

Foundation Speakers Available

Students desiring information about the services of Spartan Foundation may now obtain a qualified speaker from the Personnel-Public Relations' speakers committee, announced chairman Don Brown.

Spartan Foundation speakers will be available to talk to campus organizations and groups who wish to learn more about the SJS fund foundation. Speeches will range from five to 15 minutes in length, Brown said.

The foundation contributes financially to many student activities such as the purchase of band uniforms and partial sponsorship of the ASB Recognition Banquet. Athletic events are another area where help is given.

Executive Secretary Robert Doerr said he is now working with ASB Pres. Rich Hill in setting up a student committee to work as a liaison between the foundation and the campus next year.

"Right now all we want is the interest of the students," he said. He added he hopes students will "talk up" the work of the foundation so that local merchants will want to join.

Doerr said the executive board of the foundation presently is beginning a financial drive to raise money to support student activities.

SJS Audience Appreciates Oriental Play

By MIKE JOHNSON
Fine Arts Editor

An elegant and colorful Chinese drama, "Lute Song," directed by Dr. Paul W. Davee, associate professor of drama, opened to a full house in College Theater Friday night.

The large cast decked out in elaborate but very appropriate Oriental costumes portrayed the rather profound ancient drama on a simple, functional set with some of the best lighting effects the College Theater stage has seen this season.

The overture, played by a 12-piece orchestra from the Music Department, started the lengthy show, and George Ivanovich took the stage to introduce the story and assure the audience that "nothing would be left out," and that "we hope to be finished before morning."

Ivanovich played the dual role of The Honorable Tchang and Stage Manager, an on-stage job in Chinese drama. Ivanovich was assisted by Paul Bucalstein and Gary Hamner, who tripped about the stage throughout the three acts, handing props to the actors, and giving the whole evening a genuine Oriental atmosphere.

The story concerned a young Chinese scholar who, at the insistence of his aged father, went to the city to make good. The father was plagued by a nagging wife whose attachment to her son almost persuaded him to remain at home.

The son, however, did go to the city, and did make good, but lost contact with his family. Famine and floods took his parents' lives, but the story unwinds itself into a happy ending.

Richard Rossomme's portrayal of Tsai-Yong was the most outstanding. The role involves a number of songs, besides some difficult interpretations of Chinese manners.

The lighting, which was used to change scenes with the curtain up, was by Kenneth Dorst, assistant professor of drama. Guido Augusts designed the set under the supervision of J. Wendell Johnson, professor of drama. The costumes were designed by Miss Bernice Prisk, associate professor of drama.

She Got His Goat
"Give me—ten-fifty, ten-fifty, ten-fifty, ten-fifty!" But Margaret Zebroski, social science major, only gave auctioneer Barry Swenson $10.25 for "Nanny," the goat who stood amiably by as she was sold to the highest bidder. The auction was a senior class money raising project.

Prof Prepares For Life in India

By PHYLLIS MACKALL

How many bobby pins does the average woman use in two years? This is one of the problems Dr. Mary Ellen Durrett, associate professor of home economics, must solve. She is leaving June 15 to begin a two-year professorship at SND Thackersey University in Bombay, India.

Dr. Durrett was appointed by the International Cooperation Administration, Washington, D.C., to join a team of home economics specialists. The program was started in 1955 at the request of the Indian Government.

(The University of Tennessee, at which she taught before joining the SJS faculty two years ago, is contractor of American specialists.)

Dr. Durrett will fly by jet to the Orient, visiting Honolulu, Tokyo, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Thailand, and New Delhi en route to Bombay. She will spend several days visiting in each city, and more than a week in Japan. She will return to America via Europe at the end of her two-year stay.

Using Bombay as her headquarters, she will spend approximately one-fourth of her time visiting universities in Calcutta, Madras and New Delhi in connection with her position as consultant in child development.

Dr. Durrett says, "I am really looking forward to working with another culture. India is one of the few countries which really recognizes the role of women."

150 L'Torres Still on Sale

Students who haven't yet bought their issues of La Torre may purchase them in the Student Affairs Business Office, TH16.

About 150 yearbooks are left at $6.50. The theme for the 1959 edition is College Life.

Work has already started on the 1960 edition, according to Dr. Gerald Forbes, staff adviser.

and the extent to which they may better the culture."

She is enthusiastic about owning and wearing the beautifully colored silk saris, toga-like Indian costumes; and hopes to learn to cook Indian food. "I want to get to know their food and customs and really get to know the Indian people," Dr. Durrett says.

Her luggage allotment is a woman's dream. She may take 66 pounds with her by plane, sending 200 pounds by air freight and 2500 pounds by sea freight.

The reason for so much luggage is that she must take many small items which might be scarce in India. "They have practically no cosmetics," she reports. Therefore, soap, toothpaste, permanent waves, bobby-pins, coathangers, pencils, pens, paper, powdered milk, vitamin pills, instant coffee, and canned meats—enough for two years—are among the items she will take.

Dr. Durrett received her B.A. degree from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute; her M.A. from Iowa State College, and her Ph.D. from Florida State University. She taught at the universities of Delaware and Tennessee before coming to San Jose State.

Dr. Panagopoulos Wins Appointment

Dr. E. P. Panagopoulos, associate professor of history, was announced last week as this college's representative in the Standard Oil Co. faculty seminar program.

Dr. Panagopoulos' appointment was made by Pres. John T. Wahlquist.

As one of 17 seminar participants from colleges and universities throughout the United States, Venezuela and Bolivia, Dr. Panagopoulos will spend two weeks at the oil company's offices in San Francisco beginning June 15.

Dr. Panagopoulos has instructed at SJS since 1956. He taught previously at Wayne State University in Detroit.

Other Spartan faculty members who have attended the yearly seminar program are Jack H. Holland, head of the Business and Industrial Management Department; Dr. Edward W. Minium, professor of psychology; and Dr. Ralph Smith, former Engineering Department head now instructing at Stanford University.

Goat, Worth 1411 Francs, Sells Low

By G. W. NACHMAN

At 12:50 p.m. Friday in the Library Quad the going rate for goats was $10.25 a head.

Leastways for one goat, a nanny with the imaginative name of "Nanny," whose shaggy head lay on the auction block (a converted Spartan Daily stand) the price stood at $10.25; and for a crotchety old gal of 12 that isn't cheap.

But it wasn't too much for Mrs. Margaret Zebroski, social science major, the lady who marched away and into an oral interpretation class, leading her new goat on a leash. Mrs. Zebroski is the mother of four children.

She said the shaggy critter was "just right for eating the weeds in our backyard."

But according to a Senior Class throw-away, "Nanny" has a stronger blood line than warrants pulling up weeds. She was advertised as "donated by Grace Kelly and flown by jet airliner from the famed royal goat farm owned by Prince Rainier." The leaflet said she is a "specially selected top quality three-liter Persian milk goat."

But to most of the 300 people who watched the auction at Friday noon, she was just a plain old, dull-eyed, clover-munching, couldn't-care-less goat. And to auctioneer Barry Swenson, it was all he could do to get the royal bearded one off the senior class' hands:

"Ten-fifty, ten-fifty, ten-fifty! Give me ten-fifty, ten-fifty, ten-fifty! Give me ten-fifty, ten-fifty, ten-fifty! Do I hear a ten-fifty?" But nobody had it in his heart or his pocketbook to shell out a 10-spot for a potato-chip chewing goat, no matter how famous. Only Margaret Zebroski.

The Senior Class advertisement for the bleater said "Nanny" was valued at 1411.3 francs—that counts out to a little over $28.

A few of Swenson's selling points were:

- Goats are good for apartments too small for cows or camels.
- Goats never conform.
- Goats only live in organized campus housing.

M-N Readers Know News

San Jose residents apparently are as well informed about national news since the San Jose Mercury and News strike as they were before the papers were struck, a Stanford University communications professor said last week.

The statement was made by Merrill Samuelsen who supervised a survey taken by 30 San Jose State students Feb. 21-23, one week after the papers were struck. Speaking before a meeting of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, Samuelsen said the influx of San Francisco and Oakland newspapers into the San Jose area was the major cause for local residents remaining informed.

Radio and television newscasts had little impact on regular M-N readers during that week, Samuelsen said.

Opera Group Gives 'Figaro'

An adaptation of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" will be presented tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15 in Concert Hall by the new SJS Opera Workshop. Student price is 50 cents, general admission is $1.

Edwin Dunning, assistant professor of music, formed the Opera Workshop in September, and has adapted "Marriage of Figaro" to fit the capabilities of his singers.

The cast will be different both nights. Most are music majors enrolled in the workshop as a regular class.

Dunning has staged the opera "in-the-round" and has set about 125 chairs on the main stage of Concert Hall. First-comers will be seated here; others in the main seating area.

Nurse Crash Caused By 'Drunk'

Los Altos contractor Warren Hamilton was drunk when his pickup truck crossed the center line of Bayshore Highway and collided with a car, killing five student nurses, Santa Clara County criminologist Lowell Bradford said Friday.

Bradford told UPI the alcohol content of Hamilton's blood was .20 per cent.

"This represents an advanced stage of alcoholic influence," the criminologist said.

He added that test groups have consumed 10 ounces of 100 proof alcohol in one to one and a half hours and reached blood alcohol levels ranging from .11 to .17 per cent.

"It is a physiological fact that brain function impairment begins in many people at levels of .05 and is present in all people at .10," Bradford said.

As a result of the accident, Gov. Edmund G. Brown cited the need for mandatory blood tests in accident cases. He pointed out that if the truck driver had not died in the crash he caused, there would have been no way to require him to take a drunk test.

Meanwhile, Santa Clara County officials and safety groups moved to renew their campaign for widening the "deathtrap" stretch of "Bloody" Bayshore highway where the collision occurred.

Wednesday night's crash brought to 23 the number of persons killed on the narrow stretch of highway during the past two years.

New Music At Concert

A full afternoon of unpublished music was presented Friday afternoon in Concert Hall at the annual Creative Music Festival.

The program included four concerts beginning at 12:15 with the Symphonic Band. The Symphony Orchestra followed at 2:30, and chamber ensembles and the chorus filled out the afternoon.

A selection by the Symphony Orchestra was "Intrada from Suite for String Orchestra" by Vincent Carter, teacher at Lincoln High School.

Dr. Robert Hare, assistant professor of music, started the festivals last year to give composers an opportunity to have unpublished manuscripts performed.

AWS 'Sister' Signup Set

Women, would any of you like a little sister? Interested coeds may sign for one starting Monday in Adm 289, office of Miss Margaret Harper, activities adviser.

Associated Women Students is sponsoring a big-little sister program. During the summer participating coeds will receive names and addresses of women entering SJS in the fall semester. They will write to their "little sisters," telling them about life at the college and answering any questions they might ask.

Big and little sisters will meet at (naturally) the AWS Big-Little Sister Party held during Orientation Week.

Chairman of the event is Julie Williams.

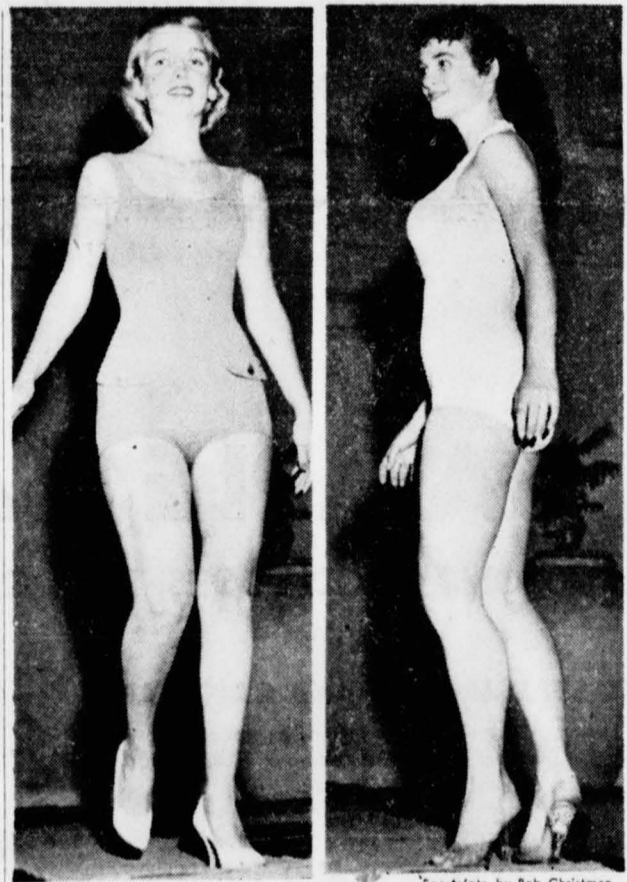

IRC Slates Talk By 'Diz' Gillespie

Admission will be taken at the door for "Dizzy" Gillespie's "Jazz Diplomacy" lecture tomorrow night at 8:15 in Morris Dailey Auditorium.

Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

The lecture is being sponsored by the International Relations Club as a benefit for the San Jose Community Ambassador Project.

Gillespie recently returned from Europe and the Middle East where he was sent by the State Department.

Former Lyke Dolls Parade in Contest

Two former Lyke Dolls, Gayle Treese (left) and Erica Rossi, are shown promenading for the judges in the recent Miss San Jose Contest. Although neither won, both San Jose State students represented the campus in fine fashion. And about Lyke... the magazine will be on the stands Wednesday morning. The issue's theme is "The Future," and the staff reportedly takes a sometimes serious, sometimes humorous, view of the man of tomorrow.

Civil War Papers Hunt Begins

(From 1961 to 1965 the entire country will be commemorating events of the Civil War. Millie Amlie—formerly of International News Service, New York Times and San Francisco News, now a journalism graduate student here—went out to get the story. This is the first of two parts. — Editor's note.)

War begins in 1961. Your family keepsakes will be carefully microfilmed, the record made available to the Civil War Commission and the California State archives, and the treasure returned to you.

Did great-grandpa slug it out across the Imperial-Yuma Desert with Col. Carleton's column? Did he chase hungry Modocs in northern California with the Mountaineer Battalion?

Perhaps he rode with the proud Native Cavalry? Fifty-one San Jose horsemen campaigned with the dashing caballeros. Thirty-one deserted before the war ended. They had San Jose to come back to.

Although a strong Union sentiment prevailed among a majority of the quarter of a million Californians (more than 16,000 eager young men enlisted), Gen. Edwin

V. Sumner, in command of the Department of the Pacific, was "aware of a strong Secessionist minority," according to his report to the War Department.

Marysville-Yuba City were publishing a Rebel daily, San Bernardino was designated as "a hotbed of Secessionism," a San Francisco minister who regularly offered prayers "for President Jefferson Davis" was relieved of his pulpit, but not before Gov. Downey had sent him condolences, a judge was suspended from the bench for 90 days for toasting the Southern cause in whiskey in public bar-rooms.

California's Civil War problems were unique. Of the more than 16,000 who enlisted, but 500 saw duty in the major battles of the war.

Statewide Search for Civil War Records Starts . . .

The remainder were kept in the West. They were busy fighting Indians—Apaches, Navajos and Modocs—to keep the overland mail open between East and West, the Pony Express. They were assigned to prevent depredation and looting of forts, warehouses and remote settlements. The campaigning Californians also were able to smoke out small pockets of Secessionists in Arizona, New Mexico and western Texas.

"Confederate newspapers published reports that California was on the eve of a revolution and Southern men were anxious to join the Confederate army," declares Dr. Leo V. Kibby, chairman of the Social Science Area and an authority on the Civil War period in California history.

Civil War campaigning in the West was as hazardous as in the East.

"Poorly shod and footsore, these (Western) soldiers marched hundreds of miles over the desert without enough water," says Dr. Kibby. "They plowed their way through snowdrifts until their feet were frozen. They swam the rivers, dodging the broken ice that cut their flesh. Many were drowned in the rivers from the Columbia to the Rio Grande. The fatalities from arrow wounds were far greater than from bullets—fully 60 per cent of the arrow wounds proved fatal."

Dr. Kibby is pressing for California's official participation in the Civil War Centennial. He is a member of the National Advisory Council to the Civil War Centennial, a position to which he was appointed by Gen. U.S. Grant III (ret.), chairman of the commission. Dr. Kibby has invited Gen. Grant to speak on the SJS campus.

Assembly Bill 1898 has been introduced into this session of the Legislature by Assemblyman Augustus F. Hawkins, which sets up a Civil War Commission for California.

Dr. Kibby recently returned from his sabbatical, during which he visited 14 Southern states.

He is publishing two papers as a result of his over-all research. "Some Aspects of California's Military Problems During the Civil War," in the publication of the University of Iowa, "Civil War History;" and "With Col. Carleton and His California Column" in "Military Affairs" magazine.

Gen. Grant outlines the purpose of the Civil War Centennial this way: "We do not want simply to string together a series of holidays, reviving here the exultation of victory and there the sadness of defeat . . . We seek to tell in accurate detail the true story of the war, to bring about the discovery and preservation of valuable records, and to encourage the erection of monuments and markers to preserve significant sites and landmarks."

If you have a Civil War memento, talk to Mrs. Mildred Howell, secretary, Social Science area, CH134.

She will arrange for the micro-filming and the safekeeping of the treasure in the ASB vault while it is in the hands of the college.

IAS Tours Moffett

Wind tunnels of the Ames Laboratory at Moffett Field were inspected by the SJS chapter of the Institute of Aeronautical Science during a field trip Friday afternoon.

The group toured installations and saw demonstrations of hypersonic and transonic tests used in studying the problem of re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

British Writer To Talk at SJS

Dr. Denis W. Brogan, writer on French and American politics and Cambridge University professor, will lecture in Morris Dailey Auditorium Wednesday at 8 p.m. His topic has not been announced.

Dr. Brogan has published 17 books and numerous articles for British, French and American journals. He is the author of "The Era of Franklin Delano Roosevelt," "The Free State" and "Development of Modern French Politics," among others.

The address, sponsored by the College Lecture Committee, is open to the public without charge.

Spring Speech Clinic Aids More Than 100

More than 100 children and adults received speech therapy at the San Jose State speech clinic during spring semester.

The group consisted of 65 college students, 14 adults and 27 primary and secondary-grade students.

Stanford Research Offers Math Study

An introductory mathematics course will be conducted by the UC Extension Division at Stanford Research Institute in Menlo Park from June 9 to Sept. 1.

Dr. Julius Brandstatter, SRI senior mathematical physicist, is instructor of the class which will meet weekly from 6:30 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The course, "Introduction to the Theory of Function of a Complex Variable," is open to accredited students and may be applied toward undergraduate and advanced degrees.

Registration and fee information is listed in the UC Extension catalog or is available from Dr. Brandstatter at SRI.

Four SJS Trackmen Win Awards

Sprinter Ray Norton, discus thrower Tom Daniels, high jumper Errol Williams and hurdler Kent Herkenrath were named San Jose State's top cindermen of the year in ceremonies at the College Olympic Development Meet at the Spartan oval Saturday.

SJS President Dr. John T. Wahlquist presented the awards to the athletes. Norton was named the Most Valuable member of the trackmen, Herkenrath the Most Inspirational, Daniels and Williams tied for the Most Improved.

Several SJS athletes turned in their best performances of the year in the last track meet on the home field. Williams soared to his highest jump of the year with a leap of 6-9. Williams, however, finished second behind Herm Wyatt of the Santa Clara Youth Village.

Discus thrower Tom Collier slung the quoit 162-11, seven feet better than the strapping south-paw has done all year. Daniels was second with a toss of 153-3/4.

Jerry Howell also racked up his best performance of the year with a time of 1:53.4 in the 880-yard run.

Howell however finished second behind Jack Marden, of the Santa Clara Youth Village who posted a 1:52.8 clocking. Norton ran a 9.5 to top century runners. Chuck McNeil finished with a time of 9.9.

In the 220-yard sprint Norton copped top honors with a 20.9 clocking, just three-tenths of a second off the American record, around a curve. Two heats were run off in this event. Bob Poynter won the other heat in 21 flat.

Tim (Tam) Curtis tied the school record in the 440-yard dash with a time of 48.2. Willie Williams covered the distance in 48.3 to finish third.

Big Bill Neider, in an exhibition toss, eclipsed the world record in the shot put with a 64-6 1/2 toss. This marked the sixth meet Neider had beaten the world mark without official recognition. In Saturday's meet Neider flung the iron pellet past the 62-foot mark ten times. The world mark is 63-2 set by Dallas Long, USC freshman.

Ansel Robinson former Fresno State flash was clocked at 14 flat in the 120 high hurdles. One watch clocked the speedy hurdler at 13.9.

SJS freshman Bob Gill ran second in the hurdles with a time of 14.4.

Coach Bud Winter was pleased with the performances of his SJS trackmen. "Several of the athletes turned in their best performances of the year," said the head mentor.

Giants Miss Jabbo's Bat —McMahon

By SCOTT BAILLIE

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Don McMahon, Milwaukee's hard-throwing relief ace, thinks the San Francisco Giants did themselves out of some needed runs when they traded Ray Jablonski to St. Louis last March in a deal that brought pitcher Sam Jones to town.

"Jabbo got a lot of important hits in 1958 and now their run production is off," declared the lantern-jawed Irishman from Brooklyn during the recent Braves series here. "I don't think they look as strong as they did last year."

McMahon added that the word is out on how to handle Bob Schmidt, the burly San Francisco catcher who started fast as a rookie last year and tailed off with a .244 average.

"They say he likes balls that are high and so, of course, he is getting ones that are low," McMahon said. Viewed from a safe distance, McMahon looks like a tough operator out on the mound when firing in his low fast one and curve. Up close, he turns into a boyish guy of 29 who wants it made clear that he grew up around Brooklyn's Newkirk Ave. and graduated from the "Parade Grounds," a cluster of baseball diamonds which form the borough's great incubator of baseball talent.

When he was with the Flatbush Robins in the Kiwanis League he did not pitch and alternated between the infield and outfield. It turned out he never could hit well enough to cut it in organized ball and so put his powerful right arm to work on a full-time basis.

Around the McMahon household, everybody was a Brooklyn Dodger fan, but Mac signed with the Braves because his father was a friend of Honey Russell, that club's scout.

It was a long tramp through the minors, then he landed with the Braves to stay in 1957. During the World Series of that year, he pitched five clutch innings of scoreless ball and gave up three hits while Milwaukee was doing the impossible of beating the Yankees out of a world title. Last year he had a 7-2 season mark and primarily recalls the series for a home run he fed to Hank Bauer.

McMahon goes along with two pitches, the fast one and the curve.

"I don't have enough of an assortment to be a starter," he said. "Now if I was a guy like Warren Spahn who has four or five deliveries, it might be different."

McMahon, currently 1-0 on this season, feels better when he faces a slugger than what he terms a "stroke hitter."

Compton Meet Lures Top Vaulters

COMPTON (UPI)—Eight pole vaulters who have topped the 15-foot mark are scheduled to compete in the 20th annual Compton Invitational June 5.

Meet director Herschel Smith said Bob Gutowski, world outdoor record holder formerly of Occidental, headed the list. Now in the Marines, Gutowski has cleared 15 feet, 9 3/4 inches.

Close behind Gutowski in the race for 16 feet is Don (Tarzan)

Briggs, now of the Army but formerly from Villanova. Briggs' 15-foot mark is the best of the season.

Oklahoma State University is entering two men who have cleared 15 feet, 5 inches—Aubrey Dooley and Jim Graham. Other 15-footers include Ron Morris, Southern California Striders; George Roubanis, of Greece and UCLA; Jim Brewer, Southern California; and Joe Rose, Arizona State University.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—A sign in a Phoenix cafe says: "Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow you may die."

Bowl Vote Postponed By Big Ten
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—The Big Ten vote on whether to continue playing in the Rose Bowl was delayed Friday and a complicating, contradictory rule was uncovered which might extend debate on the issue.
The separate meetings of faculty representatives and athletic directors extended past the anticipated discussion periods, preventing them from meeting jointly to begin the Rose Bowl debate.
Meanwhile, it was discovered that the conference rule on post season competition specifically exempts the Rose Bowl from its ban, thus authorizing individual schools theoretically to accept bids to the bowl.
Because this rule is in the book, it would require six votes to repeal it, and the opponents of the bowl have been able to muster only five votes in action on the Rose Bowl contract, a completely separate matter.

Ruth's Last HR 24 Years Ago
Exactly 24 years ago today Babe Ruth swatted his last home run as an active major leaguer. The circuit clout came in Pittsburgh's Forbes Field May 25, 1935.
Ruth broke into the major leagues with the Boston Red Sox in 1914 as a lefthanded pitcher.
In 1920 Ruth was traded to the New York Yankees for $125,000. In 1935 the Yankees traded Ruth to the old Boston Braves of the National League. In 28 games Ruth batted .181 and hit only six home runs.
His lifetime batting average for 25 years in the majors was .342. He hit 714 home runs over this same period.
