SAN JOSE STATE COLLEGE SINCE 1862 SPARTAN DAILY

VOLUME 25 SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 5, 1935 Number 148

Recognition Day Assembly Honors Forty Prominent College Students

Scholarship Awards to Be Made; Council Members Installed

Forty honorariums, San Jose State's annual tribute to service to the college, will be presented to 40 students, with names unrevealed until presentation time and unknown to the students themselves, at the annual Recognition Day general assembly to be held tomorrow in the Morris Dailey auditorium from 10:30 to 12:00.

Because of the surprise nature of the awarding of the honorariums, Rae Dobyns, vice-president of the student-body and chairman of the assembly, urges all students to attend the "all-classes-excused" assembly, at which time the formal installation of the new student council will be conducted, and installation of the new members of Black Masque, senior women's honor society, and Spartan Spears, sophomore women's service society, will be made.

ADDITIONAL AWARDS

Other awards to be given in State's great annual honorary spree will include: the 20 scholarship certificates, in recognition of the 20 highest ranking students in grade points made for the last three quarters; the varsity and frosh basketball athletic awards of the past season; minor sports awards for outstanding members of the boxing and wrestling teams; and pins for the outgoing council members, in recognition of their executive services.

LANGUAGE MEDAL

Another outstanding award is the gold medal given by the republic of France to the outstanding student of the French language. San Jose State college is one of the few colleges in the United States chosen by the French government for this signal honor.

Intermission entertainment for the program will be furnished by Bill Thurlow's orchestra and variety acts.

Spring Concert Held; Miss Cornell, Soloist

Featuring Maurine Cornell, cellist, as soloist, the San Jose State college symphony orchestra presented its spring concert last night in the Morris Dailey auditorium under the direction of Adolph Otterstein.

Opening the program with the brilliant "Carnival Overture" by Dvorak, the 110 piece orchestra continued with interpretations of famous symphonic compositions.

An outstanding achievement, in the opinion of music critics, was the presentation of the "E Minor Symphony" of Sibelius, in which the slow movement with its inspired melody, and the rough and strenuous minor passages were interpreted with unusual feeling.

With Jan Kalas acting as guest conductor, Miss Maurine Cornell, concert soloist, played the "Saint Saens Concerto for Violinello", accompanied by the entire orchestra. Kalas, a renowned cellist himself, has been Miss Cornell's instructor throughout her musical career.

Iota Delta Phi, French honor society, is sponsoring a trip to San Francisco tonight to attend a French motion picture which is being shown at the Clay International Theater.

'Rebound Lead'

HAROLD RANDLE

Stewart Comedy Will Be San Jose Players' Last Presentation

Donald Ogden Stewart's brilliant comedy, "Rebound", to be presented by San Jose Players tomorrow, Friday, and Saturday in the Little Theater, brings to a close a well-balanced season of plays.

"Rebound" offers a contrast to the tragedy of "Beyond the Horizon", the last production of the Players, and is a type of comedy unlike anything presented here this season.

STAR ROLES

The leading roles are to be played by Harold Randle and Elizabeth Allampress, prominent members of San Jose Players.

Randle, although only a freshman, has played a number of important parts in college productions, and as Bill Truesdale in "Rebound", further proves his versatility in a part unlike any of his previous roles.

Miss Allampress has also taken part in many productions.

SUPPORTING CAST

Supporting roles are to be taken by Elvera Pieri, Frank Hamilton, Otis Cobb, Florence Murdock, Ray Ruf, Bob Doerr, Virginia Rogers, Ed Wetterstrom, Henri Boussi, and Laura Wolfe.

Tickets are on sale in front of the Morris Dailey auditorium or may be secured from Mr. Gillis in Room 51.

Tea, Fashion Show To Add to Alumni Day

According to the announcement of the Home Economics department, afternoon tea will be served and a fashion show presented for the entertainment of alumni, faculty, and friends from 3:45 to 5:30 on Homecoming Day, Saturday, in room 1 of the Home Economics building.

Council Approves Recommendation Of Committeemen

Public Address System Will Be Installed With Surplus Money

A cut of approximately $7000 from the proposed associated students' budget for the coming year was approved by the student council yesterday when the special budget committee gave a report and recommendation to the executive group in the council rooms.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE

Bill Moore, Hugh Staffelbach, and Gil Bishop, members of the special committee, were authorized by the council at the previous meeting and made the extensive studies which resulted in balancing the student budget for the coming year and making a drastic reduction from the proposed budget of $58,686.20.

The decision of the council is now sent to Dr. T.W. MacQuarrie for final approval and will be submitted to the new council the coming year.

ADDRESS SYSTEM

Any money left from the budget will be used to purchase the proposed public address system for the college, recommended the council, and appointed a committee consisting of Mr. Neil Thomas, controller of the college, Hugh Staffelbach, and Mr. Harry Engwicht, radio instructor, to investigate the matter.

Discussion was held on the Far Western Conference student body presidents' convention to be held here in the coming year, with San Jose State as host.

MORE ASSEMBLIES

More student body assemblies for the coming year is the recommendation to be made to President T. W. MacQuarrie, by a committee consisting of Bill Moore, Hugh Staffelbach, Kay McCarthy, and Evelyn Cavala.

The meeting terminated with votes of thanks to Neil Thomas for his help to the council in the capacity of adviser, and to Rae Dobyns, Si Simoni, and Evelyn Cavala for their work in arranging the council picnic.

FERA Workers

Those now on the FERA lists who wish to be considered for the autumn quarter should file application with Miss Dimmick or Mr. Goddard before college classes. Special application blanks may be obtained in the deans' offices. In every case the written application must be supplemented with a personal interview.

No information that a FERA grant will be made for next year has been received. Applications are being accepted on a "When, and if" basis only.

General Assembly Audience Cheers Announcement By T. W. MacQuarrie

C. C. Cottrell, Senator Young Credited With Aiding Passage of Bill

Jubilant over the unexpected victory, Dr. T. W. MacQuarrie, president of the college, called a general assembly at 3:30 yesterday to announce that Governor Frank F. Merriam had signed assembly bill 174 at 3 o'clock, making San Jose State College the official name of this institution.

Cheers and applause from the audience greeted Dr. MacQuarrie's victorious announcement, which he followed with a brief history of the state colleges' long struggle to pass the bill.

Assemblyman C. C. Cottrell of this district was accredited with having been most instrumental in assuring passage of the bill, which was vigorously opposed by the universities. Senator Sanborn Young likewise was given credit for having a part in the victory.

Yells for Governor Merriam, Assemblyman Cottrell, and Senator Young were led by Dario Simoni; and the meeting was concluded by the singing of "Hail, Spartans, Hail", with Mr. Adolph Otterstein leading. Henry Newbold was the piano accompanist.

Student Body DANCE TO CLIMAX Homecoming

A joint Alumni-Student Body dance will be held as a climax to Homecoming Day on Saturday night from 8:30 to 12 o'clock in the Men's gymnasium, it was announced yesterday after President T. W. MacQuarrie granted special permission to hold a fourth evening dance this quarter.

The afternoon dance, previously scheduled for Friday, will not be held.

Bill Thurlow's popular 10-piece orchestra has been secured to furnish the music for three and a half hours of dancing, and is bringing a special entertainer who will appear in a surprise number.

No stags will be allowed and admission will be by student body cards for students, alumni cards for alumni who have paid their dues for this or next year and 25 cents for other alumni and all outside guests.

Warren Torney, social affairs chairman, and Miss Berta Gray, representing the alumni, are in charge of the dance. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Cox, and Miss Lydia Innes will serve as patrons and patronesses for the alumni.

A.W.S. Council Will Hold Final Meeting

Mary Youngren, newly elected president of A.W.S. will preside at the final meeting of the A.W.S. Council Thursday at 5 o'clock.

Plans for the entertainment of new students in the fall quarter will be the principal business of the meeting and committees for this function will be appointed at the meeting.

The president requests that all new and old members of the council be present.

Let 'em Eat Cake

By RAYMOND WALLACE

Turn out and make merry! Sound the umlauts! Joe Kallikak-Juke has returned! Rejoice, rejoice!

Awakened about two o'clock this morning by the crash of glass, I turned on the light, to see my long absent roommate entering through the bedroom window. "I forgot my key", he explained, in his simple, manly way.

"You never had one," I accused. "The door wasn't locked. It never is. You know as well as I do that it won't. What do you mean by this?" He looked so hurt at this that I had not the heart to press the matter further. He came immediately to bed, caught the top corner of the blankets under his chin and the bottom corner between his feet, and rolled comfortably up in them, as is his habit. Fortunately for me it was a warm night.

He told me this morning that he had worked his way around the Horn on the S.S. Sally Patica, which I know to be a lie, for no skipper would hire him on that basis. His appetite alone would far outweigh the value of any work he might be persuaded to perform.

The Campus Philosopher, who, between sessions of philosophy is also a psychoanalyst, has been analyzing Joe on the basis of his acts and some of his old returned exes. Upon hearing this morning that Joe has returned, he communicated to me the results of his study. The Philosopher is a former pupil of the Strassenecke Schule fur Psychoanalyse, from which he graduated with the degree of D.P.F. (Docotor of Pseudolgia Fantastica).

"Joe", he said, in part, "suffers from his inability to reconcile his oedipus complex with his electra longings. This, of course, has resulted in the ego and the super-ego allying themselves and attacking the id. As there has been as yet no formation of a super-id, it has followed as a matter of logical consequence that Joe has become super-stupid. If, in the primal scene, oedipus has only mated with electra, we should have had none of this scatological upheaval, and his personality would have been properly scotomized."

Asking to simplify his findings

somewhat, the Philosopher said the conflict of imagos has greatly increased the concentration of the plifying still further, he admitted its natural concomitant result. Simplifying still further, he admitted the probability that Joe is a "lettle tetched in the haid."

The Campus Philosopher is world-famous for his interpretations, and holds the absentee office of Gewaltige Arzenei of the German Psychoanalytical Society. While leaning somewhat toward Freudian, Jungian, and Adlerian views, and occasionally finding himself in agreement with Fenichel, Ferenczi, De Voss, and Jastrow, he is yet definitely of the Brummangem school.

Joe himself does not subscribe to this interpretation, holding merely that he has lived ahead of his time. "I was born," he says, "thirty days too soon." He brought back with him a small basket of cavalryman's grapes, as a present for me, and announces that he is going to set up in business, and touch for the king's evil. "I tried touching a few people in the East, after your money ran out," he confided to me, "but had no luck. In fact, I was jailed as a vagrant, which I cannot understand. The magistrate informed me that legally anyone who had no money and no job was a vagrant. This cannot be true, for it would make vagrants of all the students here at San Jose State. Anyhow," he concluded, "I hope to do better here."

After hearing his many points detailed by the Philosopher, I hardly know which to admire more, Joe, as a character, or myself, as his biographer. However, my appreciation of my own sterling qualities is gradually gaining ground, and I have little doubt that I shall come in the end to have quite as high an opinion of myself as of Joe.

BEHIND THE NEWS

(Editor's note: This is a resume of the "Behind the News" class as reported by Victor Carlock. The lecture, the last of this quarter, was given by Dr. William Poytress.)

Recently ruled unconstitutional by the United States Supreme court, the National Industrial Recovery Administration (NRA) has become powerless in enforcement of its codes.

The NRA is a result of President Roosevelt's belief that our present economic system is merely out of balance, and that the trouble can be rectified by building up weaker groups—labor and agriculture—and exerting more control over the stronger—industry and finance.

PARTNERSHIP

During the entire life of the NRA the consumer and his representatives have been considered unimportant—the ideal of the administration being a partnership between labor, industry, and the government, the latter to act as arbitrator or referee. Unfortunately, industry became the senior partner, labor the junior partner, and the government the "sleeping" partner.

Because the anti-trust laws were temporarily suspended, so that industries could organize their codes, labor and the consumer had little or nothing to do with the formation of the codes. As a consequence they were made favorable to the industries, by providing for decreased production at higher prices. In the long run, however, the industries were cheating themselves by cutting down the market.

Although the right to bargain collectively was given labor, and certain minimum wage, maximum hours, and child labor clauses were included in each code before it was approved, little real gain was made by labor through the NRA.

NRA PROTESTED

Roosevelt intended to prevent monopolies, price fixing, and unduly high profits among the industries by means of the "big stick", but these policies proved to be largely bluff, and little enforcement in these connections was attained by NRA Administrator General Hugh Johnson.

As NRA got under way protests from many sources flooded Washington. Senator Borah led the fight against it by denouncing it as an organ of, by and for "big business". Monopoly and price-fixing developed; and small employer in many cases could not maintain the provisions of the codes, and many codes began breaking up almost as soon as they were put into practice. All of the "service codes", except for labor provisions, were abandoned in May, 1934.

COURT DECISION

Review of the NRA by the Supreme court was expected at any time after its birth, and both its friends and its enemies realized that the fate of the act must sooner or later be decided by the court.

The decision of unconstitutionality came as an extension bill was being presented to Congress. The Senate bill was in favor of extending the emergency act for nine and a half months, while the House Ways and Means committee proposed an extension of two more years. Since the court's decision does not condemn the NRA itself, but rather the enforcement of its codes, it is uncertain what steps will be taken now by the administration.

When brought before the Supreme court, the NRA was declared unconstitutional on two counts. First, that congress had given the executive powers that belonged to the legislative. Second, that the NRA was attempting to regulate intrastate commerce.

ROOSEVELT DISAPPOINTED

Although the NRA is unconstitutional, it should not have been condemned so drastically from the economic point of view, and President Roosevelt is wholly correct in describing the decision as an unfortunate one. Since the NRA is an emergency measure, it is possible that the president could have been given such power, but the court did not see it that way.

Because of modern communication and transportation facilities, it is becoming increasingly difficult to draw the line between interstate commerce and intrastate commerce. Our economic and social position is such that increasing power in the hands of the Federal government is necessary. Once more the Supreme court has stepped in to prevent the government from catching up with economic and social facts.

By GIL BISHOP

Here's a little sideline that will be appreciated by those who attended the Junior Olympic boxing and wrestling matches. It seems that Earl Booker, colored fighter of the Native Sons, and Lawrence Herrera of Tech High were scheduled to meet in the final bout of the evening, the 135 pound finals—and Mr. Booker failed to show up. With due graciousness, Emory McLaughlin of the Bears offered to let Harold Toussint, his lightweight protege, box in Booker's place, even though Toussint had already had a tough workout in the afternoon. Toussint hadn't entered the tournament and the medal for first automatically went to Herrera, with "Happy" Pross's Booker still unheard from. It was an action of courtesy and sportsmanship on the part of McLaughlin, who cooperated with the officials to the final degree, something that deserves note. We might also mention that Toussint went ahead a couple of nights ago in San Francisco and took a decision over the favored Booker in the State championships. All of which goes to show something or other.

While we're on the subject of Pross, we heard, said Pross was very optimistic about the final results of the boxing held at the local pavilion—before the fights. The Native Sons, who are managed by the aforementioned gentleman, ended up in last place in the point score.

We also hear that the two boys who fought in that 135 pound battle, Toussint and Herrera, are planning to enter San Jose State next fall. Both should be welcomed with open arms by "Dee" Portal, and should be instrumental in bringing up the boxing prestige of Sparta.

One of our most affable coaches, Charles Walker, mentor of the swimming and soccer teams, plus intramural head, has pulled up stakes and headed for the great unknown, or Columbia University in New York City, where he will seek further degrees and more knowledge. Charlie has great prospects for a sensational soccer season, according to Al Rhines, who is a great soccer follower, or something of the sort. Al makes great inroads into the soccer and swimming situation.

What a battle out on that football turf. DeGroot has let it be known that only 25 players will make the trip to Willamette for the first clash, and what a tangle for those 25 spots. We don't envy the head man at all when it comes to picking out the outstanding 25 gridders to make the trek north. There'll be a lot of disappointed boys and 25 happy ones, but we have a hunch that the decision will be reversed over the 1934 score with the northerners. This year's edition of the Spartan football machine looks at least 25 per cent stronger than last year's eleven, which got a conference championship tie out of the scramble. Hi-yuh, Fresno!

MANAGERS ASSOCIATION

Inter-class All-stars—17

Varsity—5

Well, well, well! It really happened.

Hopping on the offering of A. Worthington Ely for a boatload of solid hits, the all-stars completely demolished the hopes of the favored varsity pastimers.

This victory gives the championship of the school to the all-stars, who after winning the first game of the three game series, dropped the second and then gained the title through yesterday's win.

Hitting honors of the day went to Frank Merritt, intra-mural shortstop. James Welch, lanky first sacker, also had his batting eye and got three hits in four times at bat. Both were fielding luminaries in the all-important battle. Add Elwood Minor, left-fielder for the air-tight boys.

Johnny Leo, pitching his third game of the series, was in top form and after a rocky first inning held the varsity bat swingers well under control. Gil Bishop, steady center fielder for the varsity, tried his hand in the box, relieving Ely, but looked better out in the pasture.

Harry Hardiman, pepper-box manager for the varsity, played long enough to drop a ball at first and pave the way for a few more all-star runs. The heretofore tight fielding of the varsity was sadly lacking with the infield throwing the ball any and everywhere.

This ball game finished the intra-mural competition for the year.
