Computer eases registration process

By BARBARA WALSH Daily Investigative Writer

"God, I wish we had computer registration!" This wail was frequently heard during this semester's chaotic registration week. What few students don't know is that the Engineering Department has been registering its students by computer for 10 years.

James A. Lima, assistant dean of the School Engineering, believes the computer center at SJS is capable of handling registration for the entire school. But he explained having the computer power and having a computer program are two different things.

According to Edward A. Dionne, professor of engineering, there have been few problems with the registration since it was initiated.

Dionne originated computer registration in the department. At that time the computer center used a small IBM model, which was slow compared to more modern computers. Each year after registration, the results were analyzed and the process of registration was updated and sophisticated.

Dionne said most errors which arise with computer registration are either organizational or human errors. The computer doesn't make mistakes, he claimed.

Each semester over 2,000 engineering students register by computer. This fall the Mathematics and Physics Departments also registered by computer for a total of over 3,000

The new CDC 3300 computer used by the school, can process 1,000 students in 10 minutes. Keypunching or programming the cards, is the timeconsuming element of the procedure, according Registering for classes in the Engineering Department is a relatively simple matter. The student prepares a schedule and submits it. Teachers then check a student's priority, which is determined by how close he is to graduation.

Those closest to graduation—highest priority—get classes on first request. All this is done May or December before the next semester. This allows the student time to get workable

If a student does not get an adequate program, he is able to submit a new program, based on available classes. Students may resubmit for five days, if necessary, until they receive a workable program.

There are a few obvious advantages to this method of registration. If a particular class is closed and there are numerous requests for the class, the department may open a new sec-

Also because students with a high priority get the classes they need, their graduation is less likely to be delayed.

Computer registration also eliminates the need for students to stand in line for hours and for teachers to lose valuable time registering the students, according to Lima. Computer registration is not arbitrary—a student can only get the classes he requests Some modifications must be made in the system, before it can be used by the entire

However, the computer would have to be programmed to check student records to determine priorities for registration, Lima

In the engineering registration, the assignment of priorities is done manually by instructers. Lima said this causes problems because instructors will assign a student a high priority to assure him of a class.

If the computer was programmed to check records and assign priorities, this problem would be eliminated.

Lima emphasized that switching to a computer registration system will not be an easy transi-tion. Before the system can be implemented, faculty and students must be educated in how the system will work.

"Lack of education was one of the major problems with the computer registration two years ago at SJS," Lima said.

Loren Cross, Electronic Data Processing supervisor, believes the State College Admissions and Registration System (SCARS) in 1969 had "too much to do and not enough time." 1969 had "too much to do and not enough time to do it in.

In one year, a team of outside computer specialists studied SJS registration and designed a computer system for the college. Cross said this was at least a three-year

Many other problems complicated the SCARS program—which was labeled a "total disaster" by many faculty and students.

Cross said that because the computer specialists were all "outsides," they were ignorant of many "political ins and outs on the campus." Also, some students registered for as many as 24 units, which further disorganized the as 24 units, which further disorganized the system. There were approximately 75,000 adds and drops which had to be processed.

SCARS was a pilot program for the entire state college system. Although many believe it was a total failure, approximately 10,000 students out of 25,000 registered received "perfect schedules," according to Lima.

"After the failure of SCARS, people on campus became discouraged with computer registration.

became discouraged with computer registration. The program was never analyzed and improved," Lima said.

So, what is the future of computer registra-tion at SJS? Right now nothing is definite—no plans one way or the other have been formu-

One engineering teacher put it this way: There are two ways in which SJS will get an efficient computer registration system. Either the students have got to demand one, or top level administration has to initiate one.

"The people in the middle can't do a thing. It's like beating a dead horse," he commented.

care co-operative was also proposed.
"There's a lot of demand for these services," said Lori Helmbold, primary spokesman for the center and member of New College.

Miss Helmbold asked for $3,437 to establish the center. An off-campus location would cost nearly twice as much at $6,455, she said.

She believes the center could become self-sufficient eventually. She said donations from various women's groups had been offered.

Profits from "Xanthippe," a women's magazine, would pay for future is-sues of the magazine. The first issue of the magazine appeared last month and sold for 50 cents. Money will also be raised by charging admission for speakers and films.

"There are services available on campus," said Pat French, who spoke for the center. "We have a woman lawyer who has offered her services. Ther's a woman in Student Personnel offices (Mrs. Orpha Quadros) who does abortion counseling. but who is going to come there and ask for this information, and how many even know where it is?"

Miss French said the center would involve all campus women, and when applicable, men would be helped. "A lot of this seems like it will be in the future, but many of these activities already exist," Miss Helmbold said. She pointed out the maga-zine is being published and the speaker's bureau has been operating for two years.

A.S. President Mike Buck, who voted why the existing services, such as the Health Center, could not fulfill the demands of the women.

'In 1970, the dean of students formed an an hoc committee to deal with birth control. I want to clean up the health services or close it," he said.

Margie Bernard, another spokes-man, agreed with Buck, but said, "In the meantime we can start pro-viding the information."

The women charged Buck with cutting out a birth control program scheduled to go into operation this

The SJS Radio-Television News Center was dealt a fatal blow Thursday when the special allocations board denied its budget request for this year.

John Rooney, news editor for the nue could spell the end of "Update. The news center produces "Update," a minute newscast similar in format to KQED's "Newsroom." airs every Friday at 9 p.m. on Chan-nel 54, KTEH, a San Jose educational channel.

The program is received from Monterey to Marin county via cable tele-vision. However, KTEH has no idea how many people watch "Update," since the station does not subscribe to a rating service.

"It's a service that we are pro-viding by producing this program,"

Rooney presented the special allocations board with a budget request

"The major necessity is the money for film and processing," Roone said. At the present time the department has enough film left for one month, "if we stretch it," Rooney emphasized.
"Without the film we have nothing,"

TV center dealt blow

From the recommendation of the step is the final decision of the Associated Students council at their meeting Wednesday.

The special allocations board also recommended the selling of RNTC's $6,000 sound-on-film camera. The camera is the same type of camera professional television stations use, Rooney said.

Student Council allocated funds for the purchasing of the sound camera in 1968. Since that time San Jose State has became a leader in the nation in the field of television news.

"We are considered the best television journalism department in California," stated Dr. Gordon Greb, advisor to RTNC. "We have placed first in Sigma Delta Chi's national awards competition in the last six years in a row. We're the champs," he added.

"SJS is the only college television news department in Northern California that airs its own news program on a regualr basis," said Dr. Greb. Funding from the student council is the only alternative RTNC has to get its money. Being an educational television station, channel 54 cannot turn to advertising to pay for the operation of the station. All financial assistance is received from donations. The funding from the student council for "Update" is part of those donations. We have the 1972 version of television news now. If the cut is made it would be like putting the news 20 years back, complete with silent film and still pictures," Dr. Greb stated.

"I feel the student council made a commitment to us with the camera. It's a stab in the back," said Rooney.

Rooney's request was for 100 rolls each of silent and sound film, 30,000 feet of film processing, along with miscellanious accessories and equip-

The special allocations committee said they denied funds because they feel that the program is not viewed by enough audience to warrant the funds, and because of the recent cutback of instructionally related programs from A.S. funding.

"I think they were ill-advised. I hope the student council will reconsider an action which will cripple a first rate student program," said Dr.

They (student council) are morally obligated to let us complete the term. We have a commitment to the station and we must fulfill that commitment in the professional style we have had in the past," explained Dr. Greb. In considering the worst possible outcome Dr. Greb stated, "We're not going to roll over and play dead. If we had played dead we would have never gotten started 15 years ago."

Trustees to request bigger budget

The trustees of the California state colleges agreed last Thursday to request $382.1 million in legislative support for the 1972-73 school year.

Approval of Chancellor Glenn

Dumke's proposed support budget— $66.3 million more than the colleges finally received for this year-came after the chancellor warned of possi ble "enrollment curtailment" if the funds are not forthcoming.

In his budget statement Dumke said, "I would be less than candid if I did not indicate that we are reaching a critical point this year. The 1972-73 budget proposed here is essential." "Unless it is realized, quality will be diluted to an unacceptable academic level, and I will propose that an en-rollment curtailment would be exercised in order to preserve the es-sential quality level." Louis Messner, chief of budget planning for the chancellor's office said it wasn't decided how large the curtailment would be if it became necessary, but added, "We won't be able to keep accomodating every student available with diluted resources.

The proposed budget would provide for enrollment of 236,215 full-time students in the 19-campus state college system, an increase of 15,195 over this year's total. The budget provides no increase in professors' salaries, but would allow for the hiring of 1,700 new faculty members.

Emphasizing that the proposed budget provides "only adequate support," Chancellor Dumke said the state college system is not seeking new programs because of the California economic situation.

Last year, the trustees asked Gov. Reagan and the legislature for $369.3 million. The governor proposed $315.9 million, but when the legislature voted to allocate $334.9 mil-lion, the governor vetoed it.

Political Beat

There are few things we cherish quite so dearly as our illusions.

One of the favorite political illusions is the local politician who is sent off to Washington or Sacramento with a trunk full of clothes and returns years later with the trunk full of illgotten cash. It just doesn't happen.

True, politicians do live lavishly and some are downright wealthy. But most make their money before going into politics, not as a result of their political careers.

Take the assemblymen in Sacramento. They make $19,000 every year. In addition, they get $30 per day for living expenses in Sacramento for every day the legislator is in session. The state also picks up the tab for travel, carfare, stationery, salaries for secretaries and administrative assistants and root on the district sistants, and rent on the district

Martha O'Connell declaims the UN idea (making everybody love peace) as "absurd," since she, knowing how all "us" countries are mean and nasty, will sacrifice peace for our own security. Since the UN purports to seek peace and each country will sac-rifice peace for stability (she ar-gues) there really shouldn't be a U.N. Right?

But then Miss O'Connell leaves her assertion concerning the met-aphysical, down-to-earth world, and proceeds to argue a moral question. It is "unethical," she states, for the U.S. to support such a "morally reprehensible" country as Red China. What happened, Martha, to the business of stability vs peace? Could it be that you are imposing a moral stipulation to our understanding of other countries? In other words, forget the alarming question of increased weaponry owned by the U.S., Red China, and those "reds" in Moscow--just as long as we keep away from communists.

The ideological basis of your argument really is silly, isn't it Martha? If you argue that the UN is impotent, then I tend to agree with you. But don't make of morality what it is not, because the "dream world" of Dr. Spock doesn't exist and neither does yours. The world is cruel and hard.

By Mike Buck A.S. President

In order to make SJS function as an academic unit, the various operations on the campus receive funding from different sources. There are also many formulae and restrictions employed to determine the amount of each programs' budget in relation to its role in the educational process.

Basically, there are two primary budgets used at SJS: the Operations Budget and the Support Budget. The State College System employs a complex for-mula in order to determine how much each college will receive from the total funds allocated by the Legislature. This formula is known as Full Time Equivalent (FTE).

Each campus has an overall FTE figure. The monies that are generated by the FTE figures are then distributed to the departments on the basis of the complex formula which includes the number of majors, minors, general education courses and the C formula (classroom size).

The support budget is financed through student material and services fees (M & S) which are paid by each student at the beginning of each semester. These monies are used to provide libraries, services, counseling centers, health services, audio visual facilities, and other administrative services that are not academi-cally oriented (i.e., not part of the instructional process) but, nevertheless, very necessary for a functioning college.)

For example, we (the students) pay the Dean of Student Services

The Student Union is funded by a $20 pre-academic-year fee. The resulting budget is comparable in size to the A.S. budget, but the funds are used for the operation of the Student Union.

Another very integral budget of this campus is the A.S. budget. This is financed by a $20 per-academic-year activity fee. Sixty per cent of those funds go in support of instructional related activities. In the case of the Athletic Department, A.S. is providing the funding so that the de-partment can train athletes to become professionals or high school coaches. With the Marching Band (students receive one unit of credit), A.S. is providing the funds that will enable students to become high school band directors.

By "subscribing" to the Spartan Daily, A.S. finances a training laboratory for future reporters and public relation personnel. This is not to say that every stu-dent who is receiving credit for these classes will choose the career used as an example.

My point is that these activities are an integral part of a degree program and a professional object-These classes also generate FTE which is the funding responsibility of the State of California, not the Associated Students.

Budget cuts are being made throughout the State College system as priorities are realigned and previous sources of revenue are no longer available. With the A.S. budget reaching a fixed ceiling, A.S. must begin to cut back some of its funding, and righfully the cuts should be in instructional funding.

He is expected to show up to all assembly sessions and committee meetings, which occur every weekday and can last well into the even-ing. At night, he must answer personal mail, meet with constituents and prepare for tomorrow's

His weekends are not his own, either. The assemblyman returns to his home district every weekend, where he is expected to speak to everyone from the Elks club to the Boy Scouts and make an appearance at every clambake and fishfry the local political clubs

Unless the assemblyman's district is within commuting distance to Sacramento, he must maintain two homes--and that can take a big hunk out of that $30 per day living allowance.

Far from getting rich in Sac-ramento, most assemblymen could have made more money had they never run for office. An attorney who hustles at all usually pulls in $24,000 annually and specialists make even more.

Then, too, is the responsibility rolled up in the job that no one puts a price tag on. The politician must give up family life for public life, friends for constituents, and relaxation for a pres-sure-cooker life.

His private and public life is under constant scrutiny by a pub-lice that is much more tolerant of scandal in the Fonda family than in the Kerinedy family.

And finally, how many people would be willing to accept a job knowing full well that every two, four or six years, there's a 50-50 chance he'll lose the job--and he'll have to fight for his life to

Granted there's still too much dishonest money to be made in politics. One assemblyman said that he personally has suspicions of about five colleagues he thinks have taken bribes. That's five too many

And just as insidious is the practice of granting favors to big campaign contributors that Ralph Nader exposed this summer.

But these problems will be solved by making and enforcing tighter campaign finance laws, not by slashing the salary for officeholders.

For if salaries and expense allowances were reduced, then Sacra-mento and Capitol Hill would become more of a richman's preserve than it already is, since only the rich man could afford to hold office.

High salaries and generous allowances are given to politicians with the idea of upgrading the quality of the office-holders by freeing them from dependence on rich backers. Better that the taxpayers should pay the man's expenses than the president of Standard Oil.

Or to put it another way, you get what you pay for.

There were no floats. princesses, or assorted "irrelevant" hoopla, but SJS supposedly celebrated its Homecoming last Saturday night. Few of the 12,162 fans

Well now there's never been an easier way to buy the words and music to current hits, because now there's a magazine called Words and Music

It only costs $1. And for your dollar every issue gives you the words and music of 8 to 10 top current songs.

For instance, our first issue which is on sale now, gives you the words and music to top hits by The Doors, The Bee Gees, 3 Dog Night, Isley Brothers, Helen Reddy, Bill Withers, Paul Stookey, John Denver, Carole King and Leon Russell.

And along with the music are articles and new photographs of the stars behind the songs. Look for Words and

Music wherever magazines

You've got the talent. Now all you need is a dollar.

Chicano EOP fund drive

CHICAND EDP FUND DRIVE

Jackie Villareal gives her share to Gabe Reyes, head of Chicano EOP fund-raising committee. The total as of last Friday amounted to $6,000. More contributions are expected since the EOP students would receive their checks today. The table is set up in the College Union between 9 and 5 Monday through Friday.

EOP fund drive near cash goal

"We've been going great so far. As of now we have received $6,000!" exclaimed Pete Michel of the Chicano Educational Program (EOP) fund-raising committee. The Chicano EOP students initiated their fund drive early this semes.

p.m., C.U. Almaden.

Costanoan.

dwindling resources of Chicano EOP caused by Gov. Reagan's budget The federal government has consented to match any funds raised on a four-to-one basis. So, $6,000 will in essence be $24,000.

"We're expecting more ter to augment the donations especially since the EOP students would be getting their checks today," Michel stated.

"Our aim is $10,000, but I have confidence that the final total would pass that amount,' said.

Arrangements have also been made for Chicano EOP students to appeal to the Mexican-Americans in San Jose to bring in their contributions after Nov.

The fund-raising table is set up on the main level of the College U nion from 9 to 5 Monday through Friday.

SJS fall admission deadline

SJS is now accepting admission applications for the fall 1972 semes-

All applications filed before Nov. 30 will re-ceive equal consideration regardless of the date received, according to Admissions Officer Roy Delpier.

Prospective students may obtain applications at the admissions office or through their local high school or community college.
Applicants who file af-the Nov. 30 deadline will be considered late applicants and will forced to compete for acceptance on a first come-first serve basis after the pre-deadline applications have been processed.

Acceptance notificafore March 1972.

Students' art Circle K plans in burger bar

The Burger Chefrestaurant isn't everyone's idea of a cultural cen-ter, but SJS's branch of the franchise burger bar will soon sport student art work.

Terry Theriault, manager of Burger Chef at South Fourth and East Fernando streets, said he will display art done by SJS students in his store.

Theriault said that light-weight art work be fastened to the walls with adhesive mounting squares, and heavier objects must be

He advised artists to include their names, addresses and phone numbers with their works

Theriault said that artists wishing to display their work should contact Adelo Dublin, Burger Chef employee, in the restaurant after 4 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday.
