CHARD deNIORD

Absence

Absence is a face that hangs in the air, as if the air were a screen and your heart the machine that casts the image.

Absence is the shadow that has broken free of its forms and wanders the earth.

Absence is a stone, of course.

Absence is the name
the man of faith repeats in his sleep, and also the woman, until they too are gone.

Absence is the body the soul creates from air that masquerades as nothing throughout the house.
