Biographical History: Robert Malcomson was a life-long learner. He enthusiastically immersed himself in his research; an enthusiasm that is reflected in the speeches he gave, the books he wrote and the people he taught.

Malcomson began teaching elementary school students in 1969. He continued to inspire young minds in all subject areas from grades one through eight until 2002. He obtained a Bachelor of Arts in Psychology in 1976 and a Masters in Education in 1980 from Brock University in St. Catharines, Ontario.

Beginning in the 1970s, Malcomson began publishing throughout North America and Britain on a broad topic base. In the 1980s he began a historical focus within his writings mainly concentrating on the War of 1812. This focus led to an eventual specialization in the naval campaigns on the Great Lakes during the War of 1812. He published in numerous shipping magazines, scholarly journals as well as editing and authoring books.

Malcomson's interest in the war extended beyond pen and paper, combining a teaching background along with a vast amount of subject knowledge, he could be found giving tours of the battlefield at Queenston Heights. These engaging and thought provoking tours brought his audiences back through time and entertained young and old alike. He was a consultant as well as participant for the 2006 television documentary Bloodlines: The Battle of Queenston Heights. He also presented to audiences at numerous historical society meetings as well as conferences.

Malcomson kept actively involved in many historical endeavours by sitting on the board of The Journal of the War of 1812 and The War of 1812 Magazine, being a member of The Company of Military Historians and Collectors, and actively involved with the Friends of Fort George. He passionately worked on several committees relating to the upcoming bicentennial commemoration of the War of 1812. Although he is not present to witness the celebrations, his invaluable input and contributions will not go unnoticed.

Among Malcomson's numerous publications are:

A Very Brilliant Affair : the Battle of Queenston Heights, 2003
The Battle of Queenston Heights, 1995
Burying General Brock : a history of Brock's monuments, 1996

Scope and Content:

Materials related to military and naval operations of the 1812 era, research of the late Robert Malcomson, Canadian author and historian. Materials include photocopies of materials relating to the War of 1812, photographs and detailed research notes Malcomson made regarding his approach to research (mainly found in Series VIII). Materials were originally arranged in binders relating to an area of research or a certain publication. Articles were removed from the binders and placed in folders using original titles from the binders as series or sub-series titles. Articles within the binders were separated by tabs indicating what the article related to in the publication or topic of interest. In order to avoid repetition, the writing on the tab was used for folder titles, as each folder would be a part of the Series under which it was grouped. The tab names could be authors, events, accounts etc. of the War. Series and sub-series titles were derived from the original titles on the binders. Original intellectual order was retained, grouping similar subjects into Series and Sub-series. Dates recorded were the publication dates of the articles; however, if no publication date was present the date of retrieval was used if from an academic database (ex. JSTOR).

The black and white photos from various repositories are reproductions of paintings, microfilm etc. on photographic paper. The colour photographs from various repositories are actual photographs.

All books donated by Malcomson were integrated into the University's Special Collections book collection. These volumes are noted at the end of the finding aid under separated materials.
