Bendeich Paces Locals In Last Half Rally; Grabs Honors With 24 Points

VISITORS LEAD AT HALF-TIME 26-20

Paced by the magic left hand of Charlie Bendeich, the San Jose paced by the magic left hand of Charlie Bendeich, the San Jose Spartans put on a red hot finish to make a decided comeback and climb into the Northern Intercollegiate basketball race by beating the University of San Francisco Dons, 55-40 here last night.

The Hubbardmen put on another "crowd pleaser" for the fans with a bombshell attack in the closing minutes of the game that blasted the Dons out of Spartan Pavilion.

with the score standing at 42-40 in favor of the locals the Spatans went basket-mad and dropped through 14 points in a period of two and a half minutes. This attack featured the work of Southpaw Chuck Bendeich who sank eight digits to run his game total to a staggering 24 points.

It was also Mr. Bendeich who went to work in the second half to put the Spartans back in the ball game after trailing 26-20 at

The southpaw sharpshooter immediately threaded the hoop for a pair of field goals, and Kotta and Thomas each collected one to tie it up at 28-28 after Franusich had sunk two charity tosses.

Then Bendeich dribbled from mid-court through the Don defense to lay in a "cripple" which gave the locals a lead they never relinquished.

Just Among Ourselves

By DR. T. W. MacQUARRIE

My topic today might be called 'Conservation of our Resources" Our resources, as you may know extracted from many an unwilling taxpayer. Anxious as we are to provide every accomodation for students and faculty within our budgets, we still find ourselves limited by the carelessness of a good many of us. These cold morn-ings and cool days I find much carelessness on the part of people who desire ventilation but who open the windows and keep the radiators on full blast. We pay for our oil by the gallon and our gas by the cubic foot. Every time you leave a window open you burn up more fuel in the heating plant. I know it is too much to expect everybody to be careful about such things, but a reasonable consider-ation on the part of reasonable people will probably conserve for the budget a few of those old fashioned concepts we refer to as dollars.

LIGHTS ALSO

May I put in a word, also, about lights. In a good many rooms the lights are not very satisfactory, but please don't leave them on. We paid the P. G. & E. $1800 We paid the P. G. & E. $1800 for last month, largely on account of our light and power bills. In the interests of good citizenship and general good housekeeping, ou please turn off the lights when you are through with them.

TOWELS TOO

I might say, also, a word about aper towels. I wish there was some way by which we could strike a proper balance in their use. students I have noticed just seem to have a good time pulling towels out of the container. I suppose it comes within the range of mechanical toys. Still, our paper towel expenditures are very heavy, and a decent respect for conser-vation there will be appreciated. Governor Olson Is making a great effort to give us a proper budget. In all decency we should respond by cooperating with him in the proper use of all materials and supplies.

"Listen! The Wind" by Anne Morrow Lindberg.

As reivewed by Ruth Plumb.

Anne Lindberg's story of a survey trip from Africa to South America recalls an era of aviation now passed.

Back in 1933, the Lindbergs were stranded in Bathurst, a tiny town off the west coast of Africa With hundreds of miles of ocean to span, the wind had deserted them. Patiently they waited for the lines of Humbert Wolfe's poem to come true.

"Listen! The wind is rising And the air is wild with

After ten days of hardships interspersed with excitement and thrills, they finally completed their trip. Amy Loveman of the Saturday Review of Literature says this of "Listen! The Wind": "Its qualities are intangible but very real and even more than 'North to the Orient' prove Mrs. Lindberg a writer whose work sheds distinction on rather than wins importance from her experience . . . There is a beauty of sentiment and quickness of insight in the book that invest the smallest incident with importance and the lest likely personality with dig-

Mrs. Lindberg does not attempt to interpret her husband, but the reader senses the great companionship between these two flyers.

fat in the fire

By JIM BAILEY

Now comes my immortal stage production (the other word is spelled i-m-m-o-r-a-l). This MIGHTY saga of the West is nature in the raw; primitive, terrifying; but life as it really is! And the men who pioneered this vast new world; brutal perhaps, but red-blooded he-men to the end.

If I have caught a hint of their true spirit; the force which drove on; the glory of their history-making deeds . . my play will live forever!

With bowed head, and basking in the modesty of my genius, I present my drama of the primitive West, "THE DIRTY KILLERS OF SKUNK HOLLER"!

William Poytress Earl C. Campbell NICK, the snitch Death's Head" KANE, a gambler Charlotte Rideout ANNABELLY Worth Oswald SWEATSOCK, an Apache Indian Dwight Bentel THE SHERIFF

SCENE: Our scene opens in the interior of the "Red-Rye Saloon" which is in the little boom town of SLUG GULCH. A bunch of the boys are whooping it up (I suggest you use State students for this atmosphere.) It is the year 1854. Through the heavy mist of smoke we see NICK, the snitch, gambling with "Death's Head" KANE, and a couple of other bums. NICK speaks:

NICK: Gee, I'm lucky, pardner. Heh, heh! KANE: Yeah. Every time you deal you get four aces. Heh, heh! NICK: Heh, heh, heh! And every time you deal you get four aces

KANE: Heh, heh, heh, heh heh . . reach fer yore hog-leg pardnor! Both kick back their chairs and go for their guns. NICK is un-canny. His hand flicks out his gun like the strike of a rattler. It comes up blazin' hot lead. KANE shimmys and then drops, a look of surprise on his face. The only reason we have NICK kill LANE is because Campbell's wife won't let him stay out after dark, and he has to be home. Besides we raise enough KANE in this play . . (heh, heh. Nothing like a bit of humor!)

ACT TWO

(When the curtain rises we find SWEATSOCK hanging over the private bar he has in the back of his wigwam. (if someone says he has a fire burning to keep his wigwam I'll slug 'em!) He has kidnapped ANNABELLY, but she eats too much, so he can't afford to hold her SWEATSOCK: Ugh, ugh . . gulp!

ACT THREE

(This play was only supposed to be two acts but Bentel says I gotta put him in it or he'll take home his football. He is the Sheriff.) SHERIFF: (censored).

NICK: Honest? SHERIFF: And that's not all . . (censored).

NICK: Why I thought . . (censored).

(It's only in your own minds readers!)

-THE END-

I hope this tense drama does not leave your nerves frayed and your fingernails worn. If they are, DRINK CO-OP COFFEE!! (They've agreed to sponsor this column if I'll plug their products). Read what SWEATSOCK has to say about CO-OP COFFEE:

SWEATSOCK: Ugh. (He dies . . that is, from old age, heh!)

For Chapel Hour

Rev. Jeannette O. Harris, former Illinois minister, will discuss the topic "Prophetisaiaah" from the Old Testament for Chapel Quarter Hour at 12:30 today in the Little Theater.

Also on the program will be two students, Bertha Davis, pianist, and Jane Brackett, soloist.

The aim of chapel is to make college students realize that there are still some things more im portant than material things—to provide a few moments each week for quit, relaxation, and thought stimulated by speakers or readers," said Mildred Heeren, former chapel chairman.

Since it began four years ago, through the cooperative efforts of the Kaappa Phi, college women Methodist society, it has become an important YM-YW activity.

Fragile Package TINKLES: PUZZLES Frantic Females JUNIORS TAKE LEAD IN FIRST INTER-CLASS SWIM MEET

A huge package, marked "fragile", arrived at the Women's gym late yesterday afternoon. Someone strong enough to shake it was able to detect a muffled but intriguing tinkle, as of ice floating in liquid.

THREE FIRSTS

The juniors took an easy lead former club president, was refere.

Miss Tucker expressed a wlah for more participants. "It is hoped that many more girls will be out to participate next Monday night. The freshmen followed closely with 40 points, with the seniors trailing at 19.

THREE FIRSTS

It was a shiny new punch bowl, capacity three gallons, and matching ladle (which accounted for the tinkle), the latest possession of the Women's Athletic Association.

While it was purchased primarily for the Social Dancing Ruth Burmester, with three firsts, and one second, held the same position for the juniors. Ruth Burmester, with three firsts, and one second, held the same position for the juniors.

PREDICTS LARGE BUILDINGS
"Six or seven years ago," Mr.
Minnsen said, "it looked like the college as a government school for pilot training as an import-ant step in the college's progress.

He foresees increased labora-ory facilities with the turning tory facilities with the turning out of 50 or 60 trained pilots each than three events. This means that a class with a small squad is forced to allow their competitors to build up a large score without competition in some of the thirten events. I hope that as many girls as possible will come out and tice any noon or during any class, in order to have completed the six practices necessary for participation in either or both of the next two meets."

The next meet will begin at aren o'clock next Monday night.
