

November 19, 2015

Citizen Jane Filmmakers Series: A Conversation with Sharon Shattuck

Like 3G+ 0Tweet 0• Stur

This week on The Missouri Review Soundbooth Podcast, we inaugurate a series of podcasts about the Citizen Jane Film festival. The Citizen Jane Film Festival celebrates independent film by independent women and takes place in Columbia, Missouri, every fall.

Shattuck is a filmmaker whose first feature, "From This Day Forward," is currently touring film festivals all over the world. "From This Day Forward" is a documentary that tells the story of Shattuck's transgender father, Tricia, and her mother, Marcia, who have been married for over thirty years. In addition, Shattuck is the co-creator of the New York Times Op-Docs series "Animated Life," which animates historical moments of scientific discovery, and is a contributing blogger for the Huffington Post and the Advocate.

Photo by Michael Granacki

You can find out more about Citizen Jane on their website. Go here to learn more about "From This Day Forward." We hope you enjoy the interview!

Did you know that you can now download The Missouri Review to your smartphone or tablet? Search for The Missouri Review in your app store. If you are already a digital subscriber, just sign in to the app with the e-mail address associated with your account.

 AUDIO MP3 Standard Podcast Hide Player | Play in Popup | Download

About leanna

Leanna Petronella is a creative writing doctoral candidate at the University of Missouri.

View all posts by leanna →

Audio HomePodcastInterviewsAudio Contest GuidelinesPast Winners

design by bright box ideas © 2011

HTML Snippets Powered By : XYZScripts.com