Freshman coeds, Dianne Lechot and Carolyn Payne placed second and third, respectively. Tied for fourth place were sophomore Kathleen Schick and freshman Nancy Lamb.

Auditions Planned For Spring Play

Auditions for the spring production of the BJC dramatic department will be held March 13 and 14, 2:00-5:00 p.m., and March 15, 9:30-11:30 a.m. in studio A of T-1. It was announced by Mr. William Shankweiler, director.

He said that people wishing to try out will not be required to prepare audition material in advance.

The choice of play for this show has not been released, although "The Bad Seed" and "The Secret Diary of Anne Frank" are both under consideration, Mr. Shankweiler said.

Tentative dates of presentation have been set at May 8 and 9.

She also went to business school last summer and plans to attend the University of Denver next year, following her August marriage to Forrest Hymas, also a BJC sophomore.

During the summer of 1957, Cheryl was enrolled in modeling classes at the Collette School of Charm in Twin Falls, Idaho.

During this same time she was posing for publicity pictures for Idaho's famous resort, Sun Valley. She modeled dresses over television in Twin Falls.

An expert horsewoman, Cheryl was crowned "Jerome County Rodeo Queen" in 1956. In addition to riding and piano playing, Cheryl is an avid skier. In the recent BJC White Stag race, she came in second in the women's expert class.

Brunette and with green eyes, Cheryl is 20 years old, stands five feet, seven inches tall and weighs 123 pounds.

As a result of the BJC election, Cheryl is now entered in the national contest sponsored by Glamour magazine for the "10 Best Dressed College Girls in America."

From the girls entered across the entire country a panel of Glamour editors will select the final winners.

If Cheryl is among the top 10, she will be flown to New York in June as Glamour magazine's guest, and participate in Glamour's college fashion show.

IN OUR OPINION . . .

What is news? The dictionary defines news as "information about something which has just happened or will soon happen."

Newspapers are among the best sources for this information, but they don't always get all the news when or before it happens.

School newspapers are no exception, for they usually have to rely on a date book, and upon what the staff knows of happenings on campus.

Therefore, a good news-worthy item is often overlooked, simply because it was not known to enough people.

The Roundup belongs to the students of BJC. The staff tries to see to it, and sincerely hopes that everyone on campus gets a copy each week. To do this, the reader should find things which are of definite interest to him, and about people he knows.

Students fail to realize that they are the ones and the only ones who make their paper. If it weren't for them, there wouldn't be anything to write about, and consequently, there would be no need for the publication. A school newspaper is often taken for granted. It is generally expected that the paper be printed and that it be filled with news.

But what happens where there isn't enough news? Then the paper is full of "filler" material—articles that are sent to the editor for just such a purpose. These stories are sent to many colleges and universities, so naturally, there is nothing in them about the individual school. Without realizing it, students recognize this material and just avoid reading it because there's nothing in it of local interest.

A reader expects, and rightly so, to read about things and people he knows. Here is where the reader himself can become a very welcome free-lance reporter for the Roundup. If you know something concerning the school or friends at school, turn it in to the newspaper. Then you will not only have the pleasure of reading about your friends, you will feel the pride of having contributed the news.

News may be taken to room 116 in the Administration building and placed in the basket marked "Information and Filler."

All club news should be turned in by Monday noon each week to appear in the next week's issue of the Roundup.

Contribute to your paper and you'll get more out of it. C.K.S.

Fire destroys vast amounts of property and costs the people of our country millions of dollars every year. In 1956, the total loss was evaluated at $989,290,000 and the following year there was an increase of 4.4% for the first 11 months not including the month of December.

There are many ways to prevent such loss of property and life but without the help of everyone they are worthless.

Building codes are main factors in fire prevention in the community. These codes are planned to control fires in business, commercial and industrial buildings, homes and apartment houses. Fire prevention codes state ways to lessen the danger of fires in the home and how to handle chemicals and gasoline. Zoning regulations also are helpful. They separate buildings and limit size and height of houses. These three steps are recommended for community protection.

The nation's increasing fire losses are the result of bigger fires causing bigger and greater property loss, not just because of an increase in the number of fires. There were fewer fires in 1956 than in 1957, but still the losses were increased. This shows that fire prevention efforts are bringing some success, but fire extinguishment facilities still have to be improved if we want to put an end to the rise in fire destruction.

Children under four years of age and older people, age 65 and over, constitute the largest group of deaths in the U.S. due to fires. Each year, more than 1,100 pre-school children in the United States lose their lives in fires and as a result of burns by other means. In 1954-55, fires accounted for one-fifth of all accidental deaths at ages 1-4 years. Another comparison to show the seriousness of this menace would be, that among pre-school girls, fires and burns by other means were responsible for nearly as many deaths as motor vehicle accidents. Everyone is responsible for stopping this crippling, not just a few. Let's try in '58.

Vice President W. L. Gottenberg says that the college cooperates very closely with the Boise City Fire Department in a program of fire prevention, and when the department makes suggestions for improving conditions, everything possible is done to carry out these workers.—D.J.

Original Faculty Member Chosen Junior College Teacher of the Week

One of the original members of the Boise Junior college faculty, Mrs. Lucille Forter, is this week's "Teacher of the Week." The college's instructor in voice, Mrs. Forter, also directs the oldest singing group on campus, the girls' ensemble.

A long-standing interest in music

Mrs. Lucille Forter

has taken Mrs. Forter to Europe where she traveled the continent and studied in London and Paris. In the United States she studied at Brenau College Conservatory in Georgia, Chicago Musical college and took courses in New York City. Speaking of her training Mrs. Forter said, "The men I studied with in London, New York, Chicago and Los Angeles are really more important than the schools I attended." Among her instructors were Herbert Witherspoon, Phunkett Greene, Charles Granville, Idelle Patterson, Charles Rowden, Walter Golde and Richard Hageman.

Mrs. Forter's son, Commander Sam A. Forter, graduates from BJC with the class of 1939, and from the Annapolis Naval academy in 1940. He is on duty in the Far East in command of a squadron of ships.

Two boys and one girl, who call her "Munny," are Mrs. Forter's grandchildren. At present they are visiting her for two weeks on their way to Coronado, California, to await the return of the father.

Many of Mrs. Forter's voice students have won scholarships in such institutions as Julliard School of Music in New York, Cincinnati Conservatory of Music in Ohio, the University of Idaho, and Occidental college in Los Angeles. One of her students won a thousand pound scholarship to study in London, England.

Parry O'Brien, Olympic shotput champion, is also one of the top discus men in the world. He has had to face many problems in his years of competition, but it's doubtful if he ever had one like that which confronted another shot-putter over 50 years ago.

Robert Garrett, a shot-putter on Princeton's track team, decided to enter the first modern Olympic games in 1896, at Athens.

The American team at that time consisted of only 10 men, but they walked off with almost all honors at Athens—specialties as well as new events.

Garrett, Princeton shot-putter, was going through a routine workout the day before the games, when he noticed an old discus on the practice field.

Garrett had never seen a discus before, let alone handled one, but he was curious by nature and he picked it up and began to fool around with it.

A young Greek showed him the proper way to throw the steel platter, and Garrett enjoyed it so much he decided to enter the discus competition the next day—just for fun.

The discus throw was the opening event in the 1896 Olympics, and Garrett wanted to get in on history-in-the-making, so he took his place with the best discus men in the world.

The entire American team and many spectators crowded around the circle when Garrett went to work with his new toy, for he was the first American athlete entered in any international track and field competition.

They wondered how he would do in his new event, for at that time the Greeks were the acknowledged masters of the discus throw.

Garrett's form on his first throw was clumsy but the discus went far enough to enable him to qualify for the finals.

His first two throws in the finals were very poor.

It came time for his last throw. Garrett wound up and let go with everything he had. The discus sailed 97 feet, 7 inches—good enough for a win.

Robert Garrett, a discus thrower for one day, had won the Olympic championship.

The Daily Statesman, we have heard, has been swamped with calls from curious Boise residents who were wondering what the huge "B" below Tablerock was.

Ask the I.K.'s. They know.

Intramural basketball, off to a flying start for the second semester, continues Thursday night in the gym as four teams face off. This week Kopta's team plays Carstens bunch which the Raunchy Rangers square off against Enyart's five.

Dale James, outstanding guard for the Boise Broncos, loses the ball but displays good hurdle form as the locals leaped over conference opponent, College of Southern Utah.

Weber Defeats BJC Broncos 80-62, Win Intermountain Conference Title

Boise's hopes and dreams of a birth in the National Junior College Basketball Tournament for the fourth straight year faded away Saturday night as the Weber Wildcats dumped the Broncos 80-62 to win the Intermountain conference championship.

The victory gave Weber a 10-2 record and its first conference crown since 1954.

Weber will play a yet to be determined Arizona Junior college in a regional playoff, the winner going to the national tourney at Hutchinson, Kansas.

The Broncos couldn't seem to penetrate the tight defense of the Wildcats. Driving guard Dale James, normally one of the leading scorers, was held scoreless from the field. He hit on seven free throws for his only points.

Bob Meyer, Dean Baxter and

John DeLitter tried to keep the Broncos in the game by scoring 14, 11, and 10 points, respectively.

After leading 38-30 at half, the Weber team broke the game wide open in the second half, and with only four minutes left in the game, they led 71-53.

Boise has finished in the top 10 teams in the national tourney for the last three years, but now they are eliminated from further competition.

Six BJC Hoop Veterans Now Last Stage of Basketball Career

By Dave Murdock

As Boise traveled to Weber, and Ricks on March 1 and 3, six Broncos were taking their last regular season road trip and playing in their last games for Boise Junior college.

These six include one guard, two centers, and three forwards.

Dale James, high-scoring ace, is the guard who will be leaving. James has helped in leading the Broncos to victory by dumping more than his share of points through the hoop.

Dean Baxter, Paul Loughrey and Clark Johnson are the three forwards leaving this year. Dean Baxter has done wonders in rebounding for the Broncos through the season, and has been an outstanding scorer.

Loughrey has also grabbed off his share of rebounds, and has been steadily dropping in baskets for the Broncos.

Although Johnson has seen limited action this year, he has made a good showing of himself in the rebounding and point making department.

Oliver McFord and John DeLitter are the two big centers of the Broncos who will be leaving.

McFord has been playing steady basketball all season. He dumps in the points just as regularly as the other players, and has scored in the double figures several times this season.

Big John DeLitter plays a rugged brand of ball and scores quite a few points. His height has enabled him to pick rebounds off the boards and stuff the ball through the hoop.

All six have done a good job for Boise this year and were fighting for a chance to play in the national basketball tournament for junior colleges.
