IV prosa vi

- (Vf) | De hoc etiam in commento Virgilii dicitur, quod quattuor sint elementa:
 720 terra, aer, aqua, aether, et deus praeter hoc nihil est aliud, et hoc, id est mundum, non possumus dicere. Nam mundus non est totus. Ergo deus quidam spiritus diuinus, qui per quattuor infusus elementa, gignit uniuersa. Igitur si de elementis et deo nascuntur omnia, unam originem habent, et par est natura omnium, sed 725 uideamus quid in nobis est a deo et quid a quattuor elementis? Quantum datur intellegi, ab elementis habemus corpus, a deo animam. Quod ideo probatur, quia est in corpore terrae, humor, anhelitus, calor, quae omnia uidentur; animus inuisibilis est, sicut etiam deus, unde originem ducit. Illa praeterea irrationabilia sunt, sicut et corpus: contra deus habet consilium, sicut etiam animus. Deinde 730 elementa mutamus quod [est] eorum proprium, sicut etiam corpus, quod deinde originem ducit: contra deum non perire manifestum est. Ergo nec animus perit, quod inde originem ducit. Nam pars semper genus sequitur. Huc igitur tetendit primam intentionem suam, ut animos immortales doceret; sed occurrit illud: si immortales et unum habent principium, qua ratione non omnia animalia sentiunt 735 similiter? Et dicit non esse in animis dissimilitudinem, sed in corporibus, quae prout fuerint uel uiuatia uel torpentia, ita et animos faciunt. Quod potest in uno eodemque animalis corpore probari. In sano enim corpore alia est uiuacitas mentis, in aegro pigrior, in satis inualido etiam ratione carens, ut in frene[ti]cis cernimus. Ld Vf.

900 ULTIMUS – INREFLEXO: Pyloctea, Pennatis filius, ex Meliboea urbe Thesaliae, Herculi comes erat in omnibus. Defuncto autem Hercule in monte Coeta, hora defunctionis suae Pyloctean adiurauit, ut nulli obitum suum indicaret, et coniurans eum pro tali munere, donauit ei duas sagittas in felle hydrae tinctas. Greci uenientes ad Troiam consultum acceperunt non posse superare Troianos, nisi sagittas Herculis adduxissent. Tunc demum inquesierunt, ut eum inuenirent, qui sagittis Herculis haberet, quae reciproce ideo inuocabantur, quod missae redire solebant cumque illum inuenirent, tenuerunt Pyloctean, scientes quod amicus

905 Herculis esset, et cum diu negasset nescisse Herculem et ubi mortuus fuerit, constrinxerunt eum et indicauit eis de morte eius. Tunc quaesierunt ab eo ubi sepulchrum Herculis fuit et nolens demonstrare iterum constrinxerunt eum et eos duxit ad sepulchrum. Sed quia sacramentum dederat, noluit monstrare et elidens calcaneum in sepulchrum illud cognouerunt, sed una de sagittis pedem eius uulnerauit et pes eius putefactus erat et suadente Ulixie ibidem relictus est, cum foetorem non potuisset sufferre exercitus. Ck Ge | Hercules cum Deianira uxore sua admodum pulchra ad quendam fluuium ueniens, dum inuenisset illum plus solito excrescentem, dimissa uxore super ripam, transposuit primum clauam curuumque arcum faretram, quoque pariterque spoliū leonis, ut exoneratus uxorem transportaret. Sed remeans, uidit Nessum centaurum concumbere cum Deianira. Tunc ira feruens immissa sagitta uulnerauit illum, cuius cruor in uenenum conuersus est. Dixitque Deianire Nessus: collige tibi cruorem istum eritque tibi pro munere a me tibi dato, ut si quando animus Herculis a te declinauerit, uestem hoc cruore infectam, uiro tribuens, eius amorem tibi reuocabis. Dum ergo Hercules exosa Deianira quandam meretricem adamasset, misit ei uestem illo ueneno infectam. Dum ageret sacrificium in Aete silua mandans per Licam famulum eius, ut hora sacrificii indueret illam. Qua induta adhesit cuti illius, coepitque uenenum praecordia artusque incendere. Tunc Licam, qui ei detulerat terque quaterque rotatum misit in Euboicas undas insaniensque coepit uociferare siluamque praecidere, tandem immisit se in rogam. Cuius caro instar lactis enituit. animae moueantur a contemplatione (d)ei, quia (...) cum angelis creatae sunt, ut illi dicunt, in cancrum descendunt et adhuc quasi supra caelum sunt. Cancer enim in culmine est zodiaci, ubi altissimus est zodiacus. Sed per portam caeli

Pj | philosophorum opinio Pj | Philosophi dixerunt a pri[n]cipio domini omnes
260 animas creatas apud se habere reconditas, quod etiam Manichei heretici consenserunt. Secundum hanc opinionem hic iste loqui uidebatur, quod uidelicet quamdiu apud deum sunt anime, maiorem uim et intelligentiam habeant. Sed descendentes in corpora obliuisci ea quae nouerant, quae postea paulatim discendo recordantur. Mathematici etiam dicunt quod descendentes ad corpora animae 265 primum ueniunt in cancro, in excelsiore parte caeli, ubi sol in aestate facit longissimos dies. Deinde in leonem; sub leone est serpens cum cratera et corua.
Crater uero ille significat poculum obliuionis quia tunc iam incipit obliuisci gloriae illius et beatitudinis quae uiderant. Quam sententiam nos non accipimus.
Credimus enim humanis corporibus (...)is animam cre(...), nec (...) esse animam quod anima quanto proximior per (...) sanctitate tanto ei fruitur cognitione.

Non autem praedestinavit, quia ex illo non est. Poenam uero eorum praescit, quia deus est, et 420 praedestinavit, quia iustus est, ut et in illis sit meritum suae damnationis, et in illo potestas iustae damnationis. Non enim praedestinavit deus nisi quae ipse facturus est. Praesciuit uero multa quae ipse facturus non est, sicut omnia mala quae faciunt ipsi boni renuunt, et suo uitio uasa irae fiunt. In bonis autem omnipotens deus praesciuit et praedestinavit, ut in praesenti uita per suam gratiam existerent

In istis autem quia non acquiescit per saluatorem accipere sanitatem, iustissime per eundem iudicem sentiet ipsa uoluntas 430 perpetuam damnationem. Ergo non praedestinavit aliquem ut malus esset. Sed uere omne malum praedestinavit ut impunitum non esset. Qui autem aliter sentit et malis tollit meritum damnationis, et iustis meritum salutis. Ld Vf.

TUM EGO: Caute et intentissime legenda sunt ista, usque dum ex persona philosophiae respondeatur, quoniam minus perfectorum proponit opiniones. To | Caute et attentissime legenda sunt ista, usque dum ex persona philosophiae respondeatur, quoniam minus perfectorum proponit opiniones, nec tamen proposita concludit. Plura etiam neganda interponit. Dicit ergo deus cuncta praeuidet, quae futura sunt, cui nihil potest falli, et quaecumque praeuidet necesse est ut fiant. Igitur si necesse habent fieri secundum dei prouidentiam, ubi erit arbitrii libertas? Si necessitas est imposita ex parte prouidentiae, liberum non erit arbitrium. Sed sciendum quia deus non imponit necessitatem gerendis rebus neque cogit ea impleri quae praeuidet, sed sicut gerendae sunt ipsae res per liberum arbitrium, ita deus praeuidet illas futuras. Verbi gratia: si celebretur currule certamen et aliquis in editiori stans loco spectet, hic nulli currentium uires administrat aut quemlibet praecurrere facit; aspicit tamen qui uincat et qui melius currat. Sic ergo quodammodo deus non compellit ea quae sunt facienda ad suam uenire prouidentiam, sed praeuidet omnino quomodo uel quando quid futurum sit, quippe cum nihil futurum, nihil praeteritum, sed omnia ei potius praesentia sunt,

Appendix 1: Manuscript spellings of OHG glosses

We include in the main corpus above standardised forms of all OHG glosses to the DCP that were entered in our manuscripts up to the end of the eleventh century, in so far as they are legible enough to interpret. Many are extremely faint (and we have excluded altogether those that are entered in dry point), and many are in cipher (representing vowels by the following consonant in the alphabet). We give here the actual forms found in the manuscripts for the sake of their philological interest. Most of the OHG glosses in Bb, Eb, Ec, Ed, Ef, Fd, Ga, Gc, Ka, Lf, Mb, Mf, Mh, Mj, Pm, Ta, Tc and Vh were originally published in Steinmeyer-Sievers 1879-1922, those in Na in Starck 1948, and those in Lg and Lh in Thoma 1951, though we occasionally differ from them in our reading of the gloss or identification of its language and we have some additions and exclusions. Those in Kr have not been recorded before as far as we know. For further detail on OHG glosses to the DCP, see also Reiche 1970 (for Vh), Mayer 1974, Blech 1977, Schützeichel 2004, Nievergelt 2007 (for Mh), Allen 2014 (for Sg) and Klaes 2017 (for Tc).

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek

Notes on untransliterated Greek in the glosses

General observations

The list that follows here gathers all glosses including untransliterated Greek forms, with two principal goals in view: to explain which Greek word the glossators were attempting to use and, if possible, where it could have been drawn from, and then secondly, to record the range of orthographical variation which the manuscripts present, since the variants of Greek words have not been included in the main edition. Greek nouns which occur only in transliterated form have for the most part been excluded, not least because so many of these had already been absorbed into learned Latin diction before the glossators were writing that it would be hard to know where to draw the line. Thus, the only exceptions to this rule are transliterated nouns not attested, or only extremely rarely, elsewhere in medieval Latin, and then also other parts of speech which attempt to reproduce Greek inflected forms.

Greek majuscules were the norm in Western manuscripts throughout the medieval period, though with an admixture of forms which are not strictly majuscules, such as ω and ξ . To this the manuscripts of CP are no exception. The use of majuscule letter forms accounts for certain regular visual letter-confusions: between Λ and Δ , Λ and A , Γ and T , Π and T ; since the manuscripts use C-shaped sigma, there are also some cases of confusion between C and K . Other confusions – between Θ and T , H and E , Y and I , Ω (consistently written as ω) and O – seem not to have been visual but rather a combination of aural confusion with the tendency to favour letter-forms that seemed more exotic (Θ , H , Y and Ω), as a species of hypercorrection.¹ Also likely to foster confusion with H is the general preference for the splayed H-shaped form of Greek M (so-called ‘Western M ’).²

Where it has proved possible to identify them, sources have been noted for the Greek words which the glossators use. Here Cassiodorus’s Commentary on the Psalms looms large for rhetorical terms. But many of the Greek words, and sometimes also the Latin equivalents supplied with them, also match closely with entries in the most important Latin-Greek glossary to have survived from the Middle Ages, the so-called Pseudo-Philoxenus (preserved in a ninth-century manuscript), or in its Greek-Latin counterpart, the Cyrillus glossary (for which the almost sole witness dates to the eighth century). Some forms are in both. Of course, the genesis of these glossaries lies partly in the harvesting of Greek lemmata supplied with Latin meanings (or vice versa) from glossed manuscripts which means that the direction of travel for this material is far from certain.³ Relevant entries are cited from the editions of these two glossaries by G. Goetz and G. Gundermann, Glossae Latinograecae et Graecolatinae in Corpus Glossariorum Latinorum II (Leipzig: Teubner, 1888), p. 3–212 (Latin-Greek) and 215–483 (Greek-Latin), cited here as CGL. There is also a certain degree of overlap with other glossing traditions that are now in print, such as the oldest annotations to Martianus Capella’s De nuptiis Philologiae et Mercurii (cited here as Glossae).⁴

The term is used several times to highlight seeming grammatical inconsistencies of a similar kind in the augmented Occurs again at I metrum iv.1 (with the variant ΟΜΙΟCIC in Ka), I metrum vii, II metrum i, II metrum iii, III metrum ii, III metrum xii, IV metrum iii, IV prosa vi.12 and 15.

I prosa iv.1 Ἐξαύδα μὴ κεῦθε νόω (quoting Homer, Iliad I.363)

Boethius’s quotation from the Iliad (‘speak out, don’t hide [it] in your mind’) was subject to significant corruption in some branches of the tradition, and the glossing includes attempts to re-supply the Greek, on the basis of the reasonably stable and not too inaccurate Latin translation that travelled with the whole phrase (‘confitere [mihi et] ne abscondas’). In some cases, the new Greek was incorporated into the body of the main text, seeking to match it up with the Latin gloss, but sometimes the corrupt form was left in the main text and the new Greek supplied in the margin. Exceptionally, then, for this lemma we have provided information about the variants for Ἐξαύδα (μὴ) and κεῦθε νόω where they represent this attempted re-interpretation and therefore relate directly to the glossing. However, forms of the original Greek that are closer to the original have not been listed, except as attested in a marginal gloss.

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek

ΡΞΩΜΩΛΩΤΩ Ld;
ΗΜΗΝ Bc; ΕΜΗΝ Ta Vc; ΕΜΗΗ Pq.

Notes:

ΕΞΟΜΟΛΟΓΩ and its variants may represent an effort to offer a form of ἐξομολογέομαι, ‘confess’ (cf. below on glosses relating to Ἐξαύδα on its own), prompted by the translation gloss consistently transmitted with Ἐξαύδα (Cf. CGL II.304 ἐξομολογομαι confiteor and II.383 ομολογω confiteor fateor). Then ΕΜΕΝ and its variants (building on the original negation μῆ which actually belongs with κεύθε) are taken as representing ‘mihi’ (cf. CGL II.129 mihi εμοι), as was the last syllable of ΕΞΟΜΟΛΟΓΩΜΕ in some cases.

B Forms of the Greek lemma itself (plus corresponding gloss) for μῆ κεύθε νόω (in most cases preceded by a more or less correct form of Ἐξαύδα):

(1) ΜΕΚΕΥΘΕΝ ΟΙΗΝ gl. ne occultes solum Eb Ec Ed Ef Ga Gc Go Mb Mf Mj Mh Mo Na Pb Pm To Vh

Variants:

ne occultes solum uel tantum Eb Ed; ne abscondas tantum Mj Pm; ne abscondas solum Ec Mh; ne occultes solam Mb To; ne abscondas Pb.

Notes:

Although these witnesses transmit the negated imperative verb μῆ κεύθε reasonably faithfully, the noun in the dative, νόω, has become corrupt and/or reinterpreted, possibly as an adverb based on οἷος (‘only, alone’), to judge from the accompanying Latin gloss-translations ‘solum’ or ‘tantum’. This form was further estranged in some versions by the confusion of O for theta Θ to give the meaningless ΘΙΗΝ.

(2) ΜΗ ΑΠΟ ΘΕΝΟΩΙ ab scondas Lh Lg

Variants:

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek

ne occultes Lg.

Notes:

The scribe of Lh, alert as ever to providing ‘correct’ Greek, has here sought to reverse engineer the verb in the Latin gloss (‘abscondas’, ‘hide’) breaking it into the prefix ab- rendered as Greek ΑΠΟ, then a form of the rest of the verb along the lines of other versions of this lemma. The scribe of Lg had originally left a space here and ΑΠΟ ΘΕΝΟΩΙ was supplied later in red ink.

C Forms of the Greek lemma itself (plus corresponding gloss) for κεῦθε νόφ:

(3) KAI OY ΘΕΝΟΙΕΝ gl. et ne abscondas Ct Fd Ge Kc Pa Pn Pp Pq Ps Ta Vc.

Variants:

ΩΥ ΘΗΗΩΤΗΗ Ld.

Notes:

Apart from the few witnesses with KE (Pc Pk) or KH (Vd), the first two letters of the verb κεῦθε seem to have been reinterpreted as KAI (‘and’), followed by the negative OY for the third letter of the original word. The supply of a negative was probably driven by the presence of ne in the gloss-translation coupled with the fact that most of these witnesses also have one of the replacement forms for Ἐξαύδα which absorb the actual negative μὴ of the original clause. It was evidently felt that the remainder of the lemma needed to match the Latin gloss ‘abscondas’ but none of the variants (based on ΘΕΝ-, ΘΗΝ-) seems to relate to a Greek verb that would be meaningful in this context; the nearest would be θείνειν (‘to strike’).

D Versions of the whole lemma + gloss provided as a marginal gloss:

Notes:

For 'exomologesis' cf. Isid. Etym. 6.19.75: 'Exomologesis Graeco uocabulo dicitur, quod Latine confessio interpretatur.' 'Exomologiste' perhaps derives from an attempt to represent the imperative of ἐξομολογέομαι (ἐξομολογεῖσθε would be the plural, as in the New Testament at James 5:16); 'cripsis' is κρυψις 'concealment, hiding', and 'mion' is perhaps the irregular comparative adjective μείων 'lesser, less'. Though the phrase μείων κρυψις does not seem to be attested elsewhere, the notion of 'less concealment' is logical enough in relation to the second half of Boethius's Homeric quotation, μὴ κεῦθε ('don't hide [it]').

'Exomologesis' occurs also at III prosa xii.1.

Variant: Gc has ENCOΛE both times.

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek

Duo sunt uerba apud Grecos quae significant Latine mendatium uel mandatum, ENTOΛΕ et TECE. ENTOΛΕ siquidem mandatum de praecepto. TECE uero de commendatione significat. Inde bibliotheca ubi libri commendantur ·i· reponuntur. Ka (Lh).

Notes:

Cf. Aug. Tract. in Ioh. 83.2.1 ‘siue dicatur praeceptum, siue mandatum, ex uno uerbo graeco utrumque interpretatur, quod est ἐντολή’; and Isid. Etym. 6.3.1 ‘Bibliotheca a Graeco nomen accepit, eo quod ibi recondantur libri. Nam βιβλίων librorum, θήκη repositio interpretatur’; cf. CGL II.328: ‘ΘΗΚΗ theca’ and II.126 ‘mandata ENTOΛΑΙ’ (ἐντολή ‘injunction, command’).

I prosa iv.10 INIURIA

Iniustitia Grece ANKEIA Kc Ps

Variant: ANKHIA Ps.

Iniustitia Grece ΑΔΙΚΕΙΑ dicitur. Af Pk Pq Ta

Variant: ΑΔΚΕΙΑ Pq.

Notes:

The gloss represents ἀδίκη ‘wrongdoing, injustice’ (cf. CGL II.218: ‘ΑΔΙΚΙΑ iniquitas iniuria iniustitia’). The variants in Kc and Ps may derive in part from confusion with ἀνάγκη ‘force, necessity, compulsion, violence, punishment’.

I prosa iv.36 AEDES

Aedis est domicilium in edito positum simplex atque unius aditus. Siue ideo aedis dicitur qui in aeuum degatur, quia Grece EONION uocatur. Itaque aedificare cum sit proprie aedem facere. Ponitur tamen catacresticus in omni genere constructionis. Ec Gc Ka (Lh).

Variants: ΘΟΝΙΩΝ Ec; ΘΩΝΙΩΝ Gc.

Notes:

ἄωνιον (‘lasting for an aeon’); cf. Paul. Diac. Excerpta ex libris Festi de significatione uerborum 12.3: ‘Sive ideo aedis dicitur, quod in ea aeuum degatur, quod Graece aiōn uocatur. Itaque aedificare cum sit proprie aedem facere, ponitur tamen katachrêstikôs in omni genere constructionis’.

I metrum v.1 O - ORBIS

ΠΡΟΦΩΝΕCIC gl. subita exclamatio Ka Lh Pp.

Variants:

ΤΡΟΦΩΝΕCIC Ka Lh;

·i· inuocatio Pp.

In Lh the initial T is written on an erased letter which may have been Π.

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek

Notes:

προσφωνησις ‘addressing, address’; cf. Cass. Expos. Ps., ps. 54: ‘Quod schema dicitur prosphonesis, Latine exclamatio’.

I metrum v.44 NON UILIS

ΛΥΤΟΤΕC Ka Lh.

This rhetorical term (Greek λιτότης) occurs with particular frequency in Servius’ commentaries, as ‘litotes figura’.

I prosa v.2 QUAM

ΑΙΤΙΟΛΟΓΙΑ Ka (marginal);

ΑΙΤΙΟΛΟΓΙΑ gl. causae redditio Ka Lh (interlinear).

Variant: ΑΙΟΤΟΛΟΓΙΑ Lh.

Notes:

For this rhetorical term, cf. Cass. Expos. Ps., ps. 15: ‘Quae figura dicitur aetiologia, id est causae redditio.’

Occurs also at II prosa iv.10, II prosa v.17, II prosa vii.18, III prosa x headwords, III prosa x.17, III prosa xii.2 and III prosa xii.5.

I prosa v.5 AN

ΕΠΟΤΗΜΑ gl. interrogatio Ka Lh.

= ΕΡΟΤΗΜΑ, as at I prosa ii.2.

I prosa v.6 ITAQUE

ΑΝΑΚΕΦΑΛΕΩCIC gl. brevis recapitulatio Ka Lh.

Variant: ΑΝΑΚΕΦΑΛΕΟCIC Lh.

Notes

ἀνακεφαλεωσις ‘summing up’; cf. Cass. Expos. Ps., ps. 113: ‘Quae figura dicitur anacephaleosis, id est recapitulatio.’

I prosa vi.1 PRIMUM IGITUR - INTELLEGAM

ΠΕΥCIC gl. percunctatio Ka Lh.

Notes:

‘enquiry, question’; see Cass. Expos. Ps., ps. 4, ‘Haec figura dicitur graece peusis, Latine autem percunctatio.’ Cf. also CGL II.406: ‘ΠΕΥCIC interrogatio.’

I prosa vi.3 ILLA

ΑΠΟΚΡΙCIC gl. apokrisis Ka Lh.

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek

Variant: gloss omitted in Lh.

Notes:

ἀποκρισις ‘decision, answer, defence’; Cass. Expos. Ps., ps. 113: ‘Quae figura dicitur peusis et apocrisis, Latine percunctatio atque responsio.’ Cf. also CGL II.173: ‘responsum ΑΠΟΚΡΙΣΙΣ.’

I prosa vi.15 RATIONALE definitio hominis: ΑΝΘΡΩΠΙΟΝ. ΕΣΤΙΝ. ΖΩΟΝ. ΛΟΓΙΚΟΝ. ΕΝΗΤΟΝ. ΓΕΛΟΙΟΝ. gl.

Homo est animal rationale ·i· mortale ·i· risibile Ec Gc Ka Lh.

Variants: ΕΝΕΙΤΟΝ Ec Gc; ΕΝΕΤΟΝ Ka.

ΑΝΘΡΩΠΙΟΝ ΕΣΤΙΝ ΛΟΓΙΚΟΝ gl. homo est r Pf.

Notes:

Lh's ΕΝΗΤΟΝ is the closest to being correct for the third of the four defining terms, which should be ΘΝΗΤΟΝ (‘mortal’); wherever the gloss originated, theta seems to have been mistaken for E. The four-fold definition of man (i.e. distinctively including ‘risibile’ or an equivalent such as ‘risus capax’) in its Latin form is attested in several grammatical sources, and then also in Mart. Cap. De nupt. 4.398 and Isid. Etym. 2.25.8, but never with Greek equivalents supplied. The ultimate source appears to be Porphy. Isa. chapter 2 (p. 2), although Porphyry used the term ‘γελαστικός’ (‘able to laugh’), rather than the form supplied in the gloss, ‘γελοῖος’ which means ‘ludicrous, laughable’; cf. CGL II.262 ‘ΓΕΛΟΙΟΝ ridiculum iocus’. Porphyry’s term does not occur in the Greek glossaries. For the other terms, cf. CGL II.17: ‘animal ΖΩΟΝ ΛΟΓΙΚΟΝ ΑΝΘΡΩΠΙΟΝ’, and CGL II.130 (and 328): ‘mortalis ΘΝΗΤΟΝ.’

I prosa vi.20 NIHIL

ΠΡΟΤΡΟΠΗ gl. exhortatio Fd Ka Lh Mh.

Variant: ΠΡΟΘΡΟ/ΠΕ Mh.

Notes:

Cf. Charis. Ars gramm. V (p. 451), ‘hic hortatus ἢ προτροπή’ and CGL II.424: ‘ΠΡΟΤΡΟΠΗ hic hortatus, hortatio.’

I metrum vii.1 NUBIBUS ATRIS

ΟΜΟΙΩΣΙΣ Ka Lh.

Variant: gl. similitudo Lh.

Cf. also I metrum 3 etc.

II prosa i.1 POST HAEC – EXORSA EST

ΔΙΗΓΗΜΑ gl. narratio Ka Lh Pp.

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek

Variant: ΔΙΗΓΙΜΑ Lh Pp.

Notes:

διήγημα ‘tale, narrative’; cf. CGL II.132 (and 276): ‘narratio ΔΙΗΓΗΜΑ’ (cf. also Glossae p. 19, line 32: ‘ΔΙΗΓΙΜΑ ·i· narratio’).

II prosa i.2 SI PENITUS - PERUERTIT

ΕΚΘΕCIC gl. explanatio Ka Lh Pp.

Variant: ΕΚΘΗCIC Lh Pp.

Notes:

ἐκθεσις ‘exhibition, exposition, prescription (medical)’; cf. CGL II.290: ‘ΕΚΘΕCIC expositio enarratio explanatio.’

II prosa i.8 RHETORICAE

Rethorica est bene dicendi scientia ... Dicta autem rethorica Greca appellatione apo tu rethoris ·i· copia locutionis. Ec Gc Ka Lh Mf.

Variants: apo tu rethoris] ΑΠΟ ΤΥ ΡΕΘΟΡΕC Ec Gc; ΑΠΟ ΤΟΥ ΡΗΘΟΡΗCΙΝ Mf.

Notes:

The variant in Mf, though somewhat corrupted, is in fact closer to the source here, namely Cass. Inst. 2.2.1: ‘Rethorica dicitur apo tu rhetoreuin, id est copia deductae locutionis, influere.’

II prosa i.9 TU

ΑΝΤΙCΤΑΘΜΗCIC gl. recompensatio Ka Lh Pp.

Variants: ΑΝΘΙCΘΑΤΜΗCIC Lh; ΑΝΘΙCΘΑCΜΗCIC Pp.

Notes:

Cf. Cass. Expos. Ps., ps. 125: ‘Quae figura dicitur antistathmisis, hoc est recompensatio.’

II metrum i.1 DEXTRA

ΟΜΟΙΩCIC gl. similitudo Bb Ka Lh.

Variant: Latin gloss omitted in Bb.

Cf. 1 metrum iii.

II metrum i.7 UIRES

ΚΥΝΟΜΕΑ gl. consilii commutatio Ka Lh.

Notes:

Mangling of κοινωνημα ‘communication’ (identified in Troncarelli 1981, p. 40); cf. Cass.

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek

Expos. Ps., ps. 10: ‘hoc schema dicitur caenonema, id est: communicatio consilii’.

II prosa iii.2 TUM

ANTIΘETA: gl. opposita Ka Lh.

Variant: ANTIΘHTA Lh.

Notes:

Cf. Isid. Etym. 2.21.5: ‘Antitheta, quae Latine contrapposita appellantur.’

II prosa iii.5 PROXIMUS

AYΞHCIC gl. argumentum ·i· laus Ka Lh.

Variant: AYΞECIC Lh (which also lacks the gloss found in Ka)

Notes:

Eta rather than epsilon is the correct spelling (i.e. Ka is more accurate). It is likely that ‘argumentum’ is an error for ‘augmentum’. Cf. Cass. Expos. Ps., ps. 105: ‘Quae figura dicitur auxesis, id est augmentum paulatim ad superiora conscendens. Hoc siue in laudibus, siue in uituperationibus omnino praeualidum est’. Also cf. CGL II.251 ‘AYΞHCIC auctio, augmentum’.

Also at II prosa vi.13, II prosa vii.7, and III prosa ii.12.

II metrum iii.1 CUM POLO PHOEBUS

OMOIΩCIC Ka Lh.

Variant: OMIΩCIC gl. similitudo Lh.

Cf. I metrum iii.

II metrum iii.16 BONIS - FUGACIBUS

EIPΩNEIA Ka.

Notes:

εἰρωνεία ‘dissembling, mock-modesty’; occurs at III prosa v.1 with the Latin gloss ‘irrisio’ (cf. Cass. Expos. Ps., ps. 21, ‘quae Graece dicitur ironia, Latine irrisio’), and also at II prosa v.35. Compare CGL II.98 and 286: ‘cauillatio EIPΩNIA’.

II prosa iv.5 PRETIOSISSIMUM

EΠΙΔΕΙΚΤΙΚΟΝ gl. laudatorium Fd Ka Lh Vd.

Variants: EΠΙΔΙΚΤΙΚΟΝ Fd Lh; EΠΥΔΙΚΘΙΚΩΝ Vd.

Notes:

On the term ‘epideictic’, cf. Fortunat. Ars rhet. 1.1 (p. 81) ‘Quod est demonstrativum genus?’

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek cum aliquid demonstramus, in quo est laus et vituperatio. Hoc Graeci quid vocant? ἐπιδεικτικόν vel ἐγκωμιστικόν’, repeated as an interpolation to one recension of Cass. Inst. II.3 (cf. Troncarelli 1981, p. 41). Compare also Quintilian, Inst. 3.7.28 where epideictic is listed as one of the three Aristotelian genera of speech topics. Two cognate nouns and a verb occur in CGL, but not this adjectival form.

II prosa iv.5 SYMMACHUS SOCER

Compugnator dicitur. Nam sin dicitur con, machia ·i· pugna, unde ; Ψichomachia pugna animae dicitur. Ta.

Compugnator. Nam sin dicitur con, machia ·i· pugna, unde sichomachia animae pugna dicitur. ...Ec Gc Ka Lh.

Variants: ΨXOMAXIA Ec; ΨXOMAXIA gl. psi- Gc; Ψichomachia Lh.

Notes:

Cf. Ioh. Scot. Eriug. Gloss. Prud. ‘Psychomachia id est animae pugna’ (p. 58); and CGL II.481: ‘ΨΥΧΟΜΑΧΙΑ iurgium’.

II prosa iv.9 QUARE

ΠΠΟΤΡΟΠΗ gl. exhortatio Ka Lh Vd.

Variant: ΠΠΟΤΡΟΠΕ Lh.

Cf. I prosa vi.20

II prosa iv.10 ET HAEREANT

ΠΠΟCEYXH gl. oratio Ka Ld Lh Vd.

Variants: ΠΠΟCEYXI Ld; ΠΠΟCHYXH Vd.

Notes:

This term, meaning ‘prayer’, is cited on a number of occasions as the equivalent of Latin ‘oratio’; cf. for example Aug. Ep. 149 (p. 360) ‘προσευχάς enim orationes dici a graecis notissimum est’. Cf. CGL II.136 ‘obsecratio ΠΠΟCEYXH’ and 421 ‘ΠΠΟCEYXH obsecratio, oratio’.

II prosa iv.10 QUANTUM ORNAMENTIS

ΑΙΤΙΟΛΟΓΙΑ gl. causae redditio Ka Lh Vd.

Variants: ΑΙΟΤΟΛΟΓΙΑ Lh; ΤΟΛΩΓΙΑ Vd.

Cf. I prosa v.2 above.

II prosa iv.22 CONFUNDIT

ΒΡΑΧΥΛΟΓΙΑ gl. brevis locutio Ka Lh.

Variant: ΒΡΑΧΙΛΟΓΙΑ Lh.

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek

Notes:

Cf. Cass. Expos. Ps., ps. 49 (and also ps. 86): ‘Haec figura dicitur brachylogia, id est brevis locutio’. The gloss belongs properly with II prosa iv.23 OSTENDAM BREVITER.

II prosa iv.23 IGITUR - FUERIS

ΚΥΛΛΟΓΙΚΜΟC gl. Copiosa conclusio Ka Lh.

Syllogismos dicitur conclusio ΚΙΑΟΓΙΚΜΟC. Ta.

Variant: ΚΙΑΛΟΓΙΚΜΟC Lh.

Notes:

No exact equivalent to this translation of the Greek term has come to light, but cf. Isid. Etym. 2.9.1 ‘Syllogismus igitur est propositionis et adsumptionis confirmationisque extrema conclusio’.

II prosa v HEADNOTES

ΚΑΤΕΞΟΧΗΝ gl. separatio uel diuisio Ka Lh Vd.

ΦΙΚΜΑ gl. quaesitum Ka Lh Vd.

Variants:

ΚΑΤΟΞΟΧΕΝ Lh; ΚΛΕΟΞΟΧΕΗ Vd;

ΦΥCΜΑ Vd.

Notes:

For the first of these forms, Ka preserves the most accurate orthography, but the Latin gloss ‘separatio, diuisio’ is somewhat misleading since κατ’ ἐξοχήν is a well-attested Greek idiom meaning ‘par excellence’ (lit. ‘by pre-eminence’). ΦΙΚΜΑ must be an error for ΠΥCΜΑ ‘question’, cf. Mart. Cap. De nupt. 5.524 ‘ΠΥCΜΑ est quaesitum, quae figura a superiore eo differt, quod interrogato una voce tantum responderi potest, quaesito autem nisi pluribus responderi non potest’ (that is, ‘ἔρωτημα / interrogatio’ can only be answered with yes or no, whereas ‘πῶσµα / quaesitum’ requires a more specific explanatory answer). Hence this Greek gloss as a whole, ΚΑΤΕΞΟΧΗΝ ΠΥCΜΑ would mean ‘a question par excellence’. There is no parallel for the interpretation ‘separatio, diuisio’ for κατ’ ἐξοχήν, though cf. an additional gloss in one recension of Pseud. Sch. Hor. ‘catexoche figura discretiua’ (on Hor. Carm. I.29.15).

II prosa v.4 ATQUI

II prosa v.8 AN GEMMARUM - TRAHIT

ΚΧΕΤΑΙΑCΜΟC ΑΛΕΓΕΟΥ Lh.

Notes:

Although placed here in Lh, this is the Greek equivalent of the Latin ‘interiectio dolentis’

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek attested in other manuscripts as a gloss on II prosa v.7 O IGITUR (cf. also II metrum vi.16). For the first term, compare Charis. Ars gramm. V (p. 470) ‘interiectio σχετλιασμος’, and CGL II.90 (and 450) ‘interiectio CXETAIACMOC.’ ΑΛΕΓΕΟΥ may be seeking to represent the genitive (properly ἄλγεος) of the noun ἄλγος ‘pain, grief’ (cf. Troncarelli 1981, p. 41, suggesting that the second word is the corresponding adjective ἄλγεινος).

II prosa v.9 COMPAGE

Homo Grece MICROKOCMOC Af Lc Mj Ta (transliterated in all other mss)

Variants: ΜΓΚΡΟΚΟΜΓC Mj; ΜΙΚΡΩΚΩCMUC Af; ΜΙΚΡΩΚΩCMΩC Lc.

Notes:

Cf. Isid. De nat. rer. 9.2.7 ‘Quia enim homo microcosmus hoc est minor mundus esse dicitur’ (and quoted Beda, De temp. rat. 35.21 and 66.2).

II prosa v.12 NUM TE - ATTINGIT

ΕΞΕΤΑCIC ΑΙΤΙΑ gl. interrogatio causae Fd Ka Lc Lh.

Variants:

ECTACIC Fd; ΕΞECTACIC Lc Lh;

ΑΓΙΑ Fd; ΤΙΑ Lc.

Notes:

ἐξετασις ‘close examination, scrutiny’ (cf. CGL II.90: ‘interrogatio ΕΞΕΤΑCIC’) and αἰτία, ‘cause, reason’ (cf. CGL II.98: ‘causa ΑΙΤΙΑ’); αἰτία should correctly have the ending -ας for the genitive.

II prosa v.16 PAUCIS – CONTENTA EST

ΑΚΡΙΒΗC ΛΟΓΟC gl. certa ratio Ka Lh Pp.

Variants:

ΑΚΡΙΒIC Lh Pp;

ΛΟΓΩC Lh.

Notes:

ἀκριβής ‘exact, accurate’ (adj., with the correct masc. sing. ending in Ka) and λογος ‘word’ ‘reason’ etc.; cf. CGL II.99: ‘certus ΑΚΡΙΒΗC’ and II.169 ‘ratio ΛΟΓΟC’. The pairing does not seem to be attested elsewhere, but compare the term ‘ἀκριβολογία’, defined by Aristotle, in his Rhetorica 1.5 (1361b 34), as precision in speech.

II prosa v.17 IAM - UARIIS

ΑΛΛΟΝ ΜΕΘΟΔΟC gl. aliud argumentum Ka Lh.

Variant: ΜΕΤΟΔΟC Lh.

Notes:

Perhaps meaning ‘another mode of enquiry’; μεθοδος is a feminine noun, so the adjective

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek ought to be ΑΛΛΑ, but cf. CGL II.366: ‘ΜΕΘΟΔΟΣ hoc methodus’, which also accepts the noun as neuter.

II prosa v.18 AN

ΑΙΤΙΟΛΟΓΙΑ gl. causae redditio Ka Lh.

Variant: ΑΙΤΟΛΟΓΙΑ Lh.

Cf. I prosa v.2 above.

II prosa v.19 EX QUIBUS - MONSTRATUR

ΜΕΘΟΔΟΣ ΡΩΜΑΛΛΙΟΝ gl. argumentum robustum Ka Lh.

Variant: ΜΕΤΟΔΟΣ Lh.

Notes:

Lit. ‘strong method’ (ῥωμαλέος, adj., ‘strong, robust’; cf. CGL II.175: ‘robustum ΡΩΜΑΛΛΙΟΝ’ and 429: ‘ΡΩΜΑΛΛΙΟΣ robustus ualidus’). The adjectival ending assumes that the noun is neuter, rather than feminine. This rhetorical/philosophical term does not seem to be otherwise attested. Also at III prosa iii.5, III prosa x.3.

II prosa v.26 NEC INTELLIGITIS

ΑΝΤΙΘΕΤΑ gl. opposita Ka Lh.

Variant: ΑΝΤΙΘΗΤΑ Lh.

Cf. II prosa iii.2 and II prosa v.4

ΕΙΡΩΝΕΙΑ gl. Exclamatio per ironiam Ka.

ΥΡΟΝΙΚΟΣ Ct

Cf. II metrum iii.16. Ct attempts to turn back into Greek the gloss ‘yronicos’, found frequently in the Boethius scholia and beyond, and reflecting the adverb εἰρωνικῶς, ‘mockingly’ (cf. the same form in Pf at II prosa viii.7)

II prosa vi.2 ABSTULERANT

ΥΠΟΔΕΙΓΜΑ Η ΠΑΡΑΔΕΙΓΜΑ gl. exemplabile aut similiter Ka Lh.

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek

Variants:

ΠΑΡΑΔΙΓΜΑ Lh.

Notes:

ὑποδειγμα ‘example, instance’ and παράδειγμα ‘pattern, model, precedent’; cf. CGL II.64: ‘exemplum ΥΠΟΔΙΓΜΑ’ and 468: ‘ΥΠΟΔΕΙΓΜΑ exemplum exemplar’. On ‘paradigma’ cf. Isid. Etym. I.37.34 ‘Paradigma uero est exemplum dicti uel facti alicuius aut ex simili aut ex dissimili genere’. Cf. also Sed. Scott. Don. art. mai. 3 (p. 374): ‘paradigma exemplum ex quo ΠΑΡΑΔΕΙΓΜΑΤΙΚΟΝ exemplabile deriuatur’.

II prosa vi.10 BUSIRIDEM

ΜΥΘΟC gl. fabula Ka Lh.

Variant: ΜΙΘΟC Lh.

Notes:

Referring to the story of Busiris; cf. CGL II.69 (and 378): ‘fabula ΜΥΘΟC’, and Ioh. Scot. Eriug. Annot. in Mart. 30 (p. 74), ‘mithos: fabula’.

II prosa vii.3 EXILIS

ΕΞΙΓΙΑΩ Grece ·i· exigua gloria Ka;

Ideo penultima producit quia uenit a Greco LYTIOC. Pt.

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek

Notes:

Ka's gloss is not explicitly linked to a lemma. Taking Γ as an error for T then this may be the word ἐξίτηλος 'fading, losing power, extinct, obsolete.' If this were to be taken as glossing 'exilis', then cf. Prisc. Inst. 4: 'exilis etiam a Graeco ΕΞΙΤΗΛΟC factum.' The gloss in Pt perhaps refers to the fact that the first -i- in exilis is long, but it is not clear why the Greek λυγαῖος (adj., 'shadowy, gloomy'), if that is what is intended, should be relevant (no source has come to light for this gloss).

παρένθεσις, cf. Diomedes, Ars Gramm. 2 (and cited in several places thereafter): ‘parenthesis est interposita ratiocinatio’, though a more precise match occurs in Pomp. Comm. Don. (p. 309), ‘parenthesis est interpositio diuisae sententiae’); cf. CGL II.398: ‘ΠΑΡΕΝΘΕCIC interuentus intercessio interpositio.’

Notes:

An error for ΚΡΥΠΙΤΟC ‘hidden’ (cf. CGL II.355: ‘ΚΡΥΠΙΤΟC occultus’). The rhetorical term ‘latens argumentum’ is used once in Donat. Comm. Terrent. Andr. 1.62.1 (p. 61).

Auctor quando AYΘENTHN·i· auctoritatem significat, communis generis est. Quando uero AYZHTHN ·i· augmentum significat, masculini generis est. Lh.

Variants:

These terms are αὔθεντης (‘perpetrator, doer’) and αὔξητης (‘increaser’), drawn from Prisc. Inst. book 5, ‘auctor, quando AYΘENTHN significat, commune est, quando AYΞHTHN, auctrix facit femininum’; cf. also CGL II.26: ‘auctor AYΘENTHC.’

Perhaps an error for KYΔOC ‘glory, renown’ (through confusion between Λ and Δ).

III metrum viii.3 AURUM

III prosa ix.32 TIMAEO

Time dicitur anima ΑΠΟ ΤΟΥ ΤΗΜΟΥ hinc et timiama dicitur. Lh.

Notes:

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek

It has not been possible to identify a source for this attempted explanation for the name Timaeus (literally ‘highly prized, honoured’, from τῆμη, ‘worship, honour’), one of the interlocutors of Plato’s dialogue known by that title. There is no warrant for interpreting τῆμη as meaning ‘soul’, and even less for a connection between that, or indeed Timaeus, and θῦμιμα (‘incense’), as suggested in this gloss. ΑΠΟ ΤΟΥ ΤΗΜΟΥ (literally ‘from [the word] ΤΗΜΟΣ’ with the noun and definite article in the genitive case) assumes a non-existent Greek noun ΤΗΜΟΣ.

III metrum ix HEADNOTE

ΘΕΟΣ ΚΥΡΙΟΣ (gl. deus dominus) sicut cogitasti ita perfecisti, formaliter cuncta patrando, mortali non ex artificio, qui suis commentis aliquod faciendo opus excogitat. Ka

Notes:

Lh shares the rest of this gloss but leaves off the Greek at the start (which is simply a standard invocation of the Almighty, in frequent use, for example, in the Greek of the Septuagint, notably in the Psalms).

III metrum ix.7 AB EXEMPLO

Plato per altam sapientiam quandam ΑΓΙΕ ΕΘΕΟΝΤΑΚ ·i· sanctae trinitatis similitudinem repertam habuit. Eb Ec Ec2 Gc Ka Lh (only Ka and Lh have the Greek).

Variant:

ΑΓΙΕ ΕΘΕΟΝΤΑΚ] om. Eb Ec Ec2 Gc; ΑΓΙΟΣ ΕΘΟΝΤΑΚ Lh.

Notes:

No exact match for this Greek form has come to light, and it is not obvious what phrase is intended. The spelling of Ka has been preferred in light of the fact that where it and Lh have the same Greek gloss, Ka often seems to preserve an accurate form. Judging from context, this phrase has at least the appearance of being an attempted equivalent for ‘sanctae trinitatis’ (more commonly ἁγία τριάς). One possibility, allowing for letter-confusion between Ξ (usually written in manuscripts of this period in the uncial form ξ) and Ζ/ζ or sigma, would be to interpret this form as deriving from the verb σώζω (‘save’), for which the present participle (‘saving’) would have the stem σώζοντ-.

III metrum ix.10 ELEMENTA

Vnde et Grece CTOIXIA dicuntur quae Latine elementa dicimus quod sibi conueniant et concinant. Pg.

Notes:

This is the plural of the noun στοιχείον, ‘element’, part of a much longer gloss which quotes almost verbatim from Ambr. Exam., 3.4.18, ‘Vnde et graece στοιχεια dicuntur quae Latine elementa dicimus, quod sibi conueniant et concinant.’ (Cf. also CGL II.59 and 438; and Glossae p. 8 line 7).

III prosa xii.4 MUNDUM - REGI

Variants: ΑΞΙΩΝΑ Lh; ΑΖΙΩΜΑ Ld; ΑΖΙΟΝΑ Pf.

Notes:

αζιωμα ‘decree, demonstration, principle’, perhaps here referring to the principle of divine rule. Cf. CGL II.232: ‘ΑΞΙΩΜΑ dignitatio, stipendium’ but also ‘ΑΞΙΩCIC petitio postulatio.’

III prosa xii.4 NE NUNC- PUTABO

ΑΠΟΚΡΙCIC Ka Lh Pf.

Variant: ΑΠΩΚΡΙCIC Ka.

Notes:

ἀποκρισις ‘decision, answer, defence’, cf. Cass. Expos. Ps., ps. 48: ‘Quae figura dicitur peusis et apocrisis, quando interrogatione praemissa, responsio apta subsequitur’, and CGL II.173 (and 238): ‘responsum ΑΠΩΚΡΙCIC.’

III prosa xii.5 MUNDUS - CONUENISSET

Variants:

ΒΡΑΧΙΑ Mh;

ΒΡΑΧΗΝΑ ΛΟΓΙΑ Lh;

ΒΡΑΧΕ ΑΝΑΛΩΓΙΑ Pf.

Notes:

The term βραχυλογία (‘brevity in speech’), occurs elsewhere (II prosa iv.23), but the present phrase is more likely to be what the Latin gloss says it is, namely βραχεια ‘brief, short’ (cf. CGL II.259: ‘ΒΡΑΧΕΙΑ brevis’) and ‘aetiologia’, already used several times (e.g. I prosa v.2).

III prosa xii.7 NON TAM - DISPONERET

ΦΥCΙΚΗ ΑΝΑΛΩΓΙΑ gl. naturalis causae redditio Ka Lh Pf.

Variants:

III prosa xii.8 USITATO - NOMINO

ΦΥΣΙΚΗ ΩΝΩΜΑΤΙΑ gl. naturalis denominatio Ka Mh; ΦΙΣΙC ΟΝΟΜΑΘΙC Fd Lh Pf Pt.

Variants:

ΦΥΣΙΚΗ Mh;

ΟΝΩΜΑΤΙΑ Lh;

gl. positio nominis Fd Pt.

Notes:

As it stands in Ka and Mh, this means ‘the natural naming’; for ὀνομασία ‘naming, expression’, cf. Sed. Scott. Don. art. mai., 3 (p. 360): ‘paranomasia παρά de ὀνομασία nominatio unde ὀνομάζω Grece nomino interpretatur’, and CGL II.135 (and 384): ‘nuncupatio ONOMACIA.’ The other version would approximate to φυσικὸς ὀνοματος (‘of the name of nature?’), though the Latin gloss in Fd and Pt suggests that the first word was interpreted as θέσις ‘placing, position.’

III prosa xii.37 πάντοθεν - ὄγκω

Η CΥ ΠΑΝΤΑ ΑΠΟ ΚΥΚΛΟΙΝ ΠΡΟCΑΤΕΙC ΠΡΟΜΠΕCΕΙ ΕΚΟΥCΙΩC ΠΛΕΤΟΝ gl.

Variants:

ΕΚΟΥCΙΩC Lh;

ΠΛΕΤΟΝ ΩΓΚΩΝ] Ka;

uacat uacat] om. Lh;

multitudinem] multitudine sponte Ka.

Notes:

Seemingly an attempt to translate the flawed Latin gloss for Parmenides’ Greek back into Greek again, as follows (not all the forms are readily resolvable into intelligible Greek):

ἢ ‘or’; σύ ‘you’; παντα ‘all’ (neuter pl.); ἀπό κυκλιων ‘from circling things’ (genitive plural of the adjective; or perhaps, given that the Latin is ‘circulo’ this is a mistake for the genitive singular of κυκλος, which would be κυκλου); προσάγεις ‘introduce, move on’ (where majuscule Γ has been misread as Τ); προαίρεισει ἐκουσίως (‘by choice’ and ‘freely, voluntarily’, two equivalents of the Latin ‘sponte’ offered in this same order in the Pseudo-Philoxenus glossary, CGL II.187; here ΠΡΟΜ- reflects a mis-reading of ΠΡΟΑΙ-); πληθον ‘mass, multitude’ (in accusative singular; cf. CGL II.409 ‘ΠΛΗΘΟC multitudo’). Ka accidentally also repeats a mangled form of the last word of the original Parmenides ὄγκω (‘substance, mass’, in the dative case), as ΩΓΚΩΝ, glossing it as ‘sponte’. The gloss ‘uacat’ means ‘it is lacking’, i.e. there is no translation for those Greek forms in the exemplar or source (and the Greek words so denoted in Ka lack any gloss in Lh). Roughly then, the new Greek could be translated as ‘or you move everything from the circling things; you voluntarily freely move on the multitude.’

III metrum 12 HEADNOTES

Notes:

‘simile concerning Orpheus the kitharist’ (cf. CGL II.349: ‘ΚΙΘΑΡΙCΤΗC fidicen’). For homoiosis, cf. I metrum 3 etc. The preposition περι takes the genitive case when it means ‘concerning’ and the ending for Orpheus provided here assumes that he is Ορφεος rather than the correct Ορφέυς (genitive Ορφέως).

III metrum xii.8 SILUAS

Silua dicitur quasi xylua, Nam Grece ΞΙΛΟΝ lignum dicitur. Ec Gc Ka Lh.

Variants: ΧΙΛΟΝ Ka Lh.

III metrum xii.9 AMNES

Amnis proprie a circumnando dicitur, quoniam ex Greca praepositione dictum est, quia ΑΜΦΙ significat circum, et nare est fluere. Ec Gc Ka Lh.

Notes:

A near verbatim match with Paul. Diac. Epit. 15.24 ‘Amnis proprie dicitur a circumnando, quoniam am ex Graeca praepositione sumptum, quae est ἀμφί, significat circum, et nare fluere.’

III metrum xii.17 DOMINUM

Part of a much longer gloss on Orpheus. This section draws closely on Fulg. Myth. III.10 (‘Orpheus dicitur oreafone, id est optima uox, Euridice uero profunda diiudicatio. ... Sed haec quantum ab optimis amatur sicut ab Aristeo - ariston enim Grece optimum dicitur...’).

Notes:

In the context of the supplementary gloss ‘siluas’ the Greek word intended here must be ὕλη ‘forest, woodland’ (cf. Serv. Comm. Aen. I.314: ‘MEDIA SESE TVLIT OBVIA SILVA quam Graeci hulên vocant poetae nominant silvam’). But as a gloss on ‘elementa’ the extended meaning ‘matter’, used first by Aristotle and then in Latin by the neoplatonists (for example, Calchidius), is what is really in play here (cf. Isid. Etym. 13.3.1 ‘ὕλην Graeci rerum quandam primam materiam dicunt’). Cf. Glossae p. 8, lines 6-8.

OYME Lh;

ΚΟΛΟΜΕCΑΝ Lh.

Notes:

Exceptionally here the match of Latin gloss and Greek has been retained in order to make clear the intended equivalents. This represents two attempts (a gloss in Lh states ‘Grecum tripliciter habetur’ i.e. three versions of the Greek in total) to offer another version of Boethius’s original quotation (source unidentified), as follows:

ἀνὴρ ἢ ἱερεῖος (strictly ἱερέυς) ἀληθινός οὐ μὴ οἰκοδομήσαν (‘a true man or priest, they did not labour’)

ἢ (OR) ἄγιοι (correcting to a plural nominative ending to agree with the following noun) ἄνδρες σωματα ἢ ἴδια οἰκοδομήσαν (‘holy men built up their own bodies’).

The fourth word, ΘΟ, remains unaccounted for. With some items, cf. CGL II.331: ‘IEPEYC sacerdos’; II.224 ‘ΑΛΗΘΙΝΟC manifestus uerax’; II.380 ‘ΟΙΚΟΔΟΜΩ aedifico’ and II.450 ‘CΩMA corpus.’

Appendix 2: Notes on glosses in Greek

‘cum’ suggests that it is intended to function as a conjunction like ‘cum’, although this is not a standard use of META: with following accusative META means ‘among’. ΑΙΩΝ (‘saecula’) is not neuter, as seems to be assumed here. ΒΛΕΠΕΙ is the correct form for ‘uidet’, though here ΥΠΕΡΒΛΕΠΕΙ, which should mean ‘overlook, neglect’, is perhaps intended as ‘looks beyond’ to match Latin ‘preuidet’; it is followed by a form of προνοουμαι ‘foresee’ (to match ‘prospicit’).

IV metrum vii.8 FLEUIT AMISSOS ITHACUS SODALES

Ideo eum et Poliphemum diximus ΑΠΟΛΙΝΤΑΦΕΜΕΝ quod nos Latine perdentem famam dicimus. Ck Ge Ps.

Notes:

The Greek phrase consists of the accusative singular of the present participle of ἀπολύω (‘loose, let go of’), ἀπολύοντα, and the noun φήμη (‘repute, fame’), in the accusative, thus correctly rendered into Latin as ‘perdentem famam’ (‘losing reputation’). The sentence forms part of a long quote from Fulg. Virg. cont. (p. 93): ‘Ideo eum et Poliphemum diximus quasi apolunta femem, quod nos Latine perdentem famam dicimus.’ Part of it is repeated, less correctly, as an interlinear gloss to IV metrum vii.10 POLYPHEMUS, see below.
