A.D. Murphy not to return

By Steve Carp Men's Athletic Director Bob Murphy has announced that he will not seek renewal of his contract when it expires July 15.

In a letter to Academic Vice President Hobert Burns, Murphy informed SJSU that he will not return when his contract expires.

He does intend to fulfill his contract, according to Burns and Associate Athletic Director Jon Murphy was unavailable for comment. He did speak about the situation last Thursday in a column in the San Jose Mercury-News.

In executive sports editor Dan Hruby's column, Murphy said he doesn't see myself as resigning. I'm certainly not quitting. I'm just not planning to renew my side of the contract.

Murphy also indicated in the article that "I have no ill feelings towards any one at San Jose State.

The 47-year-old Murphy came to SJSU in July 1976 afterserving as executive director of the Jack Nicklaus Memorial Golf Tournament. He had also been executive director of the East-West Shrine Football Classic and the sports information director at Stanford prior to taking the SJSU post.

Murphy was hired by former SJSU President John Bunzel. While Murphy had a good relationship with Bunzel, things seemed to change when Dr. Gail Fullerton was appointed president last September.

Murphy reportedly was of-fended by Fullerton's concern for the program.

"Murphy didn't appear to be feuding with the president, at least as far as I could tell," Burns said when asked about the relationship between Murphy and Fullerton.

Fullerton could not be reached for comment.

Murphy also was at odds with the Spartan Daily during the past year. The relationship between the two has been described as "shaky" at best and has deteriorated beyond that. Murphy refused to talk to Daily reporters for most of a year.

Murphy has also been at odds with the Mercury-News at times due to articles and columns written about Murphy and his program.

Members of the Athletic Department cited delays in the expansion of Spartan Stadium, problems with fund raising and the slowness of the system as the main reasons for Murphy's decision.

Burns also indicated that Murphy had requested to be replaced as chairman of the screening committee for the new of the vote in election which ended April 5. The election resulted in a runoff between S.F.A. candidate Nancy McFadden and P.S. candidate Joe Trippi.

Dutton is charging that the election board violated Act 9, the election code, by not putting his party affiliation of Greenback on the ballot after he registered with the board as the Greenback party.

The party was identified on the ballot as GB.

A.S. adviser Louie Barozzi, sho sat on the election board, said the board had to abbreviate all the party names because there was not enough room on the ballots to write them out, especially for the council candidates' ballot

In order to be fair, Barozzi said the board decided to abbreviate every party's name, instead of spelling some out and abbreviating others.

Dutton would have to show evidence that a substantial number of persons didn't vote for him because the ballot stated "GB" instead of Greenback for the election board to invalidate the election,

Dutton also is charging that the election was unfair because of the make-up of the ballots. He alledged that the ballots were "deliberately engineered" so people voting for the Greenback slate would mark the bubble for the S.F.A., placed on the ballot below Greenback.

Barozzi said he could see where there might be confusion with the placement of the bubbles on the ballot, but Dutton would have to prove that the arrangement of names and bubbles would significantly affect the outcome of

Although the ballot could have caused some confusion Barozzi said, it "was not so bad that you couldn't vote correctly," and the burden was on the voter to fill in the bubbles

Barozzi said he believed Mc-Fadden and Trippi would be in a runoff even if the ballots were set up differently, and the fact that the Dutton or Jim Stephens of the Bacardi and Coke party would not be in a runoff "is not the ballot's fault."

Bachelor's, master's degrees pay off for SJSU graduates

By Debbie Hunsinger Does a college education really

Among spring 1978 job-seeking CSUC graduates, 93 percent of those responding to an employment survey had jobs within four months of obtaining their degrees, according to David Travis, associate dean of student affairs in the chancellor's office.

Questionnaires were sent to all 27,330 graduates of that semester. Results are based on the 11,625 who responded and revealed that this is the highest level of job placement recorded since the annual surveys were started in 1975.

Of those employed, 75 percent of bachelor's degree recipients and 91 percent of those with master's degrees had jobs either directly or somewhat related to their college

Beginning salaries for CSUC degree averaged $966 a month, up from $874 in 1977. Master's degree holders averaged $45 more than in 1977, with $1,234 a month.

This also is the highest salary level recorded since the surveys

"The 1978 results precede what many university placement officers believe will be even more favorable results in 1979," a news release from Travis' office stated.

"There are strong, clear showings of the economic value of a college education in today's job market," he said.

Graduates of all majors offered on the 19 CSUC campuses with the exception of educational credential candidates, who are surveyed separately each year, are included in the survey report.

For credential candidates, an "increasingly favorable employment picture" for teachers was reported in a 1977-78 survey completed by Travis in January.

The report revealed more than half of the multiple and single subject credential candidates at elementary and secondary levels available for employemnt obtained full-time positions.

Of graduates aged 24 and younger, Travis reported 90 percent available for employment had jobs, more than 75 percent obtained new jobs after graduation which were directly related to their majors, 57 percent had jobs requiring jobs requiring at least a bachelor's

Two-thirds of the available candidates with services credentials and 83 percent of the specialists found full-time jobs in their fields, according to the survey.

Among the majors at the bachelor's level with a stronger showing in the job market are agricultural business, dairy science, forestry, architecture, business adminstration, all fields of engineering, geology, computer science and occupational and physical therapy.

Some 70 percent of master's degree graduates had jobs specifically related to their academic majors, and 83 percent had jobs requiring at least a bachelor's or master's degree.

Major fields in the job market at the master's level included agriculture, architecture, business administration, English, engineering, computer science, geology, library science and speech pathology and audiology.

Radioactivity ıs a nazard

By Mary T. Lee

For 20 years, people have been intentionally kept in the dark about nuclear power and its potential hazards by the utility companies and the government, according to Ralph Nader, consumer activist.

Addressing a crowd of ap-proximately 300 at Foothill College last week, Nader blasted President Carter's stand on the Harrisburg incident saying, "He speaks out three days later, and his principal concern is for the nuclear industry, not for the people.

"The more people learn about nuclear power, the more they think it should be phased out.'

he said. "is trivial compared to the radioactivity present in a nuclear plant." Although nuclear plants provide only 3 percent of the nation's total energy, Nader said, "We are being told by Carter that we can't afford to stop nuclear power.

Questioning the validity of Carter's statement, Nader asked, "Can we afford to use the energy today and leave the waste for our children for thousands of years to Can we afford to have population evacuation drills and post police garrisons around these plants?"

According to Nader, the pronuclear forces went to Washington, D.C., 22 years ago and got a bill passed that limits thier liability in case of accident at a nuclear paint.

The mentality of these people Nader said, was "It's nice and safe, but we are not going to risk our assets to your losses if there is a radiation leak."

The solution to avoiding the risks involved with nuclear power, then, he said, is to require the utility companies to be more efficient. Right now, the utility companies are charging less per kilowat hour, the more energy used. This is just the reverse of what the utilities should be doing, he said.

In addition, Nader said, "We can start looking at our fossil reserves. We have far more oil, gas

Nader also condemned the media in general for failing to in-Citing Time Magazine as the "weekly fiction," Nader said he had told Time's editor "years ago" that he should run a cover story on nuclear plants, telling him, better to have a story on nuclear plants before a disaster than after.'

Last week, Nader said, Time ran its cover story on the nuclear

"There is corruption in government, corporate crime, bribing of foreign and local officials. There are documented violations of consumer safety laws," he said, and where is the attention in the media to that?

There is absolutely no justification in a country like ours in letting a handful of corporations own all the mass media.

There is something wrong, Nader said, when "Morris the cat has more time to get his message across to Americans on TV than we do-and we own the airwaves

Nader also spoke brifely about the automobile industry, describing Detroit's value system as "grotesque."

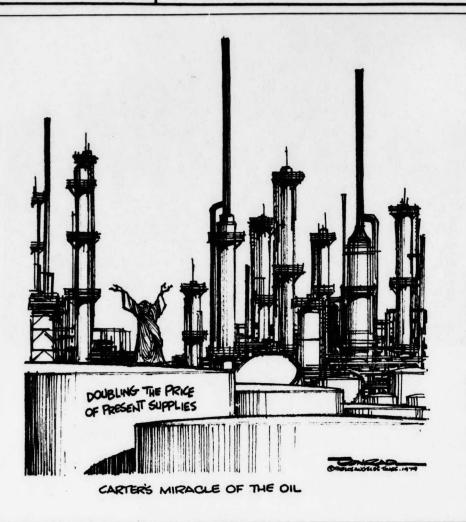

"I always wondered," Nader said, "why they (automobile companies) since they had so much money, why couldn't they de-lethalize cars?"

Nader also attacked the drug industry, saying it has regressed this year from last year in that not enough information is given out to consumers on the drugs they use.

Collective bargaining

Merits exceed evils

By Mary T. Lee
For some SJSU faculty and staff unionism at its worst. They envision sign-carrying strikers on picket lines, coupled with a loss of prestige in their professional status.

Actually, the words "collective bargaining" are not even used in Assembly Bill 1091, which grants to CSUC employees the right to select, if they choose, an exclusive bargaining agent for the system. Instead the wording "meet and confer" is used.

This, some people think, is for "political reasons," in that "meet and confer" sounds milder than "collective bargaining."

AB 1091 becomes effective July

1, so the various employee organizations are busy gathering signatures of qualified faculty and staff to submit to either the Public Employees Relations Board or to the CSUC Board of Trustees.

Although most employees are responsive to the petition drive, some find the process undignified and believe it to be inappropriate in keeping with their professional

Raza si

The SJSU community should be made aware of the implied meaning of the phrase, "Raza si, Olsen no," which was incorrectly applied to the photo caption and article regarding student support for the proposed Chicano Resource Center

Although the Spartan Daily may have meant will in translating the phrase for us, much of what the Chicano Students want to convey is lost in the translation of these words. The words, "Raza si," do not necessarily mean "Race yes" the way they are defined in the article. To most of the Spanish speaking people in the Southwestern U.S., the people in the southwestern 0.3., the term "Raza" is used to describe the collectivity of their group. Whether a person prefers to consider himself Chicano, Mexican, Latino, Mexican-American or even "Hispanic," we acknowledge our social identity when we call ourselves "Raza." To Chicanos, the word also has positive connotations; it implies the common recognition that we are a proud distinct culture group within the United States.

The way it was put in the Daily article, "Race yes" could be understood to mean any type of race or just race in general. Hopefully the little lesson in syntax will clear any misconceptions about how the word 'Raza" is used.

Green sheets

Now that it is official university policy that all faculty members must issue "green sheets" in each class, we feel that the Academic Senate should continue in its en-deavors and give attention to other vitally importnat issues concerning our campus commuity. We suggest that the senate take up the following matters at the earliest opportunity: l. In order to continue its efforts to eliminate laxity and unpreparedness on the part of certain of the faculty, the "green sheet" policy should become "Phase I" of a more extensive program. "Phase II" would require that each faculty member submit weekly lesson plans to the department chairperson. These would become a part of the faculty member's permanent personnel f ile.

2. Faculty should be assigned as hall monitors in each classroom or office builidng. Other faculty who are loitering in halls outside their offices without signed permission slips from their school dean should be promptly reported to the Dean of Faculty. Such reports would also become part of their personnel files.

3. Faculty should be required to provide evidence of having left offices and classrooms neat before being given permission to leave the campus in the afternoon. Notices of infractions would become part of their personnel files.

4. The senate should petition the board of trutees to change the name of the institution to San Jose State Junior High School.

Insensitivity

Congratulations, Sports Editor Chuck Hildebrand! You've gotten me to read the Spartan Daily sports section for one of the few times of my entire stay at SJSU.

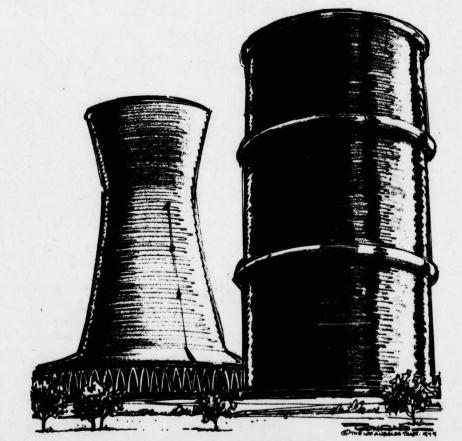

Don't get me wrong now-it's not your section that has captured my eye. On the contrary, it's something more basic and entertaining. It's your astoundingly bold insensitivity. pig-headed chauvinism and incompetence.

Did you happen to notice, Mr. Hildebrand, that the annual women's national fencing championship was taking place two weeks ago at SJSU? It's hard to believe you could miss it-the tournament was held only one building away from the Spartan Daily staffroom. But it seems your nose was so mired in the "more important sports," like baseball, that you couldn't look out

I suppose you believe it's unimportant that this is the first time this national champioship has been held at SJSU? Or that the reason it was held here this year is that our women's team has captured the national title four years in a row(an achievement which they equalled two weeks ago)?

Oh, yes, though-we must remember that fencing is one of those "minor" sports you love so well to ignore under your continued policy, which has totally disgraced an entire section of an otherwise fine newspaper.

At least, every other major media in the area caught on to the importance of this event and covered it. They probably also saw what I saw when I attended the tournament-intensely dedicated

Pt. Reyes paper wins Pulitzer

POINT REYES (AP) -David Mitchell says his Point Reyes Light tiny newspaper with only one fulltime reporter." But giant in it became a giant in journalism Monday when the newspaper won the 1979 Pulitzer Prize for public service for its investigation Synanon, rehabilitation center for

"Oh my God, that's wonderful," Mitchell said when the Associated Press informed him of the award. 'I'm overwhelmed. I'ts like turning a nickel into a million dollars." Mitchell and his wife, Cathy, bought the weekly paper four years ago. "We're so small Cathy has a teaching job on the side to help make ends meet," he said.

The newspaper has a circulation of 2,700 and operates out of a storefront on the town's only street.

"We did something like 100 stories and editorials on Synanon last year," he said. "With only one reporter to help get out the whole paper, it has been an immense burden.

"We wrote about Synanon in virtually every issue last year," he said. We criticized state and local governments for not taking action" about allegations of abuse within the rehabilitation center.

Mitchell said he and his wife wrote most of the articles on Synanon, which has its headquarters about six miles from Point Reyes, situated 40 miles north of San Francisco.

When asked for directions to the newspaper office, Mitchell replied, 'Aw, you can't miss it. The whole town is only three blocks long.

Curb's spokesman Shel Lytton said the lieutenant governor ordered seven extra patrol units into the area after discussing the strike with CHP Commissioner Glen Craig. Curb took the action in the absence of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. who was out of state on vacation at the time.

"It's always been Mike Curb's position to do whatever is necessary to preserve peace and protect property rights," Lytton

He added that neither Curb nor Craig had received requests from local law enfrocement agencies for the help.

The UFW walkout, which began Jan. 19 and grew to include 4,200 workers and 11 major growers, was repeatedly marked by violence in the Imperial Valley. One striker was shot to death during a confrontation with non-union workers and more than two dozen persons were injured in two major melees. Dozens of small fracases and cases of vandalism were reported.

On Feb. 22, Brown ordered 40 CHP officers into the Imperial Valley after a violent confrontation between an estimated 1,000 strikers and 200 law enfrocement But Brown officers. But Brown refused a request by growers and the Imperial County sheriff to send in National Guard. Earlier in the month, he refused a similar request when striker Rufino Contreras was shot to

Deputies' strike puts judges in jail

SANTA BARBARA (AP) - Three judges held court in jail yesterday because prisoners couldn't be transported to their courtrooms without deputy sheriffs, who are on strike.

County supervisors said they were told three other unions representing about 1,400 employees planned to join the sheriff's walkout Wednesday if no progress occured in negotiations, operations of most county agencies were reported normal Monday after a one-day sick-out Friday.

More than one-fourth of all county employees-544 workers-stayed home Friday in protest of a county contract offer covering about 2,200 workers. More than 200 sheriff's deputies went on strike late Thursday.

No talks were scheduled Monday. Supervisors met in a private session to discuss the situation with top county officials.

There were indications talks might be scheduled for Tuesday. The county offer rejected by the deputy sheriff's association included a 5 percent pay hike effective Monday, a onetime special salary adjustment of $250, and a 7 percent general increase effective July 9, subject to full agreement on all nonsalary items by June 1.

Because the deputies' strike halted normal transportation of prisoners to court by bus, a distance of about six miles, two Municipal Court judges and the presiding judge of Superior Court drove to the jail with court staff members Monday for arraignment of prisoners.

In an interview Monday, Jail Cmdr. John DaFoe described the jail situation as "shaky."

He said fireman were called to put out several minor fires at the jail over the Easter weekend. Papers were set on fire in some cases by inmates apparently protesting apparently protesting changes in the normal routine.

DaFoe said the small jail force tried to keep the situation normal over the weekend-supplying fresh underwear, for example, but unable to provide fresh clothing or bedding. Prisoners were allowed Easter visits with families and meals were served in normal fashion, he said.

Prisoners scheduled for court appearances in Santa Maria, 70 miles north, were not moved Monday, and Municipal Judge Robert Eckhoff in Santa Maria said he would hold DaFoe and another jail officer in contempt if soners were not brought in by Tuesday.

"If he does hold me in contempt. I hope he gives me credit for time served," DaFoe said, adding: "I can aslways put myself on the work furlough program."

Social Security may cut benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) Trustees of the Social Security system said yesterday that a recession could jeopardize the system's ability to pay retirement benefits on time beginning in 1983. And, the trustees cautioned that the system's financing is still precarious enough though newly increased Social Security payroll taxes cannot be reduced unless Congress also is willing to either reduce benefits or tap other sources of revenue.

The trustess, in their annual reprot on the health of the retirement, suvivors and disability insurance system, said Social Security could face problems in paying retirement benefits starting in 1983 if the nation falls into a recession this

The problem would clear up by 1992 because of the higher payroll taxes taking effect automatically through the 1980s, they said. But the system cannot afford a cut in those tax increases, enacted by Congress in 1977 to keep the system solvent.

Social Security will pay more than $101 billion to 35 million Americans this year. The trustees' report assumes that beneficiaries will get a 9.8 percent costof-living increase this July that will cost the government $10 billion.

The exact amount of the automatic increase won't be known until April 26, when the Labor Department releases the Consumer Price Index for Social Security Commissioner Stanford G. Ross told a news con-ference that the basic conclusion of the report is that the system is sound "in good financial shape for the next 50 years."

Ross praised Congress for boosting payroll taxes, but acknowledged feeling uneasy about them.

There's no question that the public is resistant of the present level of payroll tax, much less those that have bee between now and 1990, said Ross.

The Social Security trustees-Treasury Secre

Blumenthal, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and HEW Secretary Joseph today by Carter are A .Califano Jr. - said the cash flow problem beginning in 1983 could be avoided if legislation were passed to allow shifting ome Disability Insurance trust funds to the Old Age forest lands. Survivors Insurance Trust fund.

The trustees outlined three possible scenarios for the future.

Under the most op-timistic view, the trust fund will increase steadily from 1981 until at least the middle of the 21st century. Under the middle projection, the funds would climb from 1981 "until the early years of the next

Under the worst scenario, which envisions a recession starting in the last half of this year and extending through the first half of 1980, there is not "a wide margin of safety" for paying benefits from 1983

Social Security is basically a pay-as-you-go system, with current workers paying taxes that provide the checks for today's recipients. The trust funds usually have enough money on hand to pay only a few months' enefits.

Forests declared wilderness areas

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter yesterday recommended 9.9 million lands in the contiguous 48 states be preserved as wilderness, a move ex-pected to trigger sharp criticism from environmentalists who want more lands protected from development.

Carter's proposals call for 22 wilderness areas in 15 states, exclusive of Alaska. The president earlier sought wilderness protection for 5.5 million acres of Southeast Alaska

The areas selected the so-called RARE II lands, an acronym for the U.S. Forest Service's Roadless Area Review and Evaluation program of 62 million acres of roadless and undeveloped national mendations will more than double the present size of the national forest segment of the National Wildeness Preservation System and will more than quadruple the number of national forests wilderness in the highly populated states east of the Mississippi," Carter said in a statement released here.

The wilderness system is designed to preserve pristine natural areas.

Congress, which must approve Carter's recommendations, already has set aside 14.7 million acres of public land as wilderness. The lands are administered by the Forest Service, National Park Service and Fish and Wildlife Service.

The largest single wilderness area sought by Carter yesterday was for 171,347 acres in the West Lemhi Range in Idaho.

In addition, Carter called for further study on 10.6 million acres of forest lands to determine the best

The remaining 36 lion acres "will be million acres "will be managed for multiple uses other than wilderness," Carter said. This includes mining, grazing, timber cutting, recreation and oil and gas exploration.

The wilde The wilderness designation prohibits designation prohibits virtually all development. Only existing mining ventures and some livestock grazing are permitted in wilderness

Environmentalists earlier argued the 62 million acres under consideration consisted mostly of "rock and ice" and left out many pristine areas that should preserved in their natural state.

Carter, however, sought to blunt criticism by saying in his statement that "by releasing some of the land for uses other than wilderness, we respond to our urgent need for energy, wood products, livestock forage, minerals and a broad area of recreational opportunities."

The areas recommended for wilderness and the acreage include:

Arizona: Lower San Francisco, 6,400 acres.

California: White Mountains, 58,800; Kangaroo, 25,870. Nevada: Jarbridge, Utah: Olympus, 5,000.

Hawaii, Oregon destinations' for classes

By Don Vetter

Experiencing the real world rather than reading about it in a textbook can be the ideal in the field of education.

This summer, SJSU students will get a chance to experience the reality not offered in textbooks in two Environmental Studies travel courses to Hawaii and Oregon's Rogue River.

Gary A. Klee, SJSU associate professor of geography, will be taking his sixth class to the islacd of Kauai to study what he describes as a "mini ecosystem."

Klee said the island of Kauai is an ideal area to study the forces which act upon an ecosystem due to its relatively small size.

It is unique in that one side of the island is a temperate rain forest and the other side could be compared to an Arizona desert, he added.

Klee became interested in the natural makeup of Pacific islands while serving as a Peace Corps volunteer on Babelthaup Island, Palau in the Micronesia chain.

He later returned to Micronesia to complete his master's thesis about the village he lived in.

"It is easier to find out who is making the decisions over on Kauai than it is over here," he Klee is teaching a course on natural resources in the United States this semester and the Hawaii program is a perfect field extension for this course.

"Rather than study grassland resource management right out of the textbook, we actually get out and tour the area with a rancher and soil con-servationist," Klee said.

The travel course must be taken for credit either for Geography X499 or Environmental Studies 187, both three-unit classes.

The trip runs from May 31 until June 14, students are required to do a research project while on the island. The $685 fee, which covers all travel, extension course fees. transportation, food and lodging is due by May 5.

An average day that students spend on the island will begin with island will begin with morning workshops. Talking with experts and studying first hand soil, wildlife, forest and energy resources will also be scheldued during the morning.

In the afternoon, Klee said, everyone can enjoy the recreation opportunites such as skin diving backpacking, touring the area or just enjoying the sun on the beach.

Klee has been at SJSU for the past two years. He previously conducted the course at San Diego State University. This summer's program is in conjunction with SDSU.

From June 25 to June 30 Klee will conduct a tour exploring the wild river managemnt of the Rogue River in Oregon. "You have 30 different agencies trying to manage that river and each one has a different opinion on how to do it," Klee said.

Murphy's resignation: the aftermath

Coaches, staff sympathetic towards AD

By Steve Carp The news that Athletic Director Bob Murphy is resigning drew mixed reactions among SJSU coaches and administrators. One thing most agreed on was their surprise that Murphy did

"I didn't expect it," said Academic Vice President Hobert Burns. "He hadn't indicated that he would quit. But the years I spend with Bob were friendly and productive.

Jon Crosby, Associate AD and Murphy's righthand man the last three years, wasn't so surprised.

'I knew Bob was not happy with the direction department was headed. I certainly wasn't shocked when I heard

This department and University has lost a lot in not having Bob around. a great friend of athletics, this university and the community. He did a lot of good things that peole don't realize."

Some of those things, according to Crosby, in-cluded getting a working budget, paying off over $100,000 in debts that had accumulated prior to Murphy's arrival and the upgrading of scholarships in all sports.

Crosby also pointed out that the inner workings of the department had greatly improved under Murphy. "The sports information office, the athletic business office and the athletic ticket office all upgraded themselves thanks to Bob and the people he brought in to run them.

'I guess he believes it's the best thing for him, the department and the university. I'm sorry it happened.

"Bob is the type of guy who who wants complete control but the bureaucracy of the system didn't allow him to have it.

"While we still have a long way to go, Bob has gotten us to the point where we can see some light. I'm going to miss working with Spartan Foundation director Muts Horikawa also agreed that Murphy was having trouble sur-viving the bureaucratic "Knowing Bob Murphy, and the way he like to operate, it didn't come as that big a sur-

Horikawa beleives Murphy had a good working relationship with the Spartan Foundation, the Athletic Department's fund-raising arm. However, he maintained that the Foundation did not want to become directly involved in the situation.

Women's AD Joyce Malone praised Murphy and agreed that their relationship had veen cordial. "Bob is a very capable and charming individual and I wish him success in his future endeavors. He and his staff have been most cooperative with our department."

As far as the coaches were concerned, many were shocked to see Murphy leaving. All indicated that Murphy did back them and was supportive of their program.

"He helped increase my budget. I think he was behind us 100 percent," said baseball coach Gene Soccer coach Julie Menendez also said Murphy was cooperative with him. "Bob and I had a good personal relationship. He gave me a lot of leeway and he was supportive of soccer. He was very much behind the Shrine Soccer CLassic last year."

Track coach Ernie Bullard also had good things to say about Mur-"Bob let your run your own show. He was very supportive of the coaches and he helped get Larry Livers on as a full-timer, which was very important to the track program.

Jack Elway, the new football coach, didn't have much to say. "I've only been here three months But during those three months, we had a good relationship. It's been a positive experience.

When asked what effect the situation will have upon the football team, Elway said, "I don't think it'll have too much. We're trying to have a good spring and that's the most important thing on my mind at the moment.'

'It couldn't have happened to a nicer guy," former football coach Lynn Stiles, fired by Murphy last November, said sar-castically in a telephone interview from Philadelphia Monday. Stiles is now an assistant coach with the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League.

"I could see the handwriting on the wall last January," Stiles said, 'and I decided then that I'd give it my best shot last year and then move on, because of the direction the Athletic Department was taking.

"When two coaches (himself and former basketball coach Ivan Guevara) tell the president of the university the same thing, you've got to take notice," Stiles said.

Guevara made it understood that this wasn't a publicity gimmick or a move to paint Fullerton into a corner.

"I'm concerned about the program. I love this school and I would never do anything to hurt the school or the program. It's just that a lot of my colleagues and my family convinced me to do it. They obviously feel that I can do the job."

In eight years as coach, Guevara's Spartan teams compiled a 99-116 and this year's team had a disappointing 7-20 mark.

After being fired, Guevara explained that he had never been given a review and that he was rubber-stamped out of his job. He also spoke to Fullerton, explaining the shortcomings of program so she would get a better understanding as to where things stood.

By Dan Wood
Fresh from five wins in six starts over spring break, the SJSU baseball team travels to Berkeley today for a non-league encounter with California at 2:30 p.m.

The Spartans swept a three-game non-league series with Cal State Hayward last weekend, after taking two of three Northern California Baseball Association contests from St. Mary's two weekends ago.

The wins over St. Mary's ran SJSU's record to 8-1 in the second half of NCBA play. The first-place Spartans now hold a two-game lead over second-place University

USF at Santa Clara, 2:30 p.m.
Nevada Reno at Fresho State, 7:30 p.m.
San Francisco State at SJSU, 7:30 p.m.

(at PAL Stadium, non league) Saturday's games St. Mary's at Pacific (2), noon Santa Clara at USF (2), noon Nevada Reno at Fresno State (2), noon SJSU at San Francisco State (2), noon (non league)

St. Mary's won the first game of an April 6 doubleheader with SJSU at Municipal Stadium, 7-5 in 10

Jay Brazil effectively silenced the Gael bats in the nightcap, however, as the Spartans got even by a score of 2-1. The following day in Moraga, SJSU came out on top end of an 8-7 score in a very wild game, thereby securing the series victory.

This past weekend, SJSU was simply too much for Far Western Conference member Cal State Hayward, as the Spartans took a 9-7 decision Friday in Hayward, then returned home Saturday to sweep a doubleheader 4-1 and Greg Robles provided the big stick for SJSU Saturday, with five hits in seven tries in the twin bill, including a double and a home run.

Dave Nobles went all the way on the mound in the opener, running his record on the season to 7-2, while Brazil tossed six innings in the second game to earn his sixth win of the season against no losses

The competition should be quite a bit tougher this afternoon in Berkeley.
Cal is currently 22-17 overall this season, with a 10-8 mark in the Pacific 10 Conference Southern Division.

The Bears are coming off a five-game series at UCLA Grand Opening CUP OF where they dropped the first three games, but swept a Saturday doubleheader from the Bruins to remain in contention in the Pac-10 Steve Berglund will get the starting call on the mound today for SJSU. Berglund is 4-0, having picked up wins in relief against both St. Mary's and Hayward.

The Spartans get a bye from NCBA play this weekend, playing a non-league series with San Francisco State.

EXTRA BASES. The Spartans are still awaiting word from the NCBA on whether or not a first-half game with St. Mary's will have to be continued... The game was called after five innings because of darkness with SJSU on top 3-1... Should the game be continued and the Gaels emerge victorious, they would win the first half championship... Chris Pedretti scored his 88th career run Saturday, moving into second place on the all-time Spartan list... Tony Biondi leads with 112... SJSU scorekeeper Steve "Moon Dog" Meyer was ejected from Friday's game in Hayward for being a bit too vocal in protest of an umpire's call.

The background of Murphy's rise and fall

By Chuck Hildebrand Daily Sports Editor

The three-year tenure of Bob Murphy as SJSU athletic director began under clear skies, gradually clouded over and concluded with a deluge – in the form of the turmoil within the department, compounded by Murphy's resignation effective July 15.

When Murphy was selected to succeed John Caine June 22, 1976, the long-struggling SJSU athletic program appeared ready to lay claim to its long-sought status as a nationally recognized power.

The football team posted a 9-2 record, its best since 1946, and captured the Pacific Coast Athletic Association championship with a 31-7 victory over San Diego State before an overflow crowd at Spartan Stadium.

In basketball, the Spartans chalked up a 17-10 record and advanced to the finals of the PCAA tournament before falling to San Diego State. Coach Ivan Guevara was named the Northern California Coach of the Year by Northern California basketball writers.

The track team was coming off a fourth-place showing in the NCAA finals and the judo team had breezed to a 15th consecutive National Collegiate Judo Association

SJSU's men and women fencers nabbed national titles, the women's bowling team did likewise, the men's tennis team finished second in the PCAA and soccer team placed second to eventual national champion USF in its

Only swimming (last in the PCAA finals) and baseball (19-36 overall) were exceptions to the almost complete list of athletic success stories.

Murphy was hired over the other two finalists for the athletic directorship - Richmond (Va.) University Athletic Director Clyde Biggers and USC Assistant Athletic Director Dave Levy - because of his Bay Area and public relations backgrounds.

John Bunzel, SJSU president at the time, felt Murphy could be the catalyst who would make the long-awaited expansion of Spartan Stadium a reality.

That expansion, in turn, would make possible the scheduling of major college opponents in Spartan Stadium and finalized the acquisition of the big-time status Bunzel wanted so badly.

Murphy said at the press conference at which his hiring was announced that the improvement of SJSU's athletic facilities and the enhancement of the school's public image were his first priorities.

"We have to expand Spartan Stadium. We want to schedule schools like Penn State, Louisiana State and Michigan State at home," Murphy said at that time.

Murphy also said he intended to change what he called "the second-class atittude" he said SJSU students and the community had.

"It seems that San Jose has sort of gotten a second-class attitude," Murphy said. "We have to change all that and it won't come with just winners. It's the color and pageantry of, say, football that attracts people.

"We're going to make it so that going to the football game...is the thing to do," Murphy added. "To do this we must condition the sophomores and freshmen so that in two or three years, when we can seat 30-35,000 we can fill Murphy's arrival on campus was greeted with enthusiasm by most of the members of the Athletic Department.

"He's the best thing to happen to the Athletic Department since I've been here," assistant track coach Don Riggs was quoted as saying.

"We needed a PR guy and we got him," basketball coach Guevara said. "Everyone is for him. The total administration has changed. Now we have a lot of doers. He's great to work with because so many times you're told what you can't do, but he finds reasons why you can.'

According to Murphy, Darryl Rogers, who had resigned to take the head football coaching post at Michigan State in April, told him that he (Rogers) would have stayed at SJSU if he had known that Murphy was a candidate for the job.

The general feeling on campus in the community was that the SJSU athletic program was going places that Bob Murphy was the man to take it to the top.

Gradually, however, a few kinks developed in Bob

The stadium expansion sputtered, died, got started again and then resumed the same cycle. Various plans were proposed, first for a 30,000-seat stadium and then a completely rebuilt $6 million, 37,000-seat model. Both were delayed by lack of money - and every day it was month finally seemed to end the financing dilemma, but best estimates are that the construction won't get under way until November at the earliest - barring any more

While the stadium expansion stalled, Murphy fidgeted because he had lined up several big-name football foes for future schedules, with proportionately bigger guarantees to be given the visitors.

Relations with Guevara and former football coach Lynn Stiles soured quickly.

Guevara told this writer shortly after his firing last month that "Bob likes to be around his cronies and, un-fortunately, I wasn't one."

Murphy seldom showed up for the games and practices this year, according to Guevara. He refused to meet with Guevara, even for 15 minutes a week, to discuss the program and generally showed little interest, according

Stiles said in a telephone interview Monday that the Murphy – and conflicted with infomation Murphy had made public in a press release, which was printed one day earlier by the San Jose Mercury. (The PCAA subequently found "relatively insignificant violations" in the department and SJSU was not penalized.)

Thereafter, Murphy refused to speak to Daily staff

Murphy also had a difference of opinion with the San Jose Mercury-News, primarily over the Mercury-News' reporting of the department's alleged violations and a column criticizing Murphy's appearance as an announcer on SJSU football broadcasts this season.

Meanwhile, the revenue-producing sports (football and basketball) stopped winning - and as a result, stopped producing revenue.

The gridders were 7-4 in 1976 but dipped to 4-7 in 1977. The Spartans improved to 7-5 last season, but even a PCAA co-title could not save Stiles' job because a combination of a large number of returnees and an easy schedule was expected to add up to a 10-2 or 9-3 showing.

In basketball, the Spartans dipped to 8-19 in 1977 and 7-

Attendance in both sports fell to critical levels - about 7,000 for the Fullerton State grid contest and 991 for a basketball game against UC-Irvine.

After Stiles was fired following the next-to-last game of the season (effective at the end of the season) Murphy was quoted as saying that Stiles was fired partly because he didn't project the image sought by Murphy - that of a public relations-oriented, "belly-up-to-the-bar" type.

Murphy was also criticized heavily in the press for his handling of the Guevara firing and his alleged lack of interest and understanding of the basketball program.

To complicate the situation, Murphy's solid relationship with the president's office became strained when Gail Fullerton assumed the post after Bunzel's resignation last June.

Fullerton wished to take a more active role in the policy-making procedures of the department – and sources close to both indicate that Murphy resented what he interpreted as interference on the part of Fullerton. Murphy told this writer last semester that Fullerton was, in his opinion, "naive" in athletic matters.

When Fullerton said earlier this semester that a review of Murphy would be conducted when Murphy's contract expires July 15, the athletic director reportedly took the news bitterly.

So last Wednesday, Murphy made the announcement ending his stay at SJSU – with Spartan Stadium still unexpanded, the football and basketball programs still groping for direction and SJSU's future path in intercollegiate athletics completely open to speculation.

Taken during the height of tensions between the Daily and the athletic department, Athletic Board member Doc Arends and Athletic Director Bob Murphy are shown walking from the Journalism Building last year in this file shot. Murphy will not seek a new contract at SJSU when his term as AD runs out in lack of long-range direction provided by Murphy became apparent to him in his second season on campus (Stiles was hired in April 1976, two months before Murphy).

'When you haven't had any previous administrative experience, it's tough to establish any long-range priorities," Stiles said, "and that's what was needed

Stiles added that Murphy did not provide him with the support - financial and moral - he needed to build the long-range stability Stiles was trying to provide.

In addition, Stiles' low-key, behind-the-scenes techniques were found wanting by Murphy, who was looking for a happy-go-lucky Darryl Rogers type.

Instead, Stiles said, Murphy put pressure on him to compete consistently with Stanford and UC-Berkeley without providing the appropriate resources.

Other coaches said improvements in facilities and finances promised them by Murphy never materialized.

Meanwhile, Murphy soon clashed with the press, both

Murphy expressed dissatisfaction with The Spartan Daily in the fall of 1977, when reporter Russ Ingold drew Murphy's ire for his probes into the basketball program.

Relations with the Daily began to deteriorate at a quicker pace on May 17, 1978 – when Anne Brennan and Hal Donaldson co-authored a story outlining alleged NCAA rules violations within the SJSU Athletic Depart-

Murphy was upset because he said he had asked Brennan and Donaldson for information about the alleged violations and had volunteered to cooperate with them in making clear the facts in the case.

However, the Daily story detailed alleged violations more wide-spread and serious than those disclosed by

The idea of realism, according to Mark Glazebrook, gallery director, is that the paintings are used to act as a mirror to nature. He says the artist is trying to reproduce what he sees.

Satin Doll, by Richard McLean, is a painting which decpits a young woman sitting on a white horse. The painting, in reality, is a photograph that has been painted over.

Original play performing in SJSU Studio Theatre

"No Moves Back," an original play by Martin Halpern, will be performed April 19, 20 and 21 in SJSU's Studio Theatre.

The play, a 1978 winner of the Harold C. Crain national award and playwriting contest, speaks of problems of old age, according to Addyse Lane-Palagyi, director.

"The play makes a statement about the importance of having reverence for the miracle of life, whatever form it is," said Lane-Palagyi.

With a wonderful cast. the message of the play is treated with a light touch, Lane-Palagyi said.

"There is a lot of comedy in the play," she said. "The audience can accept the message or not, although I don't see how anyone can escape it.'

Lane-Palagvi claims she loves doing the show because it's a great op-portunity to work with the basics of life.

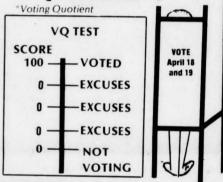

The play which has a flavor of New York, has a lot of subtext and meaning. There is a lot to read between the lines, a cording to Lane-Palagyi.

Journey's 'Evolution' advances backwards

By Chuck Bustillos Any avid follower of the rock band 'Journey' knows that each of their album titles has had a time concept to its name.

San Francisco bred quintet has produced, since their debut release merely named "Journey such albums as "Look Into the Future," "Next," and the platinum record that propeled the band into the national spotlight, "Infinity.

Their latest record is called "Evolution," It really should be "DE-Evolution."

Journey's latest release is not a total waste. However. I'm sure the original Journey fans who remember the days when the boys were rocking out at high school gigs and small auditorium shows probably already melted down their copies of 'Evolution' into vinyl-ash

"Infinity" was classic rock-album. It blended mainstream pop with the hardcore rock sound that had truely 'evolved" with Journey But after their most recent disc, the band had seriously better "look in to the future" to figure out which direction they're headed.

Journey originally debuted with a rather progressive sound weaving the guitar work of Neil Schon, the keyboards of Gregg Rollie and Ross Valory on bass. Now they seem more content gearing themselves into a "pop rock" trademark.

"Evolution" is full of

"Infinity." that can be attributed to the fact that they churned this baby out in eight weeks in order to get underway for a fivemonth world tour. And you just can't be very artistic when putting out an album in that short a time.

All n'all, "Evolution" is a good album. "Lovin' You is Easy," "Too Late" and "Daydream are among the better cuts. But it's just not the Journey of yester-year.

Producer Roy Thomas Baker (The Cars and Queen) seems to want to project these boys as a rock and roll version of "Crosby, Stills and Nash."

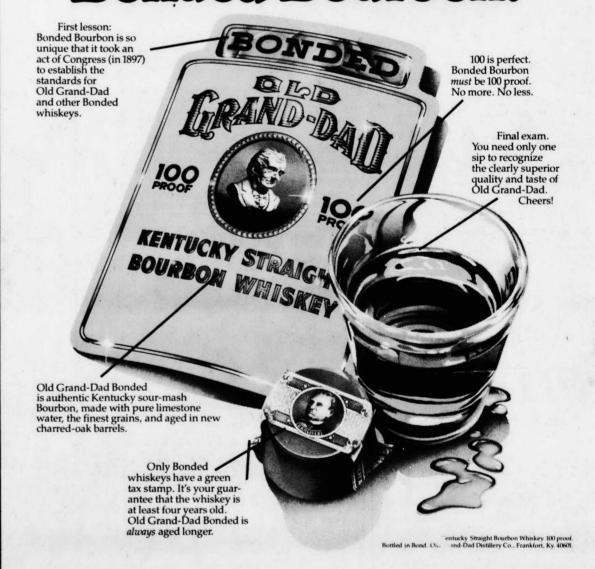

Steve Perry is a good the lead singer, but too often he seems to get in the way with his annoying high-pitched "ooh, ooh, pohs" and "yea, yeas, yeas" Rather than let the inthemselves, Perry jumps could provide a soundtrack for "Deep Throat II."

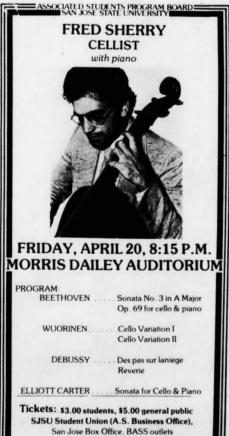

'Evolution" is only four and a half minutes which brings back a yearning for the intricate sound so prevalent on "Look Into the Future." You're just left sitting there waiting for Schon's brilliant guitar work to be unleashed. I'm still waiting.

"Evolution" is not a bad album by any standards, just somewhat of a disappointment. Journey is perhaps the last of a dying San Francisco breed of rock and roll bands, and even they seem to be their lavia (AP) - Aftershocks hampered rescue work yesterday, and residents along the shattered Adriatic coast slept outside for a second night follwing an earthquake that killed 235 persons in Yugoslavia and Albania.

Tourists scurried for airplane tickets out of the devastated area.

Seven special charter flights jammed mostly with German and Yugoslav vacationers left Dubrovnik in the last two days form the area's only major airport, an official at Dubrovnik Airport said.

"The tourist season is Montenegro is almost ruined," said the official, who declined to give his name. "The earthquake caused great damage to most of our hotels." Offficials said they recorded 150 aftershooks after the earthquake, which destroyed buildings along a 60-mile strip of coastline in southern Yugoslavia's Montenegro tourist region and in Albania. They reported one major aftershock at midday Monday, forcing a halt to rescue efforts as a few already weakened structures collapsed.

Rescue workers, hampered by shortages of relief supplies, labored to provide aid for tens of thousands who were sleeping in the open air for a second night, fearing additional earth tremors.

Drinking water was in short supply, with pipe systems destroyed and springs polluted. Cistern trucks made water made deliveries into the stricken

President Tito, who had been staying in his south Adriatic residence at Igalo in the Montenegro region when the quake hit, returned to Belgrade Monday after touring the devastated area.

The British Foreign Office in London said it will send $160,000 worth of to the stricken region in sponse to an aid request from Yugoslavia.

The death toll was at least 200 in Yugoslavia, according to Belgrade Radio. An additional 35 persons were reported killed in neighboring

"I was lying in bed when the quake struck. It was just as if a ripple was going through the whole building," said Raymond Daves, a school principal Nottingham, from England.

Sunday's quake measured 6.5 on the Richter scale.

Jarvis announces state tax initiative

SACRAMENTO (AP) -Howard Jarvis, became a taxcutting byword last June with assage of Propostition 13, announced a new initiative yesterday to cut state income taxes in half.

The measure, planned for the June 1980 ballot, would cut state revenues somewhere between $3 billion and $4 billion a year, starting in 1981.

The 75-year-old lan-dlords' association dlords' association executive kicked off the campaign at a news con-fererence that seemed designed, at least in part, to re-establish his supremacy in the so-called tax revolt.

We have been waiting for a realistic policy to implement 13, and we are still waiting," Jarvis said. "It's time once again to show the politicians in this state who's boss."

That comment could have been aimed at Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who opposed Proposition before its passage but later claimed he made it work

It seemed equally aimed at Paul Gann, Jarvis' Proposition 13 coauthor, who has already qualified a 1980 ballot measure that he calls the logical successor to Proposition 13. Gann's proposal would limit government spending growth to the percentage increase in cost of living plus population.

Jarvis, called the "undisputed leader of the tax revolt" in a release issued at the news con-ference, said his new initiative has not yet been drafted and will begin ciruclating around July. He needs 553,790 valid signatuures to qualify it for the ballot.

The initiative would cut state personal income tax rates in half, starting in the 1980 tax year. The 11 percent maximum rate, now levied against an income of $16,310 for a single person or $32,620 for a married couple, would be cut to 5.5 percent.

State officials say the personal income tax will raise $4.84 billion this year, about a quarter of the state's projected revenue, if Brown gets the $1.3 billion tax cut he wants. If not, it will be more than $6 billion. Revenues in 1980 may well exceed $7 billion.

addition, initiative would fully "index" tax brackets for inflation, so cost-of-living raises don't force em-ployees into higher brackets. Current indexing in California exempts the first 3 percent of inflation; picking up that 3 percent after a 50 percent income tax cut might cost $100

The initiative would also eliminate the business inventory tax, which now raises about $225 million a year. It would not affect other business taxes.

Jarvis, who required a two-thirds legislative vote in Proposition 13 for any increase in state taxes, would go further in his new initiative, forbidding any increase in either income or sales taxes.

Brown Sr. denies interest conflict in Indonesia stand

LOS ANGELES (AP) Former Gov. Edmund G. Brown said yesterday there is no conflict of interest in his promotion of increased U.S. investment in Indonesia and his son's possible presidential

> Brown denied he is a lobbyist for Indonesia but said he has some financial interests in that nation, and he and a partner "import oil from over there."

He said that his business ventures are "a completely separate thing" from the activities of his son, Gov. Edmund G

"It is entirely possible there may be a conflict of interest between what my son says and what I say. We differ on a few things, such as a balanced budget," the former governor said.

Pearl River flooding forces thousands out

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) -The worst Pearl River flood in history surged deeper into the heart of Jackson yesterday sending water to the eaves of some homes in the suburbs and forcing officials to seal off the downtown area.

With an estimated 17,000 persons already driven from their homes, the river poured over sandbag levees and inundated more house, businesses and public facilities, including the city's new $48 millon sewage treatment plant.

Mayor Dale Danks, ordered police to seal off downtown as workers battled to keep floodwater from knocking out a key electic substation supplying power to the area.

Businesses closed, and police turned away all but non-essential workers to prevent sightseers from interfering emergency operations and dump trucks bringing in dirt for sandbags.

The levees holding, but the water surged over the top in spots as the Pearl reached almost 43 feet at Jackson on Monday, nearly 25 feet above flood stage and well above the previous record Officials said the river could crest at 43 feet

We think the peak will come pretty soon," said Dave Waite, a city spokesman. "We're praying that's the case.

Flooding followed the winding course of the river on Jackson's east side. It has sent floodwaters up to the ceilings of expensive homes in northeast residential areas. Overflowing into shopping centers and shops, pushing into downtown streets and areas in the southern part of the city.

Schools were closed indefinitely and were turned into emergency shelters.

City officials said the flooding had driven more than 17,000 persons from their homes in Jackson, but civil defense authorities the number displaced persons at 15,000
