Women To Vote Today For A. W. S. Officers

Last Symphony Orchestra Concert And Guest Artist To Be Presented In Morris Dailey Assembly Tonight

A. Smith To Be Featured In Rachmaninoff's Rhapsody; Other Feature "On The Trail"

Appearing before a local audience for the last time this year, the San Jose State college symphony orchestra will present its free annual spring concert this evening at 8:15 in the Morris Dailey auditorium under the baton of Adolph W. Otterstein, music department head.

Alfred H. Smith, senior music major and well-known pianist, will be guest soloist. He will be featured in Rachmaninoff's Rhapsody for Piano and Orchestra.

Among the feature selections the 100-piece orchestra will play will be the popular On the Trail from the Grand Canyon Trio by Ferde Grofe.

Other selections included are Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, Rimsky-Korsakov's Russian Easter Overture, and Wagner's Tannhauser.

The orchestra, one of the most noted college symphonies on the coast, has been invited to play part of the Standard Symphony hour over the N.B.C. network Thursday night between 8:15 and 9:15.

Reserve seats for faculty members may be secured in the President's office for tonight's concert.

Harkey To Run With Sheaffer For Presidency

Women students go to the polls today to vote for officers to lead the Associated Women students during the next school year.

Barbara Harkey and Vivian Sheaffer are the contestants for the office of president. The one polling the most votes will win that office and the other one will automatically become vice-president.

Barbara Harkey has been treasurer of A.W.S. for the past year, is a past president of Spartan Spears, was co-chairman of the food committee for Spardi Gras, chairman of the Women's Jinks and the Leap Year dance, and has been active in junior class activities and on the social affairs committee.

Vivian Sheaffer is also an outgoing member of A.W.S. council, having served as assistant entertainment chairman for the past year. She is secretary of the sophomore class, a member of Spartan Spears, and has been active on A.W.S. committees. She is chairman of the A.W.S. installation banquet which is to be

AWARDS, HONORARIUMS TO FEATURE PROGRAM

New Spartan Spears, Black Masque Members Will Be Presented For Recognition At General Meeting Today

With more than sixty awards to be presented and forty new members to be installed into the ranks of campus honorary societies, San Jose State college students will be released from classes at 10:30 this morning to attend the annual recognition day assembly in the Morris Dailey auditorium.

In the rally committee's last function of the year, the program will include the presentation of scholarships, honorariums, debate, music, and president's awards in addition to ceremonies by Black Masque and Spartan Spears and the inauguration of the new student council.

In order to speed up the overcrowded program, members of the organizations to be presented and those who are to receive awards will be seated in roped off sections in the front of the auditorium. Black Masque will occupy the first two rows of the center section, old and new council members the third and fourth rows of the center section, those who are to receive scholarships the first two rows of the south section, debate managers the third row of the south section, Spartan Spears the first two rows of the north section, and those who are to receive music awards the third, fourth and fifth rows of the north section.

The program will be as follows: 10:30—Selections by the college band. 10:40—Scholarships. 10:45—One-half of the Honorariums for school service. 10:55—Black Masque. 11:05—Old Council. 11:10—Installation of new president. 11:15—President's award. 11:18—New Council. 11:23—Spartan Spears. 11:28—Debate. 11:33—Music awards. 11:45—Other half of Honorariums. 11:55—Band.

DAVENPORT FIRST
Miss Margaret Davenport, San Jose State college music major, placed first in three of the entries, and second in one. Miss Davenport took first and second in the piano solos, with her selections of "Elegy", and "Idyll". Clifford Cunha was the winner of the third piano solo prize.
Winners of the vocal solo are: First, Jean Rogers; second, Teresa McKenna; third, Lola Kinne.

VOCAL WINNERS
Vocal Ensemble: First, Margaret Meluar; second, Clifford Cunha; third, Norma Jones.
Instrumental Ensemble: First, Margaret Davenport; second, Fay Jones; third, Bernard Watson.
Mr. Warren Allen, of the Stanford University music department, acted as judge of the contest.

Formal Banquet To Be Scene Of Ceremony
Officers elected at the polls today will be installed at the annual Associated Women students formal installation banquet at Rudolph's Thursday evening at 6:30 p.m.
All women who have served as officers or representatives on A.W.S. council during the past year as well as the new officers may attend the banquet, and must sign up by Wednesday with Miss Berta Gray in the Publications office, Vivian Sheaffer, chairman of the affair, announces.
The price of the dinner is forty-one cents to be paid at the time of signing up.

Infant Clothing To Be Exhibition Theme

Representative of the work done in the Home Economics department in the study of child care, a comprehensive exhibit of infants' wear will be featured in the downstairs exhibit cases of the department until June 12.

The exhibit, which also includes other phases of child care, shows the relative cost of the purchased layette and the homemade layette. Supplied through the courtesy of Juvenile Shops Ltd. of San Jose, the display was arranged by the class in methods of teaching Home Economics subjects, under the direction of Dr. Margaret Jones.

MABEL GIFFORD SPEAKS TODAY IN SPEECH WING

Mrs. Mabel Farrington Gifford, an internationally known pioneer in the field of speech correction, will speak to the students of San Jose State college this afternoon between 2:15 and 3:00 o'clock in room 165 of the Speech wing. Her talk will concern the development of the speech correction credential here at State as well as the growth of Speech work over the world.

Mrs. Gifford has recently returned from a round-the-world tour which she made in order to include men's physical education, $600, advertising $45, debate $50, one-acts $50, and W.A.A. $35.

The total cuts made figured $3,455. This balances the budgets at $39,360.68. On the P. E. budget, the council recommended that track take the major portion of the cut.

Stewart Maus To Play; B'loonz'll Be Dropped

To the music of Stewart Maus, the last evening dance of the Spring quarter will be held Saturday evening, June 13, in the men's gymnasium from 9 to 12 o'clock.

During the evening's festivities 750 balloons will be dropped from the ceiling. In addition to the balloons, several door prizes will be awarded. As has been the custom of the social affairs committee during the past quarter, all prizes will be secured from the Co-op store.

The gym will be transformed from a pavilion into a ballroom by the clever use of crepe paper and soft lights. The decorations this time will run lengthwise of the gym floor.

The dance is being given in conjunction with the alumni activities which will be held during the day. All members of the alumni group are extended a cordial invitation to attend the affair, which is being given in their honor.

Bob Rector To Edit Yearbook

Budgets were balanced and heads of the two major publications on the campus were appointed at last night's stormy session of the two student councils.

Steve Murdock, now working on the Mercury Herald staff as a general reporter, was recommended for the position of editor of the Spartan Daily by Dwight Bentel, director of publications. Robert Rector, newly elected council member, was likewise recommended to succeed Kay Epps, as editor of La Torre.

Other suggestions as made by Bentel and approved by the council were the appointments of Jack Reynolds as publications business manager, and Burton Abbott as business manager of the Daily.

The band budget took the largest slicing from the council members as a successful attempt was made to balance the accounts. This budget was cut $2000, leaving $644.25 for the year 1936-37.

La Torre budget was the second to take a large cutting. This ledger was reduced $675, placing the account back to $3000 that of this year's standard.

WARDEN FOWLER swung his car across the street and stopped in front of the service station.

"Fill 'er up," he tossed to the attendant, who appeared as if by signal. "You'd better check the—"

Fowler stopped and stared as if paralyzed. His eyes were glued to those of the young station operator confronting him. Half aloud, his wife, in the front seat beside him, heard her husband mutter, "No, it couldn't be you—it couldn't be!"

"What is the matter with you, Marvin?" questioned Mrs. Fowler, an attractive woman in her late forties. "It couldn't be who?"

"Oh nothing—nothing at all. Guess I was just seeing things," but he kept watching the young man who was busy refueling his car.

Alvin Conlin's mind was whirling, as he put the nozzle of the hose into the gas tank. "Did he recognize me? What will I do if he does?" he thought to himself. As he lifted the hood to check the oil, Fowler blurted out,

"You're Al Conlin, sure as the devil!"

"That's right, warden. Didn't think you'd know me, but it has been said that you never forget a face. Can't be lucky all the time!"

"This will be a tough break for my wife and kid. Before you take me back I wish you would come out to the house and meet the rest of the family. Alicia knows what I was before, so you don't need to worry about breaking any bad news."

Conlin talked on; his face betraying not a single emotion. His eyes were clear, his voice steady; revealing not a sign of what was going on in his head.

"If you'll wait about thirty minutes my helper will be here. Then we'll be on our way."

"Okay, Al! We'll wait," returned Fowler. He drove the car around to the side of the station, and turned to his wife. Can you beat that, Doris?"

Doris Fowler, interested in her husband's work insisted on hearing the story.

"You remember the break of '29, Doris," the warden began. "Six of the boys tried to walk out on me. Well, they were all caught except one. That one was Alvin Conlin, this service station operator, although probably he is known by an alias here."

"Al was a good prisoner. I don't think he deserved to serve a stretch in the pen anyway. At the time he was sent up, he was attending the University—in his third year, I think—studying to be an engineer. Near the end of the term he became hard pressed for funds. No parents to help him out—no close relatives, so as a last resort he held up several small service stations out on East O. He got away with it, too, for quite a while, but the law finally caught up with him."

"There wasn't much of a trial. Not having any money to hire a good lawyer, Al had to plead guilty and beg for leniency. He was sent up for five years."

"Now, facing a five year prison term when you are just barely 21, doesn't give a fellow a very happy outlook on life. But Al Conlin accepted his fate almost stoically. He never complained, did his work well, and was liked by all the inmates."

"I became interested in this boy. I watched him in the prison yard; I watched him as he worked in the jute mill; as he pitched for the prison baseball team. Incidentally, he had been the star on the University nine. Al Conlin was a leader."

"After he had been with us for six or eight months, I had him brought into my office. I wanted to know more about this lad who took his punishment so heroically. "I remember distinctly, entering my office cap in hand, Al greeted me with an even, 'Hello Warden. What's on your mind?' He didn't smile, but the salutation was made amicable enough by the very tone of his voice."

"At once I thought, 'Prison is no place for this boy. He will be harmed more than helped by staying here.' I was wrong in that respect, however, as I found out later."

"'Sit down, son,' I said, and offered him a cigarette. He inhaled deeply and relaxed. We talked for some time. Just talked about every-day things—the football season, for instance, and Nebraska's chances in the Big Six. We discussed hunting and fishing, which are his two hobbies, as well as mine. After an hour of this I dismissed him. He wore a perplexed expression as he turned to leave, but no questions were asked."

"'Darned nice to really talk to someone, Warden. When I get out of here we'll have to get together on one of those hunting trips into the Black Hills,' he added."

"From then on quite a friendship sprang up between us. Little by little I pried my way into this kid's mind and heart. It took a long time, though. He didn't want to talk about himself."

"Al Conlin wasn't one of these 'across the tracks' boys who had struggled from childhood. He comes from a good family. I don't mean blue-bloods with positions in the social register, but they were average Americans."

"Both of them were killed in a train wreck about the time Al finished grammar school. Some relative was appointed his guardian, Al didn't get along in his new home, so he ran away. He worked his way through high school, and almost through college. Then in his junior year his money ran out. The kid didn't want to ask his guardian for help, so he took the stick-up way out. It didn't work."

Warden Fowler glanced at his watch.

"We've been waiting here over twenty minutes. Al ought to be ready to go pretty soon. Guess the best thing would be to lock him up here over night, and then send for a couple of the boys to come and get him. Let's see! This is Tuesday, isn't it? If I get the wire off tonight they could leave by plane in the morning, and be here tomorrow night. We'll see later!"

"Do you want to hear the rest before Al comes, Doris?" the Warden continued.

Mrs. Fowler moved her head in an affirmative gesture, as her husband began to speak. She didn't bother to assent audibly, for she knew too well he wouldn't stop in the middle of a story.

"One day as I was making my way around the yard during recreation period, I came upon Al leaning against a building, just leaning there, staring out into nothing over the prison wall."

"Thinking about leaving us," I questioned in a jocular fashion.

"Evidently he had not heard me come up behind him, for he turned quickly, like a small boy caught red-handed. His embarrassment was evident. In a moment he regained his composure and laughed, 'No, I wasn't contemplating such a foolish move as that; not for a while, at least. But don't forget it, Warden, someday I'll get away from these four walls.'"

"That's right, Al," I said, "another year and you'll be free, white, and able to do as you please."

"Maybe before that," he grinned, 'If the guards all go to sleep some afternoon.'

"Right there is where I didn't understand this boy. Naturally, I didn't think he was the least bit serious."

"I completely forgot the episode in a few days. Then it happened. Vigilance on the part of one of the guards had become lax for a moment. With Al as their leader, six prisoners overpowered him, took his gun away, and with the guard as a shield they bodily paraded into my office."

"Guns and ammunition were all they demanded if I refused they threatened to shoot me and the captive guard on the spot, so I conceded without hesitation."

"'See you again, Warden,' Al cast at me as he backed out, his eyes unwavering as the gun in his hand. That 'I told you so' look was written all over his face."

"The break was timed perfectly. A car screeched to a stop as they gained the outer gate, their hostage ever held in front."

"Three days later three of them were back in 'solitary'; one was dead, killed during the capture; but Al Conlin escaped. We were right behind him several times, but he always managed to out-wit us. After two months all active search was stopped. Sooner or later I was sure we'd catch up with him."

"Did, too! Damn it Doris, the kid's got what it takes. Don't see why we had to stop here to get gas." The Warden was startled from his audible meditations by the sound of footsteps on the gravel.

"Here he comes Doris. You get in the back seat."

Mrs. Fowler complied with her spouse's wishes without questioning. Al Conlin deposited himself in front rather wearily, and gave Fowler the necessary directions to reach his home. It was a small, but typically modern California bungalow, on the outskirts of a thriving rural community.

On the lawn a curly-headed youngster of about three was playing with a black and white puppy. He was so absorbed that he paid no attention to the car that

HOME ECONOMICS WING TO GIVE FASHION SHOW

Modeling modern and old-fashioned clothes, members of the Home Economics department will conduct a fashion show on the west lawn of the Home Economics building on Alumni Homecoming day, June 13, from 3:30 to 5:00 o'clock.

With a gorgeous wedding gown of the 1870's being modeled as one of the outstanding features of the old fashioned division, two tiny bridesmaids dressed in old fashioned costume will be portrayed by the Misses Jeanne and Jannette Heymann.

The old fashioned costumes are being shown primarily for the inspiration which they offer in the designing of modern styles, states Miss Velma Hamilton of the Home Economics department who is supervising the fashion show.

Modeling modern styles which have been made by students of the Home Economics department, active and spectator sports, street wear, afternoon, and evening wear will be among the fifty-five garments which have been made in class.

During the fashion show, tea will be served at tables on the lawn by the Food class of the Home Economics department.

stopped in front of the house. Alicia Conlin came to the front door as Al alighted from the automobile. Even in her house dress and apron, she presented a charming picture framed in the doorway.

Consternation shadowed her face momentarily, but when she saw Mrs. Fowler in the rear seat her fear vanished. She was always afraid that someone would come and take Al away from her. However, Alicia always pictured the law as a group of men with shiny badges on their lapels, carrying guns and handcuffs.

"Might as well come in for awhile Mr. Fowler," Conlin offered. "Just want to say good-bye to Alicia and Marv, and make arrangements for them to go to her mother's place. Won't take long. Then we'll all have a bite to eat."

"What did you call the kid, Al?" queried the Warden.

"Marv! Short for Marvin! Why? There's no law against naming my son after you, is there?"

"No, but—Well, I'll be!" Warden Marvin Fowler was stumped. He wanted to say something, but he was afraid, lest his voice break.

"Mr. and Mrs. Fowler, Alicia," Conlin managed as they gained the door. "Old friends of mine from back home."

"Do come in," Alicia greeted them. "I'm always so glad to meet any of Al's old friends." To Al she added, "How did the station go today, dear?"

Warden Fowler winced. On entering the house Conlin drew his wife aside, to acquaint her with Fowler's visit as quietly as possible. The Fowlers had hardly seated themselves, when young Marvin burst in, his spotted mongrel pup galloping clumsily behind.

Without formality he approached the Warden and asked with no trace of embarrassment, "Who are you?"

Fowler avoided the boy's frank stare, and looked to his wife for aid. She purposely turned to watch the puppy battling desperately with an imaginary foe.

Dud DeGroot Selects Football Squads For Homecoming Game

FLASH!!

SAN FRANCISCO— June 8, 11:30 p.m.—Stan Griffin, Spartan 175 pounder, was proclaimed the lighthheavy weight amateur champion of California tonight by virtue of his four-round decision over Bob Mobley of Los Angeles, in the State championship finals held at Dreamland auditorium.

Griffin was the only San Jose State entree to survive the preliminary matches of the tourney, and emerge with a State tilt.

Tony Donadio, flashy 124 pounder, entered in the novice class, found too much opposition in the form of Leo Tringale of the Olympic Club, and was named the loser after four fast rounds.

In the semi-finals of the novice welterweight class, Bill Moulden dropped a close decision to Karney Kope. The remaining Washington Square contestant, Paul Gerhart, had not entered the ring when this report was received.

In the state championship matches, Northern California proved superior by taking six of the eight titles from the Southern contingent.

San Jose's hopes for a team title were blasted into oblivion with Donadio's and Moulden's losses.

Apologetic Sports Staff Offers Athletic Poll To All Students, Coeds

"Whar's mah gloves?"

Highly indignant and a wee bit apologetic are members of the Spartan Daily sports staff and sponsors of the first annual All-Spartan Sports Poll.

Four weeks of balloting by the sports writers, coaches, captains-managers and athletes for the outstanding athlete of the year and the final selection of outstanding sports figures for a berth on the All-Spartan Mythical Eleven had nearly climaxed a series of polls when with a "crash" came a series of vocal bombardments.

COMPLAINTS MADE

First came the complaint that the Poll was unfair; second that very, very complete results should be compiled and thirdly that the ballot box was being stuffed to the satisfaction of the sports staff.

All accusations are denied and for the benefit of a very few, the very, very, complete results will be announced and all students, (co-eds included), and faculty members are invited to fill out the accompanying BALLOT for the final week of voting.

SCORING SYSTEM

Also included in the list of explanations is the "basis of eight" point scoring system. Eight scribes, eight coaches, sixteen managers and captains, and thirty-two athletes cast their choices.

In order to put the voting on equal terms with the writers and coaches, the captains-managers point total was divided by two. In a like manner, the athlete point-total was divided by four and the highest eleven candidates were nominated for honors for that week.

Dee Portal Stages Boxing Team Feed

Climaxing the finish of a successful season, the San Jose State boxing squad will journey to Coach DeWitt Portal's ranch for a barbecue Thursday afternoon.

All men who participated in any outside meet are expected to be on hand for the frolic at which time next year's boxing captain will be elected.

Portal is making plans for accommodating something like 25 boxers and their lady friends on Thursday. All men who are planning to attend should get in touch with Manager Dick Edmonds at once.

Practice Includes "C" Formation Slants, Flanker Plays

Following last night's practice on Carlisle and flanker plays, Dud DeGroot announced his teams for the Homecoming Day football game.

DUEL WAR

Contrary to the previous session held on Spardi Gras Day, Saturday's encounter will be strictly on a duel basis, with two distinct squads opposing each other.

Last night's workout found the boys going to work on a little brushing up of old plays, with flanker plays which were strong points toward the last of the 1935 campaign receiving their share of attention.

"C" FORMATION

Strong Carlisle or old "C" formation slants were also incorporated into a scrimmage by the so-called number one outfit toward the latter stages of the afternoon. With Lewis and right halves Peach and Argilla doing most of the ball packing, the unbalanced drives looked good for yardage.

Coaches have not been selected for the Saturday fray, but it is certain that DeGroot will do most of the mentoring of one team with Hubbard taking over the reins of the second contingent. Whether DeGroot will take a veteran bunch or tackle the rookies is a question.

NEED POLISH

Both outfits showed their routine was still not a matter of mechanical play last night and the head man may try to brush up on his vets which should carry the brunt of the fall schedule.

The teams, as set now, follow below. A few more substitutes may be added to the "Blue" ranks from the "Gold" squad.

"Blues": Ends—Baldwin, Lantagne, Wattenbarger and Wing. Tackles—Daily, Martin, Wilson. Guards—Cannell, Hudson, Redman. Center—Swartzell. Quarterback—Carpenter. Left-Half—Merino. Right Halves—Peach and Argilla. Fullback—Lewis.

Baseballers Pick ST. MARY'S As Best Players

Complete results of the Spartan varsity's baseball all-opponent team as selected by members of the 1936 diamonders brought forth one astounding fact as they were released today.

FOUR GAELS

St. Mary's, who had previously boasted a perfect record until beaten by San Jose, placed four men on the final first team. The Spartans were the first college team to down the Gaels, who had a string of seven victories over leading college nines until whacked down, 12-8, by the Blacowites.

The all-opponent team, composed only of amateurs, was selected by players, two senior managers and Coach Joe Blacow. The critics agreed with fair consistency except at first base and at shortstop.

CLOSE RACE

The first sack job turned out to be a voting battle between Goodell of Santa Clara and Fleckenstein of St. Mary's, the former winning out, while at shortstop Marble of S.F.U. just managed to nose out Webber of the Gaels.

Complete results:
Owen (St. M.).... C Sonnenberg *M Goodell (SC).... FB Fleckenstein SM Jenal (Loyola).... P..... Bailey (M) Goodell (SC).... FB Fleckenstein SM Sullivan (SM).... SC..... Cassa (SC) Kelleher (SM).... TB..... Dutton (SC) Marble (SFU).... SS..... Webber (SM) Trutta (SM).... LF..... Woods (SFS) Archer (C).... CF..... Shult (Loy.) Scattini (SF).... RF..... Barsotti (SM) *San Diego Marines.

Will the following men please meet Gene Rocchi at 12 o'clock today in the Publications office to make arrangements for pictures of All-Spartan Sports Poll: Burt Watson, Fran Pura, Jim Stockdale, Bull Lewis, Ben Melzer, Les Carpenter, Howard Withycombe, Sherman Sawtelle, and Jack Fiebig.

SENIOR BALL BIDS AVAILABLE FOR GRADS TILL THURSDAY

Final warnings were issued today by executives of the senior class pertaining to the bids for the Senior Ball, slated for Friday evening at the Scottish Rite auditorium.

Graduates have until Thursday morning at senior orientation to purchase their $1.25 admission to the ball. At that time, if any of the 225 bids are left on hand, the sale will be thrown open to the general student body.

SANDWICH ISLES

Under the direction of Dorothy Nelson, a novel Hawaiian setting has been arranged for the auditorium. A weaving of gold and white will furnish the canopy over the large floor, while Al Davina's music will make its way out of palm trees and trailing vines which will surround the hardwood.

The school color ideas have been carried out to the nth degree, with flashing programs in the traditional college colors due to make their appearance.

The acquisition of Davina's musical masters is an additional attraction, for the head man promises Burt Watson plus his fun-makers trio.

Dennis Bennett Elected Fall Quarter Prexy Of Radio Club At Meeting

Dennis Bennett was elected president of the Radio club for the fall quarter at a meeting held yesterday at the radio shack. Charles Homewood is the outgoing president.

Other officers elected were: vice-president, Roy Ozawa; secretary-treasurer, Frances Smith; social chairman, Bill Heath; traffic manager, Douglas Wolfgram; technician, Bob Walden.

Plans for the replacement of borrowed equipment which was stolen from the recent radio exhibit were discussed at the meeting. About thirty dollars will be required to buy parts for new equipment, according to Charles Homewood, unless the stolen instruments are returned. A reward has been offered by the club for the return of the equipment and no questions will be asked of the person who brings the missing articles back.

WIDER DISTRIBUTION OF LA TORRES EXPECTED WITH FREE BOOK OFFER

With a free book in the offering for everyone who has been in attendance at San Jose State college the whole year, copies of the 1936 La Torre are expected to be widely distributed on the campus this year.

The payment of only 40 cents for each quarter's absence places the yearbook on such a low cost for everyone that considerable confusion is expected with the increased distribution of the books June 15.

In order to speed up the giving out of books and place the maroon

W.A.A. To Install Heads Saturday

Hotel DeAnza Dinner To Be Scene Of Rights

Newly elected Women's Athletic Association council members and officers will be installed June 16 at an installation dinner to be held at Sevin's on the Alameda.

The affair, to begin at 6:30 o'clock, will be a formal occasion which will be attended by both new and old council members and members of the faculty of the women's physical education department.

SHIELDS TO LEAD

Doris Shields, recently re-elected president of the W.A.A. will have charge of the installation ceremony, with Carmelita Gilcrest in charge of arrangements.

Women who were elected to the council last week were Mavis Crowell, Jean Hughes, Betty Moore, Frances Scott, Mary Willson, Lillian Brown, and Doris Shields. At a meeting of the council shortly after the election Mary Willson was elected secretary of the association and Doris J. Smith was chosen athletic manager. Faculty advisers for the coming year will be Miss Marjorie Lucas and Mrs. Maud Knapp.

LATER OFFICERS

Representatives of the council of seasonal sports including hockey, basketball, and speedball will be appointed later from among the members at large elected by last Wednesday's voting.

Frosh Planning To Give Class Awards

Because they do not participate in Recognition day activities, to be held in Morris Dailey auditorium at 10:30 this morning, the Freshman class has planned its own Recognition day to take the place of orientation Thursday.

At this time the 15 members of the class who have acquired the highest scholastic average will be awarded honors, and Freshman athletes will be similarly recognized.

"This will undoubtedly be the most important Freshman orientation meeting of the year," states Dean Charles Goddard, "as it is an innovation to the Freshman class and provides a substitute to the freshmen who are not allowed to participate in the regular Recognition day."

Mabel Gifford To Talk Today

(Continued from Page One) study the clinic procedure and recent developments in her field of speech activity over the world. Mrs. Gifford is credited with having done more than any other person to create an appreciation and a desire for the educational benefits of speech correction in the schools of California. She is particularly interested in the development of the Speech correction credential at San Jose State because she believes that the present organization of the Speech department is ideally suited for rapid progress in this particular direction.

San Jose State, in turn, is grateful to Mrs. Gifford for her permission to grant the degree, in-as-much as it delivers to the college superiority in the Speech field over any other similar institution of the West.

Students who are interested in meeting Mrs. Gifford for the purpose of discussing the requirements of the credential may meet her in Mr. William McCoard's office, Room 159 of the Speech wing, after 3:00 o'clock today.

BREAKFAST, ETC. PLANNED FOR ALUMNI ON JUNE 13

Reunion breakfasts and dinners, music concerts, teas, receptions, football games, and a dance are the headliners which are scheduled to greet fellow-alumni on Saturday, June 13, when all the grads of San Jose State college will assemble to participate in the Homecoming Day program.

One of the big attractions of Homecoming Day will be the barbecue luncheon to be held on the South Lawn, at which forty members of the Spartan Spears, including last year's members and the newly elected members, will serve. Alice Wilson and Barbara Harkey will take charge of the affair.

Two well-known individuals will appear on the luncheon program, including Joel Carter, soloist, and Mary McDermott McClure, monologist, and who also is general chairman of the day's activities.

From 3 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon, an informal '35 class reunion will be held at the home of Dr. James C. DeVoss. Another interesting feature of the day, will be a Japanese Tea to be held in the South Court, and which will be given by the Japanese students. The Home Economics reception and Fashion Review will be given from 3:30 to 5 o'clock. Following these festivities, a football game, society and organizations dinners, a '32 class reunion dinner at the Hotel De Anza will take place and to bring the day to a close, a student body-Alumni dance will be held in the men's gymnasium from 9 to 12 o'clock.

Women Select New Officers Today

Other nominees who will be voted upon today are Frances Churin and Edith Norton, recording secretary; Roberta Smith and Barbara Woon, corresponding secretary; Glenys Bodkin and Marian Ruge, treasurer; and Reinhild Haerle and Leona Pruett, reporters.

Voting will be held in the quad from 8 to 5 today.

Seniors To Hear Dr. Tully Knoles Plan Heavy Week

'Liberty, Equality, and Fraternity' Savant's Subject June 16

Outstanding among events scheduled for seniors next week are the Baccalaureate sermon Sunday and Commencement the following Thursday.

Dr. Tully Knoles, College of the Pacific president, will address the class at 3:30 p.m. in Morris Dailey auditorium on Baccalaureate day. His subject will be "Liberty, Equality, and Fraternity."

REV. GOULD

The Reverend Benjamin Gould of the San Jose Congregational church, will offer invocation and benediction of the class.

Music for the program will be provided by San Jose State's symphony orchestra, directed by Adolph W. Otterstein. They will play the first movement from Beethoven's fifth symphony in minor. A Cappella choir will sing three numbers.

CLIMAX THURSDAY

Climaxing festivities, graduates will receive diplomas, credentials and degrees in the quad Thursday, June 18. Honorary distinctions will be conferred on 45 students who have maintained the highest scholastic averages during the four years they have attend the college.

An outline of the past history of the college and anticipation for the future will be presented by President T. W. MacQuarrie. Music will be offered by the college band.

Infant's Layette Shown In Display

Showing relative costs of a purchased and homemade layette, a display of infant's wear is on exhibition in the glass cases in the main corridor of the Home Economics building.

Showing an interesting modernistic trend in infants' apparel, knitted things including towels, washcloths, and sheets as well as knitted blankets seem to have gained priority over the usual cotton and flannel used for these articles.

Zippers are also being used for baby, as exhibited in a pink silk outing bag with a zipper running down the front. Ankle socks are used almost entirely instead of the old long stockings.

The exhibit was arranged by Grace Terry and Esther Hullin, students in methods of teaching under the direction of Dr. Margaret Jones.
