Homosexuality-A Clandestine, Unhappy World

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a four part series dealing with the problems of the homosexual in today's society.

By DAVE PROVAN Spartan Daily Staff Writer

It's a clandestine world, a society within a society, a world in which sexual expression is different and therefore frowned upon by most of society. This is the world of the homosexaul.

It is not a happy realm, It is filled with erroneous beliefs, much misunderstanding and it continually faces society's taboos. It is a world that needs explaining.

An estimated 15 million Americans are homosexuals.

What is a homosexual and how does he develop? "First," says Dr. Bruce C. Ogilvie, professor of psychology and director of the counseling center, "I think the general public fails to realize how early in the infant's life this particular pattern develops.

"There isn't a significant contribution that can be related to biochemical physiological factors nor a genetically determined adjustment that any scientific evidence can support."

Dr. G. A. McCallum, head of the Biological Science Department, agrees with Dr. Ogilvie. "There is no evidence or study," he says, "indicating that homosexuality is a genetically determined adjustment."

'SOCIALIZING INFLUENCE'

Dr. Ogilvie points out, "We do find there a remarkable socializing influence that brings about this problem of identification. "Evidence from a number of studies shows that sexual identification has occurred by the time a child reaches 21/2 years.

This finding is so dramatic, so valuable and so meaningful, it should be a fact that could sensitize parents, particularly about the intensity of the experience the growing infant is having."

"Homosexuals come from all walks of life," according to San Francisco Attorney Evander

Smith, speaking at SJS recently, said, "It's not against the law to be a homosexual, just to get caught." For 16 years, Smith has been defending homosexuals in San Francisco courts.

"It is time," says Dr. Ogilvie, "to educate the public about the unreality of the law and penal code on this aspect of human be-

"The public should be made aware of injustices, that follow the adjustment of some persons to homosexuality. The public should support changes in the penal code."

The Wolfenden Report, prepared by the Committee on Homosexual Offenses and Prostitution for the British Parliament, states, "Homosexuality is not, in spite of widely held belief to the contrary, peculiar to members or particular professions or social classes, nor, as is sometimes supposed, is it peculiar to the intelligentsia.

'ALL SOCIETY LEVELS'

"Our evidence shows that it exists among all callings and at all levels of society, and, that among homosexuals will be found not only those possessing a high degree of intelligence, but also the dullest oafs SJS at the present time apparently does ot have a homosexual "problem." The fact that homosexuals attend SJS is not disputed. It is inevitable that in a group as large as a student body and faculty of 21,000 there will be homosexuals.

At one time, a campus restroom was used as a meeting place for homosexuals to make dates and exchange notes, but campus police halted these activities.

Some members of the college community still are involved in homosexual activities, but such practices have been removed from campus to private homes or apartments, says Dr. Ogilvie.

Tomorrow's article will deal with homosexuality and the church. The positions of the various clergy concerning homosexlauity will be considered.

Editorial

No Longer Taboo

Homosexuality is a topic which, until recently, few newspapers or magazines cared to discuss. It was considered a "sensitive" subject, along with abortion, birth control, venereal disease and other topics. In recent years, however, there has been an increased attempt to move the discussion of homosexuality from the darkness of ignorance and myth into the light of factual examination and rational analysis.

Various sources assert homosexuality has increased within the last decade. Certainly the public gradually is becoming more aware of misconceptions on this subject.

In presenting this series, the Spartan Daily does not seek to exploit the subject of homosexuality in a sensational manner, nor do we wish to cause concern in any area of the college community. Our aim is not to "expose," condemn, ridicule, condone or in any way to promote homosexuality on this campus. Rather we are attempting rational discussion of a problem which we feel is of interest to

Rooters Missing

The place-San Jose Municipal Airport; the time-9:30 Saturday night. What happened? The SJS football team had just arrived from a successful trip to Albuquerque, N.M., where it pulled an upset by stunning the highly regarded University of New Mexico, 27-7.

It was the Spartan gridders' third consecutive victory and their last road trip of the year. No longer is it unlikely that SJS will have a winning season. It is conceivable that the pigskinners will win their remaining three games and end the year with a 6-4 won-loss record.

Does this mean anything to the students at SJS? Evidently not. The only persons to greet the football team Saturday night were relatives and wives of the players. No band, not even a small gathering of students to congratulate the squad.

It couldn't be the time-9:30 isn't that late-and it's a well known fact that SJS students have not turned in at such an early hour on Saturday night.

This is 1965, so communications can't be used as an excuse. Most radio stations broadcast the sports news on the hour, and a local station transmits play-by-play.

What is it, then? More explicitly, what is the so-called "Spirit of Sparta?" Is there such a thing as "spirit" at SJS? Evidently not.

Where were the many students who always knock the Spartans and who constantly yell for a winning season? Nowhere to be seen. They criticize during defeat but offer no gesture of congratulations after victory.

Isn't it about time we Spartans support the team and let the football players and coach Harry Anderson know that a winning season is worth fighting for?

Homecoming is Saturday night, and the Spartans will play the University of Pacific. Let us hope there isn't an empty seat in Spartan Stadium.

God's cure for sin is Jesus Christ. He, the one man without sin, became sin for we sinners. U.N. Festival Booth Rift Continues

Objector Claims Arabs 'Disorderly'

The purpose and function of the U.N. Festival has been the same for the past seven years, to promote understanding and a friendly cultural exchange between the various ethnic groups represented in the San Jose area.

The second day of the festival, they returned with a large pro-test sign attracting crowds to whom they complained of their "mistreatment," in favor of

Since it was I who requested that the material be examined by the U.N. committee, and I am neither a Zionist, nor do I represent a Zionist organization, it is obvious that the facts were distorted by the Arab students.

There were no threats or demonstrations by any group other than the Arabs. They were simply asked to comply with the rules or leave. After disturbing the good will of the festival for two days, their booth was finally closed by the committee. Their behavior was inexcusable, especially in view of the fact that they are guests in this country. It is unfortunate that the festival was uesd by the Arabs to attack another group, rather than to display cultural achievements of their own, as was done by other countries represented. Lillian Silberstein

Cram Theory Grows

By PAT HEFFERNAN

I have been told recently by my very informed sources in Sacramento, San Jose, and Big Spring, Tex., that California is about to adopt a new educational philosophy with which the state has been secretly experimenting at SJS.

The philosophy, known as the Cram theory, has been approved by almost all state superintendents of schools except Max Rafferty, whom we all know is for better education, anyway, The basis for the Cram theory the belief that intelligent thought and application of knowledge is so difficult to grade by computer that only what a student can memorize and regurgitate twice a semester should be considered in grading, passing, and degree awarding. You can probably remember several classes in which you were subjected to this idea

The philosophy will be implemented in the following ways:

1) In order to abolish com-pletely independent student thought, all classes will have a minimum of 100 students, who sign all two tests with their IBM number. This insures that no professor ever will get to know any student well enough to grade him as an individual.

2) Grades will be based only on one midterm and one final, both containing at least 200 true and false questions, 100 completions, and 50 multiple choices "none of the above."

3) There will be no class discussion. All tests will be graded by computers. All homework will be graded by readers.

4) All professors will hold office hours between 7:30 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. This kills any chance of harmful studentteacher relationships.

The plan also has the advantage of raising Greek grade averages because, under it, profs must make up one exam and give it every year to avoid duplication. This will make fraternity files quite useful. The Cram theory also will discourage working students who don't belong in college, anyway. Who wants to keep up perfectly in a class all semester and then flunk because you worked the two nights before the final?

So hooray for Cram and the cramming and cheating it will develop here at good ole' SJS.
