Diogenes unus sapientum adimpleuit hoc, qui amore sapientiae omnia reliquit, et uidens aliquando pastorem coniunctis cauaturis manuum aquam bibere, proiecit uasculum cum quo actenus hauserat, nesciebam, inquiens, quod ita natura posset satisfacere. Hoc quoque naturalis potentia facit. Sed quamuis hoc de irrationalibus ita dicatur, de rationalibus aliter est sentiendum. Deus enim homini rationem qua regetur donauit. Vnde et quibusdam rationibus multa quae sunt contra naturam facit, multa quoque quae sunt naturalia derelinquit. Verbi gratia naturalis est omnibus animantibus ut mortem quantum possunt effugiant. Homines uero aliquando duce ratione ad mortem ultro festinant, scilicet uel causa aeternae recompensationis, sicut sancti martyres, uel causa honestatis, sicut de pluribus legimus. Competulantia⁽¹⁾ naturalis est. Sed quia nulla est «ei» ratio qua regatur, perficit quod uult usumque sequitur naturalem. Homini quoque naturale est ut coeat. Sed adest ei ratio qua in se domare libidinem potest. Ideo in hoc naturalius ut postposito potius rationis imitatur ducatum. Sic et de quibusdam aliis sentiendum. Vd.

frigidam, et ignis calidam, et hoc est principale proprium elementis singulis quod ratione colligimus. Comprehendere autem sensibiliter et corporaliter, si uelimus, uelud conexe composita repperimus, ut sit terra arida et frigida, aqua frigida et
