Student service fees rise

by Denise Downer

Student services fees throughout the California State University and Colleges system will increase $12 for the 1980-81 academic year due to a 15 percent increase in salaries.

"Under state practice, the student-servicce fee pays for a particular group of services," said Glenn Gut-tormsen, director of business affairs.

The services are: Student programs and services, career planning and placement, financial aid, housing, counseling, health and testing and evaluation.

Most of the money is used to pay salaries of the professional, clerical and technical staff, Guttormsen said. "It has worked this way for years."

Everybody received a salary increase this year, he said, and everybody will receive an increase next year. "When salaries go up, the cost of operating the services goes up, therefore, student service fees will go up," he said.

Right now, $72 from a full-time student's $109 student fee is used for student services. A student who takes six units or fewer, pays a $92 fee, of which $57 goes toward student service.

Student service fees have remained at the same level since the 1974-75 academic year, said John Richards, senior administrative analyst, except for the $2 increase last year.

Although the $2 increase in fees was eliminated this year, another increase is needed to "catch up with in-flation," Richards said.

For the last four years, the money for the increasing staff salaries was paid out of the state general fund, he said.

However, a new procedure was established last year by CSUC. This procedure allows for student service fees to increase with the rate of inflation, Richards said. "The fee is going to match with the expenditures."

The 15 percent increase in expenditures occurred over two-year period, said Bill Johnson, associate dean of students.

"In the 1978-79 fiscal year, Gov. Brown didn't approve any salary increases for state employees," Johnson said However, the rate of inflation increased by 12-13 percent.

Brown vetoed the bill, but the legislature overrode it. Later, the legislature passed another 7.5 percent increase in salaries for the 1979-80 year.

Ratio hearings begin

by Patty Selbach

In an attempt to lower the Student-Faculty Ratio (SFR) in the Music Department, chairman Robert Cowden appeared before the Enrollment Patterns Committee Wednesday.

Citing a history of faculty overloads and a possible decreased chance for accreditation renewal Cowden said the 14.0 to 15.5 SFR assigned by the committee was "just too high."

SFRs represent the number of full time students per full-time faculty member. They are one factor in determining class size.

"If that's the only way to sup-port programs, ladies and gen-tlemen, then I think something's wrong with the system," Cowden said

Cowden asked the committee for an SFR of 12.5 to 14, underlining his request by stressing the uniqueness of the Music Department.

The current minimum SFR of 14 is "darn near the maximum that the department has been able to faculty have made up for two or three faculty positions, according to Cowden.

Faculty "giving up their weekends, evenings and holidays" will eventually hurt morale, he said.

Foote said he had discussed with Cowden the fact that faculty overloads are common on campus.

Cowden admitted that surprised him, but said it shouldn't be acceptable for any department. In the case of the Music

State Department calls on Hispanics

by Jan Flanery-Taylor

The growing importance of Mexico and other Latin American countries to the United States resulted Tuesday in the first State Department conference ever held in which Hispanic opinions were sought on international politics.

Jorge Klor de Alva, SJSU Mexican-American Graduate Studies Department chairman and an expert in the area of Hispanic cultures, was one of 20 California Hispanics invited to attend the Washington, D.C., conference which he termed "a step in the right direction.

Klor de Alva pointed out, however, that State Department officials did not schedule the conference out of the goodness of their hearts think what motivated the State Department was Carter's interest in Hispanic support. But that was never discussed.

"I don't think what we're seeing is extreme altruism but a more mature recognition by the U.S. of the importance of Latin America," he said.

Of course, this sudden interest has a lot to do with Mexican oil, as well as other Mexican products the United States buys, he said.

Klor de Alva said Mexico is quickly becoming one of the United States' most important trade partners.

He said figures from the U.S. ambassador to Mexico show that the United States investments in Mexico are three times greater than five years ago sells is sold to the U.S. and 60 percent of its imports are bought from the United States, he said. Also, the United States is buying $10 billion per day in petroleum products from Mexico.

Sixty percent of what Mexico

'A lot of the stuff you eat comes from Mexico," he said, "but it isn't in a package saying it's a Mexican product because the United States is afraid people won't buy it." Similar anti-Hispanic sentiments brought charges from the approximately 150 representatives attending the conference that the State Department is unwilling to hire Hispanic ambassadors and representatives.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and top personnel persons in the State Department were present, Klor de Alva said.

Vance vehemently denied any unwillingness to hire Hispanics, according to Klor de Alva.

"They were talking about increasing their minority numbers," Klor de Alva said. "The situation is just disastrous," since only 1.7 percent of 19,090 in the State Department are Hispanic.

Latin American governments tend to look down on Hispanics," and feel slighted if they are not sent Anglo ambassadors, Klor de Alva said.

"They feel they're getting a second-class citizen and being treated like they're not important, if a Hispanic is sent, he said.

The reason is because the Latin Americans know Hispanics are treated second-class here, he said. "That's a very sensitive issue," he added.

He said the State Department indicated it would change its priorities and work for more aid to Latin American countries.

Klor de Alva said there is 25-45 percent unemployment in Latin American countries, and in many areas, 40 percent of the population is making less than $200 a year per person.

Because of the massive poverty and unemployment, Hispanics many countries are emmigrating to richer countries, such as Colombians going to Venezuela

Not only are many Mexicans immigrating to the United States, but many Hispanics from other countries are immigrating to Mexico, for despite its poverty, it is richer than some other states, he said.

Klor de Alva said immigration and the huma rights policy were among the most important issues to the Mexican-Americans.

Concerns about police harassment of Mexican-Americans was a very strong issue," he said.

The representatives were disturbed about harassment of undocumented workers by police, as well as of Hispanics in general, he said.

He said the representatives pretty much concluded that human rights legislation had done little good for Hispanics.

Klor de Alva recalled that Vance was "cornered on the issue of Puerto Rican independence.

Vance said all the Puerto Ricans had to do was vote for it, according to Klor de Alva.

_____forum_____ Should marijuana be legalized?

Lawful possession has advantages

by Sean Whaley Associate City Editor

Marijuana. The word connotes illegal and immoral images to a large percentage of persons. To others, it is a way to relax and enjoy without the hangover associated with alcohol.

The push to legalize marijuana has been present in California for several years. During every election, a spokesperson for the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws says its time to put such a measure on the ballot.

A lack of signatures, however, has meant that the push must always come "next year."

The lack of support for legalizing or at least decriminalizing the drug is because of ignorance and fear on a large part of the electorate.

Look at all the advantages legalizing the drug would accomplish:

It would be a taxable item by the state just as liquor and cigarettes are now, meaning plenty of money that would not be taken out of a homeowner's pocket.

The drug, like alcohol, would not be sold to minors, thus reducing the chances that younger children would get involved with the drug.

Organized crime would lose one of its biggest money makers. Millions if not billions of dollars a year are made in the business of growing, importing and selling marijuana, and control by the government would reduce if not completely eliminate the element of criminal involvement.

With federal inspection, the buyer would be confident of the purity of the purchase, and not have to worry about paraquat poisoning or other such contamination.

Federal control would have another positive result. Unscrupulous drug dealers sometimes attempt to get the buyer involved in another more expensive and dangerous drug, such as cocaine or angel dust by lacing the marijuana with the substance. This practice, although not common, can have dire results. A federal inspection of majijuana bought and sold would put a stop to this practice. Contrary to popular belief, California would not be

Contrary to popular belief, California would not be inundated with undesireables in search of freedom from persecution. Oregon, since several years ago, has decriminalized the posession of an ounce or less of the drug, and the state has not yet been overrun with criminal types.

Instead, the legalization would get rid of many of the undesirables, since they are interested in making money. They would go to another state where black market prices for the drug would be high and where they could make a profit.

The legalization would also lower the price of the drug, since there would be competition among companies. The independent high priced drug dealer would be a thing of the past.

One must remember also that with legalization, the excitement of doing something risky and illegal would take the joy away from many people who use the drug. The thrill would be gone.

Considering the widespread use of marajuana and the social respectability it is gaining among many people, it would be silly to think that keeping it illegal or making the penality even tougher would reduce the use. It would not.

As long as there is a demand, and there is, there will be a supply to meet it. No law will change an economic reality. The point is that in moderation, all of the above are not overly harmful. There are those who have never heard of the word moderation, but that is the case for any drug. There are approximately 15 million alcoholics in this country at the present time.

Who is to say what a person should or should not do with their own life? It is against the libertarian ideal of freedom and choice and the ideal of doing it for the good of someone else is applied only in a discriminatory fashion.

Drug will lead to serious problems

by Eric Hammond

The young man sits in a blank stupor. His eyes are glassy and his pupils are dilated. He sits on the bench watching the football team practice. At 16, he has lost interest in life. He is one of the millions of Americans who smoke pot on a regular basis. He does not know what he is doing to himself.

Marijuana has been smoked by Americans for hundreds of years, but never in the amounts and potency that exist today. Recent figures indicate that use of marijuana is spreading to elementary school pupils.

A prominent psychologist recently expressed concern that marijuana use in youngsters could lead to serious problems caused by the refusal of the young drug user to face the problems of growing up. The professor said, that by escaping into a chemical wonderland, young adolescents are halting their progress toward adulthood.

It is an interesting fact that many experts who were widely quoted a few years back as saying marijuana was harmless, are now reversing their opinions. In 1967, Dr. Harvey Powelson, chairman of the U.C. Berkeley Department of Psychology was widely quoted as saying marijuana was harmless.

He has now completely reversed himself. After seeing more than 1,000 marijuana users, he was recently quoted as saying "Marijuana is the most dangerous drug we have to contend with today." A collection of the report documenting harmful

A collection of the report documenting harmful effects of marijuana would fill a library. Some of the proven effects are: birth defects, weakened immunity, lung damage, brain damage and chromosome damage.

This does not include the many harmful psychological changes that have been traced to use of marijuana. These include memory loss, lessened learning ability, loss of motivation and changes in personality.

Incidentally, even casual users are not immune from some of the harmful effects. Studies have shown that the poison from a single "joint" remains in the system for up to two weeks after the "high" stops. Studies have shown that marijuana users often

Studies have shown that marijuana users often become more vulnerable to the persuasive powers of others and are less able to exercise good judgment and reasoning ability.

reasoning ability. This loss of judgment could explain the delusive belief of users that the drug is somehow expanding their minds and making them more creative. Users often try to get their friends to start the habit with the fervor of a religious crusade. A glance at any issue of "High Times" magazine

A glance at any issue of "High Times" magazine indicated that drugs and drug paraphernalia is a multibillion dollar industry. The vast array of colorful pipes and other apparatus for "turning on" proves that many people are making a lot of money off the chemical Nirvana of the drug user.

The most tragic aspect of the drug use epidemic sweeping America is the unaccounted cost in wasted potential among the future rulers of our nation.

How many potential presidents or Nobel Prize winners have already been lost to marijuana's annihilating black mist of unawareness? How many lives that started full of promise for the future have been lost in a haze of sickly sweet smoke?

Recent studies have shown that the more potent forms of marijuana such as hashish have been finding their way into the hands of grade school children. It is estimated that one-third of 16-year-olds smoke marijuana one or more times a month. Will these youngsters be able to defend American freedom when they come of age?

The wide-spread use of marijuana has been blamed by many experts for America's falling productivity in the world economic system. The reduced motivation and alertness caused by marijuana costs businesses millions of dollars each year in wasted time.

The proposed legalization of marijuana would escalate a national tragedy into a national nightmare. One can no longer discount the possibility that some kind of future dictatorship might take and retain power because the populace was too "stoned" to care.

The legalization of marijuana would invite the development of ever more potent varieties and the distribution of a dangerous drug to younger and younger children. If the school teachers of today think they have problems, they should wait until they are given the task of educating a generation of blank-eyed, blank-minded, first graders.

Municipal court out to destroy revolutionary leadership

In disbelief we read Bill Shivell's letter regarding the "irrelevance" of the trial and conviction of the Sn Jose State 5 to the students at San Jose State. Not only is this trial and the larger trial of Bob Avakian and the Mao Tsetung defendants of crucial importance to students, as many are coming to realize, it is also of crucial importance to the working class in this country. Following is an edited version of a letter circulated in factories in this area by the National United Workers Organization. It was signed and delivered to the presiding judge by workers who are lifting their heads to the truly important questions of our time which Mr. Shivell dismisses with such a Philistine sneer. San Jose Municipal Court, we are outraged at your role as conductor in the "legal" railroad of the San Jose 2. The five were sent to the probation department to have their records searched for previous political convictions that could be used as an excuse to jail them. Even probation officers were shocked at the court's vindictiveness against the defendants for an obscure violation of the Educational Code.

The Municipal Court, and those behind it, clearly saw that more was at stake in this trial than an attempt to silence and intimidate student revolutionaries. The "evidence" the San Jose Police brought to the trial proves this: the SJPD file on the Revolutionary Communist Youth Brigade – a file that contained police reports from Washington, D.C. to L.A. What more evidence do we need that there is a nationwide political conspiracy going on

State 5 for holding an "illegal rally."

The way the trial of these five revolutionaries was conducted shows this is true. Just a few examples:

1. The law on illegal rallies was upheld. And further, the court upheld the definition by Sgt. Correll that an "illegal rally" is if "two or more students get into a discussion which attracts the interest of other students." All any cop has to do to make an arrest on this charge is listen to the discussion and decide if he likes what's being said.

Editor:

I am appalled at some of the information that appeared in the article about the new carpet for the Student Union. It seems that someone is spending money foolishly, again. I am referring to the cost quoted in the Daily for the new carpet. Let me just quote you some of the current costs for good grade commercial carpet.

grade commercial carpet. A good top grade nylon carpet that will last longer than the wool carpet mentioned in the article is $12.50 a square yard; good top grade pad is $2.15 a square yard; installation is $2 a square yard. The total cost is $16.55 a square yard.

It is also a fact that wool carpet is the worst carpet to keep clean – just about anyone in the industry can tell you that. Wool carpet has a good lifespan but it is nowhere near worth the high cost. With the difference being about $11 a square yard or $47,500, it seems this is an area where some more work needs to be than the SJPD file photos of "weapons" supposedly used by the Mao Tsetung Defendants at a demonstration in Washington? This trial and the way the court conducted it is an attempt to grease the skids and create public opinion for the railroad of the Mao Tsetung Defendants and Bob Avakian.

We will not stand silently and watch the rulers of this country railroad revolutionary leaders to jail. We thoroughly support the actions of the students on San Jose State campus who demonstrated against the railroad of

The game will be played on the astroturf surface of Kleeberger Field, the same field where last week's erkeley Invitational was played.

But the Spartans, whose home South Campus field is natural grass, must not have had too much trouble adjusting to the faster astroturf, since they won the six-team event while host Cal finished fourth.

Cards face letdown vs. SJSU poloists

by Roger Myers

When SJSU entertains Stanford's No. 3-ranked water polo team at Independence High School tomorrow mor-ning at 10, the Spartans may find the Cardinals easier prey than in the season's opening game in which the defending NCAA champions thrashed SJSU 18-4.

Today the Cards invade Berkeley, where they have won but once in the last ten years, for a crucial match against California, which leads the Pacific+10 by one game over Stanford.

"Not only is Cal a big game in the league," Stanford coach Dante Dettamonti said in a phone interview, "they are also our big rival. We'll be so up for it that there will have to be an emotional letdown against San Jose.

"They would have to play a super game and we'd have to be really down for us to lose because we have so many aces in the hole," Stanford's third-year coach said.

The Cards' stacked deck includes two-time All-America goalie John Gansel; All-America Alan Mouchawar; leading scorer sophomore Chris Kellsey, with 49 goals; and "the top freshman in the country," James Bergeson, a 41-goal scorer so far. But Dettamonti feels his team, 18-3-1, 4-2 in the Pac-

10, could be beaten by the improved Spartans. "We have to guard against playing down to our opponents," he said, "which is something Stanford is famous for."

Spartans open playoff bid in L.A

by Mark Marymee

The SJSU soccer team's second 1979 season begins tomorrow when they take on the UCLA Bruins in Los

After being taken off probation by the NCAA this ek, the Spartans, currently ranked third in the Far West soccer ratings, are now eligible to be selected for post-season play.

In order to make it into the first round of the Far West Regional Playoffs, the 11-3 Spartans will probably have to beat each of their last three opponents to do it.

Starting with the 14-9-2 Bruins, ranked 12th in the West this week, the Spartans return home Nov. 8 to face UC Santa Barbara before traveling to Santa Clara Nov. 11 for the season finale against the second ranked Broncos, currently 11-4-1

Last season, the NCAA Far West Region soccer playoff selection committee chose three teams form the Pacific Soccer Conference; the University of San Francisco, Santa Clara and SJSU.

If those selections hold true for the current season, the Spartans have a very good chance to make it into the playoffs. Last year they were disqualified by the NCAA, leading to a year's probation. Tuesday, the NCAA lifted the Spartans' probation.

'It would be great if we could win all three," SJSU coach Julie Menendez said, looking forward to his Spartans' three remaining games. "But it would still be possible to qualify for the playoffs and not win all three.

"Right now, with the exception of USF and San Diego State, our record is the best," Menendez said of the Far West ratings. "At the present tie we're ranked ahead of San Diego (ranked fifth) because we've played a tougher schedule.

"They (San Diego) have not played the scheuule we've played or that Santa Clara has played or USF," Menendez said of the 12-2-1 Aztecs. "And that's a consideration the selection committee makes when they start selecting teams.

"I feel pretty good about out chances," he added. "I think we're peaking now.

If the Spartans are actually playig their best soccer right now, they could not have picked a better time to take on the Bruins, who are 12-2-2 against West Coast teams, according to UCLA Assistant coach Sigi Schmid. One Bruin SJSU hopes will go ito hibernation seven eks early is forward Ole Mikkelsen, a 1978 All-America and UCLA's leading scorer.

Mikkelsen has scored 12 goals and 10 assists for the Bruins, is not considered by Schmid to be an outstanding soccer player.

"Ole doesn't have any super outstanding qualities," Schmid said in a telephone interview from Los Agneles. 'He has only above average speed and he's not great in the air. He just works hard.

"He's like a player San Jose had last year, Easy Perez," Schmid said of SJSU's all-tome leading scorer. 'He hangs around the goal a lot a picks up goals that way

While the Spartans will be working to keep the junior forward away from the SJSU nets, they will also have to concentrate on keeping Bruin goalie Dan Nannini busy throughout the afternoon

Nannini, converted from fullback to goalie after the Bruins' starting goaltender had some impromptu dental work sone in a collision in an early season game at UC Davis, has registered seven shutouts this year. His goalsagainst average is also a respectable .5 goals per game, according to Schmid.

"We're not an offensive team," Schmid said of the Bruins, whose 1979 season goal-scoring average is two scores per game.

"We may not have scored a lot of goals, but if we haven't played one of the toughest schedules in the nation. I'd like to meet someone who says we haven't." Schmid

Fencers host Cards, Gators

by Ron Lazzarott

The SJSU fencers will put their 3-0 mark on the line this weekend when they host Stanford today and San Francisco State tomorrow.

Stanford brings a 1-0 record into the match, with the win coming at the expense of Sonoma State, a team SJSU has also beaten.

The Cardinals' top fencers are foilist Johr. Burgess, a senior who won all three bouts against Sonoma and senior Marla Tokola, who also won all three of her bouts against Sonoma.

'I really don't know too much about their present team." SJSU coach Michael D'Asaro said. "However, I do know they beefed up their program since last year. They've hired a new assistant coach.

'They have been traditionally strong in epee, D'Asaro said. "I don't know about their foil team, but I do expect our women's foil and sabre teams to dominate.

Spartan fencers will be out for revenge when the Gators come to town. More specifically, the foil team will be out to avenge a

5-4 loss suffered during the clubs first meeting. "We beat them the last time," D'Asaro said, "but it was close. We lost in two weapons

"Foil is out to avenge the loss," D'Asaro added. "They have a score to settle"

In their last meeting with the Gators, the inex-perienced epee team also lost, but has shown progress since then.

'The epee team is improving," D'Asaro said. "The progress is slow, but they are improving." One change that has made a difference since their last match with the Gators is that Doug Nichols has been switched from foil to epee, strengthening the epee team, according to D'Asaro

However, the match to keep an eye on is the foil match, D'Asaro said.

"We're going to win," freshman foilist Phil Bellard said confidently. "We should have beat them the last time

Bellard, who was fencing in his first collegiate match the first time around with San Francisco State, lost two of three bouts, but appears more confident this time.

"It was our first match of the season," he said. "We e just too anxious. This time we will be ready."

The Stanford match is set for 4 p.m. today, and the San Francisco State contest will begin at 2 p.m. tomorrow. Both matches will be in the women's gym

by Scott Mace

The A.S. Council Wednesday spent nearly all of the naining fall special allocations funds.

Though the council may choose to dip into spring allocation money, right now only $463 is available for fall special allocations. The programs funded Wednesday were:

• Winter Carnival, co-sponsored by the Associated Students and the Ski Club. A.S. is underwriting a $1,000 delegates to a college radio conference in Los Angeles, received $295. · Hillel Education and Culture Committee, a Jewish cultural organization, which received $1,835 for a series of programs.

The Biology Students Association, which received $150 for a coffeepot and toaster oven for its coffee bar in Duncan Hall. · An A.S. Problem Solving Directory for Students, which received a $1,090 underwrite for printing. Revenue made by underwritten programs must be paid bak to the A.S., both for the amount of the underwrite and any additional profit.

Lee Hammer, manager of KSJS radio, told the council the University of California at Los Angeles trip on Nov. 16 18 would enable KSJS staff to "learn how to better operate our radio station.

'We represent the students of this university.' Hammer said. "We're a big public media outlet for you people.

Hammer said KSJS is trying to increase its broadcasting power from 1,000 to 3,000 watts. One of the subjects of the UCLA radio convention will be how college radio stations can raise money, Hammer said

Initially, the council leaned away from sending any KSJS staff to Los Angeles by air. When Hammer objected due to the burden driving to the conference would be, the council relented and approved plane fare for two staff members.

Hammer and another staff member must broadcast a San Jose State-Santa Clara football game the night before the conference and flying will cut seven hours off the travel time.

The allocation includes registration fees for two other members, but no additional travel expenses were paid for them. KSJS also received $55 for two nights lodging.

Several weeks ago La Cosa Nueva, a Chicano student organization which runs a KSJS radio program, received $2,431 for production equipment and a Chicano media symposium in the spring. A.S. Public Information Officer Gary Satre, who is also a KSJS news writer and announcer, told the council the special allocations committee showed "a remarkable lack of understanding" and bad priorities by funding so much less to KSJS.

"You authorize La Cosa Nueva, an organization who puts on only a small portion of the total KSJS programming effort, over $2,000, then turn around and refuse KSJS itself less than $600," Satre said.

'The decisions you make should be tempered by the question, 'Will this action provide the greatest good for the greatest amount of people."' While Satre admitted La Cosa Nueva "does a fine of meeting certain needs, he said that "$2,000 can buy a lot of new equipment KSJS needs very badly." Council member Ken Schott asked the council what good the Instructionally Related Activities fund was if groups so funded such as KSJS continued to come back for more money from special allocations.

A.S. Vice President Kiran Majithia had to cast the tie breaking vote in favor of KSJS' request. It was the first time the council chairman had to break a tie this semester. The council split 7-6 with one abstention. According to A.S. rules, an abstention counts as a no vote. A.S. Treasurer Juvencia Romo encouraged all council members to contribute ideas on how special allocations could be handled better.

Romo and A.S. President Nancy McFadden were concerned that every time the council allocates money for a certain type of program, other similar groups could come and ask for money using the earlier action as a precedent.

Cards face letdown vs. SJSU poloists

____Sports

by Roger Myers

When SJSU entertains Stanford's No. 3-ranked water polo team at Independence High School tomorrow morning at 10, the Spartans may find the Cardinals easier prey than in the season's opening game in which the defending NCAA champions thrashed SJSU 18-4.

Today the Cards invade Berkeley, where they have won but once in the last ten years, for a crucial match against California, which leads the Pacific+10 by one game over Stanford.

"Not only is Cal a big game in the league," Stanford coach Dante Dettamonti said in a phone interview, "they are also our big rival. We'll be so up for it that there will have to be an emotional letdown against San Jose.

"They would have to play a super game and we'd have to be really down for us to lose because we have so many aces in the hole," Stanford's third-year coach said.

The Cards' stacked deck includes two-time All-America goalie John Gansel; All-America Alan Mouchawar; leading scorer sophomore Chris Kellsey, with 49 goals; and "the top freshman in the country," James Bergeson, a 41-goal scorer so far

But Dettamonti feels his team, 18-3-1, 4-2 in the Pac-10, could be beaten by the improved Spartans.

"We have to guard against playing down to our op-ponents," he said, "which is something Stanford is famous for."

time

The SJSU soccer team's second 1979 season begins tomorrow when they take on the UCLA Bruins in Los Angeles.

After being taken off probation by the NCAA this week, the Spartans, currently ranked third in the Far West soccer ratings, are now eligible to be selected for post-season play. In order to make it into the first round of the Far West Regional Playoffs, the 11-3 Spartans will probably have to beat each of their last three opponents to do it.

Starting with the 14-9-2 Bruins, ranked 12th in the West this week, the Spartans return home Nov. 8 to face UC Santa Barbara before traveling to Santa Clara Nov. 11 for the season finale against the second ranked Broncos, currently 11-4-1.

Last season, the NCAA Far West Region soccer playoff selection committee chose three teams form the Pacific Soccer Conference; the University of San Francisco, Santa Clara and SJSU

If those selections hold true for the current season, the Spartans have a very good chance to make it into the playoffs. Last year they were disqualified by the NCAA, leading to a year's probation. Tuesday, the NCAA lifted the Spartans' probation.

'It would be great if we could win all three," SJSU coach Julie Menendez said, looking forward to his Spartans' three remaining games. "But it would still be ssible to qualify for the playoffs and not win all three.

However, the match to keep an eye on is the foil

'We're going to win," freshman foilist Phil Bellard

Bellard, who was fencing in his first collegiate match

"It was our first match of the season," he said. "We the first time around with San Francisco State, lost two of three bouts, but appears more confident this time.

"We should have beat them the last

"Right now, with the exception of USF and San Diego State, our record is the best," Menendez said of the Far West ratings. "At the present tie we're ranked ahead of San Diego (ranked fifth) because we've played a tougher schedule

"They (San Diego) have not played the scheuule we've played or that Santa Clara has played or USF," Menendez said of the 12-2-1 Aztecs. "And that's a consideration the selection committee makes when they start selecting teams

"I feel pretty good about out chances," he added. "I think we're peaking now."

If the Spartans are actually playig their best soccer right now, they could not have picked a better time to take on the Bruins, who are 12-2-2 against West Coast teams, according to UCLA Assistant coach Sigi Schmid.

One Bruin SJSU hopes will go ito hibernation seven weeks early is forward Ole Mikkelsen, a 1978 All-America and UCLA's leading scorer. Mikkelsen has scored 12 goals and 10 assists for the Bruins, is not considered by Schmid to be an outstanding soccer player. "Ole doesn't have any super outstanding qualities,"

Schmid said in a telephone interview from Los Agneles. 'He has only above average speed and he's not great in

"He has only above average speet and he has proved that the air. He just works hard. "He's like a player San Jose had last year, Easy Perez," Schmid said of SJSU's all-tome leading scorer. "He hangs around the goal a lot a picks up goals that

While the Spartans will be working to keep the junior forward away from the SJSU nets, they will also have to

ncentrate on keeping Bruin goalie Dan Nannini busy throughout the afterno

Nannini, converted from fullback to goalie after the Bruins' starting goaltender had some impromptu dental work sone in a collision in an early season game at UC Davis, has registered seven shutouts this year. His goalsagainst average is also a respectable .5 goals per game, according to Schmid.

"We're not an offensive team," Schmid said of the Bruins, whose 1979 season goal-scoring average is two scores per game.

"We may not have scored a lot of goals, but if we haven't played one of the toughest schedules in the nation, I'd like to meet someone who says we haven't," Schmid said.

The SJSU fencers will put their 3-0 mark on the line this weekend when they host Stanford today and San Francisco State tomorrow

Stanford brings a 1-0 record into the match, with the win coming at the expense of Sonoma State, a team SJSU has also beaten.

The Cardinals' top fencers are foilist Johr. Burgess, a senior who won all three bouts against Sonoma and senior Marla Tokola, who also won all three of her bouts against Sonoma

'I really don't know too much about their present team," SJSU coach Michael D'Asaro said. "However, I do know they beefed up their program since last year. They've hired a new assistant coach.

"They have been traditionally strong in epee," D'Asaro said. "I don't know about their foil team, but I do expect our women's foil and sabre teams to dominate.

Spartan fencers will be out for revenge when the Gators come to town.

More specifically, the foil team will be out to avenge a 5-4 loss suffered during the clubs first meeting. "We beat them the last time," D'Asaro said, "but it was close. We lost in two weapons.

"Foil is out to averge the loss," D'Asaro added. "They have a score to settle"

In their last meeting with the Gators, the inex-perienced epee team also lost, but has shown progress since then.

"The epee team is improving," D'Asaro said. "The progress is slow, but they are improving.

One change that has made a difference since their last match with the Gators is that Doug Nichols has been switched from foil to epee, strengthening the epee team, according to D'Asaro.

The Stanford match is set for 4 p.m. today, and the San Francisco State contest will begin at 2 p.m. tomorrow. Both matches will be in the women's gym.

by Scott Mace

The A.S. Council Wednesday spent nearly all of the remaining fall special allocations funds.

Though the council may choose to dip into spring allocation money, right now only $463 is available for fall special allocations. The programs funded Wednesday were:

Winter Carnival, co-sponsored by the Associated Students and the Ski Club. A.S. is underwriting a $1,000 deposit for 100 persons at Squaw Valley Jan. 6-11, 1980. KSJS Radio, which requested $578 for sending four delegates to a college radio conference in Los Angeles, received $295.

· Hillel Education and Culture Committee, a Jewish cultural organization, which received $1,835 for a series of programs

The Biology Students Association, which received $150 for a coffeepot and toaster oven for its coffee bar in Duncan Hall.

· An A.S. Problem Solving Directory for Students, which received a $1,090 underwrite for printing.

Revenue made by underwritten programs must be paid bak to the A.S., both for the amount of the underwrite and any additional profit.

Lee Hammer, manager of KSJS radio, told the council the University of California at Los Angeles trip on Nov. 16-18 would enable KSJS staff to "learn how to better operate our radio station.

"We represent the students of this university," Hammer said. "We're a big public media outlet for you people."

Hammer said KSJS is trying to increase its broad-sting power from 1,000 to 3,000 watts.

One of the subjects of the UCLA radio convention will be how college radio stations can raise money, Hammer said

Initially, the council leaned away from sending any KSJS staff to Los Angeles by air. When Hammer objected due to the burden driving to the conference would be, the council relented and approved plane fare for two staff members.

Hammer and another staff member must broadcast a San Jose State-Santa Clara football game the night before the conference and flying will cut seven hours off the travel time

The allocation includes registration fees for two other nembers, but no additional travel expenses were paid for them. KSJS also received $55 for two nights lodging.

Several weeks ago La Cosa Nueva, a Chicano student organization which runs a KSJS radio program, received $2,431 for production equipment and a Chicano media symposium in the spring. A.S. Public Information Officer Gary Satre, who is also a KSJS news writer and announcer, told the council the special allocations committee showed "a remarkable of understanding" and bad priorities by funding so much less to KSJS

"You authorize La Cosa Nueva, an organization who puts on only a small portion of the total KSJS programming effort, over $2,000, then turn around and refuse KSJS itself less than $600," Satre said. "The decisions you make should be tempered by the question, 'Will this action provide the greatest good for the greatest amount of people."' While Satre admitted La Cosa Nueva "does a fine job" of meeting certain needs, he said that "$2,000 can buy a lot of new equipment KSJS needs very badly."

Council member Ken Schott asked the council what good the Instructionally Related Activities fund was if groups so funded such as KSJS continued to come back for more money from special allocations.

A.S. Vice President Kiran Majithia had to cast the tiebreaking vote in favor of KSJS' request. It was the first time the council chairman had to break a tie this semester. The council split 7-6 with one abstention. According to A.S. rules, an abstention counts as a no vote.

A.S. Treasurer Juvencia Romo encouraged all council members to contribute ideas on how special allocations could be handled better.

Romo and A.S. President Nancy McFadden were concerned that every time the council allocates money for a certain type of program, other similar groups could come and ask for money using the earlier action as a precedent.

Klor de Alva said a great deal of concern was expressed about Russian military presence in Puerto Rico and Cuba.

He said the mayor of Miami was vehement about reports of Russian presence in Cien Fuegos in southern Cuba Cubans and Puerto Ricans see that as a very serious threat. Klor de Alva said.

Klor de Alva said the Latin Americans tended to dominate the conference, since they were concerned more with international affairs.

"I think Chicanos are thinking more in national terms than in international Latin American terms," he said. Klor de Alva said the State Department is supposed to be planning more such conferences in the future. He will lecture Wednesday to discuss the issues brought up at the conference. The time and place of that lecture have not yet been decided.

University Police recovered $12,000 this week in life rafts, sextants, radio and other navigational equipment reported missing from Moss Landing in Monterey since February, according to Lt. Larry James of the University in San Diego Monday, turned up $2,000 of the missing equipment and led to the arrest of a former ship's captain at the SJSU-operated marine training facility, James said.

A search of the "Taylor Day," a fishing vessel docked

Salinas resident John Snodgrass, 49, was held by U.S. Customs officials and San Diego Police for Sgt. William Correl and investigator Ed Anderson of the University Police, James said.

University Police arrested Snodgrass on charges of possession of stolen property, embezzlement by a state official and grand theft, James said.

With the help of various agencies, James said, University Police were able to determine that Snodgrass would be sailing from Florida to Monterey by way of the Panama Canal.
