CZECH WORDS WITH DIACRITICAL MARKS

STANISLAV TVRDIK

Editor's Note: Few English words contain letters with diacritical marks (accents, umlauts, tildes, cedillas, circumflexes and the like), most of these being foreign bor rowings. Hence, the following bit of Czech wordplay is impossible to duplicate in English. This translation was provided by Harry Partridge of Manhattan Beach, CA (translator notes in parentheses).

This article lists words in Czech having a diacritical mark over every letter -- that is, the little line, the little hook, or the little circle. There are fifteen different letters that can be used:
á č ď é ě íñó ř šy ú ư y z

Examples of such words are:

| 3-letter | $\begin{aligned} & \text { čís } \\ & \text { rís } \\ & \text { rís } \\ & \text { sir } \\ & \text { cíz } \end{aligned}$ | (goblet) (poetical form) (empire) (rare form) (width) (literary form of čízek, 'siskin') |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| 4-letter | čísi  ričí  širí | $\begin{aligned} & \text { (it is blowing; there is a draft) } \\ & \text { (apparently the adjectival form of rís) } \\ & \text { (he/she/it enlarges/dilates/expatiates) } \end{aligned}$ |
| 5-letter | $\begin{aligned} & \text { Čížúc } \\ & \text { sírís } \end{aligned}$ | (apparently the adjectival form of čížek) (thou enlargest/dilatest/expatiatest) |
| 6-letter | Ž̌̆árís | ( the name of a forest) |
| 7-letter | Rícíćcor | (sievemaker)  The word is derived from fričice (sieve) which, to be sure, does not fully meet the conditions of this article because the short i is the normal letter instead of $\underline{1}$; however, $\overline{i t}$ is said to be very common here and there as a family name |
