

Masthead Logo

The Iowa Review

Volume 5
Issue 3 Summer

Article 27

1974

[Spinney]

Peter Huchel

Michael Hamburger

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Huchel, Peter and Michael Hamburger. "[Spinney]." The Iowa Review 5.3 (1974): 27-27. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.1656>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

For Heinrich Böll

SPINNEY,
hawk-grey,
the cricket light of noon dryness,
behind them, the house,
built on a vein of water.

Water,
hidden,
in sandy wilderness,
you flowed into the thirst of language,
you attracted lightning.

At the entrance to earth,
says a voice, where stones
and roots bolt the door,
the grubbed-up bones of Job have turned to sand, there still his bowl of rain water stands.

translated by Michael Hamburger