

Masthead Logo

The Iowa Review

---

Volume 33
Issue 2 Fall

Article 37

---

2003

The Gleaning

Jay Parini

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

---

Recommended Citation

Parini, Jay. "The Gleaning." The Iowa Review 33.2 (2003): 161-161. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.5667>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

The Gleaning

In the frost-bewildered garden, gleaning, within sights of winter.
Who on earth has left so much, so late?

Picking over gourds,
the big gold bells that gong with light,
lifting zucchini, wildly overgrown,
or pulling carrots like loose teeth
from powdery, black loam.

Then coming on the grapes,
their wild black eyes,
spectacular and winking. Do I dare?

I leave them for the birds,
who will devour them like God's own truth,
as Boaz in a distant land once left a little something in the field for Ruth.