CONGRATULATIONS
THE JEWISH HOSPITAL OF ST. LOUIS
MEDICAL INFORMATION SYSTEM
IS NOW RUNNING ON THE HOSPITAL
COMPUTER.

Before March 21, the MIS was running off of a computer in New Jersey via telephone lines. When all systems were ready, the MIS was connected to the Hospital's new computer. The screen here was displayed when that change took place.

MIS Computer System To Provide Increased Efficiency and Organization

Computers practically run the world these days. Your paycheck, utility bill and even grocery bill, is handled by computer. But there is good reason. Life is getting so big and complicated so fast that the details are getting too much for a human to keep track of.

At Jewish Hospital, for example, there are over 20,000 pieces of paper used each day for such things as drug requisitions, prescriptions, patients charts, census, bills, messages and memos, patient reports and lab reports. Someone must fill out these forms, okay them, take them to the proper department, process them, return them for questions or corrections if needed, all before any kind of service can even be delivered or any action can be taken.

So the computer comes to Jewish Hospital. There has been a Hospital computer for years taking care of such things as payroll, billing, etc. But never before here, and in only a handful of health care centers across the country, has a computer handled practically all aspects of medical communications.

The Medical Information System (MIS) is a computer system that fully integrates the communications activities of admitting, nursing, physicians, laboratory, radiology, pharmacy, all ancillary services (such as EKG, pulmonary, physical therapy, etc.), medical records, central supply, dietary, emergency room, and outpatients. The system stores all information on a patient from admission to discharge. A printer in each department generates lab worksheets, medications due lists, pharmacy and specimen labels, patient profiles and patient care plans.

How does the MIS work? Betty Sick checks into admissions. An interviewer uses a special code, as everyone who uses a terminal has, that allows her to enter and retrieve the set of information she is authorized for. (The computer records and displays the who, what and when of every message every time it is shown.) She types her code into the video display terminal, along with the patient's name and a few other pieces of information.

The computer automatically generates a patient ID number, and if Betty has been in before, calls back all previous information so it can be updated. The computer assigns a room and generates test orders and labels to the proper departments for routine tests. Betty arrives in her room. Tests are taken to the labs where results are compiled and entered into the computer. After her doctor sees her, he can call from the terminal all previous tests and results and any other information he needs on his patient. Information is entered by using either the keyboard below the screen, or touching a light pen to various displays on the screen. The doctor can order a special diet (sent automatically to the dietary department), prescriptions, more tests, and even special orders to nurses. The orders are immediately printed in each department so there is a permanent record and the departments can easily see what is needed. Some messages are saved and automatically printed at a certain time in the department.

When it is time for a pill, the printer at the nursing station prints a list of all medications to be given at that time.

All services and medications are automatically added to the patient's bill and these, as with all messages, can be instantly updated or revised by properly authorized persons.

When Betty is discharged, all departments are immediately notified. Her records will be kept for a certain period of time and then will be put on magnetic tape.

In addition to these features, the system is capable of providing various aids to users. For example, the terminal can display a screen showing generic and brand name drug cross references. It can furnish personal order sets to physicians, who request them and it prints abnormal test results in red.

The advantages of MIS are endless. It provides faster reporting, stores and transmits accurately, (reducing one avenue of error). It eliminates problems reading handwriting, forces doctors to give complete orders and eliminates verbal and written misunderstandings.

MIS will dispose of more than 90 different printed forms, it will eliminate 40 to 80 jobs (this number is easily reached through normal turnover) and the patient billing cycle will be two days faster. The system is expected to save over $238,000 a year and pay for itself within a year and a half.

The first nursing station terminal is expected to be operative by August of this year, with other stations following at two or three week intervals. By May of 1980, Jewish Hospital will be a fully operational MIS hospital.

At the present time Hospital employees are working feverishly trying to organize the various activities, effectively program the computer and train physicians, nurses, lab technicians and dietary employees on the use of the terminals. There are at least two newsletters devoting space to educating employees about MIS and one devoted entirely to keeping all employees informed about the progress of MIS.

It seems that someday there will be no one to talk to but the high-pitched beep of a computer. But at least in this institution, the computer is freeing health care employees from the mounds of paperwork they face each day and giving them more time to do what they were trained to do, care for patients.

Auxiliary Holds Annual Meeting

Lillian Dickler Becomes Auxiliary's 16th President

An audience of over 300 Auxilians attended the annual meeting and luncheon.

"I asked myself, 'How did I get to be standing up here today?' and the answer is, as always, by volunteering."

The above statement was made by newly installed Auxiliary President Lillian Dickler at the Annual Spring Meeting held April 25 at the Bel Air Hilton. Mrs. Dickler first became associated with Jewish Hospital 22 years ago when her husband Donald joined the Hospital Anesthesia Staff. She has volunteered her time and efforts to the Hospital ever since.

After moving to St. Louis, Mrs. Dickler said she joined various service organizations which kept her very busy, but at the same time, there was something missing.

"One morning, I was taken along to help at a student nurses' coffee break given by the Auxiliary to make life a little easier for the students," Mrs. Dickler said. "And suddenly, there it was, the missing ingredient!

"Just imagine how lovely to have bright eyes smile gratefully into yours because you had gotten up early to give someone a cup of coffee and made the day easier to take.

"It was as simple as that: satisfaction in doing for others — instant gratification."

Mrs. Arthur Bierman (at microphone) reads the nomination for new President Mrs. Donald Dickler (left).

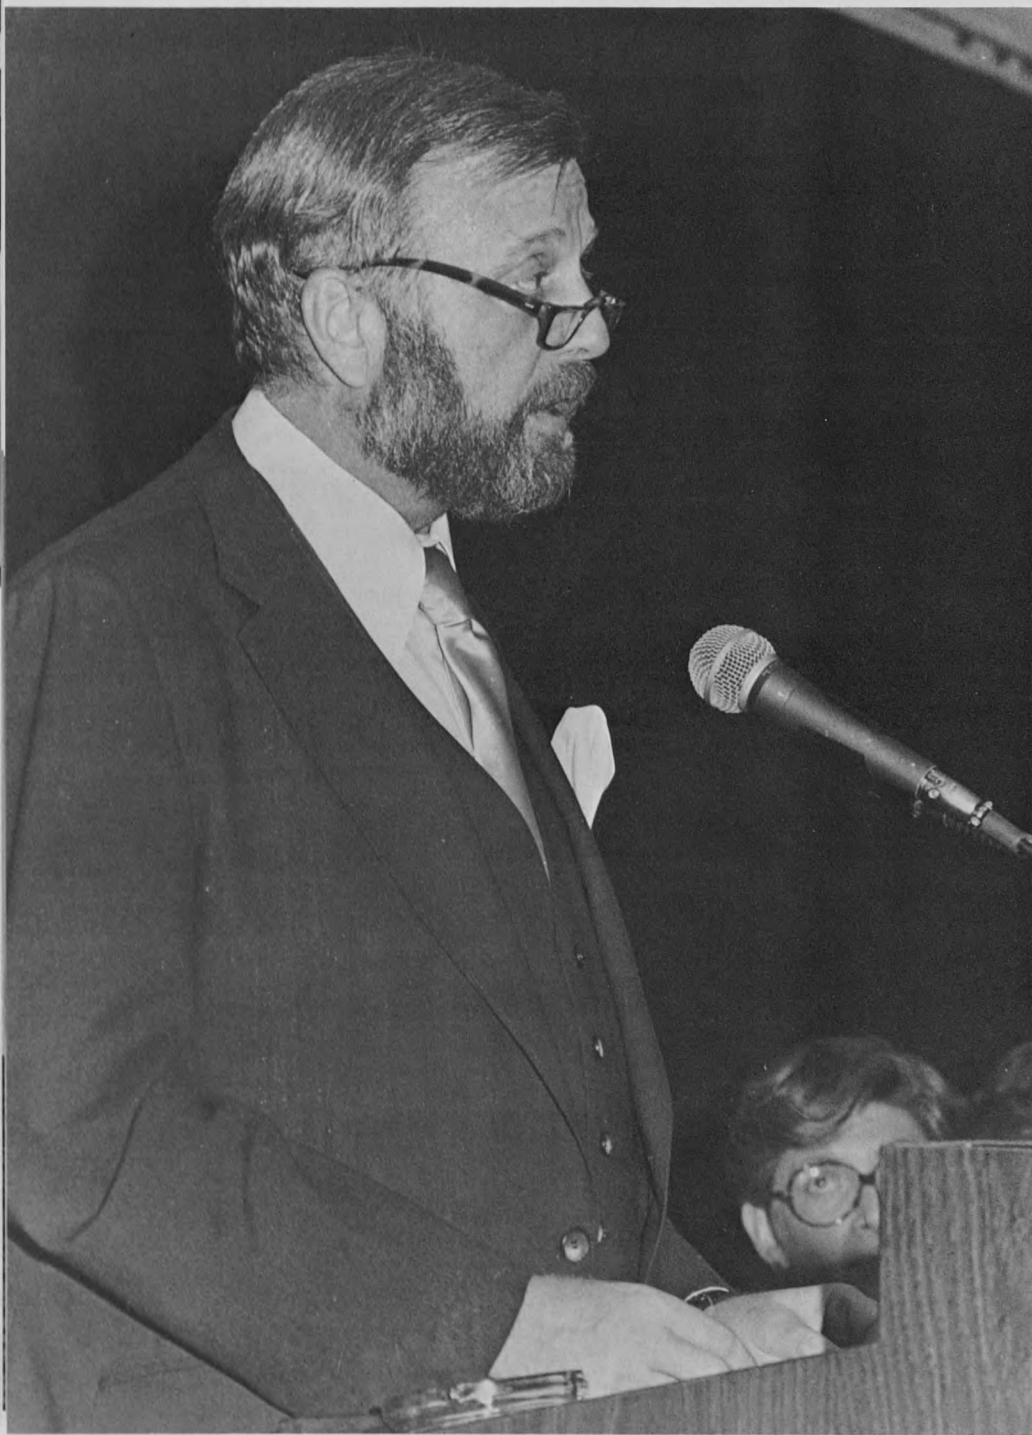

Doing for others is just one of the qualities possessed by the President. As installing officer June Bierman said, "Lillian, your attributes are innumerable: Wisdom and experience, organization and dedication, ability and stability — all assets essential to an executive officer. Even more important, you have the human qualities so necessary for outstanding leadership.

Mrs. Dickler praised the women of St. Louis for wanting to get involved in service projects, and described what singles out the Jewish Hospital Auxiliary from other organizations.

"Whether it is just paying dues which support activities," she said, "or working as a volunteer, working for a fund-raising project, burning the midnight oil to finish a board committee report, or spending countless hours to plan a new program, the end result is going to make something better for a patient or his family."

Looking ahead to the future, the new President said, "Our Auxiliary must continue to search for new areas of need: needs of the Hospital, needs of the patient, the patient's family, and Hospital related needs of the community."

Spring Program Features Jack Carney, Face To Face

Following the Annual Report and Installation of Officers at the Spring Meeting, the Auxilians were addressed by KMOX-Radio personality Jack Carney.

Heard by thousands of people daily, Carney is rarely seen, but on April 25, the program titled "Face to Face with Jack Carney" showed not only his face, but the wit that has made him a favorite voice on St. Louis radio since 1971. Carney began by explaining that he usually does not do speaking engagements.

"I suppose in modesty I should say that I'm not very good at it," Carney said. "I'm really very good at it... But I have a terrible memory and I never can remember where I am."

As an example of his poor memory, Carney related an experience he had while speaking at what he thought was a B'nai Brith dinner.

"I opened with what I thought was a marvelous line; I said, 'I don't suppose any of you saw the late papers, but Israel today launched two flying saucers, not just one. One was milchedich and one was flayshe-dich!' he said, "and nobody laughed, and I turned around and over the podium it said, 'Welcome to the Knights of Columbus.'"

About the rumor that he is in line to replace Johnny Carson as the Tonight Show host, Carney said, tongue-in-cheek, "You read the morning paper; you know that I'm dressed up, probably on my way to the airport."

An excellent story-teller, Carney related one wild tale after another. He told of a recent newsworthy event in St. Louis. The 12 millionth visitor came to the Arch.

KMOX-radio personality Jack Carney spoke following the Business Meeting and Installation.

"Last Friday afternoon," Carney said, "a little Jewish lady and a little Jewish man arrived at the Arch, and Mayor Conway was there and Governor Teasdale was there, and they awarded the couple a plaque that read, 'The 12 Millionth Visitors to the Arch.' The little old man and the little old woman were very excited, and the Mayor said, 'We're going to give you a weekend you will never forget!' They took them over to the Breckenridge, and they gave them a huge suite, and they took them to dinner at Tony's, and the next morning they went to Grant's Farm, and they toured the Brewery, and they went to Dominic's for dinner and back to the suite that night at the Breckenridge. Sunday morning they had brunch, and the Mayor and the Governor were back, and they said, 'Did you have a good time?' And the little old lady said yes, and the little man said yes. And they said, 'Was it a wonderful weekend?' and she said, 'It's been a weekend I'll never forget,' and the man said, 'It's been a weekend I'll never forget,' and then the Mayor said, 'Well, before we say goodbye then, are there any questions?' and the little old lady looked at him and said, 'Just one — Who's this little Jewish man?'"

In the program following the Business Meeting, the Auxiliary was entertained by radio personality Jack Carney.

Leboyer Childbirth

Linda and Kenneth Rosenthal await the birth of their child. The fetal heart monitor, to the right, charts the baby's heart-beat along with the mother's contractions.

The Leboyer Method of Childbirth: A Quiet, Relaxed Experience

Ken Rosenthal supports his wife as she pushes the baby down during a contraction. Husbands play an active part in the birth of their children at Jewish Hospital, regardless of what method of childbirth is used.

"You should see the look on the mother's face when she sees the baby for the first time. Her face lights up and tears come down her cheeks — The husband even goes into tears," said Dr. Rennard.

Natural childbirth was once regarded by expectant mothers as an off-beat method of delivery. Today, however, over 60 per cent of women chose to endure the pain of birth and see their pregnancy through to the end. But parents and doctors alike still tend to shy away from "innovative" methods with foreign sounding names.

The Leboyer Method is one such name. The method was developed by a French gynecologist, Frederick Leboyer, after he supposedly relived his own birth through hypnosis. It takes into account the feelings of the baby and questions the idea that to be healthy, a baby must scream its lungs out when it is born.

As Dr. Leboyer sees it, when a child is ready to be born, he is about to leave a world that for nine months represented safety, shelter, food and warmth. For some reason unknown to him, he is shoved down a tight passage and suddenly breaks through to a cold, intensely bright, noisy, endless void. The cord that has been his nourishment, his life, is clamped and cut. He is grabbed by the ankles, dangled upside down and slapped on the behind. He cries. A sudden rush of air is shoved into his raw lungs. It is a shock on top of all the other shocks he has experienced the past few minutes. He cries louder. And the nurse carries the screaming child off to the hard bed of the nursery, and the mother and doctor smile in the background.

This, according to Dr. Leboyer, is only a part of the agony of childbirth. Mother and doctor unknowingly add shock upon shock to a young child's first moments in our world because they don't know any better. And the mother and child suffer.

Leboyer's solutions are simple. There are no glaring spotlights in the delivery room; the lights are kept low. The atmosphere is kept quiet and relaxed. When the child is born, the umbilical cord is left intact and the baby is laid on the mother's hollow stomach. The cord is not cut until it stops beating, which takes about five to ten minutes. Afterwards, the baby is placed in a water bath that is the same temperature as the mother's womb. This is to remind the baby of the environment it just came from through the temperature and the feeling of weightlessness. Dr. Leboyer feels this method will gradually introduce the baby to its new environment with a positive effect that will carry into the child's future life.

With the Leboyer method, immediately after birth the child is placed on Linda's stomach, with the umbilical cord still attached.

"It's an experience you can't ever describe," says Linda. "It's all worth it in the end."

Dr. Rennard places the baby, Scott, in a tub of 98 degree water — Leboyer's way of reminding the child of the temperature and feeling of weightlessness in the mother's womb.

There are only a few doctors in town that enthusiastically promote this "innovative" method. One is Dr. Marvin Rennard, attending gynecologist at Jewish Hospital.

The method isn't that new, nor is it that different from normal methods. Leboyer's views on childbirth are radical, and not readily accepted by even the most modern doctors. Even Dr. Rennard says the effects on the baby may not be that major. But the results on the mother are very positive, he says, because the method allows the mother and child to be together immediately after birth, something most hospitals rarely have the time to do. Jewish Hospital has long been a proponent of allowing the mother and child to have this time, whether the delivery is done by natural or Leboyer.

Linda and Kenneth Rosenthal agreed to have their baby by the Leboyer method. Linda was acquainted with natural childbirth. Her previous child had been natural, but it happened so quickly, she said, she barely got to the hospital before the baby had arrived.

This time, she and her husband entered the delivery room in the early afternoon. Ken was there, dressed in green surgical attire, to help his wife with the birth.

"With the last delivery," said Linda, "he helped with my breathing and was in the delivery room. But this time I felt he was really involved, like he was a part of it — he wasn't separated from the whole thing."

The delivery room was darkened. The atmosphere was quiet except for intermittent explanations by Dr. Rennard. Up until then,

The baby stops crying immediately when placed in the water bath, and soon, begins playing in it.

Scott Rosenthal spends his first seconds of life in Dr. Rennard's arms, crying. The Leboyer method attempts to ease the child's transition to his new world.

Linda and Ken in the recovery room with their new son.

Linda had been able to control the pain of contractions through breathing exercises. But now, when a contraction came, she had to push, which was painful in itself. Ken supported her back.

"I just thought I would like to get it over with. I would push and push and push, and the head wouldn't come out. And I'd push and push some more, and I still couldn't see it. When you can see the baby's head, you know the worst is over."

In a few moments, which must have seemed like an eternity to Linda and Ken, Dr. Rennard told them to look down. There, cradled in his hands was their son. Tears streamed down Linda's face — she glowed with a look of joy that is not seen at any other moment in a woman's life. And the baby opened its mouth wide and cried.

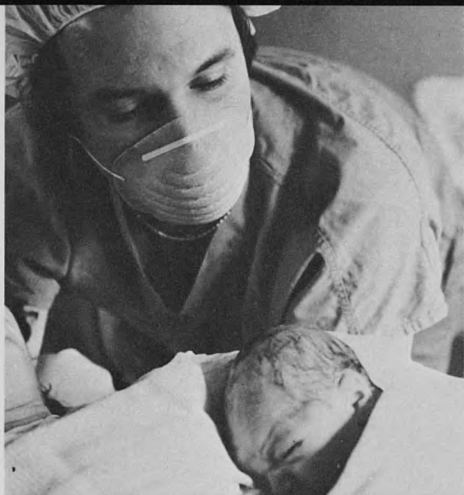

"When the baby is born, he is not supposed to cry. But with our baby, it didn't work," said Linda. But Dr. Rennard says that happens more often than not. "This is supposed to be a calm, reassuring delivery," continued Linda. "Things are done gradually so by the time they've taken him to the nursery, he's had time to adjust to his new environment."

Linda and Ken spent about 30 minutes with their newborn son, touching and caressing him on his mother's stomach. He was still covered with the white sticky coating from birth. The bond between parent and child was being explored.

Dr. Rennard decided to use the water bath this time. Ken held the baby in the warm water. The baby instantly stopped crying and opened his eyes wide. He almost seemed to be playing in the water.

"I get a big kick out of delivering babies this way," Dr. Rennard said with a big grin. "It's very much worth the extra time and effort. In the three years I've probably delivered around 500 babies this way, I've had no problems as a result of the technique. The mothers almost 100 per cent have a very positive reaction to the experience. There is a warm acceptance of being with the baby. It does something for the mother which is good."

Jewish Hospital has always allowed the mother to be with the child for as long as she wants, said Dr. Robert Burstein, Director of the Ob/Gyn Department here. And the father is frequently allowed in the delivery room. Even though most of the other doctors aren't as enthusiastic about Dr. Rennard's methods as he himself is, very few other hospitals would allow him the time or the freedom to use this unique delivery.

Lowenstein Addresses Surgery Group

Paul Lowenstein, M.D., told the Surgery Dinner guests about the early days of Jewish Hospital.

"In 1916 the charges for an electrocardiogram for a Hospital patient was one dollar. Operating charges were from three to five dollars and anesthesia was five dollars."

Paul S. Lowenstein, M.D.

The annual J. G. Probstein Visiting Professor, John A. Collins, M.D., spoke before the Department of Surgery on April 6, 1979. Later that day at the Surgery Dinner, held at the Bel Air Hilton, Paul Lowenstein, M.D., told the group about the early history of Jewish Hospital.

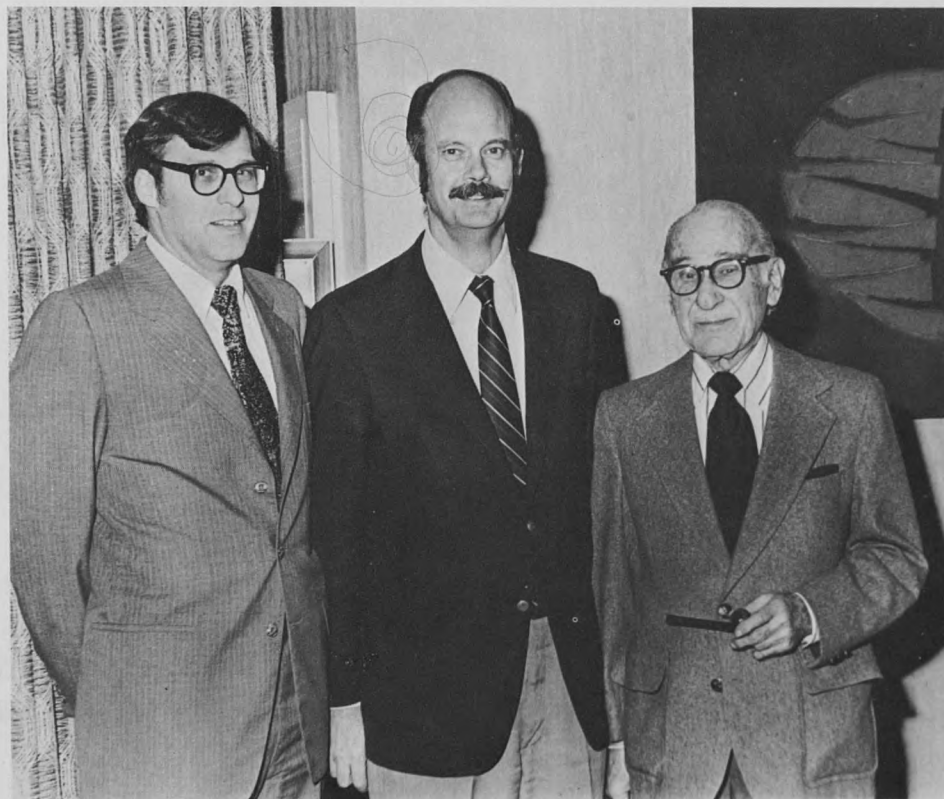

"The first Jewish Hospital was erected in 1902 at 5415 Delmar Blvd., and Dr. Herman Tuholske was appointed as Chief of Staff," said Lowenstein. As the Hospital grew in size, Dr. Hanau W. Loeb was appointed as Chief of Staff in 1917.

"Dr. Loeb, in connection with the Hospital President, Aaron Waldheim, was able to become a prime source in paving the way for the new institution to be erected on Kingshighway," Lowenstein said.

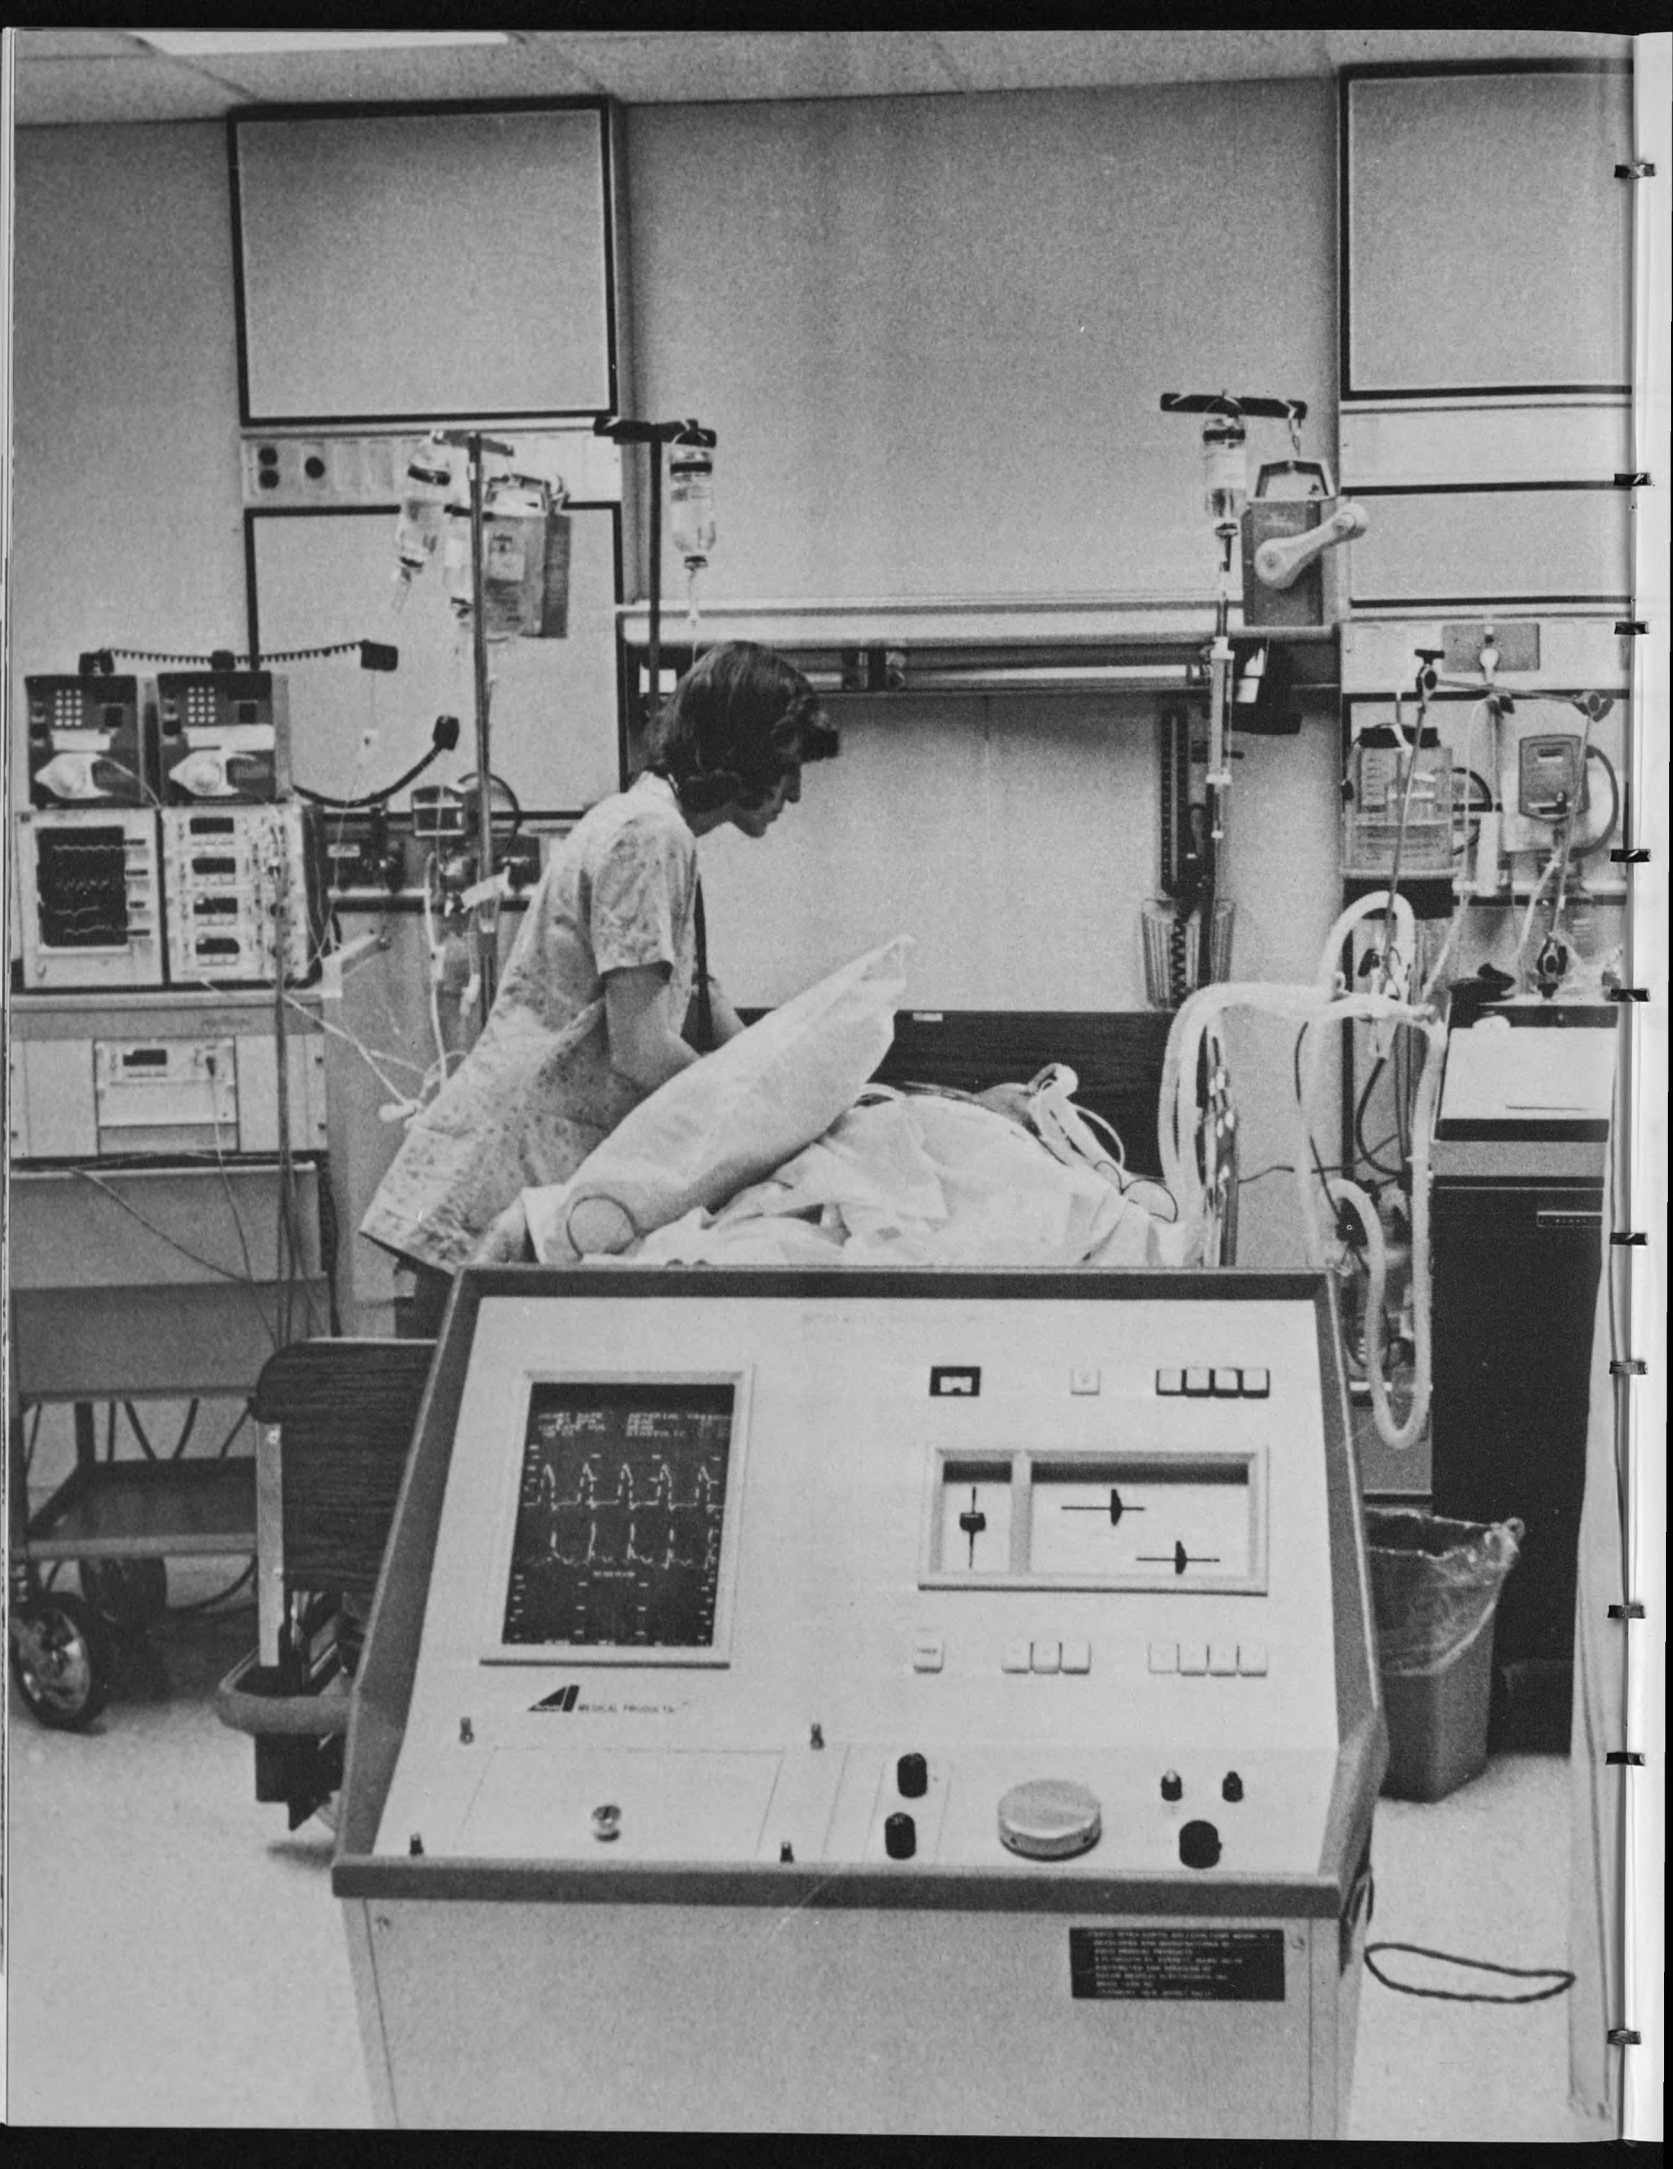

Foresight was apparently a quality Dr. Loeb possessed, as Dr. Lowenstein quoted one of Loeb's colleagues, Dr. Llewellyn Sale, Sr.

"He (Loeb) was strong in the belief that a modern hospital should be engaging in a very active educational program and that affiliation with a teaching institution added to the standing and usefulness of a hospital.

Today, Dr. Loeb's hope is a reality; the Jewish Hospital of St. Louis has had such a relationship with Washington University School of Medicine since the early 1960's.

New Divisions Open as Building Program Continues

Hope Biehl, R.N., attends a patient in the Cardiovascular Intensive Care Unit.

In 1905 the Jewish Hospital of St. Louis had been open for three years. The same year, the Hospital added two wings to expand its bed capacity from 30 to 100.

Jumping ahead a few years to 1979, one sees that the Jewish Hospital is still building and renovating. The bed count remains at 628, a number held since 1974, but quality of patient care is constantly being improved.

During the last 12 months, much of the latest development projects have been completed. These projects include extensive remodeling and updating of Nursing Division 3100, located in the Steinberg Pavilion. This division contains the Jewish Hospital Auxiliary 15-bed Surgical Intermediate Intensive Care Unit.

Also on this division is a new six-bed Cardiovascular Intensive Care Unit, an area with a unique design. A circular nursing station and open-wall rooms allow nurses to view monitors and keep close watch on all patients simultaneously.

7th Floor of Shoenberg Pavilion Completed

The other major construction projects of the past year are the completion of the 7th and 8th floors of the Shoenberg Pavilion. Vacant since construction of the building in 1974, the shells of the two floors began filling with pipes, insulation and dry wall material early in 1978.

On April 20, 1979, patients moved into the rooms on the seventh floor, or Divisions 7800 and 7900. Scheduled for completion early this summer is the eighth floor of Shoenberg. Half of the floor, Division 8800, houses a 22-bed Acute Medical Division, including telemetry equipment.

In addition, the eighth floor contains a 22-bed Medical Critical Care Complex. This section, Division 8900, replaces the former Medical Intensive Care Unit on the fourth floor of the Kingshighway Pavilion. Division 8900 has computerized monitoring capabilities for cardiac, respiratory and acute medical patients.

The 7th and 8th floors of Shoenberg looked like this in the spring of 1978, the floor unfinished with wall construction not yet begun.

Early in 1978, the hall-ways of the 7th and 8th floors of Shoenberg were still in the developmental stages.

The new Cardiovascular Intensive Care Unit allows a nurse at the station to view all the rooms and all patient monitors at the same time.

Patients coming to these nursing divisions will be moved from other areas in the Hospital, some of which will be reassigned to new patient care functions, and some of which will be renovated.

The addition of new bed capacity in the Shoenberg Pavilion will not increase the total licensed 628-bed count. Instead, many smaller two-bed rooms in the Kingshighway Pavilion will be converted to private rooms.

The new nursing divisions are designed for optimum patient care, of course, but also are attractively decorated with wall hangings and modern functional furniture. The final product of the continuous building and construction projects at the Hospital is the finest possible patient care.

During construction of the two new Shoenberg floors in 1978, cranes and lifts were used to carry materials up to roof.

Associates Spring Program Focuses on "Sex as We Grow Older"

"Sex, if you stop to think about it, can be almost any kind of interpersonal relationship. We can express our feelings in our motivations in sex just as well as we can in behavior of other kinds..."

The idea that sex is much more an emotional phenomenon than a physical one was the basis for discussion at the Associates in Medicine March 19 program. Entitled "Sex as We Grow Older," the panel discussion featured Teel Ackerman, Co-chairman of the Associates Program Committee, Director of Social Programs for Life Crisis Services, Inc., and a certified sex educator; Martin Israel, Chairman of the JCA Quality of Life Committee and a certified sex educator and Jack Eidelman, M.D., a member of the Hospital Medical Staff.

Dr. Eidelman, a psychiatrist with special interest in sexual behavior, began the discussion and explained why sexual activity slows down as people age.

"In males," Dr. Eidelman said, "the so-called refractory period occurs. The length of time between sex increases because of the aging process." Because of this, Eidelman said, the man's spouse will often feel he is disinterested and thus turn away when he is interested.

According to Eidelman, the answer is to revitalize sexual emotions.

"We can put a little variety in our lives — by variety, we mean spontaneity. We should let ourselves have fantasies. Use your imagination. The most important thing in terms of revitalization is improving the relationship between you and your partner.

"Every day, spend a half hour with just each other. Nothing but the two of you, sharing feelings, sharing experiences. The key is having an experience together, being in touch with each other. When you are in touch, then you have a meaningful relationship."

Age Doesn't Change Emotions

"The quality of life is really the same thing for every person no matter what the age," said Ms. Ackerman. "Personal sexual feelings do not alter with age. It is necessary for every person, young and old to express his sexuality in a comfortable sexual expression."

"Sexuality is part of ourselves," said Martin Israel. "It's feelings, it's maleness, it's femaleness. It's social involvement, it's self-worth."

Israel also felt that physical condition does not prevent one from enjoying sex, regardless of age.

"There is no appreciable difference between aging males and aging females," he said. "The level of interest remains the same. There is no reason for sexual gratification to diminish with age."

More than 100 Associates members and their guests attended the program, held in the Brown Group Inc. Room.

Hospital Board Honors Lee M. Liberman

It was a rain and fog-filled night outside, but inside Westwood Country Club, the mood was of good cheer as the Jewish Hospital Board of Directors paid tribute to Lee M. Liberman, completing his term as Chairman.

"We're here to express our appreciation to Lee for the fine leadership he's given the Hospital," said Raymond H. Wittcoff, incoming Board Chairman.

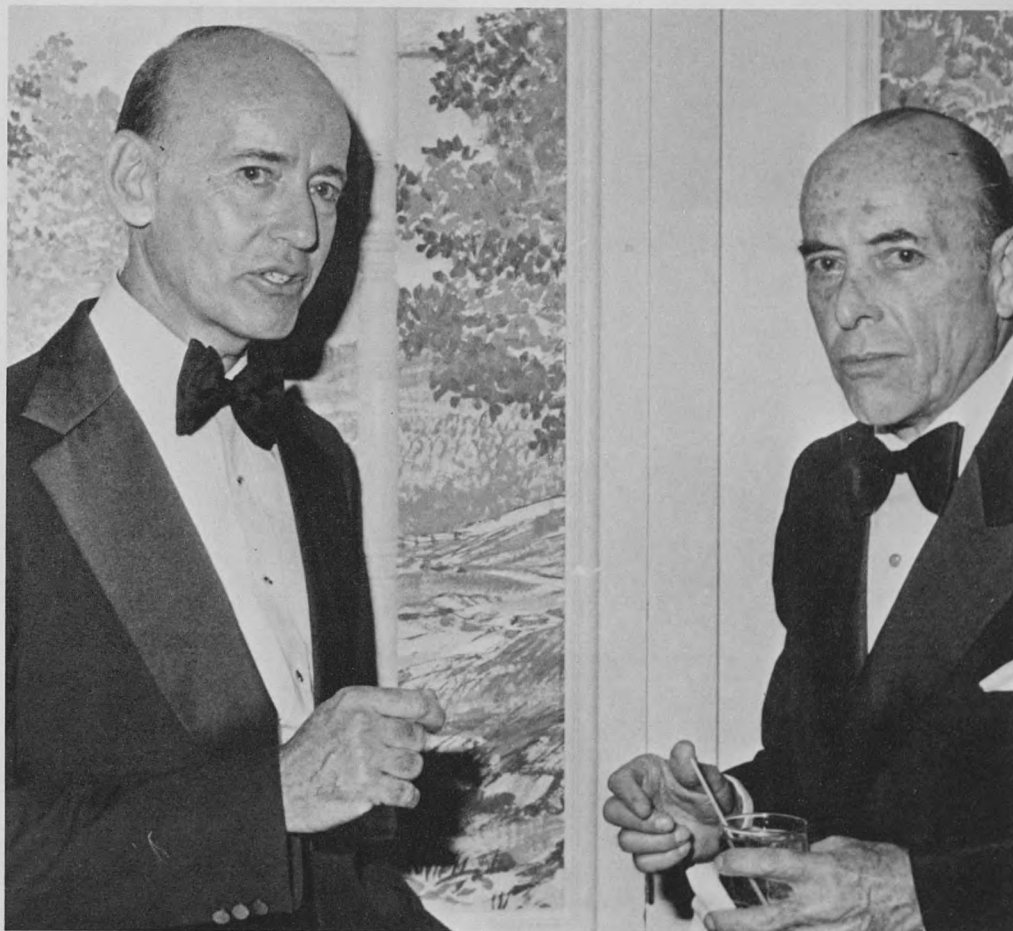

During the testimonial dinner, Liberman received a plaque commemorating his accomplishments and leadership. Among the guests who spoke was Chief of Medicine William Peck, M.D.

"There is no way time permits me to express my appreciation and the appreciation of the Medical Staff for what Lee has done," said Peck. "His support has been phenomenal.

"You can imagine how amazed I was three years ago when I came here for my recruitment and found this man who said that he wanted nothing more for the Jewish Hospital of St. Louis than that it become the finest university hospital in the land. And I was challenged by that. It was infectious. And Lee has done everything that he could do to help us to strive for that goal.

"So on behalf of the Medical Staff of the Hospital, full time and private, I'd like to thank Lee for all of these things."

Health Fair II Set for October 28

Marta Ruiz, R.N., right, explains Operating Room procedures to guests at last year's Health Fair.

Over 2,000 visitors attended the Jewish Hospital Auxiliary's Family Health Fair last fall, and the second annual event promises to be just as successful.

As a result of the health screening tests at last year's Fair, two cases of scoliosis were found, four cases of glaucoma and eight cases of high blood pressure.

Health Fair '79 will be held from noon until 5 p.m. on Sunday, October 28, at Ladue High School, and Chairman Phyllis Langsdorf has planned an exciting and educational afternoon.

"There will be more testing available this year, as well as more exhibits, seminars and lectures," she said.

The Shopping List

Gifts to Jewish Hospital, whether large or small, are very much appreciated because they aid the Hospital in maintaining the highest standards of health care.

The Shopping List is a special feature listing particular items and their approximate costs for which various Hospital departments have indicated a need.

This list is published to give the community an idea of the many different pieces of equipment every department requires to function efficiently, and also to allow prospective donors to choose a specific gift if they so desire.

Remember, your generosity might help save a life. A contribution used toward the purchase of a fetal heart monitor, for example, might mean it is more readily available when an emergency situation arises in the labor room. The early warning of any problems during labor that it provides might mean the difference between life and death for a newborn infant.

For more information on The Shopping List, contact the Development office, at 454-7280.

Volunteers: Jewish Hospital's Added Dimension

Irene Rubin, a Gift Gallery Volunteer, attained the 15,000 hour level in 1978.

"The purpose of Volunteer Week is to show Volunteers they are appreciated."

Elaine Levinsohn, Director of Volunteer Services

Volunteer Week, held April 22 to 27 at Jewish Hospital in conjunction with National Volunteer Week, honored the men and women who contribute their time to this important facet of the Hospital. Award luncheons sponsored by the Hospital and Auxiliary were held in the Brown Group, Inc., Room all week long to recognize the Volunteers efforts. As always, this year's group accounted for an outstanding number of hours.

In fact, the 63,389 hours worked by Jewish Hospital Volunteers in the last 12 months was equivalent to the work done by 31 full-time employees. At a time when cost-containment is a big factor facing hospitals, the Volunteers compliment the staff of employees without adding to the payroll.

Not only do Volunteers serve the Hospital without expense, but they bring a human element to the modern scientific setting of a medical complex.

As Hospital President David A. Gee said in remarks to the Volunteers, "I want to thank you for the excellent services you perform for the Hospital. You add a dimension that we simply could not do without."

Two Current Jewish Hospital Volunteers Top 15,000 Hours

In 1957, Irene Rubin began her Volunteer career at Jewish Hospital in the Gift Gallery. During Volunteer Week in 1978, she was honored for completing 15,000 hours, truly a remarkable number.

What makes a person want to spend this amount of time working for no pay? Because there actually is a payment, at least in the form of personal satisfaction.

"You get a good feeling when you know that the time you give to the Hospital does something worthwhile," Mrs. Rubin said.

Although she did not become a Jewish

Rose Bromburd, left, is given her Volunteer service pin by Mimi Vittert.

Volunteer Virginia Spewack, left, receives congratulations from Vice President Mabel Howell for completing 500 Volunteer hours.

Hospital Volunteer until 1957, Mrs. Rubin began volunteering during World War II, working for the Red Cross, ironically, at Jewish Hospital.

Over 30 years later, she is still amassing hours. Does she recommend it for others?

"Anybody who has the time to give should try it," she said. "You can see immediate results from your efforts."

Bert Brand Newest 15,000 Hour Volunteer

On April 23, 1979, at the Jewish Hospital Volunteer Luncheon, Mrs. Martin Brand was recognized for completing over 15,000 hours during the previous 18 years. In 1961, Mrs. Brand started her Volunteer work here when she was asked to help decorate showcase windows in the Gift Gallery. She later joined the Clover Garden staff when it first opened, and still works there today. Her love of plants and people have made volunteering meaningful for her.

"I'm bringing pleasure to the people who buy the plants," Mrs. Brand said, adding that to her, volunteering serves two purposes: "It helps the Hospital and it helps me." Mrs. Brand said that volunteering makes a valuable contribution and is a rewarding way of using her spare time.

Like Irene Rubin, the Volunteer spirit came to Mrs. Brand before coming to work at Jewish Hospital in 1961.

"My sister and I had a greenhouse and we used to sell plants — all the money we made, we gave to Jewish Hospital."

People like Irene Rubin and Bert Brand typify the kind of Volunteers who make Jewish Hospital special, and Volunteer Week salutes them for their efforts.

An informal modeling program was given prior to the Volunteer luncheons. Fashions came from the Gift Gallery, and models were Jewish Hospital Volunteers. From left: Sally Freiman, Rose Hughes, Lorraine Kandel and Ruth Bernstein.
