meet on the common ground of their shared interests in global health issues.

The program attracts undergraduate, graduate, and professional students from a wide range of disciplines: public health, health and pre-health sciences, health economics, nursing, social sciences, environmental engineering, anthropology, history, law, business, journalism, social work, and education.

The program offers the Certificate in Global Health Studies for undergraduate and graduate students and a minor in global health studies for undergraduates.

Certificate

The Certificate in Global Health Studies requires 25 s.h. and is open to undergraduate and graduate students. It requires core courses, electives, and health-related research, usually in a foreign country. Courses may be chosen from those offered by the Global Health Studies Program (see "Courses" below) and by other departments and programs (see "Approved Electives"). Students may be granted credit toward the certificate for course work they completed up to two years before beginning the program.

Students must maintain a g.p.a. of 3.00 or higher in work for the certificate.

To enter the program, undergraduate students must already be enrolled at The University of Iowa. To apply, they must complete the certificate program application form, available on the Global Health Studies Program web site. Graduate students should contact the director of the Global Health Studies Program for admission information.

Certificate requirements are as follows.

CORE COURSES

All of these:

152:111/173:111/175:111 International Health	3 s.h.
152:150 Research Design in Global Health (may be repeated for elective credit)	3 s.h.
152:151 Proseminar in Global Health	1 s.h.
152:152 Global Health Conference (may be repeated for elective credit)	1 s.h.

ELECTIVES

Students complete 17 s.h. of approved electives, including at least 9 s.h. in residence at The University of Iowa. Students may petition to take courses not on the approved list (see "Courses" and "Approved Electives"), providing they can show that the courses include substantial material related to global health. Contact the Global Health Studies Program for details.

FOREIGN STUDY OR RESEARCH

Students must complete a study or research project of six to eight weeks duration, typically in a foreign setting but under some circumstances in the United States. They may develop and conduct a research project, participate in a health-related study abroad program, assist a faculty member with research, or complete an internship on a global/environmental health issue.

Projects require approval by the Global Health Studies Program steering committee and must be supervised by a faculty member. Students may apply up to 8 s.h. of academic credit for research or internship experiences to the elective requirement.

Financial support may be available for some projects. Contact the Global Health Studies Program.

Foreign Language Study

Students should complete four semesters of modern language study or course work that fulfills or is equivalent to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program foreign language component. This certificate requirement can be waived for students whose first language is not English.

The Global Health Studies Program steering committee may require students to take additional language study in preparation for a research or internship program. Students interested in learning an infrequently taught language to facilitate their participation in a foreign experience should investigate the Autonomous Language Learning Network (ALLNET) of International Programs.

Unless foreign language course work is integral to a study abroad program, it may not count toward the 25 s.h. required for the certificate.

Public Presentation

During the semester following the foreign experience, students present their foreign research project results to a special session of 152:150 Research Design in Global Health or to an equivalent public forum, such as a departmental seminar. Students also must submit a two- to three-page project report summarizing their research, study abroad, or internship experiences.

Approved Electives

In addition to courses offered by the Global Health Studies Program (see "Courses"), students may use the following courses to complete requirements for the certificate or minor.

AGING sTUDIES

153:108 Basic Aspects of Aging	3 s.h.
--------------------------------	--------

ANTHROPOLOGY

113:133 The Anthropology of Women's Health	3 s.h.
113:136 Applied Anthropology (when topic is environmental and community health)	3 s.h.

COMMUNITY AND BEHAVIORAL HEALTH

172:130 Social Determinants of Health	3 s.h.
172:150 Health Behavior and Health Education	3 s.h.

ECONOMICS

06E:113 Health Economics	3 s.h.
--------------------------	--------

EDUCATION

07B:195 Research in Cross-Cultural Settings	3 s.h.
---	--------

HISTORY

16W:140 Disease, Politics, and Health in South Asia 3 s.h.

LITERATURE, SCIENCE, AND THE ARTS

033:153 Hard Cases: Science Policy and Values (when topic is health related) 3 s.h.

NURSING

096:175 Issues in International Nursing and Health Care 3 s.h.

OCCUPATIONAL AND ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH

175:197 Environmental Health 3 s.h.

PUBLIC HEALTH

170:101 Introduction to Public Health 3 s.h.
170:171 Problems in Public Health (when topic is tobacco control and prevention) arr.

Minor

The minor in global health studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h., including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

The minor is interdisciplinary, designed for undergraduates who wish to study health issues in a global context. It draws on a set of courses offered by the Global Health Studies Program and the Departments of Anthropology, Economics, Geography, History, Sociology, and Psychology; the Program in Literature, Science, and the Arts; and the Colleges of Engineering, Law, Nursing, and Public Health, and the Carver College of Medicine.

Students may choose from those offered by the Global Health Studies Program (see "Courses") or by other departments and programs (see "Approved Electives" above). They should choose course work from at least two different disciplines. A period of study abroad focused on global health issues is highly recommended.

Each student's plan of study for the minor is developed according to the student's interests and in consultation with a program advisor.

Activities and Resources

The Global Health Studies Program organizes both on-campus and international activities and research opportunities for students and faculty members, enabling them to become acquainted with major global health issues. Several scholarships, academic fellowships, international fellowships, and research and study abroad programs supplement the global health studies certificate program. These are sponsored by the University and a variety of agencies. Contact the Global Health Studies Program for details.

Global Health Studies Courses

152:111 International Health 3 s.h.

Urgent health problems in the developing world and among disadvantaged populations in developed countries; biological, social, cultural, political aspects of international health problems; applications of research methods from epidemiology, environmental health, social sciences. Same as 173:111, 175:111.

- 152:112 Global Environmental Health Policy 3 s.h.
- 152:120 Global Health and Human Rights 2-3 s.h.
Requirements: junior or senior standing.
- 152:121 Health of Indigenous Peoples 3 s.h.
Health problems and services for indigenous populations worldwide, from perspective of Fourth World postcolonial politics. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010. Same as 113:121, 149:121.
- 152:125 Topics in Global Health 1-3 s.h.
- 152:131 Geography of Health 1-3 s.h.
Provision of health care in selected countries, with particular reference to the Third World; focus on problems of geographical, economic, cultural accessibility to health services; disease ecology, prospective payment systems, privatization, medical pluralism. Same as 044:131.
- 152:135 Global Health and Global Food 3 s.h.
Practices, patterns, and policies that contribute to the epidemics of obesity, diabetes, and heart disease in wealthy populations; environmental degradation, hunger, and malnutrition among impoverished populations; strategies to meet food and agricultural needs for the world; local/global aspects or perspectives on food/health concerns for Iowa and the international community. Same as 027:135.
- 152:137 History of Public Health 3 s.h.
State-endorsed measures to avert or control disease in society. Same as 16W:137.
- 152:138 History of Global Health 3 s.h.
Foremost problems of health and disease in colonial and postcolonial societies; topical approach. Same as 16W:138.
- 152:150 Research Design in Global Health 2-3 s.h.
Preparation for an international research project. Offered fall and spring semesters.
- 152:151 Proseminar in Global Health 1 s.h.
Important health problems and issues of a global and interrelated nature that affect the developed and developing world.
- 152:152 Global Health Conference 1 s.h.
Annual research conference on major global health issues. Requirements: conference registration.
- 152:158 Promoting Health Globally 3 s.h.
Major global health threats (e.g., infectious disease, violence, tobacco, and nutrition); the impact of culture, history, and economics on health disparities and remedies. Requirements: junior or senior standing, or certificate student. Same as 027:176.
- 152:160 Global Health Seminar 3 s.h.
Local and global dimensions of health and disease.
- 152:162 Principles of Environmental Engineering 4 s.h.
Water supply and treatment processes; wastewater treatment processes; processes for air pollution control, groundwater remediation; solid and hazardous waste management. Prerequisites: 053:050. Same as 053:055.
- 152:170 Health Care and Health Reforms in Russia 3 s.h.
Societal changes and their continuing effect on the Russian health care system since 1991; guest lectures from public health, nursing, medicine, cultural anthropology. Same as 041:104.
- 152:175 Issues in International Nursing and Health Care 3 s.h.

Same as 096:175.

152:182 Health Experience of Immigrants, Migrants, and Refugees 3 s.h.

Unique health challenges and health care experiences of recent immigrants, refugees, migrants.

152:184 Anthropology and International Health 3 s.h.

Anthropological contributions to and critiques of the international health enterprise; case studies illustrating anthropology and international health's intersection, and their differences. Offered spring semesters. Same as 113:184, 172:131.

152:185 Medical Anthropology 3 s.h.

Major theoretical, methodological approaches; international health and development; biomedicine as a cultural system; ethnomedicine; anthropology and AIDS, human reproduction, epidemiology, ethnopsychiatry. Prerequisites: 113:003 or 113:010. Same as 113:185, 172:173.

152:199 Special Projects in Global Health arr.

152:217 Health Insurance and Managed Care 3 s.h.

History and theory of insurance, comparative health systems, health systems and networks, HMOs, public health insurance, care for uninsured; emphasis on public policy. Prerequisites: 046:263 or 174:212, and 174:200. Same as 174:217.

152:252 Environmental Health Policy 3 s.h.

Major concerns in environment and human health, legislation enacted to deal with these concerns; emphasis on contemporary issues. Offered fall semesters of odd years. Requirements: (for 175:252) 175:197; (for 053:204) 053:050. Same as 053:204, 175:252.

152:257 Epidemiology of Infectious Diseases 3 s.h.

Underlying epidemiological concepts of infection disease, including causation and surveillance; prevention and control; case studies. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 173:140. Same as 173:255.

Health and Human Physiology

Chair: Kevin C. Kregel

Professors: John P. Albright (Orthopaedics and Rehabilitation/Health and Human Physiology), Annunziato Amendola (Orthopaedics and Rehabilitation/Health and Human Physiology), Joseph A. Buckwalter (Orthopaedics and Rehabilitation/Health and Human Physiology), Warren G. Darling (Health and Human Physiology/Physical Therapy and Rehabilitation Science), Kathleen F. Janz, Alan K. Johnson (Psychology/Health and Human Physiology), Kevin C. Kregel, Kenneth E. Mobily (Leisure Studies/Health and Human Physiology)

Professors emeriti: Donald R. Casady, Jerry A. Maynard

Associate professors: Kelly J. Cole (Health and Human Physiology/Physical Therapy and Rehabilitation Science), Gina C. Schatteman, Don D. Sheriff, Harald M. Stauss

Associate professor emeritus: Gary F. Hansen

Assistant professor: Kerry R. McGannon

Adjunct assistant professor: Michael C. Lyons

Adjunct instructors: Matthew R. Doyle, Patricia Kutcher, Diane L. Rotella, Jennie L. Sertterh, Michael A. Shaffer

Lecturers: Ray F. Fagenbaum, Shawn W. Flanagan, Amy Fletcher, Danny T. Foster, Christina R. Johnson, Katherine R. Mellen, Clayton R. Peterson, Marc A. Pizzimenti, Marylen C. Rimando

Undergraduate degrees: B.A. in Health and Human Physiology; B.S. in Health and Human Physiology, Athletic Training

Undergraduate nondegree programs: Minor in Human Physiology, Health Promotion

Graduate degrees: M.S. in Exercise Science, Ph.D. in Integrative Physiology

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~iphsio/>

The Department of Health and Human Physiology offers undergraduate and graduate programs in health and human physiology. Graduate students may choose from five different areas of specialization for the M.S. with thesis, and from four different areas for the Ph.D. The department also offers an undergraduate major in athletic training, in collaboration with the Department of Orthopaedics and Rehabilitation in the Carver College of Medicine.

In addition, the department is home to the Health and Physical Activity Skills Program (formerly the Physical Education Skills Program), which offers courses that provide instruction and practice in lifetime sports, fitness training, and wellness activities aimed at enhancing physical health and well-being. The program's courses are approved in the health and physical activity area of the General Education Program.

Undergraduate Programs

The Department of Health and Human Physiology offers a Bachelor of Arts and a Bachelor of Science in health and human physiology, and a Bachelor of Science in athletic training. It also offers a minor in human physiology and in health promotion.

Bachelor of Arts in Health and Human Physiology

The Bachelor of Arts in health and human physiology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including work for the major, which varies by track. The health promotion track requires a total of 52-55 s.h. of work for the major; the health studies track requires 40-42 s.h. of work for the major. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The health promotion track is intended for students seeking careers that promote wellness in the community and the workplace. The health studies track is designed for students who want a more flexible health science background.

Admission to the health promotion track is selective; students must apply and be admitted. Applicants must have completed a minimum of 24 s.h. at The University of Iowa, including the three courses listed under "Science and Math Foundation" below (chemistry, biology, and mathematics or statistics); transfer students must have completed a minimum of 12 s.h. at The University of Iowa. Applicants must have a University of Iowa and cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.70. Applications may be submitted during the semester in which the student is completing the required number of semester hours and final course work required for admission to the major.

Admission to the health studies track is open; no application is required.

Students in both tracks are required to complete a set of common requirements as well as several courses required specifically for their track.

Common Requirements

Both tracks require the following science and math foundation (at least 10-12 s.h.) and the departmental core (12 s.h.).

SCIENCE AND MATH FOUNDATION

All students complete three foundation courses (10-12 s.h.)--one each in chemistry, biology, and mathematics or statistics.

Chemistry--one of these:

004:007 General Chemistry I (or one year of high school chemistry)

3 s.h.

004:011 Principles of Chemistry I

4 s.h.

Biology--one of these:

002:002 Introductory Animal Biology	4 s.h.
002:010 Principles of Biology I	4 s.h.
002:021 Human Biology	4 s.h.

Mathematics or statistics--one of these:

22M:009 Elementary Functions	4 s.h.
22M:015 Mathematics for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:016 Calculus for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business	4 s.h.
22M:025 Calculus I	4 s.h.
22S:008 Statistics for Business	4 s.h.
22S:025 Elementary Statistics and Inference	3 s.h.
22S:101 Biostatistics	3 s.h.
22S:102/07P:143 Introduction to Statistical Methods	3 s.h.
171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics	3 s.h.

DEPARTMENTAL CORE

All students must complete each course in the departmental core (12 s.h.).

027:039 Physical Activity and Health	3 s.h.
027:040 Nutrition and Health	3 s.h.
027:053 Human Anatomy	3 s.h.
027:130 Human Physiology	3 s.h.

Health Promotion Track Requirements

Health promotion track students complete the following health promotion core courses (18 s.h.) and guided electives (12 s.h.) in addition to the courses listed under "Common Requirements" above.

HEALTH PROMOTION CORE

All these (18 s.h.):

027:134 Nutrition Interventions	3 s.h.
027:136 Health Behavior and Health Promotion	3 s.h.
027:137 Community and Worksite Health Promotion	3 s.h.
027:138 Exercise Testing and Prescription I: Metabolic Health	3 s.h.
027:139 Exercise Testing and Prescription II: Musculoskeletal Health	3 s.h.
027:156 Planning and Evaluating Health Interventions	3 s.h.

HEALTH PROMOTION GUIDED ELECTIVES

Students must complete at least 12 s.h. selected from the courses below; they must earn at least 6 s.h. in courses numbered 100 or above.

Entrepreneurship and Leadership

06A:001 Introduction to Financial Accounting	3 s.h.
06T:050 Foundations in Entrepreneurship	2 s.h.
06T:120 Entrepreneurship and Innovation	3 s.h.
06T:144 Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness I	3 s.h.

Global Health and Health Disparities

027:135 Global Health and Global Food	3 s.h.
027:176 Promoting Health Globally	3 s.h.
152:131 Geography of Health	3 s.h.

152:152 Global Health Conference	1 s.h.
152:160 Global Health Seminar	3 s.h.
172:135 Health Disparities and Cultural Competence	2-4 s.h.
174:102 Introduction to the U.S. Health Care System	3 s.h.
175:197 Environmental Health	3 s.h.

Health Communication and Psychology

07C:175 Motivational Interviewing	3 s.h.
07C:190 Group Processes for Related Professions	3 s.h.
07C:199 Counseling for Related Professions	3 s.h.
019:160 Media and Health	3 s.h.
027:076 Psychological Aspects of Sport and Physical Activity	3 s.h.
027:110 Health Literacy	3 s.h.
027:144 Peer Health Education	3 s.h.
027:174 Applied Sport and Exercise Psychology	3 s.h.
027:244 Seminar in Health and Physical Activity Behavior	3 s.h.
031:152 Health Psychology	3 s.h.
031:170 Behavior Modification	3 s.h.
173:120 Principles of Public Health Informatics	3 s.h.

Health Promotion Specializations

07C:130 Human Sexuality	3 s.h.
07C:185 Introduction to Substance Abuse	3 s.h.
027:030 Principles of Exercise Leadership	3 s.h.
027:035 Stress Management	3 s.h.
027:133 Sport and Exercise Nutrition	3 s.h.
027:147 Physical Activity and Healthy Communities	3 s.h.
027:249 Epidemiology of Physical Activity	3 s.h.
071:120 Drugs: Their Nature, Action, and Use	2 s.h.
071:130 Drug Mechanisms and Actions	3 s.h.

Human Development and Aging

027:117 Human Growth and Motor Development	3 s.h.
027:148 Physiology of Aging	3 s.h.
027:160 Motor Control I: Neurophysiological Basis	3 s.h.
027:197 Biomechanics of Human Motion	4 s.h.
153:108 Basic Aspects of Aging	3 s.h.
169:077 Introduction to Child Life	3 s.h.

Human Physiology

027:054 Human Anatomy Laboratory	1 s.h.
027:132 Human Physiology Laboratory	2 s.h.
027:143 Physiology of Nutrition	3 s.h.
027:145 Cardiovascular Physiology	3 s.h.
027:154 Advanced Anatomy Laboratory	3 s.h.
027:155 Skeletal Muscle Biology	3 s.h.

027:140 Exercise Physiology for Practitioners	3 s.h.
or
027:141 Exercise Physiology	3 s.h.

Individualized Experiential Learning

027:152 Practicum in Health Promotion (may be repeated up to 3 s.h.)	1 s.h.
027:187 Honors Readings	1-2 s.h.
027:188 Honors Problems	3-4 s.h.
027:190 Preinternship Seminar	1 s.h.
027:191 Internship	6 s.h.
027:195 Undergraduate Independent Study	arr.

Health Studies Track Requirements

In addition to completing the courses listed under "Common Requirements" above, health studies track students must earn at least 18 s.h. in courses chosen from the list below, including 12 s.h. in courses numbered 100 and above.

027:030 Principles of Exercise Leadership	3 s.h.
027:035 Stress Management	3 s.h.
027:054 Human Anatomy Laboratory	1 s.h.
027:076 Psychological Aspects of Sport and Physical Activity	3 s.h.
027:110 Health Literacy	3 s.h.
027:117 Human Growth and Motor Development	3 s.h.
027:120 Equity Issues in the Health Science Workplace	3 s.h.
027:125 Contemporary Nutrition	3 s.h.
027:127 Nutrition in Health and Performance	3 s.h.
027:131 Coaching for Health and Wellness	3 s.h.
027:132 Human Physiology Laboratory	2 s.h.
027:133 Sport and Exercise Nutrition	3 s.h.
027:135 Global Health and Global Food	3 s.h.
027:136 Health Behavior and Health Promotion	3 s.h.
027:140 Exercise Physiology for Practitioners	3 s.h.
027:141 Exercise Physiology	3 s.h.
027:143 Physiology of Nutrition	3 s.h.
027:144 Peer Health Education	3 s.h.
027:145 Cardiovascular Physiology	3 s.h.
027:147 Physical Activity and Healthy Communities	3 s.h.
027:148 Physiology of Aging	3 s.h.
027:149 Seminar: Health in a Changing Society	3 s.h.
027:154 Advanced Anatomy Laboratory	3 s.h.
027:174 Applied Sport and Exercise Psychology	3 s.h.
027:176 Promoting Health Globally	3 s.h.
027:195 Undergraduate Independent Study	arr.
027:197 Biomechanics of Human Motion	4 s.h.

Bachelor of Science in Health and Human Physiology

The Bachelor of Science in health and human physiology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 61 s.h. of work for the major (4 s.h. for the prerequisite to admission to the major, 27 s.h. in health and human physiology, and 30 s.h. in required cognates). Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Transfer credit for course work in the major requires the approval of the undergraduate academic advisor.

The major in health and human physiology is designed primarily for individuals who intend to continue their education beyond the B.S. in the health professions, including medicine, dentistry, optometry, physician assistant, physical therapy, and podiatry, or for those who intend to pursue graduate degrees in basic life sciences. The program includes study in anatomy, biomechanics, health and human physiology, neural control of movement, and the cognate areas of biology, chemistry, mathematics, physics, and statistics.

Admission to the major in health and human physiology is selective; students must apply and be admitted. Admission is based in part based on grades earned in foundational science and math courses. Students denied admission to the major may reapply in a subsequent semester.

GENERAL EDUCATION COURSES

The department recommends that students majoring in health and human physiology fulfill the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program natural sciences requirement by taking 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I, 004:012 Principles of Chemistry II, and 002:010 Principles of Biology I. It also recommends completing the General Education Program social sciences requirement with 031:001 Elementary Psychology.

PREREQUISITE TO ADMISSION TO THE MAJOR

Students must complete the following course before they may be admitted to the health and human physiology major.

004:011 Principles of Chemistry I 4 s.h.

COURSES FOR THE MAJOR: HEALTH AND HUMAN PHYSIOLOGY

All of these (9 s.h.)

027:053 Human Anatomy	3 s.h.
027:054 Human Anatomy Laboratory	1 s.h.
027:130 Human Physiology	3 s.h.
027:132 Human Physiology Laboratory	2 s.h.

At least 18 s.h. from these:

027:117 Human Growth and Motor Development	3 s.h.
027:141 Exercise Physiology	3 s.h.
027:143 Physiology of Nutrition	3 s.h.
027:145 Cardiovascular Physiology	3 s.h.
027:146 Molecules to Malady	3 s.h.
027:148 Physiology of Aging	3 s.h.
027:154 Advanced Anatomy Laboratory	3 s.h.
027:155 Skeletal Muscle Biology	3 s.h.
027:160 Motor Control I: Neurophysiological Basis	3 s.h.
027:165 Introduction to Human Pharmacology	3 s.h.
027:195 Undergraduate Independent Study	arr.
027:197 Biomechanics of Human Motion	4 s.h.

COURSES FOR THE MAJOR: COGNATES

Students must complete the following supporting course work (total of 30 s.h.) in subjects outside of health and human physiology (cognates).

Biology

002:010-002:011 Principles of Biology I-II 8 s.h.

At least 3 s.h. from these:

002:108 Vertebrate Zoology	4 s.h.
002:114 Cell Biology	3 s.h.
002:124 Animal Physiology	3 s.h.
002:128 Fundamental Genetics	3-4 s.h.
002:143 Animal Behavior	4 s.h.
002:145 Introduction to Neurobiology	3 s.h.
002:150 Endocrinology	3 s.h.
002:180 Fundamental Neurobiology	4 s.h.
002:181 Neurophysiology	3-4 s.h.
061:112 Pharmacy Microbiology	4 s.h.
061:147 Survey of Immunology	4 s.h.
061:157 General Microbiology	5 s.h.
061:164 Nursing Microbiology	4 s.h.
099:110 Biochemistry	3 s.h.

099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I 3 s.h.

Chemistry

Students must complete 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I before they may be admitted to the health and human physiology major and before they take 004:012 Principles of Chemistry II.

004:012 Principles of Chemistry II 4 s.h.

These additional chemistry courses are highly recommended.

004:121 Organic Chemistry I 3 s.h.

004:122 Organic Chemistry II 3 s.h.

004:141 Organic Chemistry Laboratory 3 s.h.

Mathematics

One of these:

22M:016 Calculus for the Biological Sciences 4 s.h.

22M:025 Calculus I (or a mathematics course numbered above 025) 4 s.h.

22M:031 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus 4 s.h.

Physics

One of these sequences:

029:011-029:012 College Physics I-II 8 s.h.

029:081-029:082 Introductory Physics I-II 8 s.h.

Statistics

At least 3 s.h. from these:

07P:143 Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.

22S:101 Biostatistics 3 s.h.

22S:102 Introduction to Statistical Methods 3 s.h.

171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics 3 s.h.

RECOMMENDED ELECTIVES

The department recommends that students choose from the following electives in order to complete the 120 s.h. required for a B.S. in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Additional recommended courses in biology and chemistry are listed under "Courses for the Major: Cognates" above.

Anthropology

213:190 Human Osteology 3 s.h.

Biochemistry

099:110 Biochemistry 3 s.h.

099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I 3 s.h.

099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II 3 s.h.

099:140 Experimental Biochemistry 4 s.h.

Biology

002:108 Vertebrate Zoology	4 s.h.
002:114 Cell Biology	3 s.h.
002:124 Animal Physiology	3 s.h.
002:128 Fundamental Genetics	4 s.h.
002:143 Animal Behavior	4 s.h.
002:145 Introduction to Neurobiology	3 s.h.
002:150 Endocrinology	3 s.h.
002:180 Fundamental Neurobiology	4 s.h.
002:181 Neurophysiology	3 s.h.

Chemistry

004:111 Analytical Chemistry I	3 s.h.
004:112 Analytical Chemistry II	3 s.h.
004:121 Organic Chemistry I	3 s.h.
004:122 Organic Chemistry II	3 s.h.
004:131 Physical Chemistry I	3 s.h.
004:141 Organic Chemistry Laboratory	3 s.h.

Classics

20E:103 Medical and Technical Terminology	2 s.h.

Bachelor of Science in Athletic Training

The Bachelor of Science in athletic training requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 57-58 s.h. of work for the major, plus one prerequisite (1 s.h.) to application to the major and several prerequisites (34-36 s.h.) to course work for the major. Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The program provides concentrated studies and clinical experiences leading to national certification in athletic training.

Athletic trainers work with active patients, including athletes, to help prevent injuries, offer advice about appropriate equipment, recognize and evaluate injuries, administer emergency treatment, and determine need for specialized medical care. Athletic trainers also work as members of health care teams involved in postinjury rehabilitation.

Employment opportunities for graduates include work as health care professionals for sports medicine clinics and hospitals, who often work with secondary school athletic teams. Additional education usually is required for employment with professional, college, and university athletic teams. Teacher certification is recommended but not required.

Admission to the major in athletic training is competitive; students must apply and be admitted. See "Admission to the Major" below.

Students who have not formally contacted the athletic training program director before enrolling at The University of Iowa should talk to an athletic training advisor or their academic advisor upon entering the University. Early advising for course selection is vital to ensure that students take prerequisites and sequenced skill development courses in the right order. Students should begin taking prerequisites for required major courses during their first year and should complete their final prerequisites after admission to the athletic training major.

For current information on rules, procedures, and curriculum, contact the athletic training program director.

PREREQUISITE TO APPLICATION TO THE MAJOR

Students must complete this course before they apply for admission to the athletic training major.

027:096 Exploring Athletic Training	1 s.h.
-------------------------------------	--------

PREREQUISITES TO COURSE WORK FOR THE MAJOR

Students must complete the following courses (34-36 s.h.) before beginning course work for the major.

One of these:

002:002 Introductory Animal Biology	4 s.h.
002:010 Principles of Biology I	4 s.h.

One of these sequences:

004:007-004:008 General Chemistry I-II	6 s.h.
004:011-004:012 Principles of Chemistry I-II	8 s.h.

One of these:

029:008 Basic Physics	4 s.h.
029:011 College Physics I	4 s.h.

All of these:

07P:075 Educational Psychology and Measurement	3 s.h.
22S:025/07P:025 Elementary Statistics and Inference	3 s.h.
027:053 Human Anatomy	3 s.h.
027:057 Basic Athletic Training	3 s.h.
028:032 First Aid and CPR (or community certifications)	2 s.h.
031:001 Elementary Psychology	3 s.h.

COURSES FOR THE MAJOR

Students must complete the following course work for the major (57-58 s.h.).

One of these:

027:140 Exercise Physiology for Practitioners	3 s.h.
027:141 Exercise Physiology	3 s.h.

One of these:

071:120 Drugs: Their Nature, Action, and Use	2 s.h.
071:130 Drug Mechanisms and Actions	3 s.h.

All of these:

07C:199 Counseling for Related Professions (or equivalent)	3 s.h.
027:036-027:037 Practicum in Athletic Training I-II	4 s.h.
027:130 Human Physiology	3 s.h.
027:143 Physiology of Nutrition (or equivalent)	3 s.h.
027:171 Administration of Athletic Training Programs	2 s.h.
027:172 Clinical Sciences I	2 s.h.
027:180 Advanced Emergency Care for Athletic Trainers	2 s.h.
027:182-027:183 Clinical Sciences III-IV	6 s.h.
027:185 Clinical Sciences V: Rehabilitation	2 s.h.
027:186 Practicum in Athletic Training III (must be taken twice)	6 s.h.
027:197 Biomechanics of Human Motion	4 s.h.
027:253 Advanced Human Anatomy	6 s.h.
076:187 Practicum in Athletic Training IV (must be taken twice)	8 s.h.

Admission to the Athletic Training Major

College of Liberal Arts and Sciences students may be admitted to the athletic training major and begin clinical experience as sophomores. Applicants to the program must meet the following requirements:

completion of at least 11 s.h. of graded college credit, including 027:096 Exploring Athletic Training with a grade of C or higher; course work taken pass/fail cannot be counted; and a g.p.a. of at least 2.50 on all undergraduate course work.

Preference is given to applicants with high scholastic standing, strong writing skills, and varied athletic training and health care experience. A personal interview may be required; the athletic training program contacts applicants invited for interviews.

Fulfillment of admission requirements does not ensure admission to the athletic training major. The program selects candidates who appear to be best qualified for the study and practice of athletic training. Students denied admission to the major may reapply in a subsequent fall semester.

All students admitted to the major in athletic training are required to comply with entrance and periodic health screening history and immunization, which is coordinated through the program's medical director.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Note: Students must be admitted to the health and human physiology or athletic training majors on schedule in order to complete a four-year graduation plan.

B.A. in Health and Human Physiology

Before the third semester begins: one foundation course, one other course in the major, and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least five more courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least six more courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least two more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.S. in Health and Human Physiology

Before the third semester begins: calculus, one other course in the major, and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least five more courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least six more courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least two more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

B.S. in Athletic Training

Before the third semester begins: three courses in the major and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: six courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: nine courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester: 12 courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Qualified students may earn a degree with honors in health and human physiology or athletic training. Departmental honors students must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program, must maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33, and must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in work for their major.

In order to graduate with honors for the B.A. in health and human physiology, students must successfully complete a health and human physiology honors designation course, research practicum, teaching practicum, or service learning course; successfully complete 027:187 Honors Readings; 027:188 Honors Problems; and in that course write an honors thesis, usually based on original research or creative work; and make an oral or poster presentation of the honors thesis in an approved venue, such as a department research seminar or a professional conference.

In order to graduate with honors for the B.S. in health and human physiology, students must complete the honors research course sequence 027:198 Honors Research I and 027:199 Honors Research II; write an honors thesis that is deposited with the University of Iowa Honors Program and is judged to be of honors quality; and make an oral presentation of their research and thesis that is judged to be of honors quality.

In order to graduate with honors in athletic training, students must complete the practicum course sequence 027:186 Practicum in Athletic Training III and 076:187 Practicum in Athletic Training IV and write an honors thesis that is deposited with the University of Iowa Honors Program and is judged to be of honors quality.

Minor in Human Physiology

The minor in human physiology requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in Department of Health and Human Physiology courses, including 12 s.h. in 100-level courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Transfer credit may not be counted toward the minor.

College-level courses in mathematics, chemistry, and biology usually are required as prerequisite work for health and human physiology courses. Students seeking a minor in human physiology should have sufficient preparation in the supporting sciences before they take advanced courses in the department.

Students choose courses for the minor from the following list. Bachelor of Science students majoring in health and human physiology have priority for enrollment in 027:132 Human Physiology Laboratory and 027:197 Biomechanics of Human Motion; other students must have special permission to enroll in these courses.

027:053 Human Anatomy	3 s.h.
027:054 Human Anatomy Laboratory	1 s.h.
027:117 Human Growth and Motor Development	3 s.h.
027:130 Human Physiology	3 s.h.
027:132 Human Physiology Laboratory	2 s.h.
027:140 Exercise Physiology for Practitioners	3 s.h.
027:141 Exercise Physiology	3 s.h.
027:143 Physiology of Nutrition	3 s.h.
027:145 Cardiovascular Physiology	3 s.h.
027:146 Molecules to Malady	3 s.h.
027:148 Physiology of Aging	3 s.h.
027:155 Skeletal Muscle Biology	3 s.h.
027:160 Motor Control I: Neurophysiological Basis	3 s.h.
027:165 Introduction to Human Pharmacology	3 s.h.
027:197 Biomechanics of Human Motion	4 s.h.

Minor in Health Promotion

The minor in health promotion requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in Department of Health and Human Physiology courses, including at least 9 s.h. in 100-level courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Transfer credit may not be counted toward the minor.

Courses for the minor must be chosen from the list below, according to students' interests and the recommendation of the undergraduate coordinator. Some of these courses have prerequisites, which students must complete before enrolling in the course.

027:030 Principles of Exercise Leadership	3 s.h.
027:035 Stress Management	3 s.h.
027:039 Physical Activity and Health	3 s.h.
027:040 Nutrition and Health	3 s.h.
027:076 Psychological Aspects of Sport and Physical Activity	3 s.h.
027:110 Health Literacy	3 s.h.
027:133 Sport and Exercise Nutrition	3 s.h.
027:135 Global Health and Global Food	3 s.h.
027:136 Health Behavior and Health Promotion	3 s.h.
027:144 Peer Health Education	3 s.h.
027:147 Physical Activity and Healthy Communities	3 s.h.
027:174 Applied Sport and Exercise Psychology	3 s.h.
027:176 Promoting Health Globally	3 s.h.

Graduate Programs

The Department of Health and Human Physiology offers a Master of Science in exercise science, with or without thesis, and a Doctor of Philosophy in integrative physiology. The M.S. with thesis is a research-oriented program designed for students planning to pursue a Ph.D. The M.S. without thesis is a terminal degree intended for athletic training students.

Master of Science with Thesis

The Master of Science with thesis requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit. It is a research-oriented program designed primarily as a first step in graduate study leading to the Doctor of Philosophy. It introduces students to the nature and quality of research in integrative physiology and gives them an opportunity to specialize in an area of interest.

The M.S. with thesis offers five specialization areas: anatomy, athletic training, biomechanics, exercise and integrative physiology, and motor control.

Because the M.S. with thesis is regarded as the first step toward the Ph.D., the required undergraduate background course work depends on the area in which the candidate intends to specialize for doctoral study. Specific undergraduate courses in mathematics, chemistry, physics, biology, physiology, or psychology are required as prerequisites to some areas of specialization. These courses must be approved by the M.S. advisor and the professor in charge of the student's chosen specialization area.

The M.S. with thesis requires the following course work (total of 30 s.h.).

COURSES OUTSIDE THE SPECIALIZATION AREA

Two of these:

027:141 Exercise Physiology (not for students specializing in physiology)	3 s.h.
027:155 Skeletal Muscle Biology (not for students specializing in motor control)	3 s.h.
027:160 Motor Control I: Neurophysiological Basis (not for students specializing in motor control)	3 s.h.
027:197 Biomechanics of Human Motion (not for students specializing in biomechanics)	4 s.h.
027:253 Advanced Human Anatomy (not for students specializing in anatomy or athletic training)	6 s.h.

CORE COURSE REQUIREMENT

One of these:

22S:101 Biostatistics	3 s.h.
22S:102 Introduction to Statistical Methods	3 s.h.

SPECIALIZATION AREA COURSES

027:404 Thesis: M.S.	4 s.h.
Specialization courses approved by advisor	5-7 s.h.

Electives

5-6 s.h.

Master of Science Without Thesis

The Master of Science without thesis requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit, with a g.p.a. of at least 3.00. It is a terminal degree, intended for athletic training students. The program provides advanced study in clinical education and research for certified athletic trainers. It emphasizes development of a base of research and education, and application of that base to the knowledge and skills of the entry-level athletic trainer. Its focus is on a health care team approach to sports medicine, medical care management, wellness, pediatric/adolescent health, and special health populations.

The following undergraduate course work (total of 30 s.h.) is required background for the M.S. nonthesis program in athletic training. Students must have a g.p.a. of 3.00 in the required background course work.

Anatomy

Human anatomy: at least 3 s.h.

Human physiology: 3 s.h.

Athletic training core

Prevention: 3 s.h.

Evaluation and recognition: 3 s.h.

Modalities and rehabilitation: 3 s.h.

Administration: 2 s.h.

Integrative physiology core

Motor control: 3 s.h.

Exercise physiology: 3 s.h.

Biomechanics or kinesiology: 3 s.h.

Electives in related areas: 3-4 s.h.

Current emergency certifications

BOC certification

For the M.S. without thesis, students must complete 20 of the required 30 s.h. in integrative physiology. The degree requires the following course work.

INTEGRATIVE PHYSIOLOGY

Three of these:

027:141 Exercise Physiology	3 s.h.
027:145 Cardiovascular Physiology	3 s.h.
027:146 Molecules to Malady	3 s.h.
027:155 Skeletal Muscle Biology	3 s.h.
027:160 Motor Control I: Neurophysiological Basis	3 s.h.
027:197 Biomechanics of Human Motion	4 s.h.
027:253 Advanced Human Anatomy	6 s.h.

CLINICAL RESEARCH TOOLS

07P:143/22S:102 Introduction to Statistical Methods	3 s.h.
An approved tools or special interest area course	2-4 s.h.

ATHLETIC TRAINING

027:184 Seminar in Athletic Training	1-4 s.h.
027:200 Problems (repeatable)	2 s.h.
027:202 Practicum in College Teaching	3 s.h.
027:301 Non-Thesis Seminar	2 s.h.

One of these:

07P:205 Design of Instruction	3 s.h.
069:133 Introduction to Human Pathology for Graduate Students	4 s.h.
173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles	3 s.h.

ELECTIVES

Maximum of 4 s.h.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in integrative physiology requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. Ph.D. students should have a strong background in the natural sciences, a working knowledge of statistics and research methodology, and a specific interest in at least one area of specialization in the department. Students can acquire additional knowledge of statistics and research methodology after entering the program.

The Ph.D. program offers four specialization areas: anatomy, biomechanics, integrative physiology, and motor control.

All Ph.D. students must complete a dissertation in their specialization area and must submit an appropriate manuscript of the dissertation to a refereed professional journal for publication.

Many of the courses in the specialization areas are offered by departments other than health and human physiology. Faculty members from these departments frequently serve on comprehensive examination committees and on dissertation committees for the initial presentation of a candidate's prospectus. They also participate in the final oral examination.

The Ph.D. requires the following course work.

GENERAL REQUIREMENTS

At least 72 s.h. of graduate credit beyond the B.A. or B.S.

At least 10 s.h. of independent research, exclusive of the thesis requirement

CORE COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Two approved courses in statistics	6 s.h.
027:201 Research	10 s.h.
027:202 Practicum in College Teaching	2 s.h.
027:405 Thesis: Ph.D.	12 s.h.
650:270 Principles of Scholarly Integrity	1 s.h.

SCIENTIFIC AREA COURSES

In order to ensure that integrative physiology Ph.D. students obtain a breadth of knowledge over the key scientific areas that constitute the basis of the major, each student must complete at least one course in each specialization area. This requirement may be met by transfer credit if approved by the student's advisor. The areas of specialization are anatomy, biomechanics, integrative physiology, and motor control.

Specializations

Candidates are expected to obtain a broad knowledge base within their area of specialization. This normally entails approximately 30 s.h. of course work. The following courses are recommended choices for each area of specialization.

ANATOMY

002:128 Fundamental Genetics	4 s.h.
002:150 Endocrinology	3 s.h.
027:155 Skeletal Muscle Biology	3 s.h.
027:253 Advanced Human Anatomy	6 s.h.

060:205 General Histology for Graduate Students	4 s.h.
060:234 Medical Neuroscience	4 s.h.
077:103 Radiation Biology	4 s.h.
099:110 Biochemistry	3 s.h.
099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I	3 s.h.
099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II	3 s.h.
142:220 Protein Biogenesis, Transport, and Degradation in the Secretory/Endocytic System	1 s.h.
142:225 Growth Factor Receptor Signaling	1 s.h.

One of these:

003:219 Fundamentals of Laboratory Instrumentation	3 s.h.
101:212 Biomedical Instrumentation and Measurement	3 s.h.

BIOMECHANICS

027:253 Advanced Human Anatomy	6 s.h.
057:019 Mechanics of Deformable Bodies	3 s.h.
057:020 Fluid Mechanics	4 s.h.
101:212 Biomedical Instrumentation and Measurement	3 s.h.
171:162 Design and Analysis of Biomedical Studies	3 s.h.

INTEGRATIVE PHYSIOLOGY

002:128 Fundamental Genetics	4 s.h.
002:150 Endocrinology	3 s.h.
027:141 Exercise Physiology	3 s.h.
027:145 Cardiovascular Physiology	3 s.h.
027:146 Molecules to Malady	3 s.h.
027:241 Integrative Physiology Seminar	1 s.h.
027:253 Advanced Human Anatomy	6 s.h.
050:240 Human Organ Systems	8 s.h.
060:205 General Histology for Graduate Students	4 s.h.
071:130 Drug Mechanisms and Actions	3 s.h.
072:153 Graduate Physiology	4 s.h.
077:103 Radiation Biology	4 s.h.
077:222 Free Radicals in Biology and Medicine	4 s.h.
099:110 Biochemistry	3 s.h.
099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I	3 s.h.
099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II	3 s.h.
099:140 Experimental Biochemistry	4 s.h.

MOTOR CONTROL

027:155 Skeletal Muscle Biology	3 s.h.
027:160 Motor Control I: Neurophysiological Basis	3 s.h.
027:197 Biomechanics of Human Motion	4 s.h.
027:253 Advanced Human Anatomy	6 s.h.
027:314 Seminar in Motor Control	1 s.h.
051:150 Musculoskeletal Biomechanics	3 s.h.
057:019 Mechanics of Deformable Bodies	3 s.h.
060:234 Medical Neuroscience	4 s.h.
101:212 Biomedical Instrumentation and Measurement	3 s.h.
101:275 Analysis of Sensori-Motor Systems in Health and Disease	3 s.h.
101:285 Biomechanical Analysis in Rehabilitation	3 s.h.

Courses chosen from the following areas: computer science, neuroscience, anatomy, exercise physiology, psychology

Admission

Admission to the graduate programs in exercise science (M.S.) and integrative physiology (Ph.D.) is based on grade-point average and score on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test. Applicants to the M.S. programs must have an undergraduate g.p.a. of at least 3.00. Applicants to the Ph.D. program must have a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 on both undergraduate and previous graduate work.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Deadlines for admission applications are October 15, March 15, and May 15; notification is made approximately two months after the respective application deadline.

Facilities

Classroom and research laboratories for anatomy, biomechanics, exercise physiology, and motor control are located in the Field House and in other buildings on campus. They provide excellent facilities for instruction and research at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Cooperative efforts with other departments facilitate specialization by allowing health and human physiology students to use additional special facilities and research equipment in other departments on campus (e.g., biology, biochemistry, molecular physiology and biophysics, orthopaedic surgery, internal medicine, pharmacology, and the College of Engineering).

Health and Human Physiology Courses

Primarily for Undergraduates

- 027:020 Alcohol and Your College Experience 1 s.h.
Patterns of alcohol, drug use focused on college years; strategies for monitoring use, behavioral change plans for implementing lower-risk drinking practices; for drinkers and non-drinkers. GE: Health and Physical Activity.
- 027:021 Tobacco and Your College Experience 1 s.h.
Current behavior change theories related to tobacco use, cessation; nicotine replacement therapies (NRT), non-NRT methods; triggers, relapse prevention, cognitive behavioral skills, support systems; for smokers and non-smokers. GE: Health and Physical Activity.
- 027:022 Resiliency and Your College Experience 1 s.h.
Resiliency and psychological hardiness theories relevant to college life; resiliency and ability to cope with challenges; components of psychological fitness; skills for personal growth and emotional well-being. GE: Health and Physical Activity.
- 027:023 Food and Your College Experience 1 s.h.
Sociocultural perspective on the forces that facilitate "junk" diets, particularly during young adulthood; basic components of nutrition; opportunity to develop skills in diet planning and healthy eating.
- 027:029 First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.
- 027:030 Principles of Exercise Leadership 3 s.h.
Exercise standards, guidelines for aerobic/exercise instructors; aerobic workout components, contraindicated exercises, injury prevention and treatment.
- 027:035 Stress Management 3 s.h.

Recent theoretical concepts and scientific evidence regarding stress and its effects on body and mind; intervention methods, strategies for managing stress; opportunity for students to use intervention techniques to manage stress. GE: Health and Physical Activity.

027:036 Practicum in Athletic Training I 2 s.h.
Basic clinical skill instruction, evaluation, and integration for athletic trainers. Requirements: athletic training major.

027:037 Practicum in Athletic Training II 2 s.h.
Integration of basic physical skills and orientation to traditional settings; clinical experience for first-year students arranged through the athletic training program. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 027:036.

027:039 Physical Activity and Health 3 s.h.
Physical activity determinants in society; school, workplace, community-based health promotion interventions to improve activity levels; practicum experiences. GE: Health and Physical Activity.

027:040 Nutrition and Health 3 s.h.
Physiology, biochemistry of human nutrition; appropriate food sources; qualitative and quantitative evaluation of diets using standard references. Requirements: health and sport studies major.

027:053 Human Anatomy 3 s.h.
General human anatomy covering most systems of the body. GE: Natural Sciences.

027:054 Human Anatomy Laboratory 1 s.h.
All major systems of the human body, understood through computer-generated images, models, histological slides, anatomical specimens.

027:056 First Aid and CPR 2 s.h.
American Red Cross certification: basic first aid, CPR procedures.

027:057 Basic Athletic Training 3 s.h.
Basic pathology, epidemiology, materials biology for prevention and immediate care of athletic injuries.

027:075 Health in Everyday Life 3 s.h.
Personal health strategies; focus on disease prevention, wellness.

027:076 Psychological Aspects of Sport and Physical Activity 3 s.h.
Psychological theory and research related to sport and physical activity; motivation, aggression, attribution, socialization, competitive anxiety, leadership.

027:096 Exploring Athletic Training arr.
Exploration of professional preparation for athletic trainers; application, career opportunities, professional organizations, awareness of basic athletic training principles.

027:110 Health Literacy 3 s.h.
Community and clinical issues related to health literacy; focus on understanding individual and systemic factors that influence health literacy, including education, context, culture, and health care systems. Prerequisites: 027:039 and 027:040.

027:117 Human Growth and Motor Development 3 s.h.
Human growth and biological maturation; focus on motor development from birth through puberty. Offered fall semesters. Recommendations: anatomy, human physiology, or animal biology course.

027:120 Equity Issues in the Health Science Workplace 3 s.h.
Examination of equity issues in the health sciences, including a review of the historical challenges that led to Human Subjects Review Boards, FDA oversight of drug development and clinical trials, inclusion of women in research; effect of situational ethics in the workplace; potential danger of making assumptions about clients/patients; importance of developing an inclusive communication style; assessing the effectiveness of family-friendly employment policies in providing equitable opportunities for career advancement for both women and men. Same as 145:120.

027:125 Contemporary Nutrition 3 s.h.

Introduction to nutrition; importance of understanding food choices and diet to fit individual needs. Same as 145:125.

027:127 Nutrition in Health and Performance

3 s.h.

Effects of exercise and nutrition on health- and sports-related fitness; for professionals in health and physical education. Same as 145:127.

027:131 Coaching for Health and Wellness

3 s.h.

Opportunities to expand knowledge and develop skills to help individuals change behavior and meet health-related goals; general health and wellness principles; principles and techniques for change; experience providing health-coaching services to clients. Same as 145:130.

027:133 Sport and Exercise Nutrition

3 s.h.

Relationship between nutrition, fitness and sport performance; basic nutrition, physiology, chemistry, psychology, food preparation. Prerequisites: 027:040. Requirements: health and sport studies major.

027:134 Nutrition Interventions

3 s.h.

Strategies for meeting unique nutritional needs of individuals with limitations imposed by genetics, trauma, aging, medications, and so forth. Prerequisites: 027:039 and 027:040. Requirements: health and sport studies major.

027:135 Global Health and Global Food

3 s.h.

Practices, patterns, and policies that contribute to the epidemics of obesity, diabetes, and heart disease in wealthy populations; environmental degradation, hunger, and malnutrition among impoverished populations; strategies to meet food and agricultural needs for the world; local/global aspects or perspectives on food/health concerns for Iowa and the international community. Same as 152:135.

027:136 Health Behavior and Health Promotion

3 s.h.

Principles of epidemiology and health behavior theories applied to multilevel frameworks for health promotion. Prerequisites: 027:039 and 027:040.

027:137 Community and Worksite Health Promotion

3 s.h.

Management and organizational theories; assessment, planning, implementation, and evaluation of clinical and work-setting (targeted) health promotion programs. Prerequisites: 027:136.

027:138 Exercise Testing and Prescription I: Metabolic Health

3 s.h.

Basic techniques in physical fitness assessment, prescription of exercise for healthy and unhealthy adults, promotion of physical activity within communities; provides knowledge and skill competencies required for certification as American College of Sports Medicine health fitness instructor. Prerequisites: 027:039 and 027:130. Requirements: admission to health promotion program.

027:139 Exercise Testing and Prescription II: Musculoskeletal Health

3 s.h.

Educational and practical experience for designing resistance training and flexibility programs; competencies for certification with National Strength and Conditioning Association. Prerequisites: 027:039 and 027:130.

027:144 Peer Health Education

3 s.h.

Experience acting as a peer educator, assisting students in their residential areas, presenting educational outreach programs on health topics, making referrals to campus and area agencies.

027:147 Physical Activity and Healthy Communities

3 s.h.

Development, implementation, evaluation of effective health communication interventions; identification of health education resources for targeted groups. Prerequisites: 027:039 and 027:040. Requirements: health and sport studies major.

027:149 Seminar: Health in a Changing Society

3 s.h.

Diverse health issues explored from individual and cultural perspectives; uncharted health issues addressed through contemporary health-related readings; racial and ethnic differences in personal health. Same as 145:145.

027:152 Practicum in Health Promotion

1-2 s.h.

Experience in planning, implementing clinical and community health promotion strategies including nutrition, physical fitness, cardiac rehabilitation, respiratory rehabilitation.

027:156 Planning and Evaluating Health Interventions

3 s.h.

Assessment, planning, implementation, and evaluation of health promotion programs. Prerequisites: 027:136.

027:174 Applied Sport and Exercise Psychology

3 s.h.

Concepts that underlie peak performance; hands-on experience through lecture/discussion, overnight assignments, activities; understanding of how to achieve peak performance in sport and physical activity, other areas of life. Prerequisites: 027:039 and 027:076.

027:176 Promoting Health Globally

3 s.h.

Major global health threats (e.g., infectious disease, violence, tobacco, and nutrition); the impact of culture, history, and economics on health disparities and remedies. Requirements: junior or senior standing, or certificate student. Same as 152:158.

027:187 Honors Readings

1-2 s.h.

First step to complete an honors thesis; work with health and human physiology faculty member; comprehensive readings in a specific area (e.g., obesity in children, disabilities and sport); readings include primarily research reviews, popular press, and editorials; production of an annotated bibliography summarizing readings and presentation to faculty member at end of semester; brief research proposal summarizing background, research questions, and methods of selected area.

027:188 Honors Problems

3-4 s.h.

Continuation of 027:187; original research or creative project supervised by a faculty member.

027:190 Preinternship Seminar

1 s.h.

Preparation for internship experience.

027:191 Internship

arr.

Directed practical field experience; program planning, implementation, evaluation, administrative procedures. Prerequisites: 027:190.

027:198 Honors Research I

2 s.h.

Research for honors thesis; selection of faculty mentor, preparation of research proposal, written and oral presentations of research proposal, literature review, participation in experiments designed to develop laboratory skills for research; first of a two-semester sequence. Requirements: honors standing.

027:199 Honors Research II

3 s.h.

Completion of honors research begun in 027:198, analysis of data, writing and oral presentation of honors thesis; second of a two-semester sequence. Requirements: honors standing and grade of B or higher in 027:198.

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students*027:130 Human Physiology

3 s.h.

Organ system approach to physiology, with focus on normal function of the human body; information on all levels of integration, from submolecular to whole organism, with emphasis on how the intact organism functions. GE: Natural Sciences.

027:132 Human Physiology Laboratory

2 s.h.

Fundamental laboratory measurements; major physiological systems, experimental design, presentation of experimental data. Corequisites: 027:130, if not taken as a prerequisite.

027:140 Exercise Physiology for Practitioners

3 s.h.

Effects of acute and chronic exercise on different physiological systems (energy, respiratory, circulatory, endocrine); fitness evaluation, weight-control strategies, training programs; preparation for ACSM Fitness Instructor Certification. Recommendations: human physiology course.

027:141 Exercise Physiology

3 s.h.

Mechanisms responsible for the acute and chronic effects of exercise on the different organ systems of the body. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 027:130.

- 027:142 Exercise Physiology Laboratory 2 s.h.
Supplements 027:141; principles of scientific investigation used to demonstrate acute and chronic effects of exercise.
- 027:143 Physiology of Nutrition 3 s.h.
Metabolic and biological aspects of human energy production, relationship to energy consumption; systems or integrative approach.
- 027:145 Cardiovascular Physiology 3 s.h.
Structure and function of cardiovascular system; heart, microcirculation, hemodynamics, regional circulation, reflex integration, regulation during physical stress. Prerequisites: 027:130. Recommendations: calculus and physics.
- 027:146 Molecules to Malady 3 s.h.
Changes in single molecules that lead to systemic physiological alterations in mammals; relationship of these changes to development, aging, exercise, and specific diseases; current methodologies for studying mammalian genetics and physiology. Prerequisites: 027:130.
- 027:148 Physiology of Aging 3 s.h.
Aging's effects on cells, tissues, and organs; how aging influences function of major body organ systems and the whole organism; physiological mechanisms that underlie age-related changes in body function and performance; integrative approach with focus on human aging. Prerequisites: 027:053 and 027:130.
- 027:154 Advanced Anatomy Laboratory 3 s.h.
Detailed gross anatomy of all major systems of the body; structure of the human body at organ, tissue, and cellular levels; examination of various human and other mammalian specimens. Prerequisites: 027:053 and 027:054.
- 027:155 Skeletal Muscle Biology 3 s.h.
Skeletal muscle structure, contractile mechanisms, production of movement, biomechanical properties; adaptation to increased use, disuse, injury. Offered spring semesters.
- 027:160 Motor Control I: Neurophysiological Basis 3 s.h.
Neuroanatomical and neurophysiological bases of human motor control; mechanisms for locomotion and posture, control of arm and hand movements, role of sensory information. Offered spring semesters. Requirements: anatomy or human physiology course.
- 027:165 Introduction to Human Pharmacology 3 s.h.
General pharmacology (e.g., administration, distribution, and elimination of drugs, dose response curves, adverse effects, placebos, homeopathy); pharmacotherapy of selected human diseases, pathophysiologic aspects of the disease, how different classes of drugs modify pathophysiologic effects to restore health or reduce disease's impact; focus on mechanisms of drug actions in humans; adverse effects, pharmacokinetic considerations, drug interactions; how to write prescriptions. Prerequisites: 027:130.
- 027:171 Administration of Athletic Training Programs 2 s.h.
Health care supervision, professional athletic training responsibilities, philosophies in athletic health care. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 027:057.
- 027:172 Clinical Sciences I 2 s.h.
Theoretical knowledge base in therapeutic modalities. Offered spring semesters. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 027:036.
- 027:173 Clinical Sciences II 1 s.h.
Orientation for musculoskeletal evaluation and equipment fit techniques. Offered summer sessions. Prerequisites: 027:172. Requirements: athletic training major.
- 027:180 Advanced Emergency Care for Athletic Trainers 1-2 s.h.
Coordinated initial professional emergency response certifications for athletic trainers; recertification for those holding valid certifications. Requirements: Red Cross First Aid and CPR certifications.
- 027:182 Clinical Sciences III 3 s.h.

Theoretical and practical skill development in the areas of musculoskeletal evaluation for ankle, knee, shoulder, and upper extremity. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 027:172. Requirements: athletic training major.

027:183 Clinical Sciences IV 3 s.h.

Continuation of musculoskeletal evaluation, completion of EENT, chest, abdomen, and dermatologic evaluation; integration of rehabilitation programs. Offered spring semesters. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 027:182.

027:184 Seminar in Athletic Training 1-4 s.h.

Educational issues faced by approved clinical instructors in athletic training education programs. Offered fall semesters. Requirements: graduate standing.

027:185 Clinical Sciences V: Rehabilitation 2 s.h.

Rehabilitation for athletic trainers based on the theory and principles of therapeutic exercise; application of current research concepts. Prerequisites: 027:172. Corequisites: 027:182. Requirements: athletic training major.

027:186 Practicum in Athletic Training III 3 s.h.

Advanced clinical skill instruction, evaluation, and integration for athletic trainers. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 027:037.

027:195 Undergraduate Independent Study arr.

Library or laboratory research related to a specific topic in human physiology, normally culminating with a written manuscript; work directed by a faculty member.

027:197 Biomechanics of Human Motion 4 s.h.

Application of the principles of mechanics to investigation of human motion in two dimensions; system modeling, force system and equilibrium analysis, particle and rigid body kinematics, Newton's and Euler's equations of motion, work-energy and impulse-momentum integral principles. Offered spring semesters.

Primarily for Graduate Students

Repeatable.

027:201 Research arr.

Repeatable.

027:202 Practicum in College Teaching arr.

027:241 Integrative Physiology Seminar 1 s.h.

Current topics in cardiovascular physiology, vascular biology, free radical biology. Repeatable.

027:244 Seminar in Health and Physical Activity Behavior 3 s.h.

Health behavior theories and their relevance to individual, interpersonal, and community-wide health promotion interventions.

027:249 Epidemiology of Physical Activity 3 s.h.

Physical activity/disease relationships examined through application of epidemiologic methods, including research design, interpretation of studies, selection of measures to fit research questions. Same as 173:245.

027:253 Advanced Human Anatomy 6 s.h.

Offered summer sessions.

027:270 Social Psychology of Sport and Physical Activity 3 s.h.

Theoretical and applied bases of social psychology of sport and exercise; motivation, arousal, group processes related to sport, physical activity.

027:301 Non-Thesis Seminar 2 s.h.

For candidates for the M.S. without thesis. Offered spring semesters.

027:314 Seminar in Motor Control Current topics in neural control of movement, biomechanics, and rehabilitation sciences. Repeatable.	1 s.h.
027:404 Thesis: M.S. Repeatable.	0-4 s.h.
027:405 Thesis: Ph.D. Repeatable.	arr.

Health and Sport Studies

Undergraduate degree: B.A. in Health and Sport Studies
Undergraduate nondegree program: Minor in Health and Sport Studies
Graduate degrees: M.A., Ph.D. in Health and Sport Studies
Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~hss>

The Department of Health and Sport Studies is closing. No new enrollments are being accepted in the undergraduate majors. Students who declared one of the majors before the beginning of fall semester 2010 may complete the major. Some courses required by the program may be dropped, so students are urged to finish the major as quickly as possible. See "Bachelor of Arts" below.

Undergraduate programs in health promotion and sport studies are now available in other departments. For information about the health promotion program, see Health and Human Physiology in the Catalog. For information about sport studies, see American Studies.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts in health and sport studies, with two tracks: health promotion and sport studies. It also offers a minor in health and sport studies.

The undergraduate major in health and sport studies provides students with learning experiences in the promotion of health and the historical and cultural context of sport and physical activity.

Admission to the major is selective.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in health and sport studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including work for the major, which varies by track. The health promotion track requires 43-50 s.h. of work for the major; the sport studies track requires 45 s.h. of work for the major.

All students majoring in health and sport studies complete the HSS foundation courses and requirements specific to each track; students should complete the foundation courses as early as possible. At least half of all credit in the major must be earned in residence at The University of Iowa. Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Admission to health and sport studies is selective; students must apply for and be admitted to the major.

Admission and curriculum requirements for each track are listed under "Health Promotion Track" and "Sport Studies Track" below.

Health Promotion Track

Health promotion is a developing discipline committed to improving the health and quality of life of individuals and communities. Health promotion practitioners assess, plan, implement, and evaluate programs that increase health-enhancing behaviors, decrease health risk behaviors, and create environments that support healthy lifestyles.

The health promotion track integrates the theory and applied study of health education with the biological, behavioral, and social factors that affect health. Its content emphases include exercise prescription, active living, dietary assessment, and healthy eating. The curriculum blends natural science and social science approaches to focus on empowering individuals and building healthy communities through changes in lifestyle and the environment.

Community and clinical practicum experiences give students the opportunity to apply health promotion concepts and skills. Supervised capstone internships are available in a variety of organizational settings, both nationally and internationally.

Health promotion courses address certification competencies of the most prestigious national health promotion organizations. Certification competencies include the American College of Sports Medicine (ACSM) Health Fitness Instructor and the ACSM Personal Trainer; the National Strength and Conditioning Association (NSCA)--Certified Strength and Conditioning Specialist; and the National Commission for Health Education Credentialing Certified Health Education Specialist (CHES).

Health promotion track graduates have a strong foundation for a variety of careers. They are prepared for health promotion positions in hospital- and corporate-based wellness programs, nonprofit health agencies, commercial fitness enterprises, municipal recreation programs, and federal and state health promotion agencies. Employment opportunities in these sectors have been good to excellent and are projected to increase according to the U.S. Department of Labor. The curriculum's rigor also prepares students for graduate study in other academic disciplines, including public health, and provides excellent preparation for professional study in health professions such as physical therapy and occupational therapy.

Students must apply for admission to the health promotion track. Applicants must have completed a minimum of 24 s.h. at The University of Iowa, including the prerequisite courses for admission listed below; transfer students must have completed a minimum of 12 s.h. at The University of Iowa and must have completed the same prerequisite course work in chemistry, biology, anatomy, and statistics.

Applicants to the health promotion track must have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.70 and a University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 2.70; having the required grade-point average does not guarantee admission to the track. Students with a cumulative or University of Iowa g.p.a. lower than 2.70 may apply for exceptional admission.

The following courses are prerequisites for admission to the health promotion track. The department determines whether to accept equivalent or higher-level courses that address the same content areas.

Biology--one of these:

002:002 Introductory Animal Biology	4 s.h.
002:010 Principles of Biology I	4 s.h.
002:021 Human Biology	4 s.h.

Chemistry--two of these:

004:007 General Chemistry I	3 s.h.
or
004:011 Principles of Chemistry I	4 s.h.
004:008 General Chemistry II	3 s.h.
or
004:012 Principles of Chemistry II	4 s.h.

Statistics/mathematics--one of these:

22S:008 Statistics for Business	4 s.h.
22S:025 Elementary Statistics and Inference	3 s.h.
22S:030 Statistical Methods and Computing	3 s.h.
22S:039 Probability and Statistics for the Engineering and Physical Sciences	3 s.h.
22S:101 Biostatistics	3 s.h.
22S:102 Introduction to Statistical Methods	3 s.h.
22S:120 Probability and Statistics	4 s.h.
22M:015 Mathematics for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:016 Calculus for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business	4 s.h.
22M:025 Calculus I	4 s.h.
22M:026 Calculus II	4 s.h.
171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics	3 s.h.

Anatomy--one of these:

027:053 Human Anatomy	3 s.h.
060:113 Human Anatomy Online	4 s.h.
060:110 Principles of Human Anatomy	3 s.h.

Students must complete the application form for the health promotion track, available on the Department of Health and Sport Studies web site (see Undergraduate Programs). Applications must be submitted to the director of undergraduate studies by October 15 for admission the following spring semester or by March 15 for admission the following fall semester.

Once students are admitted to the health promotion track, they should plan on at least three semesters of study to complete the requirements for the major.

Because health promotion is a highly interdisciplinary field, students are encouraged to pursue concentrated study in another area. They may earn one or more minors, a second major, or a certificate; or they may complete a cluster of courses related to study in a professional health program. Examples of minors and second majors related to health promotion include psychology, sociology, biology, integrative physiology, geography, and Spanish. Related certificates include the Certificate in Entrepreneurial Management, the Certificate in Aging Studies, and the Certificate in Global Health Studies.

Course work for the major in health and sport studies with health promotion track includes HSS foundation courses, the health promotion core, approved electives, and an internship option.

Students select approved elective courses in specialized content areas such as stress management, tobacco and alcohol, health communications, facility-based management, small business management, aging studies, and global health studies. These content areas allow students to tailor their health promotion program to specific interests and career paths.

The internship option is a capstone experience that provides students with community and clinical practicum experiences, giving them additional opportunities to apply health promotion concepts and skills. Supervised academic internships are available in a variety of organizational settings, both nationally and internationally.

The major in health and sport studies with health promotion track requires the following course work.

HSS FOUNDATION COURSES

Students should complete the HSS foundation courses as early as possible; all three are required (9 s.h.).

027:039 Physical Activity and Health	3 s.h.
027:076 Psychological Aspects of Sport and Physical Activity	3 s.h.
028:074 Inequality in Sport	3 s.h.

Once a student has declared a major in health and sport studies, he or she may not use Guided Independent Study courses to meet the HSS foundation course requirement. Once a transfer student has declared a major in health and sport studies, he or she may not use a course previously completed at another institution to meet the HSS foundation course requirement, unless a substitution is granted. Students who wish to substitute a transfer course for an HSS foundation course must complete a Request for Substitution of Courses form, available at the department office. Substitutions are granted only on the basis of course content duplication.

HEALTH PROMOTION: CORE

All of these (21 s.h.):

027:040 Nutrition and Health	3 s.h.
027:075 Health in Everyday Life	3 s.h.
027:136 Health Behavior and Health Promotion	3 s.h.
027:137 Community and Worksite Health Promotion	3 s.h.
027:138 Exercise Testing and Prescription I: Metabolic Health	3 s.h.
027:140 Exercise Physiology for Practitioners	3 s.h.
027:156 Planning and Evaluating Health Interventions	3 s.h.

HEALTH PROMOTION: ELECTIVES

Students complete 12 s.h. selected from the following list of approved electives; or they complete the internship option, which consists of 6 s.h. chosen from the following list plus 027:190 Preinternship Seminar and 027:191 Internship. In order to be eligible for an internship, students must earn a grade of C-minus or higher in each of their health promotion core and elective courses.

06T:120 Entrepreneurship and Innovation	3 s.h.
07C:130 Human Sexuality	3 s.h.
07C:185 Introduction to Substance Abuse	3 s.h.
027:020 Alcohol and Your College Experience	1 s.h.
027:021 Tobacco and Your College Experience	1 s.h.
027:022 Resiliency and Your College Experience	1 s.h.
027:023 Food and Your College Experience	1 s.h.
027:030 Principles of Exercise Leadership	3 s.h.
027:035 Stress Management	3 s.h.
027:133 Sport and Exercise Nutrition	3 s.h.
027:134 Nutrition Interventions	3 s.h.
027:135 Global Health and Global Food	3 s.h.
027:139 Exercise Testing and Prescription II: Musculoskeletal Health	3 s.h.
027:144 Peer Health Education	3 s.h.

027:147 Physical Activity and Healthy Communities	3 s.h.
027:152 Practicum in Health Promotion	1-2 s.h.
027:174 Applied Sport and Exercise Psychology	3 s.h.
027:176 Promoting Health Globally	3 s.h.
027:190 Preinternship Seminar	1 s.h.
028:133 Nutrition Through the Life Span	3 s.h.
028:166 Exercise for Special Populations	1 s.h.
028:194 Honors Readings	1-2 s.h.
028:195 Honors Problems	3-4 s.h.
071:120 Drugs: Their Nature, Action, and Use	2 s.h.
071:130 Drug Mechanisms and Actions	3 s.h.
152:152 Global Health Conference	1 s.h.
152:160 Global Health Seminar	3 s.h.
174:102 Introduction to the U.S. Health Care System	3 s.h.
175:197 Environmental Health	3 s.h.

HEALTH PROMOTION: INTERNSHIP OPTION

Students who choose the internship option complete all of the following course work.

Courses chosen from the preceding list of electives above	6 s.h.
027:190 Preinternship Seminar	1 s.h.
027:191 Internship	arr.

Sport Studies Track

The sport studies track is for students who want to examine sport in its historical and contemporary cultural contexts. Course work in history, sociology, and psychology of sport and physical activity provides students with the critical skills necessary to understand sport as a significant aspect of cultural life. Sport's interactions with educational institutions, the media, the economy, and the political system are examined critically. The sport studies track also explores race, class, and gender differences in the sport experience.

Many students use their experience in the program to prepare for graduate school. For others, the required second concentration area or minor serves as an introduction to careers in a number of fields, such as sport journalism and athletic administration.

Students must apply for admission to the sport studies track. Applicants must have completed a minimum of 24 s.h. of course work, including 12 s.h. at The University of Iowa. They must have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50 and a University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 2.50. They also must have satisfactorily completed 028:074 Inequality in Sport.

Applicants must complete the application form for the sport studies track, available on the Department of Health and Sport Studies web site (see Undergraduate Programs). They must submit a personal statement (one or two pages, typed, double-spaced), detailing the applicant's interest in the health and sport studies major and in the sport studies track.

Applications must be submitted to the director of undergraduate studies by October 15 for admission the following spring semester or by March 15 for admission the following fall semester.

Applications may be submitted during the semester in which the student completes the number of semester hours and/or the prerequisite course work required for admission to the track. In such cases, admission decisions are pending until the work in progress is completed.

Applicants who have a cumulative g.p.a. of 2.80 or above and who meet all other admission criteria are admitted to the track, but they must complete the application process.

Students who believe they qualify for exceptional admission should submit a written appeal and any other supporting documentation or evidence that may be relevant to their appeal for admission to the sport studies track.

Course work for the major in health and sport studies with sport studies track includes HSS foundation courses, the sport studies core (one course from each of four content areas), approved electives, and a second concentration area or a minor. Requirements are as follows.

HSS FOUNDATION COURSES

Students should complete the HSS foundation courses as early as possible; all three are required (9 s.h.).

027:039 Physical Activity and Health	3 s.h.
--------------------------------------	--------

027:076 Psychological Aspects of Sport and Physical Activity	3 s.h.
028:074 Inequality in Sport	3 s.h.

Once a student has declared a major in health and sport studies, he or she may not use Guided Independent Study courses to meet the HSS foundation course requirement. Once a transfer student has declared a major in health and sport studies, he or she may not use a course previously completed at another institution to meet the HSS foundation course requirement, unless a substitution is granted. Students who wish to substitute a transfer course for an HSS foundation course must complete a Request for Substitution of Courses form, available at the department office. Substitutions are granted only on the basis of course content duplication.

SPORT STUDIES: CORE

Students must complete one course from each of four content areas (total of 12 s.h.).

Diversity in Sport

One of these:

028:078 Women, Sport, and Culture	3 s.h.
028:079 Race and Ethnicity in Sport	3 s.h.

International Dimensions

One of these:

028:072 The Olympics - Ancient and Modern	3 s.h.
028:176 Sport and Nationalism	3 s.h.
028:177 Western World Sport: Greeks to Present	3 s.h.

Contemporary Sport

One of these:

028:175 Sport and the Media	3 s.h.
028:188 Twentieth-Century U.S. Sport	3 s.h.

History of Sport and Leisure in the United States

One of these:

028:178 Sport in the U.S. to 1900	3 s.h.
028:179 The American Vacation	3 s.h.

SPORT STUDIES: ELECTIVES

Students must complete at least 9 s.h. of approved elective courses offered by the Department of Health and Sport Studies. Courses from the following list and courses that were not used to fulfill the sports studies core, above, are recommended.

027:035 Stress Management	3 s.h.
027:147 Physical Activity and Healthy Communities	3 s.h.
027:174 Applied Sport and Exercise Psychology	3 s.h.
027:176 Promoting Health Globally	3 s.h.
028:180 Theory and Ethics of Coaching	3 s.h.
028:193 Independent Study	arr.
028:194 Honors Readings	1-2 s.h.
028:195 Honors Problems	3-4 s.h.

SPORT STUDIES: SECONDARY AREA

All sport studies students must complete 15 s.h. of course work in a secondary area outside the department. Work for the secondary area must include 6 s.h. in 100-level courses or in courses designated advanced by the department or program that offers them. Courses may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Students may use courses required for the coaching authorization/endorsement to fulfill the secondary area requirement; see "B.A. with Coaching Authorization or Endorsement" below.

Sport Studies: Internship Option

Students may earn up to 6 s.h. of credit for an approved internship experience in 027:191 Internship. In order to undertake an internship, a student must have completed the sport studies foundation and core courses, at least 15 s.h. in one secondary area, and 027:190 Preinternship Seminar.

B.A. with Coaching Authorization or Endorsement

Sport studies students may prepare for coaching by completing additional course work that also qualifies them for a coaching authorization from the State of Iowa. This course work is a combination of specific HSS electives and a secondary area made up of courses required to fulfill the coaching authorization. An internship option is available.

Students may fulfill the requirements for coaching authorization by taking the following courses (total of 15 s.h.) as their secondary area requirement (see "Sport Studies: Secondary Area" above).

027:053 Human Anatomy	3 s.h.
027:057 Basic Athletic Training	3 s.h.
027:117 Human Growth and Motor Development	3 s.h.
028:180 Theory and Ethics of Coaching	3 s.h.
One or more electives, totaling at least 3 s.h.

Students may choose from several electives to fulfill the final 3 s.h. The following courses are suggested. Courses chosen to fulfill the sport studies elective requirement may not be double counted.

027:056 First Aid and CPR	2 s.h.
027:140 Exercise Physiology for Practitioners	3 s.h.
028:032 First Aid and CPR	2 s.h.

Students who successfully complete the requirements for the coaching authorization must submit an application to the Iowa Board of Educational Examiners. For more information, visit Coaching Authorization FAQs on the board's web site.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The Four-Year Graduation Plan is not available for the health and sport studies major. Students should work with their advisors to develop an individual graduation plan.

Honors

The Department of Health and Sport Studies is committed to offering high-quality academic opportunities to students. One of those opportunities is honors study in the discipline. In order to graduate with honors in health and sport studies, students must go beyond the basic requirements of the major to demonstrate advanced understanding and skill development in sport, physical activity, and health promotion. They also must be members of the University of Iowa Honors Program.

Students must meet the following requirements in order to graduate with honors:

- maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in all University of Iowa and health and sport studies course work;
- successfully complete a health and sport studies honors designation course, research practicum, teaching practicum, or service learning course;
- successfully complete 028:194 Honors Readings (1-2 s.h.) under the supervision of a health and sport studies faculty member;
- successfully complete 028:195 Honors Problems (3-4 s.h.) under the supervision of a health and sport studies faculty member; in this course, students write an honors thesis, usually based on original research or creative work; and make an oral or poster presentation of the honors thesis in an approved venue, such as a department research seminar or a professional conference.

Minor

The minor in health and sport studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in courses offered by the University of Iowa Department of Health and Sport Studies with prefix 028, including 6 s.h. in 100-level courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students select courses for the minor according to their interests and the recommendation of the undergraduate coordinator.

Graduate Programs

The department offers a Master of Arts and a Doctor of Philosophy in health and sport studies, both with two specialization areas: psychology of sport and physical activity, and sport studies. The department's graduate programs feature an interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary approach to curriculum and scholarship.

The psychology of sport and physical activity specialization integrates examination of the psychosocial aspects of participation in sport and physical activity with analysis of the health consequences of a sedentary lifestyle. The sport studies specialization takes a critical cultural studies approach to understanding sport in its historical and contemporary contexts.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in health and sport studies requires a minimum of 36 s.h. of graduate credit. The thesis option requires 30 s.h. of course work and 6 s.h. of thesis credit; the nonthesis option requires 36 s.h. of course work. The program offers specialization areas in psychology of sport and physical activity, and sport studies. Students in the psychology of sport and physical activity specialization may choose an emphasis in sport psychology or health promotion. The sport studies program focuses on cultural studies and the history of sport.

All M.A. students must complete a group of foundation courses, supplemented with work in their specialization area.

FOUNDATION COURSES

028:202 Critical Perspectives	3 s.h.
028:204 Research Methodologies	3 s.h.
028:300 Research Colloquium	0-1 s.h.

Psychology of Sport and Physical Activity Specialization

The psychology of sport and physical activity specialization focuses on the dynamic interaction of psychological, cultural, and behavioral processes that inform and explain behavior in sport, health, and physical activity. The curriculum integrates the psychosocial aspects of participation in sport and physical activity with an analysis of the health consequences of a sedentary lifestyle.

In addition to providing a theoretical framework for understanding sport and health-related behavior, the specialization provides students with an opportunity to develop skills in exercise prescription and assessment, dietary assessment, and stress management. Practicums are available at the University of Iowa Student Health Service, University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics, Johnson County Public Health, and local community agencies.

Graduates go on to doctoral programs in sport, health, or associated fields, or they enter health promotion, athletic, or sport professions in government, nonprofit organizations, and business.

Sport Studies Specialization

Sport studies is an interdisciplinary program that draws on the insights of history, sociology, philosophy, and psychology to produce analyses of health, sport, and physical activity. Students supplement departmental course work with courses in other departments, such as American studies, African American studies, communication studies, women's studies, history, psychology, sociology, and business. Most graduates go on to doctoral study in cultural studies of sport or history of sport. The M.A. program also provides excellent theoretical grounding for doctoral work in athletic administration, sport management, or law.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in health and sport studies requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit, with 60 s.h. beyond the master's degree.

The program offers two areas of specialization: psychology of sport and physical activity, and sport studies.

Most students enter the doctoral program after completing a master's degree.

All doctoral students must satisfy the residency requirement by enrolling as full-time students (minimum of 9 s.h.) for two semesters, or by enrolling in 6 s.h. for three semesters while holding an assistantship of one-third-time or more.

In addition, all doctoral students must complete the following three foundation courses, at least 3 s.h. of course work in advanced research methodologies, and a dissertation.

FOUNDATION COURSES

028:202 Critical Perspectives	3 s.h.
028:204 Research Methodologies	3 s.h.
028:300 Research Colloquium (total of 3 s.h.)	0-1 s.h.

Psychology of Sport and Physical Activity Specialization

The psychology of sport and physical activity specialization focuses on psychological processes as they interact with social and cultural forces. Scholarship in this program advances understanding of behavior in sport and physical activity through evaluation of theories that predict behavior and through testing interventions that promote sport and physical activity. Interdepartmental study is central to the program; students may select course work in psychology, epidemiology, counselor education, and women's studies. The program provides students with the analytical and research skills necessary for teaching and scholarship at the university level.

Sport Studies Specialization

The sport studies specialization is an interdisciplinary program, grounded in sport history and cultural studies. It explores sport with insights from history, sociology, and the humanities as well as interdisciplinary fields such as American studies, African American studies, communication studies, and women's studies. Students develop analytical skills in order to produce research and cultural criticism of sport, leisure, dance, and physical activity. Careers in scholarship and teaching are the usual outcomes of this curriculum.

Assistantships

The department offers teaching assistantships and research assistantships. Teaching assistants teach health and physical activity skills courses, or they support undergraduate courses offered by the departments. Research assistants work directly with faculty members to support research programs. Apply to the Department of Health and Sport Studies chair.

History

Chair: Colin Gordon

Professors: Constance A. Berman, Jeffrey L. Cox, James L. Giblin, Colin Gordon, Paul Greenough, Linda K. Kerber (May Brodbeck Professor in the Liberal Arts and Sciences), H. Shelton Stromquist, Katherine Tachau, Stephen Vlastos

Professors emeriti: R. David Arkush, T. Dwight Bozeman, Lawrence E. Gelfand, Ralph E. Giesey, Sarah Hanley, Ellis W. Hawley, Henry G. Horwitz, Jaroslaw Pelenski, Malcolm J. Rohrbough, David Schoenbaum, Alan B. Spitzer

Associate professors: Douglas Baynton (History/Communication Sciences and Disorders), Michel Gobat, Laura Gotkowitz, Elizabeth Heineman, Paula Michaels, Kevin Mumford (History/African American Studies), H. Glenn Penny, Marshall Poe, Jacki Rand, Johanna Schoen (History/Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies), Leslie A. Schwalm (History/Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies), Allen Steinberg

Assistant professors: Mériam Belli, Shuang Chen, Michaela Hoenicke-Moore, Catherine Komisaruk, Tom Arne Midtrød, Michael E. Moore, Jennifer E. Sessions, Elke Stockreiter, Omar Valerio-Jiménez

Lecturers: Kathleen Kamerick, Rosemary Moore (Classics/History)

Undergraduate degree: B.A. in History

Undergraduate nondegree program: Minor in History

Graduate degrees: M.A., Ph.D. in History

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~history>

The Department of History's purpose is to increase knowledge of human experience and provide students with opportunities to gain information about and learn methods for understanding their world in light of its past. In addition to offering these essential elements of a liberal education, the department trains professional historians and teachers of history and serves those who require knowledge of a period or aspect of history as background for their own specialized interests in other fields.

Faculty and students in the department participate in many of the University's interdisciplinary departments and programs, including American studies, African American studies, ancient civilizations, Asian studies, international studies, Latin American studies, and gender, women's, and sexuality studies.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts and a minor in history. Graduates of the B.A. program work in a variety of positions in business, education, public service, advertising, and journalism. Many plan further training in history, law, religion, library and information science, or social work.

History majors are encouraged to take courses in other fields that illuminate and expand the meaning of history courses and that introduce information and a variety of approaches to understanding how societies and cultures work.

For example, students majoring in history are encouraged to complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program foreign language component by choosing a language that fits their interests in history. The history faculty particularly encourages study abroad programs that complement students' foreign area interests. Majors also are encouraged to improve their writing and speaking skills.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in history requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 36 s.h. of work for the major. The program is designed for students with a general interest in history. Course requirements include a colloquium, which usually is taken during the sophomore year or the semester after the student elects a major in history. The required portfolio, which should consist of at least three papers the student has written while enrolled in history classes, is submitted to the student's advisor during the semester before graduation.

College Level Equivalency Program (CLEP) and Advanced Placement Program credit cannot be used as part of the history major. Transfer work that is equivalent to University of Iowa course work can be accepted toward the major, but at least 18 s.h. of work for the major, including the colloquium, must be earned at The University of Iowa.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Undergraduate courses are divided into four areas: American history (prefix 16A), European history (16E), non-Western world history (16W), and courses that have no area designation (016).

The major requires 36 s.h. in history courses, as follows. Students may count a maximum of 18 s.h. of American history (prefix 16A) toward the major.

HISTORY COLLOQUIUM

One of these:

16A:051 Colloquium for History Majors (American)	3 s.h.
16E:051 Colloquium for History Majors (European)	3 s.h.
16W:051 Colloquium for History Majors (World)	3 s.h.

History majors take the colloquium as soon as possible after declaring their major. Every colloquium includes assigned papers; students must include in their history portfolio at least one paper from their colloquium.

GEOGRAPHICAL AREA AND ERA

All of these (semester hours are minimum requirements):

Two American history courses, including at least one numbered 16A:100 or above	6 s.h.
Two European history courses, including at least one numbered 16E:100 or above	6 s.h.
Two non-Western world history courses, including at least one numbered 16W:100 or above	6 s.h.
One pre-1700 history course (see "Pre-1700 Courses" below)	3 s.h.

A course taken to fill the pre-1700 history requirement also may be counted toward the requirement in American, European, or non-western world history.

HISTORY ELECTIVES

Elective courses in history (may include the history colloquium) 15 s.h.

History electives may include a maximum of two of the following: 016:001 Western Civilization I, 016:002 Western Civilization II, 016:003 Western Civilization III, 016:005 Civilizations of Asia: China, 016:006 Civilizations of Asia: Japan, and 016:007 Civilizations of Asia: South Asia. Electives also may include all other courses offered by the department numbered above 016:040, 16A:040, 16E:040, and 16W:040.

PRE-1700 COURSES

The following courses fulfill the 3 s.h. requirement for pre-1700 history.

016:001 Western Civilization I	3-4 s.h.
016:002 Western Civilization II	3-4 s.h.
016:005 Civilizations of Asia: China	3 s.h.
016:006 Civilizations of Asia: Japan	3-4 s.h.
016:007 Civilizations of Asia: South Asia	3-4 s.h.
016:045 Middle East and Mediterranean: Alexander to Suleiman	3 s.h.
16A:115 Native North America I: Precontact-1789	3 s.h.
16A:131 The Frontier in American History to 1840	3 s.h.
16A:161 Colonial North America, ca. 1600-1775	3 s.h.
16E:101 Ancient Egypt and the Ancient Near East	3 s.h.
16E:104 The World of Ancient Greece	3 s.h.
16E:106 Warfare in Ancient Mediterranean Society	3 s.h.
16E:107 The Hellenistic World and Rome	3 s.h.
16E:110 Medieval Civilization II	3 s.h.
16E:111 Medieval Intellectual History 300-1150	3 s.h.
16E:112 Medieval Intellectual History 1150-1500	3 s.h.
16E:113 Economic and Social History of Medieval Europe	3 s.h.
16E:116 Ireland in the Early Middle Ages	3 s.h.
16E:117 History of the Medieval Church	3 s.h.
16E:118 The Transition from Manuscript to Print	3 s.h.
16E:119 Women, Power, and Society in Medieval Europe	3 s.h.
16E:120 The Book in the Middle Ages	3 s.h.
16E:125 Society and Gender in Europe 1200-1789	3 s.h.
16E:126 The French Revolutions and Human Rights	3 s.h.
16E:139 Ancient and Medieval Science	3 s.h.
16W:111 Colonial Latin America	3 s.h.
16W:120 Pre-Colonial African History	3 s.h.
16W:172 Japan--Age of the Samurai	3 s.h.

B.A. with Teacher Licensure

Students who wish to qualify for licensure to teach social studies in secondary schools must complete the major in history and must earn at least 15 s.h. in U.S. history (16A), at least 15 s.h. in non-U.S. history (16E and 16W), and 15 s.h. in a related area chosen from economics, geography, anthropology, psychology, sociology, or American government. Courses taken as part of the history major, including Colloquium for History Majors (numbered 16A:051, 16E:051, or 16W:051), may be counted as part of the 15 s.h. in U.S. history and the 15 s.h. in non-U.S. history required for certification.

Students also must complete College of Education professional education courses required for teaching licensure. Not all political science courses count toward certification to teach American government. Course content must center around the American political system or American political issues.

For information about the Teacher Education Program (TEP) or the secondary social studies education program, consult the social studies program coordinator at the College of Education.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan.

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: three courses in the major (including Colloquium for History Majors) and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: four more courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: three more courses in the major and submission of the portfolio of written work to the student's advisor

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major (two courses), all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

The requirement for entry into the history department's honors program is the same as that for entry into the University of Iowa Honors Program: a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33. Through its honors program, the department provides outstanding students with opportunities to enhance their history major in several ways.

The most significant part of the honors program in history is the honors thesis. The thesis is an extended research paper (30-50 pages), usually completed during the spring semester of the junior year or fall semester of the senior year. Research for the thesis is done under the supervision of a faculty member who specializes in the field in which the student undertakes his or her research. Students register for 3 s.h. of 016:091 Honors Seminar and 016:092 Honors Thesis in each of two semesters. The 6 s.h. count toward the total number of hours needed for the history major.

Minor

The minor in history requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in history courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. For the minor, all courses numbered above 016:080, 16A:080, 16E:080, and 16W:080 are considered advanced. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Graduate Programs

The department offers a Master of Arts and a Doctor of Philosophy in history. The graduate programs prepare students for occupations such as high school or college teaching, publishing, commercial research, foundations and nongovernmental organizations, and government or other public service. With additional specialized training, students of history become qualified for careers in archival work, library work, museum work, or historical site preparation and display. Some students enter the joint program leading to degrees in both law and history (see "Joint Law and Graduate Degree Programs" in the College of Law section of the Catalog).

Students interested in graduate work should obtain a copy of the current Guide to Graduate Study at The University of Iowa from the Department of History office. The guide is revised every spring to include the latest faculty listing, research interests of faculty members, detailed regulations on study toward advanced degrees, and other information for prospective students.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in history requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit and is offered with two options: one for students who plan to work toward the Ph.D., the other for students who do not. The two plans differ mainly in their concentration in fields: the Ph.D. track emphasizes development of research capabilities culminating in the essay; the non-Ph.D. track stresses breadth of learning.

The M.A. with Ph.D. track requires completion of a research essay. Students must earn at least 24 s.h. of the required 30 s.h. in Department of History courses, including at least two seminars, or one seminar and one readings course. One seminar or readings course must be taken in each of the first two semesters of residence. Students must earn 12 s.h. in the area of their essay topic and at least 6 s.h. in a second division, including either a seminar or a readings course.

The essay in the major division must be based on original research and should be approximately 10,000 to 15,000 words long. It usually begins as a term paper for the seminar in the major division and is completed the following semester under the supervisor's guidance. The finished product should emulate the character of articles in learned journals, just as the Ph.D. dissertation takes the form of a full-length scholarly monograph.

Requirements for the M.A. with non-Ph.D. track are similar to those for the Ph.D. track program. Students earn 24 of the required 30 s.h. in history. They earn 12 s.h. in one major division of history and must include at least one readings or seminar course. They earn an additional 12 s.h. in history by taking 6 s.h. in each of two other divisions of history, or 6 s.h. in one other division of history and 6 s.h. in a related department. The additional 12 s.h. in history must include at least one readings or seminar course.

After completing these requirements, or during the semester in which they will complete them, M.A. students must take an oral and written comprehensive examination in their major division.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Ph.D. requires at least 72 s.h. of graduate credit, including credit for work done for the master's degree.

Students who earn the M.A. with research essay at Iowa are admitted to the Ph.D. program on the favorable recommendation of the examining committee. Students who earn an M.A. at another university must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College and the Department of History. They must submit a writing sample, such as a seminar paper or an M.A. thesis. They also must take a research seminar during their first two semesters in residence at Iowa.

Ph.D. students must complete at least eight 200-level courses of 4 s.h. each, taken in research seminars (not fewer than three) or graduate readings courses. At least five of the eight courses must be completed before the student takes the comprehensive examination. Courses taken at the M.A. level may be counted toward this requirement. The student also must take a graduate course in the philosophy of history, historiography, or methods of historical research.

The department has no general language requirement for the Ph.D., but the supervising faculty member may require the student to demonstrate a reading knowledge of one or more foreign languages and proficiency in the use of other study tools. Students may not complete the comprehensive examination until these requirements have been met.

The comprehensive written and oral examination covers three distinct fields, two of which must be in a major division that is chosen from the following divisions.

The ancient world
Medieval Europe
Europe, early modern
Europe, modern
Russia and the former Soviet Union
United States
Latin America
China
Japan
India
Africa

Students may construct another field, subject to approval by the comprehensive exam committee.

The third field must be a division outside the student's major division or in a related department outside history. The committee may define and delimit the individual fields for examination. It may also set, separately for each field, the character of the written portion of the comprehensive examination, which may take the form of a syllabus, a critical bibliography, a topical paper, or any other form or combination of forms that the committee deems suitable. The oral portion of the comprehensive examination focuses on issues and problems arising from the examination papers.

The candidate must submit to the dissertation committee a written prospectus for the dissertation no later than the semester following completion of the comprehensive exams. The committee consists of at least five members, including at least one member from outside the department. It considers the prospectus and may approve it, reject it, or require its revision. When the dissertation is completed in final form, the committee administers the final examination for the doctorate, a formal oral defense of the dissertation that usually lasts two hours.

Admission

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Applicants must submit academic transcripts and Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test scores. They also must submit examples of original writing to the history department, such as a term paper, a seminar paper, or an honors thesis; letters of recommendation from three persons familiar with the student's past academic work; and a one- or two-page personal statement of the applicant's purpose in taking graduate work. All application materials are due by January 15 for entry the following August.

Facilities

The University of Iowa Libraries has unusual strength in all aspects of U.S. history. The Main Library houses the Henry A. Wallace papers and related collections, the Iowa Women's Archives, and other unique materials. In European history, special strengths include the fine collections of French and English materials. The State Historical Society of Iowa in Iowa City and the Herbert Hoover Presidential Library and Museum in West Branch also hold valuable research materials.

History Courses

Courses numbered 016:001 Western Civilization I through 016:040 Perspectives: Diversity in American History are approved for General Education, except 016:008 Civilizations of Africa, which is not approved for General Education. # Interdepartmental Studies

Coordinator: David Gould
Undergraduate degree: B.A. in Interdepartmental Studies
Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~indepart>

The Interdepartmental Studies Program (ISP) provides an alternative to traditional undergraduate majors. It gives students the opportunity to design an individualized plan of study track or to choose one of three preapproved tracks: business studies, health science, or recreation management. Each track includes course work from a variety of departments.

Undergraduate Program

The program offers a Bachelor of Arts in interdepartmental studies. It does not offer a minor.

B.A. with Double Major or Second Degree

Interdepartmental studies students may earn a second Bachelor of Arts major (a double major). They may count a maximum of two of the same courses toward the requirements of both majors.

Students also may earn a second undergraduate degree (for example, a Bachelor of Science) while working toward a B.A. in interdepartmental studies.

See Earning Two or More Majors and Earning Multiple Undergraduate Degrees under Earning a Degree in the CLAS Academic Handbook.

B.A. with Certificates, Minors

Interdepartmental studies students also may earn certificates and minors in other programs, departments, or colleges. Courses used to meet requirements for a minor may not be counted toward the requirements for the major in interdepartmental studies.

See Certificates and Minors under Earning a Degree in the CLAS Academic Handbook.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in interdepartmental studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 36-40 s.h. of work for the major. Students choose one of four tracks: the individualized plan of study track, the business studies track, the health science track, or the recreation management track. Credit required for the major depends on the student's choice of track.

The individualized plan of study track requires students to design and gain approval for their own study plan. The business studies, health science, and recreation management tracks each provide a preapproved plan of study and a choice of emphasis areas.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Individualized Plan of Study Track

The individualized plan of study track requires a minimum of 36 s.h. of work for the major, all taken at The University of Iowa. Students who choose the individualized plan of study track build their own study plan, creating a unique major that speaks to interests across departments and that integrates varied approaches to a particular topic (e.g., aging studies, international business, children's studies, environmental issues, health issues).

Students must submit their study plan for approval. The plan must include an essay that provides a clear statement of the area of intellectual focus; the reasons for preferring the ISP to any departmental program; a concrete discussion of how the advanced courses relate to each other, to personal interests, and to the central focus of the study plan; a description of academic goals for the bachelor's degree; a list of advanced-level course work already completed; and a list of advanced-level course work planned for all remaining semesters.

Each study plan is approved by a faculty advisory committee. Reviews are held once a semester. Deadlines are posted on the Interdepartmental Studies Program web site.

If the committee does not grant approval, the study plan may be returned to the student for revisions and resubmission at the next committee meeting. In some cases, the student may be referred to an appropriate departmental major.

Students are required to take the courses approved in the study plan. A limited number of substitutions may be allowed, but only if they are clearly consistent with the area of intellectual focus in the approved study plan, and only if they are approved in advance by the ISP advisor. Unauthorized substitutions may be designated as elective course work.

Significant changes in the focus of a student's study plan require the submission and approval of a revised study plan. The student's academic advisor determines whether changes warrant a revised plan.

See the Interdepartmental Studies Program web site for up-to-date information on the individualized plan of study track and rules for submission of study plans.

Students who choose the individualized plan of study track are advised by the Interdepartmental Studies Program coordinator and work closely with the Interdepartmental Studies Program office while designing the study plan. Students who intend to submit a study plan should contact the Interdepartmental Studies Program coordinator as early as possible.

Business Studies Track

The business studies track requires 35-40 s.h. of work for the major. It provides a preapproved plan of study that combines a generalized business background with a choice of three emphasis areas: workplace practices and perspectives, values and ethics, and arts management. Students also have the option of proposing their own business-related emphasis area to the faculty advisory committee.

Students must have achieved second-year standing to declare the business studies track.

Business studies track students must complete foundation course work (16-19 s.h.), business electives (4-6 s.h.), and one emphasis area (15 s.h.). A minimum of 15 s.h. for the major must be completed at The University of Iowa. The Academic Advising Center advises business studies track students; contact the center for more information about requirements.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major.)

Note: The Four-Year Graduation Plan is available only to ISP students in the individualized plan of study track.

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: an approved plan of study, at least six courses in the plan of study, and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: a total of at least nine courses in the plan of study

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Interdepartmental studies students qualify for membership in the University of Iowa Honors Program by maintaining a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). Graduating with honors usually includes the successful completion of the honors requirements in a particular department or program.

Students should initiate inquiries about graduating with honors by contacting the ISP coordinator. Students are encouraged to inquire early in their junior year to allow time for foundation course work. The director of the University of Iowa Honors Program can offer suggestions for contacting a supervising faculty member or committee from one or several appropriate departments. ISP students must submit an honors project approval form to the ISP coordinator and the honors program director.

Career Considerations

Since the major in interdepartmental studies affords opportunities outside the traditional degree pattern, students must create or choose study programs that meet their individual educational and career objectives. Those who plan to seek employment immediately after graduation should familiarize themselves with the educational background and qualifications required by employers and should include appropriate courses in their study programs.

Students preparing for advanced study should become familiar with the admissions requirements of graduate or professional schools that interest them. The earlier students decide to pursue graduate or professional study, the easier it is to complete necessary prerequisites.

International Business

Coordinators: Patricia Mason-Browne (Liberal Arts and Sciences), Andy Tinkham (Tippie College of Business)

Undergraduate nondegree program: Certificate in International Business

Web site: <http://tippie.uiowa.edu/undergraduate/programs/IBC.cfm>

The Tippie College of Business and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offer the undergraduate Certificate in International Business. The program is open to all University of Iowa undergraduate students and individuals who hold a bachelor's degree from The University of Iowa or another institution and are not enrolled in a graduate or professional program. See "Admission" at the end of this Catalog section.

Certificate in International Business

The Certificate in International Business requires 29 s.h. and satisfaction of the certificate's foreign language requirement (required credit varies according to the language studied). The program is designed for undergraduate students who intend to pursue careers in international business as well as those interested in gaining a better understanding of the global economy and a broader awareness of the political, historical, and social environment in which international business operates.

The certificate program includes study of international business and economics, international relations and institutions, a foreign language, and the contemporary art, literature, culture, and/or politics of the related geographical area. The range of courses permits students to tailor areas of specialization suited to their individual interests and to complement majors in business and in liberal arts and sciences.

Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 on all certificate course work. Certificate courses may not be taken pass/nonpass. A course may not be used to satisfy more than one certificate requirement.

A minimum of 20 s.h. of certificate course work (other than language courses) must be completed at The University of Iowa or in approved study abroad programs. Students who want to use credit earned while studying abroad should consult an international business certificate advisor before leaving campus. University of Iowa Guided Independent Study (correspondence study) is accepted toward the certificate.

When students complete the certificate requirements and graduate, the Certificate in International Business is noted on their transcript. Contact the Tippie College of Business Undergraduate Program Office or the CLAS Academic Programs & Services office for more information.

The certificate requires course work in international business, international relations and institutions, foreign language, and area studies, as follows.

Admission

Undergraduate students pursuing a degree from The University of Iowa are eligible to work toward the Certificate in International Business. Students who already have earned a baccalaureate degree from The University of Iowa may return to complete or earn a certificate in international business if they are not enrolled in a graduate or professional program. Holders of baccalaureate degrees from other institutions who are not enrolled in a graduate or professional program may enroll at The University of Iowa to complete a Certificate in International Business. Contact the Office of Admissions.

Interested students must declare their intention to pursue the certificate with an international business certificate advisor and must submit a plan of study. Students admitted to the Tippie College of Business or advised at the college's Undergraduate Program Office should consult the advising staff in that office. Students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences should consult an international business certificate advisor in the Academic Advising Center.

International Studies

Director: Downing Thomas (French and Italian)

Undergraduate degree: B.A. in International Studies

Undergraduate nondegree program: Minor in International Studies

Graduate degree: M.A. in international studies

Web site: <http://international.uiowa.edu/>

International studies is not simply the study of diplomacy and relations among states. The International Studies Program requires all students to integrate theoretical knowledge about broad global processes and the methods used to study them, with in-depth examination of a particular region of the world or a major theme in international studies. It affords students the opportunity to integrate the study of history, politics, economics, expressive arts, culture, beliefs, and social systems.

Undergraduate Programs

The program offers a Bachelor of Arts and a minor in international studies. The major is an interdisciplinary program of study offered with either a geographic or a thematic emphasis. It prepares students for careers in business, government, international development agencies, nongovernmental organizations, philanthropic agencies, and the arts. It also is excellent preparation for graduate training in the social sciences, the arts, law, business, journalism, international affairs, and area studies.

The curriculum is designed to help students learn to appreciate world cultures, focus on themes of global significance, and master varied disciplinary approaches used to study international issues. For students interested in pursuing a double major, the international studies major complements a wide range of academic degree programs.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in international studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 39 s.h. of work for the major. The program is flexible, drawing on courses across the humanities and social sciences. Students work closely with an academic advisor to plan their program of study, and they work with a faculty mentor on their required senior research project.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Transfer course work equivalent to University of Iowa course work can be accepted toward the major, but at least 15 s.h. of course work for the major must be earned at The University of Iowa.

Students majoring in international studies must earn at least 12 s.h. of the required 39 s.h. in upper-level course work (courses numbered 100 and above). An orientation course (1 s.h.) prepares students to fully engage in their interdisciplinary program of study, and a foundation course (3 s.h.) and two core courses (6 s.h.) introduce them to the major issues in international studies and the varied methods used to examine them. Foreign language proficiency is vital for participating in diverse societies and cultures, so foreign language study beyond the General Education Program requirement is required.

Students select a geographic or thematic emphasis area (12 s.h.) or develop one in consultation with their academic advisor. Each student must complete a senior research project (3 s.h.) related to his or her emphasis area, preparing for the project during the previous semester with a required research course (2 s.h.). International studies electives (6 s.h.) outside the student's emphasis area provide comparative perspectives.

Students who earn a Certificate in Latin American Studies, Global Health Studies, or International Business, or a minor in global health studies or Latin American studies may not choose the corresponding emphasis area for the international studies major.

The program encourages study abroad. See "Study Abroad" below, for details.

DISTRIBUTION REQUIREMENTS

International studies students must undertake course work in at least four different departments and/or programs. They must complete at least 12 s.h. of upper-level course work: 6 s.h. in the emphasis area, 3 s.h. in the elective area, and 3 s.h. in the emphasis, elective, or foreign language area.

ORIENTATION COURSE

Within the first year after declaring a major in international studies, students must complete an orientation course, which introduces them to the interdisciplinary major and familiarizes them with international opportunities in their course of study.

187:010 Orientation to International Studies

1 s.h.

FOUNDATION COURSE

Each student chooses at least 3 s.h. from the following course list, ordinarily early in the major. Foundation courses provide an overview of global issues and introduce a disciplinary approach to global topics, laying the groundwork for continuing study.

06E:125 Global Economics and Business	3 s.h.
030:060 Introduction to International Relations	3 s.h.
036:086 Global Media Studies	3 s.h.

GEOGRAPHIC OR THEMATIC EMPHASIS AREA

Each student chooses one of the geographic emphasis or thematic emphasis areas listed below. The emphasis area is noted on the student's transcript. Students must complete at least four courses in the emphasis area, for a total of 12 s.h.; at least 6 of the 12 s.h. must be earned in upper-level course work (numbered 100 and above).

Courses approved in each emphasis area are listed below. Students may petition the international studies program for permission to include a course not on a list of approved emphasis area courses; they must petition the program by the semester's specified deadline date.

Geographic emphasis areas include Caribbean studies; African studies; East Asian studies; European studies; Latin American studies; Russian, East European, and Eurasian studies; Middle East and Muslim world studies; and South Asian studies.

Thematic emphasis areas include development; global artistic tradition and change; global resources and the environment; global health; human rights; international business; international communication and information; international politics and international relations; postcolonial and diasporic studies; and war, peace, and security.

Other thematic emphasis areas for which sufficient courses exist may be developed by a student with the approval of the International Programs Undergraduate Affairs Committee.

INTERNATIONAL STUDIES ELECTIVES

Students must complete 6 s.h. of international studies elective course work. Electives must be chosen from courses approved for the international studies major, excluding any courses approved in the student's chosen emphasis area. At least 3 s.h. must be earned in upper-level course work (numbered 100 and above).

LANGUAGE REQUIREMENT

All students must complete a minimum of two semesters of advanced foreign language study (work beyond the minimum required to fulfill the foreign language requirement of the General Education Program). This requirement may be satisfied either by completing two semesters of upper-level study in the same language used to complete the General Education Program or by completing two semesters, or the equivalent, of a second foreign language at any level.

In fulfilling the language requirement, most students are eligible to receive an additional 4 s.h. of ungraded credit under the Foreign Language Incentive Program (FLIP). This credit may be applied to the minimum 120 s.h. required for graduation, but it does not count toward requirements for the international studies major.

RESEARCH AND PROJECT PREPARATION

All students prepare for the required senior project by completing 187:095 Research and Final Project Preparation (2 s.h.), in which they learn research methodologies and prepare a detailed project proposal.

INTERNATIONAL STUDIES SENIOR PROJECT

All students enroll in 187:199 International Studies Senior Project during their last year of study. They engage in a semester-long research project that culminates in a substantial written or creative work focusing on a topic in their geographic or thematic emphasis area. The course is completed under the supervision of a faculty mentor.

Study Abroad

Students are strongly encouraged to incorporate an approved study abroad experience into their international studies major. Credit earned while studying abroad may be applied toward the requirements for the major, as appropriate. International studies majors who study abroad in an approved program may apply for a $1,000 scholarship from International Programs in addition to other financial aid and scholarships for which they are eligible. For scholarship requirements, deadlines, and application materials, see Study Abroad Guidelines and Scholarships on the International Studies web site.

It is important to plan ahead for study abroad. Once students choose their geographic or thematic emphasis, they should visit the Office for Study Abroad for help in selecting an appropriate study abroad program.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan.

Note: Students who intend to study abroad in their junior year should schedule an appointment during their fourth semester to meet with an advisor from the Office for Study Abroad. Those who intend to study abroad in their senior year should schedule an appointment during their sixth semester to meet with an advisor from the Office for Study Abroad.

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least three courses in the major (7 s.h., a foundation course, one core course, and the orientation course) and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least seven courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least 11 courses in the major, including the required research preparation course

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major (three courses), all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Students may earn a B.A. with honors in international studies. The option is available to students with a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in all course work applied to the international studies major and all course work that may be applied to the major. To graduate with honors, students are required to complete a minimum of 42 s.h., including three courses (9 s.h.) in a second emphasis area (this takes the place of the 6 s.h. international studies elective requirement). In place of 187:199 International Studies Senior Project, honors students must complete 187:198 Honors Thesis in International Studies and present their research in a poster session sponsored by International Programs.

Honors students must complete at least 15 s.h. in upper-level course work (numbered 100 and above). At least 6 s.h. of the 42 s.h. required for the honors major must be earned in courses designated as honors courses. Students may enroll in honors courses offered by individual departments, or with the instructor's approval, they may designate any course approved for their international studies major as an honors course.

Contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information about honors study at Iowa.

Minor

The minor in international studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in courses approved for the international studies major, including 12 s.h. in upper-level courses (courses numbered 100 and above) and 3 s.h. chosen from courses approved for the international studies core or foundation requirements; of the 15 s.h. required for the minor, 12 s.h. must be taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. To preserve the interdisciplinary nature of the international studies minor, students may count a maximum of 6 s.h. from a single department or program or from another major, minor, or certificate toward the minor.

Graduate Program

The International Studies Program offers a Master of Arts in international studies.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in international studies requires a minimum of 36 s.h. of graduate credit; a thesis or final project is required. The program is designed for students who seek an interdisciplinary approach to graduate study, especially those who have identified an area of international interest and who wish to pursue a tailor-made program on international issues.

The 36 s.h. required for the M.A. includes 33 s.h. of graded course work (thesis credit is not graded); 24 s.h. must be earned after admission to the M.A. program, with at least 8 s.h. earned in residence on the University of Iowa campus. Students must earn a minimum of 21 s.h. in formal classroom work (excluding independent study, research, thesis work, and special projects); no more than 9 s.h. of independent study, research, and thesis credit may be counted toward the degree. A maximum of 12 s.h. earned at another institution or in another University of Iowa graduate program may be counted toward the degree.

Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 in all University of Iowa and transfer course work applied toward the degree.

Basic requirements for the M.A. are as follows.

Graduate-level seminars	9 s.h.
Foreign language study	6 s.h.
International research	0-6 s.h.
Additional course work	12-21 s.h.
Thesis or final project	0-3 s.h.

All M.A. students must submit a plan of study when they apply for admission to the program. The study plan must identify a focus area for the student's course work and research. During their first semester in the program, students review and revise the study plan in consultation with their advisory committee; changes must be approved in writing by the committee.

The advisory committee must include at least three tenured or tenure-track faculty members, who may be drawn from any college at the University. One of the committee members serves as the student's primary advisor and chairs the committee. Students should meet with their advisors at least once each semester, before registration for the next term. Additional meetings and consultations with the advisor and committee members should take place as needed.

International Programs provides a list of faculty mentors, searchable by focus area; see International Studies Mentor Directory on the International Program web site.

Admission

Applicants to the M.A. in international studies must meet the application requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Prospective students are urged to consult with the program about their academic objectives.

Admission is for fall entry only; application deadline is February 15 for the following fall.

For detailed application information, see Application & Admission on the International Studies M.A. web page.

Undergraduate Programs

The School of Journalism and Mass Communication offers a Bachelor of Arts and a Bachelor of Science in journalism and mass communication. Both degrees prepare students for careers in the field. The school also offers a minor in mass communication.

Journalistic writing is the core of the undergraduate programs. Students are required to take both professional and conceptual courses offered by the school; they develop professional skills while studying the historical, legal, cultural, and institutional roles of media in society. The programs also build upon the University's commitment to the liberal arts and sciences, requiring majors to complete extensive academic work outside the school.

Graduates find employment in a variety of areas such as newspapers, magazines, radio, television, online communications, public relations, publication design, photojournalism, and media research.

The school is accredited by the Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communications.

Selective Admission

To preserve the quality of its undergraduate program, the School of Journalism and Mass Communication has a selective admission policy. Undergraduate students with a declared interest in journalism are admitted to the major in one of two ways. First-year students who enter the University with honors standing in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or as Presidential Scholars, Old Gold Scholars, or Daily Iowan Scholars are guaranteed admission to the major as long as they have satisfied the necessary prerequisites. Most students are classified as having a "journalism and mass communication interest" and must apply for admission to the major, typically during the semester in which they will complete the following: 019:090 Media Uses and Effects and 019:091 Media History and Culture; all required rhetoric courses; and a total of at least 45 s.h. of course work (or 30 s.h. for students in the University of Iowa Honors Program).

The primary criterion for admission to major status is overall academic performance. Statement of interest, demonstrated writing ability, prior journalistic experience, participation in journalism student organizations, and performance in journalism courses also are considered for applicants with a demonstrated focus on journalism as a career. The number of students accepted each semester depends on the number of students already in the program and available resources. The school reviews applications with the goal of admitting the most qualified students.

For applications and deadline information, contact the School of Journalism and Mass Communication.

Transfer Students

Transfer students who wish to major in journalism are classified as having a "journalism and mass communication interest." They may apply to the major during the semester in which they complete at least 45 s.h. of course work at The University of Iowa and other institutions, including the rhetoric requirement and the foundation courses 019:090 Media Uses and Effects and 019:091 Media History and Culture. Courses taken at other institutions cannot be substituted for 019:090 Media Uses and Effects or 019:091 Media History and Culture.

The school may accept up to 7 s.h. of transfer credit in journalism toward the major in journalism and mass communication, or up to 3 s.h. toward the minor in mass communication; transfer courses must have been completed at a school accredited by the Association for Education in Journalism and Mass Communication. Course work taken at another school sometimes may be used to satisfy the second major or concentration area requirements. Transfer credit intended to meet School of Journalism and Mass Communication requirements must be approved by the head of undergraduate studies.

Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science in journalism and mass communication require a minimum of 120 s.h., including 33 s.h. of work for the major. Students also must complete a second major or 24 s.h. in a second concentration area. They may count a maximum of 40 s.h. in journalism and mass communication credit toward graduation. A g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the major is required.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Each journalism student develops a study plan in consultation with an assigned faculty advisor.

The journalism major requires the following course work. Students must complete a minimum of 33 s.h., but no more than 40 s.h., in journalism and mass communication.

PREMAJOR FOUNDATION

019:090 Media Uses and Effects	3 s.h.
019:091 Media History and Culture	3 s.h.

JOURNALISM PROFESSIONAL SKILLS COURSES

019:078 Journalism Issues	1 s.h.
019:088 Multimedia Introduction	1 s.h.
019:098 Journalistic Reporting and Writing	3 s.h.
One intermediate reporting/writing course (019:120-019:129)	4 s.h.
A second reporting/writing course (019:120 - 019:129, 019:171)	4 s.h.
One workshop (019:130 - 019:139, 019:172 - 019:178)	4 s.h.
A third reporting/writing course or one workshop (019:120 - 019:129, 019:130 - 019:139, 019:171 - 019:178)	4 s.h.

CONCEPTUAL COURSES

019:140 Media Law and Communication	3 s.h.
One advanced conceptual course (019:141 - 019:169)	3 s.h.

ELECTIVES (OPTIONAL)

Students may earn up to 7 s.h. in additional journalism and mass communication course work, but they may not count more than 40 s.h. of credit in the discipline toward graduation.

GRADUATION PORTFOLIO

Seniors must complete an approved graduation portfolio. Guidelines for portfolios are available at the school's Resource Center.

SECOND MAJOR OR CONCENTRATION AREA

Every student with a major in journalism must complete a second major or a concentration area outside the School of Journalism and Mass Communication. Study in the second major or concentration area enables students to acquire a substantial body of knowledge or expertise in a relevant area, learn how another discipline views the world, and/or develop a companion set of skills to those in journalism and mass communication.

Students who satisfy the requirement by completing a concentration area must choose 24 s.h. of related course work in one or more departments; at least 15 of the 24 s.h. must be earned in advanced courses (in most departments, advanced courses are numbered 100 or above). B.A. students who complete a minor in business administration are credited with completing a second concentration area. Course work in the concentration area must be arranged in consultation with the student's advisor; each student must have the advisor's written endorsement of the second major or concentration area before graduation.

Second Major or Concentration Area for the B.A.

Bachelor of Arts students must complete the requirements for the journalism and mass communication major (33 s.h.) and must satisfy the school's second major or concentration area requirement in one of two ways.

Option 1: complete a B.A. major in another department

Option 2: complete a 24 s.h. concentration of related courses in one or more departments that offer B.A. degrees, or complete a minor in business administration

Second Major or Concentration Area for the B.S.

Bachelor of Science students must complete the requirements for the journalism and mass communication major (33 s.h.) and must satisfy the school's second major or concentration area requirement in one of two ways.

Option 1: complete a B.S. major in a natural, mathematical, or social science

Option 2: complete a 24 s.h. concentration of related courses in the social sciences (economics, geography, political science, psychology, or sociology) and/or the natural and mathematical sciences; and complete all the special math, research methods, statistics, computer science, and/or cognate science requirements required for the B.S. in the department in which the majority of concentration area courses are taken

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan.

Note: With the exception of students admitted to the major directly upon their first enrollment in the University, students are admitted to the School of Journalism and Mass Communication on a competitive, selective basis. The Four-Year Graduation Plan agreement applies only to students who are admitted to major status by the first semester of their sophomore year. Also, each student must complete a second major or a concentration area consisting of at least 24 s.h., of which 15 s.h. must be earned in advanced courses. These checkpoints show only the minimum requirements for a second concentration area, not the requirements for a second major.

Before the third semester begins: either 019:090 Media Uses and Effects or 019:091 Media History and Culture or both, and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: 019:098 Journalistic Reporting and Writing, an additional course in the major, at least one second-area course, and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: two required professional skills courses; one advanced, conceptual, or elective course in the major; three additional second-area courses; and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: two additional required professional skills courses; one advanced, conceptual, or elective course in the major; and two more second-area courses

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, all remaining courses in the second area, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

The University of Iowa Honors Program gives students with outstanding academic records the opportunity to do honors course work under faculty guidance.

To graduate with honors in journalism and mass communication, a student must have a g.p.a. of at least 3.50 in the major and must be a member of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires that students maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information).

Honors students must complete 019:191 Honors Project (3 s.h.) under the supervision of a faculty member. The project may be a thesis or a professional project, typically completed during the last semester of the senior year. Students are encouraged but not required to take 019:190 Honors Readings (1-3 s.h.) to prepare for the project.

All majors with an overall g.p.a. of at least 3.33 are encouraged to take any journalism and mass communication course for honors credit and to make use of other honors opportunities in the school. Visit the Journalism Honors Program on the school's web site or contact the school's honors advisor for details.

Minor

The minor in mass communication requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in mass communication courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses; conceptual courses numbered 019:140 Media Law and Communication through 019:169 Introductory Topics in Mass Communication are considered advanced for the minor. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Courses for the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students are encouraged to take one of the following: 019:090 Media Uses and Effects (3 s.h.), 019:091 Media History and Culture (3 s.h.), and 019:095 Media and Consumers (3 s.h.).

The minor introduces students to the field of mass communication; it does not prepare them for careers in journalism.

National Honor Society

The School's chapter of Kappa Tau Alpha, the national society honoring scholarship in journalism and mass communication, was founded in 1936 and is named for former director Leslie G. Moeller. Students are considered for membership if their grade-point average places them in the top 10 percent of their class and they have completed at least five semesters of University work, including a minimum of 9 s.h. in journalism and mass communications skills courses. Contact the School's Kappa Tau Alpha advisor for details.

Graduate Programs

The school offers a Master of Arts in journalism, with two emphases: professional journalism, and mass communication. It also offers a Doctor of Philosophy in mass communications.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in journalism with professional journalism emphasis requires 30-35 s.h. of graduate credit, including successful completion of a master's project. The Master of Arts in journalism with mass communication emphasis requires 32 s.h. of graduate credit, including completion of a thesis. Each emphasis is described below. For more detailed descriptions, see the Graduate Studies Handbook or contact the School of Journalism and Mass Communication.

The M.A. program admits students for fall entry.

M.A. with Professional Journalism Emphasis

The Master of Arts with professional journalism emphasis is designed for students who have an academic or professional background in media communication and who wish to enhance their careers through specialized study in a specific area. It is a terminal degree, not preparation for doctoral study. Exceptional applicants without the required background may be accepted if they complete one noncredit preparatory course.

In consultation with an academic advisor, each student creates an individual program of courses chosen from inside and outside the school. Examples of areas inside the school are narrative writing, investigative reporting, publication design, and broadcast news. Some areas outside the school are the arts, law, political science, business, medicine, science, the environment, book arts, and race, gender, and sexuality studies.

Students who have a journalism background might develop a focus in an outside area for some of their electives. Those new to journalism and media communication may wish to focus their study on areas inside the school.

Building on conceptual and advanced skills courses, students complete the program with a master's project in a professional area, such as an in-depth reporting series; a design, multimedia, video, or documentary photography project; or applied research in mass communication.

All courses are chosen in consultation with the student's academic advisor.

The following courses are required.

019:225 Contemporary Problems in Journalism	3 s.h.
019:226 Master's Advanced Reporting and Writing	3 s.h.
One conceptual course from 019:140-019:169, or 019:250 and above	3 s.h.
Three advanced writing or workshop courses from the 019:120, 019:130, 019:170, 019:220 series	12 s.h.
Three electives in journalism and mass communication or an outside focus area	9-12 s.h.
019:299 Masters Research (professional project)	3 s.h.

Students who have not taken a recent U.S. media law class must enroll in 019:140 Media Law and Communication or an alternative media law course, with the instructor's consent and the advisor's approval.

M.A. with Media Communication Emphasis

The Master of Arts with media communication emphasis offers specialization in mass communication phenomena and emphasizes communication research, theory, and methodology. It prepares students for doctoral studies.

Students in the media communication emphasis take foundation courses in common with beginning Ph.D. students. Because of the program's interdisciplinary nature, students are expected to take courses outside the school, as determined in consultation with their advisors. The course work should provide students with sufficient theoretical and methodological preparation to complete the thesis.

The following courses are required.

019:231 Media Communication Theory I	3 s.h.
019:232 Media Communication Theory II	3 s.h.
019:235 Media Communication Research Methods I	3 s.h.
019:236 Media Communication Research Methods II	3 s.h.
019:220 Masters Seminar (taken twice for 1 s.h.)	2 s.h.
Advanced methods courses	3 s.h.
Electives (at least 6 s.h. in journalism and mass communication)	12 s.h.
019:299 Masters Research (thesis)	3 s.h.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in mass communications requires 80 s.h. of graduate credit. It is designed for students who have completed an M.A. thesis.

The program emphasizes interdisciplinary inquiry into media communication phenomena from cultural, historical, and social perspectives. It is defined by the scholarly interests of its faculty, which include historical, legal, critical, cultural, social, feminist, and international aspects of media communication, both verbal and visual; comparative communication; convergence; new media; health communication; popular culture; and globalization. Faculty members use qualitative or quantitative methods in their research and teaching.

The program is highly individualized. In consultation with his or her advisor, each student draws on courses offered by the School of Journalism and Mass Communication as well as other academic units to develop a course of study that reflects his or her academic background, experience, professional goals, and intellectual interests.

Students may count up to 30 s.h. of master's degree credit toward the 80 s.h. required for the Ph.D., with the graduate committee's approval, as long as the credit was earned in courses relevant to the Ph.D. study plan. The Graduate College does not accept transfer credit for professional skills courses. Students who have earned professional master's degrees must take additional Ph.D. course work.

The Ph.D. program admits students for fall entry.

The following courses are required.

019:231 Media Communication Theory I	3 s.h.
019:232 Media Communication Theory II	3 s.h.
019:235 Media Communication Research Methods I	3 s.h.
019:236 Media Communication Research Methods II	3 s.h.
019:265 Approaches to Teaching	3 s.h.
019:320 Ph.D. Seminar (taken four times for 1 s.h.)	4 s.h.
Advanced research methods courses	3 s.h.
Advanced theory courses	3 s.h.
Journalism and mass communication electives	6 s.h.
Outside concentration courses	9 s.h.
Credit from master's degree and/or additional Ph.D. courses	30 s.h.
019:399 Dissertation	10 s.h.

For a more detailed description of the Ph.D. program, see the Graduate Studies Handbook or contact the School of Journalism and Mass Communication.

Joint J.D./M.A. and J.D./Ph.D.

The School of Journalism and Mass Communication and the College of Law offer a joint Juris Doctor/Master of Arts and a joint Juris Doctor/Doctor of Philosophy. The joint degree programs allow students to count a limited amount of credit toward both degrees. Separate application to each degree program is required. Applicants must be admitted to both programs before they can be admitted to the joint degree program. Admission for journalism and mass communication graduate programs is for fall entry.

For information about the J.D., see Juris Doctor (College of Law) in the Catalog.

Admission

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Facilities and Resources

Adler Journalism and Mass Communication Building

The School of Journalism and Mass Communication moved into the Philip D. Adler Journalism and Mass Communication Building in January 2005. The 65,000-square-foot building has computer laboratories for audio, video, design, writing and web publishing, and a resource center. A photography laboratory is located nearby. The building also is home to offices of the Iowa High School Press Association; the Quill and Scroll Society, an international honor society for high school journalists; the University's award-winning student newspaper, The Daily Iowan, and Daily Iowan TV, a student-run newscast.

Iowa Center for Communication Study

The Iowa Center for Communication Study encourages and facilitates student and faculty research in communication. It also sponsors publications and provides editorial oversight for the Journal of Communication Inquiry.

Financial Support

More than $130,000 in scholarships and awards is disbursed to journalism and mass communication students each year. Scholarship information and applications are available each fall. Visit Journalism & Mass Communication Scholarships or contact the School of Journalism and Mass Communication.

The school offers research and teaching assistantships for graduate students; preference is given to Ph.D. students. Journalism and mass communication students have been successful in winning competitive fellowships open to all graduate students; applicants must be nominated by the graduate committee.

The school has a program of modest financial support for undergraduate and graduate student research projects.

Professional Enrichment

Internships

The school encourages undergraduate majors and Master of Science professional journalism emphasis students to complete at least one internship. The school's internship and assessment coordinator helps students find appropriate positions.

Undergraduate students may earn up to 3 s.h. of internship credit, registering with appropriate faculty sponsorship for 019:099 Journalism Internship (1-3 s.h.). Internships do not fulfill requirements for the major, but internship credit counts toward the maximum 40 s.h. of journalism and mass communication credit that may be applied toward the bachelor's degree. Students may take internships for no credit through 409:019 Internship in Journalism.

Students also are encouraged to pursue opportunities for journalism experience on campus through student-operated media, including The Daily Iowan, Daily Iowan TV, and KRUI-FM radio.

Job Placement

The school's internship and assessment coordinator helps students seeking career guidance and employment opportunities. The school compiles and publicizes notices of professional jobs open to journalism students and graduates. It also cooperates with the University's Pomerantz Career Center in providing career guidance and placement services as well as workshops and programs on seeking jobs.

Activities

The school engages in a variety of activities for the enrichment of students, faculty, and the entire campus. Speakers visit campus each year under lectureships funded by the John F. Murray and Leslie G. Moeller Fund. In addition, guest speakers are funded through the Hearst Visiting Professionals Program and the Hageboeck Daily Iowan Visiting Professionals Program. Campus organizations for students include Kappa Tau Alpha (KTA, a national society honoring scholarship in journalism), the National Association of Black Journalists (NABJ), the Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA), the Society of Professional Journalists (SPJ), the Radio and Television News Directors' Association (RTNDA), and Ed on Campus (EOC).

Latin American Studies

Director: Downing Thomas (French and Italian)

Undergraduate nondegree programs: Certificate, Minor in Latin American Studies

Web site: <http://international.uiowa.edu/centers/lasp/>

The Latin American Studies Program (LASP) is interdisciplinary, focusing on the history, politics, social organization, economy, geography, music, religion, art, and literature of Central and South America, Mexico, and the Caribbean. Faculty members from across the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences participate in the Latin American Studies Program as affiliated faculty members. Other University of Iowa faculty members occasionally offer courses and participate in the program's research, study, and interdisciplinary activities.

The Latin American Studies Program prepares students for graduate study or for Latin America-related careers in business, communications, government, bilingual/bicultural education, secondary teaching, community organizing, and international work.

In addition to its instructional activity, LASP sponsors a wide variety of activities, brings scholars of Latin America to campus, and fosters institutional linkages.

Undergraduate Programs

The program offers the Certificate in Latin American Studies and a minor in Latin American studies. All students plan their programs in close cooperation with Latin American studies advisors.

Certificate

The Certificate in Latin American Studies requires a minimum of 24 s.h. in courses chosen from the list of LASP-approved courses (see "Courses Approved for LASP" below). At least 12 s.h. of credit for the certificate must be earned in University of Iowa courses. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the certificate. Courses must include the following.

130:070 Introduction to Latin American Studies	3 s.h.
130:176 Latin American Studies Seminar	3 s.h.
Spanish and Portuguese courses	6 s.h.
Additional courses	12 s.h.

Spanish and Portuguese courses (6 s.h.) must be numbered 035:130 and above or 038:130 and above.

Additional courses (12 s.h.) must be chosen from the list under "Courses Approved for LASP" below; they must include courses from at least two different departments; and they may include a maximum of one (3 s.h.) additional course in Spanish or Portuguese, which must be numbered 035:130 or above, or 038:130 or above.

Courses applied toward the Certificate in Latin American Studies may be used to complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. A maximum of 12 s.h. of credit earned for a major, a minor (except the minor in Latin American Studies), or another certificate may be applied toward the Certificate in Latin American Studies.

The certificate is awarded upon completion of a bachelor's degree. Holders of University of Iowa bachelor's degrees may return to the University to complete the requirement for the certificate.

A student may not be awarded both the Certificate in Latin American Studies and the minor in Latin American studies. Students earning a major in international studies with an emphasis in Latin American studies may not earn the Certificate in Latin American Studies or the minor in Latin American studies.

STUDY ABROAD

The program highly recommends study abroad in Latin America. Students must have prior approval to apply credit from a study abroad program toward the certificate requirements; contact the Latin American Studies Program.

Minor

The minor in Latin American studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in LASP-approved courses (see "Courses Approved for LASP" below), including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. For the minor, 100-level courses are considered advanced. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

The Latin American studies minor is interdisciplinary, so students may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of credit earned for a major, another minor, or a certificate (except the Certificate in Latin American Studies) toward the minor. Students are strongly encouraged to take either or both of the following.

130:070 Introduction to Latin American Studies	3 s.h.
130:176 Latin American Studies Seminar	3 s.h.

Courses Approved for LASP

Study Abroad

It is highly recommended, though not required, that students have an in-depth Latin American cultural experience, usually through study abroad, before completing their undergraduate requirements.

In cooperation with the Office for Study Abroad, LASP faculty members facilitate student participation in programs in many different Latin American countries. Programs range from intensive language study to group programs with a special focus. University of Iowa-sponsored study abroad programs include summer programs with Universidad de Guanajuato in Mexico, Universidad de los Andes in Venezuela, and a health and nutrition program in Pontificia Universidad Católica Madre y Maestra in the Dominican Republic.

University of Iowa students may enroll in programs in Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Honduras, Mexico, and Uruguay. The University of Iowa cosponsors these programs through various consortiums.

Study abroad courses may be counted toward requirements for the certificate and the minor, subject to prior approval by the LASP director.

Financial Support

Students are encouraged to apply for a Stanley Undergraduate Scholarship for International Research/Fieldwork through University of Iowa International Programs. The scholarships are awarded to outstanding University of Iowa undergraduates who, in close consultation with a faculty member, propose well-conceived, small-scale research or fieldwork projects that require travel abroad. Students may conduct projects while participating in a study abroad program and may combine the scholarship with other awards and financial assistance. For information regarding other scholarships, contact LASP advisors, International Programs staff, and the LASP director.

Activities

In addition to its instructional activity, LASP organizes a range of public programming activities each semester, including film series, photography and art exhibits, conferences, roundtable discussions, and lectures. Recent events have included an international conference on contemporary Cuba and speakers on cinema, indigenous movements, human rights, and art.

Professors: Benjamin K. Hunnicutt (Leisure Studies), Richard D. MacNeil (Leisure Studies/Aging Studies), Kenneth E. Mobily (Leisure Studies/Health and Human Physiology), Michael L. Teague (Leisure Studies/Community and Behavioral Health)

Professor emeritus: John A. Nesbitt

Associate professor: Michael E. Lomax (Leisure Studies/African American Studies)

Adjunct instructors: Angela L. Charsha, Thomas K. Dean, David L. Gould, Erin L. Litton, Michael E. Moran, Eric W. Randall, Michael D. Widen

Lecturers: John E. Farland, Emily N.R. Mozena, Kathy B. Walter

Undergraduate degree: B.S. in Leisure Studies

Undergraduate nondegree program: Minor in Leisure Studies

Graduate degree: M.A. in Leisure Studies

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~leisure/>

Leisure plays an important role in our lives. The Leisure Studies Program contributes to the education of students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences by providing opportunities to study the phenomenon of leisure.

The program offers courses that help students learn how to use leisure to enhance the quality of their lives. Several leisure studies courses may be used by students in all liberal arts and sciences majors to fulfill requirements of the General Education Program.

Leisure studies also offers undergraduate and graduate degree programs that prepare students for professional careers in the expanding fields of child life, therapeutic recreation, and recreational sport management. These degree programs prepare professionals to work in community, commercial, campus, and health care environments. The populations served by recreation professionals include the general public; students, colleges, and universities; children; and persons with disabilities or chronic conditions.

Undergraduate Programs

The program offers a Bachelor of Science in leisure studies with two tracks: child life and therapeutic recreation. It also offers a minor in leisure studies.

Selective Admission

Students may indicate their interest in the leisure studies major when they are admitted to The University of Iowa or once they are on campus. Admission to the major is selective; students must apply for admission to the child life track or the therapeutic recreation track.

Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Science in leisure studies requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including work for the major, which varies by track. Each track requires an internship.

The child life track requires 60-61 s.h. of work for the major (15-16 s.h. in admission prerequisites; 33 s.h. in leisure studies courses, including an internship; and 12 s.h. in supporting course work from other departments). Students must complete the admission prerequisites before they may enter the child life track.

The therapeutic recreation track requires 67-69 s.h. of work for the major (12-14 s.h. in admission prerequisites; 37 s.h. in leisure studies courses, including an internship; and 18 s.h. in supporting course work from other departments). Students must complete the admission prerequisites before they may enter the therapeutic recreation track.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

Child Life Track

Child life specialists are professionals with expertise in child development who advance effective coping through play activities, preparation for medical procedures and operations, patient and family education, and self-expression activities. Child life specialists provide services to support families and to promote children's mastery of varied experiences, particularly children's health care events. They may provide care to children's families by assisting in accurate information processing and helping family members and other caregivers. Child life specialists also help educate other medical staff and community members regarding issues and needs of children involved in health care events or other stressful experiences. For more information about the profession, visit Child Life Council.

Students must apply for admission to the child life track. Before they may be admitted, they must complete 24 s.h. at The University of Iowa (or 12 s.h. for transfer students), including the courses listed under "Child Life: Admission Prerequisites" below. Applicants must have a g.p.a. of at least 2.50 for all University of Iowa course work and a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50; students with a University of Iowa or cumulative g.p.a. lower than 2.50 may apply for exceptional admission.

Application forms for admission to the child life track are available on the Leisure Studies Program web site. Completed applications must be submitted by March 15 for admission the following fall semester (students may enter the child life track only in fall).

The child life track requires the following course work.

CHILD LIFE: ADMISSION PREREQUISITES

042:186 Death/Dying: Issues Across the Life Span 3 s.h.

042:238 Introduction to Play Therapy 2 s.h.

042:281 Social Work Practice: Selected Aspects arr.

169:150 Recreation Administration 3 s.h.

CHILD LIFE: INTERNSHIP

Child life students must complete an internship; they register in the following course.

169:192 Child Life Internship 12 s.h.

Therapeutic Recreation Track

Therapeutic recreation is a health-oriented field that involves providing recreation programs designed to improve or maintain the physical, emotional, mental, and social functioning of patients and consumers. Therapeutic recreation services involve a continuum of care that includes treatment using recreation activities to improve functional abilities; leisure education that helps individuals acquire skills, knowledge, and attitudes that facilitate an independent lifestyle; and recreation that uses activities to enhance health, growth, development, and independence through intrinsically rewarding leisure behavior.

Therapeutic recreation professionals are commonly employed in settings such as skilled nursing facilities, community recreation departments, state and community mental health institutions, general hospitals, physical rehabilitation centers, special recreation districts, correctional facilities, senior centers, facilities for persons with mental retardation or mental illness, and substance-abuse programs.

Students must apply for admission to the therapeutic recreation track. Before they may be admitted, they must complete 24 s.h. at The University of Iowa (or 12 s.h. for transfer students), including the courses listed under "Therapeutic Recreation: Admission Prerequisites" below. Applicants must have a g.p.a. of at least 2.50 for all University of Iowa course work and a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50; students with a University of Iowa or cumulative g.p.a. lower than 2.50 may apply for exceptional admission.

Application forms for admission to the therapeutic recreation track are available on the Leisure Studies Program web site. Completed applications for the major with therapeutic recreation track must be submitted by October 15 for admission the following spring semester or by March 15 for admission the following fall semester.

The therapeutic recreation track requires the following course work.

THERAPEUTIC RECREATION: ADMISSION PREREQUISITES

Students must complete the following prerequisite course work (12-14 s.h.) before they may enter the therapeutic recreation track.

Both of these:

027:053 Human Anatomy	3 s.h.
031:001 Elementary Psychology	3 s.h.

One of these:

07P:025 Elementary Statistics and Inference	3 s.h.
07P:143 Introduction to Statistical Methods	3 s.h.
22M:015 Mathematics for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:016 Calculus for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22S:002 Statistics and Society	3 s.h.
22S:008 Statistics for Business	4 s.h.
22S:025 Elementary Statistics and Inference	3 s.h.
22S:102 Introduction to Statistical Methods	3 s.h.

One of these:

034:001 Introduction to Sociology Principles	3-4 s.h.
034:020 Principles of Social Psychology	3-4 s.h.

THERAPEUTIC RECREATION: FOUNDATION

Students complete all of the following foundation courses (24 s.h.).

169:060 Leisure in Contemporary Society	3 s.h.
169:061 Recreation Leadership and Programming	3 s.h.
169:150 Recreation Administration	3 s.h.
169:160 Introduction to Therapeutic Recreation	3 s.h.
169:161 Assessment and Evaluation in Therapeutic Recreation	3 s.h.
169:162 Therapeutic Recreation: Clientele	3 s.h.
169:163 Concepts and Issues in Therapeutic Recreation: Advancement of the Profession	3 s.h.
169:164 Therapeutic Recreation: Rehabilitation	3 s.h.

THERAPEUTIC RECREATION: SUPPORTING COURSE WORK

Students must complete 18 s.h. in supporting course work, as follows.

One of these:

031:063 Abnormal Psychology: Health Professions	3 s.h.
031:163 Abnormal Psychology	3 s.h.

All of these:

027:053 Human Anatomy	3 s.h.
096:030 Human Development and Behavior	3 s.h.
Courses in human services (e.g., aging studies, psychology, sociology, social work, special education, counselor education)	9 s.h.

THERAPEUTIC RECREATION: INTERNSHIP

Therapeutic recreation students must complete an internship and a preinternship seminar; they register in the following courses.

169:190 Preinternship Seminar	1 s.h.
169:191 Internship	12 s.h.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The Four-Year Graduation Plan is not available for the leisure studies major. Students should work with their advisors to develop an individual graduation plan.

Honors

The honors program is designed for superior students. It gives participants some research experience and a perspective on some aspects of graduate study. To be eligible for honors, students must maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33. For honors program application forms, contact the Leisure Studies Program.

To qualify for a degree with honors in leisure studies, students must successfully complete 169:194 Honors Readings and 169:195 Honors Problems, for which they must complete a reading or research project under the supervision of a leisure studies faculty member and write a paper summarizing the project's results. Honor students also must maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 throughout the rest of their degree work.

Contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information about honors study at Iowa.

Minor

The minor in leisure studies requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in leisure studies courses, including 12 s.h. in 100-level courses taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students choose courses according to their interests and the recommendations of the leisure studies coordinator.

Graduate Program

The program offers a Master of Arts, with and without thesis, in leisure studies. Undergraduate preparation in leisure studies is not required for successful completion of the graduate program; students from diverse backgrounds are encouraged to apply. However, students may need to fulfill prerequisites specific to their specialization areas.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in leisure studies requires a minimum of 33 s.h. of graduate credit with thesis, and 36 s.h. of graduate credit without thesis. Students choose one of two specialization areas: therapeutic recreation or recreational sport management. All M.A. students must complete a common group of core courses and work in their specialization area.

CORE REQUIREMENTS

All M.A. students must take these courses.

07P:143 Introduction to Statistical Methods	3 s.h.
169:200 Historical and Philosophical Perspectives on Leisure	3 s.h.
169:205 Research Methods and Leisure Behavior	3 s.h.
169:273 Work and Leisure in American Culture	3 s.h.

Therapeutic Recreation Specialization

The therapeutic recreation specialization prepares students to meet the challenges of outpatient- and community-based health care service delivery. The program stresses research and business skills that will enable graduates to find the best jobs in the field.

Therapeutic recreation specialists are increasingly called upon to deliver preventive outpatient services, such as programs designed to prevent secondary impairments in persons with disabilities (e.g., arthritis exercise to manage pain, fall prevention for older adults); education for individuals with negative lifestyle habits (e.g., smoking, substance abuse); programs designed to restore meaning and purpose to life following traumatic events (e.g., following a spinal cord injury); and initiatives to help communities and businesses make services accessible to persons with disabilities.

Iowa's therapeutic recreation program emphasizes business skills and innovation in delivery of services. Economics and Financing (169:252) and classes in entrepreneurship and new business formation prepare students to enter the workforce ready to build therapeutic recreation businesses that are self-supporting or profitable.

Students also acquire research skills that they can apply directly to therapeutic recreation practice, for example, to assess the effectiveness of specific interventions or the demand for varied services in a community.

In addition to the M.A. common core requirements (above), therapeutic recreation specialization students must complete the following.

169:163 Concepts and Issues in Therapeutic Recreation: Advancement of the Profession	3 s.h.
169:252 Economics and Financing	3 s.h.
169:262 Procedures in Therapeutic Recreation	3 s.h.
Cognate area courses (entrepreneurship in therapeutic recreation)	10 s.h.

Nonthesis students take an additional 6 s.h. of electives. Thesis students complete 6 s.h. of 169:398 M.A. Thesis.

Therapeutic recreation students must complete a practicum (169:289 Graduate Practicum in Therapeutic Recreation) to sit for the national certification examination.

Recreational Sport Management Specialization

The recreational sport management specialization prepares students for positions in public and private recreation and sport management. Students typically find employment in community or municipal recreation programs, campus recreation programs, or commercial recreation and sport operations.

In addition to the M.A. common core requirements (above), recreational sports management specialization students must complete the following.

169:251 Risk Management	3 s.h.
169:252 Economics and Financing	3 s.h.
169:253 Sport Administration	3 s.h.
169:254 Marketing and Sport Promotion	3 s.h.
Cognate area courses (business, communications, or cultural studies)	6-9 s.h.

Nonthesis students take an additional 6 s.h. of electives. Thesis students complete 6 s.h. of 169:398 M.A. Thesis.

Internships

Internships, available in several areas, are strongly recommended for graduate students.

Assistantships

The program offers a limited number of teaching assistantships; applications should be made directly to the leisure studies academic coordinator. Teaching assistants support General Education Program courses offered by the Leisure

Studies Program.

Leisure Studies Courses

- 169:040 The Good Society 3 s.h.
Critiques of the existing social order, articulation of models of a good society with associated conceptions of the good life. GE: Humanities. Same as 033:040.
- 169:045 Health for Living 3 s.h.
Personal health strategies; focus on disease prevention, wellness. GE: Health and Physical Activity.
- 169:050 Making Choices: Interdisciplinary Perspectives 3 s.h.
GE: Humanities. Same as 033:050.
- 169:060 Leisure in Contemporary Society 3 s.h.
Basic philosophical, historical, scientific foundations and developments; function, settings of organized recreation.
- 169:061 Recreation Leadership and Programming 3 s.h.
Leadership principles, techniques; programming techniques.
- 169:070 Perspectives on Leisure and Play 3 s.h.
Relationships between leisure and economics, sociology, other social sciences; effect of leisure on individual and group behavior; antecedents, motives, consequences of leisure behavior. GE: Social Sciences.
- 169:072 Leisure and the Liberal Arts 3 s.h.
Integration of the ideal of a liberal education with worthy, meaningful use of free time in contemporary society; classic writings in the humanities. GE: Humanities.
- 169:076 Culture and Community in Human Services 3 s.h.
Roles played by culture and community in human services; aspects of culture and community-based perspectives, including race, ethnicity, gender, class, sexuality, religion; disproportionate influence that particular cultures and communities exert on the structures of society.
- 169:077 Introduction to Child Life 3 s.h.
Orientation to the field of child life services including services for hospitalized children and their families.
- 169:080 Introduction to Place Studies 3 s.h.
Same as 033:080.
- 169:108 Basic Aspects of Aging 3 s.h.
Social, psychological, and biological aspects; demographics of aging, health, economic issues, primary relationships, social services. GE: Social Sciences. Same as 042:108, 096:108, 153:108.
- 169:142 Health Promotion in the Workplace Setting 3 s.h.
Management and organizational theories; assessment, planning, implementation, and evaluation of clinical and workplace (targeted) health promotion programs.
- 169:146 Health Promotion for Older Adults 3 s.h.
Problems, strategic efforts toward long-term goal of health promotion; disease prevention; slowing the decline caused by chronic conditions to extend independent, rewarding lives. Same as 096:146, 153:146.
- 169:148 Introduction to Personal Training 3 s.h.
Basics of personal training, including establishing a personal training business, screening, and assessing clients; current issues and certifications.
- 169:150 Recreation Administration 3 s.h.
Personnel, finance, budgets, liability, marketing.
- 169:151 Liability in Recreation and Sport 3 s.h.

Unintentional torts (negligence), civil liability, and criminal liability in recreation and sport settings; focus on community/commercial recreation and campus recreation settings.

169:152 Park and Recreation Facility Management 3 s.h.
Facilities management, personnel assignment and evaluation, fee structures, maintenance, programming, compliance with regulations and standards.

169:153 Sport Business Practices 3 s.h.
Basic management skills for profit-based recreation and sport businesses; operations, business plans, organizational behavior, risk management, inventory, purchasing, marketing.

169:155 Camp Administration 3 s.h.
Basics of camp administration; risk management, programming, general standards set by the American Camping Association.

169:156 Design of Recreation Facilities 3 s.h.
Horticulture, floriculture, landscape design, agronomy, turf management; their relation to planning and design of recreation and park areas and facilities.

169:157 Managerial Operations in Sport 3 s.h.
Introduction to the operation of a private or nonprofit sport-related business. Prerequisites: 06E:001, 031:001, 034:001, and 07P:025.

169:158 Recreation and Sport Promotion 3 s.h.
Foundations and principles of recreation sport promotion and sales operation; application of foundations and principles to sport and recreation industries; historical aspects; current and future trends of sport and recreation management as it relates to sales and promotions; sales management, marketing, financial/economic, legal, and ethical principles related to sport management.

169:160 Introduction to Therapeutic Recreation 3 s.h.
Lifestyles and barriers faced by persons with disabilities; basic aspects of the therapeutic recreation profession; skills used to establish therapeutic relationship; techniques used with patients; theoretical and conceptual bases for practice.

169:161 Assessment and Evaluation in Therapeutic Recreation 3 s.h.
Basic assessment psychometrics (e.g., reliability), standardized instrumentation and data collection (e.g., observation, self-report), construction of instruments, data reduction. Prerequisites: 169:160.

169:162 Therapeutic Recreation: Clientele 3 s.h.
Developmental patterns of special populations; examination of specific interventions and research applied to specific cognitive, emotional, and physical impairments. Prerequisites: 169:160.

169:163 Concepts and Issues in Therapeutic Recreation: Advancement of the Profession 3 s.h.
Ethical, professional, and theoretical issues in delivery of therapeutic recreation services; impact of legislation, standards of practice, health care reform; application of research to practice and marketing services. Prerequisites: 169:160.

169:164 Therapeutic Recreation: Rehabilitation 3 s.h.
In-depth review of therapeutic recreation techniques used in clinical and community rehabilitation; opportunities to use techniques with patients. Prerequisites: 169:160.

169:165 Child Life: Methods and Materials 3 s.h.
Interventions unique to child life practice (e.g., pain management, coping, preoperative play, terminal illness). Prerequisites: 169:077.

169:166 Child Life: Seminar 3 s.h.
Current issues and research in child life, expanding scope of service in child life. Prerequisites: 169:077.

169:167 Child Life Practicum 1-2 s.h.
Experience observing and assisting child life staff members providing services to hospitalized children, under Certified Child Life Specialist supervision.

- 169:168 Aging and Leisure 3 s.h.
Status of the well elderly in relation to retirement issues, use of free time, and factors that support leisure activity; leisure services in long-term care. Same as 153:168.
- 169:169 Spring Break Child Life Experience 1 s.h.
Practical experience with ill children, including a trip to the "Give Kids the World" village in Florida; documentation and engagement of course materials, experience working with ill children; students are assigned a specific diagnosis and present the diagnosis (appropriate statistics, effects of hospitalization, treatment, etc.) on child and family; coping strategies, appropriate methods of talking to and interacting with children and families, overview of Child Life in hospitals.
- 169:190 Preinternship Seminar 1 s.h.
Orientation to the internship process. Prerequisites: 169:160.
- 169:191 Internship arr.
Practical field experience; direct leadership, program planning, administrative procedures. Prerequisites: 169:190.
- 169:192 Child Life Internship 12 s.h.
Twelve-week, 480-contact-hour, field experience under the supervision of a Certified Child Life Specialist. Prerequisites: 169:061, 169:077, 169:160, 169:162, 169:165, 169:166, and 169:167.
- 169:193 Independent Study arr.
Problem in a specific area.
- 169:194 Honors Readings arr.
- 169:195 Honors Problems arr.
- 169:196 Recreation Sport Business Internship 9 s.h.
Capstone course for the recreation sport business track; 360 contact hours of practical experience with a private or nonprofit recreation or sport-related enterprise; supervision by an agency mentor and a university representative. Requirements: completion of all recreation sport business core courses, foundation courses, and elective concentration courses.
- 169:200 Historical and Philosophical Perspectives on Leisure 3 s.h.
Historical and philosophical origins of leisure studies; historical issues related to leisure ideas, such as shorter hours, share-the-work, utopian vision of a better society.
- 169:205 Research Methods and Leisure Behavior 3 s.h.
The scientific process: research designs for experiments and surveys, questionnaire construction, sampling theory, basic data analysis.
- 169:250 Seminar in Recreation Management 3 s.h.
The sport/leisure industry and product characteristics of nonprofit, private/commercial, and public organizations; participant and spectator consumer behavior; fundamentals of market research in sport/leisure organizations.
- 169:251 Risk Management 3 s.h.
Legal knowledge necessary for effective management of sport, recreation, and physical activity programs, avoidance of legal problems; strategies for addressing issues such as right to participate, liability for injuries, risk management; legal statutes that govern sport, health, recreation organizations.
- 169:252 Economics and Financing 3 s.h.
Economic issues for sport/leisure services in nonprofit, private/commercial, and public sectors; strategic financial analysis for the nonfinancial manager; principles, issues in financing sport/leisure organizations.
- 169:253 Sport Administration 3 s.h.

Overview of various segments that constitutes the role and function of a sport administrator (i.e., planning, organizing, leading, controlling); focus on ways in which sport administrators and their subsequent organizations influence and are influenced by the link between sport and globalization; sport administration encompassing services provided within an organizational context; administration viewed as the coordination of production and distribution of those services.

169:254 Marketing and Sport Promotion 3 s.h.

Overview of varied segments that constitutes sports business practice, including marketing, data-based marketing, sales, promotion, sponsorship; varied segments that make up the sport industry, including the mass media, infrastructure, stadium building, consumer behavior; readings and discussions consider the development and structure of each segment, interactions between segments, planning, policy implications; focus on the United States, professional team sports, comparisons to other sports.

169:262 Procedures in Therapeutic Recreation 3 s.h.

Current issues in the field; application of business and research principles to therapeutic recreation practice and program administration.

169:273 Work and Leisure in American Culture 3 s.h.

Methods and insights of American studies and leisure studies applied to work/leisure relationship in American life; patterns and perceptions of work and leisure, leisure's share and potential; changing American values.

169:289 Graduate Practicum in Therapeutic Recreation 3-9 s.h.

Field placement with a therapeutic recreation service delivery agency; meets NCTRC certification standards. Prerequisites: 169:160. Corequisites: 169:163 and 169:164.

169:290 Graduate Internship 3-9 s.h.

Requirements: recreational sports management emphasis.

169:291 Problems arr.

169:299 Graduate Research Problems arr.

169:301 Research Colloquium in Leisure Studies 3 s.h.

Current faculty research; individual work with faculty members on projects that will be presented in class.

169:398 M.A. Thesis 1-6 s.h.

Repeatable.

Linguistics

Chair: Catherine O. Ringen

Professors: William D. Davies, Catherine O. Ringen, Jerzy Rubach

Professor emeritus: Robert S. Wachal

Associate professors: Jill Beckman, Alice L. Davison, Elena Gavrusseva, Roumyana Slabakova

Adjunct instructor: Maureen Burke

Lecturer: Rosemary K. Plapp

Undergraduate degree: B.A. in Linguistics

Undergraduate nondegree program: Minor in Linguistics

Graduate degrees: M.A., Ph.D. in Linguistics

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~linguist/>

Linguistics is the scientific study of human languages, which are highly complex systems. Areas of study include word structure (morphology), speech sounds (phonetics) and their patterns of combination and contrast (phonology), sentence structure (syntax), and meaning relations (semantics).

Linguists study well-known and familiar languages, such as English, Spanish, Russian, and Chinese. They also study less well-known languages and even those languages about which little has been discovered. While human languages are different from one another in many ways, there are broad similarities among them, supporting the idea that the capacity for language is part of human cognitive functions.

The description of formal patterns of human language has a number of applications. Linguistics is connected to psychology and to speech and hearing, in studying how children learn language, how speakers process and interpret language, and how injuries and disorders affect both production and perception of speech. It is linked with anthropology and other social sciences in studying how language use relates to culture, region, class, and gender. Linguists and computer scientists collaborate to construct computational representations of syntax and semantics for processing natural languages.

Linguistics has important ties with instruction in foreign languages and in English as a second language. Studies of how languages are learned are based in part on analysis of the languages in question. They also are grounded strongly in theories of second language acquisition, which in turn are related to theories of how linguistic knowledge is represented in the mind.

People with linguistic training teach English as a second language and help clinicians retrain people with linguistic disabilities. Some help design school programs for minority groups or intelligence and achievement tests. Linguists also work in occupations related to law, the computer industry, and foreign languages.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts and a minor in linguistics.

High scores on verbal, analytic, and quantitative aptitude tests are indicators of success in linguistics. Although few aspects of the field deal with numbers, students must be able to reason logically and explicitly and deal with formulas and abstract symbols. Depending on their vocational goals, prospective linguistics students should consider pursuing their studies either through the M.A. in linguistics with a professional focus or through the Ph.D., or they should take a second major. Appropriate companion fields include foreign languages, English, anthropology, sociology, speech pathology, psychology, mathematics, computer science, philosophy, and elementary and secondary education.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in linguistics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 24 s.h. of work for the major. The program prepares students to do basic language analysis in syntax-semantics (sentence patterns and their relation to meanings) and phonology (sound patterns). Elective courses in a variety of subspecialties enable students to tailor the program to their own interests.

The major requires the following course work.

103:100 Introduction to Linguistics	3 s.h.
103:110 Articulatory and Acoustic Phonetics	3 s.h.
103:111 Syntactic Analysis	3 s.h.
103:112 Phonological Analysis	3 s.h.

A course in language history (e.g., 103:131 or 103:139)

or

A course in an old language (classical Greek, Latin, Old English, Sanskrit)

Electives chosen in consultation with a faculty advisor 9 s.h.

Students must complete no fewer than 15 s.h. of requirements for the major at The University of Iowa, including 103:110 Articulatory and Acoustic Phonetics, 103:111 Syntactic Analysis, and 103:112 Phonological Analysis.

English Grammar (103:028) does not count toward the linguistics major.

Students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

TESL Emphasis

As part of the major in linguistics, students may complete an emphasis in Teaching English as a Second Language (TESL). The TESL emphasis can prepare students to teach English to nonnative speakers abroad. It also is excellent preparation for graduate work in second language acquisition. TESL emphasis students complete the requirements for the linguistics major listed above, using the following course work to satisfy the electives requirement.

Both of these:

103:141 The Structure of English	3 s.h.
103:145 Methods of Teaching English as a Second Language	3 s.h.

One of these:

103:156 Child Language-Linguistic Perspectives	3 s.h.
103:157 Linguistic Theory and Second Language Acquisition	3 s.h.
103:161 Practical Phonetics	3 s.h.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Before the third semester begins: at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: Introduction to Linguistics (103:100) and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: two more courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: two more courses in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Members of the University of Iowa Honors Program may graduate with honors in linguistics by completing the major course work plus an honors thesis, which must be prepared in consultation with the student's academic advisor. Membership in the Honors Program requires that students maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information).

Minor

The minor in linguistics requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in linguistics courses, including at least 12 s.h. in University of Iowa courses numbered 103:100 Introduction to Linguistics and above. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Courses for the minor must include 103:100 Introduction to Linguistics, 103:110 Articulatory and Acoustic Phonetics, 103:111 Syntactic Analysis, and 103:112 Phonological Analysis.

Joint B.A./M.A. with TESL Focus

The Department of Linguistics offers a joint Bachelor of Arts/Master of Arts for undergraduate majors planning to earn a master's degree in linguistics with a Teaching English as a Second Language (TESL) focus. B.A./M.A. students take selected graduate-level courses while still undergraduates and may count 12 s.h. of advanced course work toward both degrees. Once students complete the requirements for the bachelor's degree, they are granted the B.A., and they usually complete the M.A. one year later.

As part of the undergraduate major with TESL focus, B.A./M.A. students take 103:141 The Structure of English, a course in language history, 103:100 Introduction to Linguistics, and 103:110 Articulatory and Acoustic Phonetics.

They substitute some graduate-level course work for normal undergraduate requirements. Instead of taking 103:111 Syntactic Analysis to fulfill the B.A. syntax requirement, they take 103:201 Introduction to Syntax, the first course in the mandatory two-course syntax sequence for M.A. students. Instead of taking 103:112 Phonological Analysis to fulfill the B.A. phonology requirement, they take 103:203 Introduction to Phonology, the first in the graduate two-course phonology sequence.

In addition, 103:145 Methods of Teaching English as a Second Language and 103:202 Syntactic Theory count toward both degrees and typically are taken during the senior year.

To be admitted to the program, students must be working toward an undergraduate major in linguistics, must have completed at least 80 s.h. of undergraduate course work (typically by the end of their fifth semester), and must have a g.p.a. of at least 3.50.

Graduate Programs

The department offers a Master of Arts, with or without thesis, and a Doctor of Philosophy in linguistics.

The graduate programs emphasize theory and research. Students interested in nonuniversity careers also may take courses in applied linguistics and other fields, either in connection with doctoral work or as an option in the M.A. program.

Iowa's Department of Linguistics has particular strengths in second language acquisition (SLA), phonology, and syntax.

The curriculum in second language acquisition includes courses that provide an overview and analysis of current SLA research conducted within the generative framework, with emphasis on explaining the linguistic competence of second language learners in terms of universal grammar (UG), the innate language acquisition device. Work focuses on experimental research investigating the influence of the first language, theories of UG access, and related topics.

The phonology curriculum emphasizes current theoretical perspectives, including optimality theory, and the collection, description, and interpretation of novel phonological and phonetic data. Courses feature extensive work in data analysis and problem solving, focusing on construction and evaluation of phonological theories, particularly in light of new empirical data.

The syntax curriculum includes the dual emphases of empirical and theoretical perspectives. It offers a variety of foundational courses that build analytic and argumentation skills, as well as specialized course work on current issues in syntactic theory. The courses consist of intensive work in problem solving. They combine discovery and description of new linguistic data with exploration of the implications of such facts in testing and constructing syntactic theories.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in linguistics requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit with thesis, or 37 s.h. without thesis.

All students take a required set of core courses in phonology, syntax, and language acquisition. Thesis students also complete at least 8 s.h. of electives and earn up to 6 s.h. for the thesis. Nonthesis students also complete 15 s.h. of Department of Linguistics course work, which may include a 9 s.h. focus (e.g., teaching English as a second language). A student's advisor must approve all courses that count toward the degree.

A student with a linguistics background may waive up to 6 s.h. of course work if the department determines that he or she completed comparable work before enrolling in the program.

Comprehensive examinations cover phonology, syntax, and applied linguistics (for students who choose this option).

The required core courses are as follows.

103:110 Articulatory and Acoustic Phonetics	3 s.h.
103:200 Proseminar: Morphosyntax	1 s.h.
103:201 Introduction to Syntax	3 s.h.
103:202 Syntactic Theory	3 s.h.
103:203 Introduction to Phonology	3 s.h.
103:204 Phonological Theory	3 s.h.
103:211 Generative Second Language Acquisition	3 s.h.

One of these:

103:113 Linguistic Field Methods	3 s.h.
----------------------------------	--------

103:210 Linguistic Structures

3 s.h.

103:217 Language Universals Linguistic Typology

3 s.h.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in linguistics requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit, or 73 s.h. for graduates of the M.A. nonthesis program. The highly selective program provides students with a strong foundation in theoretical linguistics and helps them develop the skills they will need to explore the close relationship between linguistics and related disciplines.

The Ph.D. core includes the following course work (total of 18 s.h.).

Two upper-level syntax courses numbered 103:212 Advanced Syntactic Theory or above

Two upper-level phonology courses numbered 103:214 Advanced Phonological Theory or above

At least two seminars

An approved specialty area of 18 s.h. also is required, and students must achieve proficiency in a foreign language, as specified by department regulations.

To pass the comprehensive examination for the Ph.D., a student must gain approval for two papers of publishable quality. One must be in phonology or syntax. The other should be in an area of the student's choosing and must be distinct from the area of the first paper.

An oral defense of the dissertation and three years in residence at The University of Iowa are required. In addition, all candidates are required to gain supervised experience in teaching and research.

Admission

Applicants to the graduate program in linguistics must complete an application form, submit GRE General Test scores, and have three letters of recommendation sent to the Department of Linguistics. Students whose first language is not English must submit Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) scores. Applications for admission should be submitted as early as possible for the following academic year.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Financial Support

Fellowships, teaching assistantships, and research assistantships are available to qualified graduate students. Applications are due no later than March 1 for the following academic year; earlier submission is strongly encouraged.

Exceptionally well-qualified applicants may be eligible for a Presidential Graduate Fellowship. Individuals interested in being nominated for a presidential fellowship should submit all application materials by January 15 for the following academic year.

Applications for all awards are considered only for students whose application for admission is complete.

Facilities

The Department of Linguistics has two laboratories. One is equipped with 14 computer workstations for small group instruction, individual work, and student research in speech analysis, second language acquisition, computational linguistics, and other areas. The other has a soundproof booth connected to a computer with software for speech analysis. Remote terminals and personal computers are also available to students.

The departmental reading room, which contains a modest library, provides a common meeting place for faculty and students. Students have considerable influence on departmental affairs and enjoy a high degree of individual instruction.

Linguistics Courses

Primarily for Undergraduates

103:011 Language and Society

3 s.h.

Correlations between social and linguistic behavior; methods for discovering and describing socially significant language behavior; educational and political implications of findings. GE: Social Sciences.

- 103:013 Language and Formal Reasoning 3 s.h.
Semantics and sentence structure of English; word meanings, meaning connected to truth conditions, reasoning based on logical connectives and quantifiers, evaluation of valid and invalid arguments. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.
- 103:020 Introduction to the Study of Language 3 s.h.
Nontechnical introduction: classification of languages, writing systems, language and the brain, acquisition of first and second languages, bilingualism, animal communication, language and computing.
- 103:028 English Grammar 3 s.h.
Recognizing nouns, verbs, adverbs, adjectives, and other parts of speech; sentence analysis; subjects, objects; types of sentences; passives, relative clauses; for students with little or no background in English grammar study. Does not count toward the linguistics major.
- 103:029 First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.
- 103:035 English Words 3 s.h.
English word formation, basic units of English vocabulary; vocabulary skill expansion; word structure.
- 103:045 Language Rights 3 s.h.
Language minorities and linguistic human rights in the United States and worldwide; language and identity, culture, power; case studies of language rights deprivation.
- 103:055 Languages of the World 3 s.h.
Overview of structural similarities and differences in human language; survey of the world's major language families; emphasis on sentence and word structure, sound systems, and modes of classification. GE: Social Sciences.
- 103:095 Research Practicum arr.
Individual participation in faculty research projects.
- 103:099 Special Project arr.

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students

- 103:100 Introduction to Linguistics 3 s.h.
Introduction to the study of human language: sounds and their contrasts and variation, words and meaningful subunits, sentence structure, historical change. Same as 08L:100.
- 103:107 Practicum in Teaching English as a Second Language 3 s.h.
Practical experience in TESL, observation and participation in intensive English classes; design and teaching of ESL classes under supervision. Prerequisites: 103:145. Offered summer sessions.
- 103:110 Articulatory and Acoustic Phonetics 3 s.h.
Production and transcription of sounds in human languages; physics of sound, computer analysis of speech sounds. Offered fall semesters. Same as 164:160.
- 103:111 Syntactic Analysis 3 s.h.
Introduction to sentence structures and basic abstract relations that characterize them, including word category, word order, hierarchical organization; problem sets from English and other languages as basis for discussion, analysis. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 103:100.
- 103:112 Phonological Analysis 3 s.h.
Introduction to analysis of sound systems; generative phonological theory; practice in phonological analysis using data from a variety of languages. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 103:100 and 103:110.

- 103:113 Linguistic Field Methods 3 s.h.
Collection and analysis of primary linguistic data from unfamiliar language; methods of elicitation, theory, practical problems; extensive practice in eliciting data from a consultant. Prerequisites: 103:110. Requirements: a course in syntax and a course in phonology.
- 103:115 Topics in Linguistics 3 s.h.
Varied topics in linguistics; for undergraduates.
- 103:131 History of the English Language 3 s.h.
Development of phonological and grammatical structure of English, from Old to Modern English; dialectal differentiation in English. Prerequisites: 103:100. Same as 08L:131.
- 103:132 Elementary Old English 3 s.h.
Reading knowledge of Old English; introduction to Anglo-Saxon literature and culture. English majors may apply this course to the following area and/or period requirement. AREA: Medieval and Early Modern Literature and Culture. PERIOD: Early Literatures Through 17th Century. Same as 008:140.
- 103:137 Language Processes 3 s.h.
Psychological processes involved in using languages, including speech perception and production, the meaning of words, understanding and producing sentences, and basics of discourse and pragmatics; developmental and neural bases of language processes. Prerequisites: 031:002. Requirements: grade of C- or higher in 031:010, grade of C- or higher in 031:016, and psychology major; or nonmajor and 103:100 or 003:015. Same as 031:137.
- 103:139 Chinese Historical Phonology 3 s.h.
Phonology of Mandarin, other major Chinese dialect groups; reconstruction of the sound system of Middle and Old Chinese. Same as 039:139.
- 103:140 Introduction to Computational Linguistics 3 s.h.
Introduction to computational linguistics; focus on theory and practice of natural language processing and syntactic and semantic analysis. Same as 22C:146.
- 103:141 The Structure of English 3 s.h.
Descriptive analysis of English, including word and sentence structure; focus on relevance to teaching English as a second language. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 103:111.
- 103:144 Introduction to Chinese Linguistics 3 s.h.
Aspects of modern Chinese linguistics, such as Chinese phonology, syntax, pedagogical grammar, history of the language. Taught in English. Same as 039:144, 164:181.
- 103:145 Methods of Teaching English as a Second Language 3 s.h.
Observations of ESL and intensive English classes at the University; design and presentation of short lessons, text evaluation, demonstrations of innovative approaches of the last decade; materials. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 103:110 and 103:141. Same as 164:163.
- 103:150 Language and Gender 3 s.h.
Gender-related language variation; current research on gender-specific linguistic forms and usage in the United States and other language communities; introduction to relevant principles of linguistic theory and analysis. GE: Cultural Diversity.
- 103:155 Morphology 3 s.h.
Lexicon and principles of word formation; principal processes of inflection, derivation, and compounding found in the world's languages; relation to phonology, syntax; practice in morphological analysis from a variety of languages. Prerequisites: 103:100.
- 103:156 Child Language-Linguistic Perspectives 3 s.h.
Linguistic theory as applied to first-language learning, including acquisition of sounds, syntax and word meaning, acquisition strategies, properties of input, theories of first-language acquisition. Prerequisites: 103:100.
- 103:157 Linguistic Theory and Second Language Acquisition 3 s.h.

Introduction of research results obtained by generative second language acquisition framework and their implications for classroom teaching methods; current views of language architecture; focus on inflectional morphology and linguistic interfaces, which have been proposed to be severe bottlenecks for acquisition; research findings on acquisition of syntax, phonology, semantics, linguistic pragmatics; pedagogical implications of these findings. Prerequisites: 103:111 and 103:112. Same as 164:157.

103:161 Practical Phonetics 3 s.h.

Contemporary articulatory and acoustic research, including second-language acquisition, elicitation and computer analysis of primary linguistic data. Prerequisites: 103:110.

103:163 Philosophy of Language 3 s.h.

Contemporary topics. Same as 026:189.

103:172 Psychology of Language 3 s.h.

Theoretical, empirical investigations of linguistic behavior; behaviorist, rationalist models in context of formal linguistic structure and context of models of speech perception and production. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 103:100. GE: Social Sciences. Same as 003:117.

103:175 Introduction to Semantics 3 s.h.

Overview of meaning in natural language mapped onto lexical and syntactic structures; formal logical and set theory description; discussion of truth conditions, compositionality, presupposition, definiteness, quantification in natural language. Requirements: course in syntax.

103:176 Language Development 1-3 s.h.

Models of children's language acquisition; child language/communication development from infancy through school age, in context of current developmental research. Offered spring semesters. Requirements: (for 003:118) 031:001 and 103:100; (for 103:176) 103:100 or 103:172. GE: Social Sciences. Same as 003:118.

103:177 Basic Neuroscience for Speech and Hearing 3 s.h.

Basic anatomy, physiology of central nervous system; emphasis on neural systems involved in normal and disordered communication. Offered fall semesters. Requirements: biology, zoology, or physiology course. Same as 003:116.

103:199 Special Projects arr.

Theoretical and applied topics.

Primarily for Graduate Students

103:200 Proseminar: Morphosyntax 1 s.h.

Basic morphological analysis of languages other than English; morphological markers of syntactic relations (morphosyntax), such as case/agreement, possession, switch reference and other inflectional marking. Corequisites: 103:201.

103:201 Introduction to Syntax 3 s.h.

Methods and argumentation for formal analysis of sentence structure through induction from language data of central concepts and relations; hypothesis testing, empirical bases of theoretical concepts. Corequisites: 103:200. Same as 164:241.

103:202 Syntactic Theory 3 s.h.

Current syntactic theory examined through analysis of data sets, readings in recent research; emphasis on argument construction, statement of formal principles. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 103:201. Same as 164:242.

103:203 Introduction to Phonology 3 s.h.

Analysis of sound systems, focus on early generative phonological theory; extensive practice in analysis using data from a variety of languages; linguistic argumentation. Prerequisites: 103:110. Same as 164:203.

103:204 Phonological Theory 3 s.h.

Post-SPE phonological theory, including autosegmental phonology, feature geometry, the syllable, optimality theory. Prerequisites: 103:203. Same as 164:244.

- 103:205 Topics in Linguistic Theory 2-3 s.h.
Varied topics in linguistic theory; for graduate students.
- 103:206 First Language Acquisition 3 s.h.
Child language from a crosslinguistic perspective. Prerequisites: 103:110, and 103:141 or 103:201. Same as 164:245.
- 103:210 Linguistic Structures 3 s.h.
Grammatical and/or phonological structure of a selected language or language family. Repeatable with different language.
- 103:211 Generative Second Language Acquisition 3 s.h.
Overview of current second-language acquisition research in the generative linguistic framework; focus on characterizing second language learners' linguistic competence and how it is constrained by principles of universal grammar. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 103:111 or 103:201, and 103:112 or 103:203. Same as 164:246.
- 103:212 Advanced Syntactic Theory 2-3 s.h.
Recent developments in syntax; comparison of theories, argumentation, and uses of data. Repeatable. Same as 164:247.
- 103:214 Advanced Phonological Theory 2-3 s.h.
Current issues. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 103:204. Same as 164:248.
- 103:216 Topics in Second Language Acquisition 3 s.h.
Recent developments of selected issues in second language acquisition. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 103:211. Same as 164:249.
- 103:217 Language Universals Linguistic Typology 3 s.h.
Proposed universal principles of linguistic structure; approaches to classification of languages on the basis of grammatical and phonological structure. Prerequisites: 103:201.
- 103:218 Psycholinguistics 3 s.h.
Theoretical, empirical issues in psycholinguistics; models demonstrating relation of formal language structure to psychological operations used in speech perception and production; laboratory emphasis on paradigmatic research in psycholinguistics. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 103:100. Same as 003:218.
- 103:230 Advanced Hearing Science and Speech Perception 3 s.h.
Perception of speech and other sounds by human listeners, how these perceptual abilities relate to the physiology of the auditory system; perception of speech by hearing-impaired listeners through hearing aids or cochlear implants. Offered spring semesters. Requirements: (for 003:230) 003:113; (for 103:230) background in phonetics, speech science, and hearing science. Same as 003:230.
- 103:231 History of the German Language 3 s.h.
Same as 013:241.
- 103:232 Special Topics in German Linguistics 3 s.h.
Repeatable. Same as 013:299, 164:299.
- 103:262 Topics in Comparative Romance Linguistics 3 s.h.
Comparative study of phonology, morphology, or syntax of the main Romance languages as informed by linguistic theory; diachronic or synchronic perspective. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 035:204. Recommendations: additional graduate course work in linguistics. Same as 035:207, 164:262, 20E:201.
- 103:300 Seminar: Spanish Linguistics 3 s.h.
Repeatable with different topics. Same as 035:300.
- 103:312 Seminar: Problems in Linguistics 2-3 s.h.
Intensive study of theoretical and practical problems. Same as 164:342.
- 103:390 Special Projects arr.

Undergraduate nondegree program: Minor in Mathematics

Graduate degrees: M.S., Ph.D. in Mathematics

Web site: <http://www.math.uiowa.edu>

Mathematics is a basic tool for understanding modern society as well as a crucial requirement for many careers in science, engineering, business, and the professions. Research in this living, dynamic subject is at the highest level in history.

An undergraduate degree in mathematics prepares students for a variety of careers in government and business, for secondary teaching, for graduate study, and with proper planning, for a variety of professional programs. Graduate study is advisable for some business and governmental positions and for college and university teaching and research.

Undergraduate Programs

The department offers a Bachelor of Science, a Bachelor of Arts, and a minor in mathematics. Students seeking either the B.A. or B.S. enroll in one of three programs: Program A is for students who plan to work in business or government or pursue graduate study in mathematics; program B is for students who seek secondary school teaching licensure; and program C is for those seeking specialization in a math-related area, such as actuarial science, biomathematics, business, computer science, economics, physics, statistics, and so forth. Program C may be especially appropriate for students who plan to seek a math-related job after earning a B.A. or B.S. in mathematics, rather than going on to graduate study.

B.A. or B.S. with Double Major

Students may choose to combine a major in mathematics with a major or second degree in computer science, statistics, actuarial science, or other disciplines. They must satisfy all requirements of program A, program B, or program C in mathematics as well as all requirements for the additional major or degree. For more information, consult an advisor and see Earning a Degree (Earning Two or More Majors, and Earning Multiple Undergraduate Degrees) in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Student Academic Handbook.

Transfer from Engineering to Mathematics

Certain engineering students who have completed 22M:031 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus, 22M:032 Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus, 22M:033 Engineering Mathematics III: Matrix Algebra, 22M:034 Engineering Mathematics IV: Differential Equations, or 22M:037 Engineering Mathematics V: Vector Calculus may count these courses toward a bachelor's degree in mathematics. See the department's Handbook for Undergraduate Majors.

Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Arts in mathematics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 37-39 s.h. (11 courses) of work for the major. The Bachelor of Science in mathematics requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including at least 43-45 s.h. (13 courses) of work for the major. The semester hour requirement for each degree varies, depending on the student's choice of program A, B, or C.

At least 15 s.h. of post-calculus course work applied toward the major must be taken at The University of Iowa. Post-calculus courses are those numbered 22M:027 and above that have a calculus prerequisite. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in all course work for the major.

Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

For policies concerning transfer credit, correspondence credit, credit by examination, cumulative grade-point average, rules relating to regression and duplication, and so forth, see the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Student Academic Handbook. For information about duplication, regression, and use of the second-grade-only option for mathematics courses, contact the Department of Mathematics.

The Handbook for Undergraduate Majors is available from the Department of Mathematics and on its web site. The handbook provides details about schedule planning and career options. For more information on admission, financial support, employment opportunities, the faculty, facilities, and other topics, visit The University of Iowa and Department of Mathematics web sites.

Program A

Program A is primarily for students who plan to work in business or government or to pursue graduate study in mathematics.

Students must complete seven core courses. In addition, B.A. students must complete at least four electives, and B.S. students must complete at least six.

CORE COURSES

A two-semester sequence of calculus I-II (8 s.h.) is required. Advanced placement credit, CLEP credit, and credit obtained through the Mathematics Incentive Program is accepted for all or part of the calculus requirement.

All of these:

22M:025-22M:026 Calculus I-II	8 s.h.
22M:027 Introduction to Linear Algebra	4 s.h.
22M:050 Introduction to Abstract Algebra I	3 s.h.
22M:055-22M:056 Fundamental Properties of Spaces and Functions I-II	7 s.h.
22M:100 Introduction to Ordinary Differential Equations	3 s.h.

More advanced courses may be substituted for the core courses, with Department of Mathematics approval.

ELECTIVES

B.A. students complete four electives (each 3-4 s.h.) chosen from the following list, including at least one upper-level mathematics course.

B.S. students complete six electives chosen from the following list, including at least three upper-level mathematics courses.

Mathematics

All courses numbered 22M:070 and above, except 22M:081 Geometry for Elementary Teachers, 22M:095 Introduction to Research Opportunities, 22M:104 Introduction to Matrix Theory, 22M:105 Basic Analysis, 22M:109 Classical Analysis, and 22M:195 Current Issues in Mathematics Education. Upper-level mathematics courses are those numbered 22M:096 Introduction to Mathematics Research, 22M:115 Introduction to Analysis I, and above (except 22M:195 Current Issues in Mathematics Education through 22M:199 Readings in Mathematics).

Computer Science

22C:016 Computer Science I: Fundamentals	4 s.h.
Any course numbered above 22C:020 that counts toward an undergraduate major in computer science, except 22C:197 and 22C:198

Statistics and Actuarial Science

Students can count only one of these: 22S:039 Probability and Statistics for the Engineering and Physical Sciences, 22S:120 Probability and Statistics, or 22S:130 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics I. None of them can be counted if taken after 22S:153 Mathematical Statistics I.

22S:039 Probability and Statistics for the Engineering and Physical Sciences	3 s.h.
22S:120 Probability and Statistics	4 s.h.
22S:130 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics I	3 s.h.
22S:131 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics II	3 s.h.
22S:138 Bayesian Statistics	3 s.h.

22S:150 Regression, Time Series, and Forecasting	3 s.h.
22S:153 Mathematical Statistics I	3 s.h.
22S:154 Mathematical Statistics II	3 s.h.
22S:156 Applied Time Series Analysis	3 s.h.
22S:158 Experimental Design and Analysis	3 s.h.
22S:174 Quantitative Methods for Actuaries	3 s.h.
22S:175 Actuarial Models	3 s.h.
22S:176 Credibility and Survival Analysis	3 s.h.
22S:180 Mathematics of Finance I	4 s.h.
22S:181 Life Contingencies I	3 s.h.
22S:182 Life Contingencies II	3 s.h.
22S:193 Statistical Inference I	3 s.h.
22S:194 Statistical Inference II	3 s.h.
22S:195 Probability and Stochastic Processes I	3 s.h.
22S:196 Probability and Stochastic Processes II	3 s.h.

Program B

Program B is intended for students seeking secondary school teaching licensure. See the department's Handbook for Undergraduate Majors, and see Teaching and Learning (College of Education) in the Catalog.

CORE COURSES

A two-semester sequence of calculus I-II (8 s.h.) is required. Advanced placement credit, CLEP credit, and credit earned through the Mathematics Incentive Program is accepted for part or all of the calculus requirement.

All of these:

22C:016 Computer Science I: Fundamentals	4 s.h.
22M:025-22M:026 Calculus I-II	8 s.h.
22M:027 Introduction to Linear Algebra	4 s.h.
22M:028 Calculus III	4 s.h.
22M:050 Introduction to Abstract Algebra I	3 s.h.
22M:055 Fundamental Properties of Spaces and Functions I	3 s.h.
22M:070 Foundations of Geometry	3 s.h.
22S:120 Probability and Statistics	4 s.h.

Students who wish to take 22M:055 Fundamental Properties of Spaces and Functions I and 22M:056 Fundamental Properties of Spaces and Functions II instead of 22M:028 Calculus III and 22M:055 Fundamental Properties of Spaces and Functions I should consult their advisor.

One of these:

22M:150 Introduction to Discrete Mathematics	3 s.h.
22M:151 Discrete Mathematical Models	3 s.h.

More advanced courses may be substituted for the core courses, with Department of Mathematics approval.

ELECTIVES

B.A. students in Program B must take at least one additional course (3-4 s.h.) beyond calculus. B.S. students in Program B must take at least three additional courses (9-16 s.h.) beyond calculus, of which two must be numbered 22M:107 or above. With their advisor's approval, capable students are encouraged to substitute more advanced courses in the same subject area for any of the electives. The Handbook for Undergraduate Majors offers advice on course selection.

Program C

Program C provides a degree with specialization in a math-related subtrack, such as the mathematics of making optimal business decisions, risk management and insurance, economics, physics, chemistry, biostatistics, biomathematics, computer science, and statistics and actuarial science. In consultation with the faculty advisor, each student prepares a program of studies tailor-made to his or her interests and academic or career goals. Building on a core of mathematics courses, students have considerable freedom to design their curriculum. The proposed program of studies must be approved by the mathematics department undergraduate committee. Students should submit their study plans on a Program C Plan of Study form, available at the mathematics department office. The Handbook for Undergraduate Majors has plans for choosing electives in several areas; students may use these or propose other plans.

Program C requires a total of 11 core and elective courses for the B.A., and a total of 13 core and elective courses for the B.S., as follows.

CORE COURSES

A two-semester sequence of calculus I-II (8 s.h.) is required. Advanced placement credit, CLEP credit, and credit earned through the Mathematics Incentive Program is accepted for part or all of the calculus requirement.

22M:025-22M:026 Calculus I-II	8 s.h.
22M:027 Introduction to Linear Algebra	4 s.h.

One of these:

22M:028 Calculus III	4 s.h.
22M:056 Fundamental Properties of Spaces and Functions II	4 s.h.

One additional proof course (e.g., 22M:050 or 22M:055)	3-4 s.h.
--	----------

Some subtracks require additional core courses; consult the Handbook for Undergraduate Majors. Additional core courses count as required electives (see "Electives" below).

More advanced courses may be substituted for the core courses, with Department of Mathematics approval.

ELECTIVES

Students choose six electives for the B.A. and eight for the B.S. At least three electives must be mathematical sciences courses (prefixes 22C, 22M, and 22S).

Students choose electives according to their subtrack. Some subtracks require additional core courses (see "Core Courses" above); the additional core courses count as required electives.

For a list of suggested subtracks and restrictions on electives in each subtrack, consult the Handbook for Undergraduate Majors.

B.A. or B.S. with Teacher Licensure

Mathematics majors seeking licensure to teach in elementary and/or secondary schools should choose program B (Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science); see "Program B" above. For information about teacher licensure and the Teacher Education Program, see Teaching and Learning (College of Education) in the Catalog.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Note: Much of the work in mathematics must be taken in sequence, so students must begin major requirements as early as possible, and individual plans of study must be worked out carefully. The B.A. in mathematics typically requires 11 courses, and the B.S. requires 13. Students must choose program A, B, or C by the end of the third semester and must remain in their chosen program until they graduate in order to stay on track for the four-year graduation plan.

Before the third semester begins: course work through second-semester calculus and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: two or three more courses in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: three or four more major courses and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: two or three more major courses

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

In order to graduate with honors in mathematics, a student must be a member of the University of Iowa Honors Program, which requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information). Honors students in mathematics also must complete the regular requirements for an undergraduate major in mathematics with a g.p.a. of at least 3.40, and must complete either an honors project or the courses 22M:115 Introduction to Analysis I and 22M:116 Introduction to Analysis II, and 22M:120 Abstract Algebra I and 22M:121 Abstract Algebra II with a g.p.a. of 3.00 or higher. Other sequences, such as 22M:170 Numerical Analysis: Nonlinear Equations and Approximation Theory and 22M:171 Numerical Analysis: Differential Equations and Linear Algebra, or 22M:132 General Topology and 22M:133 Introduction to Smooth Manifolds, may be substituted with the approval of the honors advisor.

Students planning an honors project are responsible for finding a faculty member willing to supervise the project. For help finding a project supervisor, contact the department. Students typically register for 22M:197 Individual Study and Honors in Mathematics for at least 3 s.h. For more information, contact the mathematics department honors advisor.

Minor

The minor in mathematics requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in mathematics courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken in the Department of Mathematics at The University of Iowa. Transfer credit and credit by examination do not count toward the 12 s.h. of advanced work. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Courses 22M:027 Introduction to Linear Algebra and 22M:028 Calculus III are considered advanced for the minor, as are all courses numbered 22M:033 Engineering Mathematics III: Matrix Algebra and above, except 22M:081 Geometry for Elementary Teachers, 22M:104 Introduction to Matrix Theory, 22M:109 Classical Analysis, and 22M:195 Current Issues in Mathematics Education. Students who have taken 22M:031 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus, 22M:032 Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus, 22M:033 Engineering Mathematics III: Matrix Algebra, 22M:034 Engineering Mathematics IV: Differential Equations, and 22M:037 Engineering Mathematics V: Vector Calculus at Iowa may satisfy the advanced course requirement by taking one additional advanced course numbered 22M:050 or above, except 22M:056 Fundamental Properties of Spaces and Functions II and 22M:100 Introduction to Ordinary Differential Equations. See the department's Handbook for Undergraduate Majors.

Students seeking a mathematics minor must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in all work attempted in the department.

Graduate Programs

The department offers the Master of Science and the Doctor of Philosophy in mathematics.

Master of Science

The Master of Science in mathematics requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit. Students earn the degree through courses and comprehensive examinations. There is no M.S. thesis. Requirements (courses and comprehensive examination areas) may be modified with the department's consent.

Four different programs (I, II, III, and IV) lead to the M.S. in mathematics. Program II is designed for secondary school teachers.

Program I

Program I prepares students for further study of pure and applied mathematics and for employment in government and business. M.S. students in program I take several courses and pass two comprehensive examinations. Students must earn a grade of B-minus or higher in six of the courses and maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.75 in all mathematics courses taken for the degree.

The following courses are required.

22M:115-22M:116 Introduction to Analysis I-II	6 s.h.
22M:120-22M:121 Abstract Algebra I-II	6 s.h.
22M:132 General Topology	3 s.h.
22M:133 Introduction to Smooth Manifolds	3 s.h.
22M:142 Nonlinear Dynamics with Numerical Methods	3 s.h.
22M:144 Partial Differential Equations with Numerical Methods	3 s.h.

Each student must pass two M.S.-level comprehensive exams, chosen from algebra, analysis, differential equations with numerical methods, and topology.

Program II

Program II is designed for secondary school teachers. Program II requirements are the same as those for programs I and III, except that two mathematics education courses are required. All mathematics courses numbered 22M:100 or above may be used to satisfy the required 24 s.h. of course work. Students are encouraged to consult with the mathematics education faculty when planning their course of study.

Program III

Program III focuses on applied mathematics. Students in program III take several courses and pass two comprehensive examinations. Students must earn a grade of B-minus or higher in six of the courses and maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.75 in all mathematics courses taken for the M.S.

The following courses are required.

All of these:

22M:115-22M:116 Introduction to Analysis I-II	6 s.h.
22M:142 Nonlinear Dynamics with Numerical Methods	3 s.h.
22M:144 Partial Differential Equations with Numerical Methods	3 s.h.
22M:170 Numerical Analysis: Nonlinear Equations and Approximation Theory	3 s.h.
22M:171 Numerical Analysis: Differential Equations and Linear Algebra	3 s.h.

Both courses in group A, or both courses in group B:

Group A

22M:132 General Topology	3 s.h.
22M:133 Introduction to Smooth Manifolds	3 s.h.

Group B

22M:140 Continuous Mathematical Models	3 s.h.
22M:151 Discrete Mathematical Models	3 s.h.

Each student must pass two M.S.-level comprehensive exams, chosen from analysis, differential equations with numerical methods, numerical analysis, and topology.

Program IV

Program IV is designed for nondepartmental students working toward the Ph.D. in areas that require mathematical knowledge. The program has no specific required courses. Course distribution requirements are the same as those for program I.

Students in program IV are considered to have passed the comprehensive examination for the master's degree in mathematics if they have maintained a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 in all mathematics courses taken for the M.S. in mathematics and have successfully completed the Ph.D. comprehensive examination in their chosen area.

Students in program IV are assigned a mathematics advisor, who works with them and their major advisor to plan an appropriate curriculum for the M.S. in mathematics. A suitable program of study should be approved by a mathematics advisor before the student takes the Ph.D. comprehensive examination, and a member of the mathematics faculty should serve on the Ph.D. comprehensive examination committee.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in mathematics requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The program places strong emphasis on preparation for research and teaching. The department maintains no division between pure and applied mathematics. It cooperates in interdisciplinary doctoral programs with the College of Education (see Teaching and Learning in the Catalog) and the Program in Applied Mathematical and Computational Sciences.

Ph.D. students in mathematics must satisfy the following requirements for course work (credits and breadth), examinations, foreign language, and the Ph.D. thesis.

Students must spend at least three years in residence at a graduate college, including at least one year at The University of Iowa. They also should enroll in specific courses designated as preparatory for the Ph.D. examinations (consult the Department of Mathematics graduate studies director).

To further encourage mathematical breadth, students must earn at least 33 s.h. of graduate credit in regular courses equivalent to or more advanced than Ph.D. comprehensive examination preparatory courses. For a list of accepted 200-level and 300-level courses, and rules to ensure proper distribution, contact the department.

The Ph.D. examinations consist of a qualifying exam and a comprehensive exam. Students choose three areas from the department's list of qualifying examination areas: algebra, analysis, differential equations with numerical methods, and topology. For each qualifying area, there is a two-semester, 100-level course sequence designated as preparatory, although exams may differ from course content. The three parts of the qualifying exam are taken over a two-week period. One grade (pass, fail, conditional pass) is given on the entire three-part qualifying examination by a committee of six faculty members, two from each exam area. If the grade is fail, the committee has the option to consider each part of the exam separately, offering the student the option of pass in one or two of the areas and fail in the other(s).

The Ph.D. comprehensive exam tests students on research-related topics.

Candidates also take an oral final examination on their dissertation material.

Ph.D. students are required to demonstrate reading proficiency in French, German, or Russian by passing a reading test administered by the appropriate language department, earning a grade of B or higher in the second semester of a sequence offered by the appropriate language department, or passing a special examination approved by the Department of Mathematics graduate committee. Courses that do not carry graduate credit can be used to satisfy this requirement, but they do not count toward the required 72 s.h. of graduate credit. Students must demonstrate language competence after enrolling in graduate school.

The most distinctive aspect of a Ph.D. is the thesis. The department expects the thesis to be an original mathematical work comparable in content and writing quality to that found in standard published research journals. The thesis is written under the supervision of a mathematics department faculty member and is approved by a committee.

Admission

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Master of Science

Admission to M.S. programs I, II, and III is based on a combination of undergraduate course work and grades, letters of recommendation, and test scores. Numerical standards change every year or so; exceptions may be made to the following guidelines.

Applicants must have completed work in an undergraduate program equivalent to the bachelor's degree offered by the mathematics department, with an undergraduate g.p.a. of at least 3.20. Relevance and difficulty of courses are considered when evaluating grades; grades of C or lower in mathematics courses must be balanced by grades of A. Those whose preparation does not meet this requirement may be admitted conditionally and are asked to take specific courses that cover any deficiencies.

They also must score at least 700 on the quantitative section of the GRE General Test. Applicants whose first language is not English are required to demonstrate their competence in English, normally by scoring at least 620 (paper-based), 260 (computer-based), or 105 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL).

Applicants must submit three letters of recommendation.

Doctor of Philosophy

Admission to the Ph.D. program is based on a combination of undergraduate or graduate course work and grades, letters of recommendation, and test scores. Admission requirements are similar to those for the Master of Science, but the department generally seeks stronger grades and scores for doctoral admission: undergraduate or graduate g.p.a. of at least 3.40; GRE General Test quantitative score of at least 700; and for applicants whose first language is not English, scores of at least 620 (paper-based), 260 (computer-based), or 105 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL).

Mathematics Courses

For Lower-Division Undergraduates

These courses are not open to graduate students except by special arrangement with the department chair. Credit earned in 22M:001 Basic Algebra I, 22M:008 Intermediate Algebra, and 22M:003 Basic Geometry does not count toward degree requirements.

Although the sequences 22M:025 Calculus I and 22M:026 Calculus II, and 22M:031 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus and 22M:032 Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus are similar, they cover the material in a different order and with different emphases. Students must consult with their advisor before taking the second semester of one sequence after taking the first semester of another. Students who consider taking 22M:026 Calculus II after 22M:016 Calculus for the Biological Sciences or 22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business must consult with their advisor.

22M:001 Basic Algebra I

3 s.h.

Percents, ratio and proportion, algebraic expressions and operations, simple products, linear and quadratic equations, simultaneous equations, exponents and radicals; emphasis on verbal problems.

22M:003 Basic Geometry

3 s.h.

Angles, triangles, polygons, areas, Pythagorean theorem, similar triangles, circles, loci, related topics. Offered spring semesters. Requirements: 22M:001 or satisfactory score on math placement exam or one year of high school algebra.

22M:005 Trigonometry

3 s.h.

Trigonometric functions, solutions of right and oblique triangles, complex numbers. Requirements: 22M:008, or satisfactory score on math placement exam, or two years of high school algebra and one year of high school geometry.

22M:006 Logic of Arithmetic

3 s.h.

Mathematical and conceptual foundations of the natural numbers used in elementary school arithmetic teaching; multiple algorithmic approaches to arithmetic and its mathematical and contextual relationships, extensions to integers, rational and irrational numbers, multiple representations. Requirements: 22M:001 or satisfactory score on math placement exam. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22M:008 Intermediate Algebra

4 s.h.

Algebraic techniques, equations and inequalities, functions and graphs, exponential and logarithmic functions, systems of equations and inequalities. Requirements: satisfactory score on math placement exam.

22M:009 Elementary Functions

4 s.h.

Functions, relations, coordinate systems; properties and graphs of algebraic, trigonometric, logarithmic, exponential functions; inverse trigonometric functions; properties of lines, conic sections. Requirements: 22M:008, or satisfactory score on math placement exam, or two years of high school algebra and one year of high school geometry. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22M:010 Finite Mathematics

4 s.h.

Introduction to logic, set theory, linear equations and inequalities, linear programming, matrix algebra, combinatorial probability. Requirements: 22M:008 or satisfactory score on math placement exam or two-and-a-half years of high school mathematics. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22M:012 Theory of Arithmetic

3 s.h.

Sets, cardinalities, reasoning in proofs, counterexamples, arithmetic with integers, rationals, irrationals, number theory, functions, algebraic expressions. Requirements: 22M:009 or a more advanced course or satisfactory score on math placement exam. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22M:013 Mathematics for Business

4 s.h.

Algebraic techniques, functions and functional models, exponential and logarithmic functions and models, linear programming, informal introduction to calculus; examples and applications from management, economic sciences, related areas. Requirements: 22M:008, or satisfactory score on math placement exam, or two years of high school algebra and one year of high school geometry. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22M:014 First-Year Seminar

1 s.h.

Small discussion class taught by a faculty member; topics chosen by instructor; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities). Requirements: first- or second-semester standing.

22M:015 Mathematics for the Biological Sciences

4 s.h.

Relations, functions, coordinate systems, graphing, polynomials, trigonometric functions, logarithmic and exponential functions; discrete mathematics, probability; examples and applications from biological sciences. Requirements: 22M:008 or satisfactory score on math placement exam or three years of high school mathematics. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22M:016 Calculus for the Biological Sciences

4 s.h.

Differential, integral calculus; differential equations, multivariable calculus; applications to life sciences. Requirements: 22M:015, or satisfactory score on math placement exam, or three and one-half years of high school mathematics including trigonometry. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22M:017 Calculus and Matrix Algebra for Business

4 s.h.

Quantitative methods for treating problems arising in management, economic sciences, related areas; introduction to differential and integral calculus, systems of linear equations and matrix operations. Requirements: 22M:008 or 22M:013 or satisfactory score on math placement exam. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22M:025 Calculus I

4 s.h.

Fundamental concepts, methods, techniques of single-variable differential and integral calculus; differentiation, techniques of integration, series, applications. Requirements: 22M:009, or 22M:005 and 22M:008, or three and one-half years of high school mathematics including analytic geometry and trigonometry. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22M:026 Calculus II

4 s.h.

Continuation of 22M:025. Prerequisites: 22M:025.

22M:027 Introduction to Linear Algebra

4 s.h.

Vector algebra and geometry of three-dimensional Euclidean space and extensions to  $n$ -space and vector spaces; lines and planes, matrices, linear transformations, systems of linear equations, reduction to row echelon form, dimension, rank, determinants, eigenvalues and eigenvectors. Prerequisites: 22M:025 or 22M:031.

22M:028 Calculus III

4 s.h.

Multivariable calculus; vector functions, line integrals, total differentials, gradient, implicit functions, coordinate systems, Taylor's expansion, extrema, multiple integrals, vector fields, surface integrals, Stokes' theorem. Prerequisites: 22M:026.

22M:031 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus

4 s.h.

Limits, derivatives, max/min, other applications, mean-value theorem, approximating functions, concavity, curve sketching, exponential models; Riemann sums, fundamental theorem; integration techniques, improper integrals, approximations. Requirements: 22M:005 or 22M:009 or three and one-half years of high school mathematics including introduction to analytic geometry and trigonometry. GE: Quantitative or Formal Reasoning.

22M:032 Engineering Mathematics II: Multivariable Calculus

4 s.h.

Vector geometry; functions of several variables; polar coordinates; partial derivatives, gradients, directional derivatives; tangent lines and planes; max/min/parametric curves, curvilinear motion; multiple integrals; vector fields, flows; integration on curves, work; divergence, flux, Green's theorem. Requirements: 22M:031, or score of 4 or higher on AP Calc (AB) exam, or score of 3 or higher on AP Calc (BC) exam.

22M:033 Engineering Mathematics III: Matrix Algebra

2 s.h.

Applications, computers for matrix calculations; matrix, vector arithmetic; linear independence, basis, subspace (in  $R^2$ ,  $R^3$ ); systems of equations, matrix reduction; rank, dimension; determinants, applications; eigenvalues, eigenvectors; diagonalization, principal axis theorem. Prerequisites: 22M:031. Requirements: engineering major.

22M:034 Engineering Mathematics IV: Differential Equations

3 s.h.

Ordinary differential equations and applications, with integrated use of computing, student projects; first-order equations; higher order linear equations; systems of linear equations, Laplace transforms; introduction to nonlinear equations and systems, phase plane, stability. Prerequisites: 22M:032 and 22M:033. Requirements: engineering major.

22M:037 Engineering Mathematics V: Vector Calculus

3 s.h.

Partial derivatives, max-min problems, integrals along curves, surfaces and solids, vector fields and conservation of energy; curl, divergence, Stokes' theorem and the divergence theorem; the classical partial differential equations and qualitative behavior of their solutions. Prerequisites: 22M:034. Requirements: engineering major.

Elementary Topics of General Interest

These courses are not open to graduate students except by special arrangement with the department chair.

22M:050 Introduction to Abstract Algebra I 3 s.h.

Basic logic, proof methods, sets, functions, relations, mathematical induction; gradual transition from familiar number systems to abstract structures--division algorithm, unique factorization theorems; groups, subgroups, quotient groups, homomorphisms. Prerequisites: 22M:027. Requirements: concurrent enrollment in second-semester calculus.

22M:055 Fundamental Properties of Spaces and Functions I 3 s.h.

Elementary topological and analytic properties of real numbers; emphasis on ability to handle definitions, theorems, proofs. Corequisites: 22M:027. Requirements: second-semester calculus.

22M:056 Fundamental Properties of Spaces and Functions II 4 s.h.

Multivariable analysis; Bolzano-Weierstrass theorem in three-dimensional Euclidean space, differential calculus, inverse and implicit function theorems, multiple integrals, surface and line integrals, differential forms and Stokes' theorem in n-dimensional Euclidean space. Prerequisites: 22M:055. Recommendations: closed to students who have taken 22M:028.

22M:070 Foundations of Geometry 3 s.h.

Axiomatic development of common foundation for Euclidean, non-Euclidean geometry; constructions of non-Euclidean models, independence of parallel postulate. Prerequisites: 22M:026.

22M:072 Elementary Numerical Analysis 3 s.h.

Computer arithmetic, root finding, polynomial approximation, numerical integration, systems of linear equations, ordinary differential equations; use of higher-level computer language such as Matlab, Maple, Mathematica. Requirements: grade of C- or higher in 22M:026 or 22M:032. Same as 22C:072.

22M:081 Geometry for Elementary Teachers 3 s.h.

Points, lines, planes; measurement, two- and three-dimensional coordinate geometry, transformational geometry and vectors; applications of geometry to solve real-world problems. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 22M:001. Requirements: elementary teacher certificate candidacy or certification.

22M:095 Introduction to Research Opportunities 1 s.h.

Modern mathematics research areas and activities; seminar. Prerequisites: 22M:027.

22M:096 Introduction to Mathematics Research 3 s.h.

Research experience; students study an elementary topic of active research, then work in groups under faculty supervision. Prerequisites: 22M:026 and 22M:027.

For Upper-Division Undergraduates

Graduate students in mathematics may not receive credit for 22M:100 Introduction to Ordinary Differential Equations, 22M:104 Introduction to Matrix Theory, 22M:105 Basic Analysis, or 22M:109 Classical Analysis.

22M:100 Introduction to Ordinary Differential Equations 2-3 s.h.

First-order ordinary differential equations; second-order linear differential equations; series solutions; higher-order linear and matrix differential equations; existence and uniqueness theorems. Prerequisites: 22M:027 and 22M:028, or 22M:056.

22M:104 Introduction to Matrix Theory 3 s.h.

Vector algebra and geometry of three-dimensional Euclidean space and extensions to n-space and vector spaces; lines and planes, matrices, linear transformations, systems of linear equations, reduction to row-echelon form, dimension, rank, determinants, eigenvalues, eigenvectors. Requirements: graduate standing.

22M:105 Basic Analysis

3 s.h.

Elementary topological and analytical properties of real numbers; emphasis on ability to handle definitions, theorems, proofs; same material as 22M:055 for non-mathematics graduate students. Requirements: graduate standing, one year of calculus, and one semester of linear algebra.

22M:107 History of Mathematics

3 s.h.

May include numerical systems; Babylonian, Egyptian, and Greek mathematics; mathematics of other cultures; calculus; 19th- and 20th-century mathematics. Requirements: two semesters of calculus and one semester of linear algebra.

22M:109 Classical Analysis

3 s.h.

Multivariable calculus, vector functions, line integral, total differentials, gradient, implicit functions, coordinate systems, Taylor's expansion, extrema, multiple integrals, vector fields, surface integrals, Stoke's theorem. Requirements: graduate standing and one year of calculus.

22M:115 Introduction to Analysis I

3 s.h.

Real numbers, fundamentals of limits and continuity in the context of metric spaces; Lebesgue theory of functions of one real variable. Requirements: 22M:055 or graduate standing.

22M:116 Introduction to Analysis II

3 s.h.

Local theory of analytic functions of one complex variable, power series, classical transcendental functions; spaces of functions. Prerequisites: 22M:115.

22M:118 Complex Variables

3 s.h.

Geometry of complex plane, analytic functions; Cauchy-Goursat theorem, applications; Laurent series, residues, elementary conformal mapping. Prerequisites: 22M:028 or 22M:056 or 22M:109.

22M:120 Abstract Algebra I

3 s.h.

Groups and homomorphisms, Sylow Theorems, rings, finitely generated modules over a PID, Galois theory, vector spaces, linear transformations and matrices, canonical forms. Prerequisites: 22M:050.

22M:121 Abstract Algebra II

3 s.h.

Continuation of 22M:120. Prerequisites: 22M:120.

22M:123 Foundations of Set Theory

3 s.h.

Set theory as used in abstract mathematics; equivalent forms of axiom of choice, cardinal numbers and their arithmetic, ordinal numbers and transfinite induction. Requirements: 22M:050 or 22M:055 or graduate standing.

22M:124 Foundations of Logic

3 s.h.

Propositional calculus, Boolean algebras, introduction to axiomatic theories. Requirements: 22M:050 or 22M:055 or graduate standing.

22M:125 Qualifying Exam Preparation Seminars

0 s.h.

Exam preparation in pure and applied mathematics.

22M:126 Elementary Theory of Numbers

2-3 s.h.

Factorization, congruence, Diophantine equations, law of quadratic reciprocity. Prerequisites: 22M:050.

22M:127 Matrix Theory

3 s.h.

Vector spaces, linear transformations, matrices, equivalence of matrices, eigenvalues and eigenvectors, canonical forms, similarity, orthogonal transformations, bilinear and quadratic forms. Prerequisites: 22M:027 or 22M:104.

22M:132 General Topology

3 s.h.

Basic concepts of general topological spaces and continuous functions: countability of sets, topological space, comparing topologies; subspace, order, and product topologies; closed sets and limit points, continuous functions, metric topology, quotient topology (including projective spaces and gluing cells), connectedness in the real line and in general spaces, components and local connectedness, compactness in Euclidean and general spaces, limit point compactness, local compactness, countability axioms, separation axioms, normal spaces and Urysohn's Lemma, complete metric spaces, convergence in function spaces. Prerequisites: 22M:055.

- 22M:133 Introduction to Smooth Manifolds 3 s.h.
Calculus on smooth manifolds; smooth functions, mean value theorem, chain rule, smooth manifolds, tangent vectors, tangent spaces, inverse and implicit functions theorems, submersions and immersions, vectorfields, flows, multilinear algebra, differential forms, Stokes theorem. Prerequisites: 22M:027, 22M:028 or 22M:056, and 22M:132.
- 22M:140 Continuous Mathematical Models 3 s.h.
Building and analyzing mathematical models involving differential equations for specific problems from engineering and the sciences; modeling project. Prerequisites: 22M:100.
- 22M:142 Nonlinear Dynamics with Numerical Methods 3 s.h.
Nonlinear differential equations, one- and two-dimensional flows, stability, phase plane analysis, limit cycles, bifurcations, chaos, fractals; Euler's, multistep, and Runge-Kutta numerical methods. Prerequisites: 22M:055 and 22M:100.
- 22M:144 Partial Differential Equations with Numerical Methods 3 s.h.
Conservation laws, weak solutions, diffusion equation, Laplace's equation, finite difference methods, variational methods, finite element method. Prerequisite: 22M:028, 22M:055, and 22M:100.
- 22M:150 Introduction to Discrete Mathematics 3 s.h.
Basic methods of enumerative combinatorics, inclusion-exclusion and generating functions, applications of group theory (Polya-Burnside theorem). Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 22M:050.
- 22M:151 Discrete Mathematical Models 3 s.h.
Case history approach to discrete models from various fields (e.g., genetics, psychology, health care, scheduling); construction, interpretation, analysis, simulation, testing of models; development of discrete mathematics. Prerequisites: 22M:027.
- 22M:152 Theory of Graphs 3 s.h.
Connectivity properties, including Euler, Hamilton cycle problems; graph colorings, matchings; characterization of families of graphs such as trees, planar graphs, networks; graph algorithms, their applications. Prerequisites: 22M:050. Same as 22C:137.
- 22M:160 Introduction to Differential Geometry I 3 s.h.
Space curves, Frenet frames, intrinsic and extrinsic geometry of surfaces, first and second fundamental forms, isometries, Gauss map, Gaussian curvature, Theorema Egregium, geodesics, covariant differentiation; may include global theory of curves and Gauss-bonnet theorem. Prerequisites: 22M:028 and 22M:055, or 22M:056 or 22M:100.
- 22M:161 Introduction to Differential Geometry II 3 s.h.
Continuation of 22M:160; geometry of surfaces in Euclidean space, Gauss-Bonnet theorem and its applications, minimal surfaces, abstract surfaces; may include Riemannian manifolds, connections, elementary Lie groups, applications of differential geometry to other disciplines (physics, engineering). Prerequisites: 22M:160.
- 22M:170 Numerical Analysis: Nonlinear Equations and Approximation Theory 3 s.h.
Root finding for nonlinear equations; polynomial interpolation; polynomial approximation of functions; numerical integration. Prerequisites: 22M:027 and 22M:028, or 22M:037 or 22M:056. Requirements: knowledge of computer programming. Same as 22C:170.
- 22M:171 Numerical Analysis: Differential Equations and Linear Algebra 3 s.h.
Numerical methods for initial value problems for ordinary differential equations; direct and iterative methods for linear systems of equations; eigenvalue problems for matrices. Prerequisites: 22M:027 and 22M:028, or 22M:037 or 22M:056; and 22M:100. Requirements: knowledge of computer programming. Same as 22C:171.
- 22M:174 Optimization Techniques 3 s.h.
Basic theory of optimization, use of numerical algorithms in solution of optimization problems; linear and nonlinear programming, sensitivity analysis, convexity, optimal control theory, dynamic programming, calculus of variations. Prerequisites: 22M:027, 22M:028 or 22M:056, and 22M:072. Same as 22C:174.
- 22M:178 High Performance and Parallel Computing 3 s.h.

Parallel scientific computing methods such as parallel algorithms for dense and sparse matrices; implementation using libraries such as MPI; current topics such as grid computing. Requirements: linear algebra or numerical analysis course, and a programming language. Same as 22C:177.

22M:191 Topics in Technology Uses in Mathematics 2 s.h.

22M:195 Current Issues in Mathematics Education 1-3 s.h.

Recent curriculum developments, experimental programs, research relevant to classroom instruction, trends in education that may have a significant impact on mathematics programs. Same as 07S:235.

22M:196 Topics in Mathematics arr.

22M:197 Individual Study and Honors in Mathematics arr.

22M:199 Readings in Mathematics arr.

Core Graduate Courses

22M:200 Introduction to Differential Topology 3 s.h.

Manifolds, functions: tangent bundle, Morse-Sard theorem, transversality, submanifolds, tubular neighborhoods, normal bundles, vector fields, degree and intersection theory, fixed-point theory, Morse theory. Prerequisites: 22M:133.

22M:201 Introduction to Algebraic Topology 3 s.h.

Homotopy, fundamental group and covering spaces, CW and simplicial complexes, simplicial homology, Euler characteristic. Prerequisites: 22M:132.

22M:203 Topology of Manifolds 3 s.h.

Embedding, knotting, immersions; isotopy, homotopy, regular neighborhoods, engulfing, surgery, cobordism; three-, four-, and higher dimensional manifolds. Prerequisites: 22M:200 and 22M:201.

22M:205 Introduction to Algebra I 3 s.h.

Abstract algebra: semigroups, groups, rings, integral domains, polynomial rings, division rings, fields, vector spaces, matrices, modules over rings, lattices, categories. Prerequisites: 22M:120.

22M:206 Introduction to Algebra II 3 s.h.

Continuation of 22M:205. Prerequisites: 22M:205.

22M:210 Analysis I 3 s.h.

Lebesgue measure and integral, fundamental theorem of calculus, abstract measures and integration, Fubini's theorem, Radon-Nikodym theorem, Riesz representation theorem, L-p spaces. Prerequisites: 22M:116.

22M:211 Analysis II 3 s.h.

Hilbert space, Banach space techniques; Hahn-Banach theorem, open mapping theorem, principle of uniform boundedness; reflexivity, H-p spaces, Paley-Wiener theorem, space of functions analytic on the open unit disk. Prerequisites: 22M:118 and 22M:210.

22M:213 Ordinary Differential Equations I 3 s.h.

Existence, uniqueness, continuous dependence of solutions to initial value problems, autonomous systems; Poincare-Bendixon theory, linear systems and linearizations, perturbation, stability, periodic solutions, bifurcation, comparison and oscillation theorems, boundary value problems. Prerequisites: 22M:116.

22M:214 Ordinary Differential Equations II 3 s.h.

Continuation of 22M:213. Prerequisites: 22M:213.

22M:216 Partial Differential Equations I 3 s.h.

Elliptic equations; potential theory, maximum principle, a priori estimate, Dirichlet problem; initial value problem for parabolic equations; hyperbolic equations; Duhamel's principle, Cauchy problem; nonlinear equations, characteristics, canonical form, first-order systems. Prerequisites: 22M:116.

22M:217 Partial Differential Equations II 3 s.h.
Continuation of 22M:216. Prerequisites: 22M:216.

22M:224 First-Year Graduate Seminar 1 s.h.
Introduction to mathematics graduate program. Requirements: first-year graduate standing in mathematics.

Primarily for Graduate Students

22M:260 Differential Geometry I 3 s.h.
Differentiable manifolds, forms, tensors, Riemannian metrics, isometries, connections, geodesics, curvature, related topics.

22M:261 Differential Geometry II 3 s.h.
Continuation of 22M:260; varied topics, may include study of existence and uniqueness of solutions to differential equations and systems related to geometry, indefinite metrics, Lie groups, attributes of manifolds with particular curvature properties, global Riemannian geometry, Kahler geometry, applications of differential geometry to other disciplines. Prerequisites: 22M:260.

22M:270 Theoretical Numerical Analysis I 3 s.h.
Theoretical foundations of numerical analysis, within framework of functional analysis; application areas including approximation theory, numerical methods for partial differential equations, integral equations; introduction to functional analysis. Prerequisites: 22M:115, 22M:116, 22M:170, and 22M:171.

22M:271 Theoretical Numerical Analysis II 3 s.h.
Continuation of 22M:270. Prerequisites: 22M:270.

22M:280 Introduction to Financial Mathematics 2-3 s.h.
Financial mathematics; option pricing and portfolio optimization, stochastic integration, methods due to Ito and Feynman-Kac, Monte-Carlo simulation. Prerequisites: 22M:210.

22M:303 Topics in Analysis 2-3 s.h.
Measure theory, integration, general topology. Repeatable.

22M:305 Topics in Topology 2-3 s.h.
May include homotopy theory, topology of 3-manifolds, 4-manifolds, or higher-dimensional manifolds, knotting and embedding problems, fiber bundles and characteristic classes, K-theory, PL manifolds, infinite-dimensional manifolds. Repeatable.

22M:313 Functional Analysis I 2-3 s.h.
Locally convex topological vector spaces, duality, tensor products and nuclear spaces; Krein-Millman theorem, Choquet's theory; geometry of Banach spaces, nonlinear functional analysis; operators on Hilbert spaces, spectral theorem, algebras of operators. Prerequisites: 22M:211.

22M:314 Functional Analysis II 2-3 s.h.
Continuation of 22M:313. Prerequisites: 22M:313.

22M:321 Topics in Applied Mathematics arr.
Application of mathematics to other disciplines. Repeatable.

22M:324 Topics in Partial Differential Equations 2-3 s.h.
Regularity theory, nonlinear analysis in partial differential equations, fluid dynamics, harmonic analysis, conservation laws, other topics. Repeatable.

22M:328 Topics in Logic

2-3 s.h.

Theory of models, recursive functions, sets, deductions. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 22M:221.

22M:330 Topics in Algebra

2-3 s.h.

May include algebraic number theory, groups, representation theory, algebras, ideal theory, lattice theory. Repeatable. Prerequisites: 22M:206.

22M:340 Homological Algebra

2-3 s.h.

Modules, tensor products, groups of homomorphisms, categories, functors, homology functors, projective and injective modules, derived functors, torsion and extension functors, homological dimension. Prerequisites: 22M:206.

22M:360 Topics in Mathematical Biology

2-3 s.h.

Application of mathematics to biology. Repeatable.

22M:382 Seminar: Nonlinear Dynamics and Differential Equations

arr.

Repeatable.

22M:383 Seminar: Commutative Ring Theory

arr.

Repeatable.

22M:384 Seminar: Fourier Analysis

Medieval Studies

Chair: Carin M. Green

Coordinator: Robert Bork

Undergraduate nondegree program: Certificate in Medieval Studies

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~medieval/>

The Medieval Studies Program enables undergraduate students to combine study in three or more disciplines into an organized investigation of the Middle Ages, a rich historical period that continues to influence today's culture. Students can pursue the Certificate in Medieval Studies as a distinct interest or combine it with focused study in areas such as art history, classics, comparative literature, languages (e.g., French, German, Italian, Portuguese, Spanish), music, philosophy, religion, theatre, or women's studies.

Certificate

The Certificate in Medieval Studies requires a minimum of 21 s.h. in medieval studies course work. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in work for the certificate. The program is open to current undergraduate students, but graduates who hold University of Iowa bachelor's degrees may return to earn the certificate.

Courses used to complete the certificate may be counted toward requirements for the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program or toward a major or minor. Up to 6 s.h. of transfer credit may be applied toward the certificate, with the approval of the medieval studies coordinating committee.

Students must include courses from at least three different departments in their work for the certificate; they may count a maximum of 10 s.h. from a single department or program toward the 21 s.h. required.

All certificate students must complete one of the following two courses and should do so early in their study program.

162:109 Medieval Civilization I	3 s.h.
162:110 Medieval Civilization II	3 s.h.

Remaining courses may be chosen from those listed under "Associated Courses" below and from those listed under "Medieval Studies Courses" at the end of this section. Students should consult regularly with a medieval studies advisor while planning and completing their study program.

The Medieval Studies Program strongly encourages students to complete course work in a language relevant to the medieval period. Latin is recommended for anyone intending to pursue graduate study in the field. Many language courses have prerequisites, and some are offered irregularly, so students should complete their language course work as early as possible. The following language courses are approved for the medieval studies certificate.

008:140 Elementary Old English	3 s.h.
20L:011-20L:012 World of Cicero - Golden Age of Roman Poetry	6 s.h.
032:100-032:101 Biblical Hebrew I-II	8 s.h.
195:111-195:112 Intermediate Modern Standard Arabic I-II	10 s.h.

Sample Study Plans

Both study plans below fulfill certificate requirements. The first is tailored for a student intending to pursue graduate work in medieval studies, while the second might be designed by a student with a general interest in the period.

Sample plan 1:

01H:040 Introduction to Medieval Art	3 s.h.
16E:112 Medieval Intellectual History 1150-1500	3 s.h.
20L:011 World of Cicero	3 s.h.
20L:012 Golden Age of Roman Poetry	3 s.h.
032:025 Medieval Religion and Culture	3 s.h.
162:101/008:101 Literature and Culture of the Middle Ages	3 s.h.
162:110/16E:110 Medieval Civilization II	3 s.h.

Sample plan 2:

008:140/103:132 Elementary Old English	3 s.h.
008:146 Chaucer	3 s.h.
16E:117 History of the Medieval Church	3 s.h.
16E:119 Women, Power, and Society in Medieval Europe	3 s.h.

025:144 History of Music I	3 s.h.
035:160 The Cid in History and Legend	3 s.h.
162:109 Medieval Civilization I	3 s.h.

Associated Courses

The following courses are approved for the medieval studies certificate. Courses not on this list may be approved for satisfaction of certificate requirements. Students who wish to have a course approved should make a request to the Certificate in Medieval Studies coordinating committee. The coordinating committee revises the list of approved courses as necessary.

ARABIC LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE

195:111 Intermediate Modern Standard Arabic I	5 s.h.
195:112 Intermediate Modern Standard Arabic II	5 s.h.

ART AND ART HISTORY

01H:040 Introduction to Medieval Art	3 s.h.
01H:199 Topics in Art History (when topic is medieval)	3 s.h.

CENTER FOR THE BOOK

108:182/16E:120 The Book in the Middle Ages	3 s.h.
108:183/16E:118/021:258 The Transition from Manuscript to Print	3 s.h.

CLASSICS

20L:011 World of Cicero	3 s.h.
20L:012 Golden Age of Roman Poetry	3 s.h.

ENGLISH

008:060 Selected Works of the Middle Ages	3 s.h.
008:101 Literature and Culture of the Middle Ages	3 s.h.
008:140/103:132 Elementary Old English	3 s.h.
008:141 Old English Beowulf	3 s.h.
008:142 Medieval Celtic Literature	3 s.h.
008:144/049:181 Medieval Drama	3 s.h.
008:146 Chaucer	3 s.h.

FRENCH

009:113 French Civilization	3 s.h.
-----------------------------	--------

GERMAN

13E:080 King Arthur Through the Ages	3 s.h.
--------------------------------------	--------

HISTORY

16E:051 Colloquium for History Majors (European) (when topic is medieval)	3 s.h.
16E:108 The Twelfth-Century Renaissance	3 s.h.
16E:109 Medieval Civilization I	3 s.h.
16E:110 Medieval Civilization II	3 s.h.
16E:111 Medieval Intellectual History 300-1150	3 s.h.
16E:112 Medieval Intellectual History 1150-1500	3 s.h.
16E:113 Economic and Social History of Medieval Europe	3 s.h.
16E:116 Ireland in the Early Middle Ages	3 s.h.
16E:117 History of the Medieval Church	3 s.h.
16E:118/108:183/021:258 The Transition from Manuscript to Print	3 s.h.
16E:119 Women, Power, and Society in Medieval Europe	3 s.h.
16E:120/108:182 The Book in the Middle Ages	3 s.h.
16E:121 The Middle Ages in Film	3 s.h.
16E:139 Ancient and Medieval Science	3 s.h.
16W:051 Colloquium for History Majors (World) (when topic is medieval)	3 s.h.

ITALIAN

018:119 Medieval Italian Literature	3 s.h.
018:120 Medieval and Renaissance Italian Literature	3 s.h.

MUSIC

025:144 History of Music I	3 s.h.
025:145 Counterpoint Before 1600	3 s.h.

PHILOSOPHY

026:112 Medieval Philosophy	3 s.h.
-----------------------------	--------

RELIGIOUS STUDIES

032:025 Medieval Religion and Culture	3 s.h.
032:100 Biblical Hebrew I	4 s.h.
032:101 Biblical Hebrew II	4 s.h.
032:132 Medieval and Reformation Religious Thought	3 s.h.

SPANISH AND PORTUGUESE

035:160 The Cid in History and Legend	3 s.h.
035:181 Topics in Spanish Literature (when topic is medieval)	3 s.h.

THEATRE ARTS

049:181/008:144 Medieval Drama	3 s.h.
--------------------------------	--------

Medieval Studies Courses

- 162:101 Literature and Culture of the Middle Ages 3 s.h.
English majors may apply this course to the following area and/or period requirement. AREA: Medieval and Early Modern Literature and Culture. PERIOD: Early Literatures Through 17th Century. Same as 008:101.
- 162:108 The Twelfth-Century Renaissance 3 s.h.
Social, economic, intellectual, and cultural rebirth of Europe in the 12th century; Latin learning and education; developments in vernacular literature, art, architecture, new religious orders and institutions, pilgrimage and Crusade. Same as 16E:108.
- 162:109 Medieval Civilization I 3 s.h.
Europe from the decline of Roman empire to the eleventh century; cultural, political, economic, artistic and architectural foundations of Western civilization. Same as 16E:109.
- 162:110 Medieval Civilization II 3 s.h.
Europe from the eleventh century to the Italian Renaissance; cultural, political, economic, artistic, and architectural foundations of Western civilization. GE: Foreign Civilization & Culture. Same as 16E:110.
- 162:111 Medieval Intellectual History 300-1150 3 s.h.
Philosophy, art, literature, religious culture of Europe from waning of classical intellectual modes of culture in late antiquity, to their recovery in 12th century. Same as 16E:111.
- 162:112 Medieval Intellectual History 1150-1500 3 s.h.
European philosophy, religion, literature, art from 12th-century rise of scholasticism; their transformation in period of Copernicus, Luther. Same as 16E:112.
- 162:113 Economic and Social History of Medieval Europe 3 s.h.
Changes in western Europe from 300 to 1500 A.D.; feudalism, manorialism, revival of towns, heresy, women, monasticism, agricultural and commercial revolutions, Black Death. GE: Foreign Civilization & Culture. Same as 16E:113.
- 162:116 Ireland in the Early Middle Ages 3 s.h.
Ireland and the northern British islands 400-1000 CE, a region of small kingdoms and thin population, lacking natural resources, far from Rome and ancient centers of Mediterranean culture; development of civilization, including monastic, legal, theological, and scholarly traditions that had a major impact on continental Europe; early medieval Irish history; introduction to the world of historical scholarship. Same as 16E:116.
- 162:117 History of the Medieval Church 3 s.h.
Development of Christianity to end of great schism; rise of Roman primacy, development of monasticism, orthodox and heterodox groups. GE: Foreign Civilization & Culture. Same as 16E:117.
- 162:119 Women, Power, and Society in Medieval Europe 3 s.h.
Same as 16E:119.
- 162:121 The Middle Ages in Film 3 s.h.
How films that represent medieval events and literature may be analyzed to reveal the culture and times in which the films were made; Middle Ages and European nationalistic mythmaking as represented in film. Same as 16E:121.
- 162:139 Ancient and Medieval Science 3 s.h.
Greeks' initiation of scientific inquiry; developments in astronomy, cosmology, optics, mathematics, physics, medicine, psychology in ancient and medieval societies of Middle East, Europe. Same as 16E:139.

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/microbiology>

Study in the Department of Microbiology is dedicated to the branch of biological sciences that deals with the smallest living things: bacteria, archaea, fungi, algae, protozoa, and viruses. It is coupled with immunology, the study of the response of higher organisms to foreign substances.

Microbiology and immunology are at the forefront of the modern biological revolution. Microbes are often the experimental subjects of choice for examining basic genetic and biological phenomena because of their small size, rapid growth rate, and relative simplicity. A significant portion of contemporary biochemical research employs microbiological and immunological methods.

Current research is making theoretical and practical advances concerning microbial species and viruses that infect animals, including man, plants, and other microbes; the use of comparative genomics, gene expression profiling, and recombinant DNA methods to analyze basic biological processes and generate valuable products; the nature and occurrence of microbial life in extreme or unusual environments; microbial synthesis and modification of antibiotics and other natural products; the role of microbes in stabilization of the biosphere by recycling and detoxifying waste products; the genetics and regulation of metabolic processes; and the genetics and regulation of the immune response, including characterization of mechanisms used by bacteria to signal one another and characterization of interactions between different types of immune cells and their targets.

The Department of Microbiology offers degree programs for undergraduates and for graduate students and administers the academic curriculum at both levels. The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences grants undergraduate degrees in microbiology and oversees undergraduate academic policy relating to the student record. The Graduate College grants graduate degrees in microbiology.

Undergraduate Program

The Department of Microbiology offers a Bachelor of Science and a minor in microbiology.

Microbiology is an excellent major for undergraduate students who want a good general education with emphasis on an important and interesting branch of biological sciences. Graduates find employment opportunities in government, hospitals, public health laboratories, research laboratories, and industrial laboratories (food, dairy, chemical, pharmaceutical, and genetic engineering companies). Those who pursue advanced degrees have more advanced career opportunities in these same areas as well as in college and university teaching.

Bachelor of Science

The Bachelor of Science in microbiology requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 64 s.h. of work for the major (21 s.h. in microbiology and 43 s.h. in supporting course work). Students also must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The required 21 sh. of microbiology must include at least 12 s.h. earned in University of Iowa courses numbered 061:147 Survey of Immunology and above, except 061:164 Nursing Microbiology; students may count 061:218 Microscopy for Biomedical Research toward the requirement but not 061:220 Advanced Microscopy Biomedical Research. No more than 2 s.h. of 061:161 Undergraduate Research in Microbiology (or 061:171 Honors Undergraduate Research in Microbiology for honors students) and no more than 2 s.h. of 061:163 Seminar: Microbiology may be counted toward the requirement. In order to take microbiology courses more advanced than 061:157 General Microbiology, students must earn a grade of C or higher in 061:157 General Microbiology. The supporting science and mathematics course work required for the major may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Students must include 061:163 Seminar: Microbiology (2 s.h.) in the required 21 s.h. of microbiology; they must take the course for credit once during their last two semesters before graduation, but they are encouraged to take it for 0 s.h. during other semesters, once they have completed 061:157 General Microbiology.

In addition to the required 21 s.h. of microbiology, the major requires supporting course work as follows.

002:010-002:011 Principles of Biology I-II	8 s.h.
004:011-004:012 Principles of Chemistry I-II	8 s.h.
004:121-004:122 Organic Chemistry I-II	6 s.h.
004:141 Organic Chemistry Laboratory	3 s.h.
029:011-029:012 College Physics I-II	8 s.h.
099:120 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology I	3 s.h.
099:130 Biochemistry and Molecular Biology II	3 s.h.

One of these:

22M:016 Calculus for the Biological Sciences	4 s.h.
22M:025 Calculus I	4 s.h.
22M:031 Engineering Mathematics I: Single Variable Calculus	4 s.h.

In addition, the following courses may be recommended for some students.

08N:080 Nonfiction Writing	3 s.h.
171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics (some medical schools require a biostatistics course for admission)	3 s.h.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan. (Courses in the major are those required to complete the major; they may be offered by departments other than the major department.)

Before the third semester begins: 002:010 Principles of Biology I; 004:011 Principles of Chemistry I, and 004:012 Principles of Chemistry II; an approved calculus class; and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: 002:011 Principles of Biology II; 004:121 Organic Chemistry I, 004:122 Organic Chemistry II, and 004:141 Organic Chemistry Laboratory; 061:157 General Microbiology; and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: five more courses in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: another 10-12 s.h. of course work

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining required General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Microbiology majors who are members of the University of Iowa Honors Program may enroll in the honors program in microbiology. Membership in the University Honors Program requires that students maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33. Microbiology honors students also must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 in microbiology courses. The program requires 25 s.h. of course work in microbiology, including 6 s.h. in 061:171 Honors Undergraduate Research in Microbiology, which introduces students to experimental research. At the end of the research, students present written and oral reports. Students who successfully complete these requirements receive the B.S. with honors.

Minor

The minor in microbiology requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in microbiology courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses taken at The University of Iowa. For the minor, courses numbered 061:147 Survey of Immunology and above, except 061:164 Nursing Microbiology, are considered advanced. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work in the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass. Students may count a maximum of 2 s.h. earned in 061:161 Undergraduate Research in Microbiology or 061:171 Honors Undergraduate Research in Microbiology, and 2 s.h. earned in 061:163 Seminar: Microbiology, toward the minor. They also may count 061:218 Microscopy for Biomedical Research, but not 061:220 Advanced Microscopy Biomedical Research.

Graduate Programs

The Department of Microbiology offers a Master of Science and a Doctor of Philosophy in microbiology. Graduate study in the department is designed to help students become highly qualified in microbiology research and teaching.

Admitted graduate students usually pursue the Ph.D.

Graduate study is offered in six subdisciplines: pathogenic bacteriology, microbial genetics, immunology, microbial physiology, animal virology, and bioinformatics. Several areas involve interdisciplinary training both within and outside the department, so students gain broad experience during their course of study. Students also may pursue interdisciplinary Ph.D. programs in genetics, immunology, and molecular and cellular biology.

During their first year, students rotate in three laboratories of their choice and are advised by the Graduate Student Advisory Committee. At the end of the first year, they choose a research supervisor who chairs their advisory committee. The committee provides intellectual and research guidance for the student's training.

The Department of Microbiology cooperates with other University of Iowa departments to give students ample access to diverse course offerings, seminars, and research programs. For example, microbiology students may participate in courses and seminars in immunology, genetics, molecular and cellular biology, biocatalysis/biotechnology, and electron microscopy.

All students admitted to advanced degree programs are expected to assist in departmental teaching.

Master of Science

The Master of Science in microbiology requires a minimum of 30 s.h. of graduate credit. M.S. students are required to earn a minimum of 12 s.h. in microbiology courses chosen from three of the department's six subdisciplines. They may substitute a course they have already taken (at The University of Iowa or elsewhere) for a course requirement, with the M.S. advisory committee's approval. Additional course requirements depend on students' interests and the advice of the examining committee.

Students must write a thesis based on their own research and defend it satisfactorily in an oral examination. No more than 9 s.h. of credit for thesis research may be counted toward the 30 s.h. required for the Master of Science.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in microbiology requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. Ph.D. students are required to earn a minimum of 15 s.h. of credit in graduate-level microbiology courses. They may substitute a course they have already taken (at The University of Iowa or elsewhere) for a course requirement, with the Ph.D. advisory committee's approval.

Students must pass a comprehensive examination before their sixth semester in the program and write a thesis based on their own research. The thesis must be defended satisfactorily in an oral examination.

Admission

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog. They should have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00 and must have completed courses in biology, chemistry (inorganic and organic), mathematics including calculus, and physics. Those admitted with deficiencies must complete the relevant course work during their first year of graduate study. Admission is determined through a review and formal vote by the faculty. Preference is given to students applying for the Ph.D. program.

Facilities

The Department of Microbiology is situated on the University of Iowa health sciences campus, where it shares the Bowen Science Building with the Departments of Anatomy and Cell Biology, Biochemistry, Molecular Physiology and Biophysics, and Pharmacology. Laboratory space and modern equipment are available for teaching and research.

Microbiology Courses

- |   |        |
|---|--------|
| 061:005 Microbes and Our World   | 2 s.h. |
| Bacteria, viruses, and parasites and their role in shaping human health, industry, current affairs, history.  |        |
| 061:015 Web-Based Microbes and Our World   | 2 s.h. |
| Bacteria, viruses, and other microorganisms; ways in which microbes affect our health, economy, and environment; how humans have harnessed microbial growth; how microbes have shaped human experience and continue to play key roles in modern life. |        |
| 061:103 Principles of Infectious Diseases  | 5 s.h. |

Principles and methods essential to study of microorganisms, their isolation and identification; microorganisms in infectious diseases; current immunology concepts. Requirements: M.D. enrollment.

061:104 Principles Infectious Diseases--Physician Assistant 5 s.h.

Principles and methods essential to study of microorganisms, their isolation and identification; microorganisms in infectious diseases; current immunology concepts. Requirements: Physician Assistant Program enrollment.

061:112 Pharmacy Microbiology 4 s.h.

Medical microbiology: bacteriology, immunology, pathogenic bacteriology, virology, mycology, parasitology. Requirements: pre-pharmacy standing.

061:113 Dental Microbiology 3 s.h.

Medical microbiology: bacteriology, immunology, pathogenic bacteriology, virology, mycology, parasitology. Requirements: D.D.S. enrollment.

061:147 Survey of Immunology 4 s.h.

Major features of the evolutionary, ontogenic, and comparative development of innate and adaptive immune systems and their functions at the cellular and molecular levels. Prerequisites: 002:010 and 002:011.

061:157 General Microbiology 5 s.h.

Principles of microbial diversity, microbial genetics, physiology and metabolism, pathogenic microbiology, virology, immunology, industrial and environmental microbiology; laboratory emphasis on basic techniques. Prerequisites: 002:010 and 002:011. Corequisites: 004:121.

061:159 Pathogenic Bacteriology 5 s.h.

Pathogenic bacteria, with emphasis on mechanisms of pathogenicity, laboratory methods for isolation, identification; laboratory emphasis on advanced methods for study of pathogenic bacteria. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 061:157.

061:160 Microbial Physiology 3 s.h.

Bacterial genomes, cell structure, growth, energy metabolism, biosynthesis, mechanisms of signal transduction and regulation; laboratory supplement in 061:180. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 061:157.

061:161 Undergraduate Research in Microbiology arr.

Experimental research under faculty supervision. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 061:157.

061:163 Seminar: Microbiology 2 s.h.

Current topics in microbiology, immunology. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 061:157 and senior standing.

061:164 Nursing Microbiology 4 s.h.

Overview of bacteria, viruses, and eukaryotic microorganisms that cause human disease; microbial structure, growth control and reproduction; immunology in the context of host defense mechanisms. Requirements: pre-nursing student standing. Corequisites: 002:002 or 002:010 or 002:021, if not taken as a prerequisite.

061:168 Introduction to Animal Viruses 3-5 s.h.

Basic physical, chemical, biological properties of animal viruses, their association with human disease; optional laboratory with emphasis on methods in basic, clinical, and molecular virology. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 061:157.

061:170 Microbial Genetics 3 s.h.

Genetics of bacteria, bacteriophages. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 002:128 or 061:157.

061:171 Honors Undergraduate Research in Microbiology arr.

Experimental research under faculty supervision. Prerequisites: 061:157. Requirements: microbiology major, junior or senior standing, 3.33 overall g.p.a, and 3.33 g.p.a. in microbiology courses.

061:175 Microbial Genetics Laboratory 3 s.h.

Basic principles of genetic analysis of bacteria and bacteriophage. Prerequisites: 061:170.

061:179 Bacterial Diversity 3-5 s.h.

Analysis of bacteria from varied habitats; emphasis on the physiological basis and molecular characteristics of diversity. Prerequisites: 061:157.

061:180 Microbial Physiology Laboratory 2 s.h.
Isolation and growth of bacteria, bacterial function products, nutrient transport, metabolic pathways, enzymes. Corequisites: 061:160.

061:190 Web-Based Nursing Microbiology 4 s.h.
Nursing microbiology, principles of immunology; web-based instruction. Requirements: pre-nursing standing. Corequisites: 002:002 or 002:010 or 002:021, if not taken as a prerequisite.

061:201 Graduate Immunology 3 s.h.
Ontogeny, activation, and function of T lymphocytes and B lymphocytes; innate immune effector mechanisms; major histocompatibility complex; antigen presentation; thymocyte positive and negative selection; signaling of T lymphocytes, B lymphocytes; emphasis on experimental methods for analysis of these processes. Requirements: (for 148:201) college biology, general chemistry, and introductory immunology courses; (for 061:201) courses in college biology, genetics, general chemistry, and introductory immunology. Recommendations: (for 148:201) courses in biochemistry and genetics; (for 061:201) biochemistry course. Same as 148:201.

061:207 Advanced Topics in Immunology 3 s.h.
In-depth analysis of selected areas. Requirements: (for 148:221) 148:201 or 148:202; (for 061:207) 061:201 and 061:202, or 148:201 and 148:202. Same as 148:221.

061:210 Advance Prokaryotic Molecular Biology 3 s.h.
Mechanism and regulation of DNA, RNA, and protein synthesis in bacteria. Requirements: (for 142:210) 156:201, or 002:128 and 099:130; (for 061:210) 002:128 and 099:130. Same as 142:210.

061:217 Integrated Topics in Infectious Diseases 1 s.h.
Clinical cases used to raise questions in host-parasite interactions; case/scientific exposés followed by related journal club discussions at next class session. Same as 148:217.

061:218 Microscopy for Biomedical Research arr.
Preparation, analysis of biomedical projects by light and electron microscopy. Prerequisites: 002:114. Same as 060:218.

061:220 Advanced Microscopy Biomedical Research arr.
Technically advanced microscopy methods for research; individualized laboratory experience with opportunity to explore application of microscopy methods. Requirements: (for 060:220) an introductory microscopy course; (for 002:220) 002:218 or 060:218 or 061:218 or 012:156 or 052:156 or 060:156; (for 061:220) an introductory EM course. Same as 002:220, 060:220.

061:227 Advanced Topics in Microbiology 1 s.h.
Presentations by graduate students on selected research topics in microbiology; different topics each semester. Offered fall and spring semesters. Requirements: graduate standing in microbiology.

061:247 Graduate Survey of Immunology 4 s.h.
Major features of evolutionary, ontogenic, and comparative development of innate and adaptive immune systems; their functions at cellular and molecular levels. Offered fall semesters. Same as 148:247.

061:259 Graduate Pathogenic Bacteriology 4 s.h.
Pathogenic bacteria, with emphasis on mechanisms of pathogenicity, laboratory methods for isolation, identification; laboratory emphasis on advanced methods for study of pathogenic bacteria; research literature.

061:260 Graduate Microbial Physiology 3 s.h.
Bacterial genomes, cell structure, growth, energy metabolism, biosynthesis, mechanisms of signal transduction and regulation; laboratory supplement in 061:280.

061:261 Graduate Research in Microbiology arr.
Requirements: microbiology graduate standing.

061:263 Graduate Student Research Seminar

1 s.h.

Presentation of thesis work in progress. Requirements: microbiology graduate standing.

061:264 Directed Study in Microbiology

arr.

061:265 Topics in Virology Literature

1 s.h.

Papers of current interest in primary virology literature.

061:267 Graduate Introduction to Animal Viruses

3-5 s.h.

Basic physical, chemical, biological properties of animal viruses, their association with human diseases; optional laboratory with emphasis on methods in basic, clinical, and molecular virology; discussion topics in the primary literature. Requirements: grade of C or higher in 061:157.

061:268 Biology and Pathogenesis of Viruses

2 s.h.

Molecular biology of animal DNA and RNA viruses, interaction of these viruses with eucaryotic cells; mechanisms of viral latency, persistence, cellular transformation, oncogenesis; virology literature. Prerequisites: 061:168 or 061:267.

061:270 Graduate Microbial Genetics

3 s.h.

Genetics of bacteria, bacteriophages.

061:271 Graduate Microbial Genetics Laboratory

3 s.h.

Basic principles of genetic analysis in bacteria. Prerequisites: 061:270.

061:275 Perspectives in Biocatalysis

1-3 s.h.

Applied enzymology, protein design, structure-activity relationships, biosensor technology, microbial transformations, biodegradation of environmental pollutants. Repeatable. Requirements: graduate standing in a participating department supported by the Predoctoral Training Program in Biotechnology. Same as 004:275, 046:275, 052:275, 053:275, 099:275.

061:279 Graduate Bacterial Diversity

4-6 s.h.

Analysis of bacteria from varied habitats; emphasis on the physiological basis and molecular characteristics of diversity.

061:280 Graduate Microbial Physiology Laboratory

2 s.h.

Isolation and growth of bacteria, bacterial function products, nutrient transport, metabolic pathways, enzymes.

061:299 Mechanisms of Parasitism Journal Club

1 s.h.

Reviews of recent publications in molecular parasitology research and thesis research by training grant or journal club students. Same as 142:299.

Museum Studies

Chair: James Enloe

Director: Margaret Beck

Adjunct assistant professors: Tiffany Adrain, Sean Ulmer

Undergraduate nondegree program: Certificate in Museum Studies

The University of Iowa has maintained a long museum studies tradition, having offered courses in the subject continuously since 1910. Iowa's museum studies students have gone on to become directors, curators, educators, and exhibit specialists in museums throughout the country.

Museums are interdisciplinary institutions that embrace every aspect of cultural study, and the study of museums mirrors that multiplicity. Many University of Iowa departments and programs offer courses relevant to museum studies, for example, American studies, anthropology (including archaeology), art history, studio art, biology, business, communication studies, elementary and secondary education, English, foreign languages, history, library and information sciences, and leisure studies.

Museum facilities at the University of Iowa include the Museum of Natural History, the Museum of Art and the Old Capitol Museum.

The Museum Studies Program offers an undergraduate certificate. Its courses are open to all University of Iowa students; they attract individuals who have a general interest in the arts, humanities, or sciences as well as those who would like to learn more about how museums work.

The Museum Studies Program is administered by the Department of Anthropology.

Certificate

The Certificate in Museum Studies requires 18 s.h. The undergraduate certificate provides a broad foundation of knowledge increasingly desired in the museum field.

Museum studies courses introduce students to the spectrum of museum endeavors, from organization and mission planning to institutional histories and current developments in the field. Most courses developed by the program offer hands-on experience in exhibition planning and design, collection management, educational programming, community development, and administration.

A major in one of the natural sciences (e.g., biology, geoscience), anthropology, science education, art history, American studies, or history is recommended for students preparing for museum careers; see the appropriate College of Liberal Arts and Sciences department sections of the Catalog for information about those majors. CLAS students also may use the individualized plan of study track in the interdepartmental studies major to create a museum studies concentration relevant to their academic and professional interests.

Requirements for the Certificate in Museum Studies include 15 s.h. of foundation course work and an internship (3 s.h.), for a total of 18 s.h.

All students take 024:102 Introduction to Museology (3 s.h.), which provides a historical overview of museum development and function while introducing students to issues such as museum governance and financing, ethics and law, collection management, exhibition and educational programming, interpretation, and audience research. Ideally, this is the first course students take in the certificate program; it is a prerequisite for some of the program's more advanced courses.

In addition to the introductory course, students select three courses (minimum of 9 s.h.), typically one from each of three of the following categories, and one additional course (minimum of 3 s.h.) from any of the categories:

Museum administration and management

History, theory, and culture

Exhibition development and public education

Collection management and care

After completing the 15 s.h. of foundation course work described above, students complete an internship (minimum of 3 s.h.). The director of the museum studies certificate program works closely with students and affiliated faculty members to ensure that internships provide students with the instruction and experience they need.

Students may count a maximum of 6 s.h. completed for another certificate, major, or minor in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences toward the Certificate in Museum Studies; students must first request permission from the director of the museum studies certificate to use courses that are not included in the program, and the proposed course content and requirements must fit into one of the program's defined areas.

Students interested in the museum studies certificate are encouraged to contact the director of the Museum Studies Program.

Museum Studies Courses

024:102 Introduction to Museology

3 s.h.

Overview of museum history, function, philosophy, collection and curatorial practices, governance and funding issues, exhibition evaluation, audience studies; American cultural institutions. GE: Humanities. Same as 07S:112, 097:115, 113:103.

024:104 Exhibition Planning

3 s.h.

Preliminary work for and process of developing museum exhibitions; history of exhibit design, evaluation, budgets, teams and team member roles, working with community and special interest groups, methods of production and display; students research a topic, choose artifacts and images, and create a narrative and exhibit script.

Prerequisites: 024:102.

024:105 Designing History Exhibits

3 s.h.

Process of developing exhibitions by museum staff and professional design services; designer's role; aspects of materials used in exhibit fabrication; lighting issues, design elements, organization and development of exhibit script, label and graphic production; creation of advertising and promotional material, and fit of such material with final exhibit product; produce documents to develop an exhibit at a nearby museum using narrative and script created in 024:104.

Prerequisites: 024:102 and 024:104.

024:115 Museum Literacy and Historical Memory

3 s.h.

Concepts and methods for understanding the role of museums in shaping knowledge and collective memory of history; institutionally based exhibits and collections, historical markers and public monuments, public holidays and events, media and artistic works that interpret the past; how events, people, and civic ambitions are memorialized and how memories of them are shaped; appearance of museums and related practices in the non-Western world after 1850.

Same as 016:120.

024:120 Collection Care and Management

3 s.h.

How a museum's management policy relates to its administrative, legal, and ethical obligations to its collections; acquisitions, deaccessions, collection use, data standards, storage environment, health, safety, documentation. Same as 012:120.

024:121 Power of Placement

3 s.h.

How placement of artworks in a setting and their relationship to each other affect the way in which viewers understand the works; influence of curator's choice of placement, sequence, height, wall color, and so forth; varied settings, with focus on display issues in art museums; includes gallery and museum experiences. Prerequisites: 024:102.

024:140 Advanced Collection Care and Management

3 s.h.

Builds on 024:120; types of museum objects and materials, their care and management; care, storage, and use of paper, books, photographs, works of art, electronic information media, textiles, furniture, archaeological artifacts, natural history specimens, archives; digitization projects, integrated pest management, risk assessment, museum security, museum construction and renovation, grant writing; for students planning museum careers or for professions that require care of collections. Prerequisites: 012:120 or 024:120. Same as 012:160.

024:147 Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness I

3 s.h.

Operational and financing aspects of nonprofit management; mission and governance of organization; strategic planning for effective management, including finance, budget, income generation, fund-raising. Same as 032:127, 042:157, 06J:147, 06T:144, 096:168.

024:148 Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness II

3 s.h.

Qualities for leadership of nonprofit organizations, including relationships with staff and volunteers; relationship of nonprofit and outside world; marketing, public relations, advocacy strategies for nonprofits. Same as 032:128, 042:158, 06J:148, 096:169.

024:150 Directed Studies and Projects

arr.

Advanced readings in historical development, educational philosophy, programs, operations of museums; individual projects coordinated with programs, exhibits, or collections of campus and area museums. Prerequisites: 024:102 or 024:104 or 024:120.

024:160 Introduction to Archives

1 s.h.

Purpose and function of archival repositories (as compared with libraries); professional responsibilities of archivists; theoretical basis of currently accepted practices; collection solicitation and development; appraisal of records and manuscripts; processing, or arrangement and description, of collections; archival preservation and conservation, including digital preservation; reference services; outreach efforts; current issues, including electronic records, privacy and copyright.

024:161 Art, Law, and Ethics

3 s.h.

How law and ethics apply to individuals and institutions concerned with the visual arts. Same as 01H:182, 033:175, 091:192.

024:162 The Art Museum: Theory and Practice

3 s.h.

Introduction to different aspects of art museums; emphasis on roles of art historians, especially curatorial practice; current and historical theories and practices of art exhibitions; varying debates of the politics of display; art museum professions; the many facets of art exhibition preparation; the University of Iowa Museum of Art collections. Same as 01H:181.

024:170 Grant Writing in the Arts

3 s.h.

Same as 01P:185.

024:180 Museum Internship

arr.

Working experience in functions, departments, programs of the sponsoring museum; relation to museum's overall mission and museum field in general.

024:247 Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness I

3 s.h.

Operational and financing aspects of nonprofit management; mission and governance of organization; strategic planning for effective management, including finance, budget, income generation, fund-raising. Same as 021:263, 028:257, 032:227, 042:247, 06J:247, 091:320, 102:278, 174:247.

024:248 Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness II

3 s.h.

Qualities for leadership of nonprofit organizations, including relationships with staff and volunteers; relationship of nonprofit and outside world; marketing, public relations, advocacy strategies for nonprofits. Requirements: (for 091:322) 091:320; (for 174:248) 06J:247 or 024:247 or 174:247. Same as 021:265, 028:258, 032:228, 042:248, 06J:248, 091:322, 102:279, 174:248.

The University of Iowa School of Music is prominent in a fine arts community of international repute. It has long been recognized as one of the excellent university-based schools of music in the United States.

The school's on-campus enrollment of approximately 470 music majors is large enough to sustain strong programs in all areas of specialization, yet small enough to ensure the individual attention essential to each student's development.

The faculty consists of highly trained artist-teachers in each area of specialization and scholars of international distinction. Faculty ensembles in residence include the Iowa Woodwind Quintet, the Iowa Brass Quintet, and the Maia String Quartet. Private lessons with faculty members are offered in all band and orchestra instruments, voice, piano, and organ.

The school's undergraduate curricula offer all qualified students, whether music majors or nonmajors, the opportunity for further study of music. In addition to its comprehensive course offerings for majors, the school provides a substantial selection of courses especially recommended for nonmajors (see "Courses for Nonmajors").

The graduate curricula are designed primarily as preparation for teaching in secondary schools, colleges, and universities and for careers in performance and music therapy.

The School of Music is a charter member of the National Association of Schools of Music. The requirements for entrance and for graduation are in accordance with the published standards of the National Association of Schools of Music.

The department is one of four academic units that make up the Division of Performing Arts.

Undergraduate Programs

The school offers the Bachelor of Music, a Bachelor of Arts in music, and a minor in music. It also participates in offering the Certificate in Performing Arts Entrepreneurship, offered through the Division of Performing Arts.

The Bachelor of Music program offers concentrations in composition, music therapy, and performance; a second emphasis in jazz studies may be added to the performance concentration. Professional certification in music education and music therapy are available only through the B.M.

The Bachelor of Arts is a nonprofessional degree for students who are not planning careers as musicians or for those who wish to pursue a double major or earn more than one bachelor's degree.

All undergraduate enrollments require School of Music approval. Entering first-year and transfer students who plan to major in music must be accepted into a performance area through audition either in person or by recording before they register. Students who plan to major in composition also must submit examples of creative work; for details, see "Composition Concentration" below. All entering students must complete the online theory diagnostic examination for 025:002 Musicianship and Theory I and a piano proficiency exam to determine appropriate placement in related courses.

Transfer students admitted to the School of Music must complete a minimum of one year of applied music (lower- or upper-level) and one year of major ensemble at The University of Iowa in order to earn a degree in music. Transfer students who have not completed the equivalent of the four-semester sequence of Musicianship and Theory I-IV ( 025:002 Musicianship and Theory I, 025:003 Musicianship and Theory II, 025:004 Musicianship and Theory III, and 025:005 Musicianship and Theory IV) must complete a theory diagnostic exam to determine appropriate placement in the musicianship and theory sequence. Transfer students who have not completed the equivalent of two semesters of class piano or a piano proficiency exam must meet piano proficiency requirements at The University of Iowa.

Bachelor of Music

The Bachelor of Music requires a minimum of 120 s.h.; many students earn more than 120 s.h. in fulfilling the requirements for their majors—for instance, those who choose the music therapy concentration or seek teacher certification. The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences maximum hours rule does not apply to the Bachelor of Music, so B.M. students may count more than 50 s.h. of course work in music toward the degree. All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program.

The program offers concentrations in composition, music therapy, and performance; a second emphasis in jazz studies may be added to the performance concentration. Bachelor of Music students may not choose guitar as their major instrument, and Bachelor of Arts students may not transfer to the B.M. program with guitar as their major instrument.

Students seeking professional certification in music education or music therapy should enroll in the B.M. program.

The Bachelor of Music requires the following School of Music course work.

GENERAL COURSE REQUIREMENTS

025:001 Fundamentals of Music for Majors (or successful completion of the online theory diagnostic examination for 025:002)	3 s.h.
025:002-025:003-025:004-025:005 Musicianship and Theory I-II - Musicianship and Theory III - Musicianship and Theory IV	16 s.h.
025:071-025:072 Group Instruction in Piano I-II (or successful completion of proficiency exams I and II)	2 s.h.

Registration in 025:071 Group Instruction in Piano I and 025:072 Group Instruction in Piano II is corequisite with 025:002 Musicianship and Theory I and 025:003 Musicianship and Theory II, unless exempted by proficiency exam. Transfer students should complete this requirement in their first year of residence, unless exempted by proficiency exam.

025:074 Recital Attendance (six semesters)	6 s.h.
--	--------

Six semesters of 025:074 Recital Attendance are required for all B.M. students, except music therapy students, who are required to take four semesters. Transfer students should plan to enroll in this course each of their remaining semesters, or until the requirement is met.

025:107 Techniques of Conducting	2 s.h.
025:144 History of Music I (western music of the Middle Ages, Renaissance, and Baroque)	3 s.h.
025:146 History of Music II (western music 1750-present)	3 s.h.
025:154 Senior Recital	1 s.h.

To complete the senior recital, students must have achieved upper-level applied status or be enrolled in upper-level applied music courses (see "Applied Music"). Music therapy students may complete a senior recital or a senior research project. Composition students substitute 025:099 Bachelor's Thesis for the senior recital. The senior recital, research project, or thesis must be completed at The University of Iowa.

One of these:

025:080 Jazz Cultures in America and Abroad	3 s.h.
025:103 World Music	3 s.h.
025:104 Music of Latin America and the Caribbean	3 s.h.
025:141 History of Jazz	3 s.h.
025:178 Music, Culture, and Identity	3 s.h.

At least 3 s.h. from these:

025:101 Introduction to Improvisation	3 s.h.
025:102 Intermediate Jazz Improvisation	2 s.h.
025:117 Arranging for Band	2 s.h.
025:118 Jazz Theory	2 s.h.
025:145 Counterpoint Before 1600	3 s.h.

025:147 Counterpoint After 1600	3 s.h.
025:148 Instrumentation	2 s.h.
025:153 Keyboard Harmony	2 s.h.
025:157 Orchestration	2 s.h.
025:243 Advanced Jazz Improvisation	2 s.h.
025:244 Transcription	2 s.h.
025:247 Post-Tonal Analysis	3 s.h.
025:249 Tonal Analysis	3 s.h.
025:256 Special Topics in Theory and Analysis	3 s.h.

APPLIED MUSIC

Four years of applied music are required. Instruction is provided on two levels, lower and upper. Students must achieve upper-level status before they may present the senior recital. Readiness for upper-level applied music is determined by a jury examination in the area. The eighth semester of applied music may be waived for students who are enrolled in the Teacher Education Program and are student teaching. Students are allowed a maximum of six semesters (not including summer) in lower-level applied instruction. Those who want to continue lessons beyond the maximum allowable lower-level registration must do so under the nonmajor category.

Composition students are required to take 6 s.h. of lower-level applied music and 2 s.h. of secondary piano.

Music therapy students who complete a senior research project rather than a senior recital are required to take three years of lower-level applied music.

ENSEMBLE PARTICIPATION

Eight semesters of major ensemble participation are required. Students normally enroll in major ensemble participation during consecutive semesters, beginning early in their degree work, to ensure completion of the requirement in a timely manner. Ensemble assignments are made at the discretion of the major teacher and ensemble director. String students participate in University Orchestra and Chamber Orchestra. Wind and percussion students participate in the Symphony Band/Concert Band/University Band. Voice students participate in Camerata Singers, University Choir, Kantorei, and/or University Chorale. Keyboard students may substitute accompaniment for major ensemble participation for two semesters during their junior and/or senior years, with their major applied teacher's consent. Composition students may, with their advisor's consent, substitute two semesters of other ensembles during their junior and/or senior year.

Music therapy students who complete a senior research project rather than a senior recital are required to complete 6 s.h. of major ensemble participation.

Any student who wants to request adjustment of the major ensemble requirement must submit his or her request in writing to a review committee consisting of the ensemble director(s) involved, the studio instructor, and the associate director for undergraduate studies.

Major ensembles are as follows.

025:142 Camerata Singers	1 s.h.
025:181 University Choir	1 s.h.
025:185 Kantorei	1 s.h.
025:191 University Chorale (Women's Chorale)	1 s.h.
025:192 Orchestra	1 s.h.
025:194 Symphony Band/Concert Band/University Band	1 s.h.

ELECTIVES

Students may take advanced electives in performance (including chamber music and piano accompaniment), theory, composition, music education, music therapy, music history, diverse music cultures, music literature, conducting, and orchestration.

Performance Concentrations

A performance concentration is available in each of the orchestral areas--strings, brass, woodwinds, and percussion--and in voice, piano, and organ. Students must take at least an additional 17 s.h. beyond the School of Music general course requirements. This course work includes required courses and electives unique to each performance area. Course listings for each of the respective areas are available from the School of Music academic office. For degree requirement checklists, see Degree Programs—curriculum check sheets on the School of Music web site.

JAZZ STUDIES EMPHASIS

Students with a performance concentration may add a second emphasis in jazz studies. To be admitted to the jazz studies emphasis, students must audition after they complete their first year. Students admitted to the emphasis are assigned to the jazz studies advisor in addition to their regular faculty advisor.

Senior recital and recital attendance requirements are the same as those for the Bachelor of Music. In addition to satisfying all course requirement for the B.M., jazz studies emphasis students must complete 21 s.h. of jazz course work. Many jazz studies courses fulfill other B.M. course requirements, including music electives.

Music Therapy Concentration

Admission to the music therapy concentration is based on successful completion (grade of C-plus or higher) of 025:087 C 025:087 Orientation to Music Therapy. In addition to the core courses in music therapy listed below, specific courses are required in biology, anatomy, psychology, and music.

A six-month internship in an approved off-campus clinical facility is required. Following successful completion of the internship, students are eligible to take the board certification examination in music therapy.

Specific course requirements for music therapy are as follows.

All of these:

07S:144 Psychology of Music	2 s.h.
07S:149 Introduction to Music Research	2 s.h.
025:017 Secondary Performance--Voice	1 s.h.
025:071 Group Instruction in Piano I	1 s.h.
025:072 Group Instruction in Piano II	1 s.h.
025:073 Group Instruction in Piano III	1 s.h.
025:074 Recital Attendance (four semesters required)	4 s.h.
025:087 Orientation to Music Therapy	2 s.h.
025:091 Music Foundations in Therapy I	2 s.h.
025:092 Music Foundations in Therapy II	2 s.h.
025:094 Music Therapy Practicum (three semesters, for 1, 2, and 2 s.h., respectively)	5 s.h.
025:096 Music Techniques in Special Education and Recreation	3 s.h.
025:101 Introduction to Improvisation	3 s.h.
025:138 Music Therapy Techniques: Atypical Children	3 s.h.
025:139 Music Therapy Techniques: Adult Clients	3 s.h.
025:140 Internship in Music Therapy	2 s.h.
025:167/049:105/137:160/188:167 Introduction to Laban Movement Studies	2 s.h.

One of these:

025:007 Garage Band: The Basics	2 s.h.
025:117 Arranging for Band	2 s.h.
025:148 Instrumentation	2 s.h.

One of these:

025:098 Senior Project in Music Therapy	1 s.h.
025:154 Senior Recital	1 s.h.

Music therapy students who elect the senior recital option must take four years of applied music and attain upper-level status; they also must take 8 s.h. of major ensemble participation. Those who elect the senior research project option must take three years of applied music and 6 s.h. of major ensemble.

Composition Concentration

The composition concentration is open to students who have been admitted to a performance area in the School of Music. Before admission to the concentration, students normally must complete the four-semester sequence Musicianship and Theory I-IV (025:002 Musicianship and Theory I, 025:003 Musicianship and Theory II, 025:004 Musicianship and Theory III, and 025:005 Musicianship and Theory IV); 025:005 Musicianship and Theory IV is a prerequisite for 025:179 Composition (undergraduate composition lessons).

Applicants to the composition concentration must submit a portfolio of creative work to the composition faculty for evaluation and acceptance into the program. Students who wish to prepare a portfolio may register for 025:036 Secondary Performance--Composition.

Composition students must satisfy the degree requirements stated under "Bachelor of Music." The composition concentration requires additional course work in composition and music theory; contact the School of Music or see Information for Undergraduate Students—Degree Areas on the school's web site.

The Bachelor's Thesis (025:099) replaces the recital required of applied music students. It consists of one or more compositions, approved by a committee of three faculty members and performed on regularly scheduled School of Music recitals.

B.M. with Teacher Licensure

Undergraduate students seeking teacher certification must be enrolled in a Bachelor of Music program in performance. Teacher licensure in music education is earned by completing the appropriate licensure program (e.g., band, choral, string) in addition to the School of Music requirements for the Bachelor of Music. Students must be admitted to the College of Education's Teacher Education Program (TEP) before they may take required professional education courses. See "Admission to Teacher Education Program" below.

Music TEP students must maintain a University of Iowa g.p.a. and a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.70 in all course work, and a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00 in course work for the music major. They must have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.70 at the time of recommendation for licensure.

Music TEP students must complete at least 40 s.h. at The University of Iowa in order to be recommended for licensure. For more information, see Teaching and Learning (College of Education) in the Catalog.

All students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. In addition to the B.M. requirements in music, TEP students must take General Education courses that fulfill licensure requirements. The certification program requires music methods and techniques courses, professional education courses, and student teaching.

The following courses are required for all music TEP students.

One college-level math course (excluding 22M:001, 22M:003, 22M:008)

07B:180 Human Relations for the Classroom Teacher	3 s.h.
07E:100 Foundations of Education	3 s.h.
07E:102 Technology in the Classroom	2 s.h.
07E:145 Methods and Materials: General Music	3 s.h.
07E:192 Special Area Student Teaching	6 s.h.
07P:075 Educational Psychology and Measurement	3 s.h.
07S:096 Introduction and Practicum: Music	2 s.h.
07S:187 Seminar: Curriculum and Student Teaching	1 s.h.
07S:190 Orientation to Secondary Education	1 s.h.
07S:191 Observation and Laboratory Practice in the Secondary School	6 s.h.
07S:195 Teaching Reading in Secondary Content Areas	1 s.h.
07U:100 Foundations of Special Education	3 s.h.

BRASS, WOODWIND, AND PERCUSSION STUDENTS

Brass, woodwind, and percussion students in the TEP participate in 025:193 Hawkeye Marching Band for one semester. Exceptions must be approved by the head of the music education area.

The following courses are required.

07S:140/025:164 Band Methods and Materials	3 s.h.
07S:143/025:105 Instrumental Techniques (taken three times)	6 s.h.
07S:145/025:108 Instrumental Conducting	3 s.h.
025:095 Sight Reading Jazz	1 s.h.
025:100 Class Strings (Section 1)	1 s.h.
025:182 Marching Band Techniques	1 s.h.
025:193 Hawkeye Marching Band	1 s.h.
025:196 Jazz Band Techniques	1 s.h.

STRING STUDENTS

String majors in the TEP take one semester of secondary performance on each of three string instruments other than their primary instrument (total of 3 s.h.).

The following courses are required.

025:100 Class Strings (Section 2, taken three times)	3 s.h.
025:114 Introduction to Band Instruments	2 s.h.
07S:145/025:108 Instrumental Conducting	3 s.h.
07S:150/025:112 String Methods and Materials	3 s.h.

VOCAL AND KEYBOARD STUDENTS

Vocal majors in the TEP register for 025:018 Secondary Performance--Piano for one semester. Keyboard students register for 025:017 Secondary Performance--Voice for two semesters, 025:115 Diction for Singers I, and 025:116 Diction for Singers II. Keyboard majors with a choral music emphasis must include choral ensembles in their major ensemble experience.

The following courses are required.

07S:147/025:109 Choral Methods	3 s.h.
07S:148/025:110 Choral Conducting and Literature	3 s.h.
025:073 Group Instruction in Piano III	1 s.h.
Secondary performance	1-2 s.h.

KEYBOARD STUDENTS (NONVOCAL)

Keyboard students who plan to teach in nonvocal areas complete the requirements in either the brass-woodwind-percussion area or the string area, as stated above.

Admission to Teacher Education Program

Application forms for admission to the Teacher Education Program are available from the Office of Teacher Education and Student Services at the College of Education. Application deadlines for the secondary Teacher Education Program are October 15 for entry the following spring and March 15 for entry the following fall. The Teacher Education Program in music accepts a limited number of applicants; meeting the minimum requirements (stated below) does not guarantee admission. Application also requires a proficiency exam and a personal statement.

Minimum requirements for admission to the music TEP are:

- admission to the School of Music;
- a University of Iowa g.p.a. and a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.70 at the time of admission to the program;
- a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 on all music course work;
- successful completion of 025:002-025:003 Musicianship and Theory I-II;
- completion of at least 33 s.h. of college credit;
- completion of a 10-hour volunteer practicum in a secondary school setting; and
- the PRAXIS I exam.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in music requires a minimum of 120 s.h., including 42-47 s.h. of work for the major. The B.A. program is designed for students who have strong abilities and interest in music but are not planning on a career as a musician, or who wish to pursue a double major or earn more than one bachelor's degree. Students must audition and be accepted into a performance area. They develop musicianship and performance skills and choose from a wide variety of music electives.

Students in many areas, from engineering and physics to history, art, and English, find that a B.A. in music is a good addition to their studies. Other students choose the B.A. in music to complement course work in business (especially the minor in business administration), foreign language and literature, or interdisciplinary fields such as American studies. Some students combine a B.A. in music with undergraduate preparation to study law or medicine.

All B.A. students must complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program and satisfy all other requirements for graduation with a bachelor's degree. For more information, contact the School of Music and the Academic Advising Center.

The B.A. in music requires the following course work.

025:001 Fundamentals of Music for Majors (or successful completion of the online theory diagnostic examination for 025:002)	3 s.h.
025:002-025:003 Musicianship and Theory I-II	8 s.h.
025:071-025:072 Group Instruction in Piano I-II (or successful completion of proficiency exams I and II)	2 s.h.

Registration for 025:071 Group Instruction in Piano I and 025:072 Group Instruction in Piano II is corequisite with 025:002 025:002 Musicianship and Theory I and 025:003 Musicianship and Theory II, unless exempted by proficiency exam. Transfer students should complete this requirement in their first year of residence, unless exempted by proficiency exam.

025:074 Recital Attendance (two semesters)	2 s.h.
Lower-level applied music	4 s.h.
Major ensemble (minimum of four semesters)	4 s.h.

With approval, students may use 025:197 Jazz Band to satisfy the major ensemble requirement.

Two of these:

025:141 History of Jazz	3 s.h.
025:144 History of Music I	3 s.h.
025:146 History of Music II	3 s.h.

Performance electives (lower- or upper-level applied music, ensembles, or improvisation)	6 s.h.
--	--------

At least 6 s.h. from these:

025:004 Musicianship and Theory III	4 s.h.
025:005 Musicianship and Theory IV	4 s.h.
025:103 World Music	3 s.h.
025:104 Music of Latin America and the Caribbean	3 s.h.
025:107 Techniques of Conducting	2 s.h.
025:117 Arranging for Band	2 s.h.
025:118 Jazz Theory	2 s.h.
025:141 History of Jazz	3 s.h.
025:144 History of Music I	3 s.h.
025:146 History of Music II	3 s.h.
025:145 Counterpoint Before 1600	3 s.h.
025:231 Jazz Composition and Arranging	2 s.h.
025:244 Transcription	2 s.h.

Music electives	6 s.h.
-----------------	--------

All music majors with scholarships must participate in a major ensemble and studio lessons each semester.

For a list of major ensembles, see "Ensemble Participation" under "Bachelor of Music" above.

Four-Year Graduation Plan

The following checkpoints list the minimum requirements students must complete by certain semesters in order to stay on the University's Four-Year Graduation Plan.

In addition to the requirements listed under the checkpoints, all students must complete 2 s.h. in applied music and 1 s.h. in a major ensemble each semester.

The Four-Year Graduation Plan is not available for music therapy and music education.

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in music requires 42-47 s.h. in School of Music courses.

Before the third semester begins: 15-18 s.h. of course work in the major, including 025:002 Musicianship and Theory I, 025:003 Musicianship and Theory II, 025:071 Group Instruction in Piano I, and 025:072 Group Instruction in

Piano II; and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least 23-32 s.h. of course work in the major and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least 33-41 s.h. of course work in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least 40-46 s.h. of course work in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Bachelor of Music

Students may apply more than 50 s.h. earned in School of Music courses toward the minimum 120 s.h. required for the B.M.

Before the third semester begins: 18 s.h. of course work in the major, including 025:002 Musicianship and Theory I, 025:003 Musicianship and Theory II, 025:071 Group Instruction in Piano I, and 025:072 Group Instruction in Piano II; and at least one-quarter of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the fifth semester begins: at least 34 s.h. of course work in the major, including 025:004 Musicianship and Theory III and 025:005 Musicianship and Theory IV, and at least one-half of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the seventh semester begins: at least 50 s.h. of course work in the major and at least three-quarters of the semester hours required for graduation

Before the eighth semester begins: at least 56 s.h. of course work in the major

During the eighth semester: enrollment in all remaining course work in the major, all remaining General Education courses, and a sufficient number of semester hours to graduate

Honors

Exceptional music majors who are members of the University of Iowa Honors Program and maintain a music g.p.a. of at least 3.80 may enroll in the School of Music's honors program. Membership in the University Honors Program requires students to maintain a cumulative University of Iowa g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (contact the University of Iowa Honors Program for more information).

Throughout undergraduate residence, honors music students may enroll in honors sections of courses in the school and in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. They also may seek honors designation for any course, with the instructor's consent. All honors course work must be approved by the School of Music honors advisor at the beginning of the semester in which the work is to be done.

Honors students with junior or senior standing and a music g.p.a. of at least 3.80 may undertake work leading to the B.M. or B.A. with honors. Graduation with honors is awarded after completion of 6-8 s.h. of honors work; students must earn a minimum of 3 s.h. in 025:097 Honors in Music. Honors projects for which credit is given in 025:097 Honors in Music include honors performances (solo and/or ensemble); honors compositions (or transcriptions, orchestrations, arrangements); and honors essays, research papers, editions, or translations. A combination of at least two of these types of projects is required. None of the projects may duplicate projects assigned in other courses, nor may they be required for graduation (e.g., 025:154 Senior Recital).

Honors students in music are encouraged to take graduate-level courses. Advanced courses in music history, music theory, and languages are particularly recommended. Consult the School of Music honors advisor for more information.

Minor

The minor in music requires a minimum of 15 s.h. in music courses, including 12 s.h. in advanced courses and 8 s.h. taken at The University of Iowa. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 in the minor. Course work toward the minor may not be taken pass/nonpass.

Work for the minor must include one music theory course, one music history course, and 3 s.h. of performance courses (applied instruction or ensembles). Auditions with the instructor are required for admission to the lower-level applied instruction courses; admission to the theory courses is determined by results on the theory placement exam or completion of 025:001 Fundamentals of Music for Majors. Advanced courses include those numbered 025:100 Class Strings and above; courses in the four-semester sequence Musicianship and Theory I-IV (025:002 Musicianship and Theory I, 025:003 Musicianship and Theory II, 025:004 Musicianship and Theory III, and 025:005 Musicianship and Theory IV); and all lower-level applied instruction courses for majors.

Students may count a maximum of 7 s.h. of transfer credit up to 7 s.h. toward the music theory, music history, and elective requirements. No transfer credit may be counted toward music performance requirements.

Courses for Nonmajors

Courses recommended for nonmajors who are interested in music include the following.

025:007 Garage Band: The Basics	2 s.h.
025:009 First-Year Seminar	1 s.h.
025:010 Fundamentals of Music	3 s.h.
025:013 Concepts and Contexts of Western Music	3 s.h.
025:014 Great Musicians	3 s.h.
025:059 Performance Instruction for Nonmajors	1 s.h.
025:063 Survey of World Percussion	1 s.h.
025:064 Recital Attendance for Non-Majors	1 s.h.
025:080 Jazz Cultures in America and Abroad	3 s.h.
025:082 Group Piano I: Non-Music Majors	1 s.h.
025:083 Introduction to Hand Drumming	1 s.h.
025:084 Group Piano II: Non-Music Majors	1 s.h.
025:086 Issues in Popular Music: Women Who Rock	3 s.h.
025:103 World Music	3 s.h.
025:104 Music of Latin America and the Caribbean	3 s.h.
025:137 World of the Beatles	3 s.h.
025:141 History of Jazz	3 s.h.
025:144 History of Music I	3 s.h.
025:146 History of Music II	3 s.h.
025:166 Popular Music in the United States	3 s.h.
025:167 Introduction to Laban Movement Studies	2-3 s.h.
025:173 Introduction to Afro-Cuban Drumming	1 s.h.
025:178 Music, Culture, and Identity	3 s.h.

Group Piano I: Non-Music Majors (025:082) is available for nonmajors who wish to develop elementary keyboard skills for personal musical growth and enjoyment.

Participation in School of Music ensembles is open to all University students with the ensemble director's approval (for a list of major ensembles, see "Ensemble Participation" under "Bachelor of Music" above).

Applied music instruction is offered to nonmajors as instructors are available. Nonmajors interested in registering for 025:059 Performance Instruction for Nonmajors should consult music advisors.

National Honor Society

The School of Music sponsors a chapter of Pi Kappa Lambda, the national music honor society. Students of exceptional ability are recommended for membership by faculty members. For more information, consult the School of Music honors advisor.

Financial Support

A number of music performance-based merit scholarships are available to qualified undergraduate music majors. All music majors with scholarships must enroll in a major ensemble and studio lessons each semester. For information, write to the School of Music.

Graduate Programs

The School of Music offers four graduate degrees: Master of Arts, Master of Fine Arts, Doctor of Philosophy, and Doctor of Musical Arts. It also offers a graduate theory pedagogy minor and the graduate Certificate in Sacred Music.

Applicants to any of the graduate programs must audition and/or submit supporting materials in their area of concentration in order to be considered for admission. Information about Graduate College admission and curriculum requirements for each area in the School of Music is available from the school's academic office or on the School of Music web site.

For detailed information about Graduate College admission and policies, see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or Graduate College in the Catalog.

ADVISORY EXAMINATIONS

Before they register, entering graduate students must take two School of Music advisory examinations: one in music theory, and one in music history and literature. M.A. students in music therapy are not required to take the advisory examination in music theory or music history. These examinations are given at the beginning of the fall semester on the two days (except Sunday) immediately preceding the opening of classes, and at the beginning of the spring and summer sessions by appointment. A leaflet describing the general content of these tests is available from the School of Music academic office.

ENSEMBLE PARTICIPATION

Graduate students in the performance and pedagogy tracks of all graduate programs are required to complete four semesters of major ensemble participation. Students normally enroll in major ensemble participation during consecutive semesters beginning early in their degree work, to ensure completion of the major ensemble requirements in a timely manner. Ensemble assignments are made at the discretion of the major teacher and ensemble director. For a list of major ensembles, see "Ensemble Participation" under "Bachelor of Music" above.

Keyboard majors may substitute piano accompanying for major ensemble participation, at their major applied teacher's discretion. Jazz studies majors substitute 025:197 Jazz Band for major ensemble participation. Theory, composition, music education, and music therapy majors have no major ensemble requirement. The M.A. in musicology requires one semester of any ensemble.

Any student who wants to request adjustment of this requirement must submit his or her request in writing to a review committee consisting of the major ensemble director(s) involved, the major teacher, and the School of Music associate director for graduate studies.

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in music requires a minimum of 30-37 s.h. of graduate credit. The M.A. in performance, conducting, jazz studies, composition, music theory, musicology, music therapy, and music education requires a recital, capstone project, or thesis. Performance majors present a public recital in place of a written thesis. Music therapy majors complete a capstone research project. Jazz studies majors present a public recital and a separate performance project. The Master of Arts in music education is offered with thesis and nonthesis options. All M.A. programs—except music therapy and music education—must include the following requirements. For degree requirement checklists, see Degree Programs—curriculum check sheets on the School of Music web site.

Master of Fine Arts

The Master of Fine Arts in music requires a minimum of 60 s.h. of graduate credit. It is designed for students of superior ability in instrumental or vocal performance. M.F.A. students present at least two full-length recitals or programs and must write an M.F.A. Thesis (025:401)—a research paper of moderate length. The thesis may relate to some or all of the repertoire included on the recitals.

Students may earn a Master of Arts while working toward the Master of Fine Arts, but they must take two separate final examinations.

For degree requirement checklists, see Degree Programs—curriculum check sheets on the School of Music web site.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in music requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. Ph.D. concentration areas include composition, musicology, music education, music theory, and music literature. The music literature program is designed for students who already have achieved a professional level of musical performance. These students are required to audition in their major performance area.

Information about specific admission and curricular requirements for each area is available from the School of Music academic office.

Common Ph.D. Requirements

Ph.D. students in composition, musicology, music theory, and music literature must complete the course requirements for the M.A. (see "Common M.A. Requirements" above). They also must complete the following.

One or more additional music theory course(s) listed in the M.A. requirements

One or more additional course(s) in music history, chosen from those listed in the M.A. requirements

One of these:

025:500 Ph.D. Thesis	arr.
025:501 Composition Ph.D. Thesis	arr.
025:502 D.M.A. Essay	arr.

Proficiency in one or more foreign languages is required for Ph.D. students in composition, musicology, music theory, and music literature. Ph.D. students in music education should contact the School of Music for requirements.

Doctor of Musical Arts

Requirements for the D.M.A. in conducting and in performance and pedagogy are the same as for the Ph.D. (see "Common Ph.D. Requirements" under "Doctor of Philosophy" above), except that the D.M.A. requires three recitals or programs. At the performance area's discretion, a concerto performance with orchestra or other appropriate ensemble from the School of Music may be substituted for one of the recitals. Some performance areas allow one or more lecture recitals, with faculty approval. Singers may substitute one major opera role or one major solo contribution to an orchestra performance for one of their recitals. See the associate director of graduate programs for specific area requirements.

D.M.A. candidates also must complete a scholarly investigation of limited scope in a written essay or thesis.

Certificate in Sacred Music

The Certificate in Sacred Music requires 25 s.h. The certificate is an interdisciplinary graduate program with courses in sacred music, choral conducting and literature, keyboard, voice, religion, and art and art history. Students may earn the certificate while working toward a graduate degree. Individuals not enrolled in a graduate program also may complete the certificate, but they must be admitted to the Graduate College and have the consent of a faculty advisor. Successful completion of the certificate program is noted on the student's transcript.

Theory Pedagogy Minor

Any student admitted to a graduate degree program in the School of Music may earn the theory pedagogy minor by completing the following required courses.

One of these:

025:145 Counterpoint Before 1600	3 s.h.
025:147 Counterpoint After 1600	3 s.h.

Both of these:

025:236 Music Theory Pedagogy	3 s.h.
025:237 Music Theory Colloquium (taken 2 times)	0-1 s.h.

One of these:

025:249 Tonal Analysis	3 s.h.
025:312 Advanced Tonal Theory and Analysis	3 s.h.

One of these:

025:247 Post-Tonal Analysis	3 s.h.
025:311 Advanced Post-Tonal Theory and Analysis	3 s.h.

Two of these:

025:241 History of Music Theory I	3 s.h.
025:242 History of Music Theory II	3 s.h.
025:256 Special Topics in Theory and Analysis	3 s.h.
025:311 Advanced Post-Tonal Theory and Analysis	3 s.h.
025:312 Advanced Tonal Theory and Analysis	3 s.h.

Financial Support

Qualified graduate students are invited to apply for teaching and research assistantships. Inquiries should be directed to the academic office of the School of Music.

Facilities, Resources

Center for New Music

The Center for New Music is a vital component of the School of Music's composition program. Since its founding in 1966, the center has been both laboratory and showcase for late-20th and 21st-century music. It presents at least four concerts of contemporary works each academic season. It also provides a forum for visiting composers and other creative artists, bringing new music to a variety of outreach venues. Audition, rehearsal, and programming information is available on the Center for New Music web site.

Rita Benton Music Library

The Rita Benton Music Library is currently located in the University's Main Library. The music library holds more than 70,000 scores, including chamber music sets; 50,000 books, including bound journals; 3,500 microforms, chiefly manuscripts and early printed books; and 28,000 media items in all formats. It receives about 300 journals. Its rare book division has particular strengths in 18th- and 19th-century music theory treatises and instrumental methods, and an outstanding collection of keyboard and chamber music by Ignaz Pleyel. The library also houses the Goldman Band Collection. Music manuscripts of the composer Phillip Greeley Clapp, a former director of the school, are housed in Special Collections & University Archives.

The library's large reference collection is supplemented by several online resources, including Music Index, IIMP, Grove Music Online, RILM, RISM, RIPM, WorldCat, and InfoHawk Catalog, the University's online library catalog. Online resources for streamed audio include Classical Music Library, Naxos Music Library, Naxos Jazz, African-American Song, Smithsonian Global Sound, and the Database of Recorded American Music (DRAM).

Materials circulate to University of Iowa faculty and students and to institutions that have reciprocal agreements with the University. Individuals not affiliated with the University may qualify for borrower's permits.
