Iranian group keeps money following two hour A.S. debate

Volume 66, Number 33

After two hours of debate yesterday, A.S. Council defeated a motion that would have frozen $60 in Iranian Student Association (ISA) funds and would have prevented the ISA from receiving any additional A.S. funds until Jan. 1, 1977.

Hearing set on removal of O.T. head

A hearing will be held today to decide if proper procedure was used in the removal of Dr. Diana Burnell as Occupational Therapy chairwoman by President John Bunzel.

Burnell was reassigned to teaching during the semester break, without faculty consultation, after she refused to resign her post.

Academic Vice President Hobert Burns called the action a "procedural error" but said it was "perfectly legal."

He said Dr. Stanley Burnham, dean of the School of Applied Sciences and Arts, was within his rights to ask Burnell to resign, but when she refused, the faculty should have been consulted.

The hearing will be conducted by an officer of the chancellor's office. He will make a recommendation to the chancellor suggesting that the action be affirmed, modified or revoked, Dean of Faculty Robert Sasseen said.

The outcome of the hearing will be based on interpretation because there are conflicting guidelines dealing with chairpersons, he said.

Sasseen was referring to the Faculty Reference Book that states faculty consultation is required in the removal of a chairperson and to Title V of the state educational code that states chairpersons serve at the pleasure of the president. This means the president may remove a chairperson without faculty consultation.

The hearing is closed to the public. Only Burnell and her counsel, Thomas J. Ferrito, Sasseen and university counsel Richard Sensenbrenner and the hearing officer will be present.

Switzer's motion stated the program, featuring Reza Baraheni, alleged former Iranian political prisoner, and Daniel Ellsberg was "ruined by the vocal disruption" of the ISA and that A.S. could not "support groups who resort to this form of protest."

The two hour discussion that led up to the motion's defeat was marked by vocal outbursts from the audience and allegations from both the ISA and the Committee for Artistic and Intellectual Freedom in Iran (CAIFI), which presented the program.

Senate lengthens drop period, Affirmative action chief makes green sheets optional

Executive Order 180. Presently this order is no longer in effect and the proposal will be applied to whatever grievence procedure is approved, the committee decided.

The proposal also added a new section to the affirmative action policy and procedures calling for an affirmative action facilitator in each department.

The facilitator will serve as liaison between the department and the affirmative action office.

He will keep the department informed of the latest developments in affirmative action policy and assist in identifying problem areas and in arriving at solutions.

The proposal also seeks to establish a campus policy that each school dean give regular faculty members (probationary and tenure) within each school criteria for evaluation in the retention, promotion and tenure procedures The deans would tell all probationary faculty members their chances for retention at the end of each probationary year and advise tenured faculty members on the requirements for promotion to the next rank. Stephen Faustina, affirmative action

But he said chairpersons could also be facilitators.

New standards for the issuance of green sheets were set by the Academic Senate Monday at a meeting which also saw passage of a resolution lengthening the drop period at the start of each semester to three weeks.

Passed by a 29-5 roll call vote after lengthy debate, the green sheet resolution recommends instructors provide green sheets to students on the first day of class.

The AFC investigates charges of unfair teaching practices made by students. The resolution makes it easier for students not adequately informed of class requirements to gain a change in grade, if appropriate.

According to student senator Allan Graham, one of the resolution's sponsors, an instructor who clearly communicates his expectations without a green sheet would not be bound to seek out students who missed the information due to absence.

Student responsibility

"The student is responsible to be in class or to find out what happened when he was absent," Graham said.

"The new proposal does place the burden of proof on the instructor to prove to the committee (AFC) that he gave sufficient instruction on his requirements," said Dr. David Newman, one of the resolution's sup-

By a unanimous vote, the senate also passed a resolution lengthening from two to three weeks the no-penalty drop period at the beginning of each semester.

Executive Vice President Burton The council has traditionally spent change would have benefits for onsiderable amount of time students, but would also speed up tabulation of the final census of students on campus each semester.

Affects budget

The census, Brazil said, is used in determining SJSU's future budget appropriations.

Brazil also spoke to the senate on prospects for construction of a new library at SJSU. He said funds to hire an architect to design the building were being held up because of conflict with the state Department of Finance.

The department, Brazil said, wanted the proposed library to be a supplement to the existing library, while the university had planned to construct a whole new library.

Hopes for funds

Brazil said he had hopes the architect funding could be obtained this June. The new library, he estimated, would have about 109,000 square feet of floor space and be located where the corporation yard is at present.

Brazil also blamed delay in construction on the library to massive cuts made in capital outlays for the state university system by Gov. Brown. Further action by the senate Monday included passage of two amendments to current policy on appointment and removal of department chairpersons. The new amendments make faculty review in appointment and removal of chairpersons an official part of the existing policy, and allows only "rare and compelling circumstances" force the removal of a chairperson without faculty consultation.

The amendment also officially compels school deans to start review procedures on department chairpersons at the request of one-third of the full time faculty in the chairperson's department.

An addition to the amendments, made by Dean of Faculty Robert Sasseen, says the procedure would only be mandatory after 12 months had passed since the last review of initial selection of a chairperson in a depart "In a split department, a minority

Deans told to enforce university policy

Students have course commitee rights

By Heidi Van Zant The nine SJSU school deans are in the process of reminding department chairpersons that students have the right to serve on department curriculum committees.

Academic Vice President Hobert Burns met with the deans last Monday and distributed a memorandum on the subject.

The memorandum stated ". . .it appears that many departments and programs may not be satisfying either the letter or the spirit of the University policy" which says students have the right to participate on curriculum committees.

Daily survey

A Spartan Daily survey taken last week showed 37 departments have no student representation on either the undergraduate or graduate curriculum committee, 14 departments have students on one of the committees and five departments have students on both committees. Burns said he asked the school deans to "do what needs to be done to insure that students are not deprived of their rights under this policy.

Deans meet

As a result, three deans already have met with their department chairpersons.

Dean Stanley Burnham of the School of Applied Sciences and Arts met yesterday to discuss the policy, according to his secretary.

However, Burnham and both of his associate deans were unavailable for comment.

Dean George Halverson of the School of Business and Dean Francis Villemain of the School of Education said they both met this week to remind department chairpersons of the policy.

"Talking about it brought a very real problem and interest back to mind," Villemain said. "The upshot is we're going to find students who are in-

"I don't think a meeting necessary," said Dr. Harold DeBey, provost of New College.

Another dean planning to meet with chairpersons to discuss student participation is Dr. Henry Bruinsma of the School of Humanities and Arts.

Matter discussed

Associate Dean Harvey Sharfstein of the School fo Engineering said the matter would be discussed when Dean James Roberts returns next week from a trip out of town.

Burns said student representation on faculty committees has never been checked before.

Econ voting issue

Profs don't fear students

A few weeks ago the Department of Economics approved student representatives to the graduate and curriculum committees, but denied them voting rights. The department meeting was reported in the Daily, and it has continued to receive comment in two subsequent letters to the editor. Part of the lingering controversy can be explained by student perspectives, which differ from those of the faculty, and the remainder can be attributed to student misrepresentation of faculty Student perspectives are different from those of the faculty, and these differences became obvious during the debate at the department meeting. The wanted democratically their own representatives to the graduate and curriculum committees, and they were successful in persuading the faculty to accept their position, which passed with a 6-4-1 vote. With respect to the issue of voting rights, the majority of the faculty rejected the students' position by a vote of 5-6-1. In the previous case student views were persuasive, and in the latter they were not.

Although a majority of the department favored the student-designed selection process, many faculty voiced strong reservations. One argument was that since individual faculty membership on the graduate and curriculum the department chairman, individual student membership should be determined in the same way. Another faculty concern was that because the number of students involved in departmental affairs was so minimal, an election would not truly represent a cross-section of student opinion. Nevertheless, a majority of the department supported student elections as the device to determine their members to the two committees.

On the issue of voting rights, some faculty felt that there was a conflict of interest in having students vote on curriculum matters. Other faculty members objected to permanent decisions on curriculum being influenced by students whose interest was basically transitory. Another argument that apparently persuaded a majority of the faculty was that students would not be sufficiently experienced or informed about the curriculum and the graduate program to contribute to departmental policy.

These minority and majority positions on the two issues of selection and voting were rational and reasonable, even though some students deluded themselves with the notion that the faculty feared them. Such an allegation misrepresents the views of the faculty and it presupposes deceit and collusion

To impute fear to the faculty is to more, to say that fear was the motivating factor in the majority's decision on voting rights is to imply that the faculty deceived the students with words that did not accurately represent faculty views. While this could be true in individual cases, it's not likely to be collectively valid unless the students also argue collusion on the part of the

Those disappointed students who publicly misrepresented faculty views seemed to be saying that voting rights were denied them because a fearful faculty reacted with collusive deceipt. Stated and implied allegations of this nature detract from the students' interest and they also do not explain faculty behavior.

My concern about an accurate portrayal of faculty actions and views should not be interpreted as selfserving. Although I voted with the majority and for the students on the issue of selection, I voted with the minority and for the students on the issue of student voting rights. But 10 or 11 other faculty votes were also cast on each of these two issues. I see no reason for the students, whether they agree with them or not, to degrade the efforts of these people.

Ellsberg, Boyle laud Daily story of disruption, editorial

The accurate reporting in the March 18 issue of your paper which describes the attempted disruption on March 16 (by proclaimed members of the Iranian Students Association) of a panel sponsored by the Committee for Artistic and Intellectual Freedom in Iran is warmly welcomed by the undersigned members of the panel.

The editorial statement in support of the constitutional right of freedom of speech, also published in your March 18 issue, is also acknowledged with appreciation.

During the fortnight preceding the scheduled meeting, one of the panel members (Kay Boyle), an honorary chairperson of the Committee for Artistic and Intellectual Freedom in Iran, was advised by three separate sources that there would be no violent disruption attempted on March 16. Two of these sources, a San Jose State professor and a San Jose laywer, both in contact with ISA members, agreed denouncing Dr. Reza Baraheni, the key speaker of the evening, as a member of SAVAK the Iranian secret police), and also that questions would be asked of Dr. Baraheni during the course of the

In a telephone conversation with the third source, allegedly an ISA member at San Jose State (identified as a Mr. Mohammad), the undersigned panel member (Kay Boyle) was told that while it might be conceded that Dr. Baraheni was opposed to the Shah of Iran and his regime, the fact remained that he was not a Marxist. This is clearly not sufficient reason to deny Dr. Baraheni the right to speak in an open forum.

It was not until immediately before the panel meeting that the chief of the campus security police advised Dr. Baraheni and the members of the panel that a "reliable source" had reported to the police that an assassination "plot"

The "plot" on Dr. Baraheni's life was not a mere rumor; the police assure all members of the panel, but was reported by a trustworthy source who had overheard the actual plotting. Under the circumstances, the police chief stated that he could not insure the safety of Dr. Baraheni. In consideration of this, as well as out of concern for his fellow panelists, Dr. Baraheni did not enter the lecture hall.

We call on the members of ISA to join with all those who are opposed to the brutal regime of the Shah of Iran and unite in defense of our sisters and brothers, our fellow human beings, who are suffering incarceration and torture in the prisons of Iran.

Neither terrorist assassination plots nor ISA attempted disruption of freedom of speech should be resorted to in attempts to silence one of the most outspoken opponents of the Shah's regime, Dr. Reza Baraheni.

Kay Boyle Daniel Ellsberg

'ISA-U.S.' gives reasons for CAIFI meeting protest

The First Amendment! Freedom of speech! For whom? For the George Jacksons, the Ruchell Magees, the Joe Hills, or for the servants of U.S. imperialism? Who benefits from this 'democracy and freedom," the people or the State (the ruling class)? These questions have been directed at the ISA, and it is these questions that we intend to answer.

We in the ISA have merely expressed our opposition to a group of individuals who not only slander Iranian political prisoners and exploit the humane sentiments of the American people, but who have betrayed the struggle of the Iranian people for freedom and independence in order to further their own interests.

Ever since the U.S. defeat in Indochina and the weakening of U.S. imperialism, the contradictions within the American ruling class (the military industrial giants) have intensified. Some clear manifestations of this are Watergate, the CIA investigations, et

As a result of these sharpening contradictions we witness the emergence of more "diverse political lines," particularly with respect to U.S. foreign policy and with the media covering more and more of these "conflicting views." With respect to Iran, this pro-con coverage concerning the Shah can only mean one thing dissention among the various factions of the ruling class regarding the U.S.'s continuing role in Iran.

When Ted Kennedy went to Iran last June and denounced the Pentagonbacked arms buildup by the Shah, and warned the Shah of his displeasure with the way the Iranian government had been organized, it seemed clear that the Shah was not fulfilling the interests of the Morgan Trust that Kennedy represents

And this is where Kennedy's boy, our 'noble humanitarian'' Ellsberg, comes into the picture. Ellsberg has continually attempted to confuse the American public about the Shah and his fascist disctatorship. His "opposition" to the Iranian regime is analogous to Renny "opposition" to the system Davis has since joined the Maharashi Yogi cult).

If Ellsberg is really trying to expose the true nature of the Iranian regime, then why has he persistently slandered the ISA (an organization which has for over 16 years worked to expose the fascist regime of the Shah, while educating Americans as to the true nature of the U.S.'s involvement in Iran), and united himself with traitors like Baraheni and the "CAIFI" organizers! These acts clearly show Ellsberg's allegiance to the ruling class he serves.

As for Baraheni, he will always remain a traitor to the Iranian people's movement: a phony "political

TV and denounced the people's movement for freedom and independence; a person who slanders in his Persian writings the martyrs of the movement - martyrs who gave their lives in fighting against the Shah's fascist exploitation and suppression of the Iranian people.

Baraheni is clearly an agent who collaborates with the "CAIFI" organizers who picketed John Thorne's (who has visited Iran twice as an international observer) forum on Iranian political prisoners. These people, who have given names and pictures of Iranian students to the police and the FBI (of course these pictures are immediately sent to SAVAK), have ac tively supported the known SAVAK agents planted among a group of political prisoners on "trial" during Thorne's stay in 1974.

As history has shown us, there have always been schemes perpetrated by the forces of reaction when the people rise up to struggle to establish their own rule: the rule of the majority over a minority of oppressors.

The ISA, in its long years of struggle against the fascist Shah, has exposed and defeated many such plots to undermine its just struggle. We are confident that this Ellsberg, Baraheni and "CAIFI" combination will meet the same fate

There are several probable reasons and the Ford campaign strategists are no doubt muddling over them.

Firstly, Reagan was well-organized in North Carolina and was benefited by a low voter turnout and an active endorsement from popular Sen. Jessie

Secondly, Reagan's attacks on the President's foreign policy and his image as a fiscal "Santa Claus" in previous primary states undoubtedly hit home with many voters. Thirdly, North Carolina was the only

Bicentennial conference to feature family, abortion and life in space

Life, as we know it on this earth and the possibilities in outer space, will be the two general topics for today's second round of lecturers in he School of Science's third Bicentennial Conference.

All sessions will be held in the S.U. Umunhum Room starting at 8:30 a.m.

The first topic will deal with "Family and Life: Do They Have a Future?"

The speakers will include Dr. Chester Winton, SJSU professor of sociology, Lyn Reynolds, executive director of Planned Parenthood in Santa Clara County and Dr. Douglas Harper, a psychiatrist connected with Douglas United for Life.

Changes discussed

The three will discuss the merits and needed changes the family of today faces. The alternatives that many are proposing will be analyzed and applied to modern families.

The 9:30 a.m. lecture will feature the same trio speaking on "Fertility Control and Abortion: What are Options?

The delegate is relieved of this obligation should his candidate's total support at the convention fall under 15 per cent or should he be released by the candidate.

The filing of this pledge must be done before April 8. Hans Harder, assistant registrar of voters for the county, reported the list of possible representatives is fairly short thus far.

"We haven't had too much response as of yet," said Harder, "and I can't really say how it's going to look in the end."

It is from this list that the candidate will choose who will go to the convention, depending on his showing in the June 8 primary election. The candidate is free to choose from anybody on the list, regardless of ranking.

So far, only a few of the caucuses have scheduled for April 11, according to the county Democratic headquarters.

In the tenth district, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter's supporters will meet at Kennedy High School in Fremont.

Arizona Rep. Morris Udall's supporters will have theirs at the same place.

Law changed With the abandonment of the winner-take-all primary rule, where the candidate with a plurality could receive all of the state's 280 delegates, representation at the convention will now be more evenly divided.

With the passage last year of SB 288, sponsored by state Sen. Alfred Alquist, and this year of SB 1376, also by Alquist, 210 delegates (75 percent) will be distributed individual showings in each congressional district. The remaining delegates will be won on the total statewide showings Each district will send five representatives to New York City. Those selected will come from the lists of 10 nominees chosen at each caucus in the districts. Delegates divided

In deciding how many delegates each candidate gets from each district, for given candidate receives in a given district, he wins one delegate. The remaining delegates are awarded in order of the magnitude of the vote remaining after the subtraction of the 20 per cent chunks.

In a given district for example, if Candidate A gets 55 per cent, Candidate B 23 per cent, Candidate C 15 per cent, and Candidate D 7 per cent, Candidate A gets two delegates for having at least 40 per cent of the vote (two 20 per cent chunks) and Candidate B gets one for getting at least 20 per cent.
In deciding on the remaining two delegates, Candidate A, with 15 per cent extra of the vote, gets another delegate and Candidate C, with 15 per cent,-gets the last one.

Thus, Candidate A gets three delegates, Candidate B gets one, and Candidate C gets one in this given district.

Selections named

The official tabulation of votes and awarding of delegates will be announced before June 23 by Secretary of State March Fong. At this same time, the candidates will choose from the list of 10 nominees to his name in each district who will go to the convention, depending on how many he was awarded.

As in our previous example, Candidate A would choose three people from the list in that given area to attend the convention. Candidate B will choose one and Candidate C will choose

Those choices will be announced by the Steering Committee of each candidate before June 23.

On June 26, delegates won on a statewide basis will be selected from those remaining nominees. These will be decided by a meeting each candidate's delegation and the steering committees. Alternates will also be chosen at this time.

All of this is what it takes to get to the 1976 Democratic convention and, for the student with the will and the energy to campaign for the candidate of his choice, it surely is worth a try to become a part of history.

Despite appearances, SJSU's Glen Williams is safe on third on an attempted force out. The base umpire ruled Stanislaus third baseman Bill Miller failed to touch the bag with his foot. JV's beat Cal Poly; busy weekend ahead

By Sue Trevarthen

It took 10 innings to do it but the JV baseball team came from behind to beat Cal Poly Pomona, 4-3, Tuesday on the Spartan diamond.

The win was the third in a string of six games played by the JV's in the last five days

On Saturday the team split double header with UC Berkeley, winning the first game 6-3 and losing the second 11-7.

On Monday the Spartans faced St. Mary's in another double header, losing the first game 5-2 and winning the second 4-3.

Yesterday the team played Andrew Hill High School but he results were not vailable at press time.

Busy weekend ahead This coming week coming weekend promises to be another busy one for the JV's as they face CSC Sonoma in a double header at 1:30 Friday at the home diamond on South 10th Street.

The day after, on Saturday, they will face American River Junior College in another double header here.

In Tuesday's action, winning pitcher Greg Queen totalled seven strikeouts while upping the team's everall record to 12-11. Their eague record stands at 6-2 Ind they are on top of the league by half a game over UC Berkeley, which coach Sam Piraro rates as the league powerhouse. Piraro's pitching staff has really been coming through

Spartan golfers play in UOP tournament

By Randy Frey When a team is on top it only has one way to go, and that's down.

Spartan golfers, defending champions of the University of the Pacific Invitational. will work to avoid a descent today in the opening round of the UOP tourney. SJSU won the tournament last year when All-America golfer Jim Knoll captured individual honors and junior Scott Hoyt drove his way into third place.

Now a senior, Hoyt will lead the title defense over 6200-yard Woodbridge Golf and Country Club in Lodi, 12 miles north of Stockton.

"I think we should have a pretty good chance of winning this one," said coach Jerry Vroom, who doesn't anticipate the competition in this tourney to be as strong as in other events this year.

Central Valley teams

The 54-hole tournament will be packed with Central Valley teams, including CSU Sacramento, CSU Chico, CSU Fresno, CSC Stanislaus

None of the teams are pitches Saturday against exceptionally strong, although Fresno beat SJSU in a dual match earlier in the year and Sacramento outpointed the Spartans in February's Hayward State Invitational at Silverado.

But Vroom sees neither of those teams as the big threat.

'Because they will be playing on their home course, I'd have to call UOP the favorite," said the coach.

Leading the charge for the Spartans at Woodbridge will be Hovt, Don Thames and freshman Don Levin, all coming off strong performances in the Aztec Invitational in San Diego.

Three newcomers will join the six-man team: Doug Tengler, Mike Bauer and Beardsley not ready Originally, Terry Beard-sley was scheduled to play, but according to Bauer he decided he wasn't ready.

"Terry is probably the best golfer on the team," said Bauer, "but he lacks confidence right now. "I play with Terry in all the practice rounds, and he shoots 66 and 67," said Bauer. But then he plays in a tourney and shoots 79.

Twinn was the last minute replacement for Beardsley.

ment representatives are attending a retreat today and tomorrow in Asilomar to discuss the education program, said Dr. Jack Sutherland, co-chairman of the school's Academic Review Commission.

The retreat is a result of the formation of the Academic Review Commission in October by Dr. Francis T. Villemain, dean of the School of Education.

Cites reason

In a letter to the School of Education, Villemain cited several reasons for the organization of the commission. They are:

• the impact of the Ryan Act on the curriculum and budget. The act was passed in 1972 and establishes new requirements for credential candidates. · a new emphasis on campus-field instruction rather than campus based instruction.

budgetary enrollment constraints. • the upcoming National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education visit. · a new dean in the school.

a need for response to changes in public schools.

The eight-member commission consists of six persons from the School of Education and two others from the English and Natural Science depart-

Villemain said outside members were included because he believes campusparticipation necessary for the commission to be successful. 'It's proper for them to be involved, we think," he said.

Task forces set up In January, the commission held a two-day retreat in Los Gatos to "identify the concerns of the group," Sutherland said. The school's faculty and representatives from other departments attended.

As a result, eight task forces were set up to deal with matters such as communication, relationships with district reorganization and staff welfare, he said.

The task forces have been meeting since January and will report their findings at

The commission will then make recommendations to Villemain, he said.

Findings start Sutherland emphasized that the commission and task forces are "ongoing" processes and the findings at Asilomar will only be the first step in a series.

'It's more of an inventory than anything else," he said. Villemain said he would like to see the commission set up on a permanent basis.

Sutherland said he views the commission as a vehicle to "see if we're doing the best job that we can be doing. We make recommendations for changes or identify areas where we are already strong.

Board urges state to fund solar energy

SACRAMENTO (AP)-The state Energy Commission has taken steps it hopes will result California getting the world's first large-scale solar energy generating plant.

The commission voted 5-0 Wednesday to urge the legislature to approve $2 million to, in effect, enhance California's bid in the eyes of the federal government.

The U.S. Energy Research and Development Agency is seeking nationwide proposals for an $85-million experimental solar plant, with the federal government paying $75 million.

utilities-Southern California Edison and Los Angeles County Water and Power-already have proposed building such a plant.

Commission spokesman Vic Biondi said the commission wants all California utilities-large and smallto be involved and is not endorsing a particular utility's plan.

'We urge the legislature to have California pick up about $2 million of the $10 million to show the state's committment and support of solar energy," Biondi said.

Change essential

Speaking last Friday on KSJS-FM. the SJSU radio station, Fletcher said a change in the controversial access rule is essential in ending strife between the rival United Farmworkers and Teamsters unions. The ALRB now allows as many as three hours per day for union representatives to enter the fields and talk to workers during lunch hours and breaks. "It is foolish to allow that much leeway," he said.

"You can't run a business properly that way." Chides Democrats Fletcher chided the Democrats for not accepting

"If they want it (ALRB), they should be willing to make some mild changes to make it successful," he said. Fletcher assailed Gov.

Unruh points objections to Cal. primary

SACRAMENTO California should either move its presidential primary from June to April or go back to the controversial winner-take-all system, state Treasurer Jess Unruh says.

That's because California's last-in-the-nation primary is almost meaningless since the winner-take-all system was abolished for Democrats after the 1972 convention, Unruh said in an interview.

Unruh, the former Assembly speaker who led California's 1968 delegation to the Democratic National ivention, California cochairman U.S. Henry Jackson's Sen. presidential campaign.

He said he thought the change should be made because he fears California may lose its clout in the presidential race.

Unruh added that he was speaking as a concerned Californian, not as a Jackson campaign spokesman.
