Louise Monheimer Aronberg initiated the drive to name a new chapel in honor of Dr. J.G. Probstein.

J.G. Probstein Chapel Dedicated at Hospital

Dr. Jacob G. Probstein, right, receives congratulations on the dedication of the J.G. Probstein Chapel from Rabbi Lawrence Siegel and Mrs. Morton D. (Marjorie) May, vice chairman of the Hospital Board of Directors.

The J.G. Probstein Chapel was dedicated at Jewish Hospital during special ceremonies in late June.

The chapel was named in honor of Dr. Jacob G. Probstein, who has been a dynamic force at Jewish Hospital throughout his more than half-century association with the institution.

Dr. Probstein has been a member of the Hospital medical staff since 1921 and served as surgeon-in-chief from 1947 to 1951. He was instrumental, with Dr. Sam Gray, Morton J. May and Louis Monheimer, in establishing ongoing medical research programs at Jewish Hospital. He continues to be involved in fund-raising activities for various medical and nursing education programs at the Hospital.

Dr. Probstein is well known in the community for his association with the St. Louis Blues Hockey Club and is presently team physician emeritus.

The chapel at Jewish Hospital is a continuation of a synagogue established by the Sharis Sphard Congregation in 1884. When the congregation moved west in 1943, its members sold the original house of worship and the funds were held in trust by the remaining members of the board of trustees. These funds, together with contributions from the community at large, were used to establish a chapel at the Hospital in 1958.

At that time, Rabbi Ferdinand Isserman, rabbi emeritus at Temple Israel, influenced the relocation of Sharis Sphard to the site, noted Dr. Probstein in his address during the dedication, so he arranged for the Sharis Sphard synagogue to continue here.

"When Rabbi Isserman became ill and was a patient at Jewish Hospital, he was very grateful to be able to worship at the chapel during the High Holidays and also at other times," he said.

Dr. Probstein also emphasized that the Hospital's house of worship is open for use by all religious denominations.

"The new chapel continues the living memory of the original congregation with the addition of honoring Dr. Probstein," said Rabbi Lawrence Siegel, D.Min., Jewish Federation community chaplain at Jewish Hospital. He recalled Dr. Probstein's active involvement in raising funds through the aid of Leon Leonson to improve the first chapel in his speech at the dedication ceremony.

Rabbi Siegel and Mrs. Louise Monheimer Aronberg cochaired the drive to erect the new facility, situated adjacent to the Messing lobby on the first floor of the Shoenberg Pavilion. Contributions to make the dream a reality were made by Dr. Probstein's children, Norman Probstein and Mrs. Morton (Thelma) Zalk, and by his family, friends and associates, including the St. Louis Blues Hockey Club.

Others who spoke during the chapel dedication included Rabbi Benson Skoff, immediate past president of the St. Louis Rabbinical Association; Rabbi Aaron Borrow, representing the St. Louis Rabbinical Council; Dr. Arthur Gale, president-elect of the Jewish Hospital Medical Staff Association; Dr. Michael Karl, vice president of the Jewish Federation of St. Louis and senior attending physician at Jewish Hospital; Harry Epstein, vice president of the Jewish Federation, and David A. Gee, Jewish Hospital president.

Following the ceremony, guests participated in a reception in the Brown Group, Inc. Room.

Nephrology Division: The Fight Against Renal Disease

Kidney disease is the fourth major cause of death in the United States. More people die of kidney failure than by automobile accidents. Because of these sobering statistics, it is hardly surprising that the Nephrology Division staff is hard at work to combat the condition.

"The heart of any program relates to the people involved in it," says Dr. Herbert Lubowitz, in speaking about the Nephrology Division at Jewish Hospital.

Even a brief tour of the division's Hemodialysis Unit and research laboratories convinces one that his attitude is shared equally by all members of the Nephrology Division. All are involved in a common pursuit — the prevention of renal insufficiency from all causes and the amelioration of its complications.

"We are concerned with all aspects of patient care," noted Dr. Lubowitz, who is director of the division. "This involves the four members of the staff — myself, Drs. David Malone, Debesh Mazumdar and Elsa Bello-Reuss — and the renal fellows — Drs. Eric S. Marks, Olu Oredugba and Dennis L. Ross.

"We all interact closely with the house staff and attending physicians for whom we do consultations throughout the Hospital. We have been fortunate to assemble a staff that is dedicated and productive," he said, "and we have received excellent support from the Administration and Board of Directors in developing this program."

Since its inception five years ago, the Nephrology Division has developed a comprehensive program. "We have very active clinical, consultation and outpatient services, which include the management of acute and chronic renal failure and electrolyte problems," said Dr. Lubowitz.

In addition, staff members are involved in the instruction of house officers, residents from other hospitals who take electives in nephrology and medical students. Regular conferences and daily teaching rounds are held.

Dr. Elsa Bello-Reuss' research involves examining single nephron function through the use of a special micropuncture technique.

Active Research Program

The third leg of the renal program is research. "We are conducting research in a number of different areas," noted Dr. Lubowitz. "These include clinical research related to calcium metabolism and the study of heart disease in patients with renal insufficiency.

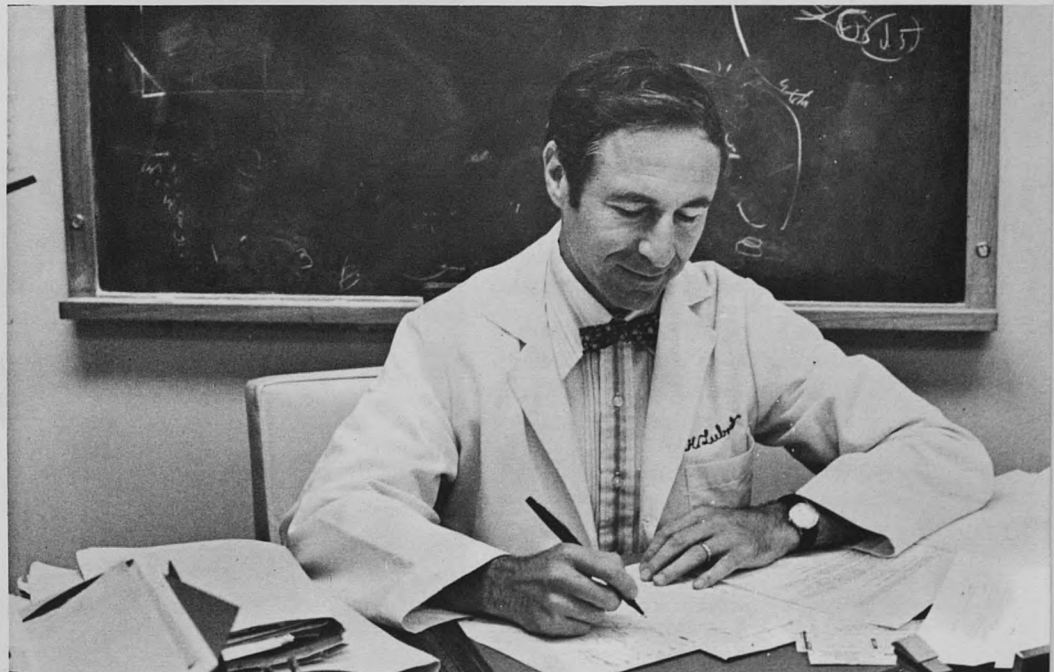

"In terms of laboratory research, we are interested in areas related to alterations of normal physiology in disease states. This involves examining alterations in individual nephron function, control of sodium excretion and changes in acid-base chemistry in renal disease."

The treatment for end-stage kidney disease, hemodialysis — or the removal of urine from the blood by means of a special machine that acts as an artificial kidney, came into common usage in the 1960's. Although thousands of lives have been prolonged thereby, complications associated with renal insufficiency continue to cause special problems for patients suffering from kidney disease.

In order to determine some of the effects that dialysis has on the body, Dr. Lubowitz is studying the subhemolytic shear stress on erythrocytes, or red blood cells, in patients undergoing hemodialysis treatments.

"Subhemolytic shear stress is the mechanical stress that red blood cells are subjected to when the blood is dialyzed," explained Foster Harris, research assistant for Dr. Lubowitz who runs the red blood cell laboratory. He noted that this study is being conducted in conjunction with Dr. Sal Sutera and the Aerospace and Mechanical Engineering Department at Washington University.

"We are conducting research in a number of different areas... research related to calcium metabolism and the study of heart disease in patients with renal insufficiency."

Dr. Herbert Lubowitz, director of the Division of Nephrology.

Dr. Lubowitz is also doing red blood cell transport studies in human blood cells from normal and uremic subjects. "This is being accomplished by the measurement of net changes in the cells, lactate levels and fluxes of the isotopes sodium-24 and potassium-42," Harris said.

Concomitantly, various drugs and diuretics are being tested on the cells to determine their effectiveness in maintaining salt balance, a major complication for renal patients that can result in edema, excessive accumulation of fluid in the tissues, and heart failure if untreated.

Sodium Balance Studies

Dr. Mazumdar is actively involved in examining the mechanism of control of salt excretion in uremia. He has studied the ability of rats with decrease in renal function to regulate salt excretion in response to both low and high salt intake. These studies will be extended to include animals which have either heart failure or nephrosis. The information obtained from these experiments may be applied in the management of individuals with edema formation.

"We are also involved in the development and evaluation of a compound which binds salt in the bowel. One of the major limitations of patients with kidney failure is their inability to excrete salt," noted Dr. Mazumdar. "Thus, they are destined to continue on a salt-restricted diet even when they are undergoing regular dialysis treatments. The dietary restriction is limiting and is one of the major reasons for patient noncompliance.

"If we could bind a sufficient amount of dietary salt with these 'exchange resins,' then our patients could enjoy a more liberal diet," he continued. "Although our studies are in the very early phase, our results suggest that this is feasible."

Dr. Mazumdar, who directs the division's transplantation service, is also attempting to develop a model of experimental nephritis that will be used to test a variety of different drug therapies to modify the lesion caused by the disease.

Work On Renal Osteodystrophy

Another condition associated with renal failure, osteodystrophy (bone dissolution due to calcium loss), is being studied by Dr. Malone, who is working in conjunction with the Bone Center.

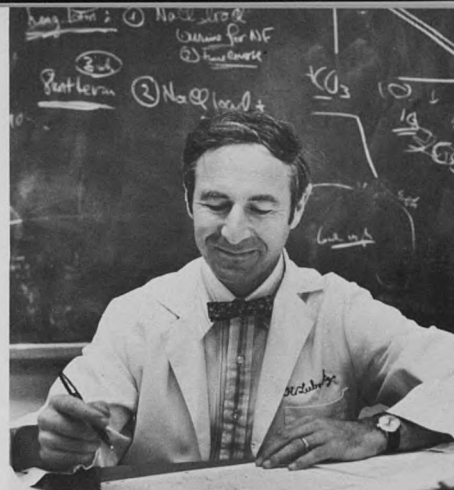

"It's been recognized for a considerable number of years that gut absorption of calcium is diminished in end-stage renal disease," noted Dr. Malone in explaining the investigation. "The level at which the decrease is first apparent is not entirely clear, although there is some evidence to suggest that it occurs at a very early stage in the development of chronic kidney failure.

"We are looking at calcium absorption from the small bowel in patients who have varying degrees of renal insufficiency, from 30 to 70 per cent."

The researchers are also examining attendant changes in circulation and ionized calcium, vitamin D and parathyroid levels, all of which have an effect on calcium deficiency in patients with early renal impairment.

"The object of this research protocol is to try and increase our knowledge about the early phases in calcium metabolism in renal disease. And this may help us to adopt more rational approaches to medical management of patients," said Dr. Malone, who is a codirector of the Hemodialysis Unit.

He is also conducting an investigation to discover why some patients suffering from chronic renal failure develop severe acidosis and why some patients are more prone to this condition than others. "We are examining patients with advanced renal insufficiency to see if there are any specific changes in their bone metabolism which result in the development of their severe degree of acidosis."

Researchers are involved in studies of the effect of exercise on renal osteodystrophy. "We are doing this by producing chronic renal insufficiency in rats by removal of one kidney and reduction of the function of the other by about 25 per cent. Half of the animals are exercised on treadmills while the other half are allowed to rest in their cages for a period of several weeks," he said. "The rats are then examined to see if there has been any effect from the exercise on the progress of their disease."

They are also studying bone cells in an attempt to determine some of the things that affect calcium and sodium uptake. The possibility that calcium uptake is dependent on sodium uptake will also be investigated by studying the flux of these substances in uremic serum, he noted.

Single Nephron Function

Although numerous studies are under way to find the causes of some of the complications arising from chronic renal failure, the etiology of nephritis itself is not understood. It is thought to originate from an antigen, in most cases from a virus, which causes the production of antibodies. These antigens and antibodies react with each other and are deposited in the kidneys, causing the development of renal disease. Studies are in progress utilizing a model of experimental nephritis, developed in this division, to evaluate the effects of drug therapy on the course of nephritis in this model.

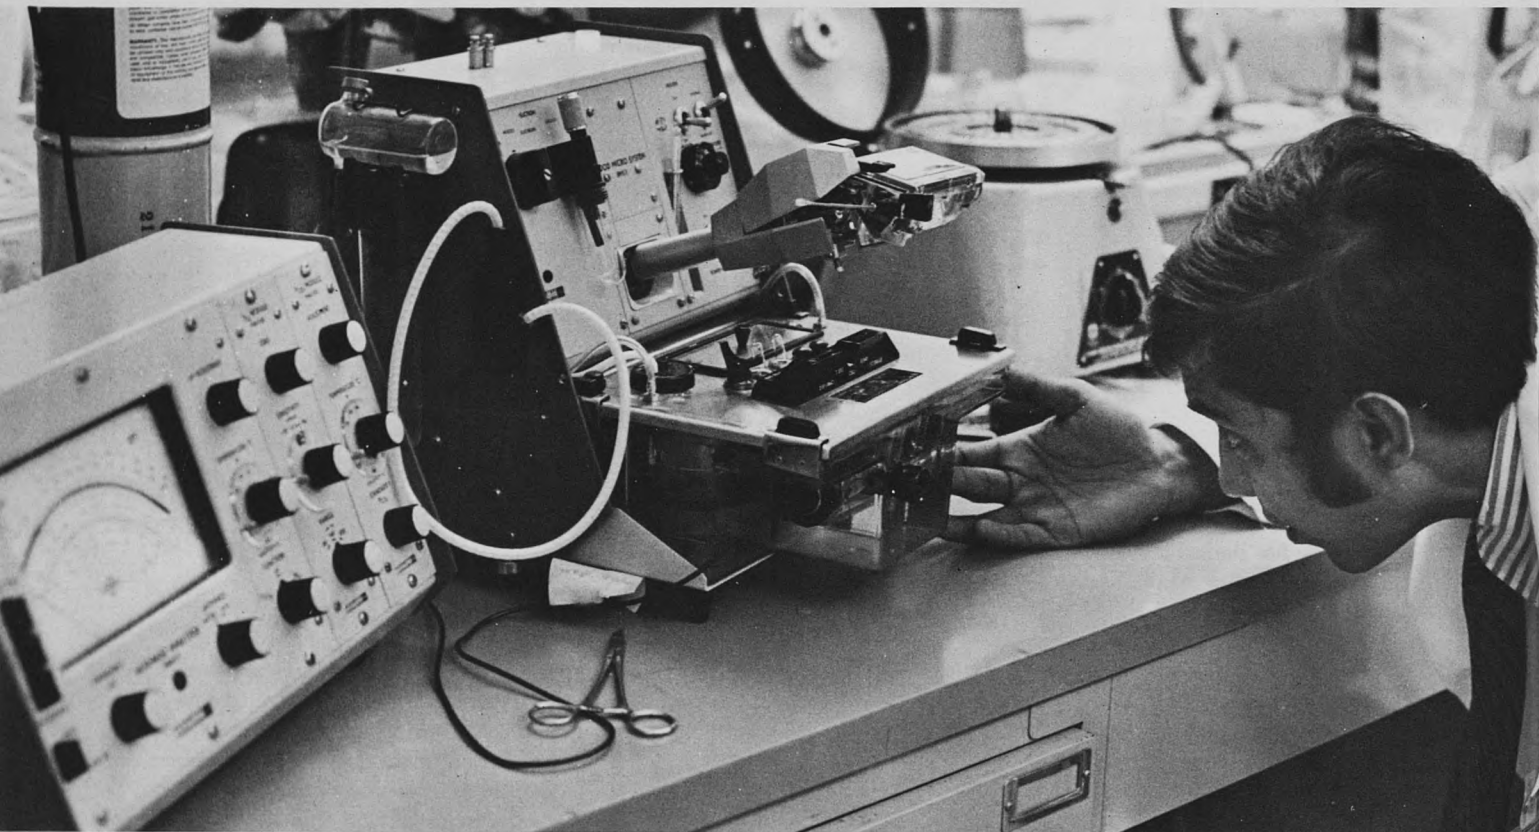

Additionally, the Division of Nephrology is currently involved in an assessment of the function of whole kidney and individual nephron in glomerulonephritis.

Dr. Bello-Reuss is conducting experiments in renal physiology, using the micropuncture technique to study the function of single units of the kidney.

"The procedure consists of collecting glomerular or tubular fluid through micropipettes from a single renal tubule in vivo in the rat," she explained. "The collected fluid is then chemically analyzed, and this way, the anatomical site and its function can be related."

At the present time, a different approach, consisting of perfusing single tubules with artificial solutions and measuring the electrical potential and resistance is being used to increase our understanding of the mechanism of water and salt transport, she noted. In the very near future, an additional technique will be employed. This consists of dissecting a segment of the renal tubule and perfusing it in a specially designed chamber.

"This technique allows one to change selectively the composition of the perfusate, or the fluid bathing the tubule. The effects of hormones, drugs and other substances on tubular function can be ascertained directly," said Dr. Bello-Reuss.

"The isolated tubule technique is a new procedure for the Hospital. It will allow the design of numerous experiments in the field of renal physiology and pathophysiology."

The number of persons suffering from chronic renal disease continues to increase. In the St. Louis area alone, there are 400 persons awaiting kidney transplantation. Nationally, it is estimated that 25,000 persons require dialysis treatment.

The goal of the Nephrology Division at Jewish Hospital is that the treatment procedures being implemented and the research being conducted here will help to improve the quality of life for patients afflicted with this serious condition.

Hemodialysis Unit: On The Front Line Against Renal Disease

Patients must receive hemodialysis treatments two to three times per week.

A recent survey of dialysis units in the St. Louis area, conducted by the Greater St. Louis Health Systems Agency, revealed that Jewish Hospital's Hemodialysis Unit "has the highest percentage of home patients (46 per cent)" not only in St. Louis but also throughout the state.

The Health Systems Agency also noted that Jewish Hospital had the highest utilization ratio for hemodialysis machine usage of any of the units surveyed. The ratio (13.5) is three times the federal standard.

The entire staff of the unit is very proud of its accomplishments. "We feel that our impressive review by the agency was due to our extensive home-care training program," noted Kathy Gregory, head nurse.

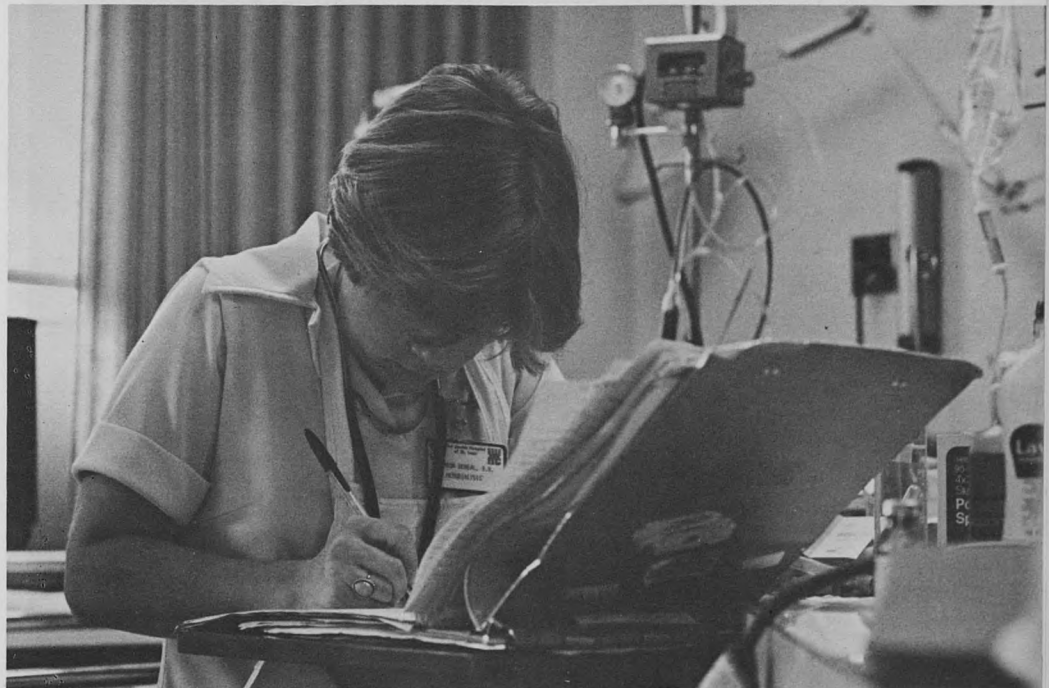

The Hemodialysis Unit is under the medical direction of Drs. Herbert Lubowitz and David Malone and is one of the patient care arms of the Nephrology Division.

First opened in August, 1972 with three kidney machines and a staff of four nurses, the unit was capable of caring for three patients during two shifts each day.

Five years later, plus one major expansion, the Hemodialysis Unit is equipped with seven machines and a staff of 11 nurses and one technician to care for 50 patients. Twenty-five are treated in the Hospital and half of this number are being trained for home dialysis. The remaining 25 patients dialyze at home with the assistance of a spouse or parent, under continued nurse/physician supervision from the Hospital.

Home Training Program

To maintain the home-care training program, a strong emphasis has been placed on primary nursing care. A particular nurse is responsible for the care and training of an individual patient. She cares for the patient during dialysis at the center three times a week and she teaches him how to operate the dialysis machine.

Hemodialysis Unit:

The nurse works with the patient and his partner throughout the home-dialysis training period, which usually lasts six to 12 weeks. She provides them with a checklist of procedures and accompanies the patient on his first dialysis treatment at home. In addition, the nurse remains available for telephone consultation throughout the patient's dialysis career. She makes contact with all of the patients under her care on a monthly basis and reports on each patient's progress at bimonthly staff meetings.

"I feel there is more job commitment in the Hemodialysis Unit because we stress personal care. Our unit is more personal than others," said Ms. Gregory. "We help our patients both mentally and physically because our relationships with them are both casual and professional."

Dr. Malone said he believes that this continued close personal contact allows a special relationship to develop between the patient and the nurse. "This relationship is an important source of information to the medical staff and also provides support to the patient and his family," he said.

According to Ms. Gregory, the technique of the staff is not to give dialysis to the patient but to do it with him. The goal is to get all of the patients involved in their own care as much as possible. The average patient in the Hemodialysis Unit can set up the machine, get the necessary supplies and monitor his own dialysis. The nurse functions as an assistant and supervisor.

During the training period, the dialysis nurse teaches the patient about his disease and about the kidney machine. "The more knowledge they have about their disease and treatment, according to statistics, the longer they will live and the more control they will have over their lives," Ms. Gregory noted.

Change In Lifestyle

A major adjustment in lifestyle is inevitable for the dialysis patient. Every effort is made to cushion the impact of this change for his social and psychological welfare.

Many dialysis patients at home and at the center are worried by the financial stresses which dialysis will place on them. Since several state and federal agencies provide funding for dialysis patient costs, it can be a very confusing business. Financial counseling is provided for patients through Betty Grass in the Business office.

The active involvement of the renal social worker, Debbie Lane, and the renal dietitian, Peggy Mitchell, is apparent in every aspect of patient management and planning. Both Ms. Lane and Ms. Mitchell take part in talk sessions with the patients and their families so that they can answer any questions that arise.

"I interview patients after they have been diagnosed to see how they are getting along with hospitalization in terms of finances and family," said Ms. Lane, explaining the social work involvement with dialysis patients.

"At first, some patients are too ill to work, and as a consequence, may lose their job. When able to work again, some have to be retrained for employment that is flexible enough for their treatment schedule," continued Ms. Lane. "They are referred to the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation for training. There are also numerous agencies that can handle whatever problems they may have."

Special measures must also be taken by the dietitian to ensure that the patients understand their complicated diets. Ms. Mitchell feels that the diet of a dialysis patient is one of the most restricted in the Hospital.

"We have nutrition classes for patients and their families. We show films in the evening that explain how food affects persons with renal disease and what happens if they get too much potassium or sodium in terms of weight gain and the effect on the heart," she said.

A clinical psychologist will be added to the staff in the future to give further depth to the care that the unit can provide for its patients.

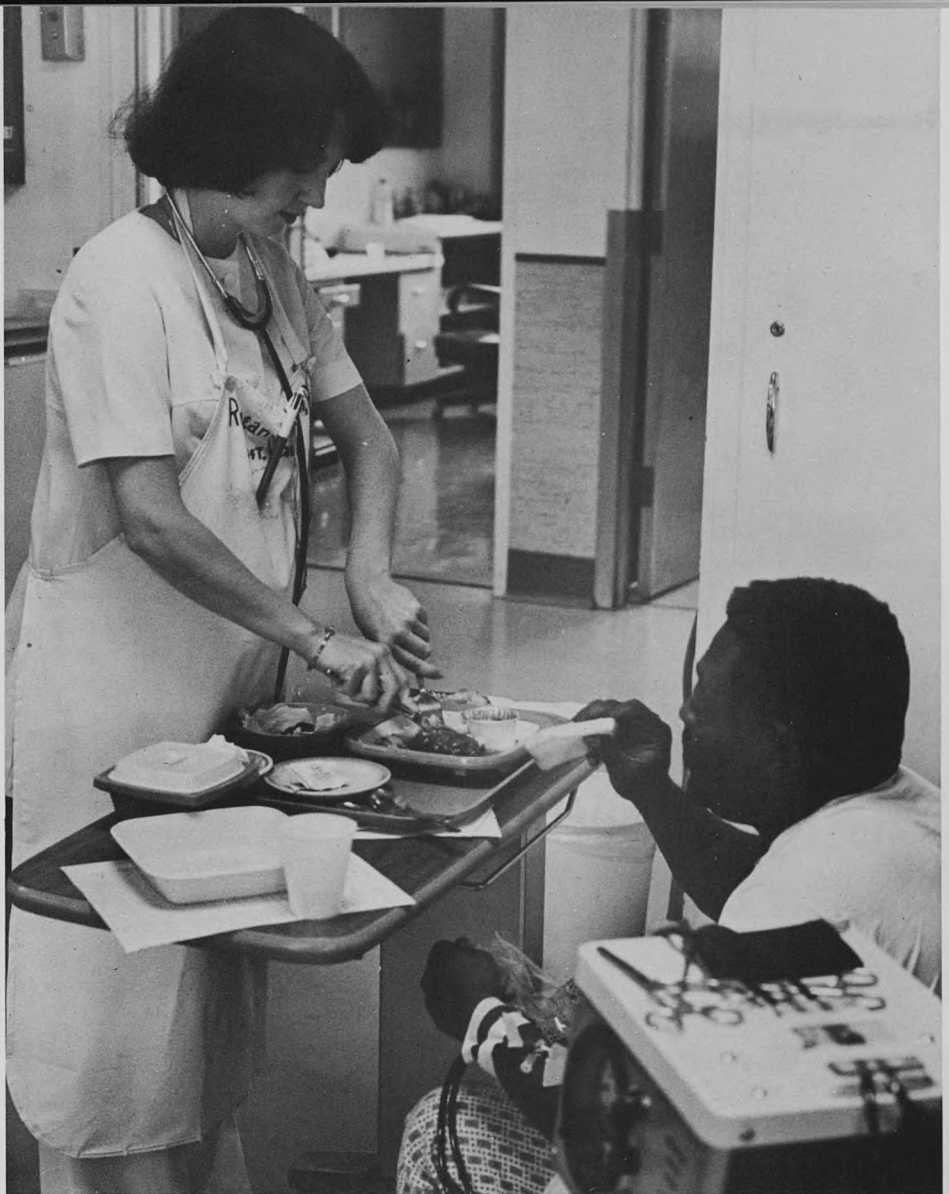

Another vital member of the dialysis team is technician Rocky Hegwood, who provides a 24-hour maintenance service for the machines. He is also responsible for accessing the homes of patients and takes part in deciding which type of machine is most suitable for each individual patient to rent for home care. When patients are transferred home, he orders their machines and supplies.

"No machine is ideally suited to every location," Dr. Malone said. Several types are used by the Hemodialysis Unit in patient care and training. Each of the machines is evaluated by the technician, nursing and medical staff of the unit before it is used by the patient."

Drs. Lubowitz and Malone, the unit's nurses and technician are constantly looking for new products and equipment. They are currently evaluating four different types of dialyzers (artificial kidneys). According to Dr. Malone, using more efficient dialysis techniques may enable the unit to add an additional four-hour shift, to increase patient load capacity by 40 per cent in the coming year.

Shared Responsibilities

The Hemodialysis Unit staff works together in a democratic system. "When it was time to expand the unit, we planned and designed it together," commented Ms. Gregory. "We hold bimonthly meetings to plan ongoing care and discuss problems we are having with the patients or the unit. We also consider input from patients about improvements to the area."

Technician Rocky Hegwood prepares and repairs dialysis machine equipment.

A recent effort to bring the staff and patients into a closer working relationship is the unit's newsletter, Hemo Happenings. The paper is put together with contributions from the nurses, dietitian and social worker. Every two months, it contains games, trivia questions, medical articles of interest to dialysis patients, and special features, including introductions to new patients and a "patient of the month" contest.

Continued education is an important aspect in this rapidly expanding field. A series of lectures are given each year on advances in renal pathophysiology, acid-based metabolism and dialysis techniques.

The nursing staff is given opportunities to attend local and national meetings. Ms. Gregory and Roseanne Mullen, assistant head nurse, have attended meetings held by the American Association of Nephrology Nurses and Technicians (AANNT). In the past few months, R.N.'s Maureen O'Neill, Elaine Daugherty and Mary Jane Timmerman and LPN Peggy Parrish all attended dialysis seminars or conventions. All of the nursing staff are preparing for the first hemodialysis certification test to be offered in September.

The nurses in the Hemodialysis Unit are excited to be a part of the groundwork of a relatively new field, said Ms. Gregory. "We feel we are participating in the expansion and progress of hemodialysis nursing."

Jewish Hospital Auxiliary Activities Abound

A million-dollar check is a big thing.

Auxiliary Pays Off $1 Million Pledge

The Jewish Hospital Auxiliary presented the final payment of a $1 million pledge to the Jewish Hospital Building Fund during its annual spring meeting and luncheon in May at Meadowbrook Country Club.

The group thus became the only hospital auxiliary in Missouri ever to fulfill a $1 million fund-raising pledge.

A number of enormously successful charitable projects and programs have led to this latest Auxiliary accomplishment. Proceeds from the group's Gift Gallery, Clover Garden, Clover Buffet and Clover Bake shops were presented to the Hospital annually for five years to fulfill the pledge.

Actually, the Auxiliary undertook the commitment in 1969, but only nominal contributions were made to the Hospital during two of the seven ensuing years because the Auxiliary paid for relocation of its gift and flower shops, constructed in the new Sydney M. Shoenberg Pavilion during Jewish Hospital's expansion program in 1974. The group also financed redecoration of its Clover Buffet and Beauty Salon and opened the Clover Bake Shop in the Kingshighway building during this period.

Needless to say, the Auxiliary is justly proud of its achievement. "Credit should be given to all of our volunteers who work in our shops," said Mrs. Gunter Schmidt, retiring president, "because we would not have been able to reach our goal if they did not contribute their many free hours of service."

The $1 million pledge was paid off during the presidencies of Mrs. Norman W. (Mary) Drey, Mrs. Nancy Bry, Mrs. Warner (Helene) Isaacs and Mrs. Schmidt.

"The presidents give guidance and inspiration, of course, but it is the men and women who are here every day volunteering who are responsible for our success," Mrs. Schmidt is quick to add.

An overflow crowd attended the Auxiliary's annual spring meeting at Meadowbrook Country Club.

But why $1 million?

It all began more than seven years ago at a regular meeting of the Jewish Hospital Auxiliary Board, held on April 15, 1969. "The board was reviewing the Auxiliary's financial situation and some of its major contributions to the Hospital," Mrs. Schmidt noted. "Then, someone jokingly said, 'Why not give a million dollars?' Marge (Mrs. Harry) Loeb, a past president of the organization, said, 'Let's do it!' and made the motion, which passed. After that, it was decided that a million volunteer hours should also be pledged, and this year the Auxiliary has gone over the 600,000-hour mark toward that goal.

"The idea of giving $1 million was suggested almost in jest," she continued, "but we could do it, so we decided to do it."

The fulfillment of this major commitment comes at a very appropriate time, the Auxiliary's 25th anniversary. The present Auxiliary was established in 1952, although a prior Jewish Hospital Auxiliary had existed many years ago. Today, the organization boasts 3,000 members and 250 active volunteers. "And we are always seeking interested individuals," Mrs. Schmidt added. "However, we go more for quality in our volunteers than for quantity."

She also attributes the Auxiliary's vitality in part to its leadership. "Our board is a blend; there is a balance of young and dynamic members and older and more experienced women," she said. "The young bring enthusiasm and new ideas, while our veteran board members seem to have a 'Midas touch' when it comes to fund-raising. Many of our board are experts in certain fields."

Successful Auxiliary Projects

In the past, that fortunate combination of youth and experience has resulted in many gifts of funds and equipment to Jewish Hospital. The Auxiliary has equipped the Medical Intensive Care Unit, the Emergency Room observation unit and the Blood Bank; refurnished and renovated the School of Nursing residence; supplied equipment for the Audiology Laboratory and for the Nursery, Pediatrics and Obstetrics and Gynecology; provided funding for the Cardiac Surgery Program, including purchase of a heart-lung machine used during open-heart procedures.

Additional Auxiliary gifts have included a cobalt unit for the Department of Radiology, a hypothermia apparatus for the Operating Room, air-conditioning of patient floors, cardiac monitors, a pocket radio and paging transmitting system and books for the Medical Library. Scholarships for student and graduate nurses and an Emergency Nursing Fund have also been established by the group.

While raising money toward its $1 million commitment to the Building Fund, the Auxiliary also provided funds for other causes. The Auxiliary's Jewish Hospital Tribute Fund collects approximately $100,000 annually. Memorial and honorial contributions to this fund are used for research and to furnish appliances and services for the needy.

Profits from the group's First Foto newborn picture program are donated to the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology for obstetrical care and research. Its Beauty Salon is operated as a patient service for both men and women. Auxiliary volunteers contribute more than 60,000 hours of service each year in 33 areas of the Hospital.

"We have a very special relationship with the Hospital. I think much of our success is due to the absolutely unbelievable cooperation between the Hospital and the Auxiliary," Mrs. Schmidt concluded. "We act as a service arm of Jewish Hospital. All of our energy is aimed in one direction — to help make better health care possible and to help make our patients as comfortable as possible. We feel it takes a special kind of person to be a Jewish Hospital Auxiliary member."

Retiring Auxiliary president Mrs. Gunter (Corinne) Schmidt offers congratulations to new president Mrs. Irving (Helene) Goldstein.

New Officers Installed At Spring Meeting

Helene K. Goldstein (Mrs. Irving) was installed as president of the Auxiliary of The Jewish Hospital of St. Louis at the annual spring meeting.

Mrs. Goldstein has been active in the Auxiliary for 11 years. She has served as vice president for fund-raising services for the past two years and previously was chairman of the Clover Garden. She has also served as vice chairman of the 1973 Clover Ball, as a member of the nominating committee and as a Nursery volunteer.

Other officers installed at the meeting include:

Phyllis Langsdorf (Mrs. Kenneth), vice president, fund-raising services; Marlene Wolff (Mrs. Robert), financial secretary; Joan Goldstein (Mrs. Mark), assistant financial secretary; Claire Kaufman (Mrs. Lee I., Jr.), corresponding secretary; Harriet Rosenbloom (Mrs. Eugene), assistant corresponding secretary; Mrs. Nancy Bry and Maxine Levy (Mrs. Harold), directors.

Officers normally serve for two years. Filling one-year unexpired terms are Ellen Weiss (Mrs. Sanford), treasurer, and Rita Polinsky (Mrs. Nathan), assistant treasurer.

Also serving as Auxiliary officers for 1977-78 and elected last year are Sandy Levy (Mrs. Lawton, Jr.), vice president, membership services; Audrey Shanfeld (Mrs. Clifford), vice president, volunteer services; Charline Baizer (Mrs. Richard), recording secretary; Lillian Spetner (Mrs. Norman), assistant recording secretary; June Bierman (Mrs. Arthur) and Lillian Dickler (Mrs. Donald), directors.

Retiring president Corinne Schmidt (Mrs. Gunter) was presented with a President's Pin in recognition of her term of office at the annual luncheon.

Abby Combines Gift of Wit With Pearls of Wisdom

Guests at the Auxiliary's annual spring meeting were entertained by Mrs. Morton (Pauline Friedman) Phillips.

Can't place the name?

Mrs. Phillips is known to 55 to 60 million daily readers as Abigail Van Buren, or Dear Abby. Her speech was so entertaining that some of her most precious "gems" are printed below.

Dear Abby began writing advice for the "lovelorn" for the San Francisco Chronicle in January, 1956, and adopted her pen name at that time. She chose Abigail from the Old Testament after a prophetess in the Book of Samuel and Van Buren after the eighth U.S. president because of its native American, aristocratic sound.

Abby receives between 12,000 and 15,000 letters a week "that I can print. They are all real. I give you my word," she said. "I couldn't begin to make up anything as good as what comes in my mail."

The column was an instant success. Three months after she began writing it, she was quoted in Time and Punch magazines. The two magazines both used the same letter, which Abby feels has become a classic.

Dear Abby,

I am a girl who has just celebrated her 21st birthday. On that occasion, my boyfriend took me out to dinner. Now, he doesn't drink much and neither do I, but before dinner we each had three martinis. During dinner, just to celebrate, we split a bottle of champagne. After dinner, we each had four brandies. Did I do wrong?

Abby replied: Probably.

Another frequently quoted letter that she shared with the Auxiliary follows:

Dear Abby,

I've been going with a gentleman for six years. We see each other every night. He says he loves me and I know I love him, but he never mentions marriage. Do you think he goes out with me just for what he can get?

Signed Gertie

Dear Gertie,

I don't know. What's he getting?

Abby said that many of her letters are hard to answer and gave this one as an example:

Dear Abby,

I suspected that my husband was cheating on me, and when I confronted him with the evidence, he denied everything and said it would never happen again.

The files of Abigail Van Buren hold a treasury of letters containing Freudian slips:

Dear Abby,

A friend of mine had a short affair with a fellow when she was about 15. She thought it was true love, but it was only infatuation. She is going to be married soon and she wants to know if she should tell her future husband about this before she marries him?

And would it be okay if I wore white?

Dear Abby,

I'm a 22-year-old liberated woman. I've been on the pill for three years and they are not cheap. I think my boyfriend should be paying for these pills, but I don't know him well enough to discuss money.

The largest amount of mail that Abby receives, unsurprisingly, fits into the "love and marriage" category. The second popular category is "the mother-in-law." These are two of her favorites:

Dear Abby,

I've been married for 12 years. I've always had the feeling that my husband thought more of his mother than he did of me. So I decided to ask him. I put it this way, "Honey, if your mother and I were in a canoe and the canoe tipped over and we were both drowning and you could save just one of us, which would you save?"

Abby, he had the nerve to say, "Well, of course, I'd save my mother because I think I owe her more." I'm so hurt. What should

I do?

Signed: Arlene

Dear Arlene,

Learn to swim.

Dear Abby,

My son was married last January. Five months later, his wife had a ten-pound baby girl. They said she was premature. Tell me, can a ten-pound baby be this early?

Abby replied: The baby was on time; the wedding was late.

Abby admitted that she has been censored a few times. One letter she knows was censored by several papers follows:

Dear Abby,

We are employed in a large insurance office. There is a very cute, sexy secretary named Cissey here, who has something going with a middle-aged bookkeeper named Marvin. About three times a week, Cissey and Marvin go back in the file room and lock the door for an hour. Sometimes, the boss comes looking for Cissey, and so far we have covered for her, but we are getting tired of it. What should we tell the boss the next time he comes looking for Cissey?

Signed: The Office Gang

Dear Gang,

Tell the boss to look for Cissey in the file room under Marvin.

"I don't pretend to know all of the answers, but I do have very good friends in the fields of law, medicine and the clergy of all faiths. I consult them constantly," Abby said.

Abby and her staff answer hundreds of letters every day. They do a large referral service and maintain files on every community where the column is run. The files contain information and locations on homes for unwed mothers, Planned Parenthood centers, where to get legal aid, detoxication centers for alcoholics and help for drug addicts. "The columns that appear in the paper are only the tip of a large iceberg," she said.

"Helping people find help in their own community is a service I'm privileged to do," Abby concluded. "I'm just a 58-year-old woman with a fascinating hobby, doing what comes naturally."

'Diamonds In Clover' To Celebrate Hospital Diamond Jubilee

Patrons and friends of The Jewish Hospital of St. Louis should reserve the evening of Saturday, Nov. 19, on their calendar if they wish to be a part of the biggest Auxiliary event of the year, "Diamonds in the Clover."

The Auxiliary sponsors a charitable ball every five years. "Diamonds in the Clover" will commemorate the Diamond Jubilee of Jewish Hospital. The event will be held at the Chase Park-Plaza Hotel and guests will dance to the music of Peter Duchin and his orchestra.

Proceeds from the event will be used to pay for the Hospital's new computerized axial tomographic (CAT) scanner.

The whole body scanner, made by EMI, Ltd. of England, produces computerized, diagnostic cross-sectional radiographic images of all parts of the body. Computerized axial tomography examines the brain or body in cross-sections and displays a video picture based on computer interpretation of varying densities of tissues, fluid and bone. By distinguishing extremely subtle differences in such densities, it improves the detection and localization of cancer, infection and edema by a noninvasive and painless method.

Invitations to "Diamonds in the Clover" will be mailed in late September. Patrons will be asked to donate $500 per couple and guests will be asked to contribute $150 per couple.

Cochairmen for the charitable ball are Mrs. Stanley (Shirley) Cohen and Mrs. David R. (Judy) Smith. Vice chairmen are Mrs. Allen (Carolyn) Lasky, Mrs. Donn (Marilyn) Lipton and Mrs. Al (D.J.) Serkes.

Jewish Hospital Auxiliary:

Computerized tomographic scanning requires the integration of sophisticated technologies including radiology, circuitry for analog and digital computers, advanced programming, reliable mechanical systems and display systems that accurately visualize body organs.

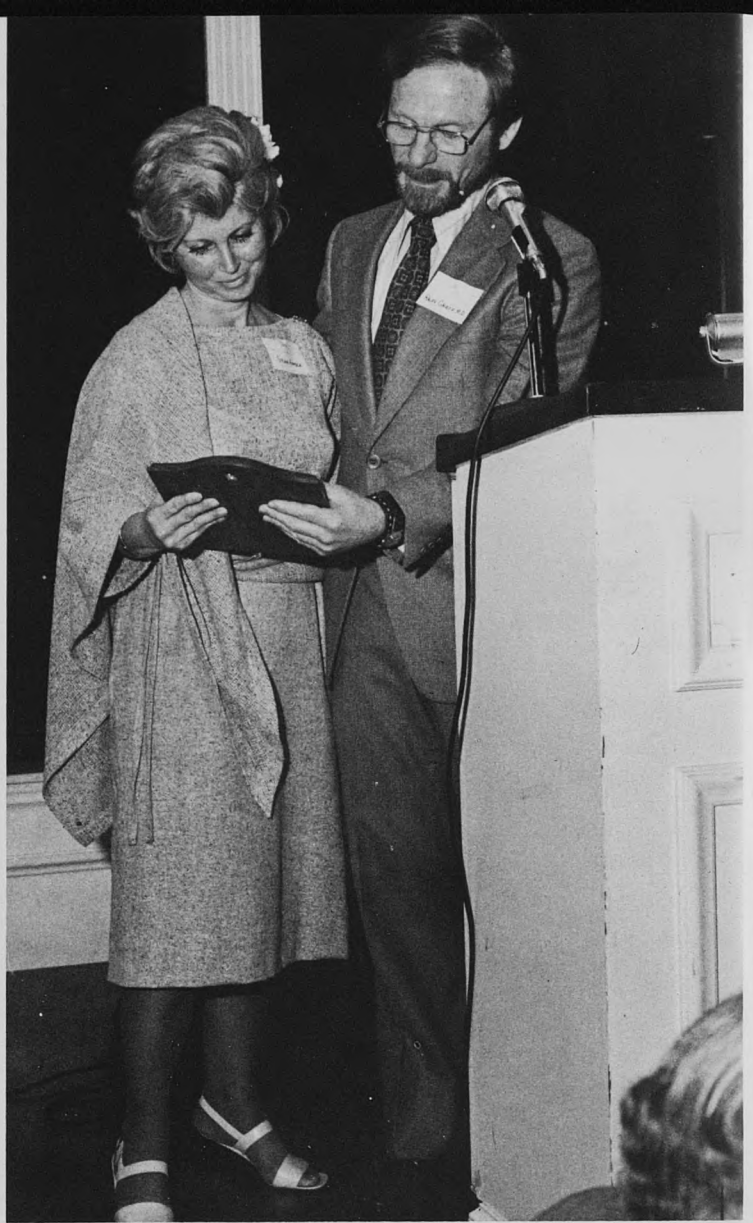

Vincent Lovett, chief technologist in Radiology, examines a monitor on the CAT scanner.

The CAT scanner records permanent pictures of brain and body scans.

Meyerhardt Installed As Associates President

Richard Meyerhardt was installed as president of the Associates in Medicine of The Jewish Hospital of St. Louis at the group's Ninth Annual Meeting held in late April at the Clayton Inn Center.

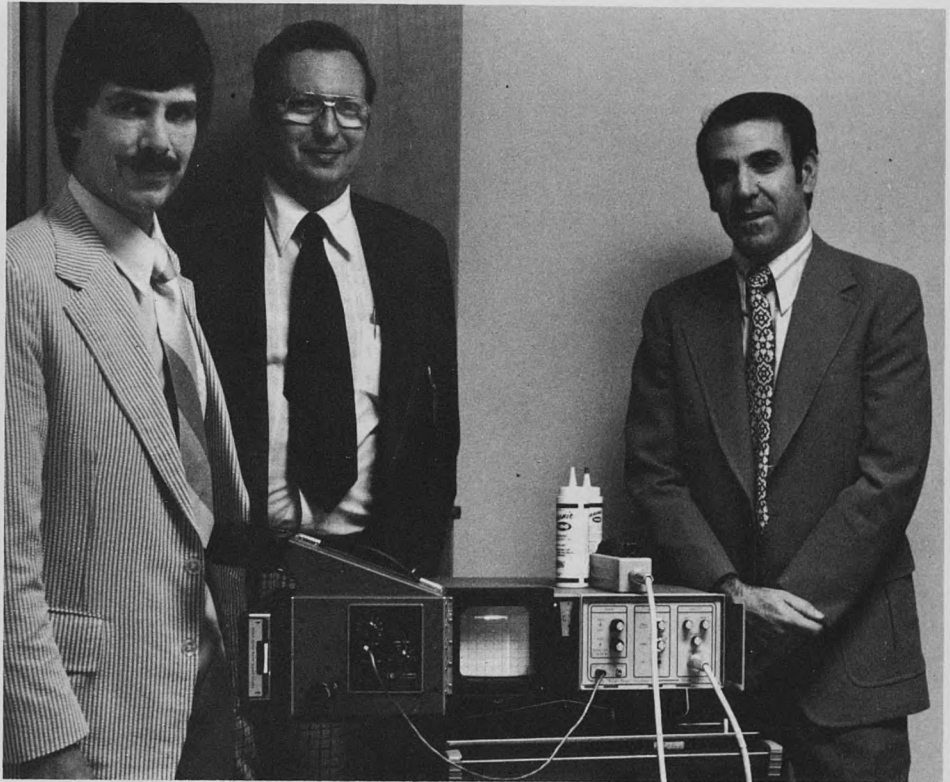

Meyerhardt, president of Mid-America Marketing, Inc., has been a member of the Associates since 1969 and a member of the board for five years. He is an immediate past vice president of the Associates, previously served as board secretary and has been active on the project and membership committees.

Other officers installed for the 1977-78 year are Arnold Schrier and Lester Seasongood, vice presidents; Mrs. Arthur (June) Bierman, secretary, and Dr. Ira J. Kodner, treasurer.

In addition, seven Associates members were elected to the board of directors during the evening. They include Richard Buell, Harvey A. Friedman, Jerry Kaiser, Mrs. Alan (Silvia) Mayer, Mrs. Eugene (Harriet) Rosenbloom, Aaron Schucart and Richard Stein. All directors serve for three years.

In a special ceremony during the evening, outgoing president Dr. Ralph J. Graff presented an exclusive President's Award to Mrs. Jerry (Sylvia) Hirsch "as a personal tribute and in recognition of her outstanding contributions to the achievements of the 1976-77 administration." Mrs. Hirsch served as board secretary and as cochairman of the program committee during the past year.

After the installation of officers, Mrs. Joseph (Anita) Sokolik presented Dr. Graff with a plaque commemorating his year at the head of the Associates. It read: "The Board of Directors of the Associates of The Jewish Hospital of St. Louis presents this tribute to Ralph J. Graff, M.D., whose dedicated and imaginative leadership as President made 1976-77 a year of outstanding growth and achievement."

Annual Gift Presented

Also during the meeting, board member Dr. Sidney Jick announced the Associate's annual gift to the Hospital. This year, the group donated a check for $10,200 to be used toward the purchase of a portable ultrasound scanner for the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology. The device is a diagnostic tool to determine the movement and position of the fetus in the mother's uterus.

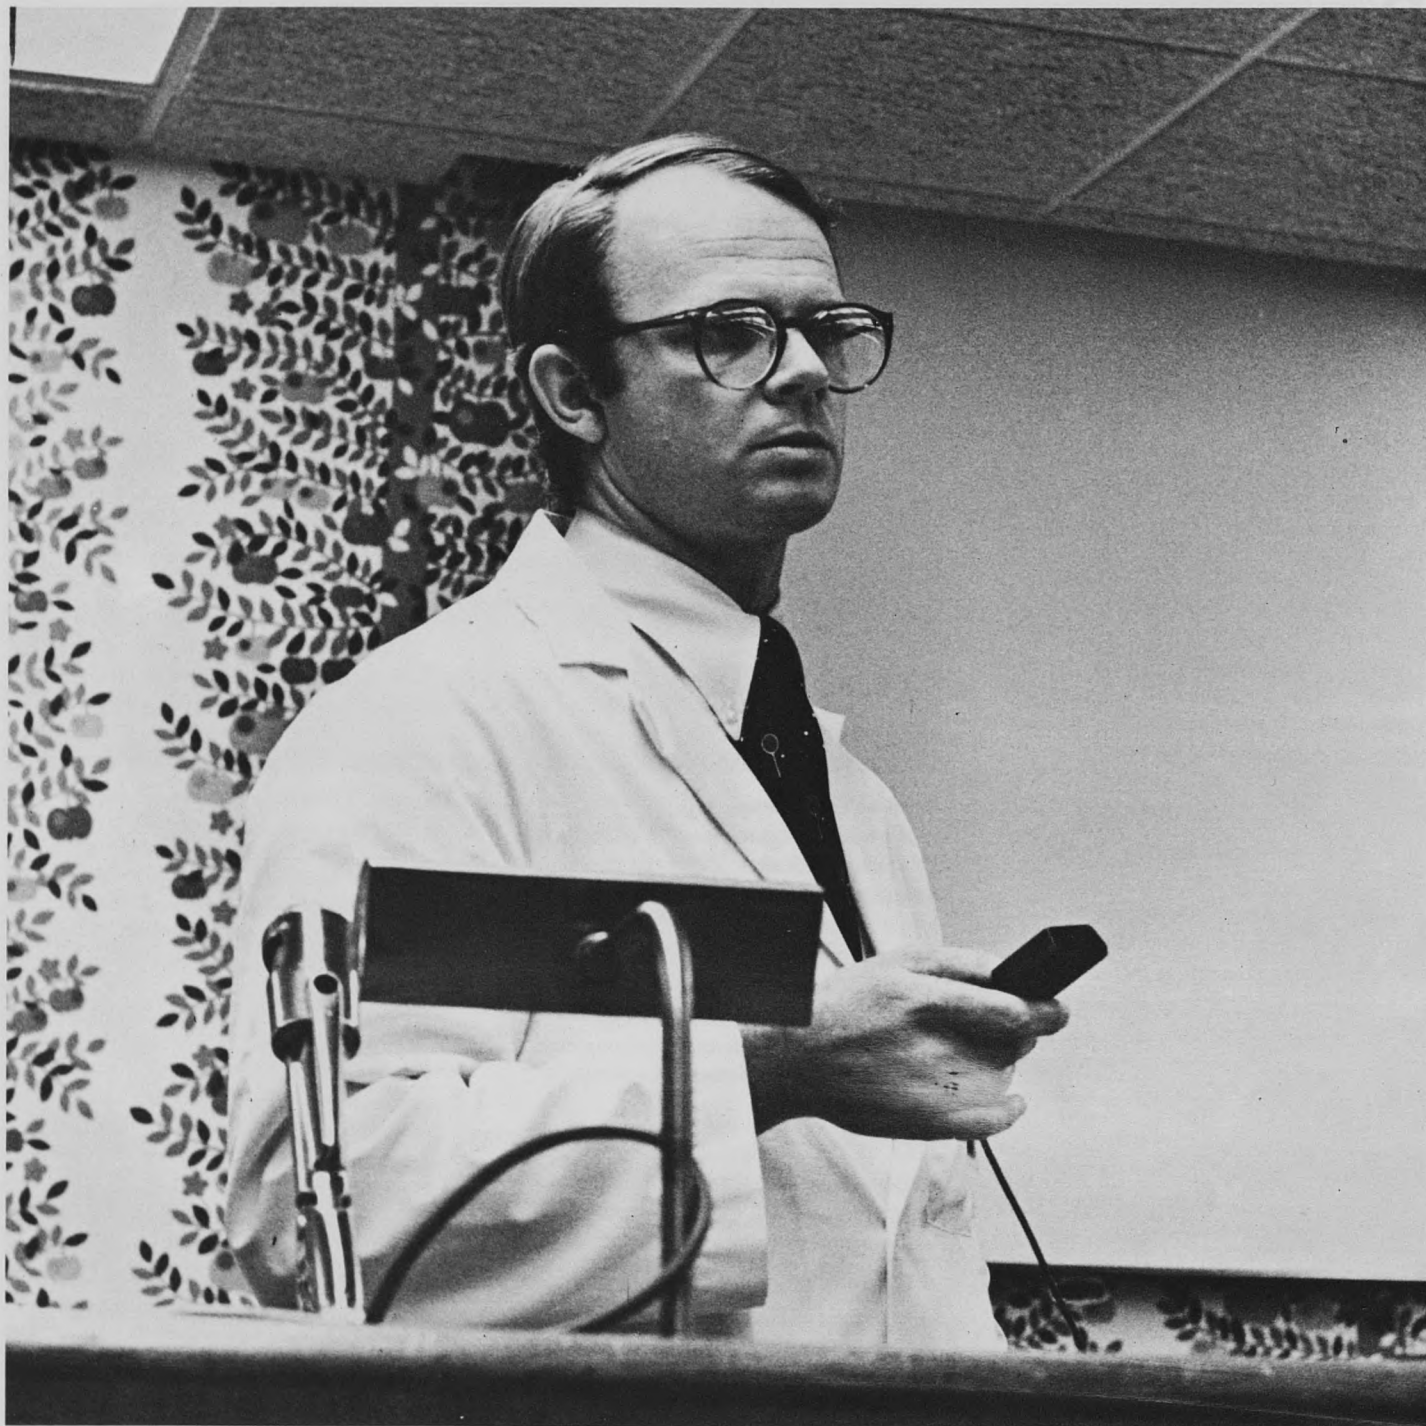

Dr. Robert Burstein, director of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, accepted the check for the equipment on behalf of the Hospital.

Featured speakers for the evening were Dr. Bernard T. Garfinkel, team physician for the St. Louis Football Cardinals, and Dr. Stanley London, team physician for the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team.

The two physicians spoke on athletic injuries common to baseball and football players, using film footage of the Cardinal teams to illustrate their talks.

"Advances in techniques and the methods of cardiopulmonary bypass make the risk of surgical revascularization of the coronary circulation very safe." (Dr. John P. Connors)

Associates Program: Heart Attack Prevention Discussed

"Atherosclerosis is the leading cause of death in the United States today. In fact, diseases of the heart and blood vessels account for about half of the two million persons who die every year in the U.S.," Dr. Gustav Schonfeld informed a group of Associates and friends who gathered at the Hospital in March to learn about "Prevention of Heart Attacks, Medically and Surgically."

Dr. Schonfeld, director of the Lipid Research Center and professor of medicine and preventive medicine at Washington University School of Medicine, spoke on "The Status of Coronary Prevention" and steps that can be taken to help prevent heart disease.

In addition, Dr. John P. Connors, director of the Division of Cardiothoracic Surgery at Jewish Hospital, informed the Associates gathering about "The Surgical Prevention of Myocardial Infarction," and discussed the effectiveness of surgical procedures, particularly the coronary artery bypass operation, in improving coronary artery circulation.

Dr. Schonfeld defined atherosclerosis as a thickening of the inner wall of the artery. "Between the muscle and the inside of the artery is a very thin layer just one cell thick called the intima. Atherosclerosis is a disturbance of the normally smooth surface of the intima as a result of deposits of connective tissue, fat, cholesterol crystals and other blood fats.

"In more extreme situations, the artery is occluded by this huge mass so that the amount of blood that can get through one of these vessels is quite small. It is this kind of occlusion that produces problems because the blood just cannot get to the organs that need it," he said. "Surgery is meant to handle these situations — to clean out the insides of the vessels."

Although researchers have not yet been able to determine what causes the accumulation of cholesterol, cells and connective tissues that form the blockage inside the artery wall, several predisposing factors to heart disease have been discovered as a result of long-term studies of carefully controlled groups of people.

Common Risk Factors

"The most famous study took place in Framingham, Mass., where 5,000 persons have been followed for over 20 years. They were initially examined and then everything that happened to them healthwise was recorded," said Dr. Schonfeld. "They had physical examinations every couple of years and people who had heart attacks or who developed angina pectoris were looked at for the things they had in common. Those things that struck the investigators as being common factors were smoking, blood pressure, cholesterol and age."

While nothing can be done to avert the effects of aging, there are ways to control the other factors, Dr. Schonfeld commented.

"For instance, the greater the blood pressure, the greater the risk," he said. "It is also known that if the pressure is lowered, the risk goes down. This is particularly true for strokes."

Smoking, of course, is a predisposing risk to heart disease. According to estimates compiled by the American Heart Association for the year 1971, the death rate from heart disease for persons who smoked more than one pack of cigarettes per day was 137 per 100,000 population, while the rate among nonsmokers was only 40 per 100,000 persons. However, for people who had smoked at one time and then quit, the death rate from heart disease was 50 out of 100,000 population.

"What that tells you is that if you stop smoking, you are nearly back to the same place in terms of avoiding heart disease as the person who never smoked."

Cholesterol Level Important

The other major risk factor is serum cholesterol. "And a similar profile could be drawn up for triglyceride (another blood fat), but the case is much better established for cholesterol," said Dr. Schonfeld. Again relying on American Heart Association estimates, he noted that the heart attack rate for persons with a cholesterol level of 175 was 45 per 100,000 population while the rate for individuals with a cholesterol level of 300 or over skyrocketed to 113 per 100,000 persons.

Cholesterol can be partially controlled by diet. "There's a good relationship between what you eat and your serum cholesterol," he noted. Studies have shown that countries where a lot of butter and other saturated fats are consumed, such as Finland and the United States, have the highest heart attack rates. Countries where the amount of animal fat and cholesterol intake is less, including Japan, Greece and Yugoslavia, the serum cholesterol is lower and the heart attack rate is lower.

However, the total cholesterol level in the blood can sometimes be misleading. Dr. Schonfeld noted that medical experts now know that it is not the total cholesterol in the plasma that is the risk factor, but the cholesterol that is carried in certain low-density lipoproteins (LDL).

"If your cholesterol is in the beta, or the low-density lipoprotein, then the higher the cholesterol level in that particular particle, the greater the risk," he said. "But if the cholesterol is in another lipoprotein called alpha, or high-density (HDL), then the higher the level of cholesterol, the lower the risk. So that the total cholesterol in the blood is compatible with several levels of risk, depending on how that cholesterol is distributed.

"If a person's cholesterol level is 200, and most of that is in the LDL, this might be high. If most of the cholesterol is in the HDL, then at the same level of cholesterol, he would fall

Associates Program:

"Those things that struck the investigators as being common factors (in atherosclerosis) were smoking, blood pressure, cholesterol and age."

into a lower risk group," said Dr. Schonfeld. "The HDL cholesterol is also higher (and therefore, safer) in people who do things that we think may have some preventive value, such as exercise."

But if risk is stockpiled on risk, the danger of heart disease rises even more sharply, leading possibly to atherosclerosis and even coronary artery occlusion.

Surgical Intervention

"The surgical attempts at improving heart muscle blood flow have spanned nearly four decades. However, effective means of improving coronary artery circulation have been available for only the last ten years," noted Dr. Connors during his portion of the program.

The coronary bypass operation was described in 1967 by Rene Favaloro at the Cleveland Clinic and presently it represents the commonest major surgical procedure in the United States.

"The reasons for the popularity of this operation are several," he said. "First, the population afflicted with advanced obstructive lesions of the coronary arteries is extensive. Second, the operation has proven itself remarkably effective in that the majority of patients are relieved of the symptoms of coronary artery insufficiency for extended periods of time. Third, advances in techniques and the methods of cardiopulmonary bypass make the risk of surgical revascularization of the coronary circulation very safe."

He noted that the mortality rate for patients undergoing the bypass operation was approximately five per cent, which is the normal rate for most types of major surgery.

The use of leg veins and chest wall arteries to bypass the occlusive lesions in the coronary arteries were shown to be effective in relieving the chest discomfort of coronary insufficiency in the majority of patients, according to Dr. Connors. "The natural extension of this fact was to determine whether or not increased blood flow prevented myocardial infarction, and therefore, improved the longevity of these patients. Several reasons exist which make the definitive answer to this question as yet unclear. However, certain subgroups of patients with coronary artery disease appear to live longer following revascularization procedures."

Dr. Connors noted that research seems to indicate that the more advanced the coronary atherosclerosis, the greater the chances of preventing myocardial infarction and prolonging the life of the patient.

"Patients with involvement of all three major coronary arteries would appear to live longer following the coronary artery bypass procedure. A second group of patients similarly benefited are those with high-grade obstructions involving the main left coronary artery, or the artery which supplies the majority of left ventricular muscle," he said. "Blocks in this area are associated with excessive mortality within the first year following its diagnosis, and although the risks of surgery are somewhat higher in these patients, the long-term survival appears to be markedly improved."

Several statistically valid studies are now being carried out by many institutions, both in and out of this country, to evaluate the effects of coronary bypass surgery on longevity in all subgroups of patients with coronary artery disease, he concluded.

The ongoing research, both medically and surgically, on the causes and prevention of atherosclerosis promise a bright future for the millions of heart disease sufferers.

Following the program, those in attendance adjourned to a wine and cheese buffet for refreshments and socializing.

Speaking at the awards ceremony were Dr. David R. Challoner, dean of the St. Louis University School of Medicine and chairman of the 1977 award committee, and Dr. Michael Karl, senior attending physician at Jewish Hospital.

Medigroup, Inc., operates the Bernard Nursing Home, Bernard West Pine Nursing Home, Parkview Colonial Manor and Hillview Lodge.

The Shopping List

Gifts to Jewish Hospital, whether large or small, are very much appreciated because they will aid the Hospital in maintaining the highest standards of health care.

The Shopping List is a special feature listing particular items and their approximate costs for which various Hospital departments have indicated a need.

This list is published to give the community an idea of the many different pieces of equipment every department requires to function efficiently, and also to allow prospective donors to choose a specific gift if they so desire.

Remember, your generosity might help save a life. A contribution used toward the purchase of a fetal heart monitor, for example, might mean it is more readily available when an emergency situation arises in the labor room. The early warning of any problems during labor that it provides might mean the difference between life and death for a newborn infant.

For more information on The Shopping List, contact the Development office, 454-7280.

A Special Story: Jewish Hospital and The New American

Most New Americans who emigrate from the Soviet Union are seeking something — freedom, the chance to live life as they wish, the opportunity to express their opinions without fear. But one recent Russian Jewish immigrant who came to the United States, and to St. Louis, was seeking something in addition — her health. And she found it at Jewish Hospital.

Through the efforts of a multitude of concerned individuals, Anna Vigdorchik underwent a double heart valve replacement during open-heart surgery at the Hospital in April.

The 31-year-old Mrs. Vigdorchik developed stenosis, or constriction, of the mitral valve after she suffered rheumatic fever as a child, explained her surgeon Dr. John P. Connors, director of the Division of Cardiothoracic Surgery at Jewish Hospital. As a result, she was operated on in the Soviet Union about ten years ago for a finger fracture of the mitral valve, and for a time, was able to function normally.

“However, she started having problems again about a year or so ago,” Dr. Connors continued, “but when she found that she and her family would be able to get out of Russia, she did not want her heart condition to delay them.”

Once outside of the U.S.S.R., Mrs. Vigdorchik, her husband Michael and daughter Marina — accompanied by Michael’s mother and his brother’s family — went to Rome, where they contacted the Hebrew Immigration Aid Society (HIAS), which made arrangements for them to come to the United States.

While in Rome, Mrs. Vigdorchik became very ill and had to be hospitalized. “X-rays, pressure tests and cardiac catheterization were done which demonstrated that she had severe restenosis and regurgitation of the mitral valve (a backflow of blood through a defective heart valve) in addition to stenosis of the aortic valve," said Dr. Connors.

Hospital Receives Notification

Mrs. Vigdorichik wanted to come to the United States to have the required heart valve replacement. At that point, Jewish Hospital was first notified of the possibility of her imminent arrival by Jewish Family and Children's Service. Because it was not known if she would require immediate medical attention or surgery, Herman Litwack, director of the Social Work department, went into action.

Litwack, who coordinates the New Americans program at Jewish Hospital, informed the Emergency Room and the Cardiology division that Mrs. Vigdorichik might be arriving at any time and supplied them with the test results from Europe as he received them, so that emergency treatment could be initiated immediately upon her arrival if necessary.

"All of the test data from the hospital in Rome was reviewed and found to be very adequate," said Dr. Connors.

The next step in the emergency plan was a little easier to arrange because of the dedication of an Auxiliary volunteer, Pola Werner, and a part-time employe, Rose Nadel, who serve as interpreters for the Hospital.

When the New Americans program first got under way at Jewish Hospital, Mrs. Werner was asked by Mrs. Elaine Levinsohn, director of volunteer services, to serve as a Russian interpreter for the immigrants, since most of them would know little or no English. As the program expanded (Last year, the Hospital provided free comprehensive medical and dental care to more than 160 Russian Jewish immigrants.), she required the aid of a part-time employe and Ms. Nadel joined the staff.

Both are specially suited to translate for and to understand the problems of New Americans. Mrs. Werner was born in Russia and emigrated to the United States 30 years ago, after stops in Germany and China. Ms. Nadel came to the U.S. with her parents from Poland more than ten years ago and has a B.A. degree in Russian from the University of Missouri.

Interpreters Stand By

When informed that Mrs. Vigdorichik would be coming to Jewish Hospital, Mrs. Werner and Ms. Nadel prepared to stay with her in turns 24 hours a day.

As things turned out, she did not have to be admitted as an emergency patient and was first examined by Dr. Linda Fisher, medical resident, in the Medical Clinic, where all New Americans are screened.

Since the Vigdorichiks were in the U.S. for a few weeks before Mrs. Vigdorichik had to have her surgery, they were able to learn some English. However, as in any stressful situation, they required interpreters to be with them constantly during her stay, Mrs. Werner noted.

"From the day she was admitted, either Rose or I were standing by to explain all of the tests and treatments she would be undergoing as well as all of the steps in the surgical procedure," she said. "We also had to inform her husband, who was of course very anxious, of everything that was happening."

The only time that she was left alone after surgery was when the translators were assured that she would sleep through the night. But they remained on call and were prepared to come to the Hospital at any time.

Mrs. Vigdorichik made immediate progress, and after three days in intensive care, was transferred to a regular patient room, but the interpreters continued to remain available as required.

Mrs. Werner has high praise for the Hospital in its handling of the New Americans and particularly of Mrs. Vigdorichik. "Everybody here at Jewish Hospital was more than helpful and concerned, from Dr. Connors and Dr. Fisher to the nurses in intensive care and Mr. Litwack and the Social Work department. This situation really shows what the Hospital can do in a case like this."

Mrs. Vigdorichik Grateful

The patient in question also had some comments to make about Jewish Hospital following her recent stay.

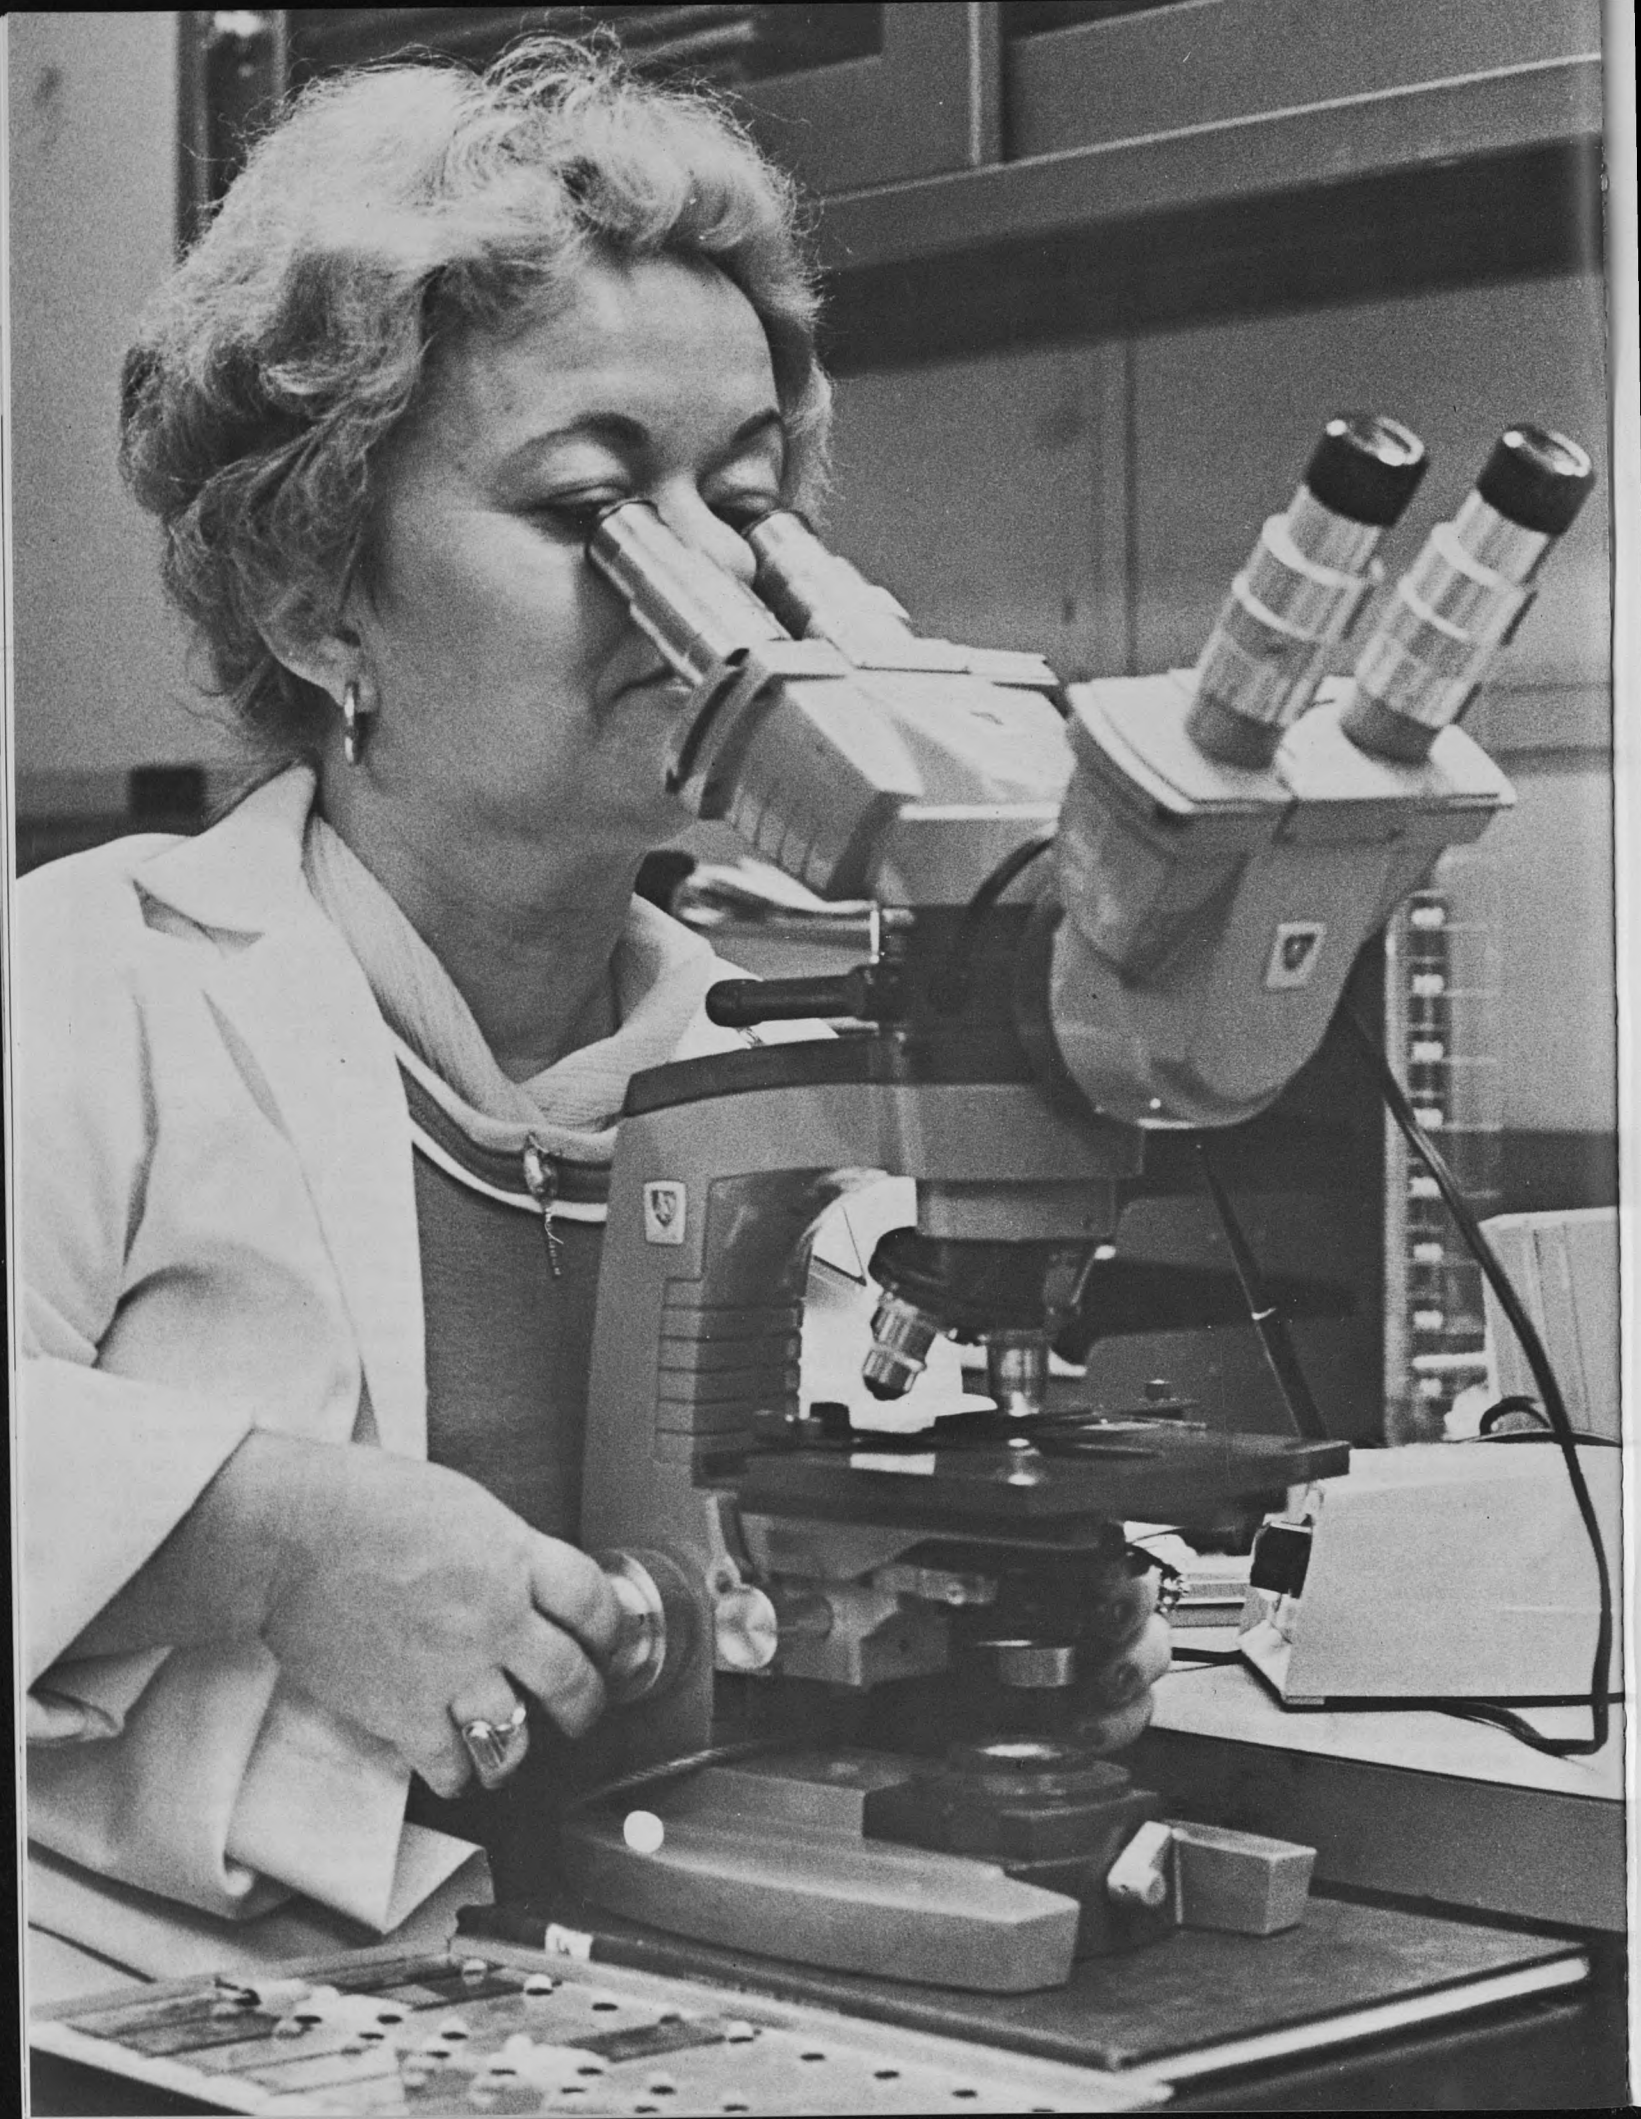

With Mrs. Werner acting as interpreter, Mrs. Vigdorichik said, "I never expected that someone coming from nowhere could be treated the way I have been treated. I am absolutely sure that I could never find anything even close to this kind of care in Europe.

"I have been very happy to meet the people at Jewish Hospital like Pola and Rose. Now I know why I wanted to come here (to the U.S.) — over thousands of miles and through this ordeal — because I found something I was searching for."

Mrs. Vigdorichik also added that she was tremendously grateful to Dr. Connors. "I will never be able to express my feelings and gratitude; I cannot find the words. I can only hope that from now on the place where I found my health again will also be where I find my future happiness."

Dr. Connors said that Mrs. Vigdorichik has responded well to her surgery. "The long-term outlook is very good," he said. "She has been very carefully instructed on the medications that she requires and I don't anticipate any problems."

For this particular New American and her family, the future indeed looks bright — thanks to the joint efforts of the Jewish community, which brought them to America, and to Jewish Hospital, which helped Mrs. Vigdorichik find her health again.

The largest gathering ever attended the annual Doctor's Day reception, held in March in the Brown Group, Inc. Room at the Hospital.

Future nursing student? The Jewish Hospital School of Nursing does not start its recruitment efforts on persons quite so young as little Adelaide Hamilton, but judging from the little girl's fascination with the stethoscope of student nurse Barbara Boschet, she might be a future applicant.
